1. Dare any of you, when he has a controversy with his brother, litigate before the sinful, and not before the sanctified? 2. Or don't you know that the sanctified will judge the world? And if the world will be judged by you, are you unfit to decide trivial causes? 3. Don't you know that we will judge Messengers? How much more things that are of the world? 4. If then you have a legal issue concerning this world, do you seat on a bench (of judgment) those who are immoral in the assembly?<sup>21</sup> 5. For shame to you I say (it). So, there is not even one wise man among you, who is competent to do equity between a brother and his brother: 6. But a brother litigates with his brother and also before them (judges) that are not believers! 7. Therefore now you condemn yourselves in that you have litigation with one another. (Why would you) rather not suffer the wrong or (why would you) prefer not to be defrauded? 8. But you yourselves commit wrong, and you defraud even your Brothers. 9. Or don't you know, that the unrighteous will not inherit the Kingdom of Elohim?<sup>22</sup> Make no mistake! Neither sexual sinners, nor idol-worshippers, nor adulterers, nor the corrupt, nor men who lay down with other men, 10. Nor the oppressors, nor thieves, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, will inherit the Kingdom of Elohim. 11. And these things have been in some of you: but you are washed, and are sanctified, and made righteous, in the name of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, and by the Spirit of our Elohim. 12. Everything is in my power: but everything is not profitable to me. Everything is in my power; but none (of them) will have dominion over me. 13. Food is for the belly; and the belly is for food; but Elohim will bring them both to nothing. But the body is not for illicit sex, but for our Master (Y'shua); and our Master (Y'shua) for the body.

18 The word for "leaven" here is makhmae, the cognate in Hebrew of which is chometz. Therefore, Rav Shaul is teaching the Corinthians by using Passover imagery, by commanding them to purge the chometz from the house of their hearts, so that they can be sanctified. Of course, the rest of this verse and the next proves this interpretation.

19 Some suggest this verse means that Y'shua had to be killed on the 14th of Abib/Nisan, at the time the Passover lamb was killed for the evening sacrifice; however that is contradictory with Gospel accounts. The "Last Supper" was a Passover seder, from late in the afternoon on the 14th to the early (dark) hours of the 15th. As for the symmetry of the Paschal sacrifice and the crucifixion, this too falls apart upon closer scrutiny. For the Passover lamb, its pain is fleeting as it is humanely and quickly dispatched with a single slit of the throat. How does this compare to six hours on a torture stake then? A much closer parallel is that Y'shua's suffers the next afternoon, the 15th of Abib, Chag haMatzah (Feast of Unleavened Bread) on the day that two young bulls, a ram and seven yearling lambs, without blemish were offered in the Temple (Num 28:17-19).

20 Breaking of bread, of course, is a timeworn Middle Eastern custom that is done only with family and friends. If you cannot eat with someone (as Peter tried to separate himself in Galatians 2:13), then you cannot associate with them at all. If the sinner was out of the assembly, you were not permitted to persecute them. However, you could, and in fact you must, demand that such a person put away detestable habits if they are to join the assembly and partake of the communal and havdilah meals that Y'shua and his disciples enjoyed.

21 Rav Shaul's training with Rabbi Gamaliel, the grandson of Hillel (Acts 22:1), comes through here with what is known as kol v'khomer (light and heavy) teaching style. If something small or trivial is true, it must also be true on a much more important scale. This argumentation is usually spotted, as it is here, with the phrase "how much more." The point here is that if you would not let immoral men in your assembly judge for you in a secular case, how much more unqualified would these same reprobates be when judging spiritual matters in the assembly?

22 Compare this to Matthew 5:17-20, where we are told that breaking the least commandment of Torah and teaching others to do the same makes a person "least in the kingdom" but they still get in. Y'shua implies that those with more serious sins won't make it in: "Depart from me, workers of iniquity, I never knew you"; but here, Rav Shaul gives a more specific list of what will keep them out.

14. And Elohim has raised up our Master; and he will raise us up, by his power. 15. Don't you know that your bodies are the members of the Mashiyach? Will one take a member of the Mashiyach, and make it the member of a harlot? May it never be! 16. Or don't you know, that whoever joins himself to a harlot, is one body (with her)? For it is said, the two will be one body. 17. But he that joins himself to our Master (Y'shua), is with him one spirit. 18. Flee from sexual sin. For every (other) sin which a man commits, is external to his body; but he that commits sexual sin, sins against his own body.<sup>23</sup> 19. Or don't you know, that your body is the temple of the Ruach haKodesh who abides in you, whom you have received from Elohim? And you are not your own. 20. For you are bought with a price. Therefore you glorify Elohim with your body, and with your spirit, which are Elohim's.

Chapter 7

1. And concerning the things of which you wrote to me, it is praiseworthy for a man not to approach a woman. 2. But, on account of sexual temptation, let each have his own wife and let a woman have her own husband. 3. And let the man render to his wife the kindness which is due; and so also the woman to her husband. 4. The woman is not the sovereign over her body, but her husband: so also the man is not the sovereign over his body, but the wife. 5. Therefore, deprive not one another, except when you both consent at the time you devote yourselves to fasting and prayer; and return again to the same disposition that Satan does not tempt you because of the passions of your body. 6. But this I say, as to weak persons, not of positive precept. 7. For I desire that all men might be like me in purity. But every man is endowed with his gift of Elohim; one thus, and another so. 8. And I say to them who have no wives, and to widows, that it is advantageous to them to remain as I am. 9. But if they cannot endure (their condition), let them marry: for it is more profitable to take a wife, than to burn with passion. 10. And on them who have wives, I enjoin, not I, but my Master (Y'shua) that the woman not separate from her husband. 11. And if she separate, let her remain without a husband, or be reconciled to her husband; and let not the man put away his wife. 12. And to the rest, I say, I, not my Master (Y'shua), that if there be a brother, who has a wife that does not believe, and she is disposed to dwell with him, let him not put her away. 13. And that woman, who has a husband that does not believe, and he is disposed to dwell with her let her not forsake her husband. 14. For the husband who does not believe is sanctified by the wife that believes; and the wife who does not believe is sanctified by the husband that believes: otherwise their children would be impure; but now are they pure. 15. But if the unbeliever separates, let him separate: A brother or sister is not in bondage in such cases: it is to peace, Elohim has called us. 16. For how do you know, O wife, whether you will procure life to your husband? Or, you, husband, do you know, whether you will procure life to your wife?

<sup>23</sup> Sexual sin goes far deeper than the body, as the note on Romans 1:27 shows. The sexual sinner brings sin upon himself rather than his partner, and vice versa, unless of course rape or abuse is involved. A person's spirituality is blinded by sexual permissiveness, unclean or undisciplined sexuality. Earlier in 1 Cor. 5:9 Paul says, "I wrote to you by letter, not to mingle with sexual sinners." Sexual sinners are not part of the congregation of YHWH while they put their lusts of the flesh in a higher place than their renewed spiritual man. Religion has long been used as a cloak to hide sexual sin; in modern Judeo-Christian religions it is not uncommon for pastors, priests, rabbis, elders, deacons and ministers to have multiple marriage failures and divorces, all manner of sexual sin and homosexuality. From such moral failure and spiritual immaturity "theologians" have developed ideas and theologies about sexuality that have turned evil into good and good into evil. Not only does sexual sin bring extreme damage upon the individual, their families and the entire congregation, but it is also empowered by demonic religious spirits that attack congregations and other individuals who are not involved in sexual sin. Peter writes, "they being persons with whom iniquity is the reward of iniquity, and by them rioting in the daytime is accounted delightful; defiled and full of blemishes (are they), indulging themselves at their ease while they give themselves up to pleasure; having eyes that are full of adultery and sins that never end; seducing unstable souls; and having a heart exercised in greed; children of cursing" 2 Peter 2:13-14. We are called to come out from among such congregations and not sit under the authority of a man or woman who has not learned the Set Apart Way of sexuality and spirituality that is pleasing to YHWH.

17. Every one, however, as Master YHWH has distributed to him, and every one as Elohim has called him, so let him walk. And also thus I enjoin upon all the assemblies. 18. Is a circumcised person called, let him not revert to uncircumcision: and if one uncircumcised be called, let him not become circumcised.<sup>24</sup> 19. For circumcision is nothing, neither is uncircumcision; but the keeping of Elohim's commands.<sup>25</sup> 20. Let every one continue in the occupation in which he was called. 21. If you are called, being a servant; let it not trouble you. But if you can gain your freedom, choose it rather than to serve. 22. For he that is called by our Master, being a servant, is Elohim's freedman: likewise, he that is called, being a free man, is the Mashiyach's servant. 23. You are bought with a price; become not the servants of men. 24. Everyone, my Brothers, continue with Elohim, in whatever (state) he was called. 25. And concerning virginity, I have no precept from Elohim; but I give counsel as a man who has obtained mercy from Elohim to be a believer. 26. And I think this is suitable on account of the necessity of the times; it is advantageous for a man to remain as he is. 27. Are you bound to a wife? Seek not a release. Are you free from a wife? Seek not a wife. 28. But if you take a wife, you do not sin. And if a maiden is given to a husband, she does not sin. But they who are such, will have trouble in the body: but I am forbearing to you. 29. And this I say, my Brothers, that the time to come is short; so that they who have wives should be as if they had none; 30. And they who weep, as if they did not cry; and they who rejoice, as if they did not rejoice; and they who buy, as if they did not purchase; 31. And those occupied with this world, not going beyond the just using: for the fashion of this world is passing away. 32. And therefore I wish you to be without worldly concerns. For he who has not a wife, considers the thing of his Master, how he may please his Master. 33. And he who has a wife is anxious about the world, how he may please his wife. 34. There is a difference also between a wife and a maiden. She who is without a husband, thinks of things pertaining to her Master, that she may be Set Apart in her body and in her spirit. But she who has a husband, thinks of things pertaining to the world, how she may please her husband. 35. And this I say for your advantage; I am not laying a snare for you; but that you may be faithful towards your Master in a suitable manner, while not minding worldly things. 36. But if anyone thinks he is acting wrongly on account of his maiden (daughter), because she has passed her time, and he has not presented her to a husband, (and) it be fitting that he present her; let him do his own will, he does not sin; let her be married. 37. But he who has firmly determined in his own mind and nothing compels him and he can act his own pleasure, and he so judges in his heart that he keep his maiden (daughter), he acts beautifully. 38. And therefore, he who presents his maiden (daughter) acts beautifully; and he who does not present his maiden (daughter) acts very beautifully.<sup>26</sup> 39. A woman, while her husband lives, is bound by Torah; but if her husband sleeps (in death), she is free to marry whom she pleases, (yet) only in our Master.<sup>27</sup> 40. But she is happier, in my opinion, if she remains so: and I think also, that I have the Spirit of Elohim.

24 Perhaps an odd statement to modern ears. During the conquests by Ptolemies, Seleucids and the Romans, Jews were under pressure to assimilate into the Gentile societies. One of the ways Jews assimilated was to compete at the Olympic Games (see 1 Corinthians 9:24). Since all athletes competed in the nude, a circumcised Jew faced an obvious dilemma. And so, many Jews made the unfortunate decision to reverse the appearance of their circumcision! Ironically, if they had been inspected at the Temple, they would have been barred.

25 This is the key verse of the whole discourse in this chapter. Making circumcision into a tradition and distorting it into something other than what is intended by YHWH is to bring it to "nothing." Most Christians tend to read "circumcision is nothing" and stop there, as if that is the message Rav Shaul is sending out. But they fail to grasp the last line, because if keeping Elohim's commands is what counts, circumcision is most definitely one of these Commandments! The Renewed Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34, Hebrews 8:8) was given to the house of Israel and Judah, but includes all others who join, meaning the Renewed Covenant is not just a "Jewish thing" nor is there a division between what Jews observe and what "Elohim Fearing" non-Jewish disciples of Y'shua observe. The Kingdom of Elohim is open for all souls to enter, and we are all called into His Kingdom on His terms, not ours.

26 As with earlier parts of Rav Shaul's writings, he continues to use original Aramaic phraseology such as shapira/beautiful rather than saying, "you do well." In Aramaic thought righteousness is literally a thing of beauty, and wisdom is often compared to a beautiful woman, as it is in the opening chapters of Mishlei (Proverbs).

27 It is not enough to recognize YHWH to find a suitable mate, but to recognize the way He opened the path to salvation, foretold in His instructions, Torah.

1. And concerning sacrifices to idols, we know, that in all of us there is knowledge; and knowledge inflates (the ego), but love uplifts (the spirit). 2. And if any one thinks that he knows anything he knows nothing yet, as he should know (it). 3. But if any one loves Elohim, that man is known of him. 4. As to the eating of the sacrifices of idols, therefore, we know that an idol is nothing in the world; and that there is no other Elohim, but one. 5. For although there are what are called deities, whether in heaven, or on earth, (as there are deities many, and masters many) 6. Yet to us, on our part, there is one Elohim, the Father from whom are all things, and we in him; and one Master YHWH-Y'shua,<sup>28</sup> the Mashiyach, by whom are all things, and we also by him. 7. But there is not (this) knowledge in every man; for there are some who, to the present time, in their conscience, eat (it) as an offering to idols; and because their conscience is weak, it is defiled. 8. But food does not bring us near to Elohim; for if we eat, we do not abound; and if we do not eat, we are not in want.<sup>29</sup> 9. See to it, however, unless this your authority become a stumbling block to the weak. 10. For if one should see you in whom there is knowledge, reclining in the temple of idols, will not his conscience, seeing he is a weak person, be encouraged to eat what is sacrificed? 11. And by your knowledge, he who is weak, and on account of whom the Mashiyach died, will perish. 12. And if you thus sin against your Brothers, and wound the consciences of the weak, you sin against the Mashiyach. 13. And so, if food is a stumbling block to my brother, I will forever eat no flesh,<sup>30</sup> or else I should be a stumbling block to my brother.

Chapter 9

1. Am I not a free man? Or, am I not a Shaliach? Or, have I not seen Y'shua Mashiyach our Master?<sup>31</sup> Or, have you not been my work in my Master (Y'shua)? 2. And if I have not been a Shaliach to others, yet I have been so to you; and you are the seal of my office as Shaliach, 3. And (my) response to my critics is this: 4. Have we not authority, to eat and to drink? 5. Or have we not authority to carry about with us a sister as a wife; just as the other Shlichim, and the brothers of our Master (Y'shua), and as Keefa? 6. Or I only, and Bar-Naba, have we no right to live without labor? 7. (Tell me) who serves in war at his own expense? Or who, that plants a vineyard, does not eat of its fruits? Or who, that tends sheep, does not consume the milk of his flocks? 8. Is it as a man I say these things? Behold, Torah also says them. 9. For it is written in the instruction of Moshe, "You will not muzzle the ox that threshes." Has Elohim regard for oxen? 10. But it is revealed to us, for whose sake he said it. And indeed, for our sakes it was written: because the farmer should plough in hope, and the thresher in hope<sup>32</sup> of fruit. 11. If we have sowed among you the things of the Spirit, is it a great matter if we reap from you the things of the body?

28 This is not to be construed that "one Elohim the Father" and "one YHWH, Y'shua the Mashiyach" are separate divine "persons." Instead, Aramaic references two divine occurrences from the singular divine nature, or qnomeh. This concept is directly stated fifteen times, and alluded to at least as much in figurative language (e.g. living water in John 4, leading to a direct reference in John 5:26).

29 In Torah and in Jewish culture, only kosher animals count as "food." Therefore, this discussion centers on choices that are on the kosher menu.

30 I will forever eat no flesh. The point cannot be over emphasized: "flesh" is referring to animals that are considered kosher but must still be properly prepared by removal of the blood. The contrast Paul is drawing here is between eating kosher meat and worrying that said meat may have originally come from an unkosher place specifically as he says, "the sacrifices of idols," (verse 4) or pagan altars, but if such cannot be proven with certainty. In that situation, Paul is saying he would rather not eat meat at all rather than create division.

31 Since Rav Shaul never saw Y'shua while he was alive, he is referring to the vision he had on the Damascus Road.

32 Here, sevartha, means "Good News."

12. And if others have this power over you, does it not belong still more to us? Yet we have not used this authority; but we have endured everything, that we might in no way prevent the Good News of the Mashiyach. 13. Don't you know that they who serve in a temple<sup>33</sup> are fed from the temple? And they who serve at the altar, participate with the altar? 14. Thus also has our Master commanded, that they who proclaim his Good News should live by his Good News.<sup>34</sup> 15. But I have used none of these things: and I do not write that it may be so done to me; for it would be better for me to actually die, than that any one should make void my pride. 16. For while I preach,<sup>35</sup> I have no basis for pride; because necessity is laid upon me, and woe to me, if I don't preach. 17. For if I do this voluntarily, there is a reward for me: but if involuntarily, a stewardship<sup>36</sup> is entrusted<sup>37</sup> to me. 18. What then is my reward? (It is), that when I preach, I make the announcement of the Mashiyach without cost, and do not use the power given me in the Good News.<sup>38</sup> 19. Being free from them all, I have made myself servant to every man; that I might gain many: 20. And with the Jews, I was as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; and with those under Torah, I was as under Torah, that I might gain them who are under Torah;<sup>39</sup> 21. And to those who have not Torah, I was as without Torah, (although I am not without Torah to Elohim, but subject to the Torah of the Mashiyach),<sup>40</sup> that I might gain them that are without Torah. 22. I was with the weak, as weak, that I might gain the weak: I was all things to all men, that I might restore every one. 23. And this I do that I may participate in the announcement. 24. Don't you know that they who run in the stadium, run all of them; yet it is one who gains the victory. You run so as to attain. 25. For everyone who engages in the contest restrains his desires in everything. And they run to obtain a crown that perishes; but we, one that does not perish.<sup>41</sup> 26. I therefore so run, not as for something unknown; and I so struggle, not as struggling against air; 27. But I subdue my body, and reduce it to servitude; or else, when I have preached to others, I myself should despise myself.

33 Or literally, "Set Apart house." Rav Shaul would never consider the temple of a Pagan shrine; minimally he is thinking of synagogues he has visited, but moreso, the Temple in Jerusalem. Certainly the lack of a definite article (the) in Aramaic makes "the Temple" a possible reading. Whether Rav Shaul used his audience's memories of their experience in Pagan shrines, i.e. what they used to think of as "holy," is another matter for debate, but highly unlikely as Rav Shaul says, "don't you know..."

34 It is interesting to note that even in a letter to a mostly Gentile audience Paul repeatedly uses the Semitic sevartha as "Good News" rather than the more familiar term to them, the loan word awangelion. See the note on Galatians 2:5. As for a good working definition of what the Good News actually is, please see John 17:1-3.

35 The root sebar has multiple meanings including "hope," "consider," "suppose" and, in this case, "preach." Rav Shaul exploits all these meanings – sometimes more than one at a time – throughout his writings. It is a signature aspect of his having an Aramaic state of mind.

36 English versions insert "dispensation" here; however, Aramaic translates as "stewardship" as does Greek "oikonomia" as in Luke 16:2, 3, 4.

37 The same word also means "faith" as in "they had faith in me to do this."

38 In another variant on Rav Shaul's Aramaic writing style; this time he opts to use awangelion as in "Good News." The reason for this choice is perhaps because earlier in the same sentence he used sebar as "preach" and he did not want people to think he meant something closer to "hope" at the end of the sentence, which is another meaning of the same word.

39 "Under Torah" refers to religious (halachic) traditions of how Torah is to be observed. See footnote on Romans 3:28.

40 When Rav Shaul talks about "as being without Torah" he clarifies by saying that he is "not without the Torah of Elohim, but subject to the Torah of Mashiyach." Rav Shaul rejects Rabbinical interpretations of Torah and extra unscriptural fences around Torah that he knows Y'shua does not endorse. He has, by being "subject," transferred his allegiance from the Rabbis he trained under, to Y'shua as final arbiter. If Y'shua and the Rabbis agreed, which they often did, then there was no problem. But if they disagreed, Y'shua's interpretation always overruled theirs. This was no small admission at the time. The Netzarim community began with very small numbers. The idea that even one Rabbi could outdo all others was revolutionary, as the Talmud records the opposite scenario: "My son! Be careful concerning rabbinical decrees even more than the Torah...the Torah contains prohibitions...But anyone who violates a rabbinic decree is worthy of death" (Babylonian Talmud, Erubin, 21b). In another place, Rambam's Introduction to the Mishnah says: "If there are 1000 prophets, all of them of the stature of Elijah and Elisha, giving a certain interpretation, and 1001 rabbis giving the opposite interpretation, you shall incline after the majority and the instruction according to the 1001 rabbis, not according to the 1000 prophets...Elohim did not permit us to learn from the prophets, only from the rabbis who are men of logic and reason." So we see that even if Y'shua was thought of as a prophet, rabbinic rules would still discount him and put traditions over what he teaches. And as the first, and more ancient quote shows, to have that disagreement in the first place was and is a dangerous business!

41 Rav Shaul is accomplishing several spiritual and political agendas simultaneously in these short few lines. Both his Greco-Roman and non-religious Jewish audience in Corinth would have been highly enamored with the Olympic Games. The games were more than mere athletic contests. Some historians suggest that wars were postponed so there wouldn't be disruptions to the games (see The Horizon Book of Ancient Greece (1965), p. 154-156). An ancient calendar counted time in four year periods called "Olympiads" which was tied to the games. In this verse Paul describes how the winners were treated, which was to receive a garland around their heads in lieu of the modern bronze, silver and gold medals. Much more valuable to the athletes though was the large stipend they received from the state, and prestigious titles of honor that would garner much respect. But what is being the greatest Olympian, in comparison to receiving the salvation of Mashiach Y'shua and the glory of the Kingdom of Heaven that he offers? As powerful a message as this may have been to Gentiles it also speaks to the hearts of fellow Jews who lived in Corinth. In the three centuries following the death of Alexander the Great, Jews were under tremendous internal and external pressure to become Hellenized and surrender their faith to paganism. The Olympic Games were an exceedingly popular and major catalyst of Hellenism and because they were traditionally played in the nude, Jewish athletes exposed their circumcisions, which made them objects of ridicule. This in turn caused many a young Jewish athlete to have operations that would reverse their circumcisions, historically that was known as epispasm. Cultural and religious wars between Torah observance and paganism have always been part and parcel of the Biblical narrative; Josephus records the efforts of a High Priest named Menelaus who worked in close counsel with Antiochus Epiphanes to ban the Jewish religion completely. But now the message of Y'shua and Rav Shaul has equality cutting two ways, Jews who have been discriminated against by the wider pagan world and Gentiles who are discriminated because of Torah observance can look forward to an "Olympic garland" far greater than the ones they would give up, as they now run the race of Eternal Life.

1. And, my Brothers,<sup>42</sup> I would have you know, that our fathers were all of them under the cloud, and they all passed through the sea; 2. And they were all immersed by Moshe, in the cloud and in the sea;<sup>43</sup> 3. And they all ate the same spiritual food; 4. And they all drank the same spiritual drink; for they drank from the spiritual rock that attended them, and that rock was the Mashiyach.<sup>44</sup> 5. But with a multitude of them, Elohim was not pleased; for they fell in the wilderness. 6. Now these things were an example for us, so that we should not covet after evil things as they coveted. 7. Neither should we serve idols, as some of them served; as it is written, “The people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.” 8. Neither let us commit sexual sin, as some of them committed; and there fell in one day twenty and three thousand. 9. Neither let us tempt the Mashiyach,<sup>45</sup> as some of them tempted; and serpents destroyed them. 10. Neither should you complain, as some of them complained; and they perished by the destroyer. 11. All these things which befell them, were for an example to us; and they are written for our instruction, on whom the end of the world has come. 12. And so, let him who thinks he stands beware or else he may fall. 13. No trial comes upon you, but what pertains to men: and Elohim is faithful who will not permit you to be tried beyond your ability, but will make an issue to your trial, that you may be able to sustain it. 14. Therefore, my Beloved, flee from idolatry. 15. I speak as to the wise; you judge what I say. 16. The cup of thanksgiving which we bless, is it not the fellowship<sup>46</sup> of the blood of the Mashiyach? And the bread which we break, is it not the fellowship of the body of the Mashiyach? 17. As therefore that bread is one, so we are all one body; for we all take to ourselves from that one bread. 18. Behold the Israel who are in the flesh; are not they who eat the victims participants of the altar? 19. What then do I say? That an idol is anything? Or, that an idol’s sacrifice is anything? No. 20. But that what the Gentiles<sup>47</sup> sacrifice they sacrifice to demons, and not to Elohim. And I would not that you should be associates of demons. 21. You cannot drink the cup of our Master (Y’shua) and the cup of demons; and you cannot be partakers at the table of our Master, and at the table of demons. 22. Or, would we provoke our Master (Y’shua’s) jealousy?<sup>48</sup> Are we stronger than he? 23. Everything is in my power; but everything is not profitable. Everything is in my power; but everything does not build up. 24. Let no one seek his own things, but also the things of his fellow-man.

42. This mode of address here is rather peculiar. Rav Shaul most definitely views like-minded believers of the Gentiles as spiritual brothers; he refers to his brothers 29 times in this epistle. But the phrase after that, “our fathers” adds another very beautiful element of unity within the Body. Those being described as “fathers” refers to those under Moshe, most certainly not ancestors of pagans who live in Asia Minor. Either Rav Shaul is addressing those of the Tribes of Israel here, who were dispersed among the nations, or he is recalling Exodus 12:38 which refers to the mixed racial multitude who went up with Israel out of Egypt. Either way, Rav Shaul is clearly calling Gentiles not just out of paganism, but back to their original heritage as those who received Torah and are Torah keepers. Rav Shaul is decisively putting all who read this letter on that same road out of Egypt and on towards Mount Sinai, to vicariously behold and experience the Presence, who wrote His commandments into the spiritual rock, “and that rock was the Mashiyach.”

43. Since only the children of Israel were redeemed from bondage in Egypt – not even Yitzhak’s half brother Ishmael and his sons participated in the Exodus – it is clear that Rav Shaul is counting his audience as being the same ethnicity as the Israelites. Or, at the very least, that he believes non-Israelites join to the commonwealth of Israel, and claim that heritage, as Ephesians 2 and Romans 11 also teach. Either way, Israel’s inheritance most surely includes Torah, not its abandonment! Also, by tying “immersion” (or ritual purity immersion) to Moshe, it is clear that Rav Shaul believes immersion was not some innovative thing; immersion had been done also for the priests of Aaron to serve in the tabernacle in this context. It may also be that Rav Shaul not only took literally the prophecy regarding immersion and the nations as well as Israel in Ezekiel 36:24-27, but he also applied this directly in his day.

44. See Matthew 16:18.

45. Greek reads “Master” (kurios) – a very unclear reading indeed, as we cannot tell if this is YHWH or Mashiyach. Peshitta tells us it is Mashiyach – a good thing, too, because YHWH technically can’t be tempted and thus the door is opened to contradiction in Greek.

46 Aramaic is "fellowship" and Greek koinonia is most often translated as "fellowship"; however, Murdock and Lamsa both use "communion" here. But as a Catholic sacrament it carries way too much traditional religious baggage and perverts the original meaning.

47 Actually "Pagans." By calling these people khanpa rather than aimmeh, Rav Shaul is making a clear distinction between the Gentiles who are learning Torah under his leadership from their fellow residents who are still steeped in anti-Torah lies and polytheism.

48 See Jealous Elohim in Appendix.

25. Whatever<sup>49</sup> is sold in the flesh-market you eat without an inquiry on account of conscience: 26. For the earth is Master YHWH's, in its fullness. 27. And if one of the pagans invite you, and you are disposed to go, eat whatever is set before you, without an inquiry on account of conscience. 28. But if any one will say to you, "This meat is derived from a sacrifice;"<sup>50</sup> don't eat it, for the sake of him who told you, and for conscience's sake. 29. The conscience I speak of is not your own, but his who told you. But why is my freedom judged of by the conscience of others?<sup>51</sup> 30. If I by grace partake, why am I reproached for that for which I give thanks?<sup>52</sup> 31. If you therefore eat, or if you drink, or if you do any thing, do all things for the glory of Elohim. 32. You be without offense to the Jews and to the Gentiles, and to the assembly of Elohim: 33. Even as I also, in everything, please every man;<sup>53</sup> and do not seek what is profitable to me, but what is profitable to many; that they may live.

Chapter 11

1. You then be imitators of me, as I am of the Mashiyach. 2. Moreover I commend you, my Brothers, that in all things you are mindful of me, and that you hold fast the precepts as I delivered them to you. 3. And I desire that you know that the head of every man is the Mashiyach, and the head of the woman is the man, and the head of the Mashiyach is Elohim. 4. Every man who prays or prophesies with his head covered, dishonors his head.<sup>54</sup> 5. And every woman, who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered, dishonors her head; for she is on a level with her whose head is shaven. 6. For if a woman be not covered, let her also be shorn; but if it be shameful for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered. 7. The man, indeed, should not cover his head, because he is the likeness and glory of Elohim: but the woman is the glory of the man. 8. For the man was not from the woman, but the woman from the man. 9. Neither was the man created for the woman's sake, but the woman for the man's sake. 10. For this cause ought the woman to have on her head the mark of authority, because of the Messengers.<sup>55</sup>

49 "Whatever" is sold in the marketplace refers to meat that has the potential of being "sanctified by the Word of YHWH." Rav Shaul did not give license to buy pork or unclean meat from the marketplace; see 1 Timothy 4:5. In addition Rav Shaul says: "Eat whatever is sold in the meat market without raising questions of conscience" (1 Cor. 10:25 Sterns' Complete Jewish Bible). The context of this verse is important. First, of course, Rav Shaul is not saying here that "all food is okay to eat." The fact that Rav Shaul lived a kosher, Torah observant life amply supports this. Here, Rav Shaul is addressing the Messianic community of Corinth, and he and they know to only eat Kosher. So this verse is not permitting the eating of pork, or shellfish, or anything that is not "food" as declared by Yahweh. Secondly, Rav Shaul is returning to the topic he introduced in chapter 8 – that of food sacrificed to idols. Rav Shaul is explaining how the food that was prepared has no hold on you – that since you are living a life of obedience to the Word of Yahweh, then the food that Yahweh permits, provides the same sustenance for you as it would if you knew its "chain of custody" (to use a legal phrase). Therefore, if you could trace the path of the animal from its owner to the meat market, and you therefore knew it was handled entirely kosher, the meat has the same value to you and your body as it would if you were not able to trace its chain of custody. However, if you find out that it was sacrificed to an idol, even though you could still eat it because you know that that sacrifice possesses no power over you, you should not eat it so as to show the "unbeliever" (vs 10:27) serving it to you (in a teaching opportunity), that his sacrifice was not valid and that you will not participate in what the unbeliever intended it to mean. See Rav Shaul's own clarification of this in the verses just prior to 1 Cor. 10:25. In 1 Cor. 10:19-21, Rav Shaul says you do not want to partake at the table of our Master Y'shua and at the table of demons – instead take courage and show the unbeliever the error of their ways.

50 All Believers can determine whether meat is unclean pork or shellfish or whether it could be sanctified according to the Word. In this case khampa designates "Pagans" and refers to whether the meat was sacrificed to a pagan idol. If someone informs you that the meat came from an animal that was sacrificed to an idol, do not eat it. See also Acts 15:20, 28, 29, Exodus 34:15; this is no license to eat unclean food.

51 Conscience refers to the discernment of right and wrong, based on Torah as the Word of YHWH. "Conscience" among the household of Faith is neither arbitrary nor variable, but a "group conscience" of the "Kedoshim" (Set Apart people). As Torah is being written upon the heart, Jeremiah 31:33, each soul is to recognize and support the work of the Ruach haKodesh within the Body. Paul is not at "liberty" to break the Word of YHWH and eat meat sacrificed to idols (Acts 15:20). He is addressing the frail and immature "conscience" of those who struggle to leave paganism. When a Believer voices Torah conscience, the rest of the body is obligated to support them, even if some think otherwise. Paul refers to the Believers in Corinth as carnal babes who can't digest solid food and who are struggling to receive truth; they are contentious and walking in the flesh (1 Cor. 3), much the same as the modern Christian church who uses these verses to endorse violation of Torah, which is simply a poor attempt to "justify" the weak carnal flesh.

52 If the food appears kosher and you have prayed unto YHWH, why should you be reproached if you didn't know the full quality of the meat? If the host knows about removing blood, and states that precautions have been made, and you pray that it be acceptable, is that not enough? Otherwise a person would be required to be present when the meat was prepared. Nowadays, kosher food companies supervise both the slaughter and the preparation of meat in the kitchen. Absent these things, the next best thing is to do the best you can, offer a prayer, and do not let worry ruin the meal or offend a well-meaning host who put forth their best effort.

53 Diplomatic and kind to all, but never teaching against Torah. See 1 Corinthians 9:21. Only a fool would think Rav Shaul to be a man pleaser, as though he postured himself as a social butterfly to win popularity; this thinking is merely projecting one's own ideals. Rav Shaul preferred the Malchut Elohim; he could have been a "big boy" in the "traditional" Jewish world, but he left it behind for Mashiach.

55 Providing a righteous witness to Messengers (Angels or Spiritual Authorities) is a clear indication of how seriously Paul views this matter. The point here connects from 11:9 that the woman was made for the sake of the man and therefore is expected to acquit herself well as coming from his house by worshipping in a non-provocative mode of dress and appearance.

11. Nevertheless, the man is not without the woman, nor the woman without the man, in our Master. 12. For as the woman was from the man, so the man is by the woman; and everything is from Elohim. 13. Judge for yourselves, among yourselves; is it becoming that a woman pray to Elohim with her head uncovered? 14. Does not nature teach you that in a man, if his hair grows long, it is a reproach to him?<sup>56</sup> 15. But for a woman, if her hair is abundant, it is a glory to her; for her hair is given to her for a covering.<sup>57</sup> 16. But if any one is contentious about these things, we on our part have no such custom, nor has the assembly of Elohim. 17. This which I now enjoin is not as praising you; for you have not made progress, but have deteriorated. 18. Because, first; when you assemble in the assembly, there are, I hear, divisions among you; and I partly believe it. 19. For there are to be contentions among you that the approved among you may be known. 20. When you therefore come together, you eat and drink, not as is becoming on the day of our Master (Y'shua), 21. But, one and another proceeds to eat his own supper; and one is hungry, and another is drunken. 22. What! Don't you have any houses in which you can eat and drink? Or, do you despise the assembly of Elohim, and shame them who have nothing? What will I say to you? Will I praise you? In this I do not praise you. 23. For I have received from our Master, that which I delivered to you; that our Master Y'shua, on the night he was betrayed, took bread, 24. And blessed, and broke (it), and said: "Take, eat; this is my body which is broken for your sakes: do this, in remembrance of me." 25. So, after they had dined, he gave also the cup and said: "This cup is the renewed covenant<sup>58</sup> in my blood: do this as often as you drink (it), in remembrance of me."<sup>59</sup> 26. For as often as you eat this bread and drink this cup, you commemorate the death of our Master, until his return. 27. He therefore, who eats of the bread of Master YHWH and drinks of His cup and is not worthy of it, is guilty of the blood of Master YHWH and of His body.<sup>60</sup> 28. For this reason, a man should examine himself, and then eat of this bread, and drink of this cup: 29. For, whoever eats and drinks of it, while he is unworthy, eats and drinks condemnation on himself by not discerning the body of Master YHWH.<sup>61</sup> 30. For this cause, many among you are diseased and sickly, and many sleep. 31. For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. 32. But when we are judged by our Master (Y'shua), we are really disciplined, that we may not be condemned with the world. 33. In conclusion, my Brothers, when you assemble to eat, wait for one another. 34. And let him who is hungry eat at home; that you may assemble, not for condemnation. And as to other things, I will give you directions when I come.

<sup>59</sup> These are verbatim quotes of a written source we now call the Gospel according to Matthew. It is clear that Paul travels with his own personal copy as he consults it a great deal. In 1 Corinthians 15:3-5 for example he says: "For I delivered to you from the first, as I had received it; that the Mashiyach died on account of our sins, as it is written: And that he was buried and arose on the third day, as it is written. And that he was seen by Keefa; and after him, by the twelve." However, beyond those considerations is the simple fact that he is teaching Greeks about the Passover. By repeating "do this in remembrance of me" the "this" can only refer to the seder that Y'shua is conducting. Paul has spends much of this 11th chapter explaining the Passover and this is not for the first time, this indicates how important it is for Paul to teach those among the Gentiles who are coming into the Kingdom of Heaven, about the Feasts of YHWH that His Son Y'shua also kept.

60 YHWH does not have blood or a body, as the Eastern Peshitta reading of Acts 20:28 demonstrates. However, YHWH does offer the blood and the body of His Son, as the Son (in his human part) agrees with his Father. This is the same metaphoric usage in Zechariah 12:10 where YHWH is pierced, but it is clear the Son is really pierced because they mourn for "him" – not YHWH – as an only begotten son. Furthermore, an occurrence of YHWH's nature is dwelling separately but side-by-side with Mashiyach's human side (Isaiah 11:1-2).

61 If "body" here refers to the Kedoshim (set-apart ones) who live sanctified lives unto YHWH, then all who marginalize or degrade either the calling of His people, His Torah or Mashiyach, will put themselves at war with YHWH and Mashiyach. If "body" refers to Mashiyach himself, as YHWH come in the flesh, this then is a Kadosh (set-apart) component of the true faith of the Malchut Elohim.

1. And concerning spiritual matters, my Brothers, I would have you know, 2. That you have been pagans;<sup>62</sup> and have been, without distinction, led away after idols in which there is no speech. 3. I therefore explain to you, that there is no man that speaks by the Spirit of Elohim, who says that Y'shua is accursed: neither can a man say that Master YHWH is Y'shua, except by the Ruach haKodesh.<sup>63</sup> 4. Now there are many forms of gifts; but the Spirit is one. 5. And there are many forms of ministrations; but Master YHWH is one.<sup>64</sup> 6. And there are many forms of power; but Elohim, who works all in all men, is one. 7. And to each man, there is given a manifestation of the Spirit, that it may help him. 8. To one, by the Spirit, there is given a word of wisdom; and to another, by the same Spirit, there is given a word of knowledge: 9. To another, by the same Spirit, faith: to another, by the same Spirit, gifts of healing: 10. And to another, miracles: and to another, prophecy: and to another, the discerning of spirits: and to another, (diverse) kinds of tongues: and to another, the interpretation of tongues. 11. But all these works that one Spirit; and He distributes to everyone according to His will. 12. For as the body is one, and in it are many members; and all those members of the body, though many, are one body; so also is the Mashiyach.<sup>65</sup> 13. For all of us, likewise, by one Spirit, have been immersed into one body, whether Jews or Arameans,<sup>66</sup> whether slaves or free; and all of us have been nourished in one Spirit. 14. For a body also is not one member, but many. 15. For if the foot should say, "Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body;" is it, on that account, not of the body? 16. Or if the ear should say, "because I am not the eye, I am not of the body;" is it, on that account, not of the body? 17. And if the whole body were an eye, where would be the hearing? Or if it were all hearing, where would be the smelling? 18. But now has Elohim placed every one of the members in the body, according to His will. 19. And if they were all one member, where would be the body? 20. But now they are many members, yet but one body. 21. The eye cannot say to the hand, "You are not needful to me": nor can the head say to the feet, "You are not needful to me." 22. But rather, those members which are accounted weak, are indispensable. 23. And those which we think dishonorable in the body, on them we heap more honor; and those that are not beautiful, on them we put the more decoration. 24. For the honorable members in us have no need of honor: for Elohim has tempered the body, and given more honor to the member which is inferior; 25. That there might be no conflict in the body but that all the members, equally, might care for one another; 26. So that, when one member is in pain, they will all sympathize; and if one member is exalted, all the members will be exalted. 27. Now you are the body of Mashiyach, and members in your place.

62 This is the first time that Murdock translated khanpa properly as "pagans." Up until now, he has been content to say "Gentiles" (aimeh), which is why aimeh really applies to the audience of this letter, not the polytheists outside of their assembly.

63 Simple and beautiful, yet perhaps the most powerful statement of belief in all of Rav Shaul's letters. A declaration of such magnitude as this most certainly demands original Hebrew and Aramaic to comprehend the fullness of such a bold statement and revelation.

64 "YHWH is one." Rav Shaul reminds his readers: "Hear, O Israel: YHWH our Elohim is one YHWH" (Deuteronomy 6:4). This verse is known as the Shema; it is the declaration of monotheism of all who believe and know the One Living Elohim. These ministrations are known as "Father," "Son," and "Ruach haKodesh," all of whom are YHWH, but through different occurrences from His singular nature, or qnoma. A qnoma is identical to a nature, except numerically. Put another way, there is one human nature but six billion occurrences of that nature. My occurrence of my humanity is identical to anyone else's except, let's say, that I have qnoma #36 and you have qnoma #37. There is nothing in qnoma here that identifies one member of a kind from another. Aspects like height, weight, hair color, etc., would all be parsopa, or persons. The singular divine nature, however, has no separated "persons"; only that which is YHWH.

65 One of the clearest statements about "Godhead" in the entire NT. The relationship between YHWH and Y'shua is like that of the mind/head to a limb of the body. The arm is not a separate entity from the body, nor does it move in any way other than with the full power and intent of the mind. Y'shua is literally the arm of YHWH in this manner (Exodus 6:6, 23:20-22, Isaiah 53:1). This statement by Rav Shaul proves this idea is not some modernized Nazarene doctrine, but the original doctrine of Mashiyach which is founded in the Tanakh; note the expansion of this in verses 14-28.

66 Again the word is "Armaya"—Arameans. All the tribes of Israel are comprised of Hebrews and Arameans. Others are grafted into the faith, first through Torah observance (before Mashiyach came) and then through Mashiyach according to the Renewed Covenant of Torah being written upon the heart. Rav Shaul is assuming his audience is similarly grafted in.

28. For Elohim has placed in his assembly, first, Shlichim; after them, prophets; after them, teachers;<sup>67</sup> after them, workers of miracles;<sup>68</sup> after them, the gifts of healing, and helpers, and leaders, and (various) kinds of tongues. 29. Are they all Shlichim? Are they all prophets? Are they all teachers? Are they all workers of miracles? 30. Have all of them the gifts of healing? Do they all speak with tongues? Or do they all interpret? 31. And if you are searching for superior gifts, on the other hand, I show to you a better way.<sup>69</sup>

1. If I could speak in every tongue of men, and in that of Messengers, and there should be no love in me, I should be like brass that resounds, or the cymbal that makes a noise. 2. And if there should be in me (the gift of) prophecy, and I should understand all the mysteries, and every science; and if there should be in me all faith, so that I could move mountains, and love should not be in me, I should be nothing. 3. And if I should feed out to the poverty stricken all I possess; and if I should give my body so that I may boast;<sup>70</sup> and there should be no love in me, I gain nothing. 4. Love is patient, and is kind; love is not envious; love does not shout loudly; and is not boastful; 5. And does nothing that causes shame; and seeks not her own; is not passionate; and thinks no evil; 6. (It) does not rejoice in iniquity, but rejoices in the truth; 7. (It) bears all things, believes all things, hopes for all, and endures all.<sup>71</sup> 8. Love will never cease. But prophesying will end; and tongues will be stopped; and knowledge will disappear. 9. For we know but partially; and we prophesy but partially. 10. But when completeness<sup>72</sup> will come, then that which is partial will disappear. 11. When I was a child, I talked as a child, and I reasoned as a child, and I thought as a child: but when I became a man,<sup>73</sup> I laid aside the things of childhood. 12. And now we see, as by a mirror, in dark reflection; but then face to face: now I know partially; but then will I know, just as I am known. 13. For these three things are abiding: faith, and hope, and love; but the greatest of these is love.

Chapter 14

1. Follow after love; and be searching for the gifts of the Spirit, and especially, that you may prophesy. 2. For he that speaks in a tongue, speaks not to men, but to Elohim; for no one understands what is said; yet in the spirit, he speaks a mystery. 3. But he that prophesies, speaks to men, for edification, and encouragement, and consolation. 4. He that speaks in a tongue edifies himself, and he that prophesies, edifies the assembly. 5. Now I would that you all spoke with tongues, but rather that you prophesied; for greater is he that prophesies than he that speaks in a tongue, unless he interpret; and if he interpret, he edifies the assembly.

67 The word here for “teacher” is malpana, which denotes a person of high intelligence and disciplined study, but who has done so informally, outside of the rabbinical schools. Many people in First Century Israel functioned in this unofficial role, either as village elders or, in Y’shua’s case, as itinerant Torah lecturers. Y’shua was frequently called by this title, as well as the more familiar “rabbi”. In many cases, malpana was meant perjoratively by his critics, as they held his lack of formal training against him. On the other hand, the rich man in Matthew 19 used it as a compliment asking, “Malpana tava (good teacher), what must I do to inherit eternal life?”

68 Literally, “workers of power.” All miracles come from the power of YHWH; His people are conduits.

69 Or, path.

70 Murdock followed a Greek reading and wrote “to be burned”. However the Aramaic word yaqad also, and more correctly in this case, means to “boast”. This is another smoking gun—no pun intended—for Aramaic primacy since even Greek mss are split between “burn” and “boast”, and since these are two completely different words in Greek, the explanation for such divergence is simply that all Greek translations were derived from an Aramaic original.

71 A Masterpiece of a wordplay as three of the four verbs are derived from the same root of sebar (bear, endure and hope).

72 The word here, gemirota, can also mean “perfection.” It is, in fact, the same word used by Jewish sages to name a portion of the Talmud, namely the Gemara.

73 Not just a “man” but a gowra, a protector-guardian, responsible leader, etc.

6. And now, my Brothers, if I should come among you and speak to you in tongues, what should I profit you; unless I should speak to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophecy, or by doctrine? 7. For even inanimate things that emit sound, whether pipe or harp, if they make no distinction between one sound and another, how will it be known what is sung or what is harped? 8. And if the shofar<sup>74</sup> will give an uncertain sound, who will prepare himself for the battle? 9. So likewise if you utter many words in a tongue, and there is no interpretation given, how will it be known what you have said? You will have been as if you spoke into the air. 10. For behold, there are many kinds of tongues in the world; and there is not one of them without meaning. 11. But if I do not know the import of the sound, I will be a barbarian to him that speaks, and the speaker will be a barbarian to me. 12. So also you, since you are searching for the gifts of the Spirit for the edification of the assembly, you seek to excel. 13. And let him that speaks in a tongue, pray that he may interpret. 14. For if I should pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my (spiritual) understanding<sup>75</sup> is without fruits. 15. What then will I do? I will pray with my spirit, and will pray with my understanding; and I will sing with my spirit, and will sing with my understanding. 16. Otherwise, if you bless in the spirit, how will he that fills the place of one unlearned, say “Amen” on your giving thanks; for he does not know what you say? 17. You bless, indeed, very well; but your neighbor is not edified. 18. I thank Elohim that I speak with tongues more than all of you. 19. But in the assembly, I would rather speak five words with my (spiritual) understanding, that I might instruct others, than ten thousand (a myriad) of words in a tongue. 20. My Brothers, do not be infantile in your thoughts; but to evil things be as newborns; and in your thoughts be complete (men).<sup>76</sup> 21. In Torah it is written: “With a foreign speech, and in another tongue, will I speak with this people; and even so also they will not hear and obey me,” says Master YHWH. 22. Wherefore, tongues are established for a sign, not to the believers, but to them that do not believe. But prophecies are not for those who disbelieve, but for them that believe. 23. If therefore the whole assembly gathers, and they all speak with tongues, and there come in unlearned persons, or those that disbelieve, will they not say: “These people are crazy?”<sup>77</sup> 24. But if you should be all prophesying, and one unlearned or an unbeliever should come among you, he is explored by you all, and rebuked by you all; 25. And the secrets of his heart are laid open (to him): and so he will fall upon his face, and will worship Elohim, and say: “Verily, Elohim is in you.” 26. I therefore say (to you) my Brothers, that when you assemble, whoever of you has a psalm, let him speak; and whoever has a doctrine, and whoever has a revelation, and whoever has a tongue, and whoever has an interpretation. Let them all be for edification. 27. And if any speak in a tongue, let two speak or at most, three; and let them speak one by one; and let (some) one interpret.

28. And if there is none to interpret, let him that speaks in a tongue, be silent in the assembly; and let him speak to himself and to Elohim. 29. And as to prophets, let two or three speak, and let the rest judge. 30. And if to another sitting by, there should be a revelation, let the first stop speaking. 31. For you can all prophesy, one by one; so that everyone may learn, and everyone be comforted. 32. For the spirit of the prophets is subject to the prophets. 33. Because, Elohim is not (the author) of tumult, but of peace, as in all assemblies of the Set Apart believers. 34. Let your women be silent in the assembly: for it is not permitted them to speak, but to be in subjection, as also Torah says. 35. And if they wish to be informed on any subject, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is unbecoming for women to speak in the assembly. 36. What was it from you that the Word of Elohim came forth? Or did it reach only to you? 37. And if anyone among you thinks that he is a prophet, or that he is spiritual, let him recognize the things which I write to you as being the commandments of our Master. 38. But if any one be ignorant, let him be ignorant. 39. Therefore, my Brothers, be searching for prophesying: and do not forbid speaking with tongues. 40. But let everything be done with decency and regularity.

Chapter 15

1. And I make known to you, my Brothers, the Good News which I preached to you, and which you received, and in which you stand. 2. And by which you have life. In what word I preached to you, you remember; unless you have believed in vain. 3. For I delivered to you from the first, as I had received it; that the Mashiyach died on account of our sins, as it is written: 4. And that he was buried and arose on the third day, as it is written: 5. And that he was seen by Keefa; and after him, by the twelve: 6. And after that, he was seen by more than five hundred Brothers at once; many of whom survive at the present time, and some of them sleep. 7. And subsequently to this, he was seen by Ya'akov; and after him, by all the Shlichim. 8. And last of them all, he was seen by me, as if I were an unborn fetus.<sup>78</sup> 9. I am the least of the Shlichim; and am not worthy to be called a Shaliach; because I persecuted the assembly of Elohim. 10. But by the grace of Elohim, I am what I am: and his grace, that was in me, was not in vain; but I labored more than they all: not I, but his grace that was with me. 11. Whether I, therefore, or whether they, so we preached; and so you believed. 12. And if the Mashiyach is proclaimed as rising from the dead; how is it that there are some among you, who say, "There is no resurrection of the dead?" 13. And if there is no resurrection of the dead, the Mashiyach also has not risen. 14. And if the Mashiyach has not risen, our preaching is vain, and your faith also vain. 15. And we too have been found to be false witnesses of Elohim; for we have testified concerning Elohim that he raised up the Mashiyach, when He did not raise him up. 16. For, if the dead will not arise, the Mashiyach also has not risen. 17. And if the Mashiyach rose not, your faith is worthless; and you are still in your sins: 18. And also, doubtless, they who have fallen asleep in the Mashiyach, have perished.

<sup>78</sup> Considering the discussion Rav Shaul just had about his followers not being spiritual babies, this is a very humbling statement! His point is, of course, that many people saw the risen Y'shua before him and, even more than that, countless others heard him speak face-to-face. By that measure Rav Shaul is a "Yochanan come lately" to say the least, and he knows it, in spite of talking of his rank as a Shaliach.

19. And if, in this life only, we have hope<sup>79</sup> in the Mashiyach, we are the most miserable of all men. 20. But now the Mashiyach has risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits<sup>80</sup> of them that slept. 21. And as by a man came death, so also by a man came the resurrection of the dead. 22. For as it was by Adam that all men die, so also by the Mashiyach they all live: 23. Everyone in his order; the Mashiyach was the first-fruits; afterwards, they that are the Mashiyach's, at his coming. 24. And then will be the completion (of this phase),<sup>81</sup> when he will have delivered up the Kingdom to Elohim the Father; when every prince, and every sovereign, and all powers will have come to nothing. 25. For he is to reign, until he will put all his enemies under his feet. 26. And the last enemy, death, will be abolished. 27. For he has subjected all under his feet. But when he said, that every thing is subjected to him, it is (spiritually) understood that he is excepted, who subjected all to him. 28. And when all will be subjected to him, then the Son himself will be subject to him who subjected all to him, so that Elohim will be all in all. 29. Otherwise, what will they do who are immersed for the dead, if the dead do not rise? Why are they immersed for the dead? 30. And why also do we stand every hour in peril? 31. I protest, my Brothers, by your exultation, which is mine in our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, that I die daily. 32. If, as amongst men, I was cast to wild beasts at Ephesus, what did it profit me, if the dead do not rise? "Let us eat and drink; for tomorrow we die."<sup>82</sup> 33. Be not deceived; "Evil stories corrupt upright minds." 34. Let your hearts be righteously excited, and sin not: for there are some, in whom is not the love of Elohim: it is to your shame, I say it. 35. But some one of you may say: "How will the dead arise and with what body will they come forth?" 36. Foolish man! The seed which you sow is not resurrected unless it dies. 37. And that which you sow, you do not sow the body that is to be, but the naked kernel of wheat or barley, or of the other grains: 38. And Elohim gives it a body, according to His will; and to each of the grains its natural body. 39. And every body is not alike; for the body of a man is one thing, and that of a beast is another, and that of a bird is another, and that of a fish is another. 40. And there are bodies celestial, and bodies terrestrial; but the glory of the celestial (bodies) is one, and that of the terrestrial is another. 41. And the glory of the sun is one thing, and the glory of the moon is another, and the glory of the stars is another; and one star exceeds another star in glory. 42. So (it is) also with the resurrection of the dead. They are sown in corruption, they arise without corruption: 43. They are sown in dishonor, they arise in glory: they are sown in weakness, they arise in power: 44. is sown an animal body, it arises a spiritual body. For there is a body of the animal life, and there is a body of the spirit. 45. So also is it written: "Adam, the first man, became a living soul;" the second Adam (became) a resurrecting spirit. 46. And the spiritual was not first; but the animal, and then the spiritual. 47. The first man was of dust from the earth; the second man<sup>83</sup> was Master YHWH from heaven.

79 Murdock astutely translates sevartha here as "hope" rather than "Good News." The reason is, Rav Shaul limits that hope to our physical lives and not to the eternal life in the world to come. It is the eternal aspect that is part of the real "Good News."

80 Another example why the Renewed Covenant cannot be understood without knowledge of the Tanakh. The "first fruits" are the first part of the harvest offered to YHWH during the Shavuot (Pentecost) holiday. After "first fruits" is the full harvest, meaning that once Y'shua rose from death, the rest of us become that harvest which he spoke of in the Good News.

81 There are clearly other events to still follow from this point, not the total end. Aramaic words other than the one used here, kharta, (saka, shalom) come closer contextually to the sense of a total cessation of all activities, and although kharta can mean this too (Luke 21:32), that is not the intention of this particular passage of Scripture. Y'shua himself uses a form of shalam (meshalom) to say "it is accomplished" on the execution stake and Aramaic books typically have an ending line that says "shlam the book of ____".

82 This and the following line contain Greek philosophical quotes that would have been familiar to the Corinthians. Rav Shaul juxtaposes the Pagan mindset with that of the Malchut Elohim. In particular, this line is the motto of the Epicurean school which believed in seeking pleasure in this life as their version of heaven, before they winked out of existence.

48. As he was of the dust, so also those who are of the dust; and as was he who was from heaven, so also are the heavenly. 49. And as we have worn the likeness of him from the dust, so will we wear the likeness of him from heaven. 50. But this I say, my Brothers that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of Heaven: neither does corruption inherit incorruption. 51. Behold, I tell you a mystery; we will not all sleep, but we will all be changed.<sup>84</sup> 52. Suddenly, as in the twinkling of an eye, at the last shofar, when it will sound; and the dead will arise, without corruption; and we will be changed. 53. For this which is corruptible, is to put on incorruption; and that which dies, will put on immortality. 54. And when that which is corruptible, will put on incorruption, and that which dies, immortality; then will take place the Word that is written, “Death is absorbed in victory.” 55. Where is thy sting, O death? And where is thy victory, O Sheol? 56. Now the sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is Torah.<sup>85</sup> 57. But thanks be to Elohim that gives us the victory, through our Master Y’shua the Mashiach. 58. In conclusion, my Brothers and my beloved, be steadfast in truth, and not weak willed; but be at all times generous in the work of Master YHWH; seeing you know that your labor is not in vain in Master YHWH.

Chapter 16

1. And as to the collection for the Set Apart believers, as I directed the assemblies of the Galatians,<sup>86</sup> so do you. 2. On each first day of the week, let every one of you lay aside and preserve at home what he is able; that there may be no collections when I come.<sup>87</sup> 3. And when I come, those whom you will select, I will send with a letter to carry your bounty to Urishlim.<sup>88</sup> 4. if it should be suitable that I also go, they will go with me. 5. And I will come to you, when I pass from Macedonia; for I am about to pass through Macedonia. 6. And perhaps I will remain with you, or winter with you; that you may accompany me wherever I go. 7. For I am not disposed to see you now, as I pass along; because I hope to spend some time with you, if my Master permits me. 8. For I will continue at Ephesus until Shavuot (Feast of Weeks).<sup>89</sup> 9. Because a great door is opened to me, which is full of occupations; and the opponents are numerous. 10. And if Timothy comes to you, see that he may be without fear among you; for he does the work of Master YHWH as I do. 11. Therefore, let no one despise him; but conduct him on in peace that he may come to me; for I wait for him with the Brothers. 12. As for Apollos, my Brothers, I entreated him much to go with the Brothers to you; but his inclination was not to go to you now; but when he will have opportunity, he will go to you. 13. Watch you, stand firm in the faith, act like men, be valiant. 14. Let all your affairs be conducted with love.

<sup>85</sup> When Torah is diminished, the knowledge of sin is diminished; when Torah is increased the knowledge of sin is increased. The strength of sin is Torah, because it is Torah which makes it clear or plain what sin is; Torah explains sin and clarifies it. The sting of death is brought on by sin; the strength of sin is elucidated in Torah.

<sup>87</sup> The Christian myth of Sunday replacing Shabbat is fully exposed for what it is! The fact is that Rav Shaul asks people to make preparations on “the first day,” i.e. work, proving that neither he nor the Corinthians viewed the first day of the week as a Shabbat. The fact that Rav Shaul wants to make sure they don’t need to prepare when he comes, speaks volumes toward Shabbat observance on the Seventh Day Shabbat! Acts records 84 occasions when he met in the synagogues on Shabbat. Paul does not want his hosts to break the Shabbat and he counsels them to make ready for him in advance. All early Netzarim believers like Rav Shaul rested on the Seventh Day Shabbat in Mashiach.

<sup>88</sup> Again the odd spelling for Jerusalem, which literally combines the Hebrew words for “light” (aur) and “peace” (shalom).

<sup>89</sup> Proof that not all the residents of these cities were Gentile. Some knew they were Jews and practiced as such. Otherwise, Rav Shaul could not keep a feast like Shavuot in a thoroughly Pagan place, even though this was a required feast for him to come up to Jerusalem. Still, many Jews of that time kept those feasts where they lived.

15. I beg you, my Brothers, concerning the household of Stephanas; (for you know, that they were the first-fruits of Achaia, and that they have devoted themselves to ministering to the Set Apart believers). 16. That you also give ear to them who are such; and to every one that labors with us and aid. 17. And I rejoice at the arrival of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus: for they have supplied that where you were deficient towards me. 18. And they have refreshed my spirit, and yours: therefore acknowledge them who are such. 19. All the assemblies that are in Asia greet you. Aquila and Priscilla, with the assembly in their house, send you great peace<sup>90</sup> in our Master. 20. All the Brothers ask for your peace; ask for the peace of one another with a Set Apart kiss. 21. The peace (I send is) in the handwriting of myself, Paul. 22. Whoever does not love our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, let him be accursed: Maran atha<sup>91</sup> (Our Master comes). 23. The grace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach be with you. 24. And my love be with you all, in the Mashiyach, Y'shua. Amen.<sup>92</sup>

End of the first letter to the Corinthians which was written at Philippi of Macedonia, and was sent by the hand of Timothy.

90 Again a great wordplay, sonic and written, with beautiful harmony: shalo b'shlama, "send to you peace."

91 Another clue that perhaps not all these Corinthians were Gentiles, for how could they understand a thoroughly Aramaic phrase that is merely transliterated into their own language? It is also possible that "Maran atha" is a type of code-seal or signature Rav Shaul uses to indicate Aramaic foundational authenticity. From there, the local Messianic targumist would put the letter into the local vernacular. This is hinted at in citations from other letters such as, "This greeting is in my own hand – Paul. This is a sign in every letter; this is how I write" (2 Thessalonians 3:17). The "sign" could either be the shalo b'shlama phrase and language common to both letters (and extend to everyone by the latter quote) or, in fact, it could be Maran Atha itself, written on the outside of the parchment or affixed as a seal. But why would Paul even do this, unless others were already plagiarizing his writings and twisting them to their own destruction? See 2 Peter 3:15, 16.

92 It is somewhat common for "Amen" to be added in the margins or parenthetically to the side of the manuscript. It does not appear however, in the main part of the text.

Chapter 1

1. PAUL a Shaliach of Y'shua the Mashiyach, by the will of Elohim; and Timothy, a brother; to the assembly of Elohim that is at Corinth, and to all the Set Apart believers that are in all Achaia. 2. Grace be with you, and peace, from Elohim our Father, and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 3. Blessed be Elohim, the Father of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, the Father of mercies, and the Elohim of all consolation; 4. Who comforts us in all our sufferings that we also might be able to comfort those who are in all their sufferings, with the consolation where we are comforted by Elohim. 5. For as the sufferings of the Mashiyach multiply in us, so also our consolation multiplies by the Mashiyach. 6. And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and for your life that we are afflicted; or whether we be comforted, it is that you may be comforted; and that there may be in you an eager (spirit) where you may endure those sufferings which we also suffer. 7. And our hope concerning you is steadfast: for we know that if you partake of the sufferings, you will also partake of the consolation. 8. But, my Brothers, we wish you to know, concerning the affliction that was upon us in Asia, that we were afflicted exceedingly, beyond our strength, to the extent that our life was ready to terminate. 9. And we passed a sentence of death upon ourselves, that our confidence might not be in ourselves but in Elohim, who raises up the dead; 10. Who rescued us from imminent death: and we hope that He will again rescue us, 11. By the aid of your prayers on our behalf; so that His gift to us may be a favor done for the sake of many, and many may praise Him on our account. 12. For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and purity, and by the grace of Elohim, and not in the wisdom of the flesh, we have conducted ourselves in the world, and especially towards you. 13. We write no other things to you, than those which you know and acknowledge. And I trust you will acknowledge them to the end; 14. As you have also partially acknowledged that we are your rejoicing, as you also are ours, in the day of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 15. And in this confidence, I was before disposed to come to you, that you might receive the grace doubly; 16. And to pass by you into Macedonia, and again to come to you from Macedonia, and (so) you would accompany me to Yehud. 17. When therefore I was considering this; did I consider (this purpose) as one inconsiderate? Or, were the things I purposed, things of the flesh; so that there should be in them "Yes, yes," and "No, no"? 18. Elohim is the witness, that our word to you was not "Yes and No." 19. For the Son of Elohim, Y'shua the Mashiyach, who was preached<sup>1</sup> to you by us, (namely), by me, by Sylvanus, and by Timotheus, was not "Yes and No;" but it was "Yes" in him. 20. For all the promises of Elohim in him, the Mashiyach, are "Yes;" for which cause we through him give (our) Amen to the glory of Elohim. 21. Now it is Elohim who establishes us, with you, in the Mashiyach, and has anointed us, 22. And has sealed us, and has given the earnest of his Spirit in our hearts. 23. Moreover, I call Elohim for a witness on my soul that it was in order to spare you that I did not come to Corinth. 24. Not that we are masters<sup>2</sup> over your faith, but we are helpers of your joy; for it is by faith you stand.

1 This is the first time in Rav Shaul's writings that he uses kiraz, rather than sebar, for "preach." Perhaps he made his point with multiple root usages of the latter.

2 A rare plural conjugation of mar that also comes out spelled the same as the first person possessive form of mari. However, the verbs which surround the word guarantee that its plurality was clearly intended and understood.

SECOND CORINTHIANS 2

1. And I determined this with myself that I would not again come to you in sadness. 2. For if I should make you sad, who would make me joyful, unless he whom I had made sad? 3. And I wrote that very thing to you, or else when I came, those persons whom I should make joyful should make me sad. For I have confidence concerning you that my joy is the joy of you all. 4. And in much affliction and in anguish of heart, I wrote those things to you with many tears; not that you might have sorrow, but that you might know the exceeding love I have for you.<sup>3</sup> 5. And if one has caused grief, he has not grieved me (only), but that the Word may not bear too hard on you; in a measure, all of you. 6. And sufficient for him is this rebuke proceeding from many: 7. So that, on the other hand, you should forgive him and console him; or else he who is such a man, should be swallowed up with excessive grief. 8. I therefore beg you that you confirm to him your love. 9. For it was for this also that I wrote (to you), that I might learn by a trial, whether you would be obedient in everything. 10. And whom you forgive, I also (forgive): for that which I forgave to any one, for your sakes I forgave it in the presence of the Mashiyach; 11. Or else Satan should overtake us; for we know his devices. 12. Moreover, when I came to Troas in announcing the Mashiyach, and a door was opened to me by Master YHWH, 13. There was no peace in my spirit, because I did not find Titus my brother: and I took leave of them, and went into Macedonia. 14. But thanks be to Elohim, who always brings about to us a victory in the Mashiyach, and manifests by us the aroma of the knowledge of him in every place. 15. For through the Mashiyach, we are to Elohim a sweet aroma in them that live and in them that perish: 16. To these, an aroma of death<sup>4</sup> to death; and to those, an aroma of life to life. And who is adequate to these things! 17. For we are not like others who water down the Words of Elohim;<sup>5</sup> but as of the truth, and as of Elohim, we speak in the Mashiyach before Elohim.

1. Do we begin again to show you who we are? Or do we need, like others, that letters of recommendation from us should be written to you? Or, that you should write recommendations of us? 2. You are our epistles, written on our hearts and known and read by every man. 3. For you know that you are an epistle of the Mashiyach, ministered by us; not written with ink, but by the Spirit of the Living Elohim; not on tablets of stone, but on the tablets of the heart of flesh.<sup>6</sup> 4. And such confidence we have in the Mashiyach towards Elohim; 5. Not that we are sufficient to think anything, as of ourselves; but our efficiency is from Elohim:

---

3 Some Christian scholars, such as Dr. Charles Ryrie, hold that this line of 2 Corinthians refers to a lost letter to that assembly, as he states: "After writing 1 Corinthians, Paul found it necessary to make a hurried, painful visit to Corinth, since the problems occasioned by the first letter had not been resolved (2 Corinthians 2:1; 12:14; 13:1-2). Following this visit, he wrote the assembly a severe and sorrowful letter, to which he refers in 2:4 but which has been lost to us. Titus delivered that letter. Paul, unable to meet Titus on his return to Troas, hurried on to Macedonia where Titus related the good news that the assembly had finally repented of the rebelliousness against Paul. From Macedonia Paul wrote 2 Corinthians and followed it up with his final recorded visit to the assembly (Acts 20:1-4)." (The Ryrie Study Bible (NASB), p. 314.) While Titus was responsible for sending 2 Corinthians, it should be noted that Timothy sent out the first letter to Corinth, and this "lost letter" happened between them. In any case, this is only a theory, and there is no evidence that chapters 10-13 comprised that lost letter. Rav Shaul's letters were well preserved in the East; this precludes any discussion of his having legitimately authored any lost material.

4 Or an aroma of sacrifice, which to some, may be more terrifying than death (Shemot/Exodus 29:18)!

5 A very curious statement, certainly it's not pagan unbelievers who would water down the words of Elohim per se. Rather, their approach was to ignore the Covenant outright rather than try to play word games with what Torah says. Therefore, this comment is aimed at either the traditional Jewish leadership or the lukewarm believers who literally "water down the Word" in favor of either Oral or pagan traditions and customs. The imagery that Rav Shaul is setting his readers up for very shortly in chapter 3 flows from this part of chapter 2. Since he is about to describe "living epistles...not written with ink", "not on tablets of stone but tablets of flesh" and other language, all of which is clearly evocative of written words that he does not want diluted by any cultural or religious traditions.

6 Paul is clearly referencing Jeremiah 31:33, indicating Torah is being written upon the heart. See also Ezekiel 18:31; 36:26-28.

6. Who has fitted us to be ministers of the Renewed Covenant,<sup>7</sup> not in the letter, but in the Spirit; for the letter kills,<sup>8</sup> but the Spirit gives life. 7. Now if the ministration of death was engraved upon stones in writing, and was so glorious that the children of Israel could not look on the face of Moshe<sup>9</sup> on account of the glory upon his face which vanished away; 8. How then will not the ministration of the Spirit be still more glorious? 9. For if there was glory in the ministration of condemnation,<sup>10</sup> how much more will the ministration of righteousness excel in glory? 10. For that which was glorious was as if not glorious in comparison with this which excels in glory. 11. For if that (condemnation) which is abolished<sup>11</sup> was glorious, much more must, that which abides be glorious. 12. Seeing therefore we have this hope, we the more, speak with boldness; 13. And are not like Moshe, who threw a veil over his face that the children of Israel might not behold the termination of that (condemnation) which was abolished. 14. But they were blinded in their understanding because until this day, when the Ancient Covenant is read, the same veil rests upon them; nor is it manifest (to them), that it (condemnation) is abolished by the Mashiyach. 15. And to this day, when Moshe is read, a veil is thrown upon their hearts. 16. But when any of them is turned to Master YHWH, the veil is taken from him.<sup>12</sup> 17. Now Master YHWH Himself is the Spirit. And where the Spirit of Master YHWH is, there is freedom. 18. And we all, with uncovered faces, behold as in a mirror<sup>13</sup> the glory of Master YHWH; and are transformed into the same likeness, from glory to glory, as by Master YHWH the Spirit.

Chapter 4

1. Therefore, we are not weary in this ministry which we have received according to the mercies that have been upon us: 2. But we have renounced the concealments of dishonor, and we walk not in craftiness, nor do we treat the Word of Elohim deceitfully; but by the manifestation<sup>14</sup> of the truth we exhibit ourselves to all the consciences of men before Elohim. 3. And if our Good News is veiled, it is veiled to them that perish; 4. To them whose minds the god of this world has blinded, in order that they might not believe, or else the light<sup>15</sup> of the Flame (Good News)<sup>16</sup> of the glory of the Mashiyach (who is the likeness of Elohim)<sup>17</sup> should dawn upon them.

7 Again a reference to Jeremiah 31:33. See also Matthew 26:28.

8 The "letter" and "Spirit" are not opposites. In verse 1 Rav Shaul begins by explaining how a "letter" in itself is not sufficient for his purposes, and how those in Corinth are not epistles written with ink, but in the Spirit of Elohim. The letter points out flaws. When we study the letter, sins of the weak flesh are exposed; our "natural" man is condemned to death to create a new birth according to YHWH's Spirit. Christian theology, however, teaches the "letter" refers to Torah, and that Torah is contrary to the spiritual man, which is a rather evil theology considering that mainstream Christians are already keeping over 60 percent of Torah. See How much Torah do Christians already keep? in Appendix. Torah contains righteous directives of how to live and love, as well as the Covenant of promise that necessitates Mashiyach. In this discourse Rav Shaul is juxtaposing condemnation as a function of the letter; he is most certainly not discrediting the Torah of YHWH as it pertains to the Spiritual Man (Romans 7:14; 8:4). Torah is the Word of YHWH: "For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this WORD you shall prolong your days in the land" (Deuteronomy 32:47).

9 Shemot/Exodus 34:29: "And it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount, that Moses knew not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him."

10 Ministration of death is also the ministration of condemnation which comes against the sins of the carnal man. If a man steals he is condemned; if he commits adultery or lies, he is condemned when he reads the Letter.

11 Condemnation is abolished when the Ruach haKodesh writes Torah upon the heart, which brings the end of breaking Torah! However, Christian theologians twist this verse to teach that Paul brought an end to Torah itself.

12 The reading of Torah does not blind, nor does the reading of the "Renewed Covenant" bring Grace: but in each, one must "turn to Master YHWH with their hearts" to remove the veil. MarYah/YHWH is used here, rather than Y'shua. Rather than people turning to Y'shua as the deciding factor, the point is that both Jews and Gentiles must be truthful, and not just use prayers or Scripture readings as some sort of magical incantation, but to turn their hearts to YHWH. In many places Y'shua teaches that he came to bring Glory to the Father, and to turn hearts unto YHWH.

13 Behold as in a mirror the glory of Master YHWH. This is the same description of the man looking in a mirror and beholding the perfect Torah of liberty, for to see the Torah is to behold the mercy of YHWH. See Ya'akov 1:23-25.

14 The word here for “manifestation” – galiyota – also means “revelation.” Furthermore, it is from the root of this word that we get the name “Galeela.”

15 An Aramaic wordplay between “blinded” (aeor) and “light” in Hebrew (aur), which can also become the Aramaic word for “Torah,” i.e. auraya, since Torah certifies the Good News. Also, in mystical thinking when the aleph is replaced by an ayin (as in the word for blind), even though both have a potential silent or “A” sound, the ayin is said to drain power; so from light to blindness.

16 Or, flame (“divine spark”), which given the imagery in the previous verse may be a better reading.

17 Damota d’Alaha = likeness of Elohim. This is an interesting word choice because damota denotes likeness but not equivalence. As in the book of Hebrews the earthly Temple vessels are representative of the heavenly; in this case Y’shua is the human face of YHWH. However, Hebrews 1:3 also tells us that Y’shua is “the radiance of His glory” – with a synonym to damota, tzemya – “and the exact representation (tzelma) of His (YHWH’s) nature.” Tzelma is a much closer idea of the spiritual blueprint of man, which is also the reflection of YHWH. It is not representative like damota, but is almost like reflection in the sense of a cloned image that is the image itself. The word “copy” should be avoided as that would denote two natures of YHWH, which is not supported in the Peshitta text.

5. For it is not ourselves that we preach, but the Mashiyach, Y'shua our Master;<sup>18</sup> and, as to ourselves, that we are your servants for Y'shua's sake. 6. Because Elohim, who commanded the light to arise from darkness, has Himself shined in our hearts, that we might be illuminated with the knowledge of the glory of Elohim on the face of Y'shua the Mashiyach.<sup>19</sup> 7. But we have this treasure in an earthen vessel that the excellence of the power might be from Elohim, and not from us. 8. And in every thing we are oppressed, but not suffocated; we are corrected, but not condemned; 9. We are persecuted, but not forsaken; we are prostrated, but not perish. 10. For we bear in our body, at all times, the dying of Y'shua; that the life also of Y'shua might be manifested in our body. 11. For if we are delivered over alive to death, for Y'shua's sake, even so also will the life of Y'shua be manifested in this our mortal body. 12. Now therefore, in us death is active, but in you, life. 13. Having therefore the same spirit of faith, (as it is written, I believed, therefore also have I spoken,) we also believe, and therefore speak; 14. Knowing that He, who resurrected our Master Y'shua, will also resurrect us by Y'shua, and will receive us, with you, to himself. 15. For all things are for your sakes, that while grace abounds by means of many, thanksgiving may abound to the glory of Elohim. 16. For this cause we do not faint; for though our outward man perish, yet the inner (man) is renovated day by day. 17. For the affliction of the present time, though very small and light, prepares for us great glory, without end, for ever and ever; 18. While we look not at these seen things, but at those not seen; for these seen things are temporary, but those not seen are eternal.

Chapter 5

1. For we know that, if our house on earth,<sup>20</sup> this of the body, were dissolved, yet we have a building of Elohim, a house not made with hands,<sup>21</sup> eternal in heaven. 2. And on this account also, we groan, and wish to be clothed with our house from heaven: 3. If indeed, when clothed, we will not be found naked. 4. For while we are here in this house, we groan under its burden; yet you desire not to throw it off; but to be clothed over it, so that its mortality may be absorbed in life. 5. And he that prepares us for this thing is Elohim: who has given us the earnestness of His Spirit. 6. Therefore, because we know and are persuaded, that while we lodge in the body we sojourn away from our Master (Y'shua); 7. For we walk<sup>22</sup> by faith, and not by sight; 8. Therefore we are confident, and desirous to be away from the body, and to be with our Master (Y'shua). 9. We are constantly attentive, that whether we are absent, or whether at home, we may please him. 10. For we are all to stand before the judgment-seat of the Mashiyach, that each may receive retribution in the body, (for) what he has done in it, whether of good, or whether of evil.

18 Just as Y'shua spoke in his Father's Name, so does Paul speak in the name of Y'shua Mashiyach. Paul's authority was not on the basis of his own name. Neither was Paul given any authority to do away with Torah; this is simply a Pagan or Hellenistic ideology that is projected upon Paul.

19 This verse strengthens the idea that the glory of Elohim is "reflected" in Y'shua's face.

20 In Hebrew and Aramaic thought, each major facet of the human condition dwells in a house. Here then we should contrast Rav Shaul's imagery of our house on Earth with that of the opening chapter of Galatians, where he speaks of Y'shua being raised from the house of the dead! Such imagery is certainly implied in the next three lines of this chapter.

21 Another parallel between Rav Shaul's writing here and the Epistle to the Hebrews. The phrase, "not made with human hands" only appears in three places in the NT. One is given by Mar Stephen, and the fact that he dies just after making this statement, effectively eliminates him as potential writer for that Epistle. The other two references, excepting this one, are in Hebrews 9:11 and 24. The context and subject are the same in each place. The fact that Rav Shaul was one of those present and "approving Stephen's death" adds more weight to the conclusion that the author of Hebrews is, in fact, Rav Shaul. From an Aramaic point of view, these phrases appear as a signature aspect of the same author.

22 The word "walk" is mehalakhin, the same word as the Hebrew "halakha." To say then "walk of faith" is to impart a more direct imprinting of the Ruach haKodesh than, for example, rabbinic halakha, or the theological or doctrinal teaching of any other man-made religion. The difference is, of course, the source. The Ruach of YHWH is certainly always superior to the rulings and traditions of men; to walk by Faith and not by sight is to allow the Ruach haKodesh to write Torah upon the heart. Man-made traditions whether Jewish or Christian are, more often than not, a major deterrent to the indwelling of the Ruach haKodesh and the willingness to observe the Torah of YHWH.

11. Therefore because we know the Fear of our Master (Y'shua)<sup>23</sup> we persuade men; and we are made manifest to Elohim; and I hope also, we are revealed to your minds. 12. We do not again praise ourselves to you;<sup>24</sup> but we give you occasion to glory in us, toward them who glory in appearance and not in heart. 13. For if we are extravagant, it is for Elohim: and if we are discreet, it is for you. 14. For the love of the Mashiyach constrains us to reason in this manner: One died for all; therefore are all dead. 15. And he died for all, that they who live should not live to themselves but to him who died for them and rose again. 16. And therefore, we know no person after the flesh: and if we have known the Mashiyach after the flesh, yet from now on we know (him) no more. 17. Whoever therefore is in the Mashiyach is a new creature: old things have passed away; 18. And all things are made new, by Elohim who has reconciled us to himself by the Mashiyach, and has given to us the ministry of reconciliation. 19. For Elohim was in the Mashiyach,<sup>25</sup> who has reconciled the world with his majesty and did not reckon to them their sins; and who has placed in us the Word of reconciliation. 20. We are therefore ambassadors for the Mashiyach, and it is as if Elohim was pleading you by us. In behalf of the Mashiyach, therefore, we plead to you to be reconciled to Elohim; 21. For, on your account, He has made him who knew no sin to be a sin (offering) that we might by him become the righteousness<sup>26</sup> of Elohim.

1. And as enablers we entreat of you, that the grace of Elohim which you have received may not be ineffectual in you. 2. For He has said, "In an acceptable time have I heard you, and in the day of life I have aided you." Behold, now is the acceptable time and behold, now is the day of life! 3. Don't you give anyone occasion to feel offended in anything, that there may be no reproach on our ministry. 4. But we, in all things, would show ourselves to be the ministers of Elohim, in much endurance, in afflictions, in necessity, in distresses, 5. In scourgings, in imprisonments, in tumults, in toil, in watching, in fasting; 6. By purity, by knowledge, by long suffering, by kindness, by the Ruach haKodesh, by love unfeigned, 7. By the speaking of truth, by the power of Elohim, by the armor of righteousness on the right hand and on the left; 8. Amid honor and dishonor, amid praise and reproach; as deceivers, and yet true; 9. As not known, and yet we are well known; as dying, and behold, we live; as chastened, yet not killed; 10. As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as in poverty, yet enriching many; as possessing nothing, yet having all things. 11. Our mouth is opened towards you and our heart is expanded (to you), O you Corinthians! 12. You are not straightened in us, but you are straightened in your own bowels.<sup>27</sup> 13. I speak as to (my) children, Pay me the debt which you owe, and expand your love towards me. 14. And don't be yoked with those who do not believe: for what fellowship has righteousness with iniquity or what fellowship<sup>28</sup> has light with darkness.

23 Y'shua demonstrated the Fear of YHWH to his disciples. It is Mashiyach Y'shua who judges for YHWH (Shemot/Exodus 23:20-22; John 5:22).

24 Literally "(make) good our souls to you." In other words, we did not each uplift the nefesh/soul of ourselves to you. The nefesh (Aram. napshah) is the life force and personality, but salvation comes from the Ruach of YHWH. Therefore, we are not uplifted by our human life force but by the eternal spark of our Creator. The idea that Y'shua uplifted his nefesh, is a false accusation of the Pharisees. The fact is, YHWH uplifted Y'shua's nefesh, as he will also do on the Last Day for those who believe upon Him and live according to the One True Faith.

25 See Isaiah 11:1-2.

26 To "become the righteousness of Elohim" means to demonstrate Mashiyach to the world, which means we do not go through life breaking YHWH's Commandments.

27 Figurative language here, as b'rakhmikon literally means, "in your tender mercies." The "bowels" are also associated with the best of human emotions such as kindness and mercy, which is almost the exact opposite in Western culture.

28 Another place where "communion" was inserted into Christian versions, where it is clearly and simply "fellowship."

15. Or what agreement has the Mashiyach with the Accuser or what part has a believer with an unbeliever? 16. Or what agreement has the temple of Elohim with that of demons?<sup>29</sup> For you are the temple of the living Elohim; as it is said, “I will dwell among them, and walk among them, and will be their Elohim, and they will be my people. 17. Therefore, you come out from among them, and be separate from them” says Master YHWH, “and don’t come near the unclean thing,<sup>30</sup> and I will receive you; 18. And will be to you a Father,<sup>31</sup> and you will be sons and daughters to me,” says Master YHWH the Almighty.<sup>32</sup>

Chapter 7

1. Seeing, therefore, that we have these promises, my beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all defilement of the flesh and of the spirit; and let us bring about (that which is) Set-Apart,<sup>33</sup> in the Fear of Elohim. 2. Bear with us, my Brothers; we have done evil to no one; we have corrupted no one; we have wronged no one. 3. I speak (thus), not to condemn you; for I have said before, that you are treasured in our hearts, to die and to live together. 4. I have great confidence before you, and have much pride in you; and I am full of comfort. And joy wells up inside of me, in all my sufferings. 5. For, after we came to Macedonia, there was no rest for our body, but we were distressed in every thing; without was conflict, and within was fear. 6. But Elohim who comforts the depressed comforted us by the arrival of Titus. 7. And not merely by his arrival, but also by the refreshing with which he was refreshed by you. For he told us of your love towards us, and of your grief, and of your zeal in our behalf; and when I heard it, my joy was great. 8. And although I made you sad by the epistle, I do not regret it, though I did regret it; for I see that that epistle, though for a time it made you sad, 9. Yet it brought me joy, not because you had sorrow, but because your sorrow brought you to repentance; for you sorrowed in righteous sorrow; so that you received no detriment from us. 10. For, sorrowing on account of Elohim works a conversion of the soul which is not reversed, and a turning to life: but the sorrowing of the world works death. 11. For behold this same thing, that you were distressed on account of Elohim, what worry it brought about in you, and apologizing and indignation and fear, and love, and zeal and revenge? And in all things you have shown that you are (now) pure in that matter. 12. And it will be (seen) that I wrote to you, not for the sake of him who did the wrong, nor for the sake of him who received the wrong (only), but that your painstaking care in respect to us might be known before Elohim. 13. As a result, we were comforted; and with our consolation, we were the more joyful for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all: 14. So that I was not ashamed of that in which I had gloried to him, respecting you; but as in every thing we spoke the truth to you, so also our glorying before Titus is found to be in truth: 15. And also his tender mercies<sup>34</sup> are the more enlarged towards you while he remembers the submission of you all and how you received him with fear and trembling. 16. I rejoice that in every thing I have full confidence in you.

29 Present tense, the Temple was still standing when this Epistle was written and therefore before the year 70. Of course, Pauline authorship also gives us this time, since the Apostle died before 67.

30 See Leviticus 5:2; 7:21; 11:8, 31; Deut 14:8; Isaiah 52:11; Lam 4:15; Haggai 2:13.

31 Psalm 103:13; Malachi 1:6

32 Literally, “Master YHWH that (is) all power.”

33 Murdock translates this as “righteousness”, as did I previously. However, while technically true, the word is kadishota in Aramaic, which is more properly rendered as “Set Apart”. This is an important distinction in both the Aramaic and the Greek because it shows Paul exhorting Gentiles to literally “work sanctification” proving that “work” and “sanctification” are not separate and/or mutually exclusive concepts but are spiritually symbiotic. The myth as perpetrated by Luther and others that Paul is all about “grace” and Ya’akov is all about “works” is exposed here as a falsehood. Rav Shaul and Ya’akov emphasize how works and sanctification live together; each is required of the other otherwise a person’s faith becomes out of balance.

34 Murdock opted for the metaphoric use “bowels” probably since he was a Greek Primacist and wanted to align the reading more with Greek. However, in almost every case this appears, “tender mercies” or some variant is the preferred reading.

1. And, my Brothers, we make known to you the grace of Elohim which was conferred on the assemblies of the Macedonians; 2. That in the great trial of their affliction there was an abounding to their joy, and the depth of their poverty was rejoicing in the riches of their generosity. 3. For I testify that, according to their ability and beyond their ability, in the spontaneity of their mind, 4. They looked for us, with much eagerness, that they might participate in the benevolence of the ministration to the Set Apart believers. 5. And not (only) as we had expected, but they first gave themselves to our Master (Y'shua), and to us by the will of Elohim. 6. So that we requested Titus, that as he had begun, so he would perfect in you also the same goodness. 7. And as you are enriched in everything, in faith, and speech, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in our love towards you, so be bountiful in this goodness also. 8. I do not actually command you, but by I am prompted by the devotion of your fellow believers, that I would test the sincerity of your love. 9. For you know the goodness of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach who, when he was rich, for your sakes became poor, that by his poverty you might be made rich. 10. And now I urgently give you my advice that it may be helpful for you to go ahead with and accomplish what you began a year ago on your own accord. 11. And now complete by action, what you designed; that as you had enthusiasm in your proposing, so you may fulfill it in action, according to your ability. 12. For if there is a willingness, a person is accepted according to what he has, and not according to what he does not have. 13. For it is not that others may have it easy and you pressure; 14. But that you may be on equality at the present time; and that your abundance may be (a supply) to their needs; that their abundance likewise may be (a supply) to your needs; that there may be equality. 15. As it is written (in the Torah),<sup>35</sup> "He who gathered much, had nothing over; and he that gathered little, was not deficient." 16. But thanks be to Elohim, who put into the heart of Titus this earnest caring for you. 17. For he received our encouragement; and, because he was very anxious, he cheerfully set out to visit you. 18. And we also sent with him that our brother, whose praise in the Good News is in all the assemblies; 19. Just as he likewise had been expressly chosen by the assemblies to accompany me with this goodness which is ministered by us to the glory of Elohim and to our friendship. 20. And we are therefore guarded, that no one should put blame on us, in (respect to) this abundance which is ministered by us. 21. For we are most diligent to do things commendable not only before Elohim, but also before the sons of men. 22. And we also sent with them that brother of ours who has often, and in many things, been proved diligent by us; and is now particularly diligent, from the great confidence (he has) in you. 23. And therefore, if Titus (be inquired about), he is my associate and assistant among you: or if our other brothers, they are the Shlichim of the Assemblies of the Mashiyach's glory. 24. Therefore you show to them in the presence<sup>36</sup> of all the assemblies, a demonstration of your love and of our deep pride with respect to you.

<sup>35</sup> This is a reference to the manna in Exodus 16:18 which is in turn a very powerful lesson on keeping the Seventh Day Shabbat. In its original context, the Israelites had gone into bondage in Egypt, a society that kept a 10 day week and each month was comprised of three "weeks" for a total of 30 days. Once freed however, they had to re-acclimate to YHWH's Set-Apart schedule. YHWH had them practice Shabbat by gathering manna on the six working days, giving a double portion on the sixth day and there was no manna on the Seventh Day. Similarly, these people in Corinth are also adjusting their timings from the pagan feasts they knew to keeping YHWH's Feasts according to Torah. This is why Pesach is frequently used as an example. See 1 Corinthians 5:6-9; 10:16-17; 11:23-28.

1. And concerning the ministration by the Set Apart believers, it would be useless for me to write to you: 2. For I know the goodness of your mind; and therefore I gloried of you before the Macedonians, that Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal has excited many. 3. Yet I sent the brothers, or else the glorying with which we have gloried in you in regard to this matter, should prove vain; and that you, as I said, may be ready; 4. So that, if the Macedonians should come with me, and should find you unprepared, we, not to say that you, should be put to shame for that glorying in which we (also) gloried. 5. Therefore I was careful to request these, my Brothers, to go before me to you, that they might make up this gift, of which you were advised long before to have it ready, as being an offering, and not a matter of being forced upon you. 6. And this (I say): He that sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he that sows generously, will also reap generously. 7. Every man, according to his own views, not with sadness, not by constraint: for Elohim loves a joyous giver. 8. For it is in the power of Elohim, to make all good abound to you, so that you may have, at all times, and in everything, what is sufficient for you; and may abound in every good work. 9. As it is written, "He has dispersed and given to the poor; and his righteousness is established forever."<sup>37</sup> 10. Now He that gives seed to the sower, and bread for food, may He give and multiply your seed, and increase the fruits of your righteousness: 11. So that in everything, you may be enriched to all generosity, to the completion of our thanksgiving to Elohim. 12. For the performance of this ministration not only supplies the needs of the Set Apart believers, but is also rich in many thanksgivings to Elohim. 13. For on account of the test of this ministration, we glorify Elohim that you do subject yourselves to the profession of the Good News of the Mashiyach, and that in your generosity you communicate with them and with all men: 14. And they put up prayer for you with much love, because of the abundance of the grace of Elohim that is upon you. 15. Blessings be to Elohim for His unspeakable gift.<sup>38</sup>

Chapter 10

1. Now I, Paul, plead with you, by the mildness and gentleness of the Mashiyach, although I am mild towards you when present, but bold towards you when absent! 2. Yet I plead with you that, when I come, I may not be compelled by the boldness that is in me to be daring, as I estimate it, towards the persons who think we walk according to the flesh.<sup>39</sup> 3. For, although we walk in the flesh, our warfare is not after the flesh. 4. For the arms<sup>40</sup> of our warfare are not those of the flesh, but those of the power of Elohim; by which we subdue rebellious castles. 5. And we demolish imaginations, and every lofty thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of Elohim, and subjugate all reasoning to obedience to the Mashiyach. 6. And we are prepared, when your obedience will be complete, to execute judgment on all the disobeying.

7. Do you look on outward appearances?<sup>41</sup> If any one is confident in himself that he is of the Mashiyach, let him know, from himself, that as he is of the Mashiyach, so also are we. 8. For if I should glory somewhat more, in the authority which our Master (Y'shua) has given me, I should not be ashamed; for he gave it to us for your edification, and not for your destruction. 9. But I forbear, or else I should be thought to frighten you greatly by my epistles. 10. For there are some who say (his) epistles are weighty and forcible, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible. 11. But let him who says so, consider this, that such as we are in our epistolary discourse, when absent, such also are we in action, when present. 12. For we dare not compare ourselves with those who exalt themselves: but they, because they compare themselves with themselves are not wise. 13. But we will not glory beyond our measure, but within the measure of the limits which Elohim has imparted to us, that we should reach as far as you. 14. For we do not stretch ourselves, as if not reaching to you; for we do reach as far as you in the hope of the Mashiyach. 15. And we do not glory beyond our measure in the toil of others: but we have the hope that when your faith will mature, we will be magnified by you, as (being within) our measure; 16. And that we will so abound also, as to make announcements beyond you. It is not in the measure of others, (and) in things ready prepared, that we will glory. 17. But let him that will glory, glory in Master YHWH. 18. For it is not he who praises himself who is approved; but he whom Master YHWH praises.

1. I would that you could bear with me a little, that I might talk foolishly: and indeed, bear with me. 2. For I am jealous over you, with a righteous jealousy;<sup>42</sup> for I have espoused you to a husband as a chaste virgin whom I would present to the Mashiyach.<sup>43</sup> 3. But I fear, or else, as the serpent deceived Eve by his cleverness, so your minds should be corrupted from the sincerity that is in the Mashiyach. 4. For if he that comes to you, had proclaimed to you another Y'shua, whom we have not proclaimed; or if you had received another Spirit, which you have not received; or another gospel, which you have not accepted; you might well have given your permission. 5. For, I suppose, I did not come short of those Shlichim who excel the most. 6. For, though I be rude in speech, yet not in knowledge; but in all things we have been revelatory among you. 7. Did I indeed commit an offense by humbling myself that you might be exalted and by proclaiming the Good News of Elohim to you freely? 8. And I robbed other assemblies, and I took pay (of them) for ministering to you. 9. And when I came among you and was needy, I was burdensome to none of you; for the Brothers who came from Macedonia supplied my needs: and in all things I kept myself, and I will keep myself from being burdensome to you. 10. As the truth of the Mashiyach is in me, this glorying will not be made vain as to me in the regions of Achaia.

41 Again, this word, parsopa, indicates characteristics by which we can tell one member of a species from another. It can also mean "face" or "presence." One of the biggest errors in the Greek NT is that it makes the Godhead out to be separate "presences" instead of being occurrences from One singular divine nature.

42 See Jealous Elohim in Appendix.

43 An ingenious metaphor by Rav Shaul; he is comparing himself to the mother of a bride who is recommending her daughter for betrothal. In First Century Israel the family of the bride to be made contractual arrangements with the family of the groom, including the dowry. But, if she were to fall short in any way, it was a huge disaster and great dishonor to both families. Here, Paul teaches that if we (the bride) fall short of our Master-Groom (Y'shua), we will have disgraced him in the worst possible way. (Revelation 21:2)

11. Why? Because I do not love you? Elohim knows. 12. But what I do, that also I will do; that I may cut off occasion from them who seek occasion: so that in the thing that they glory, they may be found even as we. 13. For they are false apostles, crafty workers, and pretend apostles<sup>44</sup> of the Mashiyach. 14. And in this there is nothing strange. For if Satan pretends to be a Messenger of light, 15. It is no great thing if his ministers pretend to be ministers of righteousness whose end will be according to their works. 16. Returning (to what) I say, let no one think of me as being a fool: or if otherwise, receive me as a fool, that I may boast a little. 17. What I am (now) saying, I say not in our Master (Y'shua), but as in folly, in this matter of glorying. 18. Because many boast after the flesh, I also will boast. 19. For you hear with indulgence them who lack reason, seeing you are wise. 20. And you give ear to him, who puts you in bondage; and to him who devours you; and to him, who takes from you; and to him who exalts himself over you; and to him who strikes you in the face. 21. I speak as if under contempt: I speak as if we were impotent through deficiency of understanding; that in whatever thing anyone is presuming, I also am presuming. 22. If they are Hebrews, so am I also: or if they are Israelites, I also. If they are the seed of Awraham, I am too. 23. If they are ministers of the Mashiyach, (in defect of understanding, I say it) I am superior to them: in toils more than they, in stripes more than they, in bonds more than they, in deaths many times.<sup>45</sup> 24. By the Jewish (authorities),<sup>46</sup> five times was I scourged, each time with forty stripes save one.<sup>47</sup> 25. Three times was I beaten with rods: at one time I was stoned: three times I was in shipwreck, by day and by night; I have been in the sea without a ship. 26. In many journeys, in peril by rivers, in peril by robbers, in peril from my kindred, in peril from Gentiles: I have been in peril in cities; I have been in peril in the desert, in peril in the sea, in peril from false brothers. 27. In toil and weariness, in much watching, in hunger and thirst, in much fasting, in cold and nakedness: 28. Besides many other things, and the thronging around me every day, and my anxiety for all the assemblies. 29. Who becomes weak, and I did not get weak? Who is stumbled, and I did not burn? 30. If I must boast, I will boast in my sicknesses. 31. Elohim, the Father of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, blessed for ever and ever, He knows that I do not lie. 32. At Damascus, the commander of the army of Aretas the king, guarded the city of the Damascenes, to seize me. 33. And from a window, in a basket, they let me down from the wall, and I escaped from his hands.

44 Pretend apostles. Details in 11:22-23 make it clear these pretenders are Hebrews like Paul, but they are using their ethnicity as a mark of spiritual status and authority. Paul is saying clearly, that just being Hebrew ethnically does not meet the qualifications of teaching the Kingdom of Heaven to Gentiles. We see this trend continuing, regrettably, in Hebrew Roots and Messianic Movements today. A person's Hebrew status gives them high places of honor in spite of the fact that they do not either serve or revere Y'shua as Mashiyach, it is as if their "Jewishness" alone qualified them to preach and teach. Without the proper faith context abiding in their great Hebrew teaching, one must be exceedingly careful before accepting everything such teachers promulgate. See Acts 17:11-12.

45 Although Rav Shaul is superior to the Jewish authorities, he also states they can be ministers of the true Mashiyach. At the end of the day, the ultimate Mashiyach is YHWH Himself, although the mechanism through which YHWH saves are disputed by various religions. So the Jewish rulers, believing in YHWH as Savior, do so correctly. However, rejecting YHWH's Son is a very serious transgression and denial of the very Scriptures they claim to venerate.

46 Rav Shaul calls himself a son of Abraham, a Hebrew and an Israelite. Therefore, he is not referring to "Jews" in total, but to the religious authorities who wrongly did these things. The ruling "elite" had the authority to administer punishments in connection with the Sanhedrin, but the "elite" are also known to have a reputation of abusing their authority in favor of their own interests. Most people are well aware that when it comes to Christian, Jewish, Muslim or other "religious authorities," oftentimes little regard is paid to what is fair, equitable and just. Religious authorities are often very quick to exercise their muscle against anyone who challenges their religious traditions.

47 Deuteronomy 25:3 sets the maximum punishment to forty lashes. However the Oral traditions of the Pharisees set the maximum number of lashes to thirty nine, as a way to "protect" or "make a fence around the Torah". Someone may have lost count and exceeded the maximum allowable number. While this is clear evidence of the Oral tradition of the Pharisees, it also tells of very unmerciful punishment as Rav Shaul experienced the same number of lashes no less than 5 times.

1. Glorifying must be, but it is not profitable: so I proceed to visions and revelations of our Master (Y'shua). 2. I knew a man in the Mashiach fourteen years ago - but whether in a body, or whether out of a body, I don't know; Elohim knows - who was caught up to the third (region) of heaven.<sup>48</sup> 3. And I knew this same man; but whether in a body, or out of a body, I don't know; (only) Elohim knows; 4. And he was caught up to Paradise and heard ineffable Words, which it is not permitted a man to utter.<sup>49</sup> 5. Of him I will glory: but of myself I will not boast, except in my sicknesses. 6. Yet if I were inclined to boast, I should not be without reason; for I declare the truth. But I hold back, or else any one should think of me beyond what he sees in me and hears from me. 7. And, that I might not be uplifted by the excellence of the revelations, there was given also to me a thorn in my flesh, the Messenger of Satan, to attack me that I might not be uplifted. 8. Respecting this, three times I begged my Master (Y'shua), that it might depart from me. 9. And he said to me, "My grace is sufficient for you; for my power is perfected in weakness." Gladly, therefore, will I glory in my infirmities, that the power of the Mashiach may rest upon me. 10. Therefore I have pleasure in infirmities, in reproach, in afflictions, in persecutions, in distresses, which are for the Mashiach's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong. 11. Behold, I have become foolish in my boasting, for you coerced me. For you should bear witness for me; because I was deficient in nothing to those Shlichim who most excel, although I was nothing. 12. I worked among you the signs of the Shlichim, with all patience; and in prodigies, and in wonders, and in mighty deeds. 13. For in what did you fall short of the other assemblies; except in this, that I was not burdensome to you? Forgive me this fault. 14. Behold, this third time I am ready to come to you, and I will not burden you; for I seek not yours, but you: for children ought not to lay up treasures for the parents, but the parents for their children. 15. And cheerfully will I both pay (my) expenses, and also give myself for your souls; although the more I love you, the less you love me. 16. But perhaps, though I was not burdensome to you, yet, like a cunning man, I stole from you by craftiness! 17. Was it by the hand of some other person whom I sent to you, that I stole from you? 18. I requested Titus, and with him I sent the Brothers: did Titus rob anything from you? Did we not walk in one spirit, and in the same steps?<sup>50</sup> 19. Do you again suppose that we would apologize to you? Before Elohim, in the Mashiach we speak: and all these things, my beloved, (are) for the sake of your edification. 20. For I fear, or else I should come to you and not find you such as I would wish; and or else I also should be found by you, such as you would not wish; or else (there should be) contention and envying, and anger, and stiff-necked stubbornness, and slandering, and arguing, and insolence, and commotion; 21. Or else, when I come to you, my Elohim should humble me; and I should mourn over many who have sinned and have not repented of the impurity, the sexual sin, and the lustful acts which they have committed.

48 The "third heaven" is a reference to the future judgment hall or throne of the "Ancient of Days" as mentioned in Daniel 7. More than likely this was a vision of that great event; perhaps this occurred when Shaul had been left for dead in Acts 14:19; perhaps he had a literal "out of body" experience.

49 Not the "ineffable" name of YHWH here, although religious Jews of this time vigorously enforced a ban on speaking the Name of YHWH. There is no evidence that Rav Shaul supported this ban on speaking or reading the Name of YHWH, after his allegiance was transferred to Y'shua. According to Jewish legend, the foundation stone of the Temple had written on it a 72-letter word that included YHWH, the very phrase uttered at Creation. In later rabbinic parody, both Y'shua and Judas Iscariot are said to have acquired divine power through acquiring this name. Rav Shaul is also mentioned in this parody as deceiving Israel; therefore, it may be that this has something to do with the ineffable Words he refers to.

50 Walking in the spiritual sense, Aramaic word halakh, from which the Hebrew word halakha, or legal rulings, is derived. By walking with the same mind and purpose, the Corinthians have all decided to "walk in step" with the judgment of their leader Rav Shaul.

I have before said to you, and again I say to you in advance (as also I said to you a second time while I was with you; and now also, while absent, I write to those who have sinned and to the others) that if I come again I will not spare anybody: 3. Because you demand proof that it is the Mashiyach that speaks by me, who has not been powerless among you, but powerful among you. 4. For, though he was executed on a stake in weakness, yet he lives with the power of Elohim. We also are weak with him; yet we are alive with him, by that power of Elohim which is among you. 5. Examine yourselves, whether you stand in the faith: prove yourselves. Don't you acknowledge that Y'shua the Mashiyach is in you? And if he is not, you are despised and against Torah.<sup>51</sup> 6. But, I trust you will know that we are not lawbreakers. 7. And I beg Elohim that there may be no evil in you, so that the proof of us may appear: and yet, that you may be doers of good things, though we be as lawbreakers. 8. For we can do nothing against the truth, but (only) for the truth. 9. And we rejoice when we are weak and you are strong. And this also we pray for, that you may be perfected. 10. Therefore, while absent, I write these things; or else when I come, I should act with rigor, according to the authority which my Master (Y'shua) has given me for your edification, and not for your destruction. 11. Finally, my Brothers, rejoice and be perfected and be comforted: and may harmony and quietness be among you; and the Elohim of love and of peace will be with you. 12. Ask (for) the peace of one another with a Set Apart kiss. 13. All the Set Apart believers ask (for) your peace. 14. The peace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, and the love of Elohim, and the fellowship<sup>52</sup> of the Ruach haKodesh be with you all. Amen.

End of the second letter to the Corinthians; which was written from Philippi of Macedonia, and was sent by the hands of Titus

51 The Aramaic word here is maslya, a very competent synonym for being against either namusa or aurayta and therefore "lawless". The root means anything from "contemptible/despised" to "rebel/reprobate" and therefore Rav Shaul is making one of his most shocking statements against later Christo-Pagan re-interpretation:

Belief in the Mashiyach brings an open heart towards Torah, not a rejection of Torah.

This one verse, indeed this one word maslya, effortlessly crushes the romanticism of lawless faith because to be a rebel is also to be despised by this exact same definition. The translation above of "despised and against Torah" is actually a double simultaneous exploitation of this singular word and root. In addition, this also speaks very powerfully of the "re-education" of Gentiles entering into the Kingdom of Heaven, and how Rav Shaul first begins to teach them about giving up their paganism. Rav Shaul teaches from the foundation of Scripture, the Tanakh (Torah-Neviim-Ketuvim), that reveals Y'shua as Mashiyach and the Kingdom of Heaven as the goal and purpose of life. Notice how Rav Shaul opens this chapter: "that, by the mouth of two or three witnesses, every word may be established" (Deut 17:6; 19:15; Matt 18:16), then he explains that to embrace Mashiyach is to embrace Torah. Torah is the Charter of the Kingdom of Heaven, not the Jewish Traditions about Oral Torah, but the literal Word of YHWH, the written Torah that became Y'shua, the Living Torah. Perhaps Paul was also attempting to inoculate the Corinthians from Jewish teachers who had rejected Y'shua and were looking to do Paul some serious harm. But we must also dig deeper into the real seedy underground of Corinthian society. The city was so paganized that the Greek word korinthiazomai, which meant to "act like a Corinthian", became a synonym for illicit sex. Corinth was the Las Vegas, Nevada, sin-city of its day. Just like Ephesus boasted a massive temple to Diana, Corinth dedicated itself to Aphrodite, the goddess of eroticism, hence explaining its propensity for prostitution and fornication. Corinth boasted of having 1,000 women to serve as temple prostitutes, haSatan had major spiritual strongholds on Corinth. When people weren't worshipping sex, they were engaged in drunkenness or participating in the local athletic games that were second only to the Olympic Games in importance. Corinth also boasted a massive stadium that could hold more than 20,000 people. The citizens of Corinth lived for sensuality, paganism, wealth and pleasure. Pagan life seemed very good for these people, according to the standards they knew before the knowledge of YHWH and His Mashiyach was brought to them. And yet, in spite of the dire pagan culture and manifold temptations they faced each day, Rav Shaul is generally pleased with their spiritual progress. His rebuke that they are as lawless ones without Mashiyach probably hit home with more force than it would have in any other place he travelled, including Rome.

52 Aramaic is "fellowship" and Greek koinonia is most often translated as "fellowship" rather than "communion."

Chapter 1

1. Paul, a Shaliach not from men and not appointed by men, but by Y'shua the Mashiyach and Elohim,<sup>1</sup> the Father who raised him from the house<sup>2</sup> of the dead, 2. To all the brothers who are with me in the congregations that are in Galatia: 3. Grace with you all, and peace from Elohim the Father and from Our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach 4. Who gave his nefesh (soul, self) so our sins that are delivered from this world (that is) evil, as (according to) the will of Elohim our Father, 5. Who to glory be forever and ever, amen. 6. I am stunned into silence, as if dead (dead of speaking),<sup>3</sup> that you have so quickly forgotten Mashiyach who has called you to his grace and (have) gone to another gospel 7. That is non-existent, but there are men who agitated you and desired to pervert the Good News of Mashiyach. 8. For if us, or even a Messenger from heaven, preach outside from what was preached to you, let them be cursed. 9. As I said before, so I say again: Whichever man preaches to you outside of what you have received, let him be accursed. 10. Do I persuade men or Elohim? Do I seek to please the sons of men? (because if so) I should not be a servant of Mashiyach. 11. But I want you to realize, my brothers, that the Good News I preached to you was not from the sons of men. 12. Nor did I receive from the sons of men teaching in the revelation of Y'shua the Mashiyach. 13. You have heard then, regarding my previous conduct in (traditional) Judaism, especially about how I followed the congregation of Elohim and greatly devastated it. 14. And how greatly advanced I was in (Orthodox) Judaism,<sup>4</sup> superior to most of my countrymen who were also my kin. And, in particular, how zealous I was with respect to the teaching of my fathers. 15. But when (Elohim) willed it, He who set me apart from the womb and from my mother, called me to His grace. 16. In order to reveal<sup>5</sup> the manifestation of His son that I preached to the nations, I did not explain this to flesh and blood.<sup>6</sup> 17. Nor did I even go to Urishlim,<sup>7</sup> to the Shlichim who were there before me, but instead I went to Arabia and then returned to Damascus. 18. And after three years I went to Urishlim to see Peter and stayed there for fifteen days. 19. I saw none of the other Shlichim except for Ya'akov, the brother of our Master. 20. These things that I write to you – behold – before Elohim I testify, and I do not lie. 21. After these events I went to Syria and to Cilicia. 22. But I was not known by the Messianic assemblies in Yehud. 23. But they had only heard this: That he who previously persecuted them is now preaching the Faith he used to try to cast down before. 24. And they turned their praise to Elohim on my account.

1 Alaha is the singular form, here translated as “Elohim” for clarity. Technically, the closest cognate in Hebrew (and English) is Eloah.

2 “Beyt” can mean either “place” or “house”; within the Scriptures we often find many important human activities associated with a “house” – Shemot/Exodus 13:14; 20:2 the “house of bondage,” Devarim/Deuteronomy 25:10, a “house of the removed sandal,” Kohelet/Ecclesiastes 7:2 houses of mourning and feasting; and, of course, the House of YHWH is mentioned over 200 times. Job says, “If I wait, the grave is mine house” (Job 17:13; also Proverbs 7:27). Perhaps the most interesting “house” is the “eternal home” mentioned in Kohelet/Ecclesiastes 12:5. Going further into the metaphor, eunuchs and foreigners who join to Israel are given their own “house” as if they are tribally linked (Isaiah 56:1-5). Ultimately, by being “in Mashiyach” they go through Judah gate. And finally, even righteousness and wickedness have their respective houses according to Scripture (Proverbs 3:33). Y'shua's triumph is that he was free from the house of death and the grave. See also Psalm 16:10; 49:9.

3 Usually translated as “amazed” or “astonished,” but this word parses out literally as met (dead) d (of) amar (saying/speaking). It would therefore appear to be an idiom akin to saying “the crowd was stunned into dead silence”; thus indicating deep surprise that renders one speechless like the dead.

4 Pharisaic Judaism with its oral traditions was largely carried over into Rabbinic (Orthodox) Judaism. Rav Shaul's point throughout this letter is that his Netzari faith in Mashiyach provided him with a much more superior understanding of the original Faith of Awraham, Yitzak and Ya'akov which is revealed through Y'shua Mashiyach, who is superior to all other Rabbis!

5 Aramaic negla can also mean “manifest” as in revealing through a visual process. This is a common wordplay Paul uses, emphasizing that Mashiyach was revealed through his manifestation in the flesh. “Manifestation” is also one of the many meanings of “miltha” usually translated as “word,” as in John 1:1. The other wordplay is between the root Gela and “Galeela” where Mashiyach was revealed/manifested in the flesh.

6 Aramaic idiom “to flesh and blood” means “to any living person.”

7 A very curious dialectical choice throughout the Aramaic NT where “Jerusalem” is spelled awrshalem. As such, not only do we see the word for “peace” in the phrase (shalom) as we would in the Hebrew, but also “light” which has the same root as “Torah” which is also derived from (awr).

1. Then after fourteen years, I went up to Urishlim with Bar-Naba and Titus also with me. 2. I went up because I was in a revelation, and I made known to them the Good News that I preached among the nations. I then explained to those who were considered to be something (great) among themselves, or else I labored in vain, or should labor. 3. Concerning Titus, who was with me and who is an Aramean,<sup>8</sup> he was not compelled<sup>9</sup> to be circumcised. 4. But because false brothers had been brought in unbeknownst to us, and who explored this freedom of ours in Y'shua the Mashiyach with the intention of enslaving us. 5. But we did not allow even one hour to be subjected (to them) so that the truth of the Good News<sup>10</sup> might abide with<sup>11</sup> you. 6. Those who consider themselves to be great, although what they were I really do not care about, since Elohim does not discriminate<sup>12</sup> among men. Furthermore, not even these men were able to contribute to my knowledge. 7. Rather, on the contrary, for they saw that the Good News of the uncircumcision was entrusted to me, just as they entrusted to Peter the Good News for the circumcised. 8. For he who encouraged Peter being sent to those who are circumcised, also (encouraged) me to be sent out to the Gentiles. 9. And when they knew that grace was given to me, Ya'akov, Peter and Yochanan who were all considered to be pillars, gave to Bar-Naba and myself the right hand of fellowship<sup>13</sup> that we be among the Gentiles and they be among the circumcised. 10. They only asked us to remember the poor, and this is my concern also that I have labored on. 11. And when Peter came to Antioch, I admonished him to his face, for he was worthy of rebuke. 12. Before men from Ya'akov came, he ate among the Gentiles. But when they came, he separated himself, for he feared those who were from the circumcised group. 13. And all the others who were from Yehuda cast<sup>14</sup> lots with him on this issue so that even Bar-Naba was led into their hypocrisy. 14. But behold! When those who did not follow righteously the truth of the Good News,<sup>15</sup> said I to Peter, to the eyes of them all,<sup>16</sup> "If you who are Yehudeans, live as Arameans;<sup>17</sup> why do you urge the Gentiles who have joined themselves to Yehuda<sup>18</sup> to live as Yehudeans?" 15. For if we who have a Jewish nature<sup>19</sup> ourselves, and not those who are from Gentile sinners.

8 Armaya or Syrian. Titus is yet another example of how a Semitic person can also have a Greek or Latin name. What his Hebrew or Aramaic name might have been is not known.

9 Unlike the contemporary traditions of Judaism in Paul's day, a soul who follows Mashiyach is not immediately forced to be circumcised once they show interest, as this is something that is done according to the intent of a person's heart. Circumcision is a voluntary choice, just as it would also be unthinkable to force someone to be immersed (baptized). Every soul must willfully volunteer to fulfill their obligations as their soul is being matured by the Ruach haKodesh. Paul clearly indicates that the requirement for circumcision has in NO way been negated. Circumcision is a demonstration of Faith and Obedience when a person does so according to the leading of the Ruach haKodesh, but NOT on the basis of social, peer, or status quo pressure.

10 Loan words between Greek and Aramaic reflect the reality of the Roman occupation of Israel during the First Century, but this seems to produce a counter-intuitive trend here in Galatians. In Matthew (which has an extremely heavy Jewish influence) and in Galatians, the word for the "Good News" or the "gospel" is the traditional Aramaic sevartha (lit. "the Hope"), which is very odd, considering that most scholars believe this letter was written to a Gentile majority. However, it makes perfect sense if Paul was addressing those of the dispersed Tribes of Israel (Galut) who were exiled into Asia Minor, and who mixed in with Gentiles. On the other hand, Mark 1:1 uses the Greek loan word evangelion for "Good News" which would indicate an evolution from Matthew's writing. One would have expected Rav Shaul to use a more "Gentile friendly" term if the Galatians were predominately Gentile, or perhaps Galatians was written earlier than scholars think. This also may be another reason why the traditional ordering of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John is at odds with conventional scholarship, which suggests that Mark was written first. Conventional theories posture Matthew much later, about 85 C.E.; although passages in the Talmud tend to disprove this, indicating Matthew was the first. Clearly however, Matthew and Galatians retained Semitic reading and Mark followed afterwards, with a more expansive reading.

11 Technically, "towards" is the proper meaning of lwat. However, in this case "abiding towards" makes no sense in English. Rather, once the abiding has gone "towards you" it can also be said to be "with you."

12 In the Middle East, "to turn my face towards" is an Aramaic idiom that means to show favor. Conversely, to turn the face away means to isolate or ostracize. In this context, the idiom is rendered into neutral language as "discriminate."

13 As in Tanakh with the naming of Ben-yamin, the right hand is an Aramaic idiom for strength.

14 "To cast" is an idiom that means "to make a decision, submit". Lamsa translates this passage as "cast lots" even though neither word for "lots" (ܠܬܝܬܝܬ, nor ܠܬܝܬܝܬ, appears directly in the text. The HRV opts for a more neutral language by writing "they submitted." Both readings are correct, since casting lots is a popular Eastern image for making up one's mind.

15 The original Peshitta reads awngaleyon, which is a loan word from the Greek evangelion. However, the New Testament Aramaic Peshitta Text with Hebrew Translation editor writes on page iv: "Concerning the word 'gospel', only the pure Aramaic word sevartha is used in this edition, rather than the Greek word where the Peshitta uses it in 27 places." While the issue of loan words is complex and beyond the scope of a simple word-for-word translation, suffice to say that we should expect the Peshitta to contain these, as it reflects the harsh reality of First Century Israel under Roman occupation. If Aramaic were entirely "pure" this would tend to invalidate the Peshitta's claim to originality. There are clearly many more signs of Aramaic influence in the Greek "New Testament" than the other way around. It is for these reasons that every line must be scrupulously checked in multiple sources.

16 Aramaic idiom, "to the eyes of them all" means, "to everybody's face; in the presence of them all."

17 Rav Shaul consistently uses "Arameans" in Peshitta, where the Greek NT versions read "Greeks." Arameans are Semites who are closely related to Hebrews, but in this context "Arameans" refers to Semites living as non-Jews.

18 See Judaizers in Appendix.

19 The only place in all Aramaic Renewed Covenant writings where the phrase "Jewish nature" appears. The word kyanna refers to a classification without a physical occurrence, kind of like having an image of a bird in one's mind, but not seeing the literal bird. As such, the only types of natures that are discussed are animal, human, or divine. In this lone exception however, Rav Shaul bifurcates human nature further into Jewish and (by implication) non-Jewish.

16. For we know that the sons of men are not made righteous by the works<sup>20</sup> of Torah, but by faith in Y'shua the Mashiyach. Even we who believed in him know that it is from the faith in Mashiyach that we will be made righteous and not from the works of Torah. For from the works of Torah no flesh will be made righteous. 17. But if while we seek (while in our eyes)<sup>21</sup> to be made righteous by Mashiyach we still find ourselves to be sinners,<sup>22</sup> should (it be) therefore that Y'shua the Mashiyach is a servant of sin? Elohim forbid! 18. For if I build again the things I destroyed, I will prove to myself that I have passed by the Commandment.<sup>23</sup> 19. For by Torah I am dead, that I might live to Elohim. 20. And I am executed on a stake<sup>24</sup> with Mashiyach, so it is not I that live but Mashiyach lives in me; and the life I live now in the flesh in faith<sup>25</sup> of the Son of Elohim who loves me and give his life/soul for me. 21. And I do not frustrate the grace of Elohim, for if righteousness came by Torah, then Mashiyach died for nothing.<sup>26</sup>

1. Oh! You foolish, deficient Galatians!<sup>27</sup> Who has bewitched you from your faith after Y'shua the Mashiyach, executed on the stake, has been shown before your eyes. 2. Only this do I want to know from you: did you receive the Ruach from the works of Torah, or did you receive the Ruach from hearing of the faith?<sup>28</sup> 3. Thus you are foolish – that the truth you had in spirit has ended in the flesh with you.<sup>29</sup> 4. All of these vanities you endured. Oh that it might not be for no purpose. 5. He therefore, who gives you the Ruach, and works miracles (power)<sup>30</sup> among you, does he do things by the works of Torah or by hearing (and obedience)<sup>31</sup> to faith? 6. Just as Awraham believed Elohim and it was credited to him as righteousness.<sup>32</sup> 7. You must therefore know that those who trust in faith are the children of Awraham;

20 The phrase "Ma'aseh haTorah" (works of the Torah) appears first in the Dead Sea Scrolls; it is indicative of the ultra-religious halakha of the Essenes, but also refers to the halakha (religious traditions) of the Pharisees. This is NOT referencing observance of Torah in Y'shua. If the reader does not distinguish between "Torah written upon the heart", versus the "works of Torah" or being "under Torah" it would be impossible to understand the book of Galatians; see footnote for Romans 3:28 and Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions #6: Works of the Torah in Appendix.

21 "In our eyes" is an Aramaic idiom meaning, "we seek."

22 Paul's teaching will forever judge those who say they follow Mashiyach but live and teach against Torah (see 1 John 3:4 for a definition of sin). Religion uses words like "moral" (moralis 1340 CE) or "ethical" (ethikos) to establish their own standards of conduct; however, followers of Mashiyach are to live by every Word that proceeds from the Mouth of Elohim (Deuteronomy 8:4/Matthew 4:4). The Word of YHWH is absolute Truth and as such YHWH will Judge man's wilful neglect of Torah. Many Christians, for example, are taught that they "don't have" to observe Shabbat on the Seventh Day because it's not part of their "moral code" and they say their "conscience" never convicted them of breaking Shabbat. This is no surprise, because, even as children, they were taught that Shabbat is not included with Scriptural principles of right and wrong conduct. They were not taught that erecting a Christmas tree is an abomination unto Mashiyach as it depicts Tammuz who was the son of Nimrod and Semiramis, the originators of the pagan trinity. They were not taught that Ishtar (Easter) is morally wrong because it originated with paganism; and the list goes on. The point is that Paul defined sin very astutely, but precious few care to listen because their cultural and status quo values are projected over his teachings.

23 "Passed by the Commandment" is an idiomatic expression meaning "transgress." Literally, "to go around the commandment" – just as the Hebrew word for repentance means "to turn back."

24 The same Aramaic word zaqyp also means "erect, straightened, and lifted up."

25 The faith here is two fold in Aramaic. First, it is the faith in the Son of man, Y'shua the Mashiyach, who brings eternal life. However, that eternal life is made possible because Y'shua the man was obedient to YHWH's Torah. His faith brought him life, and through him, our eternal life. So Rav Shaul says that his faith is in the Son's perfected nephesh (soul) while the perfected nephesh (soul) became that way through the faith of the Son.

26 Torah instructs us about righteousness, but it can't make anyone righteous in itself. It is YHWH Tsidkenu (our Righteousness) who is the Spirit of YHWH in Mashiyach that purifies the spirit and soul of man. As we read and study Torah we must "hear" the Ruach haKodesh inside of us. YHWH gives us His Grace to turn to Him, walk in His Righteousness and observe His Torah.

27 There is a clear wordplay between galatya, those who live in Galatia, and galoot, those who are exiles, the dispersed or captives. While we could not directly translate the passage as "you foolish exiles" it is very obvious that Rav Shaul is writing to both groups. Another key point lexically is that galut is derived from the root galah which means "to reveal or uncover" (Genesis 9:21, 35:7), and this includes direct manifestations of Elohim. It is also the root from which we get the name Galeela. Finally, even though there is a difference in spelling between galutya and galoot (the former has a teth, the latter a taw), the wordplay exists at a sonic level. Such homophonic layers of cleverness are extremely common throughout the Renewed Covenant and provide strong evidence for declaring its Aramaic originality and primacy.

28 Notice the hearing of “the faith”, as ONE Faith, a singular righteous belief system and way of life in YHWH as demonstrated through Mashiach Y’shua. Rav Shaul discards religiosity as a substitute for the indwelling of the Ruach haKodesh. The point is that it doesn’t matter whether it’s Jewish or Christian tradition that makes void the Word of YHWH in favor of one’s own “works of the Torah”! Christians who think they are exempt from this rebuke are only fooling themselves. Those who attend church on Sun-Day, erect Tammuz (Christmas) trees, paint Ishtar (Easter) eggs, or follow other pagan rituals have heaped up their own “works of Torah” (religious works) unto themselves. Did these receive the Spirit by attending church meetings? believing in a theology? being part of a local religious status quo? See Judaizers, Legalism and Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions #4: Justified by Torah in Appendix.

29 This is one of the most difficult Aramaic passages to translate, as an attempt to read just the words without the parentheses will reveal. What we see is that there is a definite juxtaposition between spirit and flesh, and that the Galatians’ error leads to the latter. The word meshelmin that is translated as “end” can also mean “complete”, and to “complete in flesh” means to terminate after life with no redemption afterwards. A variation of meshelmin is said by Y’shua on the stake as meshalam, or “it is accomplished!”

30 Or “miracles”, since the word khaila is used as “power” in the Prayer of Our Master (kingdom, power, glory) and the power of the kingdom is to literally do miracles.

31 The word shemaia (Heb. shema) means not just “hear” but also “to obey.” Probably the latter meaning is better, but both can equally and simultaneously apply to the point Rav Shaul is making. This word is not to be confused with shmaya (heavens) which sounds similar but is spelled differently.

32 Genesis 15:6

8. Because Elohim knew beforehand that the Gentiles would be declared righteous through faith that he first preached<sup>33</sup> to Awraham, as it is said in the Set Apart Scriptures, “In you will all the Gentiles be blessed.”<sup>34</sup> 9. Then the believers are blessed by Awraham the faithful one. 10. For those who are servants of Torah are still under a curse, for it is written, “Cursed is everyone who does not act<sup>35</sup> on all that is written in this book of Torah.”<sup>36</sup> 11. But that no man is made righteous by Torah before Elohim is evident, for it is written, “the righteous will live by faith.”<sup>37</sup> 12. Thus Torah is not made by faith, but whosoever will do the things that are written in it, will live in it.<sup>38</sup> 13. But Mashiyach has redeemed us from the “curse of Torah,”<sup>39</sup> by becoming accursed<sup>40</sup> for us, for it is written: “Cursed is everyone who hangs on a tree.”<sup>41</sup> 14. That the blessing of Awraham might come to the Gentiles through Y’shua the Mashiyach; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith. 15. My brothers, I speak as a man. Even though it be a man’s covenant, yet if it is confirmed,<sup>42</sup> no man can reject it or change anything in it. 16. Now the promises<sup>43</sup> were made to Awraham and to his seed as a covenant. He did not say seeds, as of many, but seed, as of one, that is Mashiyach. 17. And this I say: that the covenant that was previously confirmed of Elohim in Mashiyach cannot be repudiated and (nor) the promise nullified by Torah which came four hundred and thirty years later. 18. For if the inheritance is by Torah, then it would not be as the fulfillment of promise, but Elohim gave it to Awraham by a promise. 19. Why then Torah? It was added because of apostasy, until the coming of the heir<sup>44</sup> to whom the promise was made, and Torah was given by Messengers by the hand of a mediator. 20. Now a mediator does not represent one alone, but Elohim is one. 21. Is the Torah we received against the promises of Elohim? Elohim forbid! For if Torah had been given, which was able to give life, then truly righteousness would have come as a result of Torah.<sup>45</sup> 22. But the Scripture has encircled all things and put them under sin, that the promise in the faith of Y’shua the Mashiyach might be given to those who believe. 23. But before faith came, Torah<sup>46</sup> was guarding<sup>47</sup> us while we were confined from the faith about to be revealed.

37 Habakkuk 2:4

38 Leviticus 18:5

39 There are 12 specific curses mentioned in Deut. 27:15-26; however, one can also apply this to the entire Torah simply because if anyone knowingly or unknowingly sins but does not seek forgiveness and restitution, they are under a curse, certainly not a blessing. There is a “Y” in the road of every choice we make; one road leads to blessing, the other to a curse. See Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions #4: Curse of the Torah in Appendix.

40 Y’shua was “accursed” by his accusers, but Christians teach that YHWH and Torah accused Y’shua. However, Y’shua was the Perfect Lamb. He never broke Torah; therefore could never come under any curse of Torah. We come under the curse when we sin and refuse to turn to YHWH!

41 See Deuteronomy 21:22-23. Y’shua committed no capital crime. Pharisees were warning Jews off Y’shua by saying that he had become a curse because he hung on the torture stake. The Pharisees tried to vilify Y’shua before the Jewish people. Paul is repeating this accusation of the Pharisees for the benefit of “Messianic Pharisees” (see Tosefta Sanhedrin IX.7). “Messianic Pharisees” (Galatians 2:4) were likely weary of being shunned by their people (see Matthew 10:39) and wanted back into the synagogues, so they were posturing themselves as Ebionites (see footnote Titus 3:9). Today “Messianic Pharisees” or Ebionites, attend Orthodox synagogues and are enamored with traditional Rabbinical Judaism; they believe Y’shua is Mashiyach, but not the Arm of YHWH or YHWH Tsidkenu revealed. Paul is using the strongest words possible to affirm the Truth by reminding certain Galatians that they are trying to dilute the Netzarim Faith with traditional Pharisaism. In 2,000 years little has changed; many Orthodox Rabbis still call Y’shua a bastard and a curse of the Jewish people because he “hung on the stake.” Some Rabbis will even provide a mock funeral for Jews who follow Y’shua, and teach that the family member is as though they never existed; so if one can understand the duress that certain “Messianic Pharisees” were under, then one can understand why Paul chose such severity of words!

42 Some translations use “ratify” rather than “confirmed” which is misleading as both Greek and Aramaic meanings are “to strengthen, confirm, validate,” not “to ratify.” Ratification implies negotiation, which implies changeability of the covenant. This is not correct, this very line says, it can be accepted or rejected, but the contents cannot be changed. The Aramaic for “confirm” is de’ashterrat and its root shar means “believe, strengthen, establish”. This is the perfect root for faith covenants being established and strengthened, not “ratification” to change what we want. In political culture we almost never see legislation get through Congress without give and take, compromise and change, only then is it “ratified.” YHWH’s “deals” are not subject to such a process. We either do them and live by them or ignore them and die. A covenant can only be restated or proclaimed to a new group; it cannot be altered.

43 In a stunning bit of Aramaic cleverness, Rav Shaul here actually lines up the two words aytmelekh and molkana, that both mean "promise." This "double meaning" sequence is a way of ratcheting up the intensity, much in the way we might say in English, "he was a man's man." Here we see something more like "and we have a promise on top of a promise." There is also another wordplay in that both words also contain the root for "king" in them.

44 More literally, "seed" since a man's seed - his descendants - are his heirs.

45 Torah is a very big deal in the Rabbinical Jewish world from which Rav Shaul came. The point that Rav Shaul makes over and over is that while Torah is a very big deal, the giver of Torah is even bigger! YHWH gave Torah as a Faith component of Covenant (terms and conditions) between Him and His people, so don't disregard YHWH and put Him on the shelf because you think yourself a Torah scholar. Worse yet, don't put up fences and traditions that become more important to yourselves than YHWH and His Mashiyach. Most Christians will go to a pastor or anyone they think is smarter than themselves to ask extremely important questions about YHWH and His Mashiyach, long before they even consider going to YHWH Himself! Faith demands a person enter into an active relationship with YHWH and His Mashiyach, regardless if a person is Christian or Jewish.

46 In this regard "Torah" can be compared with any righteous values a soul voluntarily imposes upon himself. However, as a spiritual relationship is established with YHWH and His Mashiyach, a soul is elevated to much higher levels of spiritual awareness and accountability. Therefore, it is a complete farce when Christians claim to follow Mashiyach, but willfully violate Torah according to their denominational authorities. See Matthew 7:23.

47 Most Greek translations have "kept in (ward) under the law" which is indicative of popular anti-Torah theology. However, many fail to understand that without the Torah of YHWH, there would be no Standard with which to prove Mashiyach, therefore NO Mashiyach.

24. Torah was therefore a tutor for us, going towards the Mashiyach that we, by faith, might be made righteous. 25. But since faith came, we are no longer under tutors.<sup>48</sup> 26. For you are all the children of Elohim by faith in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 27. For those who have been immersed in Mashiyach have been clothed<sup>49</sup> with Mashiyach. 28. For there is neither Jew nor Aramean, nor slave nor free, nor male nor female, but you are all one in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 29. And if you are of the Mashiyach then you are seeds of Awraham and inheritors by the promise.

Chapter 4

1. But I say that for a period of time the heir is a child, no different from the servants, even though he is the Master over all of them; 2. However, he is under guardians and stewards of the house until the time which his Father has set. 3. Even so with us, when we were young, we acted as if subject to the elements of this world. 4. But when therefore the fullness of time had come, Elohim sent His Son who was born of a woman, and was subject to Torah, 5. To redeem those who are under Torah<sup>50</sup> that we might receive adoption as sons. 6. But because you were sons, Elohim sent the Spirit of His Son to your hearts, that calls the Father "Our Father." 7. And because you were not servants but sons, and if sons, inheritors of Elohim by Y'shua the Mashiyach. 8. Then, for when you did not know Elohim, you served those things who, by their very nature, are not Elohim.<sup>51</sup> 9. Now that you have knowledge of Elohim, and especially have knowledge from Elohim, that you have returned to those weak and poor principles, wishing to come under their bondage. 10. You have observed days and months and times and years.<sup>52</sup> 11. I am afraid that perhaps my being among you<sup>53</sup> has been in vain. 12. My brothers, you were therefore as I was, even as I am as you are. I urge you, in no thing have you offended me. 13. For you know of the weakness of my flesh when I preached the Good News to you previously. 14. And you did not despise me for the temptations of my flesh, but you received as like (I was) a Messenger from Elohim – even as (if I was) Y'shua the Mashiyach. 15. Therefore, where are your blessings? For I testify concerning you that if you were able, you would have plucked out your eyes and given them to me. 16. Have I become an enemy to you because I proclaimed to you the truth?

48 In the most ancient manuscripts in the Peshitta, taraa is 'tutors'; however, it was translated as the singular 'tutor' in Greek. Although the word taraa has the same spelling for both singular and plural, there are times such as here, when the grammar of the sentence does not directly reveal whether it is singular or plural. To correct this problem, the earliest scribes of the Peshitta inserted two dot plural markers - called a syame - above such words, as in this case. A Greek redactor could easily miss these and mistake a singular word for a plural, or vice versa. Aramaic texts are unanimous for when the syames appear, making these readings highly reliable. That being so, what we have here is the true tutor, Torah, being contrasted against false tutors, the Pharisees, who put their oral tradition above the written code of Moses and the Prophets. Such is a common refrain of Y'shua as well in places such as Matthew 15. Unfortunately, this passage was twisted into a "proof text" by anti-Torah Christians who wanted to distance themselves from the Faith of Awraham, Yitzak and Ya'akov.

49 That is, as a garment wraps a person inside, which is a very common idiom in both Hebrew and Aramaic. Rav Shaul uses it elsewhere in Ephesians when talking about putting on the armor of Elohim and the breastplate of righteousness. A very similar idiomatic usage, "clothed with zeal like a cloak", is found in Isaiah 59:17.

50 Notice the difference between being "subject to Torah" or being "under Torah"; the lack of discernment between these two has propelled many souls into anti-Torah lifestyles. Torah is to be written upon the heart by the Ruach haKodesh by Grace; it is by Grace that a person refrains from sin, as they become subject to the Word of YHWH. It is by Grace that a person comes to know and accept the Redemptive work of Y'shua Mashiyach; however, the correct response to Y'shua is to live a life subject to Torah (instruction in righteousness). Being "under the torah" is to be under the authority of any religious regime that postures itself as authorities on YHWH or His Word. For example, the Word of YHWH instructs that we are to rest on Shabbat, but some religious authorities teach that a person must attend a service on Sunday or during the week to discharge their obligation. Those who are under religious authority are "under Torah" which is a much different thing than being transformed into the image of Elohim, according to Mashiyach.

51 Or "elohim" (as in deities). The point is that each false deity cannot live up to the true Elohim, or that none of them are the "real elohim" but rather statues with no life, since there is only One true Elohim, YHWH. The verse can easily read either way; however, it is fair to point out that the later vowel pointing systems that developed in both Eastern and Western Aramaic versions of this text have a plural marker over the word in question. Either way is acceptable, both are possible. The other issue is the use of the word kyanna, or "nature." This phrase proves Rav Shaul was not polytheistic as his critics often allege because, no matter which reading is preferred, he is still defending the very Jewish idea that there is only One divine nature, and that any more than one is idolatry.

52 Adding specific detail from verse 8, "those things who, by their very nature, are not Elohim"; therefore, these days, months, times and years refers to any pagan or "alternative religious" celebrations outside of Torah. However, many Christians use this verse to level their guns at Torah while at the same time celebrating on Sun-day (commemorating the Sun god), Tammuz-day (Christmas), Ishtar (Easter) sun-rise service, Valentines Day, etc, all of which are of pagan origin.

53 "Laboring" is implied.

17. They do not envy you for good (purposes), but instead they would wish to confine you, that you might have envy for them. 18. It is beautiful<sup>54</sup> that you put your envy in beautiful things always, and not just when I am with you. 19. (You are) my children of whom I am in the labor pains of birth with until the reality of Mashiyach is fully formed inside you. 20. I wish<sup>55</sup> I could be with you and change my tone of voice because I have deep concern regarding you. 21. I say to you, those that desire to let themselves be under Torah, do you not hear (and obey)<sup>56</sup> Torah? 22. For it is written that Awraham had two sons, one from a servant woman and one from a freewoman. 23. But he who was from the servant woman is by the flesh (and) he who was from the freewoman was by the promise. 24. Therefore, these things were symbolic of two covenants, the one from Mount Sinai gave birth<sup>57</sup> to bondage, which is Hagar. 25. For Hagar is the mountain that is in Arabia, and it surrenders<sup>58</sup> to this Urishlim which is now in bondage with her children. 26. But that Urishlim above is the freewoman who is the mother of us all. 27. For it is written: "Take delight, O barren one. Rejoice and cry, you who cannot travail with birth pains, for the sons of those who are forsaken outnumber the sons of the favored."<sup>59</sup> 28. Now we, my brothers, are as Yitz'chak was, sons of the promise. 29. And just as he who was born after the flesh persecuted he who was (born) after the Spirit, so it is today. 30. But what does the Scripture say? "Cast out the bondwoman and her son, for he who is of the bondwoman will not inherit along with the son of the freewoman." 31. Therefore, my brothers, we are not sons of the bondwoman, but sons of the freewoman.

Chapter 5

1. Therefore you stand in the liberty of the Mashiyach, liberty and not subjugation, turning from the yoke of servitude. 2. Behold, I Paul say to you, if you are circumcised,<sup>60</sup> then Mashiyach is a thing that has no benefit for you. 3. I testify to you again (return to my testifying),<sup>61</sup> that every circumcised man is obligated to act on the entire Torah. 4. Those of you who are in Torah and who are seeking justification (from it),<sup>62</sup> you have ceased to be from Mashiyach, (and therefore) you have fallen from grace. 5. For we, through the blessings of the Spirit, which is from faith, abide in the hope of righteousness. 6. For in Mashiyach Y'shua, circumcision and uncircumcision are nothing, but faith is completed<sup>63</sup> through love. 7. You were progressing beautifully! Who confused you to not obey the truth? 8. Your persuasiveness was not from him who called you. 9. A little leaven leavens the whole lump. 10. I am confident with you in our Master (Y'shua),<sup>64</sup> that you will not consider anything else, and that he who troubled you will bear his judgment, whoever he is.

54 The word shapir here can mean "beautiful" or also "good."

55 Tzeba can also be rendered as "strong, focused will" and can therefore be a more forceful term than "wish." This word is, for example, used in the Prayer of our Master as neh weh tsevyanakh, or "done is Your will." As such it is not just reflecting a "wish" but a desire that is determined to manifest. In addition, 1905 uses din (yet) in 1905 and gir (for) in Khabouris, but the meaning is unchanged. 1905 reading is retained in the Aramaic.

56 Shema means "hear and do" manifesting the hearing with proof of understanding by proper action.

57 A deep Hebraic wordplay: brit = covenant, but also breet = creation; and women obviously create life in their wombs. In this passage, the life that each woman creates literally gives birth to a "covenant" for each of their sons.

58 The word here, shlama, is the Aramaic cognate of shalom and, as such, has the normal meaning, "peace." However, in this context "surrender" is preferred, in the sense that Mount Sinai where the covenant was codified into divine writing, must surrender to Jerusalem. The reason for this is, it is Jerusalem and not Sinai where YHWH chose to place His name. The irony, of course, is that this "peaceful surrender" is in stark contrast to today's relationship between Saudi Arabia and the modern state of Israel.

60 If a person is immersed (baptized) or circumcised to please the status quo, it profits them nothing. Paul is referring to traditional, religious, Pharisaical, peer group circumcisions that are required before acceptance into status quo religious organizations. Christians who have been baptized into the name of a denomination can likely relate to this as well. Many Christians choose to be re-baptized after realizing their former baptism was into a denominational religion, rather than into the Kingdom of Elohim.

61 The word toḅ has multiple meanings; the root means "to return" and this covers several related ideas. Semitic thought has always viewed morality as a straight path (Isaiah 40:3, Matthew 3:3). An evil person is one who is lost or has taken a crooked path, but if he repents he is said to have "turned back." That is why a variant on this word, teshuvah means "to repent." In this case, Rav Shaul is literally "returning" to his main point.

62 Some seek "justification" through observance of Torah, others seek it by not observing Torah; both pursuits are based on man's religion. The answer is to observe Torah in YHWH and His Mashiach and live righteously as Y'shua did. Put trust and Faith in YHWH, not in works or religion, but as co-laborers with Mashiach!

63 This can also mean "perfected."

64 Maran, always refers to Y'shua as "our Master" and is a common narrative term throughout the NT.

11. My brothers, if I then preached circumcision,<sup>65</sup> why was I persecuted? Why? Has the stake ceased to be an offense?<sup>66</sup> 12. Oh that those who are also troubling you would be expelled!<sup>67</sup> 13. You who are called to liberty, brothers, do not use your liberty for things of the flesh, but in love serve each other. 14. For the entire Torah is properly understood in one Word/Manifestation,<sup>68</sup> “You will love your neighbor as you would yourself.”<sup>69</sup> 15. But if you bite and devour one another – beware! – or else you consume one another. 16. I say then: you should walk through the Spirit and the lust of the flesh will not subdue you. 17. For flesh desires a thing that is against the Spirit, and the Spirit desires a thing that is against the flesh, and both of these are opposed to one another so that you are not able to do as you wish. 18. If, then, you are led by the Spirit, you are not under Torah;<sup>70</sup> 19. For you know the works of the flesh, which are these: adultery, impurity and lasciviousness, 20. idolatry, witchcraft, enmity, strife, jealousy, anger, stubbornness, treacheries, heresies, 21. Envy, murder, drunkenness, revelry and all like things. Those who do things like these, they will not inherit the Kingdom of Elohim. 22. The fruits then of the Spirit are these: Love, joy, peace, kindness, goodness, faith, 23. Meekness, self-control. Against these there is no instruction<sup>71</sup> put in place. 24. And those who are of Mashiyach have put to death their flesh with all its passions and lusts. 25. Let us therefore live by the Spirit and surrender to the Spirit. 26. And let us not be of vacant glories that cause us to ridicule one another and envy one another.

Chapter 6

1. Brothers, if any man among you goes before you in error, you, who are in the Spirit, restore him by the spirit of gentleness; and beware or else temptation also comes upon you. 2. And carry the load of one another, and become full in the instruction of Mashiyach. 3. For if a man considers that he is something when he is not, his soul is deceived; 4. But let each man examine his own work and let him glory just within himself and not among others; 5. For each man will bear his own burden. 6. Let him who hears<sup>72</sup> the Word become a partaker with him who teaches all good things. 7. Do not deceive yourselves, as Elohim is not deceived; for what the sons of men sow they will also reap.

65 In other words, if he went back and preached salvation through physical circumcision in the context of tradition, rather than Torah. Rav Shaul clearly indicates that religious tradition, which overruled Torah, was the majority view within the religious welter of his day. Therefore, if he preached the “party line” he would no longer be persecuted. But persecution came about because he exposed religious tradition and taught that Torah requires understanding and a circumcised heart before physical circumcision.

66 The upright “stake” brings to mind the “pole” which YHWH instructed Moshe to hold up in Numbers 21:8. A brass serpent was put upon the pole and when the people looked upon it, they were healed from the bite of the snake. So it is, that when people are bitten by the “serpent” (Genesis 3:15), they must look to Mashiyach for healing and deliverance. The cross was introduced by pagans; it was formerly a symbol of the Babylonian sun god as cruciforms indicate. Later, Julius Caesar and his heirs struck coins with symbols of the cross (solar wheel) to commemorate the sun god. The Roman Emperor Constantine was a sun worshipper who became a Christo-Pagan and advanced Hellenized Christianity, making his “version of Christianity” the official religion of the Roman Empire. The Greek “stauros” also denotes an upright stake; the verb stauroo means to drive stakes. The Greek “xulon” denotes a timber or a log or any piece of dead wood. Bullinger’s Companion Bible notes that, “Our English word “cross” is the translation of the Latin crux ; but the Greek stauros no more means a crux than the word “stick” means a “crutch.” See Pole, The Standard, in Appendix.

67 Or, literally “cut off” which, given the subject matter, has an ironic and almost dark humorous twist.

68 Greek translations have logos, which is translated into English as “fulfilled.” In sources like Philo and the Greek NT this is rendered as “word”; in this verse the Aramaic “miltha” can also mean “manifestation,” “emanation,” or “substance.” Therefore, Torah (The Word) was fulfilled by the Manifestation (also Word), which is why John says “grace and truth came from Y’shua the Mashiyach.” Therefore, if one is to read “fulfilled” here, then it must be understood that the correct interpretation of Torah is given according to what Mashiyach Y’shua elucidated. This can in no way be construed that Mashiyach brought an end to Torah.

69 The word naphshah in Aramaic is the cognate of the Hebrew nefesh, and can mean “self,” “soul” or “life”

70 The idiomatic expression “under the Torah” refers to a false teaching that has never been true. The Dead Sea Scrolls confirm that this phrase “under the Torah” refers to strict religious halakha, not obedience to Torah itself. Torah has not at any time saved anyone! YHWH saves when His people demonstrate a sincere obedience to His Righteous Instructions (Torah). Blind ritual (or religion) alone without the love of YHWH profits nothing. YHWH is "the Spirit" of the Renewed Covenant that writes Torah upon the heart. See Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions #3: Under the Law in Appendix.

71 In this context, namusa, the Aramaic cognate for torah, is better understood at its root level, meaning "to instruct," rather than as a formalized title. Otherwise, Rav Shaul might be construed as saying that these "Fruits of the Spirit" are not taught in Torah, when (the fact is) they are. His point is that there is no instruction against fulfilling these fruits of the spirit. 72 "Hears the Word" means to do the Word. By Faith hearing implies an automatic response to do. See D'varim/Deut 6:3-25.

8. That which is from the flesh, sowed from the flesh, reaps corruption. But for those who are sown in the Spirit, from the Spirit eternal life is given.<sup>73</sup> 9. And let us not be weary now that we are working for good, for in the season of reaping we will not faint. 10. Therefore, while we have time, let us do good to all men, especially towards those who are sons of the house of Faith. 11. See these large letters I have written to you in my own hand!<sup>74</sup> 12. Those that desire to be boasting in the flesh are those who are compelling<sup>75</sup> you to circumcision, only or else by the stake of the Mashiyach, that they might not be persecuted;<sup>76</sup> 13. For not even they who are circumcised obey Torah, but they desire you to be circumcised so that they might boast in your flesh.<sup>77</sup> 14. But let me not boast, except by the stake of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach by whom the world is put to death on a stake, (and also) to me and I to the world. 15. For neither circumcision nor uncircumcision is anything, but a new creation (is what is something). 16. And to those who follow this path: Let there be peace and mercy upon them and upon the Israel of Elohim. 17. Therefore, man does not trouble me, for placed in my body I bear the marks of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 18. The grace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach be with your spirit, my brothers. Amen.

73 It is no coincidence that the original English word order reads: "lives" but the syntactical English: "life". This is not a discrepancy but, rather, it is a way of showing idiomatic expressions from one language to another. The same thing happens when we raise a glass of wine and give the toast of "L'chayim!" That phrase is rendered "to life!" when in fact the Hebrew plural is literally, "to lives!"

74 Because Rav Shaul is not a professional scribe, he needs the help of others like Tertius in Romans 16:22 to make his dictated epistles presentable to the assemblies he is sending them to. A professional scribe can write small letters in a precise and clear manner, and this is a benefit when we consider how scarce both paper and ink was in antiquity. This phrase then in Galatians 6:11 is more a sheepish, self-deprecating (albeit also lighthearted) remark from Rav Shaul about his penmanship. It is more like saying, "it's real big handwriting to prove to you I proofed my letter, because if it looked all pretty you know I could not have written it!"

75 However you weight the word "compelling" - whether - you believe it to be a forceful ultimatum or a strong suggestion, you must apply equal weight where Paul uses it in Galatians 2:3. Unlike his opponents, Paul refuses to use circumcision or baptism of converts as something to put on his scorecard; see 1 Cor. 1:13-17. Unlike his opponents, Paul accepted each soul as an equal; he did not preach one set of rules for Jewish followers of Mashiyach and another for Gentiles. See Galatians 3:26-29; 2:11-17.

76 This summary points to Jews who desire to follow Y'shua but who also want to be accepted by traditional Judaism. Most Gentiles have no awareness of the persecution against Jews by their own people when they choose to follow Y'shua. Some families along with their Rabbis hold mock funerals for relatives who follow Y'shua; others mock, persecute, gossip and slander any Jew who confesses Y'shua as Mashiyach. Therefore, knowing the consequences, it is human nature to try to be accepted in both worlds. Paul is addressing these matters, but Christians twist this Epistle into a license to abandon Torah and circumcision, which is an extremely shameful conclusion. Rav Shaul rebukes those who turn Torah and Circumcision into idols; however, Christians are equally as culpable when their religious traditions become idols and truth becomes the stumbling block. Y'shua restored the Ancient Path spoken of in Jeremiah 6:16. YHWH offered the Brit Chadasha (Renewed Covenant) so that both Jew and Gentile can fully embrace Torah in Mashiyach. The downside is the same for Christians as it is for Jews: those living among Christians are persecuted for observing Torah; those living among Jews are persecuted for proclaiming Y'shua! Religion is much more comfortable than Truth; nothing has changed in 2,000 years.

77 If they obeyed YHWH, they would teach Torah to the Gentiles according to Awraham's example; Awraham first heard YHWH's voice and then he was circumcised. Jeremiah 9 offers a scathing rebuke of Israel by accusing her of being like Moab and Egypt, and the nations that circumcise because of local tradition yet have no relationship with YHWH nor walk in Torah as He requests.

78 Rome is clearly the purview of the Apostle Paul who was specifically sent to the uncircumcised (Galatians 2:7-8) while Peter was sent to the circumcised in places like Babylon (1 Peter 5:13). Since the Emperor Claudius had years before expelled all the Jews from Rome in about 49 CE (Acts 18:2), there is no real reason for Peter to be ministering in Rome per his own calling. Paul's leadership, tutelage and charge over the Roman-Gentile believers is very well established considering he sent three of epistles there (Romans, Philemon and Hebrews) and wrote several others from Rome as well (Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians and 2 Timothy). So if Peter was in charge of the assembly in Rome during all this time, it is very curious why Paul does not mention this when he clearly indicated Peter as a "pillar" from Jerusalem (Galatians 2:9).

Also, Peter and Paul never consult with one another over the congregation in Rome, and neither does Peter write a single epistle to, or from Rome. Peter is either neglecting the Roman assembly, or it is possible that he never even visited Rome. Additionally, we can be certain that this Epistle to the Galatians, written from Rome, preceded the Epistle to the Romans by at least a decade. The reason is simple: With all the discussion about the circumcision controversy in Galatians, it is highly unlikely that Rav Shaul would have neglected to make reference to the events of the Jerusalem Council. The Jerusalem Council (Acts 15) took place in 49 CE; Galatians had to be written before that. Paul came to faith in Y'shua around 33 CE, he resided in Arabia until 36 CE, then returned home to Tarsus for about 9 years until Bar-Naba tracks him down in 45 CE which is when his missionary journeys really began. We know with certainty that Paul visited the assembly at Galatia at least once on either his second or third missionary journey; however the timeline for those visits does not match the early date required for the epistle's composition. If Paul were writing after one of his visits it would be from either 53 or 55 CE, however 1 Peter 1:1 tells us that Shimon Keefa also wrote towards, and probably founded this same assembly in Galatia, shortly after his release from prison in 44 CE, giving us a narrow window of time for this letter by Paul to be composed in Rome. We should also recognize some of the characteristics of Netzarim leadership in these matters. The fact that Rav Shaul was such a prolific writer can easily lead to a false impression that he had greater authority than Keefa who only wrote two epistles. The reality is that while Rav Shaul may have admonished Keefa (Galatians 2:11), there are no indications that Keefa either affirmed Paul's position or that Ya'akov or delegates of the Jerusalem Council yielded to Paul's opinion, as both men faced the same challenges. In reality Keefa set out some foundational elements for the final ruling at the Jerusalem Council (Acts 15:7). Netzarim leaders are servants of YHWH, unlike the top down Greco-Roman hierarchical structure which Paul thoroughly rejects in 1 Cor. 1:12-31. Regrettably, it was the quest for authority, power and recognition that put Peter at the seat of power in Rome as the first pope; however such posturing doesn't harmonize well within the NT. There are plenty reasons why the Roman Catholic Church elected Peter to symbolize its first pope, first being that Peter carried a very wide influence among the Shlichim as indicated in Yochanan 21:17. However in the first century the Persian Empire was more significant for early followers of Y'shua than Rome, both in geo-political terms and in proximity to Israel. Keefa established assemblies throughout the vast territory of Persia long before the Good News arrived in Rome. The border between Rome and Persia ran through Babylon, and Babylon, where Peter was located, retained the largest Jewish population outside of Israel. This is why Aramaic scholar George Lamsa wrote the following: "Prior to the conversion of Emperor Constantine I, Christianity was widely spread in the eastern Roman Empire. It had already embraced Syria, Palestine, Western Mesopotamia, Armenia, Cilicia, and most of the countries in Asia Minor. In three centuries the Gospel of Christ had penetrated as far as Malabar, India, Iran, Turkistan, Tartary, and many regions of Arabia. On the other hand, the spread of Christianity in the western portion of the Roman Empire, that is Greece and Italy, was comparatively slow and conversions were limited to Jews, Syrians, Assyrians; converts from other races were few. As we see from the book of Acts, the people of Greece and Italy were strong adherents of pagan religions and imperial cults and therefore, were strongly opposed to Christianity or any other Semitic religion. This is because both Christianity and Judaism were opposed to image worship, the adoration and worship of human gods, harsh treatment of slaves, and high taxation. In the book of Acts we are told that the Apostles were accused by Greeks of spreading a new doctrine which was alien to pagan institutions and Western customs." (New Testament Origin, on p. 25-26)

1. PAUL, a Shaliach of Y'shua the Mashiyach by the will of Elohim, to them who are at Ephesus, sanctified, and believing in Y'shua the Mashiyach: 2. Peace be with you, and grace from Elohim our Father and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 3. Blessed be Elohim, the Father of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach who has blessed us with all blessings of the Spirit in heaven by the Mashiyach: 4. According as He had previously chosen us in him, before the foundation of the world, that we might be Set Apart and without blame before Him; and, in love, as that before our beginnings for Himself; 5. And adopted us for sons, in Y'shua the Mashiyach as was agreeable to His will: 6. That the glory of His grace might be glorified which He poured upon us by his Beloved One;<sup>1</sup> 7. By whom we have redemption and the forgiveness of sins by his blood, according to the riches of his grace 8. Which has abounded in us, in all wisdom and all spiritual understanding.<sup>2</sup> 9. And he has made us know the mystery of his will,<sup>3</sup> which he had before determined in himself to accomplish 10. In the stewardship<sup>4</sup> of the fullness of times;<sup>5</sup> that all things might again be made new in the Mashiyach, things in heaven and (things) on earth. 11. And in him we are elected, according as that before our beginnings<sup>6</sup> and willed, who works all things according to the counsel of his desire; 12. That we should be they who first hoped<sup>7</sup> in the Mashiyach, to the honor of his glory. 13. In whom you also have heard the Word of Truth which is the Good News of your life, and have believed in him; and have been sealed with the Ruach haKodesh who was promised; 14. Who is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of them that are alive and for the praise of his glory. 15. Therefore, behold I also, since I heard of your faith in our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach and of your love towards all the Set Apart believers; 16. Do not cease to give thanks on your account, and to remember you in my prayers 17. That the Elohim of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, the Father of glory, may give to you the Spirit of Wisdom and of revelation in the recognition of him.<sup>8</sup> 18. And that the eyes of your hearts may be enlightened so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, and what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the Set Apart believers; 19. And what is the excellence of the majesty of his power in us who believe; according to the efficiency of the strength of his power 20. Which he put forth in the Mashiyach and raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand<sup>9</sup> in heaven,

1 Rav Shaul uses two terms for "by"; the first is in 1:3, with a simple B proclitic. The second begins this verse with the use of byd. This is notable because the first "by" can also mean "through, inside, by, into or upon" whereas the second byd only means "by" in the sense of authorship or creation. If something is "through" this or that, this could indicate a tool under my control, viz, "I cut the wood by using a saw". But here, the use of byd appears to make Y'shua the author of these wonderful results, by the will of YHWH, which Rav Shaul also says in this introduction.

2 Khabouris adds "of the Spirit". This reading is adopted in the Aramaic and is a fairly important omission of 1905. Therefore, 1905 is corrected according to Khabouris wording.

3 Murdock consistently renders tzebina as "pleasure" rather than "will" which is more accurate. When Y'shua says, "Thy will be done" or, neh weh tseyyanakh no one would render that as: "thy pleasure be done." In today's English parlance, "pleasure" has taken on an entirely different meaning. Often the word "pleasure" refers to entertainment or the sensual things that are clearly not YHWH's "pleasure"; but doing YHWH's will brings "pleasure" to Him. "Pleasure" in this context, is the result of righteous action as unto YHWH. In verse 1:11, Murdock translates the term properly as "will".

4 English versions insert "dispensation" here to bolster "dispensationalism" and "replacement" theologies which were invented by Christian theologians to syncretize Hellenism (cultural values of early Catholic church founders) into Paul's letters. In both Aramaic and Greek the correct term is stewardship.

5 Fullness of times or the completion of the acharit hayamim (the latter days) is a theme that Paul often visits (compare Romans 16:25; 1 Cor 7:26; 1 Thess. 5:1-3; 1 Timothy 4:1; 2 Timothy 3:1). The Shlichim assumed Y'shua would return as Mashiyach ben David, even in their lifetimes. See Mashiyach Ben David in Appendix.

6 Literally, “as that before our beginnings” rather than “predestined” which was inserted to bolster the “predestination theology” that some are created specifically for hell and others for heaven. Paul is referring to the neshama (spirit of man) that is known of by YHWH from before the beginning of time; however, man’s spiritual “destiny” is also a matter of personal choice. “If you forsake YHWH, and serve strange elohim, then he will turn and do you hurt and consume you after that he has done you good” (Joshua 24:20). “The soul that sinneth, it shall die. The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son: the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him” (Ezekiel 18:20).

7 Or “considered”; “thought about.”

8 Four attributes (sefirot) of YHWH are being described in this one sentence: shubkha (Heb. Hod) = majesty/glory; chokhmata (Heb. Chokhma) = wisdom; gilyana (Heb. Shekhinah) = revelation/manifestation; and yadai (Heb. Da’at) = spiritual knowledge. Two of these words are exact cognates, essentially the same words from the Hebrew. Two others are close synonyms. Rav Shaul uses a synonym for yadai earlier in this chapter: sakal, rendered as “spiritual understanding” in 1:8. Other attributes (sefirot) are very clearly described throughout this first chapter.

9 As in the naming of Benjamin in Genesis, the word “hand” is implied. To be at the right hand (side) was to be on the side of power and favor in Hebraic thought, especially with respect to YHWH.

21. High above all principalities and authorities, and powers and masterships, and above every name that is named,<sup>10</sup> not only in this world but also in that (which is) to come:<sup>11</sup> 22. And He (Master YHWH) has subjected all things under his (Y'shua's) feet; and has given him who is high over all to be the head of the Assembly<sup>12</sup> 23. Which is his body and the fullness of him who completes all in all.

Chapter 2

1. And also you (he completes) who were dead in your sins and in your offenses 2. In which you before walked, according to the worldliness of this world<sup>13</sup> and according to the will of the prince and power of the air, that spirit which is active in the children of disobedience: 3. In which deeds we also formerly spoke of in the cravings of our flesh; and we did the pleasure<sup>14</sup> of our flesh and of our mind, and were altogether the children of wrath, like the rest. 4. But Elohim who is rich in His mercies because of the great love with which He loved us 5. When we were dead in our sins, gave us life with the Mashiyach and rescued<sup>15</sup> us by His grace; 6. And revived us with him and seated us with him in heaven, in Y'shua the Mashiyach: 7. That He might show to the coming ages<sup>16</sup> the magnitude of the riches of His grace and His goodness towards us in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 8. For it is by His grace we are rescued, through faith; and this is not of yourselves, but it is the gift of Elohim.<sup>17</sup> 9. Not of works, or else anyone glory (in themselves). 10. For we are His creation who are created in Y'shua the Mashiyach for good works which Elohim has before prepared for us to walk in. 11. Wherefore be mindful that you formerly were carnal Gentiles; and you were called the uncircumcision by that which is called the circumcision and which is the work of the hands in the flesh.<sup>18</sup> 12. And you were, at that time, without the Mashiyach; and were aliens from the Devarim<sup>19</sup> of Israel; and strangers to the covenant<sup>20</sup> of the promise; and were without hope and without Elohim in the world. 13. But now, by Y'shua the Mashiyach, you who before were afar off, have been brought near by the blood of the Mashiyach. 14. He is himself our peace, who has made the two (become) one, and has demolished the wall<sup>21</sup> which stood in the midst, and the enmity, by his flesh;

10 YHWH is the "name above all names"! Y'shua has the name of the Father YHWH in him (John 17:11); "YHWH is Salvation" (Matthew 1:21).

11 A very literal Aramaic rendering of a timeworn Hebraic idea. Olam haba, or "world to come" is the scriptural term not so much about the Christian concept of heaven, but about a return to Paradise in Eden, a return to the world before sin entered.

12 At the time this Epistle was written, there was only one main assembly in Jerusalem. The rest were pockets of believers, Jewish and Gentile alike, who reported to Ya'akov the Just in the Set Apart city.

13 "Worldliness" is sin. Following the world's religions, customs and materialistic values is making void Torah, making one dead in their sins.

14 In this case, the sensual context of tzebinah is clearly intended; therefore, "pleasure" is the preferred word here as opposed to "will."

15 Literally, "saved." A variant of this word is what we call "Savior" in English. In Aramaic the concept of a savior is literally: "giver of life." See Salvation in Appendix.

16 Or, "worlds."

17 This gift, when "opened", teaches us of His wisdom and knowledge and instructs us by revealing His character of love. The gift of grace brings us to an understanding of His goodness but also brings guilt because our ways are not His ways, this leads us to repentance which gives birth to Faith. Grace then is the character of Mashiyach that is righteousness imparted to his followers, see Romans 5:17-21. It is also interesting to note that the synonym for "gift of YHWH" is the name Mattityahu (Matthew). Rav Shaul perhaps intended to reference Matthew here, the writer of the first account of the Good News! Matthew's account of the Good News might well have been the only publication in circulation in Rav Shaul's lifetime.

18 This pertains to physical circumcision alone, without Torah context/teaching. See footnote on Galatians 6:13 and Jeremiah 9.

19 "Devarim" is the Hebrew cognate for the Aramaic "duboree" which literally means "words". Devarim is the Hebrew name for the fifth book of Torah, also called Deuteronomy. "These are the words which Moses spoke unto all Israel" (Deut 1:1). It is these words that form the basis of the Kedoshim "Set Apart" believers in the household of Elohim. Clearly, "fellow-citizens" of Israel (The Israel of Elohim) are called to have YHWH's Set Apart (Holy) "words" (Torah) written upon our hearts according to Jeremiah 31:33. See also Romans 11:16-36.

20 Greek reads “strangers to the Commonwealth of Israel”. Aramaic reads “strangers to the duboree of Israel and to the covenant of the promise.” YHWH identifies Israel according to their obedience to Covenant, rather than after the flesh. The Renewed Covenant in Jeremiah 31:31-34/Hebrews 8:8 is first made with Israel and Judah and then offered to others from the nations who choose to live in obedience to the Covenant. Furthermore, in a very interesting admission, translator John Wesley Etheridge translates duboree d’Aisrayl here as “polity of Israel” but adds in his footnotes regarding this phrase, “the manners, or regulations, of Israel.” In other words, he is looking at the nations’ divorcement from the intricate rules of Israel and not some obscure moral distillation of Torah, as a bad thing! This reading might even go beyond my own rendering of “citizenship of Israel” but the point is the same. If the Ephesians are citizens of Israel, then they are subject to her “words” and “regulations” as well!

21 Aramaic for wall is syaga. Ironically, this exact term was picked up by the Talmudic rabbis in Pirkei Avot (Sayings of the Fathers) 1:1 that commanded, “make a fence around the Torah.” Y’shua specifically warned against this activity in Matthew 15, rebuking the Pharisees in the process. Later on, Y’shua said he was the “door/gate” using a synonym for syaga, known as taarea, which is a homonym “torah” and “teachers,” meaning the Pharisees. So while the Pharisees are busy erecting their fence, Y’shua is pulling it down, allowing everyone access!

15. And in his flesh (the) enmity and regulations of commands (contained) in his commandments are abolished<sup>22</sup> (so) that in himself (an occurrence of the divine nature, or qnoma),<sup>23</sup> he might make the two into one, establishing peace. 16. And has reconciled both with Elohim in one body and has slain the enmity by his stake (of execution). 17. And he came and proclaimed peace to you afar off, and to those near: 18. Because by him there is access for us both, by one Spirit, to the Father. 19. Therefore you are neither strangers nor sojourners, but you are fellow-citizens with the Set Apart believers and of the household of Elohim. 20. And you are built upon the foundations of the Shlichim and the prophets; and Y'shua the Mashiyach has become the head of the corner in the edifice. 21. And in him all the edifice is framed together and grows into a Set Apart temple in Master YHWH; 22. While you also are built in him for a habitation of Elohim through the Spirit.

1. On this account, I Paul am a prisoner of Y'shua the Mashiyach for the sake of you Gentiles: 2. If so be, you have heard of the stewardship<sup>24</sup> of the grace of Elohim which was given to me among you: 3. That by revelation there was made known to me the mystery (as I have (now) written to you in brief, 4. so that while you read you might be able to understand my knowledge of the mystery of the Mashiyach) 5. which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as it is now revealed to his Set Apart Shlichim and to his prophets, by the Spirit; 6. That the Gentiles<sup>25</sup> should be sharers of his inheritance and partakers of his body and of the promise which is given in him by the Good News; 7. Of which I have been a minister according to the gift of the goodness of Elohim which was imparted to me by the operation of His power: 8. To me, who am the least of all the Set Apart believers, has this grace been given that I should announce among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of the Mashiyach, 9. And should show to all men what is the architecture of the mystery which for ages was hid up in Elohim the Creator of all (things): 10. So that, by means of the assembly, the manifold wisdom of Elohim might become known to the principalities and powers that are in heaven: 11. Which (wisdom) He arranged ages before, and he has worked it through Y'shua the Mashiyach our Master; 12. Through whom we have boldness and access in the confidence of his (Y'shua's) faith. 13. Therefore I pray that I may not be discouraged by my afflictions which are for your sakes; for this is your glory. 14. And I bow my knees<sup>26</sup> to the Father of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach 15. From whom the whole family in heaven and on earth is named;<sup>27</sup> 16. That He would grant you, according to the riches of His glory, to be strengthened with might by His Spirit; that in your inner man 17. The Mashiyach may dwell by faith, and in your hearts by love while your root and your foundation increases greatly in strength; 18. And that you may be able to explore, with all the Set Apart believers, what is the height and depth and length and breadth, 19. And may know the greatness of the Mashiyach's love; and (that) you may be filled with all the fullness of Elohim.

22 The grammatical structure here fully guarantees that namusa is referring to "customs" as in the traditions of the Pharisees, not Torah itself. Mashiyach abolishes the "enmity" (hatred or animosity) that has been brought against YHWH by religious tradition and false interpretations of Torah, which was a heavy burden that people could not bear. Christian theologians, however, twist this verse and teach that it was YHWH's Torah that brought the hatred and that Mashiyach did away with Torah, which is a very reckless and evil theology. Mashiyach sent the Ruach haKodesh to write YHWH's Torah upon the hearts of his people, not abolish it. See Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions #11: Commandments Nailed to the Torture Stake in Appendix.

23 Qnoma can mean "core substance" or "occurrence." Although Greek reads "self" Aramaic does not; "self" leads to assumptions of "personhood" which breeds idolatry.

24 "Dispensation" was inserted here to bolster replacement theology; it is a fallacy that has neither Aramaic nor Greek language support.

25 See Gentiles and Ger Toshav in Appendix.

26 Rav Shaul and Daniel both had a habit of praying and worshipping while on their knees (see Daniel 6:10).

27 The family is named after the Father whose Name is YHWH; the firstborn son of YHWH is Y'shua, "YHWH Saves".

Chapter 4

1. I therefore, a prisoner in our Master (Y'shua), beg of you that you walk as it becomes the calling by which you are called, 2. With all lowliness of mind and quietness and long suffering; and that you be forbearing one towards another in love. 3. And be earnest to keep the unity of the Spirit in a bond of peace; 4. So that you may become one body and one Spirit; even as you are called to the one Hope of your calling. 5. There is one Master YHWH, one Faith and one immersion. 6. One Elohim, Father of all, Who is above all and through all and in all of us. 7. But to every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Mashiyach.<sup>28</sup> 8. Therefore it is said: "He ascended on high and carried captivity away, and gave gifts to men."<sup>29</sup> 9. Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also previously descended deep into the heart of the earth? 10. He who descended is also the same that ascended up, high above all the heavens, that he might fulfill all things. 11. And he gave some Shlichim;<sup>30</sup> and some, prophets;<sup>31</sup> and some, preachers;<sup>32</sup> and some, shepherds<sup>33</sup> and teachers.<sup>34</sup> 12. For perfecting<sup>35</sup> the Set Apart believers for the work of the ministry, for the edification of the body of the Mashiyach; 13. Until we all become one and the same, in faith<sup>36</sup> and in the knowledge of the Son of Elohim, and one complete man according to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Mashiyach: 14. And that we might not be children uprooted and turned about by every direction of wind by the wrong doctrines of men who plot to seduce by their cunning; 15. But that we might be established in our love; and that everything in us might progress in the Mashiyach who is the head: 16. And from him (it is) the whole body is framed together and strongly melded by all the connecting points, according to the gift that is delivered by measure to each member for the growth of the body; that his structure may be perfected in love. 17. And this I say and testify by Master YHWH, that from now on you do not walk<sup>37</sup> as the other Gentiles who walk in the vanity of their mind: 18. And they are dark in their understandings and are alienated from the life of Elohim because there is not in them knowledge; and because of the blindness of their heart 19. They have cut off their hope and have given themselves over to lust and to the practice of all uncleanness in their greed. 20. But you have not learned this from the Mashiyach; 21. If you have truly heard him, and by him have learned as the truth is in Y'shua.

28 We have seen elsewhere how later "pro-Trinity" statements crept into the Western record. Here is an example of the opposite trending in original Scripture. "One Elohim, who is Father of all" is about as strong a declaration in this area as one can find in Scripture. Please see Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions #16: Echad as Plurality in Appendix.

29 Khabouris has an isolated samekh here, between the words "give" and "gift."

30 These Five "offices" relate to the Five Books of Moshe (Torah) and also the Five annual Moedim (Appointed Times) (Feasts) of YHWH: 1) Moshe was YHWH's "sent one" (Shaliach/Apostle) who received instruction for Pesach (first annual Feast): 2) Torah was given on Shavuot (second annual Feast), on the same Moed when the Ruach haKodesh was poured out, as a "spokesman" (prophesying) of the Kingdom: 3) The Trumpet of Yom Teruah (third annual Feast) "calls out" (preaches) for everyone to come and enter in: 4) The Day of Atonement (fourth annual Feast) provides spiritual "nurturing" (shepherding): 5) Succoth (fifth annual Feast) is a time for "teaching" and learning about Torah.

31 Prophets (Neviim) of YHWH, are His spokesmen. YHWH also sends false prophets according to D'varim/Deuteronomy 13 to test and prove His people so they can learn to distinguish whether a prophet is true or false.

32 Murdock affixes "evangelists" here for the word sevartha (Good News). However, in this letter Rav Shaul makes a distinction by using the Greek loan word awangelion to denote, "Good News." This passage, though, employs the root sebar and one of its meanings, "to preach." Therefore, "preachers" is the better reading, although many "preachers" may refer to themselves as "evangelists."

33 Murdock chose "pastors" where it is better translated as "shepherds" who, by Torah definition, are they who nurture the flock. Both pastors or shepherds come from the Hebrew root word ra'ah (to feed). Although these are generally in leadership roles, this is certainly not a prerequisite to preach. Many proclaim the truth of Torah and Mashiyach without requiring "official" authority over others.

34 Unlike rabbi, the word malpana designates an informal teacher, or wise orator, outside of the official academic system of Israel. Y'shua was addressed by both terms, even by opponents.

35 The word for perfection "Gemara" implies that perfection also comes about by learning from the example and teaching of those within the Malchut Elohim as a Kedoshim (Set Apart People). About two centuries later the oral law, or Talmud, was substantially compiled, with additions being made over succeeding centuries; the first part is called the Mishnah (repetition), the second part Gemara.

36 One and the same in faith is the "new spiritual man" of humility, honor and a circumcised heart who walks in obedience to YHWH's Word (Torah) according to Mashiyach. The religious or carnal mind seeks doctrinal and theological compliance, toleration, relativism and may cerebrally agree to disagree with their opponent. However the spiritual man focuses on YHWH and in so doing comes into harmony with those who also belong to Him.

37 Khabouris has an isolated beyt here.

22. But (you have learned) that you should lay aside your former practices the old man that is corrupted with the lusts of error; 23. And should be renewed in the spirit of your minds; 24. And should put on the new man that is created by Elohim in righteousness and in the separateness of truth. 25. Therefore, put away from lying and speak the truth each with his neighbor; for we are members one of another. 26. Be angry, but do not sin. Do not let the sun go down upon your wrath. 27. And give no place to the Accuser.<sup>38</sup> 28. And let him that stole, steal no more; but let him labor with his hands and do good acts that he may have to give to him who needs. 29. Let no hateful language come from your mouth, but that which is beautiful and useful for edification that it may convey grace to those who hear. 30. And do not grieve the Ruach haKodesh of Elohim,<sup>39</sup> whereby you are sealed for the day of redemption. 31. Let all bitterness and anger and wrath and clamoring and reviling be taken from you along with all malice: 32. And be affectionate towards one another and sympathetic; and forgive one another as Elohim by the Mashiyach has forgiven us.

Chapter 5

1. Be therefore imitators of Elohim as beloved children: 2. And walk in love; as the Mashiyach also has loved us and has given up himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice<sup>40</sup> to Elohim, for a sweet aroma. 3. But sexual sin and all impurity and greed, do not let them be at all heard from among you, as such (denials) are not becoming of the Set Apart believers; 4. Neither obscenities nor words of foolishness, or of division, or of falsehood, which are not useful; but instead of these, thanksgiving.<sup>41</sup> 5. For you know this: That every man who is a sexual sinner, or impure, or greedy, or a worshipper of idols has no inheritance in the Kingdom of the Mashiyach and of Elohim. 6. Let no man deceive you with desolate words; for it is on account of these things that the wrath of Elohim comes on the children of disobedience. 7. Therefore don't be like them. 8. For you were up to now darkness, but now are light in our Master. Therefore, as the children of light, walk you that way. 9. For the fruits of the light are in all goodness and righteousness and truth. 10. And search out what is beautiful before our Master (Y'shua): 11. And have no commerce with the works of darkness which are unfruitful, but reject them. 12. For the things they do in secret, it is sickening even to mention. 13. For all things are exposed and made manifest by the light: and all things that are revealed, are light. 14. Therefore it is said: "Awake you who are asleep and arise from the dead, and the Mashiyach will illuminate you." 15. See therefore, that you walk with spiritual knowledge; not like the simple, 16. But like the wise who purchase their opportunity; because the days are evil. 17. Therefore, do not lack in understanding, but understand what is the will of Elohim.

<sup>40</sup> Offerings "qurbana" and sacrifices "dabekha" are two different entities. Although there are certain aspects to Mashiyach's death that are utterly unique to him (Zechariah 12:10, etc.), his death nevertheless echoes aspects of offerings and sacrifices that came before. The qurbana is the human life (nefesh) that Y'shua voluntarily offers up on the stake. The result of that offering is his blood put out on the "altar"; hence dabekha. However, this is certainly not, as some critics suggest, human sacrifice. Rather, this indicates Y'shua's status as Mashiyach ben Yoseph. Per strict accordance with Isaiah 53 and Genesis 22:8, Mashiyach ben Yoseph was required to suffer and die. After his death, the offering of himself became a sacrifice that was taken up, and he was resurrected three days later. Many of YHWH's prophets also suffered and were martyred at the hands of those who fought against the Malchut Elohim. In the case of Mashiyach, his shed blood is counted as the acceptable sacrifice, the Lamb of YHWH, which is most Set Apart unto YHWH.

<sup>41</sup> The literal reading Murdock gives here is excellent. The word "todita" is derived from the same root as todah, and even in Hebrew today we say "todah rabba" or "thank you very much".

18. And don't be drunk with wine in which is rebellion; but be filled with the Spirit. 19. And converse with yourselves in psalms and hymns; and with your hearts sing to Master YHWH in spiritual songs. 20. And give thanks to Elohim the Father at all times for all men in the name of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 21. And be submissive one to another in the love of the Mashiyach. 22. Wives, be submissive to your husbands as to our Master (Y'shua). 23. Because the husband is the head of the wife, even as the Mashiyach is the head of the assembly; and he is the reviver of the body. 24. And as the assembly is subject to the Mashiyach, so also let wives be to their husbands in all things. 25. Husbands, love your wives, even as the Mashiyach loved his assembly and delivered himself up for it;<sup>42</sup> 26. That he might sanctify it and cleanse it by the washing of water and by the Word;<sup>43</sup> 27. And might constitute it a glorious assembly for himself;<sup>44</sup> in which is no stain and no wrinkle and nothing like them; but that it might be Set Apart and without blemish. 28. It is fitting for men so to love their wives as (they do) their own bodies. For he that loves his wife loves himself.<sup>45</sup> 29. For no one ever hated his own body; but nourishes it and provides for it, even as the Mashiyach (did for) the assembly. 30. For we are members of his body and of his flesh and of his bones. 31. For this reason, a man<sup>46</sup> should leave his father and his mother and cling to his wife; and the two should be one flesh.<sup>47</sup> 32. This is a great mystery; but I am speaking of the Mashiyach and of his assembly. 33. Nevertheless, let each of you greatly so love his wife, even as himself: and let the wife revere her husband.

Chapter 6

1. Children, obey your parents in our Master (Y'shua); for this is right. 2. And the first Commandment with promise is this: "Honor your father and your mother,"<sup>48</sup> 3. That it may go beautifully<sup>49</sup> for you and that your life may be prolonged on the earth." 4. And parents, anger not your children; but train them up in the discipline and doctrine of our Master (Y'shua). 5. Servants, be obedient to your masters after the flesh, with fear and with trembling and with simplicity<sup>50</sup> of heart, as to the Mashiyach. 6. Not in the sight of the eye, as if you were pleasing men; but as the servants of the Mashiyach who are doing the will of Elohim. 7. And serve them with your whole heart, in love, as if serving our Master (Y'shua) and not men; 8. Knowing that whatever good thing a man may do, the same will be recompensed to him by our Master, whether he be a servant or a free man. 9. Also masters,<sup>51</sup> do so to your servants. Forgive them a fault; because you know that you have One (Master) in Heaven; and there is no respect of persons with Him.<sup>52</sup>

42 Husbands are being called upon to go to great lengths of self-sacrifice, protecting their spouses and fighting against the spiritual forces that try to destroy their marriages. Men must fight with zeal just as Y'shua demonstrated for us when he laid down his life for our sakes. Women must fight to also protect their husbands, family and homes. When a husband and wife humble themselves and come together in spiritual unity, nothing can defeat their marriage or family.

43 Word or Manifestation, as described in John 1:1-14.

44 These verses are twisted by Christian theologians to dish out a "limited atonement" theology that only Christians "get saved." What they willfully forget is that Mashiyach's suffering established atonement for all YHWH's people, from the time of Adam, millennia before "Christians" even existed. And that the original Netzarim faith, which is spurned by the Church is being referenced; certainly not "modernized" Christianity. If Paul were to witness the rampant paganism in the modern Church, he would never endorse it or be part of it. Mashiyach Y'shua says to all who break Torah, "I never knew you, depart from me ye workers of iniquity." The "glorious assembly" Mashiyach suffered for are they who live for and in Mashiyach, are sanctified by the Word of YHWH and whose love for YHWH and each other is based in Torah rather than the doctrines of men.

45 Or, his soul.

46 Rav Shaul apparently favors gowra rather than anash when speaking of men or husbands in this Epistle. Every place gowra is used seems to tap into the protector-male aspect rather than generic maleness or just being a husband. It appears as Rav Shaul is doubly emphasizing the responsibility of men to provide for their house, wife and family.

47 See Genesis 2:24.

48 The 5th commandment is the first one to have a promise attached, "that your days may be long in the land YHWH your Elohim is giving you". However, all of Torah is attached to YHWH's Covenant promises of prosperity and peace: "But the word is very close unto you, in your mouth, and in your heart, that you may do it. See, I have set before you this day life and good, and death and evil, in that I command you this day to love YHWH your Elohim, to walk in His ways, and to keep 49 In this near quotation of Deuteronomy 5:14, the Hebrew word yatab means both to do well and to do beautifully. But in both Hebrew and Aramaic shapir/shapira means beautiful and is a good choice for use in the Aramaic NT. The sense of doing well being compared to spiritual beauty is one of the oldest idioms in the Semitic Scriptures.

50 Here the word “peshitta” is used, meaning “simple” but also “straight” or “true.”

51 This occurrence of a word spelled meem-reshe-yodh-alap is in the plural by virtue of the verbs around it, and is a conjugation of mar in the second person plural. It is not to be confused with MarYah, spelled the same but always in the singular, which is Aramaic for “Master YHWH.” See MarYah in Appendix.

52 2 Sam 14:14; 2 Chr 19:7.

10. Finally, my Brothers, be strong in our Master (Y'shua), and in the energy of his power: 11. And put on the whole armor of Elohim so that you may be able to stand against the strategies<sup>53</sup> of the Accuser. 12. For our conflict is not with flesh and blood but with principalities and with those in authority, and with the possessors of this dark world, and with the evil spirits that are under<sup>54</sup> heaven. 13. Therefore put on the whole armor of Elohim that you may be able to meet the evil (one); and, being in all respects prepared, may stand firm. 14. Stand up therefore, and gird your loins with truth; and put on the breastplate of righteousness; 15. And defend your feet<sup>55</sup> with the preparation of the Good News of peace.<sup>56</sup> 16. And now take to you the confidence of faith by which you will have power to quench all the fiery darts of the evil (one). 17. And put on the helmet of salvation; and take hold of the sword of the Spirit which is the Word of Elohim.<sup>57</sup> 18. And pray, with all prayers and supplications, in spirit, at all times: and in prayer be watchful at all seasons, praying constantly and interceding for all the Set Apart believers: 19. And also for me; that language may be given me, in the opening of my mouth; so that I may boldly preach the mystery<sup>58</sup> of the Good News 20. Of which I am a messenger in chains; that I may utter it boldly, as I should utter it. 21. And that you also may know my affairs and what I am doing, lo, Tychicus, a beloved brother and a faithful minister in our Master (Y'shua), will inform you;<sup>59</sup> 22. Whom I have sent to you for this purpose that you might know what is (going on) with me, and that your hearts may be comforted. 23. Peace be with the Brothers, and love with faith from Elohim the Father, and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 24. Grace be with all them who love our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach without falseness. Amen.

End of the Letter to the Ephesians which was written from Rome, and was sent by the hand of Tychicus

53 A clear wordplay between zaina (armor) and tzenta (strategies). See Spiritual Armor in Appendix.

54 "Under" as in also "subject to heaven" or "ruled by heaven"; not just physically below heaven.

55 Or legs which, given the fact that protective armor is being spoken, is also a possible reading.

56 The Aramaic word for truth, "qoshta" (John 17:19) has a common synonym, shrara. Consider that: shrara = truth shrina = breastplate. Next we have tzedekaya (righteousness) to consider. This word has a very interesting synonym in the form of qadishta: qoshta = truth qadishta = set-apart. Paul is clearly making word choices that speak to a deeper message that is very well established in Hebrew tradition: "He will cover you with His pinions, and under His wings shalt thou take refuge; His truth is a shield and buckler" (Psalm 91:4 1955 JPS). And most remarkably: "And he put on righteousness (tzedekah) like a coat of mail (or "breastplate"-- shiryone). And a helmet of salvation (kova d'yeshoowa) upon his head. And he put on the garments of vengeance for his clothing, and he was clad in zeal as a cloak" (Isaiah 59:17 1955 JPS). See Spiritual Armor in Appendix.

Here is how the Hebrew Tanakh and the Aramaic Renewed Covenant match up in word choices and terminology: Shiryone/Breastplate (Isaiah) Shrina/Breastplate (Paul) Tzedekah/Righteousness (Isaiah) Tzedekaya/Righteousness (Paul). With very minor dialectical differences aside, these are the exact same words! An interesting departure is with this term: Kova d'yeshoowa/Helmet of Salvation (Isaiah) Sonorta d' porqana/Helmet of Salvation (Paul). Paul does this for two very special reasons. First, kova (helmet) is a Hebrew exclusive word that has no direct cognate in Aramaic. Paul therefore substitutes the more familiar sonorta where helmet appears in the Renewed Covenant; 1 Thessalonians 5:8 is the other verse where this is found. The second reason, however, holds the most powerful connection: Yeshoowa (Isaiah) = Y'shua HaMashiyach (Renewed Covenant) Porqana (Isaiah) = Paroqa (Aramaic for "The Savior" - Renewed Covenant).

Rav Shaul is very well aware that the verse in the Tanakh he alludes to contains the name Y'shua, and Aramaic equivalents he uses in Ephesians contain Y'shua's Title. Given these connections, no reasonable person would believe that these Aramaic and Hebrew patterns arrived here by accident. Rav Shaul is clearly using Semitic poetry to its full potential to reveal HaMashiach.

57 Notice that there are two titles for Y'shua in this verse. The helmet of "salvation" is paroqa for that word which becomes Y'shua's title as "Savior" or "Life Giver". This is followed by the "Word of Elohim", a designation given him in Yochanan 1:1.

58 Here is a beautiful poetic phrase of akraz arza (preach mystery), a deliberate alliteration chosen by Paul for maximum impact on Aramaic readers beyond Ephesus whom he knew would catch this bit of cleverness.

59 Khabouris has an isolated taw-waw (spells the sound of the letter), between the words "you (plural)" and "Tychius." It is more likely a scribal error, a repetition of the first two letters of the next word.

LETTER TO THE PHILIPPIANS

Chapter 1

1. PAUL and Timothy, servants of Y'shua the Mashiyach, to all the Set Apart believers that are in Y'shua the Mashiyach at Philippi, with the elders and assembly servants: 2. Grace be with you, and peace from Elohim our Father and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 3. I thank my Elohim upon the continual remembrance of you 4. in all my prayers regarding you; and while I rejoice, I (also) pray; 5. on account of your fellowship in the Good News from the first day until now. 6. Because I am confident of this, that he who has begun the good works in you will accomplish them until the day of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 7. For thus it is right for me to think of you all because you are permanently in my heart, and because both in my bonds and in the vindication of the truth of the Good News you are my associates in grace. 8. For Elohim is my witness, how I love you in the mercies<sup>1</sup> of Y'shua the Mashiyach. 9. And this I pray for, that your love may still increase and abound in knowledge and in all spiritual understanding; 10. so that you may discern the things that are suitable, and may be pure and without offense in the day of the Mashiyach, 11. and be full of the fruits of righteousness which are by Y'shua the Mashiyach to the praise and glory of Elohim. 12. And I would that you might know, my Brothers, that the transaction in regard to me has happened rather for the furtherance of the Good News; 13. so that the reasons behind my confinement on account of the Mashiyach are plain to see in all the court, and to all others. 14. And many of the Brothers in our Master (Y'shua) have become confident on account of my bonds, and are bolder to speak the Word of Elohim without fear. 15. And they herald (it), some from envy and strife; but others with good will and with love for the Mashiyach; 16. because they know that I am appointed for the vindication of the Good News. 17. And they who herald the Mashiyach in strife do it not in a genuine manner; but they hope to add to the hardship of my bonds. 18. And in this I have rejoiced, and do rejoice that in every form, whether in pretence or in truth, the Mashiyach is heralded. 19. For I know, that these things will be found helpful to my life through your prayers and the gift of the Spirit of Y'shua the Mashiyach.<sup>2</sup> 20. So that I hope and expect that I will in nothing be put to shame; but with uncovered face as at all times, so now, the Mashiyach will be magnified in my body, whether by life or by death. 21. For my life is the Mashiyach; and if I die, it is gain to me. 22. But if I have fruits of my labors in this life of the flesh, I know not what I will choose. 23. For the two press upon me: I desire to be liberated that I may be with the Mashiyach; and this would be very advantageous to me. 24. But also the business in regard to you urges upon me to remain in the body. 25. And this I confidently know, that I will continue and remain for your joy and for the advancement of your faith; 26. so that when I come again to you your glorying, which is in Y'shua the Mashiyach only, will abound through me. 27. Let your conduct be as becoming to the Good News of the Mashiyach; so that if I come I may see you, and if absent I may hear of you; that you stand fast in one spirit and in one soul, and that you strive together in the Faith of the Good News.

1 The Aramaic word was mistranslated by Murdock as "bowels" when "mercies" is intended.

2 Khabouris has an isolated beyt here, between the words "your prayers" and "by the gift".

28. And don't be startled by those who rise up against us; (which is) an indication of their destruction and of life for you. 29. And this is given to you by Elohim that you not only really believe in the Mashiyach, but also that you suffer on his account; 30. and that you endure conflict, as you have seen in me and now hear concerning me.

Chapter 2

1. If, therefore, you have consolation in the Mashiyach or if a blending of hearts in love or if a fellowship of the Spirit, or if compassions and sympathies; 2. make my joy perfected by having one agreement and one love and one soul and one mind. 3. And do nothing in strife or in vain glory; but, with humbleness of mind, let each regard his neighbor as better than himself. 4. And let not each be anxious (only) for himself, but everyone also for his neighbor. 5. And think you so in yourselves, as Y'shua the Mashiyach also thought; 6. who, as he was in the likeness of Elohim, did not regard it sinful to be the coequal<sup>3</sup> of Elohim; 7. yet disinherited himself and assumed the likeness of a servant, and was in the likeness of men and was found in fashion as a man;<sup>4</sup> 8. and he humbled himself and became obedient to death, even the death of the stake. 9. Wherefore, also, Elohim has highly exalted him and given him a name<sup>5</sup> which is more excellent than all names; 10. that at the name of Y'shua every knee should bow, of (beings) in heaven and on earth and under the earth; 11. and that every tongue should confess that Master YHWH is Y'shua Mashiyach<sup>6</sup> to the glory of Elohim his Father. 12. Therefore, my beloved, as you have at all times obeyed, not only when I was near to you but now when I am far from you, push through the work of your life more abundantly, with fear and with trembling. 13. For Elohim is operating in you, both to purpose and also to perform that which you desire. 14. Do all things without arguing and without conflict; 15. that you may be perfect and without blemish, as the sincere children of Elohim who are resident in a perverse and crooked generation; and that you may appear among them as shining lights in the world; 16. so that you may be to them a place of salvation.<sup>7</sup> For my glory in the day of the Mashiyach that I may not have run in vain or worked for nothing, 17. Yet if even my blood should be made qorban (offering) upon the sacrifice and service of your faith, I rejoice ecstatically with you all. 18. And so also do you rejoice in ecstasy with me. 19. But I hope in our Master Y'shua that I will shortly send Timothy to you, so that I also may have composure when informed concerning you. 20. For I have no other one here who, like myself, will sincerely care for your welfare. 21. For they all seek their own, not the (things) of Y'shua the Mashiyach. 22. But you know the proof of him, that as a son with his father, so he labored with me in the Good News. 23. Him I hope shortly to send to you when I will have seen how (things result) with me. 24. And I trust in my Master (Y'shua) that I will shortly come myself to you.

3 For a comparative analysis of the Greek translation and Tanakh insights see Coequal of Elohim in Appendix.

4 Khabouris reproduces the first four letters of the next word, and for the fifth letter, substitutes the kaph for a beyt, which are similar looking letters. The word reproduced is "and in the form of."

5 This addresses much more than his literal birth name "Y'shua" (a common Hebrew name then and now), and more than the perfect reputation that his name represents. Y'shua bears (reveals) the Name of YHWH, the "name above all names"! Y'shua has the Name and reputation of Father YHWH within him (John 17:11). Y'shua means "YHWH is Salvation" (Matthew 1:21), therefore the Will and Spirit of YHWH is manifest in Mashiyach Y'shua as the Arm of YHWH. "Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of YHWH; awake, as in the ancient days, in the generations of old. Are you not it that has cut Rahab, and wounded the dragon?" (Isaiah 51:9) "Who has believed our report? and to whom is the arm of YHWH revealed? For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he has no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him" (Isaiah 53:1, 2). See also Yochanan 12:37-41.

6 Please see Alef Tav; Divinity Passages; YHWH is Y'shua Mashiyach, in Appendix.

7 The word here chaya technically means "life" because the Aramaic concept of salvation is to call a Savior "he who gives (eternal) life", which is the meaning of the word paroqa, literally "Life Giver."

25. But now, a circumstance urged me to send to you Epaphroditus, the brother who is an assistant and laborer with me, but is your apostle and minister to my wants. 26. For he longed to see you all, and was anxious because he knew you had heard that he was sick. 27. And indeed he was sick, near to death: but Elohim had mercy on him. Nor was it on him only, but also on me that I might not have trouble upon trouble. 28. Promptly, therefore, have I sent him to you; so that when you see him you may again be joyful, and I may have a little breathing. 29. Receive him then in Master YHWH with all joy; and hold in honor those who are such. 30. For, because of the Mashiyach's work, he came near to death and little regarded his life that he might fulfill what you lacked in the ministration to me.

Chapter 3

1. Finally, my Brothers, rejoice in our Master (Y'shua). To write these (things) again and again to you is not bothersome to me because they make you more careful. 2. Beware of dogs; beware of evil doers; beware of the circumcised in flesh (alone). 3. For we are the (real) circumcision who worship Elohim in spirit and glory in Y'shua the Mashiyach, and place no reliance on the flesh,<sup>8</sup> 4. And though I might place reliance on the flesh. For, if any one thinks that his reliance should be on the flesh, I might (do so) more than he. 5. Circumcised when eight days old; of the stock of Israel; of the tribe of Benjamin; a Hebrew, descendant of Hebrews; as to Torah, a Pharisee; 6. as to zeal, a persecutor of the assembly (of Messianic believers); and as to the righteousness of the (Oral) Torah,<sup>9</sup> I was without fault. 7. But these things which had been my mastery, I have accounted a detriment because of the Mashiyach. 8. And now also I account them all a detriment, because of the superiority of the knowledge of Y'shua the Mashiyach my Master; for the sake of whom I have parted with all things and have accounted (them) as dung that I might gain the Mashiyach<sup>10</sup> 9. and be found in him; since my righteousness is not from (Oral) Torah, <sup>11</sup>but that which is from faith in the Mashiyach, that is, the righteousness which is from Elohim; 10. that thereby I might know Y'shua and the power of his resurrection; and might participate in his sufferings and be assimilated to his death: 11. if so be, I may attain to the resurrection from the dead. 12. Not as though I had already taken (the prize), or were already complete; but I run (in the race), if so I may take that for which Y'shua the Mashiyach took me. 13. My Brothers, I do not consider myself as having taken (it). But one thing I know, that I forget the things behind me and reach for the things before me; 14. and I run straight for the goal that I may obtain the reward of victory of the call of Elohim from on high, by Y'shua the Mashiyach. 15. Therefore let those who are perfect have these views; and if you differently view anything Elohim will reveal that also to you. 16. Nevertheless, that we may attain to this: let us proceed on in one path and with one consent.

8 Torah teaches that we must not rely on our flesh (for dust you are, and to dust shall you return), but that we obey our Father YHWH as His children. We are the real circumcision if we obey YHWH and do His will. Circumcision counts for nothing if we are unwilling to turn to YHWH's instructions and follow in the steps of His Mashiyach (Jeremiah 9). Rav Shaul repeatedly teaches that circumcision of the heart must come first; circumcision of the flesh can never begin to substitute the perfect work of the Ruach haKodesh.

9 By including Pharisaic tutelage, Rav Shaul is specifically referencing the "Oral Law" in which he was without fault. Y'shua rebuked the Pharisees (contrary to popular Christian opinion), not for keeping the Torah of Moshe, but for superseding Torah with their traditions (Matthew 15:1-20). Y'shua clearly advocates Torah observance (Matthew 5:17-20). Rav Shaul never referred to the Torah of YHWH as anything detrimental to Faith (Romans 3:31, 7:12). Rav Shaul quotes extensively from Torah – indeed, from all the Tanakh – to uphold every teaching he puts forth! There is nothing Paul upholds which is not based in the Torah of YHWH, so those who preach Paul must not be unbelievers, but also follow what Paul taught, which is the Torah of YHWH, not the traditions of men.

10 Because Rav Shaul knew that the halakha (way to walk) of Y'shua was superior to that of the Pharisees. It was not that Y'shua abandoned Torah, Elohim forbid! But that Y'shua understood, clarified and revealed Torah far better than any other teacher that Rav Shaul knew, and Paul associated with the greatest souls within Judaism! (Luke 24:44-45) Sadly, many have never even been able to enter into the discussion as it pertains to Y'shua, Paul and Torah, as they've been led to believe by false religion that Paul was anti-Torah!

11 As in the footnote in verse 6, Paul is talking about his former life under rabbinical traditions (see Galatians 1:14); hence, this is Oral Torah in contradistinction to faith in Mashiyach. Y'shua never contradicted the Written Torah of Moshe and said so on many occasions. When the Apostle Paul says, "I have parted with all things and have accounted (them) as dung" he is talking about parting with material things and religiosity. In his writings he honors, "sons of Israel to whom belonged the adoption of sons, and the glory, and the covenants, and Torah, and the ministration, and the promises, and the fathers; And from among whom Mashiyach appeared in the flesh," (Romans 9:4). However he distinguishes between righteousness (justification) of men that comes through following a religion (any religion) versus righteousness which is from Elohim.

17. Be like me, my Brothers; and contemplate them who walk after the pattern you have seen in us. 18. For there are many who walk otherwise; of whom I have often told you, and I now tell you with weeping that they are adversaries of the stake of the Mashiyach; 19. whose end is destruction; whose Elohim is their belly and their glory their shame; whose thoughts are on things of the earth. 20. But our concern is with heaven and from thence we expect our Life Giver, our Master, Y'shua the Mashiyach 21. who will change the body of our abasement, that it may have the likeness of the body of his glory according to his great power, whereby all things are made subject to him.

Chapter 4

1. From now on, my beloved and dear Brothers, my joy and my crown! Stand fast in our Master (Y'shua), my beloved! 2. I plead with Euodias and Syntyche that they be of one mind in our Master (Y'shua). 3. I also plead with you, my true burden bearers, that you assist those women who worked hard with me in the Good News; together with Clement<sup>12</sup> and with the rest of my helpers whose names are written in the book of life. 4. Rejoice you in our Master (Y'shua) at all times; and again I say: Rejoice! 5. Let your humility be recognized among all men. Our Master (Y'shua) is near. 6. Be anxious for nothing; but at all times, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, make known your requests before Elohim. 7. And the peace of Elohim which surpasses all knowledge will keep your hearts and your minds, through Y'shua the Mashiyach. 8. Finally, my Brothers, what things are true, and what things are honest, and what things are just, and what things are pure, and what things are beautiful, and what things are honorable in reporting, and deeds of praise and virtuousness; on these your thoughts should focus. 9. What things you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, these do you: and the Elohim of peace will be with you.<sup>13</sup> 10. And I rejoice greatly in our Master (Y'shua), that you have (again) commenced caring for me; even as you had before cared (for me), but you had not the opportunity. 11. Yet I say this, not because I was in need; for I have learned to make that satisfy me which I have. 12. I know how to be depressed, and I also know how to abound in everything; and in all things am I exercised, both in prosperity and in famine, in abundance and in poverty. 13. I find strength for everything in the Mashiyach who strengthens me. 14. Yet you have done well in that you communicated to my essential needs.

12 No valid historical connection exists between the Clement mentioned here and the "Clement of Alexandria" or the "Clement of Rome"; the church writings attributed to "Clement" are spurious.

13 The poetic beauty in these verses abounds:

mekiyl akhay ayleyn d'Sharyan w'Ayleyn d'Nakhpan

Therefore, my brothers, those things which are true and those things which are honest

w'Ayleyn d'Khanan w'Ayleyn d'Dakhyan w'Ayleyn d'R'khiyman

...and those things which are just, and those things which are pure, and those things which are lovely...

w'Ayleyn d'Shwiykhan w'Ayleyn

...and those things which are praiseworthy and those...

ewda d'Showkha w'd'Qolasa haleyn athreo

...deeds/works of praise and of good report, think on these things.

(Philippians 4:8 Larry Kelsey transliteration and translation.)

These patterns of similar ending sounds are reminiscent of "the Master's Prayer" – Matthew 6:10, nith qudash shmakh, tey tey malkuthakh, neh-wey tzevyanakh. For example the "Master's Prayer" also has concordances in the length of diction of a given line, just as this poetry in Philippians. Other rhyming patterns are far less subtle, such as the toggling rhyme of w'Ayleyn d'Shwiykhan w'Ayleyn.

The rhyme continues for the next two lines:

But I rejoiced in our Master greatly, that you have continued to care for me, just as you have always cared, even though you yourselves have not had (what was) sufficient" (Philippians 4:9-10 Lamsa). Notice the four words in verse 9 with "ton" endings in a row and a "khon" suffix at the very end, achieving yet another sonic poetic effect. And finally, verse 11 also has wonderful play on sounds by ending with yatspiyn hoyton ala la sphiqiyn hoyton.

15. And you know also, Philippians, that in the beginning of the Good News, when I left Macedonia, not one of the assemblies communicated with me in respect to receiving and giving, except you only; 16. that also at Thessalonica once and again you sent me relief. 17. Not that I desire a gift; but I wish fruits may multiply to you. 18. I have (now) received all and I abound and am full: and I accepted all that you sent to me by Epaphroditus, a sweet aroma and an acceptable sacrifice that pleases Elohim. 19. And may Elohim supply all your necessity according to his riches, in the glory of Y'shua the Mashiyach. 20. And to Elohim our Father be glory and honor forever and ever. Amen. 21. Pray for the peace of the Set Apart ones who are in Y'shua the Mashiyach. The Brothers who are with me send peace to you. 22. All the Set Apart believers send peace to you, especially those of Caesar's household. 23. The grace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach be with you all. Amen.

End of the Letter to the Philippians which was written from Rome, and sent by the hand of Epaphroditus

Chapter 1

1. PAUL, an apostle of Y'shua the Mashiyach by the will of Elohim, and Timothy a brother, 2. to them who are at Colosse, the Brothers, Set Apart and believing in Y'shua the Mashiyach: peace be with you, and grace from Elohim our Father. 3. We give thanks to Elohim, the Father of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, at all times, and pray for you; 4. For behold, ever since we heard of your faith in Y'shua the Mashiyach, and of your love to all the Set Apart believers; 5. because of the hope that is laid up for you in heaven of which you heard before in the Word of Truth of the Good News 6. which is announced to you as also to all the world; and which grows and yields fruits as it does also among you from the day you heard and knew the grace of Elohim in reality:<sup>1</sup> 7. As you learned from Epaphras, our beloved fellow-servant who is for you a faithful minister of the Mashiyach; 8. and who has made known to us your love in the Spirit. 9. Therefore we also, from the day we heard (of it), have not ceased to pray for you; and to ask that you may be filled with a knowledge of the will of Elohim in all wisdom and in all spiritual understanding;<sup>2</sup> 10. That you may walk as is right and may please Elohim with all good works, and may yield fruits, and grow in the knowledge of Elohim; 11. and may be strengthened with all strength, according to the greatness of his glory in all patience and long suffering; 12. and may, with joy, give thanks to Elohim the Father who has fitted us for a portion of the inheritance of the Set Apart believers in light; 13. and has rescued us from the dominion of darkness and transferred us to the Kingdom of his beloved Son 14. by whom we have redemption and forgiveness of sins: 15. who is the likeness of the invisible Elohim and the first-born of all creatures: 16. and by him was created everything that is in heaven and on earth, all that is visible and all that is invisible, whether thrones or dominions or principalities or powers; everything was through him and was created by<sup>3</sup> him: 17. and he was prior to all, and by him every thing exists. 18. And he is the head of the body the Assembly; as he is the head and first-born from among the dead, that he might be the first in all things. 19. For it pleased (the Father) that in him all fullness should dwell; 20. and by him, to reconcile all things to himself; and through him he has pacified, with the blood of his stake, both (those) on earth and those in heaven.<sup>4</sup> 21. And also to you, who were before alienated and enemies in your minds because of your evil deeds,

1 This verse showcases two deep poetic features. First, another meaning of sebar is in an implied wordplay with the word keroz (preach). Interestingly enough, "preach" is also a synonym for sebartha (Good News)! In fact, the Eastern traditions have always referred to the Good News as karazuta, or "the preaching" of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. Second, there is the use of the word alma. Generally, this word is translated as "world." However, alma also has another meaning, that of "age" or "eternity" and this speaks to a very Jewish pattern of describing the "the world to come" the olam haba. In this case, most Jews knew all too well that there was a wordplay between alam (world) and ahlam (forever), and so apparently did the student of Hillel's grandson, Rav Shaul, the Apostle Paul. Therefore Paul's point, which is completely lost in Greek, is that what is being preached throughout the world is the true revelation of Elohim from eternity past. The irony is that Greek has a term that comes very close to this understanding, yet it was not used. In Matthew 28:20 Y'shua says, "And behold I am always with you, even unto the end of the aion." This word also has a dual meaning of "world" and "age" and this is more than reflected in the varying English translations from that source, where the rendering is effectively split between the two. However, in this case the dual meaning of alma is not used by Greek redactors, who instead opt for the meaning that kosmos provides. Kosmos can also mean "world" or "universe" but its definitions do not extend to mean "age" like aion does. Much more about the revelatory (mystical) aspects of Colossians is available in Ruach Qadim by Andrew Gabriel Roth, which is available online at www.ruachqadim.com.

2 Recall that the first attribute (sefira) – Keter – literally means "crown" but is also given the added title of "will." Paul's usage here, however, with the word tzebinah, is most significant because he is both referencing and superseding the mystical traditions in one stroke. This is because it is this exact same word that Y'shua uses to describe the Divine Will in the Master's Prayer; so here Paul is substituting that term for Keter, even as many mystics interchange the Hebrew da'at with Keter. If this were not yet powerful enough, da'at also finds its own interchanging with Paul's revelatory writings in the form of its Aramaic cognate yadata. In the case of the latter, what proceeds from the Divine Will is "knowledge" (da'at/yadata); this form is considered pure, coming straight from the mind of YHWH. Another way of accomplishing this same goal can be achieved by taking chokhmata and adding to it through description, a higher level of power that turns it into da'at/yadata.

3 The literal Aramaic reading is by him, whereas Greek and English texts have for him. Mashiych is the creative Word through which everything was made (Psalm 33:6, John 1:1-5, Hebrews 1:1-5). The common Aramaic idiom here and in John is “through his hands” meaning as the Word, Mashiych crafted all things according to YHWH’s blueprints. Mashiych Y’shua emerges as the Word from YHWH’s breath and command and, as such, was with Him in the beginning (John 17:1-11).

4 Here is one of the most stunning mystical parallels in all of Paul’s writings! Not only does Resha perform the exact same function of Keter by being the attribute (sefira) that has all the others inside of it (before they emerge), hence, “by whom the whole body is constructed”; but Resha dovetails with Keter in another amazing way. By “standing with the joints and members” Paul is showing a very clear understanding of the Sefirotic Tree forming the spiritual blueprint of man, or Adam Qadmon (Metatron). It is no coincidence, then, that this same title applies to Mashiych, whom Paul upholds as the maker of all things. However, as other attributes fold out of Keter, we find the lower but also important spheres of learning in terms of wisdom and understanding.

22. to you he has now given peace by the body of his flesh and by his death; that he might establish you in his presence, Set Apart, without blemish and without offense; 23. provided you continue in your faith, your foundation being firm, and do not be separated from the hope of the Good News of which you have heard, that it is proclaimed in all the creation beneath heaven; of which (Good News) I Paul am a minister. 24. And I rejoice in the sufferings which are for your sakes; and, in my flesh, I fill up the deficiency in the afflictions of the Mashiyach, in behalf of his body which is the assembly; 25. of which I am a minister, according to the stewardship<sup>5</sup> of Elohim which is given to me among you, that I should fulfill the Word of Elohim, 26. (namely), that mystery which was hidden for ages and generations, but is now revealed to his Set Apart believers; 27. to whom Elohim would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles which (mystery) is the Mashiyach who in you is the hope of our glory; 28. whom we proclaim and teach and make known to every man, in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect<sup>6</sup> in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 29. And for this also I toil and strive with the aid of the strength that is imparted to me.

1. And I wish you to know what a struggle I have for you, and for them of Laodicea and for the others who have not seen my face in the flesh; 2. that their hearts may be comforted and that they, by love, may come to all the riches of assurance, and to the understanding of the knowledge of the mystery<sup>7</sup> of Elohim the Father and of the Mashiyach, 3. in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and of knowledge. 4. And this I say, or else anyone should mislead you by the persuasiveness of words. 5. For though I am separated from you in the flesh, yet I am with you in spirit; and I rejoice at beholding your good order and the stability of your faith in the Mashiyach. 6. As therefore you have received Y'shua the Mashiyach our Master, walk you in him, 7. strengthening your roots and building up yourselves in him and establishing yourselves in the faith which you have learned in which may you abound in thanksgiving. 8. Beware, or else any man make you naked by philosophy and by vain deception, according to the doctrines of men, according to the rudiments of the world, and not according to the Mashiyach 9. in whom dwells all the fullness of Elohim bodily.<sup>8</sup> 10. And in him you are also complete because he is the head of all principalities and authorities. 11. And in him you have been circumcised with a circumcision without hands, by casting off the flesh of sins by a circumcision<sup>9</sup> of the Mashiyach. 12. And you have been buried with him by immersion; and by it you have risen with him while you believed in the power of Elohim who raised him from the dead. 13. And you who were dead in your sins and by the uncircumcision of your flesh, he has resurrected with him; and he has forgiven us all our sins:

5 The term "dispensation" was erroneously inserted to bolster "dispensationalism" or "replacement theology." The deception of "dispensationalism" plays an important role in the "mystery of the Evil One" (2 Thess. 2:7); by making void Torah it is impossible to exit paganism.

6 Noah was "perfect" B'resheet/Genesis 6:9; Avraham Avinu was "perfect" 17:1; All of Israel is called to be "perfect" D'varim/Deut 18:13; Solomon prayed that Israel would be "perfect" 1 Kings 8:61; Hezekiah walked before YHWH with a "perfect heart" 2 Kings 20:3; the men who upheld David as King had a "perfect heart" 1 Chron. 12:28; the Israel of Elohim in the time of Dawid had "perfect hearts" 1 Chron. 29:8; 9; 2 Chron. 16:9 "For the eyes of YHWH run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him; Job was "perfect" Job 2:3. Y'shua instructs his followers, "You therefore be perfect as your Father in heaven who is perfect" (Matthew 5:48). "The Torah of YHWH is perfect, converting the soul" (Psalm 19:7). Every perfect man in Scripture observed the Torah of YHWH, Y'shua and Paul included. The work of anti-Mashiyach is anti-Torah; therefore, "the Church" has a formidable task ahead: Christians will either repent of their shameful violations against Torah, or face the wrath of YHWH when His Mashiyach returns. Mashiyach's true followers don't spend their time finding creative "theologies" with which to break the Word of YHWH; all followers of Mashiyach are called in Grace to live righteous "perfect" lives that are pleasing to YHWH. This is the continuum that Mashiyach brought to humanity, but it is being trodden asunder by all manner of false religion and hierarchical "one-up-man-ship."

7 Apostle Paul often uses araza (mystery), the Aramaic cognate of the Hebrew “sod”, to reveal elements of the Kingdom of Heaven. In Psalm 89:7 the word “sod” hidden (or mystery) is used for “assembly” or “congregation” to denote the elect or Set Apart remnant people of YHWH: “Elohim is greatly to be feared in the sod (assembly) of the kadosh (Set Apart), and to be had in fear of all them that are about him.” Paul elucidates the struggle between the Kingdom of Heaven and what he refers to as “naked philosophy.”

8 The fullness of Elohim (Spirit) dwells within the physical body (flesh) of Mashiyach, but is not his physical body. Paul says, “Elohim sent his Son in the likeness of sinful flesh on account of sin; that He might, in his flesh, condemn sin;” (Romans 8:3). And, “flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of Heaven: neither does corruption inherit incorruption” (1 Cor 15:50).

9 See Circumcision in Appendix.

14. and, by his mandates, he blotted out the handwriting of our (sinful) debts<sup>10</sup> which (handwriting) existed against us, and took (it) from the midst and affixed (it) to his stake. 15. And, by yielding up his body, he showed contempt for principalities and authorities; and put them to shame, openly, in his own person. 16. Let no (pagan)<sup>11</sup> therefore judge you about food and drink, or about the distinctions of festivals and new moons and Shabbats 17. which were shadows of the things then future; but the body of Mashiyach.<sup>12</sup> 18. And let no one wish, by abasing the mind, to bring you under bonds that you subject yourselves to the worship of Messengers;<sup>13</sup> while he is prying into that which he has not seen and is vainly inflated in his fleshly mind 19. and holds not the head from which the whole body is framed and constructed with joints and members, and grows with the growth (given) of Elohim. 20. For if you are dead with the Mashiyach from the rudiments of the world, why are you judged as if you were living in the world? 21. But, you do not touch and you do not taste and you do not handle: 22. for these things perish in the using; and they are the commandments and doctrines of men. 23. And they seem to have a kind of wisdom in a show of humility and of the Fear of Elohim, and of not sparing the body; not in anything of excellence, but in things subservient to the body.

Chapter 3

1. If then you have risen with the Mashiyach, seek the things on high where the Mashiyach sits on the right hand of Elohim. 2. Think of things on high; not of the things on earth: 3. for you are dead; and your life is hidden with the Mashiyach in Elohim. 4. And when the Mashiyach who is our life will be manifested, then will you also be manifested with him in glory. 5. Make as dead therefore your members that are on the earth; sexual sin, impurity and the passions and evil desire, and insatiable desire for wealth which is idolatry.<sup>14</sup> 6. For on account of these (things) the wrath of Elohim comes on the deeds of disobedience. 7. And in these (things) you also formerly walked, when you lived in them.<sup>15</sup> 8. But now, put away from you all these: wrath, anger, malice, reviling, filthy talking; 9. and lie not one to another but put off the old man with all his practices; 10. and put you on the new (man) that is renewed in knowledge, after the likeness of his Creator;

10 The Aramaic word khab means both "sin" and "debt" and in this case both meanings are meant simultaneously. Also the Aramaic word shar means "handwriting" but specifically the kind of handwriting that is on a bill, which makes sense if you have debts. The end result of all this is that the certificate of debts/sins cannot be Torah. Instead it is the written second witness of our sins which would normally require penalties, but is nailed to the beam of the stake. YHWH requires that two witnesses come forward to execute a criminal. He even holds Himself to this standard if He is one of the witnesses. As a result, when Y'shua takes the certificate of our sins, he is in effect taking that required second witness out of the way. Without the written second witness, though we sin, we cannot be destroyed for that sin, and can then approach our Heavenly Father YHWH for the gift of eternal life. (Matt 6:12 some Greek texts read "forgive our debts" and others "forgive our offenses.")

11 The Body of Mashiyach must not be concerned with the judgments of those who are outside the Malchut Elohim, that is, those who don't know Torah or Mashiyach. It is clear, given the location of this audience and the fact that Rav Shaul always references Jews directly, that Shaul is addressing the local talk of the pagans whose religion dominates this region.

12 Compare this with Colossians 1:24. Paul is stating that the "Body of Mashiyach" determines how to observe Torah, including Kashrut, Shabbats, Moedim and Rosh Chodeshim; therefore, don't let lawless pagans judge you; they have their own religious customs and way of doing things. For example, many choose to attend "religious" meetings on Sun-Day, and they have sunrise services on Ishtar (Easter), then for December 25th they put up a Tammuz (Christmas) tree that commemorates the rebirth of the Babylonian deity Tammuz. And the gold and silver balls that Christians hang on their Christmas trees originally represented Tammuz' testicles, as he was renowned for "pleasing the ladies." Most Christians know full well that Y'shua was not born on December 25th, but the pagan celebrations have become such entrenched traditional rituals that truth has become an embarrassing inconvenience. See Christmas in Appendix. In other words, don't let family, friends, pastors, or co-workers judge you for observing truthful Torah festivals, because their motive is for you to return to the pagan substitutes they themselves prefer. The Church today is following in the idolatrous footsteps of ancient and modern Israel according to Ezekiel 8:14 and Jeremiah 10 and 17. The vast majority of Christians twist this verse to teach that Shabbat and the Feasts of YHWH "were fulfilled by Christ and are no longer necessary" which completely contradicts what Rav Shaul taught – that YHWH's Feasts are a shadow of things to come; not to mention, they are rehearsals for the Bride of Mashiyach! What Mashiyach and Paul call "good," most Christians call evil; they even believe that their pagan based rituals are sanctified through a "Christian" label (see Isaiah 5:14-23).

13 See Messengers (Angels) in Appendix.

14 A very common Aramaic idiom. To “make as dead” is a way to apply physical imagery to abstract or emotional constructs, and the meaning is, of course, to eliminate the offending issue. Elsewhere, when Y’shua uses this metaphor it is often misunderstood as literal. For instance, just as making something dead can mean to get rid of it, so can other statements mean the same thing – i.e., “if your eye offends you pluck it out.” Just like here, the real intended meaning is “remove sinful visions from your mind as if you had no eyes and could not see”!

15 The reader will likely recall a magnificent wordplay from the Good News of Luke between “sons/children” and “deeds.” First, let us consider the Greek text, which after providing a list of transgressions states: “For which things sake the wrath of Elohim cometh on to the children of disobedience, in which ye also walked some time, when ye lived with them” (Colossians 3:6-7 KJV). Greek reads as the KJV renders it; however, Aramaic reads: “For on account of these (things), the wrath of Elohim comes on the deeds of disobedience. And in these (things) you also formerly walked, when you lived in them” (Verses 6, 7). Notice that verse 5 mentions evil deeds such as fornication and idolatry, and that concept matches perfectly with the next statement, that evil deeds are punished by Elohim. Similarly, verses 8-11 reveal another unsanctified list of anger, wrath, malice and blasphemy, so that the descriptions both before and after the above verse remain consistent throughout. Greek once again mistook bineh “deeds” for beneh “sons/children.” Aramaicists can determine the difference since, beyt-noon-yodh-heh can only mean her works/her offspring since the possessive suffix beyt-noon-yodh-heh is third-person feminine. Such a fact also reiterates the reason for the confusion found in Luke where the subject matched the gender of the object. In this case, the Greek redactor of Colossians confused the female construct for what is clearly a male subject (sons of disobedience). Alternatively, if the reading were his works/his offspring, it would have to be spelled beyt-noon-waw-heh-yodh. The heh-yodh suffix is third-person feminine singular, while the waw-heh-yodh is third-person masculine singular.

11. where there is neither Jew nor Aramean,<sup>16</sup> neither circumcision nor uncircumcision, neither Greek nor barbarian,<sup>17</sup> neither slave nor free; but the Mashiyach is all and in all. 12. Therefore, Set Apart and beloved, as the elect of Elohim, put on yourselves the compassions and tenderness, and graciousness and humbleness of mind, and gentleness and long suffering. 13. And be you generous towards one another and forgiving to one another: and if anyone has a complaint against his neighbor, as the Mashiyach forgave you, so also do you forgive. 14. And with all these (join) love, which is the girdle of perfection. 15. And let the peace of the Mashiyach direct your hearts for to that you have been called, in one body; and be thankful to the Mashiyach.<sup>18</sup> 16. And let his Word dwell in you richly in all wisdom. And teach and admonish yourselves by psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, and with grace in your hearts sing you to Elohim. 17. And whatever you do in word or act, do it in the name of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, and give thanksgiving through him to Elohim the Father. 18. Wives, be you subject to your husbands, as is right in the Mashiyach. 19. Husbands, love your wives and be not bitter towards them. 20. Children, obey your parents in everything; for this is pleasing before our Master (Y'shua). 21. Parents, anger not your children or else they get discouraged. 22. Servants, obey in all things your bodily masters; not in the sight of the eye only as those who please men, but with a simple heart, and in the Fear of Master YHWH. 23. And whatever you do, do it with your whole soul as to our Master (Y'shua), and not as to men: 24. and know you that from our Master (Y'shua) you will receive a recompense as the inheritance; for you serve Master YHWH, the Mashiyach.<sup>19</sup> 25. But the delinquent will receive a recompense according to the delinquency; and there is no respect of persons.

Chapter 4

1. Masters, do equity and justice to your servants, and be conscious that you also have a Master in heaven. 2. Persevere in prayer and be watchful in it and in giving thanks. 3. And pray also for us, that Elohim would open to us a door of speech, for uttering the Mystery of the Mashiyach, for the sake of which I am in bonds; 4. that I may unfold it and speak it, as it should be done by me. 5. Walk in wisdom towards them without: and redeem your opportunity. 6. And let your speech at all times be with grace, as it were, seasoned with salt: and know you how you should give an answer to every man. 7. As to all my important matters with me will Tychicus make known to you, who is a beloved brother and a faithful minister and our fellow-servant in Master YHWH: 8. whom I have sent to you for this purpose, that he might know your affairs and might comfort your hearts; 9. Together with Onesimus,<sup>20</sup> a faithful and beloved brother who is from among you. These will make known to you what is happening with us.

16 Once again Murdock mistranslates armaya as "Gentile" rather than Aramean. "Gentiles" are better addressed by the word aimmeh.

17 Ironically, barbaria is Greek slang, intended to mimic Oriental tongues which they perceived were commonly repeating the saying "bar, bar." But, of course, to the Aramaic mind "bar, bar" means "son, son"!

18 Aramaic puts the words "perfection" and "peace" right next to each other; it is only the need to render the phrases into syntactical English which force a separation of these concepts in translation. Second, both of these words have the same secondary meanings, and this is hardly coincidental. Gamirota, for example, means "perfection" but has secondary meanings of "complete" and "accomplish." In addition, gamirota's next door neighbor, shlama, means "peace" but has secondary meanings of "complete" and "accomplish" and "perfect" as well! In fact, when Y'shua cries from the stake, "It is accomplished!" the phrase he uses is mehshalam. Another level to this linguistic cleverness is recalling a proof from the book of Acts which talks about the bonds/ropes of death. Paul is contrasting that image written by his associate Luke with "bond of perfection" the "completion" of which comes from the "accomplishment" of Y'shua's sacrifice on the stake, bringing "peace"! Again, the reader will have to judge whether or not such poetry is possible from a translation, or the mark of an original Semitic text.

19 See Luke 2:11.

Aristarchus, my fellow-captive, sends shalom to you; also Marcus, an uncle's son to Barnaba of whom you have received directions that if he come to you, you may kindly receive him: 11. also Joshua, who is called Justus. These are of the circumcision and they only have aided me in the Kingdom of Elohim; and they have been a comfort to me. 12. Epaphras sends you shalom, who is from among you, a servant of the Mashiyach, always laboring for you in prayer<sup>21</sup> that you may stand perfect<sup>22</sup> and complete<sup>23</sup> in all the good will of Elohim. 13. For I testify for him that he has great zeal for you and for them of Laodicea and for them of Hierapolis. 14. Luke the physician, our beloved, sends shalom to you; also Demas. 15. Pray for the peace of the Brothers that are in Laodicea and Nymphas, and the assembly in his house. 16. And when this epistle will have been read among you, cause it to be read also in the assembly of the Laodiceans; and that which is written from Laodicea,<sup>24</sup> you should also read. 17. And say to Archippus: "Be attentive to the ministry which you have received in our Master (Y'shua), that you fulfill<sup>25</sup> it." 18. This greeting is by the hand of me, Paul. Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen.

End of the Letter to the Colossians which was written from Rome, and was sent by the hands of Tychicus.

21 Laboring for you in prayer is based on the Hebraic expression "avodah lev"; it is the work or service of the heart. Prayer is required not only when it "feels good" but according to a disciplined and consistent practice. In Hebrew "tefillah ebed" the "prayer of your servant" is a graceful and elegant way of approaching our Father YHWH as a servant that delights to do his Master's work. All of our work is according to our "prayer mode" that we accomplish through Mashiyach Y'shua. Hezekiah (YHWH is my Strength) is a beautiful example of this kind of service: "Every project that he undertook in order to seek his Elohim, whether in the service of the House of Elohim or in connection with the Torah and the mitzvot, he did with all his heart; and so he prospered." (2 Chronicles 31:21). Everything we put our mind and hands to, is our service to YHWH, especially when serving and building up the Body of Mashiyach. 2 Kings 18:5-6 says; "He trusted in YHWH, Elohim of Israel; so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any that were before him. For he clave (devek) to YHWH, and departed not from following him, but kept His Commandments, which YHWH commanded Moses." Prayer or service of the heart is the foundation for obedience to YHWH's Torah by grace through faith, this is how we are glued (devekut) to YHWH. As we open our hearts to Y'shua Mashiyach the Ruach haKodesh writes Torah upon our hearts and each one testifies that; "I delight to do your will, O my Elohim: yes, your Torah is within my heart" (Psalm 40:8). Please see footnotes on avodah in Acts 9:36; 1 Peter 3:6; Romans 9:4, 12:1; 1 Thessalonians 2:13 and Divine Communication in Appendix. 22 Stand perfect is a Torah Commandment that Y'shua established in Matthew 5:48 "You therefore be *g'miyr*a (perfect) as your Father in heaven who is perfect." Rav Shaul and all the Shlichim confirm this vital work of Mashiyach according to the Ruach haKodesh. The Aramaic *g'miyr*a found in Ezra 7:12, "Artaxerxes, king of kings, unto Ezra the Cohen (priest), a perfect (*g'miyr*a) scribe of the Torah of the Elohim of heaven, and at such a time." The cognate Hebrew gamar is found in this very beautiful verse in Psalm 138:8; "YHWH will perfect (gamar) all things concerning me: your mercy, O YHWH, endures forever: forsake not the works of your own hands." Also in Psalm 57:3 "I call to Elohim, the Most High, to Elohim, who accomplishes (gamar) all His purposes for me." From Genesis to Revelation we find the call and Commandment of perfection for the elect remnant of YHWH. The Aramaic *g'miyr*a (גמירא) and Hebrew gamar refer to the completion, end, or perfection of the soul according to the one new spiritual man. The first mention of a "perfect" man is Noah; "Noah was a just man and perfect (tamiym) in his generations, and Noah walked with Elohim." (Gen 6:9). Genesis 17:1 reads, "When Avram was 99 years old YHWH appeared to Avram and said to him, 'I am El Shaddai [El Almighty]. Walk in My presence and be perfect (tamiym).'" Job 2:3 says, "And YHWH said unto Satan; 'Have you considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect (tamiym) and an upright man, one that fears Elohim, and shuns evil? And still he holds fast his integrity, although you provoked Me against him, to destroy him without cause.'" Clearly these are righteous (perfect) men of the "Old Testament", so therefore how much more are those of Mashiyach and the Ruach haKodesh in the New Testament called to be perfect? It is extremely regrettable that most Christians have been told that they cannot be righteous; they see themselves as filthy habitual sinners, which is the false gospel. For many Christians the theology of sin and hell overpowers their theology of righteousness. The Word of YHWH and His Mashiyach call men everywhere to be perfect, however Christian theology says it is "impossible to keep the law" and thus dispenses the exact opposite message of the Good News. Rather than embed a mindset of the one new man, the complete, perfected, empowered and resurrected man, the false Christo-Pagan gospel teaches the mindset of the cross that can only bear our habitual sins. In reality the cross (torture stake) is an upright symbol that denotes the righteous sufferings of "an upright man" (yashar in Hebrew) who brought life, not death. Therefore, we are called to suffer as Y'shua Mashiyach suffered, not in our sins, but because we have stopped sinning and now suffer for righteousness sake. When we humble ourselves and honor the Word of YHWH, and keep and guard His Torah, it is often religious people who hate the followers of Y'shua, as they do not want to be convicted of their sin. Y'shua says, "Now this is the judgment: Because the light has come into the world, and men loved the darkness more than the light, for their works are evil" (Yochanan 3:19).

23 And complete, is the Aramaic w'mshamlaya וּמִשְׁמֵלִיא which provides a beautiful image of the perfection, completion and fullness of Mashiach who connects our vertical relationship with our Father YHWH (perfection) with our horizontal relationships (complete) with one another. It is this kind of Hebrew and Aramaic imagery in Rav Shaul's teaching that imprints the nature of Mashiach on the Hebraic mind, as the completion, fullness, restitution or harmony of all things. Through the book of Colossians are very deep elements of spirituality that reveal elements of the Tiferet or "adornment" of Mashiach. When Rav Shaul uses such terms together it speaks of balance and integration of the attributes of Mashiach empowering the followers of Mashiach. Mashiach is the center, middle pillar, or the Servant or Attendant (Hebrew shammash) who opens up the Kingdom of Heaven for all to enter. It is interesting to note that it was shortly after Rav Shaul's death that Jewish mythology invented the idea of "Metatron" which became identified as a "lesser YHWH." Metatron was apparently derived from Exodus 23:20-21 which says, "Behold, I send an Angel before you, to keep you in the way, and to bring you into the place which I have prepared. Take heed of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgression: for My name is in him." Regrettably, mythical and pagan elements entered in to rabbinical Judaism as a result of not recognizing the Nature (Qnoma) of Mashiach. Please see footnotes on Matthew 28:19, Luke 10:17, Yochanan 5:18. Apostle Paul uses extravagant language to also explain what Peter refers to as "partakers of the nature of Elohim" (2 Peter 1:4). In 2 Corinthians 4:4 Paul writes, "To them whose minds the god of this world has blinded, in order that they might not believe, or else the light of the Flame (Good News) of the glory of the Mashiach (who is the likeness of Elohim) should dawn upon them." In many ways this refers to a core of spiritual uniqueness that is evident within human diversity. In Mashiach we are trained to see the "divine spark" in all other humans, a person is not be able to see this spark within themselves until their spiritual eyes open to Mashiach. When a person can see the divine spark within, and experience the empowerment to live according to the Righteousness of Mashiach, then they are able to see the divine spark in others. However, when religion, theology or secular humanism blinds a person to the divine spark within themselves then they are unable to minister and adorn Mashiach in others. Rav Shaul openly ministers the Government of Mashiach to both Jews and Gentiles without reservation, he serves Mashiach according to the divine spark and unlimited potential for Mashiach in every soul.

24 By Eastern tradition, this refers to 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians and 1 Timothy, for such instructions are given at the bottom of the Aramaic manuscripts.

25 The Aramaic mshamlaya (מִשְׁמֵלִיא) here ties this meaning with Ephesians 1:23 "Which is his body and the fullness of him who completes all in all."

Chapter 1

1. I PAUL and Sylvanus and Timothy, to the assembly of the Thessalonians which is in Elohim the Father and in our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach: Grace be with you, and peace. 2. We give thanks to Elohim at all times, on account of you all, and remember you continually in our prayers: 3. and we call to mind before Elohim the Father the works of your faith and the toil of your love, and the patience of your hope in our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 4. For we know your election, my Brothers, beloved of Elohim. 5. For our preaching among you was not in words only; but also in power and in the Ruach haKodesh and in genuine persuasion. You also know how we were among you for your sakes. 6. And you became imitators of us and of our Master in that you received the Word in great affliction and with the joy of the Ruach haKodesh.<sup>1</sup> 7. And you were a pattern for all the believers who are in Macedonia and in Achaia. 8. For from you the Word of our Master sounded forth; (and) not only in Macedonia and Achaia but in every place, your faith in Elohim is heard of; so that we have no need to say any thing concerning you. 9. For they declare, what progress we had with you and how you turned<sup>2</sup> from the worship of idols to Elohim, that you might worship the living and true Elohim 10. while you wait for his Son from heaven, that Y'shua whom He raised from the dead who delivers us from the wrath to come.

Chapter 2

1. And you yourselves, my Brothers, know our entrance among you, that it was not in vain: 2. but we first suffered and were treated with indignity, as you know, at Philippi; and then, in a great agony, with confidence in our Elohim, we addressed to you the Good News of the Mashiyach. 3. For our encouragement proceeded not from deceit nor from impurity nor in deceit: 4. but as we had been approved of Elohim to be entrusted with the Good News, so we speak not as pleasing men, but Elohim who searches our hearts. 5. For at no time have we used flattering speech, as you know, nor a cloak of greed; Elohim is witness. 6. Neither have we sought glory from men, either from you or from others, when we might have exerted influence as apostles of the Mashiyach. 7. But we were lowly among you and, like a nurse who cuddles her children, 8. so we also cuddled (you) and were desirous to impart to you not the Good News of Elohim alone, but also our own soul because you were precious to us. 9. For you remember, Brothers, that we labored and toiled, working with our own hands by night and by day that we might not be authoritative to anyone of you. 10. You are witnesses, and Elohim (also), how we preached to you the Good News of Elohim, purely and uprightly, and were blameless towards all them that believe: 11. As yourselves know, we entreated each one of you as a father his children, and comforted your hearts:

1 We begin with another implied wordplay, since aibada means both “works/deeds” and “labor” even though the latter is expressed with a synonym. More direct, however, is the triple usage of the root sebar (patience of your hope), and this, of course, is also the “Good News” (gospel – sebartá) that Paul is mesebar (preaching).

2 The idea of “turning to YHWH” is very Jewish. To be righteous is to stay on the path, not turning to the right or the left. Alternatively, to repent is to literally leave a wrong road and to “turn back” to the good, Jeremiah 24:7. See They Repented Not in Appendix.

12. and we instructed you to walk as it becomes Elohim who has called you to His Kingdom and His glory. 13. Therefore also we give thanks unceasingly to Elohim, that the Word of Elohim which you received from us, you did not receive as the word of men, but as being truly the Word of Elohim which works<sup>3</sup> efficiently in you and in them that believe. 14. For you, my Brothers, became assimilated to the assemblies of Elohim in Yehud, the persons who are in Y'shua the Mashiyach in that you so suffered, even you from your own countrymen as also they from the Yehudeans, 15. the persons who slew our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach and persecuted their own prophets and us; and they please not Elohim and are made hostile to all men; 16. and they forbid us to speak to the Gentiles<sup>4</sup> that they may have life; to fill up their sins at all times. And wrath comes on them to the uttermost.<sup>5</sup> 17. But we, my Brothers, have been bereaved of you for a short time (in visible presence, not in our hearts,) and have the more exerted ourselves to behold your faces with great affection. 18. And we purposed to come to you, I Paul, once and again; but haSatan hindered me. 19. For what is our hope and our joy and the crown of our glorying unless it be you before our Master Y'shua at his coming? 20. For you are our glory and our joy.

1. And, because we could no longer endure it, we were willing to be left alone at Athens 2. and to send to you Timothy our brother, a servant of Elohim, and our assistant in the announcement of the Mashiyach, that he might strengthen you and inquire of you respecting your faith: 3. or else any of you should be disheartened by these afflictions; for you know that we are destined (to face). 4. For also when we were with you, we forewarned you that we were to be afflicted; as you know did occur. 5. Therefore also I could not be quiet until I sent to learn your faith; or else the Tempter should have tempted you and our labor have been in vain. 6. But now since Timothy has come to us from among you, and has informed us respecting your faith and your love and that you have a good remembrance of us at all times, and that you desire to see us, even as we (to see) you; 7. therefore we are comforted in you, my Brothers, amid all our obstacles and afflictions, on account of your faith. 8. And now we live, if you stand fast in our Master (Y'shua). 9. For what thanks can we render to Elohim in your behalf for all the joy with which we are joyful on your account; 10. unless it be that we the more supplicate before Elohim by night and by day, that we may see your faces and may perfect what is lacking in your faith? 11. And may Elohim our Father and our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach direct our way to you

3 This verse exemplifies the differences between “the word of men” (religion) and “the Word of Elohim” (Truth) that “works efficiently” in you and in them that believe. The Aramaic word here for work is b'aebedadea, the Hebrew cognate is avodah, derived from the primitive root abad. The Torah is the Word of Elohim that “works efficiently” within the life of Believers who are obedient to Torah and who demonstrate righteous “works.” The Hebrew “avodah” expresses the elegant and graceful “work” of the sanctified heart as “service” unto Mashiyach, a very beautiful element of Faith that is under major attack by Christian theologies that make void the Torah. The doctrines of Replacement Theology, Dispensationalism and Justification by Faith have caused Christians to focus on “the word of men” rather than learn to delight in YHWH’s Word and express love and obedience for His Torah. Avodah is one of the central themes of Tanakh and Brit Chadasha, it reveals the Grace of having Torah (instructions in righteousness) written upon the heart through the Ruach haKodesh. The Believer delights in YHWH’s Word and has Faith to avodah (work or serve) Mashiyach by being obedient to Torah and refrain from using religion and the authority of men to break YHWH’s Laws.

4 Many Rabbis warn Jews to not teach Torah to the Gentiles; they forbid it because according to their perverted religious perspectives, they’ve concluded that Gentiles would “only mess it up” – proving again that Jewish humor is indeed alive and well! Most Christians have never had opportunity to learn Torah, just like most Jews have strictly been warned away from Y'shua Mashiyach. Had Rabbinical Judaism taken an active role to make Torah available (understandable) to everyone, there would be much less anti-Semitism in the world. Rather than viewing Jews as “the Christ-killers” a healthy portion of the two billion Christians on earth would better understand that Jews and Gentiles are part of Mashiyach’s Universal family and congregation.

5 “Congregation of Elohim” from eidta d'Alaha is preferred over “church of God” as this is the true meaning of the Aramaic phrase, nearly identical to the Hebrew phrase adat YHWH that is used in the Tanakh to describe Israel (Numbers 27:17, 31:16; Joshua 22:16). Paul makes the point that the conduct of these men against Torah is at fault, not their ethnicity.

Certainly, it was an abomination for Jewish ancestry to persecute the prophets of YHWH and bow down to paganism and idols. It is arrogant for religious Jews to reject Gentiles and not include them as equals in the Malchut Elohim. All this and more is what constituted the collection of Jews who became known as "the assembly of satan." After all, Torah commands that there is ONE Torah for Jew and ger (sojourner), so then on what authority do the Pharisees and their cohorts deny YHWH and say no to Mashiyach? Y'shua said these men hold the keys to salvation but will not enter into the Kingdom themselves, nor will they permit others to enter. However, to extrapolate that Paul lays blame on all Jews for these crimes shows profound ignorance of basic human reality and Jewish cultural fact. On another note, it wasn't until Marcion "the heretic" that an all-Gentile "Christian church" prohibited Jewish attendees. The word "Church" has its origin with "Circe or Circ" pronounced "Kirch." Circe was the daughter of Helios, a Greek goddess and sun deity. The halo (circle) of light that Christians painted over the heads of "the saints" formerly belonged to Circe.

12. and increase and enlarge your love towards one another and towards all men, even as we love you; 13. and establish your hearts blameless in Separateness before Elohim our Father at the advent of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, with all his Set Apart believers.

1. And so from now on, my Brothers, I entreat you and beseech you by our Master Y'shua that, as you have received from us how you should walk and to please Elohim, so you would make progress more and more. 2. For you know what command we gave you in our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 3. For this is the will of Elohim, your sanctification; and that you be separated from all sexual sin 4. and that each one of you might know how to possess his vessel in sanctity and in honor 5. and not in the passion of lust, like the rest of the Gentiles who know not Elohim: 6. and that you dare not to transgress and to overreach anyone his brother in this matter; because our Master (Y'shua) is the avenger of all these, as also we have said and testified to you in time past. 7. For Elohim did not call you to impurity but to sanctification. 8. He therefore who spurns, spurns not man but Elohim who has given His Ruach haKodesh in you. 9. Now concerning love to the Brothers, you need not that I should write to you; for your own Qnoma (inner being, core substance) taught you of Elohim (and) to love one another.<sup>6</sup> 10. You likewise do so to all the Brothers who are in all Macedonia: but I entreat you, my Brothers, to be exuberant: 11. and that you strive to be quiet and to attend to your own affairs; and that you labor with your own hands<sup>7</sup> as we directed you; 12. and that you walk in this pattern of honesty<sup>8</sup> towards those without and that you be dependent on no man. 13. And I wish you to know, my Brothers, that you should not mourn over them who have fallen asleep, like other people who have no hope. 14. For if we believe that Y'shua died and rose again, even so them who sleep, will Elohim, by Y'shua, bring with him. 15. And this we say to you by the word of our Master (Y'shua), that we who may survive and be alive at the coming of our Master (Y'shua), will not precede them who have slept. 16. Because our Master (Y'shua) will himself descend from heaven with the mandate and with the voice of the chief Messenger and with the Qarna<sup>9</sup> of Elohim; and the dead who are in the Mashiyach will first arise; 17. and then we who survive and are alive will be caught up<sup>10</sup> together with them to the clouds to meet our Master (Y'shua) in the air; and so will we be ever with our Master. 18. And so, comfort you one another with these words.

6 Qnoma is a very important term that has been greatly diluted and misunderstood over the centuries. Through an exceedingly complex linguistic chain of events this word, meaning “an occurrence of a nature” got morphed and perverted into “person” in Greek. As a result, the One Elohim (YHWH) is represented in a pagan manner in the Greek New Testament as a “person” distinct and equal with “Elohim the Son” and “Elohim the Ruach haKodesh.” Instead, it is the Oneness of YHWH that is manifest in Mashiyach, not that Mashiyach’s divinity is separate from his Father’s. However, in this case we are talking about humanity and not YHWH, and both of them have “natures” that cannot be seen, and yet are a root part of their being. Or, to put it another way, a “nature” is like a body hidden behind a curtain. For those in the audience, nothing of that nature can be seen. Then, all of a sudden, a hand and part of an arm appears through the veil. While we know there is a body attached to that limb, the limb is all we see. Furthermore, that arm moves with full force, will and agreement of the mind that controls the body. For the viewers, the arm appearing out of the curtain is the qnoma (occurrence) and the hidden mind behind that limb’s movement is its kyanna (nature). As the centuries moved along, the ancient meaning of qnoma as “occurrence of a nature” devolved by Aramaic assemblies who compromised with the Byzantine Empire. Gradually, “core substance” became the common definition; at first it closely paralleled its Greek counterpart, hypostasis. More time passed and Greek redactors changed the meaning of hypostasi, taking it further from the original definition of qnoma. Qnoma/hypostasis became equivalent to “person” to line up with Greek passages that used this meaning in the form of the word prospan. In Greek, “person” implies a physical presence as opposed to Aramaic where body metaphors like “I will set my face towards” are very common. The revision began at the beginning of the Third Century when these same “westernized” Aramaic Christians began to proffer up readings in their “Peshitt-o” versions of Acts 20:28 and Hebrews 2:9 that were meant to align with the Byzantine majority Greek. However, the original eastern “Peshitt-a” escaped these revisions as it was in the rival Persian Empire. Aramaic, as in this verse, retains the original meaning of qnoma. It is NOT the external “person” that teaches someone about Elohim, but the Ruach haKodesh working through their “inner being.” The idea of “person” in Greek, unfortunately, does not address the neshama (spirit) of a person as the likeness or “Image of Elohim.”

7 It is in the context of "love to the Brothers" even that Elohim has written it upon our hearts to "love one another" that Paul says, "strive to be quiet and to attend to your own affairs; and that you labor with your own hands." Every believer, follower, or disciple of Mashiach is commanded to do productive work as an act of love to the Brothers and one another. Please see footnote on 2 Thessalonians 3:10.

8 Aramaic word b'askima literally means "in the pattern of". Most translations from Greek translate as "becomingly" from their sources and that is certainly implied with the examples Paul is giving throughout this section.

9 Qarna = trumpet, sometimes used as a synonym for a shofar.

10 The Rapture Theory was invented by Jesuits in the late 1500's. Protestants were pointing to the Vatican as the harlot beast system of Revelation. Several Futurist movements sprung up in Europe suggesting that the book of Revelation was entirely future and that Rome could not be the harlot, as this was a future event. The Jesuits also peddled the Rapture Theory that "the saints" would not be on Earth during the time of tribulation, thereby, taking pressure off of Rome. However, Rav Shaul clearly teaches that the first resurrection and the "catching up" will occur at the return of Mashiach, which will be around the same time that the Earth will be going up in smoke (2 Peter 3:10-12) at the end of Jacob's Trouble. See Rapture in Appendix.

1. But concerning the times and seasons, my Brothers, you need not that I write to you: 2. for you know assuredly, that the day of our Master (Y'shua) so comes as a thief by night. 3. While they will be saying, "peace and quietness," then suddenly destruction will burst upon them as distress upon a child-bearer, and they will not escape. 4. But you, my Brothers, are not in darkness; that day should not overtake you as a thief. 5. For you are all children of the light and children of the day; and are not children of the night and children of darkness. 6. Let us not therefore sleep, like others; but let us be vigilant and considerate. 7. For they who sleep, sleep in the night; and they who are drunken, are drunken in the night. 8. But let us who are children of the day be wakeful in mind and put on the breastplate of faith and love, and take the helmet of the hope of life. 9. For Elohim has not appointed us to wrath, but to the acquisition of life by our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 10. who died for us that, whether we wake or sleep, we might live together with him. 11. Therefore comfort one another and support one another, as also you have done. 12. And we entreat you, my Brothers, that you recognize them who labor among you and who stand before your faces in our Master (Y'shua) and instruct you: 13. that they may be esteemed by you with abundant love; and, on account of their work, live you in harmony with them. 14. And we entreat you, my Brothers, that you admonish the faulty and encourage the faint-hearted, and bear the burdens of the weak, and be long suffering towards all men. 15. And beware or else any of you return evil for evil, but always follow good deeds towards one another and towards all men. 16. And be joyful always. 17. And pray without ceasing.<sup>11</sup> 18. And in everything be thankful: For this is the will of Elohim in Y'shua the Mashiyach concerning you. 19. Quench not the Spirit.<sup>12</sup> 20. Despise not prophesying. 21. Explore everything and hold fast to the good: 22. and fly from everything evil. 23. And may the Elohim of peace sanctify you all, perfectly,<sup>13</sup> and keep blameless your whole spirit and your soul and your body till the coming of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 24. Faithful is he that has called you who will do it. 25. My Brothers, pray for us. 26. Pray for the peace of the Set Apart Brothers with a Set Apart kiss.<sup>14</sup> 27. I charge you by our Master (Y'shua), that this epistle be read to all the Set Apart Brothers. 28. The grace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach be with you. Amen.

End of the first Letter to the Thessalonians which was written from Athens, and was sent by the hands of Timothy.

11 Please see footnote on Colossians 4:12 and Divine Communication in Appendix.

12 "Quench not the Spirit" is very literal to the Aramaic word order and flows beautifully in English.

13 Please see Matthew 5:48 and footnote on perfect in Colossians 4:12.

14 The Peshitta Tanakh version of Psalm 122:6 reads this exact same way, shalo Aurshalem nehwon kehiniyn rakhemiki, or "pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love you."

Chapter 1

1. PAUL and Sylvanus and Timothy, to the assembly of the Thessalonians, which is in Elohim our Father and our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach: 2. Grace be with you and peace from Elohim our Father and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 3. We are bound to give thanks to Elohim always on your account, my Brothers, as it is proper; because your faith grows exceedingly, and in you all, the love of each for his fellow increases. 4. Inasmuch that we also boast of you in the assemblies of Elohim on account of your faith and your patience in all the persecution and trials that you endure 5. for a demonstration of the righteous judgment of Elohim, that you may be worthy of His Kingdom on account of which you suffer. 6. And since it is a righteous thing with Elohim to recompense trouble to them that trouble you:<sup>1</sup> 7. and you who are the troubled, he will resurrect with us at the manifestation of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach from heaven, with the host of his Messengers; 8. when he will execute vengeance with the burning of fire<sup>2</sup> on them that know not Elohim, and on them that acknowledge not the Good News of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 9. For these will be recompensed with the judgment of eternal destruction from the presence of our Master (Y'shua) and from the glory of his power, 10. when he will come to be glorified in his Set Apart believers, and to display his wonders in his faithful ones; for our testimony concerning you will be believed in that day. 11. Therefore we pray for you at all times that Elohim would make you worthy<sup>3</sup> of your calling and would fill you with all readiness for good deeds and with the works of faith by power 12. so that the name of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach may be glorified in you (and) you also in him, according to the grace of Elohim and of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach.

Chapter 2

1. But we entreat of you, my Brothers, in regard to the coming of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach and in respect to our being congregated to him, 2. that you be not soon uprooted in your mind nor be troubled, neither by word nor by spirit nor by letter, as coming from us that behold, the day of our Master (Y'shua) is at hand. 3. Let no one deceive you in any way because (that day will not come) unless there previously come a defection<sup>4</sup> and that man of sin be revealed; the son of destruction; 4. who is an opponent and who exalts himself above all that is called Elohim and praiseworthy; so that he also sits in the temple of Elohim as a deity and displays himself as if he were a deity.<sup>5</sup> 5. Do you not remember that, when I was with you, I told you these things? 6. And now you know what hinders his being manifested in his time. 7. For the mystery of the Evil One already begins to be operative: and only if that which now hinders will be taken from the midst, 8. then at length will that Evil One be revealed whom our Master Y'shua will consume by the breath of his mouth and will bring to nothing by the visibility of his coming.

1 See Romans 12:19 footnote.

2 Some believe that YHWH will not send "real fire" again; they believe this to be "spiritual fire" for cleansing (see D'varim/Deut 32:22; Ezekiel 28:18; 38:22; Joel 2:30; Isaiah 34:8, 9; Zephaniah 3:8; Psalm 11:6). However, YHWH clearly sent the real thing in days of old against those who hardened their hearts against Him, see also Genesis 19:24. A valuable history lesson is still available at the Dead Sea, right next to Masada it is possible to collect rock samples that contain sulfur pellets. The sulfur burned into the rock and preserved the history of how Sodom and Amorrhah and the cities of the plain were destroyed. Furthermore, those who disagree with literal fire and destruction coming upon the wicked have no legitimate reason to complain, as each soul has experienced the gift of life YHWH has given and lived according to their own free choice.

3 Notice how Paul writes, "we pray for you at all times that Elohim would make you worthy of your calling" and in verse 5 "that you may be worthy of His Kingdom on account of which you suffer." This wording points to a progressive and developing faith-walk based on humility. The pursuit of the Kingdom of Heaven is a lifelong spiritual journey rather than a prior religious experience or event. Apostle Paul says of his own journey; "My Brothers, I do not consider myself as having taken (it). But one thing I know, that I forget the things behind me and reach for the things before me" (Phil 3:13).

4 The “falling away” or “the Great Apostasy” refers to the fallen state of Christianity as a whole; the original First Century Christian Faith was one Faith with the Netzarim Jewish followers of Y’shua. Gentiles were originally being grafted into the Kingdom of Elohim as the “Israel of Elohim” according to the Renewed Covenant. However, even in Paul’s day, an all-Gentile church was being birthed, which aimed to throw off Torah and reinvent Mashiach to put him more in line with Hellenism, polytheism and paganism.

5 See Humanism in Appendix.

9. For the coming of that (Evil One) is the working of haSatan with all power and signs and lying wonders 10. and with all the deceptiveness of iniquity in them that perish; because they did not receive the love of the truth by which they might have life. 11. Therefore Elohim will send upon them the strength of a deception that they may believe a lie;<sup>6</sup> 12. and that they all may be condemned who believe not the truth but have pleasure in iniquity. 13. But we are bound to give thanks to Elohim always on your account, my Brothers, beloved of our Master (Y'shua), that Elohim has from the beginning chosen you to life through sanctification of the Spirit and through faith in the Truth.<sup>7</sup> 14. For to these it was that Elohim called you by our preaching;<sup>8</sup> that you might be the glory to our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 15. Therefore, my Brothers, be established and persevere in the Commandments<sup>9</sup> which you have been taught, whether by word or by our epistle. 16. And may our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach himself, and Elohim our Father who has loved us and given us everlasting consolation and a good hope through his grace, 17. comfort your hearts and establish in yourselves every good word and in every good work.<sup>10</sup>

6 The price for not receiving the "love of the truth" is to become overly self-confident in false religion. The "love of the truth" is the spirit of truth which must be sanctified by thought and action. One cannot "love the truth" and, at the same time, break the Commandments and teach others to do the same.

7 Very interesting varying readings. Khabouris adds zebin as in "Elohim chose you from before time". However, 1905 and other Peshitta manuscripts read literally "Elohim chose you from apikon" which can mean "before your faces/presences," paralleling similar language in Jeremiah 1:1-5. 1905 reading is retained in the Aramaic.

8 The phrase "called you by our preaching" is another instance of the implied wordplay between "called" (qirakon) and the Hebrew name for the priestly book of Leviticus (Vayiqra), which is derived from the first words "and he called." The same can be said of "preaching" which is once again being tapped by the Aramaic sebar (Good News/Hope). The final repetition is also a favorite implied wordplay of Paul's, with miltha "Word" being contrasted with "Commandments" which comes from the fact that the "Ten Commandments" are originally called "The Ten Words" YHWH spoke. One cannot also help but see the similarity with the use of "miltha" in the way John opens his Good News/Preaching; "the Miltha was with Elohim and the Miltha was Elohim." This idea is reinforced further with the phrase "from the beginning," dovetailing with the title of the Book of Genesis, which is called B'resheet in Hebrew, and rendered min reshita here by Paul. The fact is, there is very little difference between the two terms, coming down to a small alteration in how prepositions are used between "in the beginning" and "from the beginning." Either way, this revelation that Paul is addressing cannot be a "new commandment" but the one that has always been, calling Jew and Gentile alike into the righteousness of Torah through its foremost interpreter, who is Mashiyach.

9 The biggest misunderstanding of the Pauline Epistles is that Paul's exhortations nullified or superseded Torah rather than complemented Torah, and most of this is due to erroneous Greek translations, such as in this verse which reads: "So then, brothers, stand firm and hold to the paradoeis (traditions) which you were taught, whether by word or epistle." Paradoeis could mean "traditions" but may also be rendered "teachings" as in the NIV. However, there are BIG problems with both phrases as they imply a new "wisdom" has supplanted the Eternal Word. Many theologians suggest that Paul the Jew is saying to the Gentiles, "Don't concern yourself with Torah, it's just a Jewish thing; just listen to me (Paul) and follow the new teaching." However, Aramaic reads: "Henceforth, my brethren, stand fast and hold to the Commandments which you have been taught, either by word or by epistle" (Lamsa). The Aramaic porqadona, unlike the Greek paradoeis, can only mean "Commandments". The question is then, what commandments?

According to Matthew 5:19, Y'shua taught Torah and the Commandments of YHWH from the very beginning of his ministry. According to Matthew 15:3, Y'shua warned the Pharisees against making void the "Commandment of Elohim" by their traditions. In Matthew 19:17 Y'shua spelled out the Commandments to the rich young ruler, teaching that "if you will enter into Life, keep the Commandments." The rich young ruler asked which ones? Y'shua gave him Torah Commandments! Being led by the Ruach haKodesh to observe YHWH's Torah (instruction in righteousness) is a prerequisite to entering the Malchut Elohim; in fact, Torah is magnified (made great) by Y'shua according to Yeshu' yahu/Isaiah 42:21. In 2 Peter 2:21, 22, Peter levies a sharp rebuke; "...it would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than after having known (it), to turn back from the Set Apart commandment that was delivered to them." John teaches in 1 John 2:4; "For he that says I know him and does not keep his Commandments is a liar, and the truth is not in him."

There can be NO doubt these are YHWH's Commandments because John teaches in 1 John 3:22: "And whatever we ask, we receive from Him because we keep His (YHWH's) Commandments and do acceptable things before Him." But some theologians teach that if you "love" you don't need to keep any Commandments; however, this is the tradition of the Laodicean Church who interprets "love" according to religious tradition (see Definition of Love in Appendix). "And the dragon was enraged against the woman; and he went to make war upon the residue of her seed who keep the Commandments of Elohim and have the testimony of Y'shua" (Revelation 12:17). The true remnant, the Israel of Elohim, keep the Commandments of Elohim and know Y'shua to be both Mashiyach ben Yoseph (the suffering Servant) and Mashiyach ben David.

The evidence supporting Torah Observance among Y'shua's followers is overwhelming, but there are multitudes of doctrines and church traditions that make war against the Word of YHWH. It's one thing for a person to choose to disobey YHWH's Commandments, but it's quite another to teach others to also be disobedient. Y'shua warns that it would be better for a millstone be hung around your neck and be sunk into the sea than to be guilty of causing one of his little ones to stumble (Matthew 18:6). Paul and all of Y'shua's disciples, even the Pharisees knew that the "Word of Elohim" can only mean Torah! Therefore, this verse clearly demonstrates that Paul is determined to bring everyone including the Gentiles, the Tribes of Israel, and all Jews into the Grace of Y'shua so they could have Torah written upon their hearts. Grace is power given by YHWH to live as a Kedoshim (holy people).

10 Most Gentiles are unaware of the fervent debates between Netzarim Jews (Nazarenes) and traditional Jews regarding Y'shua being Mashiach or his divinity. In particular, the issue that frequently comes up is the idea that Christians exalt a man as God. As we will see, part of the problem again lies with inaccurate Greek translations and, of course, there is a marked difference between Catholic, Protestant, "Messianic Jewish" and Netzarim beliefs. It is most intriguing that some traditional Jews would label Paul's letters as pagan, given his admonition to a pagan audience: "Let no man deceive you by any means; for that day shall not come unless it is preceded by a rebellion, and the man of sin be revealed as the son of perdition, who opposes and exalts himself above all that is called Elohim or that is revered; so that even in the Temple of Elohim, he sits as a god, and shows himself as though he were a god" (2 Thessalonians 2:3-4 Lamsa). The phrase "son of perdition" in Aramaic, breh d'abadana is the same as the Hebrew abaddon, meaning "destruction" and is torn from the pages of the Dead Sea Scrolls, alluding to sons of light and sons of darkness. Of course, such a metaphor makes little sense in Greek. However, more pointed to our discussion is the fact that Paul is describing a great deception whereby "Christians" would be entrapped into worshipping a man! "And with all deceitfulness of unrighteousness in those who perish, because they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved thereby. For this reason Elohim shall send them a strong delusion that they should believe a lie, that all who did not believe in truth but preferred unrighteousness might be damned" (2 Thessalonians 2:10-12 Lamsa).

Since the Wicked One in 2 Thessalonians 2:8-12 is clearly a man sent from Satan, we can rightly infer that this sort of man-worship is heartily and forcefully condemned by the Shaliach/Apostle Paul. That being said, it is odd that his critics would continue to accuse him of being an idolater himself, when all evidence in Scripture points to his keeping Torah! Furthermore, if the heresy is as Paul says, "a strong delusion" it seems likely that it is a popular one as well! Certainly this vision of the distant future from Paul's era drives a spike in the coffin to Replacement Theology (Supercessionism) and Dispensationalism, which are as "fathers" to polytheistic Christianity.

In the end, the true Good News is linked inextricably to the Word that came before, while the "other Gospel" teaches Torah is done away with, and/or that paganism rules the day. As we will also see later on, since Paul condemned as heretical the "man-god" idea, it seems very unlikely that the Shaliach would simply substitute the agent of Satan with the Hellenized "Jesus" who essentially does the same thing. It was Paul who made statements as in 1 Corinthians 12:3 that "Master YHWH is Y'shua!" We must certainly differentiate between a man who would wrongly aspire to be YHWH, with a pure understanding of Aramaic/Hebrew and Torah that demonstrates how YHWH can take on any form He desires. One is the age old pagan counterfeit from haSatan which entered the world by confusion in the Greek "New Testament" while the other is the ultimate understanding of Mashiach as revealed in Torah and the prophets of YHWH as truth, and it's Jewish to the very core.

1. From now on, Brothers, pray for us that the word of our Master (Y'shua) may in every place run and be glorified, as with you; 2. and that we may be delivered from evil and perverse men, for faith is not in all. 3. And Faithful is Master YHWH who will keep you and rescue you from the Evil One. 4. And we have confidence in you through our Master (Y'shua) that what we have taught upon you, you both have done and will do. 5. And may our Master (Y'shua) direct your hearts to the love of Elohim and to a patient waiting for the Mashiyach. 6. And we enjoin upon you, my Brothers, in the name of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, that you withdraw from every brother who walks wickedly and not according to the precepts which you received from us. 7. For you know how you should imitate us, who did not walk wickedly among you. 8. Neither did we eat bread gratuitously from any of you; but, with toil and weariness, we labored by night and by day that we might not be burdensome to any of you. 9. It was not because we have no authority, but that we might give you an example in ourselves, that you might imitate us. 10. And while we were with you, we also gave you this precept, That everyone who would not work should likewise not eat.<sup>11</sup> 11. For we hear there are some among you who walk wickedly and do nothing except vain things.<sup>12</sup> 12. Now such persons we command and encourage by our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, that in quietness they work and eat their own bread. 13. And my Brothers, let it not be wearisome to you to do what is good. 14. And if anyone does not listen to these (my) words in this epistle, separate that man from you and have no intimacy with him, that he may be ashamed. 15. Yet, hold him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother. 16. And may Master YHWH of peace give you peace, always, in everything. Our Master (Y'shua) be with you all. 17. The salutation in the writing of my own hand I Paul, have written it, which is the token in all my epistles; so I write. 18. The grace of Y'shua the Mashiyach be with you all, my Brothers. Amen.

*End of the second letter to the Thessalonians which was written from Laodicea of Pisidia,
and was sent by the hands of Tychicus*

11 In verse 8 Apostle Paul states that he did not, "eat bread gratuitously" then in verse 10 "everyone who would not work should likewise not eat." This is based on the Commandment; "Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work" (Exodus 20:9). Every individual who is able to work and provide for themselves and make a contribution to the community is commanded by YHWH to do so, it is an act of love and faith. When a person refuses to work they are breaking covenant with YHWH and openly denying Him before the community, by not working they are refusing to obligate themselves to His service. Everything we do each day is our response to the life YHWH has given us, those who refuse to work, or serve YHWH's people, or make a contribution to their families and communities are to be considered as infidels. Apostle Paul says; "But if anyone cares not for them who are his own, and especially for them who are of the household of faith, he has rejected the faith and is worse than the unbelievers" (1 Timothy 5:8). The lack of work, productivity and righteous vision in many souls is a chronic problem in religious circles. One of the main reasons that righteous work ethic is not properly ministered is because of the leadership that also lacks vision, moral direction and ethics. Many religious leaders refuse to do productive work, they want money to socialize and talk about their religion. Many religious leaders esteem themselves very highly, are very prideful, and live in a private world of self-grandeur, fantasy and spiritual greatness. Those who have not apprehended a righteous work ethic are unable to minister and impart diligence and productiveness to others. In these things many people who attend synagogues and churches every week are epitomizing the values of Sadom as it is written; "Behold, this was the iniquity of your sister Sadom, pride, fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her and in her daughters, neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy. And they were haughty, and committed abomination before me: therefore I took them away as I saw fit." (Ezekiel 16:49-50). Please see footnotes on 1 Thessalonians 4:11; 1 Timothy 5:8; 1 Peter 1:17.

12 The Apostle Paul is never shy about exposing haSatan's tricks. One of the biggest enemies to Faith and Truth is "magical thinking"; because everyone knows that it's far easier to change your beliefs than change your behavior. Paul talks about "those who do nothing except vain things," which are actions derived from "magical thinking". "Magical thinking" is inner thought that says things like: "I'm a Christian, I believe in Jesus therefore I'm saved." But Y'shua says unless we change our behavior, adopt a Kingdom of Heaven behavior and lifestyle, and come to the Light, we will not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven (Matt 7:15-23, Luke 13:23-30, John 3:3-21). Most people associate their beliefs with their salvation, there's people who trust in their "magical thinking" who say to themselves; "I'm Jewish, the rabbis say all Jews go to the Olam Ha-Ba, I'm good to go." But Y'shua says: "And you (ought) not suppose and say within yourselves that we have Awraham (as our father)" as though being born Jewish or Israelite is a free pass. Nothing comes close to capitalizing on "magical thinking" more than false religion. The false prophets and false teachers derive incomes from dispensing "magical religious thinking." It may well be that 99.99% of what your pastor, priest or rabbi teaches is excellent and truthful, but it's the religious lies of the .01% that will break you. This generation has produced a culture of cognitive dissonance like nothing before in the history of mankind. Cognitive dissonance simply means that a person adopts new cognitions (beliefs, ideas, values) to lessen any kind of dissonance (stress, discord, unpleasantness). They tell themselves to feel happy and good about doing whatever they want to do, and they say, and believe, whatever feels right about YHWH and His Word. A spouse may want to get out of a marriage, so they change and adopt a new religious identity or theology that justifies a divorce, based on the "unbelief" of their spouse. Between "magical thinking" and "cognitive dissonance" a person can go through life being very irresponsible to themselves and others, but very self-convinced of their place in the Olam Ha-Ba (World to Come or Heaven) and "saved". Magical religious thinking associates religious ideas with identity or belief and makes people trust in status quo culturally accepted religious fallacies. The vast majority of religious leaders don't understand the difference between "magical thinking" and the Kingdom of Heaven because they were seminary trained in "magical religious thinking". The reality is that 99.99% of religious leaders would never dare speak the truth and expose "magical thinking" knowing that they would lose their income, status and pensions. Without a love for the Truth, false religion and "magical thinking" is an impossible addiction to cure. Magical thinking is condemned by the Apostles in Acts 8:18-23 where a man named Simon wanted to buy into a religious business opportunity. Nowadays anyone can start a non-profit religious organization, figure out what people want to hear, and peddle "magical thinking" for massive profits. However, Y'shua encourages us with these words, "And you will know the truth and that truth will set you free" John 8:21 (32). Rav Shaul is not lacking in boldness when he says, "Have I become an enemy to you because I proclaimed to you the truth?" (Galatians 4:16).

1. PAUL, an apostle of Y'shua the Mashiyach, by the command of Elohim our life-giver and of the Mashiyach, Y'shua, our hope; 2. to Timothy, (my) true son in the faith: grace and mercy and peace from Elohim our Father and the Mashiyach, Y'shua, our Master. 3. When I was going into Macedonia, I requested you to remain at Ephesus and to charge certain persons not to teach different doctrines, 4. and not to throw themselves into fables and stories about genealogies of which there is no end, which produce contention rather than edification in the Faith of Elohim. 5. Now the goal<sup>1</sup> of the command is love which is from a pure heart and from a good conscience and from true Faith. 6. But from these some have strayed and have turned aside to vain words; 7. because they wished to be teachers of Torah, while they understood not what they speak, nor the thing about which they contend. 8. Now we know, that Torah is a good thing if a man conduct himself in it according to Torah; 9. he knowing that Torah was not established for the righteous but for the evil and the rebellious, and those without Elohim, and the sinful, and the perverse and for the impure, and for smiters of their fathers and smiters of their mothers, and for murderers, 10. and for sexual sinners and for copulators with males, and for the stealers of free people, and for liars, and for violators of oaths, and for whatever is contrary to sound doctrine, 11. (namely) that of the glorious Good News of the blessed Elohim with which I am entrusted.<sup>2</sup> 12. And I thank him who strengthened me, (even) our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, who accounted me faithful and appointed me to his ministry; 13. me (I say), who before was a blasphemer and a persecutor and a reviler; but I obtained mercy because I did it while ignorant and without faith. 14. And in me the grace of our Master abounded, and faith and love which is in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 15. Faithful is the declaration and worthy to be received that Y'shua the Mashiyach came into the world to give life to sinners, of whom I was the primary. 16. But for this cause had he mercy on me, that in me first Y'shua the Mashiyach might display all his longsuffering for an example to them who were to believe on him to life eternal. 17. And to the king eternal, incorruptible and invisible, the only Elohim, be honor and glory forever and ever! Amen. 18. This injunction I commit to you, my son Timothy, according to the former predictions concerning you, that in them you might fight this good warfare 19. in faith and a good conscience; for they who have repudiated this have become destitute of faith; 20. like Hymeneus<sup>3</sup> and Alexander whom I have delivered up to Satan that they may learn not to be blasphemers.

Chapter 2

1. I encourage you, therefore, in the first place, that you present to Elohim supplication and prayer and intercession and thanksgiving for all men: 2. for kings and magistrates that we may dwell in a quiet and tranquil habitation with all reverence for Elohim and with purity. 3. For this is good and acceptable before Elohim our life-giver,

1 Murdock mistranslates sakal here as "end" when the better reading is "goal"; Mashiyach is the goal of Torah, not its termination. Love is also the sakal (goal) of the commandment, not the termination. This is validated throughout Rav Shaul's writings in key places like Romans 3:31; 7:12; 10:4.

2 In other words, Torah was not made to confirm the righteousness of man, but to set the boundaries of the Kadosh (Set Apart) as good, and the profane as evil. It is only through the boundaries set by YHWH that the Good News can proceed into the hearts of those who seek the Kingdom of Elohim. The Good News is the advancement of Torah, not its destruction as taught by the majority of Christian theologians.

3 Ironically, hymnaeus is derived from the Aramaic word for "faithful." Its close proximity to "Satan" is also interesting, as you could almost encode the message as "accuser of the faithful."

4. who would have all men live and be converted to the knowledge of the truth. 5. For Elohim is one, and the mediator between Elohim and men is one; (namely) the man Y'shua the Mashiyach, 6. who gave himself a ransom for every man; a testimony that arrived in due time, 7. of which I am constituted a herald and apostle. I speak the truth and do not lie, for I am the teacher of the Gentiles in the belief of the truth. 8. I desire therefore, that men may pray in every place while they lift up their hands with purity, without wrath and without disputations. 9. So also, that women (appear) in a chaste fashion of dress; and that their adorning be with modesty and chastity; not with curls or with gold, or with pearls, or with splendid robes; 10. but with good works as is becoming to women who profess reverence for Elohim. 11. Let a woman learn in silence, with all submission: 12. for I do not allow a woman to teach or to be assuming over the man; but let her remain in stillness.<sup>4</sup> 13. For Adam was first formed, and then Eve. 14. And Adam was not seduced, but the woman was seduced and transgressed the command. 15. Yet she will live by means of her children,<sup>5</sup> if they continue in the faith and in love, and in being Set Apart, and in wisdom.

Chapter 3

1. It is a faithful saying that if a man desires the eldership, he desires a good work. 2. And an elder should be such that no blame can be found in him; and he should be the husband of one wife, with a vigilant mind and sober and reliable (in his behaviors), and affectionate to strangers, and instructive, 3. and not a transgressor in regard to wine, and whose hand is not swift to strike; but he should be humble and not contentious, nor a lover of money; 4. and one that guides well his own house and holds his children in subjection with all purity. 5. For if he knows not how to guide his own house well, how can he guide the assembly of Elohim?<sup>6</sup> 6. Neither let him be of recent discipleship, or else he be uplifted and fall into the condemnation of Satan. 7. And there should be good testimony of him from those without; or else he fall into reproach and the snare of Satan. 8. And so also the assembly servants should be pure and not speak double, nor incline to much wine, nor love base gains; 9. but should hold the mystery of the faith with a pure conscience. 10. And let them be first tried and then let them serve if they are without blame. 11. So also should the wives be chaste and of vigilant minds; and they should be faithful in all things; and they should not be slanderers. 12. Let the assembly servants be such as have each one wife and guide well their children and households. 13. For they who serve well (as assembly servants), procure for themselves a good degree and much boldness in the faith of Y'shua the Mashiyach.

4 See the note on Titus 2:3, amplifying this.

5 A righteous woman raises her children up to perpetuate the Malchut Elohim; therefore, she lives by means of her children. A woman who does not bear physical children can also raise up "spiritual children." The KJV "saved in childbearing" is very misleading.

6 Leadership starts in the home; it is the fruits of marriage and family life at home that demonstrate the ability, quality and character of every elder or leader. Yet, religious people willfully negate Scriptural qualifications of leadership in order to be entertained or inspired by a popular dynamic leader or speaker. It is a modern and fashionable thing to compromise on leadership qualifications for someone who has attained wealth or a degree of fame, because everybody wants to be "successful" like them. It is because of the wholesale compromise of Scriptural qualifications of leadership that there is unprecedented spiritual abuse, wickedness and divisions within the Body of Mashiyach. There is no greater ego trip for the carnal man than to become a religious leader and get paid to speak over the spiritual lives of others. Religious leadership is haSatan's most effective tool to keep people from entering into the Kingdom of Heaven, and the job pays extremely well for what a religious leader has to do. There is a world of con-artists, thieves and frauds who know how to "get religious" and "talk the talk" so as to be "accepted into the beloved" and stand before the congregation as a spiritual "authority." On local, regional, national and international levels false spiritual leaders consolidate their power and authority and create wicked confederacies against the Unity of the Body for personal gain and fame. The remedy of false religion is to turn to YHWH, implement Torah, walk in humility, live in Set Apart simplicity and come out of all false religion. Please see footnotes on Matthew 7:16, Yochanan 10:16, Hebrews 13:7, and 2 Thessalonians 3:10.

14. These things I write to you while hoping soon to come to you; 15. but if I should delay that you may know how you should conduct yourself in the house of Elohim which is the assembly of the living Elohim. The pillar and the foundation of the truth, 16. and truly great, is this mystery of righteousness which was revealed in the flesh and righteous in the spirit, and seen by Messengers, and proclaimed among the Gentiles, and believed on in the world, and received up into glory.<sup>7</sup>

1. But the Spirit says explicitly that, in the latter times, some will depart from the faith, and will go after deceptive spirits and after the doctrine of demons. 2. These will seduce by a false appearance, and will speak a lie and will be seared in their conscience; 3. and will forbid to marry,<sup>8</sup> and will require abstinence from meats which Elohim has created for use and for thankfulness by them who believe and know the truth. 4. Because whatever is created by Elohim is good;<sup>9</sup> and there is nothing which should be rejected if it be received with thankfulness, 5. for it is sanctified by the Word of Elohim<sup>10</sup> and by prayer. 6. If you will elucidate these things on your Brothers, you will be a good minister of Y'shua the Mashiyach, being educated in the language of the faith and in the good doctrine which you have been taught. 7. But the silly tales of old women, forsake, and occupy yourself with righteousness. 8. For exercising the body is profitable a little while; but righteousness is every way profitable and has promise of the life of the present time and of that to come. 9. This is a faithful saying and worthy of reception. 10. For on this account we toil and suffer reproach because we trust in the living Elohim who is the life-giver of all men, especially of the believers. 11. These things teach and point out. 12. And let no one despise your youth; but be a pattern for the believers in speech and in behavior, and in love, and in faith, and in purity. 13. Until I come, be diligent in reading and in prayer and in teaching. 14. Do not despise the gift that is in you which was given you by prophecy, and by the laying on of the hand of the eldership. 15. On these things meditate; give yourself wholly to them: that it may be obvious to all that you make advances. 16. Be attentive to yourself and to your teaching, and persevere in them. For in doing this, you will procure life to yourself and to them who hear you.

7 Note the brilliant poetry here: (1) And truly great (w'sherirayt rab) (2) Is this divine mystery of righteousness (haw arza hela d'kanota); (3) It is revealed in the flesh (d'atgli b'besra), (4) being Righteous in the Spirit (w'atzaddaq b'rokh), (5) Seen by messengers (w'atkhazi l'malaka), (6) Preached to the Gentiles (w'atkeraz beyt ammah), (7) Believed on in the world (w'athaymin b'alimah), (8) And received up into glory (w'astalag b'shubkha). Note the bold italicized words in 1, 2, 4 and 5. To begin with, two words for "righteousness" are used; one in the last word of line 2 (kanota) and the other in the first word of line 4 (atzaddaq). However, kanota is clearly reminiscent of kahna (priest), even though their roots are slightly different (kan and kahn, respectively). Furthermore, the last word of line 1 is rab (great/high), and so the way the text lines up when broken out by phrases is rab kanota/kahna (high priest)! The other word, atzaddaq, is also deliberately placed in the same manner since right below it is the word malaka. Now, in this case malaka means "messenger" (angel). However, it is almost identical to malak (king). Reverse the words and we get: Malak + atzaddaq = Melchisedec.

Here are deep poetic patterns contrasting the rab kahna (high priests) of the Levites with that of Melchisedec, the priestly line that Mashiyach represents! In line 3, Atgli b'besra (revealed in the flesh), contains some terrific parallels as well. Not only does the word gali mean "reveal", but it is also a homonym for Galeela where Mashiyach was "revealed in the flesh!"

Italicized words in lines 5, 6, 7 and 8, carry rhymes which are not by accident or coincidence. First, there are four lines in a row that end in "ah": w'atkhazi l'malaka w'atkeraz beyt amah w'athaymin b'alimah w'astalag b'shubkha. Other word matches are equally striking: Atkhazi (seen)/Atkeraz (preached); Beyt ammah (house of Gentiles/peoples)/B'alimah (in the earth/land). The last word pair is also noteworthy because of this prophetic passage: "I am going to take the Israelite people (ammah) from among the nations (Goyim/Gentiles) they have gone to and gather them from every quarter and bring them back to their own land (almah). I will make them a single nation (goy) in the land (almah)" (Ezekiel 37:21-22). Granted, there are some dialectical differences between the Tanakh and the Aramaic Peshitta (ammah = am; almah = eretz), but for all intents and purposes, the exact same words and concepts. And finally, the last four lines also flow together in an almost melodic fashion, as even a rudimentary attempt to sound them out reveals: w'atkhazi l'malaka w'atkeraz beyt amah w'athaymin b'alimah w'astalag b'shubkha. In the end, we are left with an amazing composition in two parts. The first half of this line shows us that Paul is very capable of packing a great deal of Jewish symbolism and hidden meanings in a handful of words. Once this significant feat is accomplished, he moves onto delivering a Masterpiece of rhyme, diction and meter for the remainder of the verse.

8 The Roman Catholic church and other Christian organizations forbid priests to marry; by installing their own so called "infallible" deity-like "fathers" they've chosen to wage war against Torah and Mashiach Y'shua. See also Matthew 23:9.

9 Whatever is created by Elohim is good. Of course, YHWH also has told us, from the animals He created, what we should avoid in Leviticus 11. He does not then change His mind about what He has said about these creatures (Numbers 23:17, Malachi 3:6, Isaiah 66:17). Rather, what is going on is part of a wider discussion that assumes kosher animals are slaughtered properly if they look like the blood has been drained. The other topic, addressed elsewhere, is that if the provenance of the meat that is prepared properly may have originally been intended for idols but such cannot be proven, to eat it with thanksgiving. However, in other places Paul also says if you are told the meat came from idol worship, to avoid it. Unclean animals can never be served in a kosher manner and they can always be easily identified.

10 Sanctified by the Word of Elohim refers to both Torah which enumerates clean and unclean meats and not eating blood (Lev 11), and NT directives for those of the Nations (Goyee/Gentiles) who are entering into the Kingdom of Heaven. Acts 15:19 and 21:25 requires that all Believers in Mashiach abstain from: 1) food sacrificed to idols, 2) blood, and 3) meat that comes from a strangled animal. Saying a prayer over unclean food doesn't sanctify the food any more than praying that you don't get caught stealing can "sanctify" or protect you from the consequences of that transgression. Many fail to remember that, just because punishment is not always immediate, doesn't mean that it's been forgotten by heaven.

1. Do not rebuke an elder with harshness, but plead with him as a father; and the younger men as your brothers; 2. and the elder women as mothers; and the younger women as your sisters, with all purity. 3. Honor widows who are truly widows. 4. But if a widow has children or grandchildren, let them first learn to show kindness to their own households and to repay the obligations to their parents; for this is acceptable before Elohim. 5. Now she who is truly a widow and alone, her hope is in Elohim; and she perseveres in prayers and in supplications by night and by day: 6. But she who follows pleasure is dead while she lives. 7. These things enjoin you on them that they may be blameless. 8. But if anyone cares not for them who are his own, and especially for them who are of the household of faith, he has rejected the faith and is worse than the unbelievers.<sup>11</sup> 9. Therefore you choose the widow who is not less than sixty years (old) and who has been the wife of one man 10. and has a reputation for good works; if she has trained up children, if she has entertained strangers, if she has washed the feet of the Set Apart believers, if she has relieved the afflicted, if she has walked in every good work.<sup>12</sup> 11. But the younger widows reject; for they feel lust against the Mashiyach and desire to be married: 12. and their condemnation is fixed because they have cast off their former faith. 13. And they also learn idleness, wandering from house to house; and not only idleness, but also to talk much and to pursue vanities and to speak what they should not. 14. I would therefore, that the younger women marry and bear children and regulate their houses; and that they give no occasion to the adversary for reproach. 15. For some have already begun to turn aside after Satan. 16. If any believing man or believing woman have widows, let them support them; and let them not be a burden on the assembly; so that there may be a sufficiency for such as are really widows. 17. Let the elders who conduct themselves well be esteemed worthy of double honor; especially they who labor in the Word and in doctrine. 18. For the Scripture says, "You will not muzzle the ox in threshing;" and, "The laborer is worthy of his pay." 19. Against an elder do not receive a complaint except at the mouth of two or three witnesses. 20. Those who sin, before all rebuke that the rest of the people may fear. 21. I charge you before Elohim and our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach and his elect Messengers, that you observe these things; and let not your mind be preoccupied by anything: and do nothing with a respect for persons. 22. Lay not the hand hastily on any man; and participate not in the sins of others; keep yourself pure. 23. And from now don't (only) drink water, but drink a little wine on account of your stomach and your continuing infirmities. 24. There are persons whose sins are known and go before them to the place of judgment; and there are some whom they follow after. 25. So also good deeds are known: and those which are otherwise cannot be hid.

<sup>11</sup> The Apostle Paul very clearly describes faith as an action, not an idea or a theology. In this verse he says, "But if anyone cares not for them who are his own" and of course this specifically refers to a man and wife who are to love and care for their own children. YHWH puts the responsibility of caring for children upon fathers and mothers, regardless of the status of a marriage or the relationship between husband and wife. If a person thinks they are unobligated from taking care of their own children because their husband or wife no longer pleases them, they are very greatly deceived. If a person thinks they should punish their husband or wife by not supporting their own children, they are in fact punishing themselves and bringing YHWH's judgment upon their own soul. If a person thinks they are no longer required to financially support their spouses or children because they don't follow the same religion they are under very strong religious deception. All human life is brought into this world under YHWH's power, and those who bring life into this world are responsible to YHWH to love, care and support each human life, regardless of religion. Then Apostle Paul says, "especially for them who are of the household of faith" which now speaks to our obligation as a community to love and care for one another. Those who do not work and provide for themselves and their families and YHWH's people have "rejected the faith and is worse than the unbelievers." What Apostle Paul is saying is consistent from Genesis to Revelation, the "faith" component that brings salvation and redemption is the active demonstration of love and caring for one another. Faith and religion are two different things. Y'shua Mashiyach teaches, "For if you love those that love you, what reward have you? Do not even the publicans do this?" (Matthew 5:46). Faith is the action of righteousness that goes directly opposite and against our carnal flesh.

1. Let them who are under the yoke of servitude hold their masters in all honor, or else the Name of Elohim and His doctrine be reproached. 2. And let them who have believing masters not treat them with disrespect, because they are their Brothers; but let them be more obedient because they are believers and beloved, in whose service they enjoy quietness. These things teach you and request of them. 3. But if there be anyone who teaches a different doctrine and does not agree to the foundational Words of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach and to the doctrine of the Fear of Elohim,<sup>13</sup> 4. he is one that exalts himself while he knows nothing; and he languishes in the search and inquiry about words from which come envy and contention and railing and evil suspicions 5. and the constant arguing of men whose minds are corrupt and devoid of the truth, and who suppose that gain is without Elohim. But from these stand away. 6. But great is our gain which is the Fear of Elohim, with the use of our competence. 7. For we brought nothing into the world; and we know that we can carry nothing out of it. 8. Therefore, food and clothing satisfy us. 9. But they who desire to become rich fall into temptations and into snares and into many lusts which are foolish and hurtful and which drown men in judgment and destruction: 10. for the love of money is the root of all these evils. And there are some who, coveting it, have erred from the faith and brought themselves into many sorrows.<sup>14</sup> 11. But you, O man of Elohim, flee from these things and follow after righteousness and rectitude, and faith and love, and patience and humility. 12. And contend in the good contest of faith; and lay hold of life eternal to which you are called and (of which) you have confessed a good confession before many witnesses. 13. I charge you before Elohim who resurrects all, and (before) Y'shua the Mashiyach who attested a good testimony before Pontius Peelatos, 14. that you keep the injunction, without stain and without blemish, until the manifestation of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach; 15. which Elohim will, in due time make visible; Almighty Elohim, King of Kings<sup>15</sup> and Master of Masters 16. who only is incorruptible and dwells in light to which no one can approach; and whom no man has seen, or even can see: to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen. 17. Charge the rich of this world that they be not uplifted in their minds; and that they confide not in riches in which is no security; but in the living Elohim who gives us all things abundantly for our comfort: 18. and that they do good works and be rich in well-doings; and be ready to give and to communicate: 19. and that they lay up for themselves a good foundation for that which is future, that they may take hold of real life. 20. O Timothy, be careful of that which is committed to you; and shun vain words and the oppositions of false science: 21. for they who profess it have strayed from the faith. Grace be with you. Amen.

13 Isaiah 11:2-3 "And the Spirit of YHWH shall rest upon him, the Spirit of Wisdom and Understanding, the Spirit of Counsel and Might, the Spirit of Knowledge and of the Yirah (Fear) of YHWH; And shall make him of quick understanding in the Yirah (Fear) of YHWH:" A picture of the Menorah is seen here with its seven branches. The center is the Spirit of YHWH while the six other attributes are joined into the center pillar. These seven Spirits also signify perfection or completeness. The Fear of YHWH Elohim is a "Spirit" of YHWH; it is a vital spiritual quality for Life in Mashiyach. The Fear of YHWH is a personal guide; Hebrew yirah means fear, as in fear/awesome/terrifying contrary to Christian teaching that the Fear of YHWH is not really "fear" but love and respect. Isaiah 29:13 reveals how "the Fear of YHWH is taught by the commandment of men"; in other words, man's religious theology and tradition has made void the Fear of YHWH. Many Christians prefer the term "reverence" over "fear"; Christians also use a title of "Reverend" for their clergymen and ministers; therefore, the term "Fear of YHWH" was first negated and then given a theological/semantic twist to apply to their own leadership, as in the case of "reverend." The Fear of YHWH is noted throughout Scripture; B'resheet/Genesis 20:11; 42:18; Shemot/Exodus 9:30; 18:21; Vayikra/Leviticus 25:17; D'varim/Deuteronomy 10:12 and in more than a hundred places. Without the Spirit of the Fear of YHWH, people will fear man, materialism, relativism and all form of idols, including their religious leaders.

14 Khabouris has "for the root" whereas 1905 has "but the root". 1905 reading is retained in the Aramaic.

Y'shua is Melech ha'Melachim (King of Kings) because his government is the Kingdom of Heaven. Zechariah 9:9 says, "Shout, Daughter of Jerusalem! Look! Your king comes to you, righteous and having salvation, gentle and riding on a donkey.” Isaiah 9:7 says, “That his government may be increased, and of peace there be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it through justice and through righteousness from henceforth even forever.” Y’shua’s message is, “repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand” he refers to the Kingdom of Heaven more than 30 times, and Kingdom of Elohim together is mentioned about 100 times in the NT. Y’shua did not come to bring an earthly, but a heavenly kingdom.

Chapter 1

1. PAUL, an apostle of Y'shua the Mashiyach by the will of Elohim according to the promise of life which is in Y'shua the Mashiyach; 2. to Timothy a beloved son; grace and mercy and peace from Elohim the Father and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 3. I thank Elohim whom I serve from my forefathers with a pure conscience, that I continually remember you in my prayers by night and by day: 4. and I desire to see you, and I call to mind your tears; that I may be filled with joy 5. by the recollection which I have, by your genuine faith which dwelt first in your grandmother Lois and in your mother Eunice, and also I am persuaded in you. 6. And so I remind you that you excite the gift of Elohim that is in you by the placing of my hands. 7. For Elohim has not given us a spirit of fear,<sup>1</sup> but of power and of love and of instruction. 8. Therefore, do not be ashamed of the testimony of our Master (Y'shua), nor of me his prisoner; but endure evils in connection with the Good News through the power of Elohim, 9. who has resurrected us and called us with a Set Apart calling; not according to our works but according to his good pleasure and his grace that was given us in Y'shua the Mashiyach from time before the ages 10. and is now made known by the appearing of our Life-Giver, Y'shua the Mashiyach who has abolished death and has made manifest life and immortality by the Good News 11. of which I am constituted a herald and an apostle and a teacher of the Gentiles. 12. Therefore I suffer these things: and I am not ashamed, for I know in whom I have believed and I am persuaded that he is competent to keep for me my deposit against that day. 13. Let the form of sound words which you have heard from me abide with you; with faith and love in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 14. Guard the treasure by the Ruach haKodesh who dwells in us. 15. This you know, that all those in Asia have turned from me; and that among them are Phygellus and Hermogenes. 16. May our Master (Y'shua) bestow mercy on the house of Onesiphorus, for many times he refreshed me and was not ashamed of the chains of my imprisonment. 17. But also, when he came to Rome, he sought for me with diligence, and found me. 18. May our Master (Y'shua) grant him that he may find mercy with our Master (Y'shua) in that day. And how he ministered to me at Ephesus, you very well know.

Chapter 2

1. You therefore, my son, be strong in the grace which is by Y'shua the Mashiyach. 2. And the things you have heard from me by many witnesses, these commit you to faithful men who are competent to teach others also. 3. And endure evils as a good soldier of Y'shua the Mashiyach. 4. No man, on becoming a soldier, entangles himself with the business of the world; that he may please him who enlisted him. 5. And if one competes (in the games), he is not crowned unless he competes according to the rules.<sup>2</sup> 6. The husbandman who labors should be first to feed on his fruits. 7. Consider what I say. Our Master (Y'shua) give you wisdom in all things. 8. Be mindful of Y'shua the Mashiyach, that he arose from the dead; who was of the seed of Dawid, according to my proclamation, 9. in which I suffer evils to bonds as if an evil-doer: but the Word of Elohim is not in bonds.

1 A spirit of fear here refers to the fear of man, fearing things in every day life, or anything other than Fearing YHWH. See footnote on 1 Timothy 6:3.

2 Here the word namusa, which frequently refers to Torah, is clearly being used to denote man-made rules. To properly understand Rav Shaul's writings, it is critical to understand when Rav Shaul is referring to the Torah of YHWH and when he speaks about man's rules.

10. Therefore I endure everything for the elect's sake; that they also may obtain life in Y'shua the Mashiyach with eternal glory. 11. Faithful is the saying, For if we will have died with him we will also live with him; 12. and, if we will have suffered, we will also reign with him. But if we will have rejected him, he will reject us. 13. And if we will have not believed in him, he abides in his fidelity; for he cannot reject himself. 14. Of these things admonish you them and charge (them) before our Master (Y'shua) that they do not argue with unprofitable words to the subversion of those who hear them. 15. And study to present yourself before Elohim perfectly, a laborer who is not ashamed, one who correctly announces the Word of Truth. 16. Avoid vain discourses in which there is no profit; for they very much add to the wickedness of those occupied with them. 17. And their discourse, like an eating cancer, will lay hold upon many. And one of these is Hymeneus, and another Philetus<sup>3</sup> 18. who have wandered from the truth while they say, The resurrection of the dead has passed; and they subvert the faith of some. 19. But the firm foundation of Elohim stands and it has this seal: "Master YHWH knows them who are His" and, "Let everyone who invokes the name of our Master (Y'shua) stand aloof from iniquity." 20. But in a great house there are not only vessels of gold or silver, but also of wood and of pottery; and some of them for honor, and some for dishonor. 21. If therefore anyone purge himself from these things, he will be a pure vessel for honor, fit for the use of his Master (Y'shua) and prepared for every good work. 22. Fly from all the lusts of youth; and follow after righteousness and faith and love and peace with them that invoke our Master (Y'shua) with a pure heart. 23. Avoid those foolish discussions which afford no instruction; for you know that they generate arguments. 24. And a servant of our Master (Y'shua) you should not contend with, but to be mild towards everyone and instructive and patient;<sup>4</sup> 25. that with mildness he may enlighten those who dispute against him if perhaps Elohim may give them repentance and they may acknowledge the truth, 26. and may recollect themselves and may escape out of the snare of Satan, at whose pleasure they have been held ensnared.

1. But know this: That in the latter days hard times will come: 2. and men will be lovers of themselves and lovers of money, boasters, proud, revilers, unyielding towards their own people, deniers of grace, wicked, 3. unloving, addicted to irreconcilable malicious gossips, ferocious, haters of the good, 4. treacherous, rash, inflated, attached to pleasure more than to the love of Elohim, 5. having a form of respect for Elohim but wide from the power of Elohim. Them who are such, repel from you. 6. For of them are they who creep into this and that house and captivate the women who are plunged in sins and led away by manner of lusts, 7. who are always learning, and can never come to the knowledge of the truth.<sup>5</sup>

3 Hymanaeus and another Philetus. Ironically these doubters have names that mean "faith" in Aramaic and "love" in Greek, respectively.

4 Here is a double implied Aramaic wordplay; the synonyms of two terms suggest a deeper meaning. In this case "instructive" (from malpana, teacher) suggests "the instruction" or Torah, since Paul uses the other synonym (taara) elsewhere in his writings, such as in Galatians. Then "patience" (nagira) suggests its synonym of sebar (to endure), from which we get the Aramaic word for "Good News"!

5 The western mind portrays Paul as a man of great intellectual knowledge, a very learned scholar, a purveyor of ironclad doctrines and theology; many speculate he was fluent in Greek and Latin, as well as the obvious Hebrew and Aramaic languages. Paul describes the western mind in Acts 17:21 "For all the Athenians and the foreigners residing there, cared for nothing else but to tell or to hear something new." Rav Shaul makes four references to the "knowledge of the truth," the first being in Romans 2:20-29 where he defines the knowledge of the truth according to the spiritual man concluding that, "a Jew who is so in what is hidden: and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not from men, but from Elohim." To the Hebraic mind, "knowledge of the truth" is the active spiritual application of truth (righteous conduct) rather than the cerebral pursuit of it. Those who are "always learning, and can never come to the knowledge of the truth" have intellectualized the Kingdom of Heaven according to theology, religion or religious identity and have neglected the vital necessity of the circumcision of heart and spirit. Paul addresses the praise of men as part of that false pursuit of cerebral knowledge. Religious men want to be looked up to as scholars, theologians, leaders or great orators, many become very proud, arrogant and self-sufficient on the inside and turn their theology and religion into an icon of worship. Paul says, "knowledge inflates (the ego), but love uplifts (the spirit)" 1 Corinthians 8:1.

8. Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moshe,<sup>6</sup> so also do these withstand the truth: men whose mind is corrupted and (are) reprobates from the faith. 9. But they will not make progress, for their infatuation will be understood by everyone, as theirs also was understood. 10. But you have followed after my doctrine and my manner of life, and my aims, and my faith, and my long suffering, and my love, and my patience, 11. and my persecution, and my sufferings. And you know what I endured at Antioch and at Iconium and at Lystra; what persecution I endured: and from all these my Master (Y'shua) delivered me. 12. And likewise all who choose to live in the Fear of Elohim, in Y'shua the Mashiyach, will be persecuted. 13. But evil and seducing men will add to their wickedness while they deceive and are deceived. 14. But continue you in the things you have learned and been assured of; for you know from whom you learned; 15. because from your childhood, you were taught the Set Apart books which can make you wise to life by faith in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 16. All Scripture that was written by the Spirit is profitable for instruction and for decisive refutation, and for correction, and for deep extensive learning in righteousness; 17. that the man of Elohim may become perfect and complete for every good work.<sup>7</sup>

1. I charge you before Elohim and our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach who is to judge the living and the dead at the manifestation of his Kingdom 2. Proclaim the Word and persist (in it) with diligence, in time and out of time; admonish and rebuke with all patience and instructiveness. 3. For the time will come when they will not give ear to sound teaching; but, according to their lusts, will multiply to themselves teachers in the itching of their hearing; 4. and will turn away their ears from the truth, and incline after fables. 5. But be vigilant in all things; and endure evils and do the work of a proclaimer of the Good News, and fulfill your ministry. 6. But I am soon to be burned;<sup>8</sup> and the time of my departure<sup>9</sup> has come. 7. I have fought a good fight, I have completed my race, I have preserved my faith; 8. and from now on there is preserved for me a crown of righteousness with which my Master (Y'shua), the righteous Judge, will recompense me in that day; and not me only, but them also who love his manifestation. 9. Exert yourself to come to me quickly. 10. For Demas has left me and has loved this world and gone away to Thessalonica; Crispus to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia. 11. Luke only is with me. Take Mark and bring him with you; for he is suitable for me for ministration.

6 This is a very interesting reference by Rav Shaul as Jannes and Jambres are never directly named in any ancient version of the Tanakh as the magicians who tried to compete with Moshe. However, they are referred to in some Jewish targums and even in Roman sources such as Pliny the Elder's Natural History. Also the late Second Century Church Founder Origen made reference to "the Book of Jannes and Mambres" but no copies of it have come down to us intact. What this shows is that Rav Shaul is comfortable using both canonical and non-canonical sources to make his points with what he knows his audience is familiar with. While we may never know if Rav Shaul considered these names as authentic, it very much goes to acquitting other parts of the Renewed Covenant writings as spurious simply because they quoted from resources that we today don't give any authority to. We have already witnessed other places where Rav Shaul quotes from even pagan poets to make his point if need be. For more information, please consult the footnotes for Titus 1:16 and Yehuda 1:14. The important distinction is, as verse 16 shows, the ultimate authority on proper behavior remains with Tanakh. See Torah in Appendix.

7 There is much going on in these last two short verses! One of the hallmarks of Western languages like Greek and English is a lack of redundancy in their prose. Hebrew and Aramaic, however, appear very redundant in their morphology, containing double statements such as, "and he opened his mouth to speak and said..." These verses speak volumes about their original Aramaic composition, since there is no reason to say in Greek "all scripture is written." The very definition of scripture *demand*s a written document! Instead, Paul is using a double exploitation of the same root ktab as both "scripture" and "writing." Also the words yulpana (doctrine) and mardota (instruction) are most interesting, since the first word also contains the exact same meaning as the second; but Paul apparently wanted to make a precise point and not list the same word twice. Furthermore "instruction in righteousness" is an excellent definition for "Torah"; this is buffeted by a similar sounding word, toorza, which comes right after it. The same phenomenon occurs with gmira (complete) and meshalmin, which also means "complete" but is rendered here as "perfected." And so we have clusters of similar meanings together: Ktab (scripture, writing); Yulpana (doctrine, instruction) and Mardota (instruction); Gmira (complete, perfection) and Meshalmin (complete, perfection).

8 The Aramaic word metnaqea is translated by Murdock and myself as “immolated/burned”. Lamsa renders it generically as “die” but in all cases the main gist of the meaning is “libation/sacrifice”. Rav Shaul is therefore not talking about the literal cause of his physical death, since he was beheaded. Instead, he makes the point that he is being poured out as an offering for the sake of his Master Y’shua. This is not, of course, the kind of offering that brings forgiveness from our sins; only Mashiyach can do that, and even then the acceptance of Y’shua’s sacrifices must be manifested through Torah observance. Rather, Rav Shaul is being obedient to the command that Y’shua gave him through the servant Khanan-Yah in a more general form in Acts 9:16. This same word is used to similar effect in Philippians 2:17.

9 Or, release.

12. And Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus. 13. And when you come, bring the (small) house (container) of books,<sup>10</sup> which I left at Troas with Carpus, and the books but especially the roll of parchments. 14. Alexander the coppersmith showed me many ills: our Master (Y'shua) will reward him according to his doings. 15. And do you also beware of him for he is very insolent against our words. 16. At my first defense no one was with me, but they all forsook me. Let not this be reckoned to them. 17. But my Master (Y'shua) stood by me and strengthened me, that by me the preaching might be fulfilled,<sup>11</sup> and (that) all the Gentiles might hear: and I was rescued from the mouth of the lion.<sup>12</sup> 18. And my Master will rescue me from every evil work; and will give me life in his heavenly Kingdom. To him be glory, forever and ever. Amen. 19. Give peace<sup>13</sup> to Priscilla and Aquila and to the household of Onesiphorus. 20. Erastus has stopped at Corinth; and Trophimus I left sick at the city of Miletus. 21. Exert yourself to come before winter. Eubulus sends peace to you and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the Brothers. 22. Our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach be with your spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

End of the second Letter to Timothy which was written from Rome.

10 A rather odd reading: "When you come, bring the cloak which I left at Troas with Carpus, and the books, especially the parchments" (2 Timothy 4:13 NASB). This is a very literal translation reflecting well the actual word order of Greek text. However, the text is a bit misleading as it implies that the cloak and books and parchments are unrelated to one another. In other words, Greek appears to say something like, "Bring my coat, and by the way as long as you are there, I have a few books I'd like you to return to me as well." Aramaic holds some additional information: "The book carrier which I left at Troas with Carpus, bring it with you when you come, and the books, especially the parchment scrolls" (2 Timothy 4:13 Lamsa). The literal reading in Aramaic is "house of books." However, Lamsa aptly explains that this is a somewhat idiomatic term for a way to store books and scrolls "in a bag made of leather or woolen cloth." That being the case, why would Greek read "cloak"? The answer is: bayt = house (of books) ebayt = cloak.

11 Fulfilled is one of the most theologically adulterated terms of the New Testament. Here Apostle Paul fulfilled his ongoing preaching to the Gentiles, the Greek term is plerophoreo. In 2 Timothy 4:5 the same Greek word plerophoreo "do the work" is used. When we compare Matthew 5:17 where Y'shua says, "Do not think that I have come to loosen Torah or the prophets, I have not come to loosen but to fulfill (pleroo)" the same context fulfill means to fill full, accomplish, carry out or to bring to realization, to be properly understood, properly revealed, to perform or do, as in a person's duty. Paul is obligated to bring the Kingdom of Heaven to the Gentile world just as Y'shua is obligated to bring Torah (instruction in righteousness) to the world. When we track the Aramaic d'mala, Hebrew maley, and the Greek pleroo there is a consistency of meaning to fill full, accomplish or properly reveal or understand in all three languages. The only inconsistency with these terms is when theologians turn the meaning of "fulfill" into the opposite meaning of "do away with" according to religious theological agendas. There are nearly 100 examples in the New Testament where fulfill always means to properly understand, carry out, perfect, completely manifest, accomplish etc. The following verses provide some of the applications where the reader can use the world fulfill or fulfilled in place of the bold italicized words:

(Mat 1:22) And all this happened that it might be properly understood what was said by Master YHWH through the prophet, (Mat 2:15) That it might be properly understood the thing that was spoken from Master YHWH by the prophet which said that, "From Misrayin I have called my son."

(Mat 2:17) Then was properly understood the thing that was spoken through Yirmeyahu the prophet who said, (Mat 2:23) And he came and dwelled in the city call Nasrath, so that might be properly understood the thing which was spoken by the prophet that "He will be called a Nasraya."

(Mat 4:14) That might be properly understood the thing that was spoken through Yesha'yahu the prophet who said, (Mat 8:17) So that the proper meaning of the words which were spoken through Yesha'yahu the prophet who said, "He will take our sorrows and our illnesses he will bear."

(Luk 1:23) And when the days of his service were completed, he went to his house.

(Luk 2:6) And it happened that while they were there, her days of pregnancy were completed.

(Luk 2:22) And when the days of their purification were completely accomplished according to the instruction of Moshe, they took him up to Urishlim to present him before Master YHWH,

(Luk 4:21) And he began to say to them that, "This Scripture in your ears is made manifest to you today."

(Luk 12:50) And I have an immersion to be immersed with, and I am greatly afflicted until it is completely accomplished.

(Luk 21:24) And they will fall by the edge of the sword and be led away to every land. And Urishlim will be trampled by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles is completely finished.

(Luk 22:16) I say to you for that from now on I will not eat it until it is fulfilled in the Kingdom of Elohim.

12 Interesting how in this verse Rav Shaul calls on an image from Daniel, and then at the same time is literally speaking of dani El (my El's judgment)!

13 The preferred reading of hav shlama is the more literal "give peace" rather than the "salute" Murdock uses, which not only sounds militaristic but is quite the opposite greeting (see Luke 10:5; Romans 16:3).

Chapter 1

1. PAUL, a servant of Elohim and an apostle of Y'shua the Mashiyach; according to the Faith of the elect of Elohim, and the knowledge of the Truth which is in the Fear<sup>1</sup> of Elohim
 2. concerning the hope of eternal life which the Ever-Truthful Elohim promised before the times of the world; 3. and in due time He has manifested His Word by means of our announcement which was confided to me by the command of Elohim our Life-Giver; 4. to Titus, a real son after the common faith: Grace and peace from Elohim our Father and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, our Life-Giver. 5. For this cause left I you in Crete, that you might regulate the things deficient and establish elders in every city, as I directed you: 6. him who is blameless, who is the husband of one wife and has believing children who are no revilers nor ungovernable in sensuality. 7. For an elder should be blameless as the steward of Elohim; and not be self-willed nor hot tempered, nor excessive in wine, nor with hands swift to strike, nor a lover of base gains. 8. But he should be a lover of strangers and a lover of good (deeds), and be sober, upright, kind-hearted, and restraining himself from evil passions; 9. and studious of the doctrine of the Word of Faith that he may be able by his wholesome teaching both to console and to rebuke them that are contentious. 10. For many are stiff necked and their discourses vain; and they mislead the minds of people, especially such as are of the circumcision. 11. The mouth of these should be stopped: they corrupt many families; and they teach what they should not, for the sake of sordid profits. 12. One of them, a prophet of their own, said, "The Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, idle bellies." 13. And this testimony is true. Therefore rebuke them sharply that they may be sound in the faith 14. and may not throw themselves into Jewish fables<sup>2</sup> and into the precepts of men who hate the Truth.<sup>3</sup> 15. For to the pure, everything is pure; but to them who are defiled and unbelieving, nothing is pure; but their understanding is defiled, and their conscience. 16. And they profess that they know Elohim, but in their works they deny him; and they are odious and disobedient and to every good work reprobrates.

1 In Aramaic, the awe/fear of YHWH is a righteous act as opposed to the Greek translation of "godliness".

2 A persistent charge is levied against the Renewed Covenant for being anti-Semitic; this is, of course, wholly remarkable when we consider that every writer, except perhaps Luke, was in fact Jewish! Still, the charge continues due to some very strong language; language that must be considered both carefully and in its proper historical and cultural context. Perhaps the largest source of misunderstanding comes from not appreciating the vociferous manner in which Jews are known to debate. If we fast-forward this verse two thousand years, we now interpret the invectives through our own modernity, but a good preview of how certain statements can be easily misunderstood is right here in Titus 1:10-16. If a Jewish person didn't know better, they would wince and cry "Ouch!" The reading here is in fact accurate, but there is much more to this passage than first meets the eye. First, the line about "Cretians are always liars" is from a Greek poet, Epimenides, who often wrote in an exaggerated theatrical style. Even today, the term "cretin" survives in English and is a holdover from those times, meaning the same thing. Also, since Paul is Jewish and following "all righteousness" it's impossible that Torah is the object of his rebuke as "fables" and "commandments of men"! The same can be said of Jewish mysticism, which we have seen Paul teach on a variety of levels. What then are these "Jewish fables"? According to Charles Ryrie: Jewish myths; speculations of a Gnostic sort, supposedly based on OT scripture. Ryrie Study Bible (NASB), p. 393. The key is in the highlighted portion of the above passage, "they profess to know Elohim, but in works deny him" for by this very description, Paul has named the heretical sect. "Gnosticism" is derived from the Greek gnosis, "to know." What is often overlooked is that Gnosticism did not originate with Christianity, although later adopted by many Messianic themes. Rather, it began as a Jewish sect with their own "myths and fables." According to Professor Ryrie: The heresy of Gnosticism had begun to make inroads among churches in John's day. Among its teachings were: (1) knowledge is superior to virtue; (2) non-literal sense of Scripture is correct and can only be understood by a select few; (3) evil in the world precludes God being the only creator; (4) the incarnation is incredible because deity cannot unite itself with anything material such as a body (Docetism); and (5) there is no resurrection of the flesh. The ethical standards of the Gnostics were low... (Ryrie Study Bible (NASB), p. 440). Is it any wonder then why Paul was upset at these false teachers? Even a conventional Pharisee would take great offense to such doctrines, and they most certainly did with four of these five articles of belief. These false teachings are, of course, diametrically opposite to Paul's own teaching as a "ringleader of the Netzarim", so there should be no surprise when he takes these heresies to task. In any case, one can easily see how modern readers, divorced from the historical context, can easily draw the wrong conclusion and not take into account who the speaker is, and who the intended audience is.

3 Here's an example from Talmud that may shed light on what Paul is explaining. When a righteous man goes against the authority of the rabbis this is what tradition says: "On that day Rabbi Eliezer brought forward every imaginable argument, but they did not accept them. Said he to them: "If the halakhah agrees with me, let this carob-tree prove it!" Thereupon the carob-tree was torn a hundred cubits out of its place. Others affirm, four hundred cubits. "No proof can be brought from a carob-tree," they retorted. Again he said to them: "If the halakhah agrees with me, let the stream of water prove it!"—whereupon the stream of water flowed backwards. "No proof can be brought from a stream of water," they rejoined. Again he urged: "If the halakhah agrees with me, let the walls of the schoolhouse prove it," whereupon the walls inclined to fall. But Rabbi Joshua rebuked them, saying: "When scholars are engaged in a halakhic dispute, what have you to interfere?" Hence they did not fall, in honor of Rabbi Joshua, nor did they resume their upright position, in honor of Rabbi Eliezer; and they are still standing thus inclined. Again he said to them: "If the halakhah agrees with me, let it be proved from Heaven!" Whereupon a Heavenly Voice cried out: "Why do you dispute with Rabbi Eliezer, seeing that in all matters the halakhah agrees with him!" But Rabbi Joshua arose and exclaimed: "It is not in heaven." (Deuteronomy 30:12). What did he mean by this? Said Rabbi Jeremiah: That the Torah had already been given at Mount Sinai; we pay no attention to a Heavenly Voice, because You have long since written in the Torah at Mount Sinai, 'After the majority must one incline.' (Exodus 23:2) Rabbi Nathan met Elijah (the prophet) and asked him: "What did the Holy One, Blessed be He, do in that hour?—He laughed [with joy]," he replied, "saying, 'My sons have defeated Me, My sons have defeated Me.'"—Talmud Bavli, Baba Metzia, 59 a-b. The phrase "it is not in heaven" or lo bashmayim hi in Hebrew, is used to twist the plain meaning of Deuteronomy 30:12. The Rabbis use the phrase to insert their authority. Exodus 23:2 is also reversed, it does not say, "after the majority you must incline", but rather the opposite, "You shall not follow a crowd to do evil." This is what happens when false teachers gain power over innocent believers, this kind of power grab stood against the apostles at every turn, it is rampant in Jewish and Christian circles today where men and women in religious authority demonstrate open hatred for the truth.

1. But as for you, preach the things that belong to wholesome doctrine. 2. And teach the older men to be watchful in their minds and to be sober, and to be pure, and to be sound in the faith, and in love and in patience. 3. And so also the elder women that they be in behavior as is becoming to the Fear of Elohim; and not to be slanderers; and not to be addicted to much wine; and to be teachers<sup>4</sup> of beautiful things, 4. making the younger women to be modest, to love their husbands and their children, 5. to be chaste and Set Apart and to take good care of their households and to be obedient to their husbands, so that no one may reproach the Word of Elohim. 6. And likewise encourage young men to be sober. 7. And in everything show yourself a pattern as to all good works: and in your teaching let your discourse be healthful, 8. such as is sober and uncorrupt; and let no one despise it: so that he who rises up against us may be ashamed, seeing he can say nothing evil against us. 9. Let servants obey their masters in everything and strive to please them, and not contradict nor steal; 10. but let them manifest that their faithfulness, in all respects, is good: so that they may adorn the doctrine of Elohim our Life-Giver in all things. 11. For the all-resurrecting grace of Elohim is revealed to all men; 12. and it teaches us to deny that which is without Elohim and worldly lusts, and to live in this world in sobriety and in uprightness and in the Fear of Elohim, 13. looking for the blessed hope and the manifestation of the glory of the great Elohim and our Life-giver, Y'shua the Mashiyach 14. who gave himself for us that he might recover us from all iniquity and purify for himself a new people who are zealous in good works. 15. These things speak and encourage and point out with all authority; and let no one despise you.

1. And admonish them to be submissive and obedient to princes and powerful leaders; and that they are ready for every good work; 2. and that they speak ill of no man; that they will not be argumentative, but mild; and that in everything they manifest generously towards all men. 3. For we also were formerly reckless and disobedient, and erring, and serving great variety lusts, and living in malice and envy, and were hateful and also hating one another. 4. But when the kindness and compassion of Elohim our Life-Giver was revealed,<sup>5</sup> 5. not by works of righteousness which we had done, but according to his mercy, he revived us by the washing of the new birth and by the renovation (given to us) by the Ruach haKodesh<sup>6</sup> 6. which He shed on us abundantly by Y'shua the Mashiyach our Life-Giver.<sup>7</sup>

4 In 1 Timothy, Rav Shaul commands that women keep silent in the assembly and not assume authority over a man. However, here in Titus 2:3, the older women are instructed to lead by examples of their own piety and to teach the younger women in the Fear of Elohim. (The word malpan most certainly means to teach.) Y'shua is frequently called a Malpana almost as often as he is called a "Rabbi." The concern in 1 Timothy seems not so much about women speaking, but to not speak out of turn while the official leader is teaching. Surely, such action is disrespectful universally; neither is it normal for men to be given such liberty. Rav Shaul encourages the older and spiritually mature women to both teach and be examples for the younger women, as they are able to help safeguard young men and women from "worldly lusts." We don't see endorsement of women congregational leaders in Paul's writings, but we certainly do see encouragement for women to exercise leadership in modesty and be Set Apart unto YHWH.

5 This is a superb literal reading because both Aramaic words that are translated into "savior" in English literally mean "Giver of Life." In this case the actual word itself, makhayan, has khaya at its root, the word for life.

6 A very beautiful passage of Scripture and a great confirmation of our standing in Y'shua the Mashiyach. There is also some strong poetry here as basimoth and w'mrakhmanoth (goodness and mercy) provide another example of a "double reflection" when two words with similar meanings run together. In this case, the common definitions shared by the neighboring words are as follows: basimoth → kindness, pity, mercy ← mrakhmanoth. The last three words in 3:5 represent a very clever alliteration as well: w'b'khodatha (and in renewing) d'Rokha (of the Spirit) d'Qodsha (of separateness). The triple-diction match is very reminiscent of the patterns in the Master's Prayer: Mittil d'd'lakhee (For yours is...) Malkutha (the kingdom) W'haila (and the power) W'tishbokhta (and the glory) Lahlam (forever) Almeen (and ever) Awmayn (Amen). There is a deliberate rhyme (noth, moth) and a beautiful toggling of similar and complimentary "kha" and "qa" sounds in 3:5.

And send peace to all them who love us in the Faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

End of the Letter to Titus which was written from Nicopolis and was sent by the hands of Zenas and Apollos.

8 One of the notable differences between Western Greek Christian and Middle Eastern Jewish culture when “cultivating good works” is evident when it comes to observance of the Word of YHWH. The Western Greek mind often focuses on learning, discussion, debating the necessity of, inquiring into the meaning of, or questioning the validity of such Commandments as Shabbat observance, Feast Days and all other Scriptural instructions. However, Jewish culture enters into the spirituality of the Mitzvot (Commandments), experiencing Shabbat, Pesach (Passover), Yom Teruah (Rosh HaShana, the Feast of Trumpets), Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) or Succoth (Feast of Tabernacles) a Hebraic soul enters in through prayer and preparations of the heart, developing a dialogue with the Ruach haKodesh that cultivates and grows the spiritual man. Jews are well known to argue and debate matters of observance, however the Truth is higher than any one man or his ideas about YHWH and Truth, therefore observance of the Word of YHWH is far more important than how much we are able to cognitively understand or delineate to others. To the Hebraic mind YHWH’s Commandments are His Spirit, YHWH lives inside (through the action of obedience) of those who are obedient to His Word. While the Western Believer uses YHWH’s Word to debate, argue or spar on matters of theology, doctrine or calendar elements, the Hebraic soul seeks spiritual alignment with the Ruach haKodesh and unity with others in the observance of the Commandments. Please see footnote on Ephesians 4:13.

9 The ancient world is not alone when it comes to “stories of genealogies,” there are all manner of Jewish, Christian, Messianic, Hebraic Roots, Ephraimite or Two House identity teachings today that focus on bloodlines, DNA and genealogies. Paul says; “avoid: for there is no profit in them” for very good reason. Many souls have lost their way in Y’shua and have turned to different forms of Orthodox or Karaite Judaism for their spirituality, because of their pursuit of bloodline theology, identity, and “Hebraic” teachings. The “lost sheep of the house of Israel” is an example of an 18th century Christian doctrine that takes the focus off the Kingdom of Heaven and puts it on ancient maps of Europe, Assyriology, self, and Jewish and Israelite history in a bid to link bloodline connections between British and American Christians with the “Lost Sheep of the House of Israel.” One of the ironies of the Ephraimite, Two House, and British Israel movements is that the key word for “lost” sheep in Hebrew is “abad” (destroyed or perished see footnote Matthew 10:6) from which the term “Abaddon” destroyer is derived. The movement has produced leaders who are highly influenced by Rabbinical and Karaite Judaism, some no longer believe Y’shua is the King of Kings, or that Y’shua did not make atonement on the stake, but rather that he came to “gather the 12 Tribes of Israel.” However, Hebrews 13:8 says Y’shua is “the same yesterday, today and forever”. So if Y’shua cannot change, if he is not King of Kings now, he never will be King of Kings. By focusing on self and identity many have elevated their genealogy theories over and above the Redemptive work of Mashiyach and put the Kingdom of Heaven as a secondary pursuit. Some Ephraimite leaders even teach that only the 12 Tribes of Israel will be “saved”. The Ephraimite movement views Christian America as bountifully rich and fruitful, YHWH’s gift to the world, teaming with Christian consciousness, love, opportunity and blessings. The key point however is: There is only one Torah for the Jew and the foreigner (Numbers 15:15-16) and the righteous from the nations become part of the commonwealth of Israel (Ephesians 2:11-16) which in turn entails all 12 tribes in unity (Revelation 7:1-8). As believers in Y’shua Mashiyach our one true spiritual identity is that we love him by keeping the Commandments of His Father YHWH (Revelation 22:14). That is also why Jeremiah 31:31-34 starts with Two Houses and ends with One—Israel. Ezekiel goes even further: “And for all there is One Shepherd from David to rule over them all, the two sticks being the shepherd’s staff in his hand: And I will make them one nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel; and one king will be king for all of them; and they will no longer be two nations and no longer be divided into two kingdoms.” (Ezekiel 37:22-NAU) Since it is clear that there is no Mediator between humanity and Abba YHWH other than Y’shua the Mashiyach, why does it seem as extremists from all camps are promoting their man-made hierarchies, whether Jewish, Christian, Catholic, Messianic, Hebrew Roots or Ephraimite? In part the answer must reside with the deceptions of the enemy that are reflected in the root level of the Hebrew language itself. Ephraim first appears in Genesis 41:52; “He named the second Ephraim for he said, Elohim has made me fruitful in the land of my affliction.” There are two concepts brought into sharp juxtaposition here. First is the word para (fruitful), which according to Brown Driver Briggs becomes “Ephraim” in Hiphil form. So when Joseph’s children—or anyone else for that matter—lives in righteousness, they can be fruitful even in tough times. That’s the good news. However, the sense of affliction (oni, anah in Hebrew) could also be viewed as a warning of what will befall those who choose rebellion and unrighteousness. Very often in Hebrew a “blessing” word starts with the letter Aleph but turns “corrupt” by swapping it with the similar sounding Ayin. For example, “light” is spelled Aleph-Waw-Resh, but “blindness” is spelled Ayin-Waw-Resh (see Exodus 4:11). Similarly, Ephraim is spelled with an Aleph but if we swap it for an Ayin we get Ephra which means “ash heap”. In Psalm 44:24-26 we find “affliction” not with “fruitfulness” as it is in Genesis 41:52 but with dirt, dust, ashes via Ephra: “Why do you hide Your face and forget our affliction (oni) and our distress? For our core beings have sunk down into the dust (epher/apher). Our body clings to the earth. Rise up! Be our help! And redeem us for the sake of Your loving-kindness.” Therefore, just as “light” degrades to “blindness” so too can “Ephraim” stop being fruitful and become ashes, the ultimate symbol of surrender or mourning. The same choices apply to everyone, not for Ephraim alone. Adam was formed from Ephra/Apher and was told; “For Apher (dust) you are and to Apher (dust) you shall return” (Genesis 3:14). The Good News is that all of humanity is called to fruitfulness through righteous behavior—regardless of what man made teachings say—to celebrate and rejoice in Mashiyach and Torah. When we open our hearts to Torah we are fruitful, but when we rebel and turn a blind eye we come to ashes. On that score, when we walk in humility and repent of our sins in sackcloth and ashes we become “fruitful” again. As believers in YHWH, whether Jewish, Christian, Catholic, Messianic, Hebrew Roots or Ephraimite, and so forth, each soul belongs to Abba YHWH therefore it is incumbent upon each of us to seek the divine spark in others, the Messianic spiritual components that live inside of each and every soul. No teacher has ever elevated the importance of love as did Y’shua haMashiyach as it is written: “In this is love; it was not that we loved Elohim, but that Elohim loved us and sent his Son as atonement for our sins. My beloved, if Elohim has so loved us, we also should love one another.” (1 Yochanan 4:10-11).

10 Aramaic reads: “But foolish questions and stories of genealogies and the disputes and contests of the sapra (scribes) avoid: for there is no profit in them, and they are vain.” Greek reads: “But avoid foolish controversies and genealogies and arguments and quarrels about the law (nomikos) because these are unprofitable and useless” (NIV). The Greek word nomikos is derived from nomos, and most certainly means “things pertaining to the law.” But the Aramaic sapra, clearly designates “Scribe” as opposed to Torah (nomikos, namusa). As such, this verse is yet another example of how attacking a small group of heretics was applied to the entire Jewish people. The “scribes” here that Paul mentions are actually two separate groups. First, there are “the scribes and the Pharisees” who are frequently mentioned in the Good News as they who reviled the teachings of Y’shua; these scribes are rebuked in Galatians 3 and 4 for putting fences around Torah. The second type of “Scribe” that fits both this description and rebuke are the Evyonim, or Ebionites. These were Pharisees who accepted Y’shua as Mashiyach but who rejected any divine claims about him. Their dispute began with the circumcision controversy in Acts 15, where they lost the debate. Twenty years later, the Evyonim broke off from the mainstream Netzarim movement, throwing out all of the early books of the Ketuvim Netzarim except for a mutilated version of the Good Tidings of Matthew which they heavily edited. Both groups were very well known for their Mastery of Hebrew and Aramaic; therefore the term “Scribe” is very appropriate here. Again the Peshitta contains the historically accurate reading, whereas the Greek translator showcases a political and bigoted agenda. Certainly the Greek translators could not have imagined the centuries of hatred that would be levied against “the Jews” because of their own bias; nor could they have imagined how their sloppy translation work would cause Jews to avoid learning about Y’shua from within their Jewish culture. This, in turn, would cause division and hatred within the Judeo-Christian world for nearly two millennia.

1. PAUL, a prisoner of Y'shua the Mashiyach, and Timothy, a brother; to the beloved Philemon, a laborer with us, 2. and to our beloved Apphia, and to Archippus a laborer with us, and to the assembly<sup>1</sup> in your house. 3. Grace be with you and peace from Elohim our Father and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach. 4. I thank my Elohim always and remember you in my prayers, 5. Behold, from the time that I heard of your faith and of the love you have towards our Master Y'shua and towards all the Set Apart believers; 6. that there may be a fellowship of your faith, yielding fruits in works, and in the knowledge of all the good things you possess in Y'shua the Mashiyach. 7. For we have great joy and consolation because the bowels (loving/kind hearts) of the Set Apart believers are refreshed by your mercies.<sup>2</sup> 8. Therefore I might have great freedom in the Mashiyach to enjoin upon you the things that are right. 9. But for love's sake, I earnestly beseech you even I, Paul, who am aged, as you know, and now also a prisoner for Y'shua the Mashiyach. 10. I beseech you for my son whom I had begotten in my bonds, for Onesimus 11. from whom formerly you had no profit, but now very profitable will he be both to you and to me, and whom I have sent to you. 12. And receive him as one begotten by me.<sup>3</sup> 13. For I was wanting to retain him with me that he might minister to me in your stead, in these bonds for the Good News. 14. But I would do nothing without consulting you; or else your benefit should be as if by compulsion and not with your will. 15. And perhaps, also, he therefore departed from you for a season that you might retain him forever; 16. from now on though, not as a servant, but more than a servant, a brother dear to me and much more to you, both in the flesh and in our Master (Y'shua). 17. If therefore you are in fellowship with me, receive him as one of mine. 18. And if he has wronged you or owes anything to you, place it to my account.<sup>4</sup> 19. I, Paul, have written (it) with my own hand, I will repay: not to say to you that to me you owe your very life! 20. Yes, my brother, let me be refreshed by you in our Master (Y'shua): refresh yourself my mercies in the Mashiyach. 21. Being confident that you will listen to me, I have written to you: and I know that you will do more than I say. 22. And meanwhile, prepare also a house for me to lodge in; for I hope that, by your prayers, I will be given to you. 23. Epaphras, a fellow-captive with me in Y'shua the Mashiyach, sends peace to you; 24. and Mark and Aristarchus, and Demas, and Luke, my fellow laborers.<sup>5</sup> 25. The grace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach be with your spirit, my Brothers. Amen.

End of the Letter to Philemon which was written from Rome, and was sent by the hands of Onesimus

1 See Fellowship in Appendix.

2 Not "bowels" in the literal sense, but as a visual metaphor where "bowels" in Hebrew and Aramaic thought are also associated with the best of human emotions such as kindness and mercy, which is almost the exact opposite in Western culture. See also Philippians 2:1-2.

3 Or, "as if he were my own heir/son," as stated directly in verse 10. Rav Shaul is saying that if this man was his son who had left home and became a servant later, but that the servant's new Master was himself subservient to Rav Shaul, then Rav Shaul has ultimate say on how the servant is treated. The heir-ship of the man in question trumps his temporary condition as a servant in Philemon's house as verses 16-17 demonstrate in both a "carrot" and "stick" approach!

4 A clear contrast between physical and spiritual debts. Paul opens by saying that if the slave Onesimus owes his Master Philemon anything (physical) that Philemon should put it on Paul's spiritual account! Shifting into the "treasures in heaven" occurs when Paul reminds his friend that he owes his life. This is an important statement because Philemon is very likely well aware of what Paul wrote in Romans 6:23 "For the wages of sin is death; but the free gift of Elohim is life eternal, through our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach." According to both widely held ancient tradition and modern scholarship, this Letter to Philemon is one of the "prison Epistles" that Paul wrote from his jail cell in Rome. Further, since there is no other destination directly mentioned in this letter, it is likely that Paul's courier simply walked it across the street to the "house assembly" (verse 2) where Philemon resided. Philemon and his wayward servant then would have heard the strong "wages of sin" message that Paul had preached earlier in his Letter to the Romans. Two key Aramaic words cement Paul's original point. The first one is parai which is defined by the Comprehensive Aramaic Lexicon as: retribution, vengeance, punishment, repayment. So here we have the implication of "wages of sin is death," the "repayment" that Paul promises will happen either for virtue or ill, and the final nail in his argument is with the second word, shmech (obedience). Reason being, shmech is related to another word that also can mean "obey": shalom. In other words, if Philemon will not forgive his slave, then figuratively speaking Philemon could forfeit his life. However, if Philemon obeys (shmech), then Paul will award or bless him with peace (shalom). Finally, it is also no coincidence that shmech sounds a lot like shema (Hear O Israel, YHWH is our Elohim, YHWH is one), for it carries this meaning in the sense of “Okay, I hear you” and, by implication, that person also will automatically obey. And so, just like YHWH did with the Israelites, Paul is clearly setting before Philemon the way of blessing and cursing, life and death, and telling him to choose life in no uncertain terms. Now, some may debate whether Paul used these words in anticipation of Philemon getting the underlying implications, or not. Either way, the fact remains that Aramaic in Philemon brings us much closer to the mind of Paul. Also we see how the audience of the letter itself may not have a critical bearing on how it was originally composed. As an analogy to this concept, consider a message from a great Rabbi, Prime Minister or President traveling in a foreign country. He might think and write a letter in his native language, have it translated into the local language, and then have many versions written in other languages that he may, or may not be conversant in. Still, regardless of the local vernacular, the heart of the original language remains.

5 Perhaps the only place in the NT where both Mark and Luke are said to be in the same place at the same time. Since Mark’s death is generally accepted at circa 62 CE in Alexandria, this Epistle obviously dates before then. Rav Shaul’s quotes from the Good News (Gospel) are confined to Matthew (e.g. Matthew 26:26 and 1 Corinthians 11:23-24), and yet, two other Good News writers are traveling with him! While it is true that Mark in particular has very close wording to Matthew’s account, nevertheless this is a verbatim quote, solely from Matthew.

The Second Testimony of Yochanan

1st Yochanan	681
2nd Yochanan	693
3rd Yochanan	695
Revelation	697

1. WE announce<sup>1</sup> to you that which was from the beginning which we have heard and have seen with our eyes, looked upon, and handled with our hands, that which is the Word of Life. 2. And the life was manifested, and we have seen and do testify and announce to you the life which is eternal; which was with the Father and was revealed to us. 3. And what we have seen and heard, we make known to you also that you may have fellowship with us; and our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Y'shua the Mashiyach.<sup>2</sup> 4. And these things we write to you, that our joy in you may be complete.<sup>3</sup> 5. And this is the announcement which we have heard from him and declare to you, that Elohim is light and no darkness at all is in him. 6. And if we say that we have fellowship with him and we walk in the darkness, we are liars and walk not in the truth. 7. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship with each other and the blood of Y'shua his Son cleanses us from all our sins. 8. And if we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us. 9. But if we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all our iniquity. 10. If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar and his word is not with us.

1 The use of "we" is probably John referring to other Elders and Apostles in the Faith that have reviewed or sanctioned the letter. It was common for even the "pillars" as Rav Shaul referred to some of them, to appeal to the Twelve as a whole for certifying proper halakha or relating events as they actually happened. It is also a key "fingerprint" of John's writing as he has done this before (John 21:24). See also the footnote on 3 John 1:12.

2 As in The Good News According to John, Yochanan bar Zawdee (Shaliach/Apostle John) writes with a poetic flair that breaks grammatical conventions and marks his texts as both an Aramaic original and as a unique creation that could only come from his pen. The first sentence in the Good News begins with four words that "break all the rules" in order to make a spiritual point about all divine attributes resting on and in Mashiyach, which we will briefly review here for easy comparison with his First Epistle: Breshit aytahi hwa Miltha-- In the Beginning was the Miltha. Once again, we have the unusual - and unprecedented - mating of two male terms (there, was) with one female noun miltha, (word). This usage is so unique as to constitute a literary fingerprint for John's style, as it appears nowhere else in either the Renewed Covenant or any known Aramaic/Syriac literature, with the exception of those works that draw directly on John. Paul never breaks this grammatical rule, and the same can be said of Peter, James and Yehuda. However, in the first line of his letter here, John makes it clear that he is returning to teach: "He who was with us from the beginning, the one whom we have heard and have seen with our own eyes, have looked upon and have touched with our hands, we declare to you is the Word of life" (1 John 1:1 Lamsa). Just as the opening words from the Good News, John again packs an amazing degree of spiritual depth into very few words. The first aspect is the exact poetic construction; only it is one male verb and female noun which has essentially the same effect (aytohi miltha).

The parallels continue with the word B'resheet (in the beginning), which dovetails with the first lines of both his Good News as well as that of Genesis. In fact, if we compact this text we still have the phrase, "from the beginning there was the Word." Perhaps the greatest comparison is with the foundational statement of Torah itself: Shema Yisrael YHWH Eloheinu, YHWH echad. (Hear O Israel, YHWH is our Elohim, YHWH is one.) If we examine various translations of this text, an interesting pattern emerges. Some translate this as "that which we have heard and seen," as opposed to Lamsa's "The One whom we have heard and seen". Why? The answer is that this phrase in the first line of John's Good News (eykhadaya) is implied in Aramaic. Choosing a literal translation, using the word what here gives a reading that could refer to the truth, a precept, teaching, and so on.

Lamsa takes a different view, perceptively pointing out that there is only one "Who" that has been from the very beginning, and that same Individual is the Word of Life. The "Word" then is neither a concept nor a teaching, but an all-powerful Being. However, what is not entirely wrong; English has two ways of expressing "who" but Aramaic only has one. It is just as correct to say, for example, "the man who was good to me" as it is to say "the man that was good to me." I favor the Lamsa rendering, Elohim is a Who rather than a That and, of course, He is the only One who existed before creation. Further, it is in this uniqueness where we find the idea of "The One" (eykhadaya) staring back at us by subtle inference. These details showcase, conceptually, the linkage between Aramaic 1 John, and the Shema declaration of Deuteronomy 6:4. In the Shema, Israel is being asked to hear; in 1 John members of Israel respond to what they have heard. Similarly, the Shema proclaims that Elohim is ONE (echad). Aramaic in 1 John reflects this with implied "eykhadaya." In fact, "the One whom we have heard" strongly and clearly reflects the Aramaic mindset of John. It is simply a connection indicative of a Semitic mindset, in much the way Isaiah's (26:3) use of the phrase shalom shalom (perfect peace) is.

3 Perhaps the most beautiful pattern in 1 John has to do with another incredible implied wordplay. As shown in the section on cognate accusatives in the publication Ruach Qadim, where the multiple meaning of an Aramaic root is exploited two or more times in a phrase. A statement by Ben Franklin was used to highlight this concept where he stated, "Gentlemen we must all hang together or most assuredly we shall hang separately." But what if, instead of a direct exploitation of hang's dual meanings, Franklin referred to one meaning of the word while indirectly referencing its other use. In other words, what if he had instead said: "Gentlemen, we must all hang together or most assuredly they will string us up with rope separately." Granted while not nearly as graceful as the first foray, it would nevertheless be clever. The joke then would rely on a slight delay mechanism, since it may take a few seconds for the hearer to rationalize - "Right, string up with rope is hang too, I get it." The same thing is happening in these two passages from 1 John: "And these things we write to you that our joy in you may be complete" (1 John 1:4 Lamsa). "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casts out fear because fear is tormenting. He who fears is not made in perfect love" (1 John 4:18 Lamsa). The key to this bit of genius is found when looking at what is described as opposed to what is being stated. Put simply, if perfect love casts out fear, or complete joy fills you up, what else can the result be other than shalom (peace)? And so, once again, we see a direct root relationship between perfection/completion (mshamliya) and peace (shlama), and the meaning of the first occurrence is clearly describing the end product of the second!

1. My children, these things I write to you that you do not sin. But if any one should sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Y'shua the Mashiach, the righteous. 2. For he is himself the atonement for our sins; and not for ours only but also for all the world. 3. And by this we will be sensible that we know him, if we keep his Commandments. 4. For he that says I know him, and does not keep his Commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him. 5. But he that keeps his Word, in him is the Love of Elohim truly completed: for by this we know that we are in him. 6. He that says "I am in him" is bound to walk according to his halakha.<sup>4</sup> 7. My beloved, I write no new commandment to you, but the old Commandment which you had from the beginning; and the old Commandment is the Word which you have heard.<sup>5</sup> 8. Again, a new commandment I write to you which is true in him and in you; because the darkness has passed away and the true light begins to appear. 9. Whoever therefore will say that he is in the light, and hates his brother, is in darkness until now. 10. He that loves his brother abides in the light, and in him is no stumbling. 11. But he that hates his brother is in darkness and walks in darkness; and he does not know where he goes, because the darkness has blinded his eyes. 12. I write to you, you children, because your sins are forgiven you for His name's sake. 13. I write to you, you fathers, because you have known him who existed from the beginning. I write to you, you young men, because you have vanquished the evil one. 14. I have written to you, you little ones, because you have known the Father. I have written to you, you fathers, because you have known him who (was) from the beginning. I have written to you, you young men, because you are strong and the Word of Elohim dwells in you, and you have vanquished the evil one. 15. Love not the world nor anything in it; for whoever loves the world has not the love of the Father in him. 16. For all that is in the world is the lust of the body and the lust of the eyes and the pride of the world, which are not from the Father but from the world<sup>6</sup> itself. 17. And the world is passing away, (both) it and the lust thereof; but he that does the pleasure of Elohim abides for ever.<sup>7</sup> 18. My children, it is the latter time; and as you have heard that a false Messiah was to arise, so there are now many false Messiahs;<sup>8</sup> and from this we know that it is the latter time.

4 Literal reference, "walk according to his walking" and in both cases the word is halakh.

5 "Elohim is light", (1 John 1:5); therefore, it can be argued that at Creation when YHWH said, "Let there be light", Genesis 1:3, that He in effect brought a part of Himself out to accomplish the creative act. The "Word" does this same feat, Psalm 33:6; John 1:1; a few lines earlier we read the "Word of Life." We have also seen before the direct linguistic relationship between the Hebrew and Aramaic roots for "Light" and "Torah" such as: "Your word (davar) is a lamp to my feet, a light (aur) to my path" (Psalm 119:105). "For the commandment is a lamp. The teaching is a light (aur), and the way to life is the rebuke that disciplines" (Proverbs 6:23). What makes this citation in Proverbs most profound is the word mitzvah (commandment), since tradition commonly calls the revelation at Sinai the Ten Commandments when in fact the Tanakh uses davarim (words)! Keep this in mind while considering 1 John 2:4. "He who says I know Him and does not keep His Commandments (poqadona) is a liar and the truth is not in him. But whoever keeps His word (miltha) in him, verily is the love of Elohim perfected; hereby we know that we are in Him" (1 John 2:4 Lamsa). Aramaic could not make a more forceful point. The fact is, poqadona and miltha are exceedingly close matches for their Hebrew counterparts mitzvah in Proverbs, and davar in Psalms. However, it is in this next passage that the full measure of John's brilliance is shown: "My beloved, I do not write a new commandment to you, but an old commandment that you have had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word that you have heard from the beginning" (1 John 2:7 Lamsa). The Commandment is the Word, which comes from the beginning. We must now realize that to translate this as "his Commandments" is wrong, but "His Commandments" is correct. "His Commandments" is the WORD which came from the very beginning of time. Many fail to understand this truth: It is impossible for Torah to have passed away during the lifetime of the Shlichim if John himself writes about the Word they have heard from the beginning. What else could this WORD be, except the living Torah! John is a native Aramaic speaker and follower of Y'shua who knows that the WORD (or the Torah of YHWH) comes from the "Light"; he states that Elohim is Light and that we abide in that Light when we do His Mitzvot/Poqadona/Commandments. Furthermore, the interchanging of "Word" and "Commandment" simply does not happen in any other language except Hebrew and Aramaic, the "word that you have heard" is the Shema!

6 "The world" refers to pagan, Torahless, humanistic, evolutionary, relativistic, materialistic, sensual, unrighteous lifestyles that haSatan used to seduce mankind away from YHWH. This certainly does not refer to the earth which YHWH made according to His good pleasure.

7 "And the world passes away, and the lust thereof, but he who does the will of Elohim abides forever" (1 John 2:17 Lamsa). In Aramaic the words for world (alma) and forever (alam) are nearly identically spelled and pronounced. Notice here also that the first apparent letter of alam – the “I” – does not count and is not highlighted because it is simply the L proclitic. In this case the literal construction comes out awkwardly in English as “living of forever.” The pun is also multi-tiered in this case because ancient Jewish thought has always centered on the idea of olam haba, which is literally rendered as “world to come” but figuratively means “world of eternity” or “heaven.” When confronted with these facts, some theologians suggest that “from the beginning” can mean “from the time of Mashiyach’s ministry”; however, such thinking is easily refuted: “For this is the commandment that you have heard from the beginning, that you must love one another. Not do as Cain did, who belonged to the wicked one and slew his brother” (1 John 3:11-12 Lamsa). If Cain knew this commandment, it must also then go back to Adam. That being the case, the old commandment is very old indeed, and it is rooted firmly in the first book of Torah, known as Genesis!

8 As before, “false Messiahs” is used deliberately rather than the proper title of the genuine one, Y’shua the Mashiyach.

19. From us they went out, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us they would have continued with us: but they went out from us that so it might be known that they were not of us. 20. But you<sup>9</sup> have an anointing from the Set Apart (One); and you discriminate every person. 21. I have not written to you because you don't know the truth, but because you know it and because no falsehood is of the truth. 22. Who is false but he that denies that Y'shua is the Mashiyach? And that person is a false Messiah. He that denies the Father denies also the Son. 23. And he that denies the Son also does not believe the Father. He that confesses the Son confesses also the Father. 24. And what you heard from the first, let that remain with you. For if that which you heard from the first remains with you, you also will remain in the Father and in the Son. 25. And this is the promise which he has promised us: (even) life eternal. 26. And these things I have written to you on account of those who seduce<sup>10</sup> you. 27. And you also, if the anointing which you have received from him remains in you, you need not that any one should teach you; but as that anointing is from Elohim, it teaches you all things; and it is true, and no falsehood is in it. And as it has taught you, remain you in Him. 28. And now, my children, remain you in him; that so, when he will be manifested, we may not be ashamed before Him, but may have an open countenance at His coming. 29. If you know that he is righteous, you also know that whoever does righteousness is from Him.

Chapter 3

1. And you see how great is the love of the Father towards us, who has called us sons and made us (such). Therefore the world knows us not because it likewise does not know Him. 2. My beloved, now are we the sons of Elohim; and up to now it has not appeared what we are to be: but we know that when he will appear, we will be in his likeness and we will see him as he is. 3. And everyone that has this hope from him, purifies himself, as he is pure. 4. And everyone that practices sin, perpetrates iniquity; for all sin is iniquity.<sup>11</sup> 5. And you know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him was no sin. 6. And everyone that abides in him sins not: and everyone that sins, has not seen him nor has known him. 7. My children, let no one deceive you: he that does righteousness, is righteous, as the Mashiyach also is righteous. 8. And he that commits sin is of Satan; because Satan was a sinner from the beginning: and for this cause, the Son of Elohim appeared that he might destroy the works of Satan. 9. Everyone that is born of Elohim does not practice sin because his seed is in him and he cannot sin because he is born of Elohim.<sup>12</sup> 10. By this are the children of Elohim discriminated from the children of Satan. Everyone that does not practice righteousness and that loves not his brother, is not of Elohim: 11. because this is the Commandment which you heard from the beginning, that you should love one another. 12. Not like Cain who was of the evil one and killed his brother. And why did he slay him, but because his own works were evil and those of his brother righteous?

13. And wonder not, my Brothers, if the world hate you. 14. We know that we have turned from death to life by this, that we love the Brothers. He that loves not his brother remains in death. 15. For everyone that hates his brother is a man-slayer; and you know that no man-slayer can have eternal life abiding in him. 16. By this we know his love towards us because he gave up his life for us: and we also should give up our lives for our Brothers. 17. But whoever has worldly possessions and sees his brother in need and closes off his bowels (of merciful nature) from him, how is the love of Elohim in him? 18. My children, let us not love one another in words and in tongue, but in acts and in truth. 19. And by this we recognize that we are of the truth; and, before he will come, we make our hearts confident. 20. But if our heart condemns us, how much greater is Elohim than our heart, and knowing all things? 21. My beloved, if our heart condemns us not, we have open countenances before Elohim. 22. And whatever we ask, we receive from him; because we keep His (Master YHWH's) Commandments and do acceptable things before him.<sup>13</sup> 23. And this is His Commandment, that we believe on the name of His Son Y'shua the Mashiyach, and that we love one another as He has commanded us. 24. And he that keeps His Commandments is kept by Him and he dwells in Him: and by this we understand that He abides in us, from His Spirit which He has given to us.

1. My beloved, do not believe all spirits; but discriminate among spirits whether they are of Elohim: for many false prophets have gone out into the world. 2. By this the Spirit of Elohim is known; every spirit that confesses that Y'shua the Mashiyach has come in the flesh<sup>14</sup> is of Elohim. 3. And every spirit which does not confess that Y'shua the Mashiyach has come in the flesh is not of Elohim; but he is of the false Messiah of whom you have heard that he comes and now is he already in the world. 4. But you children are of Elohim; and you have overcome them, because greater is he who is in you than he who is in the world. 5. And they are of the world: therefore they speak from the world, and the world hears them. 6. But we are of Elohim; and he that knows Elohim, hears us; and he that is not of Elohim, hears us not. By this, we know the Spirit of Truth and the spirit of error. 7. My beloved, let us love one another: because love is from Elohim; and whoever loves is born of Elohim and knows Elohim. 8. Because Elohim is love; and whoever does not love, does not know Elohim. 9. By this was the love of Elohim towards us made known, because Elohim sent his only-begotten Son into the world that we by him might live. 10. In this is love; it was not that we loved Elohim, but that Elohim loved us and sent his Son as atonement for our sins. 11. My beloved, if Elohim has so loved us, we also should love one another. 12. No one has ever seen Elohim; but if we love one another, Elohim abides in us and his love is perfected in us. 13. And by this we know that we abide in him and that he abides in us, because he has given of his Spirit to us.

<sup>13</sup> "Grace" is clearly tied to doing what pleases YHWH. Those who routinely and willfully disobey YHWH cannot honestly expect to receive any "grace" until they stop misrepresenting His Mashiyach.

<sup>14</sup> The Spirit of Mashiyach dwells inside a person. This does not refer to Y'shua coming in his flesh to Earth; even the demons know that much (see Luke 4:41). This refers to the neshamah (spirit of man) being born from the beginning into the Image of Elohim, which is evidenced by living a Set Apart life unto YHWH, having Torah written upon the heart and growing in the Attributes of Mashiyach as revealed in Isaiah 11:2 and elsewhere.

14. And we have seen and do testify that the Father has sent his Son, a Redeemer for the world. 15. Whoever confesses Y'shua to be the Son of Elohim, Elohim abides in him and he abides in Elohim. 16. And we have believed and known the love which Elohim has towards us: for Elohim is love, and whoever abides in love, abides in Elohim. 17. And hereby is his love perfected with us; that we may have open countenances in the day of judgment; because as he was, so also are we in this world. 18. In love there is no fear; but perfect love casts out fear; because fear exists in peril, and he that fears<sup>15</sup> is not perfected in love. 19. Let us, therefore, love Elohim; because he has first loved us. 20. And if any one will say, I love Elohim, and yet hates his brother, he is a liar: for he that loves not his brother who is visible, how can he love Elohim who is invisible? 21. And this command we have received from him, that whoever loves Elohim, must love also his brother.

1. Whoever believes that Y'shua is the Mashiyach, is born of Elohim. And whoever loves the begetter, loves him also that is begotten of him. 2. And by this we know that we love the children of Elohim, when we love Elohim and follow his Commandments. 3. For this is the love of Elohim, that we keep his Commandments: and his Commandments are not burdensome. 4. Because, whoever is born of Elohim overcomes the world: and this is the victory that overcomes the world, our faith. 5. For who is he that overcomes the world, but he that believes that Y'shua is the Son of Elohim? 6. This is he who came by the water and the blood. Y'shua the Mashiyach; not by the water only, but by the water and the blood. And the Spirit testifies; because the Spirit is truth. 7. Verse 7 is nonexistent in the Eastern Peshitta<sup>16</sup> 8. And there are three witnesses, the Spirit and the water, and the blood: and these three are in union.<sup>17</sup> 9. If we receive the testimony of men, how much greater is the testimony of Elohim? And this is the testimony of Elohim which he has testified concerning his Son. 10. Whoever believes in the Son of Elohim has this testimony in himself. And whoever believes not Elohim has made him a liar by not believing the testimony which Elohim has testified concerning his Son. 11. And this is the testimony that Elohim has given to us life eternal, and this life is in his Son. 12. Everyone that takes hold of the Son takes hold of life; and everyone that takes not hold of the Son, has not life. 13. These things have I written to you that you may know that you have life eternal, you who believe in the name of the Son of Elohim. 14. And this is the confidence that we have towards him, that whatever we ask of him, agreeably to his will, he hears us. 15. And if we are persuaded that he hears us respecting what we ask of him, we are confident of receiving presently the petitions which we asked of him. 16. If anyone will see his brother sin a sin which does not deserve death, he will ask, and life will be given him, to them (I say) who sin not as to death. For there is a sin of death; and I do not say of this that a man should pray for it.

<sup>15</sup> This refers to the fear of man, the fear of loss and every other form of fear, except the Fear of YHWH. The Fear of YHWH helps to perfect the love of YHWH. A young child is taught about boundaries to protect and sustain the child's welfare. The more wisdom and understanding a child has of their boundaries and environment, the more likely they will not fall into danger. Young children do not have the knowledge that their parents do; neither does mankind have all the knowledge that YHWH has. Only a fool would overstep the boundaries established by YHWH, this is not done by those who are wise and understanding in Mashiyach.

<sup>16</sup> Appended text: (For there are three that testify in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Ruach haKodesh: and these three are one.), which is why Murdock puts the brackets and adds: "This verse is not wanting in most MSS., and is omitted in the edit. London, 1826." The fact is that this line was inserted under the authority of Constantine to promote the Trinity doctrine. It does not exist in the Peshitta nor the oldest Greek manuscripts of Aleph, A, B and the Vulgate. Christo-Paganism which originated before Constantine taught that the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are numerically three separate beings, but yet "all the same" is a blatant violation of the First and Second Commandments (see Sh'mot/Exodus 20:1-6).

18 1 Yochanan 1:9 reads; “But if we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all our iniquity”. The same Aramaic word for iniquity ܐܝܢܐ (eola in Aramaic; evel in Hebrew) is translated in this verse as unrighteousness. The first mention of “evel” in Scripture is in Leviticus 19:15; “You shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: you shall not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty; but in righteousness you shall judge your neighbour.” Notice that (evel) unrighteousness is the opposite of (tsedeq) righteousness.

The KJV translates “evel” as iniquity (36 times), wickedness (7), unrighteousness (3), unjust (2), perverseness (1), unjustly (1), unrighteously (1), wicked (1), and wickedly (1 time); there are 53 occurrences of “evel” in the Tanakh and 69 in the NT. Y'shua teaches, “...He that raises His sun upon the good and upon the evil and causes to descend His rain upon the just and the unjust” (Matt. 5:45) precisely as the Tanakh teaches that good and just are the opposite of evil and unjust.

Yochanan teaches, “For he that says I know him, and does not keep his Commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him.” (1 Yochanan 2:4). And in 1:7 he teaches, “My beloved, I write no new commandment to you, but the old Commandment which you had from the beginning; and the old Commandment is the Word which you have heard.” Yet many Christians have been taught that they are not obligated to “keep his Commandments”, that there is a sin which is “not of death” and they are forgiven of their repeated and willful sin and simply get away with it.

However, Yochanan concludes his letter with an appeal for all followers of Y'shua to “keep yourselves from idolatry” therefore it must also be concluded that any religion that teaches against the Commandments of YHWH and His Mashiyach is an idolatrous religion. Religion has become the idol of many Christians. Many put their trust in a religion “about” Mashiyach rather than follow his Word and “keep his Commandments”. According to Y'shua's own words a group of Christians will hear him say; “Depart from me, you workers of (evel) iniquity” (Matt. 7:23; please also see the footnote).

19 “The True One and the True Elohim” refer to the full scope of YHWH's redemptive plan. Not just that YHWH can save, but through whom He chooses as His vehicle for salvation; Y'shua our Master. It is only with the full understanding of not just the prophecies in Tanakh, but how they manifest and are revealed through Y'shua, that the full measure of YHWH's love becomes manifest and can transform our souls. This is a central theme in Yochanan's letter, he teaches that without love, the truth is not within us. Yochanan is not only talking about brotherly love but more specifically about a wonderfully deep, trusting and devoted love within our Master YHWH.

SECOND LETTER OF YOCHANAN

1. The Elder<sup>1</sup> to Kuria the elect, and to her children:<sup>2</sup> whom I love in the truth, and not I only, but all they who know the truth; 2. For the sake of the truth which abides in us and is with us forever. 3. May grace be with you and mercy and peace from Elohim the Father, and from our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach, the Son of the Father, in truth and love. 4. I have rejoiced greatly that I found (some) of your children who walked in the truth, as we have received Commandment from the Father. 5. And now I beg you, Kuria, (I write no new commandment to you but that which was with us from the beginning) that we should love one another. 6. And this is love,<sup>3</sup> that we walk according to the Commandment. This is the Commandment, as you have heard from the beginning, that we should walk in it. 7. Because many seducers have gone forth into the world who do not confess that Y'shua the Mashiyach has come in the flesh. This is a seducer and antiChristos.<sup>4</sup> 8. Take heed to yourselves that you do not lose what you have gained; but that you may be recompensed with a full reward. 9. Everyone who transgresses and does not abide in the teaching of the Mashiyach, Elohim is not in him. And he who abides in his doctrine, he has the Father and the Son. 10. If anyone comes to you and does not possess this doctrine, neither entertain him in your house nor say to him, Joy to you: 11. For he that says to him, Joy to you, is a participator in his evil deeds. 12. Having many things I could write to you, I would not with paper and ink; but I hope to come to you and to converse mouth to mouth, that our joy may be complete. 13. The children of your elect sister send you peace. Grace be with you. Amen.

1 Many Bible scholars have attempted to make a distinction between "John the Elder" versus John the son Zawdee, the Shaliach/Apostle. Leaders of congregations (i.e. "priests") are called qasha or qashisha – elders in Aramaic. Aramaic also uses this term for Shlichim/Apostles; therefore, it is possible for the term Elder and Apostle to apply to the same person.

2 "Kuria" (lady) appears to be treated as a title in the Peshitta text; however, Aramaic also has the same word (qoph-resh-yodh-alap = qarya) that means "called" as a participle adjective. "Called" as in the same sense of being chosen; and, is therefore almost adjacent to its synonym rendered in most translations as, "elect." This makes for an Aramaic wordplay. "Kuria" as "lady" makes sense when coupled with the phrase "and to her children." However, "children" can also refer to an assembly of believers. In this context, the alternate reading would be: "to the elect, (body) of the called, and her children (new members of the faith)." See Romans 1:6-7 for a close facsimile. This points to an Aramaic thought pattern on a metaphorical level. This form of the word can be either masculine (Matthew 22:14) or feminine (1 Keefa 3:6, Galatians 4:6) in the third person, but is more often feminine.

3 Here is perhaps the most unpopular definition (and description) of love, among religious or otherwise. However LOVE means – to keep the Commandments.

4 This is a direct loanword from Greek, antiChristos.

THIRD LETTER OF YOCHANAN

---

1. The Elder to my beloved Gaius, whom I love in the truth. 2. Our beloved; in all things, I pray for you that you may prosper and be in health, as your soul also prospers. 3. For I rejoiced greatly when the Brothers came and testified concerning your integrity, even as you walk in the truth. 4. And I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in the truth. 5. Our beloved, you do in faith what you perform towards the Brothers; and especially towards strangers 6. who have borne testimony to your charity before the whole assembly to whom you do beautiful acts<sup>1</sup> towards, as is pleasing to Elohim. 7. For they went forth in behalf of (Master YHWH's)<sup>2</sup> name, taking nothing of the Gentiles. 8. We therefore should receive such persons, that we may be enablers of the truth. 9. I was wanting to write to the assembly; but he who loves to be foremost among them, Diotrephes, did not receive us. 10. Therefore, if he comes, remember those deeds of his, that he treated us with evil words; and this not enough for him, he also refused to receive the Brothers; and those who would receive (them) he forbade, and even ejected them from the assembly. 11. Our beloved, be not a follower of what is evil, but of what is good. He that does good is of Elohim; but he that does evil has not seen Elohim. 12. Of Demetrius, there is good testimony from everyone, and from the assembly, and from the truth itself: and we also bear (him) testimony, and you know that our testimony is true.<sup>3</sup> 13. I had many things to write to you; but I will not write (them) to you with ink and pen. 14. But I hope soon to see you and to speak with you mouth to mouth. 15. Peace be with you. The friends send peace to you. Send your peace to the friends, they being many, by name.

End of the Third Letter of Yochanan the Shaliach.

1 While "good" is a fine translation for shapir, the literal meaning is "beautiful" and, in this case, "beautiful acts" makes much more sense in the context of the sentence.

2 Since the previous verse speaks of what is pleasing to YHWH, then YHWH is also the subject in this verse, not Y'shua. This is an affirmation of faith in YHWH; it is only in His name whereby salvation is accomplished.

3 This is a verbatim echo of Aramaic in John 21:24, except for the subjects as "we know his testimony is true." Not only is this line indicative of an individual writing style, but it may also represent special terminology for the process of Shaliach approval.

Chapter 1

1. THE Revelation<sup>1</sup> of Y'shua the Mashiach, which Elohim gave to him to show to his servants the things that must shortly occur: and he signified (it) by sending, through his Messenger to his servant Yochanan; 2. who bore witness to the Word of Elohim, and to the testimony of Y'shua the Mashiach, as to all that he saw. 3. Blessed is he that reads, and they who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep the things that are written in it; for the time is near. 4. (From) Yochanan to the seven assemblies which are in Asia: Grace to you and peace, from him who is, and who was, and who is to come, from the seven Spirits<sup>2</sup> which are before his throne; 5. and from Y'shua the Mashiach, the Witness, the Faithful, the First-born of the dead, and the Prince of the kings of the earth; who has loved us, and released us from our sins by his blood; 6. and has made us a Kingdom of priests<sup>3</sup> to Elohim the Father: to whom be glory and power, for ever and ever. Amen. 7. Behold, he comes with clouds; and all eyes will see him, and also they who pierced him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn on account of him. Yes: Amen. 8. "I am Alap, also Taw," says the Master YHWH, Elohim; who is, and was, and is to come, (Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh) the omnipotent.<sup>4</sup> 9. I Yochanan, your brother and partaker with you in the affliction and suffering that are in Y'shua the Mashiach, was in the island called Patmos because of the Word of Elohim and because of the testimony of Y'shua the Mashiach. 10. I was in the Spirit on the day of our Master YHWH;<sup>5</sup> and I heard behind me a great voice, as of a shofar,<sup>6</sup> which said: 11. "That which you see, write in a book, and send to the seven assemblies; to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamos, and to Thyratira, and to Sardis, and to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea." 12. And I turned myself to look at the voice that talked with me; and when I had turned, I saw seven menorahs of gold; 13. and, in the midst of the menorahs, one like the Son of man, clothed to the feet, and turned about in a robe reaching to his feet with a girdle of gold. 14. And his head and his hair were white, like white wool, like snow; and his eyes, like a flame of fire: 15. and his feet were like fine brass, flaming in a furnace: and his voice, like the sound of many waters.

1 The full title of this book is "The Revelation of our Master Y'shua the Mashiach by Yochanan bar Zawdi, Shlichah". It is always important to bear in mind that the "revelation" belongs to Y'shua but Yochanan is writing it down.

2 The number 7 appears 54 times in Revelation. Apart from all the distress, catastrophe and suffering that Revelation foretells, it also reveals the perfect and complete, Divine Rest, which awaits the people of Elohim, an eternal Shabbat rest in the soon coming Kingdom of Heaven. Please see footnote on Revelation 4:5.

3 Kingdom of priests in the sense that true followers of Y'shua serve him and acknowledge him as the true High Priest.

4 Alap-Taw holds a universe of meaning; each Hebrew/Aramaic letter holds many specific values. Aleph speaks of the absolute Unity of YHWH; Taw is the Perfection of YHWH; this is a remez (hint) of the Urim and Thummin. This also reveals "YHWH is Salvation" as the First, Last, Beginning and the End. The Ten Commandments begin with the letter Aleph, "Anochi (I) am YHWH your Elohim who has brought you out of the land of Egypt..." (Exodus 20:2). The Father YHWH is Ain Sof (without end) He is infinite; therefore, "the Arm of YHWH" (Mashiach) spoke and appeared to Moshe. Taw reveals the Perfection of Mashiach; Taw is the first letter of Tefilin (prayers), Torah and Teshuva (turning to YHWH) which speaks of the transformation of the natural man into a Tzadiq, spiritual man. Alap-Taw speaks of Alap/Head (Keter) and Taw/Feet (Malchut) of the sefirot and both the government of Mashiach and the harmony of all things; and there are countless other Hebraic connections. These words and letters are important to reveal the nature of Mashiach, which is why such a sober warning is given in Revelation 22:18-19. It's sad to note that James Murdock simply translated "Alap-Taw" into the Greek "alpha and the omega" rather than restore the original; however, Murdock had a propensity to Grecianize the Aramaic NT. Much more revelation of the Kingdom is available to Bible students who consider the original language, and the application of the four basic levels of interpretation: peshat (simple), remez (hint), drash (allegory) and sod (hidden) as they study. The Greek translators either did not realize the prophetic significance of each word and letter, or perhaps the revelation was far too controversial in the religio-political system of their day. Alap-Taw speaks of Emet (Truth) which is the basis for the true Emunah (Faith) "which was once delivered to the set-apart believers." Also note that "Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh" is the Name Elohim calls Himself, "I that I am/I will be what I will be". It is meant to contain all the states of being in Hebrew. Yochanan appears to be writing down a midrashic explanation, "who is, who was, who is to come" that evokes this Name which in turn goes well with "The Alap and the Taw/Beginning and the End". The third person of "Ehyeh" is "Yahweh", the Name we are to call Him for all time (Exodus 3:14-16). Similarly, a third person switch occurs here, for though YHWH is speaking, it becomes "who was" and "who is". However, the term "third person" is meant as a technical grammatical term dealing with "he/she/it" not as a literal multiplication of divine persons. YHWH is One and His Oneness is expressed as "One Tree,

Three Branches” metaphorically and also expressed linguistically with Y’shua the Son having the same Name as the Father (Yochanan 17:1-11) and with the Ruach HaKodesh (Set-Apart Spirit) being another title for Abba YHWH like “El-Shaddai”, “YHWH-Yireh” and so on (Psalm 51:1-11; Isaiah 63:1-11).

5 Aramaic reads “b’yoma Marana Yah” or “day of our Master YHWH” (The Aramaic New Covenant Peshitta Text with Hebrew Translation Second Edition Aramaic Scriptures Research Society in Israel, 2005) and (Ktaba D’Dtiqua Khadaba d’Maran Eshoa Meshikha Joint COE/SOC Edition, 1982). Based on the Mosul Text, the 1905 British and Foreign Bible Society transcription reads: hawiyit b’rukha b’yaoma Maranaya, or “and I was in the spirit on the Day of our Master YHWH” referring to both Judgment Day and sacred occasions in Israel, which were/are marked with the blowing of the shofar as mentioned later in this same verse. However, the United Bible Society Syrian Orthodox Church 1979 Edition uses the reading in Crawford Revelation here; w’hawiyit b’rukha b’yaoma b’khabd’shaba, or “and I was in the spirit on the day in the first of the week” a.k.a. Sunday. The introduction of b’khabd’shaba in latter versions is a Western-Christian interpolation; nowhere in the most ancient Greek copies of Revelation is there an actual day of the week being stated; however, it is easy to see how a false assumption arose to suggest that it refers to the day of the resurrection. By contrast, the original reading, while seemingly vague to a Gentile audience, is nonetheless perfect in its Semitic context. This in combination with the use of the Greek kurios (which can refer to either YHWH or Y’shua as “Master”), and the transition from “Day of YHWH” to “Resurrection Day” became even more plausible to a Greek mind. The revision of the text has produced an extremely bad and awkward Aramaic construction, both grammatically and from a scribal perspective. In every other occurrence in the NT, Sunday is referred to as khabd b’shaba, or “first of the week.” The word “day” never appears but is always implied, as Torah only refers to all days (except Shabbat) by their numerical relationship to Shabbat, or b’shaba. The redactor of Crawford retained b’yaoma, but deleted Maranaya and replaced it with the very cumbersome b’khabd’shaba. The error is particularly glaring, since this “single” term is really four separate words (including two prepositional prefixes, or proclitics) jammed together! 6 Whereas other NT books use the synonym qarna, Mar Yochanan uses the Hebrew word “shofar”. “A great voice as of a shofar” points to “the day of YHWH,” a time of awe, judgment and gathering. See Isaiah 13:6,9; Jeremiah 46:10; Joel 1:15; 2:11; Amos 5:18; Obadiah 1:15.

16. And he had in his right hand seven stars; and from his mouth issued a fervent spirit; and his countenance was like the sun shining in its strength.<sup>7</sup> 17. And when I saw him, I fell at his feet like one dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, and said, “Fear not: I am the First and the Last; 18. and who lives and was dead; and behold, I am alive for ever and ever. Amen. And I have the keys of death and of the unseen world. 19. Therefore, write what you have seen, and the things that are; and the things that are to be after this: 20. the mystery of these seven stars which you saw in my right hand, and the seven menorahs of gold. Those seven stars are the Messengers of the seven assemblies; and the seven menorahs are the seven assemblies.”

Chapter 2

1. “To the Messenger of the assembly which is at Ephesus write: ‘These things says he who holds all things, and the seven stars in his right hand; he that walks in the midst of the seven menorahs<sup>8</sup> of gold: 2. I know your works and your toil and your patience, and you cannot endure the wicked; and you have tried them who say they are apostles and are not; and you have found them liars. 3. And you have had patience and have shouldered the burden on account of My Name, and have not shirked. 4. Yet I have a matter against you on account of your former love which you have left. 5. Therefore, remember from where you have fallen and repent, and do the former works: or if not, I will come to you quickly, and I will remove your menorah from its place, except you repent. 6. But this you have, that you hate the deeds of the Nicolaitans,<sup>9</sup> which I also (hate). 7. He that has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies. To him who is victorious, will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the paradise of my Elohim.’ 8. And to the Messenger of the assembly which is at Smyrna, write: ‘These things says the First and the Last, he who was dead and lives. 9. I know your works and the affliction and the poverty (yet you are rich) and the railing which is from them who say they are Jews and they are not, but are of the congregation of haSatan. 10. Be not terrified at any of the things you are to suffer. For lo, the Accuser will throw some of you into custody, that you may be tried; and there will be trouble to you ten days. Be faithful to death, and I will give you the crown of life. 11. He that has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies. He that is victorious, will not be harmed by the second death.’<sup>10</sup> 12. And to the Messenger of the assembly at Pergamos, write: ‘Thus says he who has the sharp two-edged sword:

7 A later Aramaic version of Revelation known as the Crawford text reads, “and a sharp spirit came out of his mouth.” Greek reads “and a sharp sword came out of his mouth.” However, it appears that the Aramaic redactor made a spelling error: instead of putting rumkha (small sword, dagger) he dropped the meen and put rukha (spirit) instead. The word sipa (sword) in the Peshitto Revelation may have been replaced with rumkha as a synonym for sipa. Another challenge would be to determine how Greek managed to turn the word “spear” into “sword”; certainly the word “sharp” could be looked at as an idiom: “For the Word of Elohim is living and all-efficient, and sharper than a two-edged sword, and enters even to the severance of the soul and the spirit, and of the joints and the marrow and the bones, and judges the thoughts and reasonings of the heart” (Hebrews 4:12). Therefore, due to the metaphoric usage in this verse, another possible meaning emerges in Crawford. As suggested by Stephen Silver, in rukha kharipta, the word kharipta has some very interesting meanings according to the Comprehensive Aramaic Lexicon: kharyp A 1 Paor elseinian, Syr, JBA sharp 2 Syr severe 3 Syr, JBA prompt 4 Syr plant name 5 Syr adv with a loud voice 6 JBA pungent 7 JBA current LS2 258 LS2 V: khariyp xrp V 011 Syr to be sharp 021 JLAGal, CPA, Syr to sharpen 022 Syr to incite 023 Paor elseinian to blaspheme 051 Syr to be sharpened 052 Syr to be incited 031 Syr to incite 032 JBA to be early LS2 258. In that sense, it would be possible to render the phrase “fervent spirit” because the rest of the passage reads: “...and his countenance was like the sun shining in its strength.” The verse would certainly allow for the idea of the spirit coming out of the mouth. The fact that Crawford has this flexibility and Peshitto Revelation does not is highly interesting. This is exactly the kind of reading we would expect in the original, which would produce the Greek misreading. Furthermore, this is not an isolated incident. In Revelation 2:12, Crawford has a parallelphrase, khavva kharipta and Peshitto Revelation has sipa kharipta, both of which mean “sharp sword.” What’s more, a similar image is recorded in Luke as well: “w’ba-nap-sha-ki den dee-la-ki ta-bar rum-kha and in your soul will pass through a spear, so that thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.” Steven Silver adds: “There is an immediate parallel between “fervent spirit” and “sharp sword.” (This is a beautiful illustration when using the phrases, “rukha kharipta” and “khavva kharipta” to describe the work of the Spirit of Elohim in our hearts. Rather than affirming Greek which reads “sword” in Revelation 1:16, the Crawford Aramaic shows originality and affinity with Hebrews 4:12).

8 And in another sense each assembly is one individual lamp of light, taking part in and making up the Great Menorah, the Light of the World, who is also Y'shua the Mashiyach. See Exodus 37:17-23.

9 Nicholas was a leader from Syrian Antioch who led many into heresy. Various Romans authorities record that these followers of Nicholas were apparently steeped in carnal sin on a massive scale. Others suggest the name of the group implies a rigid kind of hierarchy because nicholaitan can be read as "to conquer the people". Compare this to the "conquering" language in Revelation 2:7 which uses the same word in Greek, nikaio.

10 Meaning, "will not be separated from YHWH after death."

13. I know your works and where you dwell (even) where the throne of Satan is: and you hold fast my name and have not denied the faith of me, in those days when my faithful witness, who was slain among you, was made a spectacle where Satan dwells. 14. But I have a small matter against you. You have there them who hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to throw a stumbling block before the children of Israel that they might eat the sacrifices of idols, and might commit sexual sin. 15. So also you have them who hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans. In like manner, repent you. 16. Or if not, I will come to you quickly,<sup>11</sup> and I will war upon them with the sword of my mouth. 17. He that has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies. To him that is victorious, will I give to eat of the hidden manna;<sup>12</sup> and I will give him a white counter, and upon the counter a new name written which no one knows but he that receives it.' 18. And to the Messenger of the assembly at Thyratia, write: 'These things says the Son of Elohim who has his eyes like a flame of fire and his feet like fine brass: 19. I know your works, and love, and faith, and service, and also your patience; and that these your latter works are more than the former. 20. But I have a matter against you because you tolerate your woman Jezabel who says she is a prophetess,<sup>13</sup> and teaches and seduces my servants to temple prostitution, and to eating of the sacrifices of idols. 21. And I gave her a season for repentance, and she is not disposed to repent of her sexual sin. 22. Behold, I will cast her into a coffin,<sup>14</sup> and them who commit adultery with her into great affliction, unless they repent of their deeds. 23. And her children will I slay with death: and all the assemblies will know that I am he who seeks minds and hearts; and I will render to each of you according to your works. 24. And I say to you, to the rest that are in Thyratia, to all them who have not received this doctrine, the men who have not known the profound things of Satan, as they say; I lay no other burden upon you: 25. but, what you have, hold fast until I come. 26. And to him that is victorious, and to him that observes my works to the end, to him will I give authority over the nations; 27. and he will rule them with a rod of iron; and like vessels of pottery, will they be broken: as I also have received of my Father. 28. And I will give him the morning star. 29. He that has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.'"

11 Y'shua Mashiyach can return at any time hence "suddenly" as opposed to a handful of years after the resurrection. "Quickly" appears 7 times in Revelation, denoting completion according to Father YHWH timing, and also implying and extreme vital need for vigilant watch over the things of Mashiyach. See Matt 24:43; Luke 12:39; 1 Thess 5:2-4; 2 Peter 3:10 and Rev 3:3.

12 This manna was hidden because it is Y'shua who is the bread from heaven that brings eternal life, in his Father YHWH's timing. The same word for "hidden" (metshay) is used in Matthew 10:26, "for there is nothing hidden that will not be revealed", with the word for "reveal" being gela from where we get "Galilee".

13 Please see footnote on Acts 21:9.

14 Peshitto and Crawford Revelation reads, "Behold, I am throwing her into a bed, and the ones committing adultery with her into great affliction, unless they repent of the works of her" (Revelation 2:22 The Greek-English Interlinear New Testament, UBS 4th Edition, Nestle-Aland 26th Edition). Shaliach John is rebuking the congregation for allowing this woman Jezabel to seduce righteous men who were previously above reproach. In addition, this woman also made false claims of prophetic utterances and went so far as to eat meat sacrificed to idols. It's rather pitiful, but when John is finally alone with Jezebel, because her lovers are gone, Greek suggests he just "throws her onto a bed"? Considering this lady's history, this hardly seems like punishment, but business as usual! In order to avoid such a salacious reading, Greek translators have added a word that does not appear in the text: "Behold I will throw her onto a bed of sickness and those who commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they repent of their deeds" (Revelation 2:22 NASB). The use of italics in the NASB is a way of bolstering bad readings arising from Greek. The editors of NASB, while saying that italicized words are "implied" are really on very thin ice from a scholarly perspective. There is no fact, hint or evidence that "bed of sickness" is meant here. Greek simply puts "bed" and "bed" alone here. Once again Aramaic comes to the rescue: "Behold I will throw her in to a coffin, and those who commit adultery with her into a great affliction, unless they repent of their deeds" (Revelation 2:22). The Aramaic word arsa means both "bed" and "coffin," with the latter meaning obviously making far more sense!

Furthermore, notice the use of the B proclitic at the beginning of the word. As we saw earlier, beyt can mean on as in “on to a bed” or into as in “into a coffin.” The Greek redactor saw this word with its B proclitic in Aramaic and picked the wrong meanings for both of them when translating the text. But here is where things get rather odd: this reading is identical in both the Peshitto Revelation and the Crawford Manuscript. In the case of the former, we know it was a translation from Greek, yet this reading becomes very puzzling if Crawford was a translation from Greek. Crawford as well, while looking “translational” in many areas, nevertheless is holding on to the kind of Aramaic primacy that almost never comes into a text from translation. So if both Crawford and Peshitto Revelation were from Greek sources, the only logical conclusion is to assert that all three versions had to come from a lost Hebrew/Aramaic original. The surviving texts are clearly not that original, but they nevertheless testify, like the Septuagint, to that original’s existence.

1. “And to the Messenger of the assembly which is at Sardis, write: ‘These things says he who has the seven Spirits of Elohim, and the seven stars: I know your works, that you have a name that you live, and yet you are dead. 2. Awake, and preserve the things that remain which are ready to die; for I have not found your works complete<sup>15</sup> before my Elohim. 3. Remember therefore how you have received and heard; and observe those teachings, and turn back. If then you will not wake up, I will come upon you as a thief; and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you. 4. Yet you have a few names in Sardis who have not defiled their garments; and they will walk with me in white, for they are worthy. 5. He that is victorious will be so clothed in white robes; and I will not blot out their name from the book of life; and I will confess their name before my Father and before his Messengers.<sup>16</sup> 6. He that has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.’ 7. And to the Messenger of the assembly which is at Philadelphia,<sup>17</sup> write: ‘These things says he that is Set Apart, he that is true, he that has the key of Dawid, who opens and no man shuts, and shuts and no man opens; 8. I know your works. And lo, I have set before you an open door which no man can shut: because you have a little strength, and you have kept my Word and have not denied My Name. 9. Behold, I will give them of the Knesset<sup>18</sup> of Satan, who say they are Jews, and are not, but lie; behold, I will make them to come and do submissions before your feet; and to know that I have loved you. 10. Because you have kept the Word of my patience, I also will keep you from the hour of temptation that is to come on all the inhabited world to try them who dwell on the earth. 11. I come quickly: hold fast what you have so that no one take your crown. 12. Him that is victorious, will I make a pillar in the temple of my Elohim; and he will not again go out: and I will write upon him the name of my Elohim, and of the new Urishlim which descends from heaven from my Elohim, and my own new name. 13. He that has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.’ 14. And to the Messenger of the assembly which is at Laodicea, write: ‘These things says the Amen, the witness, the faithful, the true, the Chief of the creation of Elohim: 15. I know your works, that you are neither hot, nor cold; I would desire that you would be either cold or hot. 16. So, because you are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold, I am about to vomit you from my mouth. 17. Because you say, I am rich and affluent, and have all I need; and you don’t know that you are helpless and miserable and needy and blind and naked! 18. I counsel you to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that you may become rich; and white robes, to be clothed, and that the shame of your nakedness may not be seen; and put eye-salve on your eyes, that you may see. 19. As many as I love, I rebuke and discipline. Be faithful emulators therefore, and repent. 20. Behold, I have been standing at the door, and I will knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will dine with him, and he with me.

15 From the beginning until the end of time YHWH calls his people to be complete (or perfect) in Him. See Genesis 6:9; 17:1; Deut. 18:13; 2 Sam. 22:33; 1 Kings 8:61; 1 Chron. 29:18, 19; Job 1:1, 8; 2:3; Psalm 101:2-6; 1 Peter 5:10; Matthew 5:48.

16 A potent reminder here of the fact that this is Y’shua’s revelation given to Yochanan, and not Yochanan’s revelation that he is writing down. Only Y’shua the Mashiyach can determine who is written in the Book of Life.

17 It is interesting to note that this is the only assembly not criticized by Y’shua. Such is all the more remarkable when we consider the comment “for you have little strength”, which might be referring to money, members or perhaps both. Philadelphia is a shining example of what determined righteous folks can do in the face of limited resources yet strong determination to not forsake His Name.

18 Aramaic “Knooshta” or the Hebrew “Knesset” simply means to assemble; Beit Knesset (house of assembly) is the place for a community to come together for prayer. There is no deep mystery or architectural wonderment or portraits which attempt to relay the grandeur of the Almighty within the physical building of the Beit Knesset, nor is there some mystical spiritual power that denotes the structure itself as Set Apart unto the Almighty. In the days of Y’shua there were an estimated 450 Beit Knessot in Jerusalem, most being humble and very simple yet functional places of meeting to pray, hear Torah and facilitate local collective spiritual needs. The Temple in Jerusalem always was and will always be the only “House of Elohim” contrary to much of Christendom which views church buildings as something “holy.” The Greek word for “Beit Knesset” is “synagogue” which denotes a Jewish place of worship. As Greece is the home of the longest continuous Jewish presence in the European Diaspora, going back 2300 years, there were warm relations between Greeks and Jews – until, the rise of anti-Semitic Christianity. But here in this verse is yet more evidence of the pagan influence in Greek translation, “the synagogue of Satan.” The “synagogue” in the Greek mind is a place where Jews meet, whereas a “Knooshta” could refer to any kind of meeting place, for any purpose, for anyone. The writer, Mar Yochanan himself attended a “synagogue.” To put “synagogue” in this passage implies that all Jews are meeting with the “devil” but that is clearly not in the original message. What Mar Yochanan is talking about is an “evil assembly” who desire their destruction and who happen to be of Jewish bloodline. Certainly the Jewish “establishment” were clearly fearful of Jews who preached Mashiach Y’shua and taught Torah. So in the context of this verse, the official religious body of Israel has exercised power wrongfully against the Netzarim Jews. That is what Mar Yochanan is referring to; certainly not a wholesale indictment against his own people.

21. And to him that is victorious, to him will I give to sit with me on my throne, even as I was victorious and sat down with my Father on his throne. 22. He that has ears to hear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.”

Chapter 4

1. After these things, I looked and behold, a gate opened in heaven. And the first voice which I heard was as of a shofar talking with me. It said, “Come up here; and I will show you the things that must occur afterwards.” 2. Instantly, I was in the Spirit: and behold, a throne was placed in heaven; and there was (one) seated on the throne. 3. And he who sat, was like the appearance of a jasper-stone, and of a sardonyx (sard), and of a rainbow of the clouds, round about the throne, in form as the appearance of emeralds. 4. Around the throne were twenty four seats; and upon those seats sat twenty four Elders, who were clothed in white robes, and on whose heads were crowns of gold. 5. And from the throne proceeded flashes of lightning, and the sound of thunders; and seven lamps of fire were burning before his throne, which are the seven Spirits of Elohim.<sup>19</sup> 6. And before the throne, as it were a sea of glass like crystal; and in the midst of the throne, and around it, and before the throne were four creatures full of eyes in their front and in their rear. 7. And the first creature resembled a lion; and the second creature resembled a calf; and the third creature had a face like a man; and the fourth creature resembled an eagle when flying. 8. And these four creatures had, each of them, six wings around it: and within they were full of eyes: and they have no cessation, day or night, from saying: “Kadosh, Kadosh, Kadosh,<sup>20</sup> the Master YHWH, Elohim, the Omnipotent, who was, and is, and is to come.”<sup>21</sup> 9. And when these creatures give glory and honor and praise to him that sits on the throne, to him who lives forever and ever, 10. the twenty four Elders fall down before him who sits on the throne, and they worship him who lives forever and ever; and they cast their crowns before the throne, saying, 11. “Worthy are you, our Master (Y’shua) and our Elohim,<sup>22</sup> the Set Apart, to receive glory and honor and power; for you have created all things, and by you they exist; and because of your pleasure they had being and were created.”

Chapter 5

1. And I saw, at the right hand of him who sat on the throne, a book which was written within and on the back side, and which was sealed with seven seals. 2. And I saw a strong Messenger who proclaimed with a loud voice, “Who is worthy<sup>23</sup> to open the book, and to loose the seals here?”

---

19 Which are the seven Spirits of Elohim. These are referred to by the Prophet Yeshayahu in Isaiah 11:1-2: 1) Spirit of Wisdom, 2) Understanding, 3) Counsel, 4) Strength, 5) Knowledge, 6) Fear of YHWH, and these are combined into (7) THE Spirit of YHWH. These “Spirits” are attributes of YHWH that are within Y’shua Mashiych, that dwell in him completely and bodily (Colossians 2:9).

20 The repetition of Kadosh (Set Apart) here denotes a time of very intimate worship to YHWH and the Lamb, before the Universal Judgment of all things is revealed and accomplished.

21 Aramaic reveals a direct reference to Exodus 3:14, “Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh,” I am who I am, I was who I was, and I will be who I will be.

22 A key passage which, like Thomas’ declaration in Good News of John, acknowledges both the human and divine sides of Mashiych. As a human, Mashiych is a “master” of men, but as YHWH, He is their Elohim, for YHWH is One and the sole Redeemer.

23 Both Crawford and Peshitto Revelation read almost exactly the same: Then I saw a mighty angel proclaiming in a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open the book and loose the seals thereof?” (Peshitto Revelation 5:2 Lamsa, cross-referenced by AGR) But, Crawford adds one extra word which does not affect the meaning of the passage. And one of the elders says to me, “Do not weep. Look (who has) conquered, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David (he is able) to open the scroll and the seven seals of it” (Revelation 5:5 The Greek-English Interlinear New Testament, UBS 4th Edition, Nestle-Aland 26th Edition). There are at least two problems with this reading; first of all it makes little sense contextually. In 5:2, John is wondering who is worthy to open the seals; three lines later, he is consoled by the fact that Judah has conquered, but this was NOT his original question! Second, John would have been familiar with the prophecy regarding Judah that the scepter would never depart from that tribe (Genesis 49:10) so this information was hardly surprising to him. However, in both Peshitto and Crawford Revelation, the key divergence from Greek is the word zeka which can mean “conquer” but is better translated as “worthy”! In other words, the Greek redactor clearly chose the wrong meaning of zeka, which in the Netzarim Revelation must have been intended to answer John’s question directly. Then, sometime later, Greek was translated back into Aramaic and the cognate for “conquered” just happened to also be zeka. Incidentally, the exact same situation happens again in Revelation 15:2, where the Greek version of “those who were victorious over the beast” was misread from Aramaic which reads “those who were innocent of the beast.” Once again the key comes from the dual meaning of zeka being rendered in Greek; these manuscripts were derived from a lost Aramaic original.

3. And no one either in heaven above, or on the earth, or beneath the earth was able to open the book, or even to look upon it. 4. And I wept greatly because no one was found who was able to open the book or to look on it. 5. And one of the Elders said to me, “Weep not; behold, the Lion of the tribe of Yehuda, the Root of Dawid, has been victorious: He will open the book and its seven seals.” 6. And I looked, and in the midst of the Elders stood a lamb, as if slain; and it had seven horns and seven eyes which are the seven Spirits of Elohim that are sent into all the earth. 7. And he came, and took the book from the right hand of him who sat on the throne. 8. And when he took the book, the four Creatures and the twenty and four Elders fell down before the Lamb, each of them having a harp, and cups of gold full of aromas which are the supplications of the Set Apart believers. 9. And they sang a new song, saying: “Worthy are you, to take the book, and to open the seals; because you were slain and have redeemed us to Elohim by your blood, out of every tribe and tongue and people and nation; 10. and you have made them kings and priests to our Elohim; and they reign on the earth.” 11. And I looked, and I heard, as it were the voice of many Messengers around the throne, and the creatures and the Elders; and the number of them was a myriad of myriads, and thousands of thousands 12. who said, with a loud voice: “Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power and riches, and wisdom and strength, and honor and glory and blessing; 13. and (to be over) every created thing that is in heaven or on earth, or under the earth, or in the sea; and all that are in them.” And I heard him who sat on the throne say: “To the Lamb be given blessing and honor, and glory and power, forever and ever.” 14. And the four creatures said: “Amen.” And the Elders fell down, and adored.

1. And when the Lamb had opened one of the seven seals, I looked, and I heard one of the four Creatures say, as with a voice of thunder, “Come, and see.”<sup>24</sup> 2. And I looked, and there was a white horse;<sup>25</sup> and he who sat on it had a bow; and a crown was given to him, and he went forth conquering, that he might conquer. 3. And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second Creature say, “Come.” 4. And there went forth another, a red horse; and to him who sat upon it, it was given to take peace from the earth; and that they should kill one another; and there was given to him a great sword. 5. And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third Creature say, “Come, and see.” And I looked, and behold, a black horse; and he that sat upon it, had a balance in his hand. 6. And I heard a voice in the midst of the four Creatures, saying: “A quart of wheat for a denarius, and three measures of barley for a denarius; and hurt not the oil and the wine.” 7. And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the fourth Creature say: “Come, and see.”

24 Both Crawford and Peshitto Revelation have wordplays normally associated with Aramaic originals. While the readings do vary, their meaning is essentially the same and the word plays remain intact; thus a narrative of the original Netzari Revelation. The Peshitto version reads: I saw when the Lamb opened one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four animals saying in a voice as of thunder, “Come and see” (Revelation 6:1 Lamsa, cross-referenced by AR). Here we see some genuine Aramaic poetic tendencies with these words: Amra (lamb) Amar (say/speak) Reama (thunder) Similarly, Crawford Revelation also has this bit of cleverness: “And I saw when the lamb opened one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four beasts that spoke as the voice of thunder: ‘Come and see’” (Revelation 6:1 HRV). Clearly an Aramaic wordplay in both readings, and there are many examples where Crawford and Peshitto Revelation either read exactly the same, or else the word, or words responsible for the variant between Aramaic and Greek are the same in both, which argues against putting a mantle of originality solely on Crawford. These readings point to an earlier Semitic form, and the possibility that Crawford retained certain aspects of Nazarene Revelation which Peshitto Revelation did not; although how this process happened and what the chain of custody was from Nazarene to Greek and to Crawford is unknown. A wordplay exists in Crawford that is not in the Peshitto Revelation; a few lines later in 6:4, we see the beautiful alliteration of khra ba raba or “a great sword.” By contrast, Peshitto Revelation uses sipa raba instead.

25 For a very similar vision of “four horsemen of the Apocalypse”, see Zechariah 6:1-8.

8. And I looked, and behold, a pale horse; and the name of him who sat on it was Death; and the grave<sup>26</sup> followed after him. And there was given him authority over the fourth part of the earth, to slay with the sword, and by famine, and by death, and by the ravenous beast of the earth. 9. And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them who were slain on account of the Word of Elohim, and on account of the testimony to the Lamb which was with them. 10. And they cried with a loud voice, saying: "How long, O Master YHWH, you Set Apart and True, do you not Judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?" 11. And to each one of them was given a white robe; and it was told them that they must be quiet yet a little while, until the consummation of their fellow-servants and Brothers who were to be killed as they had been. 12. And I looked when he had opened the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black, like sackcloth of hair; and the whole moon became like blood. 13. And the stars of heaven fell on the earth as a fig-tree casts its unripe figs, when it is shaken by a strong wind. 14. And the heavens separated, as a scroll is rolled up; and all mountains and islands were removed out of their places. 15. And the kings of the earth, and the nobles, and the captains of thousands, and the rich men, and the men of valor, and every servant and free man hid themselves in caves, and in the clefts of the mountains; 16. and they said to the mountains and to the clefts, "Fall over us, and hide us from the face of him who sits on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: 17. For the great day of their wrath is come;<sup>27</sup> and who is able to stand?"

Chapter 7

1. And after these things I saw four Messengers who stood on the four corners<sup>28</sup> of the earth; and they held the four winds of the earth, so that the wind blew not on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on the trees. 2. And I saw another Messenger, and he came up from the rising of the sun; and he had the seal of the living Elohim; and he called out with a loud voice to the four Messengers to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea, saying: 3. "Do not hurt the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees, until we will have sealed the servants of our Elohim upon their foreheads." 4. And I heard the number of them that were sealed: a hundred and forty and four thousand, sealed from every tribe of Israelites. 5. Of the tribe of Yehuda, twelve thousand were sealed; of the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand; 6. of the tribe of Ashur, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand; 7. of the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand; 8. of the tribe of Zebulon, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Yosip,<sup>29</sup> twelve thousand; of the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand. 9. And after these things, I looked, and lo, a great multitude which no one could number, from all kindreds and nations and tribes and tongues; who stood before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and palms in their hands;

<sup>29</sup> There is all manner of speculation as to why these particular names are revealed while others were not, and why they appear in this particular order. The answer to the mystery lies in the reality that Revelation is a book of spiritual symbols, revealing the nature of YHWH, Mashiyach, the Kingdom of Heaven and the spiritual man in a sod or "hidden" way. Hidden or mystery does not mean we cannot know, it means our spirits must discern rather than our intellectual logic and reason. The number 144,000 alludes to a type of people, rather than the numerical sum (see footnote on Rev 14:1) of a people. Many levels of revelation are embedded within these names, starting with the peshat (plain) meanings of these names:

1) Yehudah	Praise YHWH	2) Reuben	see a Son	3) Gad	a troop is coming
4) Ashur	happy am I	5) Naphtali	wrestling	6) Manasseh	causing to forget
7) Simeon	hearing	8) Levi	joined to	9) Issachar	there is reward
10) Zebulon	exalted	11) Yosip	YHWH has added	12) Benjamin	Son of the right hand

A fatal mistake many theologians make is seeking religious, cultural or theological identity in Scripture rather than hearing in our spirits and discerning the Word of YHWH through "spiritual eyes." Another reckless mistake is to overlay a dualistic Greco-Roman mindset over a Hebraic text (see dualism in footnote Yehudah 1:9) that completely alters the message.

10. and they cried with a loud voice, saying: “Salvation to our Elohim, to him who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb.” 11. And all the Messengers stood around the throne and the Elders and the four Creatures; and they fell upon their faces before his throne and worshipped Elohim, 12. saying: “Amen. Blessing and glory, and wisdom and thanksgiving, and honor and power and might (be) to our Elohim, forever and ever: Amen.” 13. And one of the Elders turned and said to me: “These who are clothed in white robes, who are they and where did they come from?” 14. And I said to him: “My Master, you know.” And he said to me: “These are they who came from great affliction; and they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. 15. Therefore are they before the throne of Elohim; and they serve him day and night in his temple; and he who sits on the throne will protect them: 16. they will not hunger, nor thirst anymore; nor will the sun fall on them, nor any heat. 17. Because the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne will feed them; and will lead them to fountains of living water; and Elohim will wipe every tear from their eyes.”

1. And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. 2. And I saw the seven Messengers who stood before Elohim; and to them were given seven shofars. 3. And another Messenger came and stood by the altar; and he held a golden censer: and much incense was given him so that he might offer, with the prayers of all the Set Apart believers, upon the golden altar before the throne. 4. And the smoke of the incense of the prayers of the Set Apart believers went up before Elohim from the hand of the Messenger. 5. And the Messenger took the censer, and filled it with fire from the altar and cast it upon the earth: and there were thunders, and flashes of lightning, and voices, and an earthquake. 6. And the seven Messengers who had the seven shofars, prepared themselves to sound. 7. And the first sounded; and there was hail and fire which were mingled with water;<sup>30</sup> and these were thrown upon the earth; and a third part of the earth was burned up, and a third part of the trees were burned, and all green grass was burned. 8. And the second Messenger sounded and, as it were a great mountain burning with fire, was cast into the sea; and also a third part of the sea became blood. 9. And a third part of all the creatures in the sea that had life, died; and a third part of the ships were destroyed. 10. And the third Messenger sounded, and there fell from heaven a star burning like a lamp; and it fell upon a third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of water. 11. And the name of the star was called Wormwood;<sup>31</sup> and a third part of the waters became wormwood; and many persons died from the waters because they were bitter. 12. And the fourth Messenger sounded, and a third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so that the third part of them were dark, and they became dark; and the day did not give light for the third part of it, and the night in like manner. 13. And I saw and heard an eagle which flew in the midst, and it had a tail of blood,<sup>32</sup> while it said with a loud voice: Woe, woe, to them who dwell on the earth because of the remaining sounds of the trumpets of the three Messengers, who are to sound.

<sup>31</sup> The Aramaic here is simply carrying over “wormwood” from the Greek absinthe in both places and there is no Hebrew/Aramaic equivalent in its place. The concept of “wormwood/bitterness” appears as early as Deuteronomy 29:18 as laanah referring to poisonous and bitter fruit. The Greek translation of the Tanakh, or Septuagint, uses the Greek word pikros (sharp, bitter) in the places where laanah appears. However, from the Greek NT absinthe appears as if it were a title in its first occurrence, as an adjective in its second occurrence, and pikros will also appear as a general descriptor at the end of this line, “because they were made bitter”, again both words carried over from the Greek. This tendency of this part of Revelation to carry over Greek words rather than replace them with Aramaic equivalents points to it being translational rather than compositional Aramaic. However, other parts of Revelation have tantalizing clues of having been derived from a now lost Semitic ancestor.

32 "Tail of blood" is the preferred reading of Lamsa, but Murdock and Etheridge suspect a bad translation into Aramaic. As Etheridge observed: "Here the Syrian translator was at fault. His Greek copy, without separating the words, read εἰνὴ ἐν μέσῳ, "in the midst of heaven;" which he appears to have decomposed thus: ἐν μέσῳ ("the midst") οὐρα ("a tail") αἷμα ("blood"), so as to produce the singular expression given above."

1. And the fifth Messenger sounded; and I saw a star which fell from heaven upon the earth. And there was given to him the key of the pit of the abyss. 2. And he opened the pit of the abyss; and smoke issued from the pit, like the smoke of a furnace that is in blast; and the sun and the air were darkened by the smoke of the pit. 3. And out of the smoke came locusts upon the earth: and power was given them, like that which scorpions have on the earth. 4. And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, nor any herb, nor any tree; but (only) the persons who had not the seal of Elohim upon their foreheads. 5. And it was given them, that they should not kill them, but should torment them five months: and their torment was like the torment of a scorpion when it strikes a person. 6. And in those days, men will desire death and will not find it; and they will long to die, and death will fly from them. 7. And the appearance of the locusts (was this): they were like the appearance of horses prepared for battle; and on their heads was, as it were a crown, resembling gold; and their faces were like the faces of men. 8. And they had hair, like the hair of women: and their teeth were like those of lions. 9. And they had breastplates, like breastplates of iron: and the sound of their wings was like the sound of the chariots of many horses rushing into battle. 10. And they had tails like those of scorpions, and stings; and with their tails they had the power of hurting men five months. 11. And they had a king over them, the Messenger of the abyss;<sup>33</sup> and his name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon;<sup>34</sup> and in Greek, his name is Apollyon.<sup>35</sup> 12. One woe is past; behold, there come yet two woes after them. 13. And the sixth Messenger sounded; and I heard a voice from the horns of the golden altar which was before Elohim, 14. that said to the sixth Messenger having a trumpet: "Loose the four Messengers that are bound at the great river Euphrates." 15. And the four Messengers were loosed; who are prepared, for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, to slay the third part of men. 16. And the number of the warrior horsemen was two myriads of myriads: and I heard their number. 17. And while I looked on the horses in the vision, and on them who sat on them (I saw) that the breastplates were of fire and of jacinth and of sulfur. And the heads of the horses were like the heads of lions; and from their mouths issued fire and smoke and sulfur. 18. And by these three plagues, a third part of the men were slain; (namely,) by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the sulfur which issued from their mouths. 19. For the power of the horses was in their mouth and in their tails; for their tails were like serpents, having heads to strike with. 20. And the remnant of men who were not slain by these plagues repented not of the works of their hands and worshipped demons, and idols of gold, and of silver, and brass, and stone, and wood, which cannot see nor hear. 21. And they repented not of their murders nor of their sorceries, nor of their sexual sins, nor of their thefts.

33 Abyss is rendered from numerous Hebrew words in the Tanakh such as bore, sheol, pachath, shachath and be'er. Psalm 55:23 says; "You, Elohim, will thrust them down to the abyss (be'er) of destruction, men bloodthirsty and deceptive, before half their days are spent. For my part, I put my trust in you." The Hebrew be'er could also be translated as "well", "pit" or "slimepits" depending on context and how each translator chooses to render it. There is no sense of a bottomless fiery mythological abyss in the Tanakh, terms like "abyss" and "pit" are simply used to denote separation from YHWH's love and mercies. When men choose rebellion and unrighteous living they separate themselves from YHWH. Torah calls us to live Kodesh (Set Apart) lives unto our Father YHWH. He is a Father who desires all men to draw close to Himself. In 1 Chron 29:18 David prays, "O YHWH Elohim of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, keep this forever in the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of your people, and prepare their heart unto you," illustrating how our thoughts, and intents of our hearts are being called to dwell according to righteousness in YHWH's Spirit. In Luke 8:30-31 extreme separation from YHWH is applied to demons; "And Y'shua asked him, 'What is your name?' He said to him, 'Legion' because many demons had entered into him. And they were beseeching him that he would not command them to go to the abyss." Regrettably, some theologians use the testimony of demons and the abyss in Luke to conclude that their theology of Tartarus and Hades must be true, but in reality demons are not reliable witnesses of truth. Please see footnotes on Mark 9:47, Luke 12:5, 2 Peter 2:4.

34 Abaddon is mentioned 6 times in the Tanakh, the first mention is Job 26:6, "Sheol (the grave) is naked before him; abaddon (destruction) lies uncovered." Psalm 88:12 says, "Will your grace be declared in sheol (the grave), or your faithfulness in abaddon (destruction)?" Proverbs 27:20 states, "Sheol and abaddon are never satisfied, and human eyes are never satisfied.” The language of the Tanakh does not personify abaddon as an angel or demon, it is derived from the prime root abad meaning to perish or destroy. Notice that when sheol and abaddon are used together in the Tanakh it simply denotes the chronological sequence of complete destruction. It was not until the influences of mythological Greek culture in the NT that abaddon took on the personified form of Apollon. See also Job 28:22; 31:12; Prov 15:11 and footnote on Matthew 10:6.

35 Apollon (or Apollyon) is derived from the Greek apollumi, which simply means “destruction” as does the Hebrew abaddon. Although Greek mythology (ancient deity soap operas) record a player (deity) named Apollo, it does not appear that there is any association with Apollyon, except that the Greek verb apollymi means, “to destroy”.

1. And I saw another mighty Messenger that descended from heaven, clothed with a cloud; and a cloud-bow was over his head, and his face was like the sun, and his feet like pillars of fire.<sup>36</sup> 2. And he had in his hand an open little book and he placed his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the land: 3. and he cried with a loud voice, as a lion roars: and when he had cried, the seven thunders shouted their voices. 4. And when the seven thunders had spoken, I was about to write. And I heard a voice from heaven, saying: "Seal up the things which the seven thunders have spoken, and write them not." 5. And the Messenger whom I saw standing upon the sea and the land, raised his right hand to heaven, 6. and swore by him who lives forever and ever, who created heaven and the things in it, and the earth and the things in it, and the sea and the things in it, that the time should be no longer; 7. but, in the days of the voice of the seventh Messenger, when he will sound and the mystery of Elohim will be consummated; as he announced to his servants the prophets. 8. And the voice which I heard from heaven spoke to me again, and said: "Go, take the little open book in the hand of the Messenger that stands on the sea and on the land." 9. And I went to the Messenger, telling him to give me the little book. And he said to me, Take, and eat it: and it will make your bowels bitter, but in your mouth it will be sweet as honey. 10. And I took the little book from the hand of the Messenger, and ate it: and it was in my mouth sweet like honey: and when I had eaten it, my bowels were bitter. 11. And he said to me, "You must again prophesy upon many nations and peoples, and princes, and kings."

Chapter 11

1. And a reed was given to me, like a rod; and the Messenger stood, saying, "Arise and measure the Temple of Elohim,<sup>37</sup> and the altar, and them that worship inside it."<sup>38</sup> 2. But the court which is without the Temple, leave out, and do not measure it, because it is given to the Gentiles; and they will tread down the Set Apart city forty and two months. 3. And I will give my two witnesses; and they will prophesy a thousand and two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth." 4. These are the two olive-trees and the two menorahs which stand before the Master of all the earth. 5. And if any person will harm them, fire comes out of their mouth and consumes their adversary; and if anyone will harm them, thus must he be slain. 6. They have power to shut up heaven so that the rain will not fall in those days: and they have power over the waters, to turn them into blood; and to smite the earth with all plagues as often as they please. 7. And when they will have completed their testimony, the beast of prey that came up from the abyss will make war upon them and will overcome them. 8. And their dead bodies (will be) in the open street of that great city which is spiritually called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Master (Y'shua) was executed on the stake. 9. And (they) of the nations and tribes and peoples and tongues will look upon their dead bodies, three days and a half; and will not suffer their dead bodies to be laid in the grave.

36 To have one's "feet as pillars of fire" does not seem logical. However, in Aramaic the same word for "feet" also means "legs." Both Peshitto and Crawford Revelation contain the word regel, so either feet or legs is a possibility. "And I saw another strong angel coming down out of heaven having been wrapped in a cloud. And a rainbow (was) on his head of him and the face of him (was) as the sun, and the feet of him as pillars of fire" (Revelation 10:1 The Greek-English Interlinear New Testament, UBS 4th Edition, Nestle-Aland 26th Edition).

37 In Zechariah 2:1-13 it is the entire city of Jerusalem that gets measured prior to judgment.

38 Those who are worshipping are measured/judged, along with the Temple (see Matthew 7; 1 Peter 4:17). In addition, the 42 months that are to be mentioned in 11:2 and again in 13:5 are part of the same 360 day/year prophetic system uses sometimes by the prophet Daniel. In the 360 time system, each of the 12 months has only 30 days in it and  $42 \times 30 = 1,260$  days. However, Daniel's use of 1,290 days indicates that during a 7 year period a leap month of 30 days is added to the 1,260 days, and this is the same mathematical process for the 360 day calendar.

10. And they who dwell on the earth will rejoice over them and will be merry, and will send presents to one another; because those two prophets tormented them who dwell on the earth. 11. And after these three days and a half, the Spirit of Life from Elohim entered into them, and they stood upon their feet: and great fear fell on those who saw them. 12. And they heard a great voice from heaven, which said to them: "Come up here." And they ascended to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies saw them. 13. And in the same hour there was a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city fell: and the persons killed in the earthquake were seven thousand names: and they who remained were afraid and gave glory to Elohim. 14. The second woe is passed: behold, the third woe comes quickly. 15. And the seventh Messenger sounded; and there were voices and thunders which said: "The kingdom of the world has become (the Kingdom) of our Master and of his Mashiyach; and he will reign for ever and ever." 16. And the twenty and four Elders who are before the throne of Elohim, (and) who sit upon their seats, fell upon their faces and worshipped Elohim, 17. saying: "We praise you, O Master YHWH Elohim, Omnipotent, who is and who was,"<sup>39</sup> because You have assumed your great power, and have reigned. 18. And the nations were angry; and your anger is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged: and that You should give a reward to your servants, the prophets, and the Set Apart believers, and to them that fear Your Name, the small and the great; and that You should destroy them who destroyed the earth." 19. And the temple of Elohim in heaven was opened; and the ark of His Covenant<sup>40</sup> was seen in his temple: and there were flashes of lightning and thunders, and voices and an earthquake, and great hail.

Chapter 12

1. And a great wonder was seen in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars.<sup>41</sup> 2. And, being with child, she cried and labored, and had the pangs of giving imminent birth. 3. And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold, a great fiery dragon which had seven heads and ten horns, and upon his head seven diadems. 4. And his tail drew along the third part of the stars of heaven, and cast them on the earth. And the dragon was standing before the woman, who was about to bring forth so that, when she should bring forth, he might devour her child. 5. And she brought forth a male child who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron. And her child was caught up to Elohim and to his throne. 6. And the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place which was prepared for her by Elohim; so that they might nourish her there a thousand and two hundred and sixty days.<sup>42</sup> 7. And there was war in heaven: Michael and his Messengers fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his Messengers fought, 8. and did not prevail; nor was their place found any more in heaven. 9. And the great dragon was cast out, the old serpent who is called the Deceiver, and Satan, who seduces all the inhabited world: he was cast upon the earth and his Messengers were cast out with him.

<sup>40</sup> Future judgment is already established; the Ark of His Covenant (Aron haBrit) contains the Ten Commandments (Atzeret haDibrot) which will be called upon to judge all souls, regardless of their religious persuasion. Those who have spoken evil or lived against Torah will give account to YHWH and His Mashiyach; the Word of YHWH warns, "You shall not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shall you speak in a cause to turn aside after a multitude to twist justice..." (Sh'mot/Exodus 23:2). See Torah in the Renewed Covenant in Appendix.

<sup>41</sup> This is also a massive Biblical calendar clue regarding "signs, seasons, days and years" (Genesis 1:14-19). The crown or Wheel of Stars is above the woman's head and she is clothed in the sun with the moon at her feet. Of course, the earth must be below the moon. This tells us plainly (see also Job 38:31-33) that order of hierarchy in the calendar to bring in the year is 1) stars, 2) sun, 3) moon, 4) earth. The earth sign is when the ripened barley becomes ready for harvest. Please see Wheel of Stars in appendix.

<sup>42</sup> That is to say 42 months in 360 day/year time. With all 12 months 30 days long, 42 x 30 = 1,260. This is also the timescale for "time, times and half a time".

10. And I heard a great voice in heaven which said: "Now is there deliverance, and the power and the Kingdom of our Elohim, and the dominion of his Mashiach: because the Accuser of our Brothers is cast out, who accused them day and night before our Elohim. 11. And they overcame him, because of the blood of the Lamb, and because of the word of their testimony: and they loved not their own lives, even to death. 12. Therefore, be joyful, O heaven and you that dwell there. Woe to the earth, and to the sea; for the Deceiver has come down to you, being in great wrath since he knows that his time is short." 13. And when the dragon saw that he was cast out upon the earth, he persecuted the woman who brought forth the male child. 14. And to the woman were given the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, to her place; where she is nourished a time and times and half a time, from the face of the serpent. 15. And the serpent spewed from his mouth waters like a river after the woman, that he might cause her to be carried away by the flood. 16. And the earth helped the woman: and the earth opened its mouth and drank up the flood which the serpent ejected from his mouth. 17. And the dragon was enraged against the woman; and he went to make war upon the remnant of her seed who keep the Commandments of Elohim<sup>43</sup> and have the testimony<sup>44</sup> of Y'shua.

Chapter 13

1. And he stood on the sand of the sea. And I saw a beast of prey come up from the sea, having ten horns and seven heads; and upon his horns ten diadems, and upon his heads names of blasphemy. 2. And the beast of prey which I saw, was like a leopard; and his feet like (those) of a wolf,<sup>45</sup> and his mouth like the mouth of lions: and the dragon gave to him his own power and his throne, and great authority. 3. And one of his heads was wounded as it were to death; and his deadly wound was healed. And all the earth wondered after the beast of prey. 4. And they worshipped the dragon, because he had given authority to this beast of prey, and (they said), who can make war upon him? 5. And there was given to him a mouth speaking great things, and blasphemies: and authority was given him to operate forty and two months.<sup>46</sup> 6. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy towards Elohim, to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle, and them who dwell in heaven. 7. And authority was given him over every tribe and people and tongue and nation: and it was given him to wage war with the Set Apart believers, and to overcome them. 8. And all that dwell on the earth whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, will worship him. 9. If any one has ears, let him hear. 10. If (anyone) carries into captivity, he will himself go into captivity; and if anyone slays with the sword, he must be slain with the sword: here is the patience and the faith of the Set Apart believers. 11. And I saw another beast of prey which came out of the earth; and he had two horns like those of a lamb, and he spoke like the dragon. 12. And before him he exercised all the authority of the first beast of prey whose deadly wound was healed.

43 Two very distinct groups; one willfully breaks the Commandments of Elohim and causes others to do the same, but the other group keeps the Commandments of Elohim and observes Torah.

44 Isaiah 8:20.

45 Translators seem split on whether the word spelled dalet-beyt-alap is debah (wolf as Murdock translates it) or diabaa (bear, following the Greek and translated as such by Lamsa and Etheridge). The question is whether the leading dalet is the first letter or a proclitic, the latter being a prepositional prefix that would be "of". Both readings are possible, however there is no way to prove either authoritative but it is understandable why folks go with "bear" due to the Greek reading.

46 Again, 1,260 days, or 3 ½ years. The 360 day system will need a 30 day leap month at the end of every 6th year and again at the end of every 39th year in a given 40 year cycle to balance with the tropical 365.2422 day long year. Though this is not a practical calendar suitable for planting and harvesting, it is used for prophecy math. See the note in Revelation 12:6 and also Daniel 12:11. The 1290 days are essential for when the latter 3 ½ year part of a 7 year cycle needs the extra 30 day leap month to balance according to this system.

13. And he brought about great signs, even so as to make fire come down from heaven upon the earth, before men. 14. And he seduced them that dwell on the earth to erect an image to the beast of prey who had the wound from a sword and recovered. 15. And it was given him to put life into the image of the beast of prey; and to cause that all they who would not worship the image of the beast of prey, should be slain: 16. and to cause that all, great and small, rich and poor, bond and free, should receive a mark on their right hands, or upon their foreheads; 17. so that no one might be able to buy or to sell, except those who had the mark of the name of the beast of prey, or the number of his name. 18. Here is wisdom: let him that has intelligence compute the number of the beast of prey; for it is the number of a man: and its number is six hundred and sixty and six.<sup>47</sup>

1. And I looked, and behold, a Lamb stood on mount Tsiyon; and with him the number of a hundred and forty and four thousand,<sup>48</sup> having his name and the name of his Father written upon their foreheads. 2. And I heard a sound from heaven, as the sound of many waters, and as the sound of great thunder; and the sound which I heard was like that of harpers striking on their harps. 3. And they sang a new song before the throne, and before the four Creatures and the Elders: and no one was able to learn that song except the hundred and forty and four thousand who were redeemed from the earth. 4. These are they who have not defiled themselves with women,<sup>49</sup> for they are virgins.<sup>50</sup> These are they who followed the Lamb, wherever he went. These have been redeemed by Y'shua from among men, the first fruits to Elohim and the Lamb. 5. And in their mouth was found, no deceit; for they are without faults. 6. And I saw another Messenger flying in heaven: and with blood, he had the everlasting Good News to proclaim to dwellers on the earth, and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people; 7. saying with a loud voice, "Worship Elohim, and give glory to Him; because the hour of his judgment is come; and adore you Him, who made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of water." 8. And another, a second Messenger followed him, saying: "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, which made all nations drink of the wine of the rage of her whoredom." 9. And another, a third Messenger followed them, saying with a loud voice: "If any man will worship the beast of prey and its image and will receive its mark upon his forehead or on his hand, 10. he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of Elohim which is poured undiluted into the cup of his indignation, and will be tormented with fire and sulfur before the Set Apart Messengers and before the throne. 11. And the smoke of their torment ascends up for ever and ever; and there is no rest, by day or by night, to those that worship the beast of prey and its image."

47 In terms of the number of the Beast, the name "Nero Caesar" adds up to 666 in Hebrew and Aramaic. Rome has long been the focal point of evil, so how much more would the Emperor reflect that, especially when he murdered both Rav Shaul and Shimon Keefa (Peter). However, one of the main titles of the head of the Roman Catholic church "Vicarius Filii Dei" also adds up to 666 in Latin (Lucius Ferraris' Prompta Bibliotheca, 1858 Paris edition, Vol. 5, column 1828, "PAPA", "Article II"). Although the Vatican has changed "times and laws" (Daniel 7:25) many view the Roman Catholic hierarchy as the successor to the Roman Empire. While the book of Revelation is written outside of specific "time" as we know it, the examples and instances of the past and present ultimately repeat themselves while racing towards their final fulfillment. We must also remember that, although 666 is the identifying number of haSatan, this number also applies to all other Anti-Mashiyach types. Rav Shaul taught that the Anti-Messiah is the "man of lawlessness" but still a man; and 2 Thess. 2:3-8 clearly reveals that the man has false divine aspirations.

48 144,000 refers to a type of people, rather than the numerical sum; 10 = testimony 12 = the Yisrael of Elohim; 10 x 10 x 10 is a three fold testimony representing YHWH Eloheinu YHWH Echad; 12 x 12 is the Israel of Elohim who are spiritually re-born in Mashiyach. These sing the song of Moshe and have the Testimony of the Lamb. This can also be understood as "the 144,000's" (plural); a Kedoshim (Set Apart) people. There is a Mishchah (anointing) placed on this faithful remnant, according to Torah (Moshe) and Mashiyach.

49 "Defiled" with women refers to defilement with the "harlot" and her daughters, which also includes all forms of Gnosticism, false traditions, anti-Torah values and paganism that has worked its way into Jewish and Christian religions.

50 Marriage and childrearing is of course Kadosh l'YHWH (Set Apart unto YHWH) so from the context here virginity refers to those who have not committed idolatry with the woman of Revelation 17:5 or her daughters. The beauty and purity of physical virginity is being likened to spiritual purity.

12. Here is the patience of the Set Apart believers who keep the commandments of Elohim, and the faith of Y'shua. 13. And I heard a voice from heaven, saying: "Write, 'Blessed are the dead that die in Master YHWH from now on.' 'Yes,' says the Spirit, 'that they may rest from their toils; for their deeds do accompany them.'" 14. And I looked, and lo, a white cloud; and upon the cloud sat one who was like the Son of man; and on his head was a crown of gold, and in his hand a sharp sickle. 15. And another Messenger came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud.<sup>51</sup> 16. And he thrust his sickle over the earth; and the earth was reaped. 17. And another Messenger came out of the temple that is in heaven, having also a sharp sickle. 18. And another Messenger came out from the altar, having authority over fire. And he cried with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, saying: "Thrust in your sickle which is sharp, and gather the clusters of the vineyard of the earth, because the grapes of the earth are ripe."<sup>52</sup> 19. And the Messenger thrust in his sickle on the earth and gathered the vintage of the earth, and cast (it) into the wine-press of the wrath of the great Elohim. 20. And the wine-press was trodden,<sup>53</sup> up to the horses' bridles, for a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

Chapter 15

1. And I saw another sign in heaven, great and wonderful; seven Messengers having seven plagues,<sup>54</sup> the last in order, because with them the wrath of Elohim is completed. 2. And I saw as it were, a sea of glass mixed with fire: and they, who had been innocent<sup>55</sup> over the beast of prey and over its image, and over the number of its name, were standing on the sea of glass; and they had the harps of Elohim. 3. And they sing the song of Moshe the servant of Elohim, and the song of the Lamb, saying: "Great and marvelous are your deeds, Master YHWH Elohim Almighty; just and true are your ways, O King of worlds."<sup>56</sup> 4. Who will not Fear you, O Master YHWH, and glorify Your Name? Because You only are Set Apart and just: Because all nations will come and worship before you, since your righteousnesses have been revealed." 5. And after this I beheld, and the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened. 6. And the seven Messengers who had the seven plagues went forth from the temple, clothed in clean splendid linen, and girded about their breast with girdles of gold. 7. And one of the four Creatures gave to those seven Messengers seven cups of gold full of the wrath of Elohim who lives forever and ever. 8. And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of Elohim and from his power; and no one was able to enter the temple until the seven plagues of the seven Messengers were accomplished.

51 The words of the Messenger in the Greek, "Take your sickle and reap, because the time to reap has come, for the harvest of the earth is ripe", are not recorded in Aramaic Revelation, and were not included by Lamsa, Murdock or Etheridge.

52 Grapes ripen prior to Succoth, or the Feast of Tabernacles. This may be a clue about when this terrible period of judgment will commence.

53 The phrase "outside the city" is not recorded in Aramaic Revelation.

54 These plagues bring to remembrance the plagues of the Exodus but also provide a warning that these ones will be exceedingly more powerful. This is also why the song of Moshe is mentioned in verse 3.

55 Aramaic word zeka could also mean "victorious" as is translated into Greek; however the context demands the word "innocent" as the preferable reading.

56 "Singing the song of Moshe and the song of the Lamb" shows the clear continuity between YHWH saving the Israelites back at the time of the Exodus and those who follow the true halakha of Moshe's testimony as given by Y'shua Mashiach. Also the "song" of the Lamb may refer to a very early Netzari hymn sung in the synagogues, perhaps along the lines of Philippians 2:6-11.

1. And I heard a voice which said to the seven Messengers: “Go forth and pour those seven cups of the wrath of Elohim upon the earth.”<sup>57</sup> 2. And the first went and poured his cup upon the earth; and there was a malignant and painful sore upon those men who had the mark of the beast of prey, and who worshipped its image.<sup>58</sup> 3. And the second Messenger poured his cup upon the sea; and it became blood, like that of a dead person; and every living soul of things in the sea, died. 4. And the third Messenger poured his cup upon the rivers and the fountains of water; and they became blood. 5. And I heard the Messenger of the waters say: “Righteous are you, Who is and Who was and are Set Apart<sup>59</sup>; because You have done this judgment. 6. For they have shed the blood of Set Apart believers and prophets; and you have given them blood to drink, for they deserve it.” 7. And I heard (one from) the altar say: “Yes, Master YHWH, Elohim Almighty: true and righteous is your judgment.” 8. And the fourth poured his cup upon the sun: and it was permitted him to scorch men with fire. 9. And men were scorched with great heat; and men blasphemed the name of Elohim who has authority over these plagues; and they did not repent, to give glory to Him. 10. And the fifth poured his cup on the throne of the beast of prey; and his kingdom became darkness; and they gnawed their tongues from pain; 11. and they blasphemed the Elohim of heaven on account of their pains and their ulcers, and did not repent of their deeds. 12. And the sixth poured his cup upon the great river Euphrates; and its waters dried up so that a way might be prepared for the kings from the rising of the sun. 13. And I saw (issuing) from the mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast of prey, and from the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs: 14. (for they are the spirits of demons who work signs;) and they go forth to all the kings of all the habitable world, to gather them to the battle of the great day of Elohim Almighty. 15. (And lo, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watches and keeps his garments; or else he walk naked and they see his shame.) 16. And they collected them together in a place called, in Hebrew, Armageddon. 17. And the seventh poured his cup on the air; and there issued a loud voice from the temple, from the throne, which said: “It is done!” 18. And there were flashes of lightning, and thunders, and voices; and there was a great earthquake, the like of which there was never, since men were on the earth, such an earthquake, and so great. 19. And the great city became three parts. And the city of the nations fell; and Babylon the great was remembered before Elohim, to give her the cup of the wine of the heat of his wrath. 20. And every island fled away; and the mountains were not found. 21. And a great hail, as it were of a talent weight, fell from heaven upon men: and the men blasphemed Elohim on account of the plague of hail; for the plague of it was very great.

1. Then came one of the seven Messengers who have the seven cups, and talked with me, saying: “Come, I will show you the judgment of the great harlot who sits upon many waters; 2. with whom the kings of the earth have practiced illicit sexuality, and the inhabitants of the earth have been intoxicated with the wine of her harlotry.”

<sup>59</sup> Another very key interpretation of the name of YHWH as expressed in Exodus 3:14-16 and throughout the Torah. Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh is “I am that I am” but can also be “I was who I was” or “I will be who I will be.” The third person version of this name, in other words going from “I am” to “he is” is YHWH, and so this passage also co-opts later statements like “Be set-apart, as I (YHWH) am also set-apart” (Leviticus 11:44).

3. And he led me in spirit into the wilderness: and I saw a woman sitting on a red beast of prey, which was full of names of blasphemy, and had seven heads and ten horns. 4. And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold and precious stones and pearls; and she had a cup of gold in her hand which was full of the pollutions and impurity of her whoredoms of the earth. 5. And upon her forehead was the name written: Mystery: Babylon the great; the Mother of Harlots,<sup>60</sup> and of the contaminations of the Earth. 6. And I saw that the woman was intoxicated with the blood of the Set Apart believers, and with the blood of the witnesses of Y'shua. And when I saw her, I wondered with great amazement. 7. And the Messenger said to me, "Why do you wonder? I will tell you the mystery of the woman and of the beast of prey that bears her, which has the seven heads and the ten horns. 8. The beast of prey which you saw, was and is not; and he will ascend from the abyss and go into destruction: and the dwellers on the earth whose names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, will wonder when they see the beast of prey which was, and is not, and approaches. 9. Here is intelligence for him who has wisdom. Those seven heads are the seven mountains<sup>61</sup> on which the woman sits. 10. And there are seven kings: of whom five have fallen, one exists, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes he must continue for a short time. 11. And the beast of prey which was and is not, is the eighth, and is from the seven, and is for destruction. 12. And the ten horns which you saw, are ten kings. These persons have not yet received royalty; but they receive authority as if kings, with the beasts of prey, for one hour. 13. They have one mind; and they will give their power and authority to the beast of prey. 14. They will make war upon the Lamb; and the Lamb will vanquish them; because he is Master of Masters<sup>62</sup> and King of Kings, and these with him (are) called and chosen and faithful." 15. And he said to me: "The waters which you saw, where the harlot sits are peoples and multitudes and nations and tongues. 16. And the ten horns which you saw, and the beast of prey, will hate the harlot; and they will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh, and burn her with fire. 17. For Elohim has put into their hearts to do His will and to execute one purpose, and to give their kingdom to the beast of prey until these Words of Elohim will be fulfilled. 18. And the woman whom you saw is the great city which has dominion over the kings of the earth.

Chapter 18

1. After these things, I saw another Messenger come down from heaven; and he had great authority and the earth was illuminated by his glory. 2. And he cried with a strong voice, saying: "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great: and has become a cavern of demons, and the home of every unclean spirit, and the home of every unclean and hateful bird and the home of every unclean and hateful beast of prey. 3. For all the nations have drunken of the wine of her wrath; and the kings of the earth have practiced whoredom with her; and the merchants of the earth have been enriched by the abundance of her luxuries."

---

60 Jeremiah 51:7 says, "Babylon has been a golden cup in YHWH's Hand, that made all the earth drunken; the nations have drunk of her wine, therefore the nations are senseless." Religion, materialism and humanism is the modern Babylon that is blinding eyes to the Kingdom of Heaven and the nature of Mashiach's Government. Notice that YHWH holds all elements of life, and the spiritual worlds within His Hand, good and evil.

61 The only city on Earth that boasts of sitting on seven hills is Rome. The Catholic Encyclopedia states: "It is within the city of Rome, called the city of seven hills, that the entire area of Vatican State proper is now confined."

62 See King of Kings and Master of Masters Part 1 Revelation 17:14 in Appendix.

For her sins have reached up to heaven; and Elohim has remembered her iniquities. 6. Recompense you to her, as she also has recompensed; and render to her double, according to her deeds; in the cup which she has mixed, mix you to her two fold. 7. As much as she pleased herself with lusting, so much of anguish and sorrow give you to her. Because she says in her heart, 'I sit a queen, and am no widow, and I will see no sorrow;' 8. therefore, in one day, will these her plagues come, death, and mourning, and famine; and she will be burned with fire: for strong is Master YHWH, Elohim, who judges her." 9. And the kings of the earth who committed whoredom and were lustful with her will weep and mourn and bewail her when they will see the smoke of her burning, 10. standing afar off from fear of her torment (and) saying, "Alas, alas! that great city Babylon, that powerful city; for in one hour is your judgment come!" 11. And the merchants of the earth will mourn over her, because no one purchases their cargo; 12. no more, the cargo of gold, and silver, and precious stones, and pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and every aromatic wood, and all vessels of ivory, and all vessels of very precious wood, and of brass, and of iron, and of marble, 13. and cinnamon, and amomum, and aromatics, and unguents, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts of burden, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and the bodies and souls of men. 14. And the fruits which your soul desired, have departed from you; and all things delicious and splendid have perished from you; and the traders in them will obtain them no more. 15. And they who were enriched from her, will stand far off, for fear of her torment; and will weep and mourn, 16. saying: "Alas, alas! that great city, which was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearls; because, in one hour, such riches are laid waste." 17. And every pilot, and every navigator to the place, and the sailors, and all who do business by sea stood afar off 18. and cried when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying: "What (other) is like this great city!" 19. And they cast dust on their heads, and cried, weeping, and mourning, and saying: "Alas, alas that great city, in which all that have ships in the sea became rich, by her preciousness; for in one hour she has become desolate." 20. Rejoice over her, O heaven and you (heavenly) Messengers and Shlichim (Apostles) and Prophets; because Elohim judges your cause with her.<sup>64</sup> 21. And a Messenger took up a stone like a great millstone and cast it into the sea, saying: "So will Babylon, the great city, be thrown down with violence, and will no more be found: 22. and the voice of harpers and musicians and pipers and trumpeters will no more be heard in you;<sup>65</sup> and no artificer of any trade will be found any more in you. 23. And the light of a candle will not be seen in you;<sup>66</sup> and the voice of a bridegroom and bride will no more be heard in you: for your merchants were the great men of the earth, because all nations were seduced by your sorceries. 24. And in her was found the blood of prophets and Set Apart believers, and of all those that have been slain on the earth."

63 "Her" refers to spiritual Babylon which is represented by all religious organizations who make void Torah and speak against Y'shua Mashiach. All earthly governments and religious institutions have modelled their hierarchies and values after her, she is the harlot system of materialism, relativism, humanism and paganism that has installed her own religious "priesthood" by replacing YHWH and His Mashiach with her own "messiahs." "Come out of her" means to turn to YHWH, observe His Torah and walk in Mashiach according to the Image of Elohim.

64 Jeremiah 51:48 says, "Then the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for joy over Babylon; for the spoilers shall come unto her from the north, says YHWH."

65 See Ezekiel 26:13.

66 See Jeremiah 7:34 and 16:9.

1. And after these things, I heard a loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying: "Hallelu-YAH:<sup>67</sup> Deliverance,<sup>68</sup> and strength, and glory, and honor to our Elohim: 2. for, true and righteous are his judgments; for he has judged that great harlot who corrupted the earth with her harlotry; and has avenged the blood of his servants at her hand."<sup>69</sup> 3. And again they said: "Hallelu-YAH: and her smoke ascends up forever and ever." 4. And the twenty-four Elders fell down, and the four Creatures, and worshipped Elohim who sits on the throne, saying: "Amen: Hallelu-YAH!" 5. And a voice came forth from the throne, saying: "Praise our Elohim, all you his servants; and such as fear Him, small and great." 6. And I heard, as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of heavy thunders, saying: "Hallelu-YAH; for our Master YHWH Elohim, Omnipotent, reigns. 7. Let us rejoice and exult, and give glory to him: for the marriage supper of the Lamb has come, and his bride has made herself ready. 8. And it was granted her to be clothed in fine linen, bright and clean: for fine linen is the righteousnesses of the Set Apart believers." 9. And he said to me, "Write: 'Blessed are they who are called to the supper of the marriage feast of the Lamb.'" And he said to me, "These my (sayings) are the true Words of Elohim."<sup>70</sup> 10. And I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said to me, "See that you do not do this; I am your fellow-servant and of those your Brothers who have the testimony of Y'shua. Worship you Elohim: for the testimony of Y'shua is the Spirit of Prophecy." 11. And I saw heaven opened: and lo, a white horse; and he that sat on it is called Faithful and True: and in righteousness he judges, and makes war. 12. His eyes (were) like a flame of fire, and on his head (were) many diadems; and he had names inscribed; and the name which was written on him, no one knew, except himself. 13. And he was clothed with a vesture sprinkled with blood; and his name is called, "The Word of Elohim."<sup>71</sup> 14. And the army of heaven followed him on white horses, clad in garments of fine linen, pure (and) white. 15. And from his mouth issued a sharp two-edged sword, that with it he could strike the nations; and he will rule the nations with a rod of iron; and he will tread the wine-press of the wrath of Elohim Almighty. 16. And he has upon his vesture and upon his thigh the words written: "King of Kings, and Master of Masters."<sup>72</sup> 17. And I saw a Messenger standing in the sun;<sup>73</sup> and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven: "Come you, assemble to this great supper of Elohim; 18. that you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains of thousands, and the flesh of valiant men, and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them, and the flesh of all the free-born and of slaves, and of the small and the great." 19. And I saw the beast of prey and the kings of the earth and their warriors, that they assembled to wage battle with him who sat on the (white) horse, and with his warriors. 20. And the beast of prey was captured, and the false prophet that was with him, who did those prodigies before him, whereby he seduced them who had received the mark of the beast of prey and who worshipped his image. And they were both cast alive into the lake of fire which burns with sulfur. 21. And the rest were slain by the sword of him that sat on the horse, by that (sword) which issues from his mouth: and all the fowls were satiated with their flesh.

67 Halelu-YAH means, "praise YAH." Yah is the same name as "Yahweh" in simplified form (Psalm 68:4). The four occurrences of this term indicate that the earliest assemblies knew and revered the name of YHWH.

68 The Aramaic word paroqa here is the same word used to describe Y'shua as "Savior" or more accurately, "Life Giver". The synonym for "deliverance" is yeshua or "salvation" in Hebrew.

69 See Psalm 19:9.

70 See Luke 14:15.

71 Perhaps for some, a terrifying vision of Y'shua! But, this proves that when he went "into heaven" he became "the Word" just as when his spirit was revealed "out of heaven" as the Word of YHWH.

72 Aramaic "malka d' malka mara maraota," see King of Kings and Master of Masters, Part 2 Revelation 19:16 in Appendix.

73 The NASB reads, "And I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he cried out with a loud voice to all the birds which fly in mid-heaven, 'Come, assemble for the great supper of Elohim...'" (Revelation 19:17). It appears as the messenger could not be "in the service" as some suggest, but "in the air" and therefore appearing in the sun. Those who try to make a "proof text" here in attempt to prove Crawford as an original text can show nothing with regard to either Crawford or Greek being an original reading. Reason being, the Peshitto Aramaic Revelation, which we know is a translation from Greek, also has the same bshemsha! And so, with “standing in the sun” clearly making more sense when the full verse is quoted, this idea becomes a non-issue. It is very troubling when many “original readings” proffered by those who uphold a Crawford original are, in fact, verbatim echoes of the Peshitto Revelation.

1. And I saw a Messenger that descended from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. 2. And he seized the dragon, the old serpent, who is the Deceiver and Satan, who seduced the whole habitable world: and he bound him a thousand years. 3. And he cast him into the abyss and closed and sealed upon him; so that he might deceive the nations no more until these thousand years will be completed: but after that, he will be released for but a short time. 4. And I saw thrones, and (persons) sat on them, and judgment was given to them, and to the souls that were beheaded for the testimony of Y'shua and for the Word of Elohim: and these are they who had not worshipped the beast of prey nor its image; neither had they received the mark upon their forehead or on their hand; and they lived and reigned with their Mashiyach those thousand years. 5. This is the first resurrection. 6. Blessed and Set Apart is he that has part in this first resurrection: over them the second death has no dominion;<sup>74</sup> but they will be, (and) are, priests of Elohim and of his Mashiyach; and they will reign with him the thousand years. 7. And when these thousand years will be completed, Satan will be released from his prison; 8. and will go forth to seduce the nations that are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog; and to assemble them for battle, whose number is as the sand of the sea. 9. And they went up on the breadth of the earth and encompassed the camp of the Set Apart believers and the beloved city. And fire came down from Elohim out of heaven and consumed them. 10. And the Accuser who seduced them was cast into the lake of fire and sulfur where also were the beast of prey and the false prophet: and they will be tormented day and night, forever and ever. 11. And I saw a great white throne and Him who sits upon it; from whose presence the earth and heaven fled away, and this their place was not found. 12. And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne; and the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is (the book) of life. And the dead were judged from the things written in the books, according to their deeds. 13. And the sea gave up the dead in it; and death and Sheol gave up the dead in them. And they were judged, each one according to his deeds. 14. And death and Sheol were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death, (namely,) this lake of fire. 15. And if any one was not found enrolled in the book of life, he was cast into this lake of fire.

Chapter 21

1. And I saw new heavens and a new earth: for the former heaven and the former earth had passed away;<sup>75</sup> and the sea was no more. 2. And I saw the Set Apart city, the New Urishlim, descending from Elohim out of heaven, prepared like a bride adorned for her husband. 3. And I heard a great voice from heaven, which said: "Behold, the tabernacle of Elohim is with men; and he dwells with them: they will be his people; and Elohim will be with them, an Elohim to them."<sup>76</sup> 4. And every tear will be wiped from their eyes; and there will no more be death, nor mourning, nor wailing; nor will pain be any more; because the former things are passed away."

<sup>76</sup> In a sense this phrase in Revelation 21 begins a letter to an 8th assembly – namely the rest of us believers in the world that were not covered in the first two chapters. This 8th assembly is offered the general benefits that arise from proper faith and halakha continuing all the way to the very last line of the book.

5. And He who sat on the throne, said: "Behold, I make all things new." And he said: "Write; 'because these are the faithful and true Words of Elohim.'" 6. And he said to me: "I am Alap and the Taw,<sup>77</sup> the Beginning and the Completion: to him who thirsts, will I give of the fountain of living water, freely. 7. He that overcomes will inherit these things; and I will be his Elohim, and he will be my son. 8. But to the timid and the unbelieving, and to the sinful and polluted, and to manslayers and sexual sinners, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and to all false persons, their portion will be in the lake that burns with fire and sulfur, which is the second death." 9. And there came one of those seven Messengers who have the seven cups filled with the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying: "Come, I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb." 10. And he bore me away in the spirit to a mountain great and high, and he showed me the Set Apart city, Urishlim, descending out of heaven from Elohim; 11. in which was the glory of Elohim, as a brilliant light, and resembling a very precious gem; like a jasper stone, resembling crystal. 12. And it had a wall great and lofty, which had twelve gates, and names inscribed on them, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel. 13. On the east, three gates; on the north, three gates; (on the south, three gates; and on the west, three gates). 14. And the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and upon them the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. 15. And he that talked with me had a measure, a golden reed; so that he could measure the city and its gates, and its wall. 16. And the city stood up four square; and its length was the same as its breadth. And he measured the city with the reed to twelve furlongs of twelve thousand; and the length and the breadth and the height of it were (all) equal. 17. And he measured its wall, a hundred and forty and four measures of the cubits of a man, that is, of the Messenger. 18. And the structure of its wall (was of) jasper; and the city was of pure gold, like pure glass. 19. And the foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every precious stone. The first foundation, a jasper; the second, a sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald; 20. the fifth, a sardonyx; the sixth, a sardius; the seventh, a chrysolite; the eighth, a beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysoprasus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst. 21. And the twelve gates (were) twelve pearls; each (pearl) one gate, and each (gate) one pearl: and the broad street of the city was pure gold, like brilliant glass. 22. And I saw no temple in it; for Master YHWH Almighty is its temple, and the Lamb.<sup>78</sup> 23. And the city has no need of the sun or of the moon to enlighten it; for the glory of Elohim enlightens it, and the Lamb is the lamps of it. 24. And the nations that were saved will walk by means of its light, and the kings of the earth will bring their glory and the wealth of the nations into it. 25. And its gates will not be shut by day; for there is no night there.

<sup>78</sup> Mar Yochanan refers to the Heavenly Temple coming down to Earth predicatively four times. Furthermore, Mar Yochanan would not contradict Isaiah 66 or other prophets of YHWH who refer to the Temple in the world to come. It is just that, for the spiritual message of this particular vision, he did not need to see the Temple. Because Mar Yochanan sees no Temple, does not mean it does not exist.

26. And they will bring the glory and honor of the nations into it. 27. And there will not enter it anything polluted, or that practices impurity and falsehood; but they who are registered in the Lamb's book of life.

Chapter 22

1. And he showed me a river of living water, transparent (as) crystal, which proceeded from the throne of Elohim and the Lamb. 2. And in the middle of its broad avenue and near the river, on this side and on that, (was) the tree of life; which bore twelve (sorts of) fruits yielding one of its fruits each month<sup>79</sup>; and the leaves of the tree (were) for the healing of the nations. 3. And there will be no blight anymore: and the throne of Elohim and the Lamb will be in it; and his servants will minister to him. 4. And they will see his face, and his name (will be) on their foreheads. 5. And there will be no more night; and they have no need of the light of a lamp or of the light of the sun; because Master YHWH, Elohim, gives them light: and they will reign forever and ever. 6. And he said to me: "These words (are) faithful and true. And the Master YHWH, Elohim of the Spirit of the prophets, has sent me, his Messenger, to show to his servants the things that must soon occur. 7. And, lo, I come quickly: Blessed is he that keeps the words of the prophecy of this book." 8. And moreover I am Yochanan, the hearer and the seer of these things. And when I heard and saw, I fell down to worship at the feet of the Messenger who showed me these things. 9. And he said to me: "See, that you do not do this: I am your fellow-servant and of your Brothers the prophets, and of them that observe the words of this book. Worship Elohim." 10. And he said to me: "Do not seal the words of the prophecy of this book; for the time is near. 11. He that does evil, let him do evil still; and he that is filthy, let him be filthy still; and he that is righteous, let him practice righteousness still; and he that is sanctified, let him be sanctified still. 12. Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me to recompense everyone according to his work." 13. "I am Alap and the Taw,<sup>80</sup> the First and the Last, the Beginning and the Completion. 14. Blessed are they who do His (Master YHWH's) Mitzvot,<sup>81</sup> that they may have a right to the tree of life and may enter through the gates into the city. 15. Without (will be) dogs and sorcerers, and sexual sinners and manslayers and idolaters, and everyone that loves and does falsehood. 16. I Y'shua have sent my Messenger to testify to you these things before the assemblies. I am the root and offspring of Dawid: like the splendid star of the morning. 17. And the Spirit and the bride say, 'You come.' And let him that hears, say, 'You come.' And let him who thirsts, come; and he that is inclined, let him take the living water freely." 18. I testify to every one who hears the words of the prophecy of this book, that if anyone will add to them, Elohim will add to him the plagues that are written in this book. 19. And if any one will take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, Elohim will take away his portion from the tree of life and from the Set Apart city, which are described in this book. 20. He who testifies these things, says: 'Yes, I come quickly.'" Amen. Come, Master Y'shua! 21. The grace of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach (be) with all the Set Apart believers. Amen.

<sup>79</sup> This may be an early reference to imagery found many centuries later in mystical writings like the Kabbalah and the Zohar. The tree of life with twelve fruits may represent the Ten Sefirot, or attributes of YHWH, combined with the dwelling place of the Invisible Elohim above, and the Shekinah radiating into the physical realm below. This same Sefirotic Tree reveals the Middle Pillar, and mystics have long taught that Mashiyach manifests through the Middle Pillar and gives life. On the other hand, to imply that Mashiyach is not manifesting all the attributes of YHWH in his Divine Side would appear to go against Scriptural teaching elsewhere, so the reader must be extremely careful to not extend mystical metaphors into realms not directly supported by the plain reading of the Word.

81 Very important! Y'shua is talking, so these are יְהוָה YHWH's Mitzvot (Commandments), not his. This is also the original reading in Revelation. The "wash your robes" line was substituted later, as a way to downplay the obvious pro-Torah message at the end of the New Testament. This is, in effect, the last speech Y'shua gives to the world. There are actually two ancient Greek witnesses that are split on the matter, and one may have arisen as a scribal error to the other between plunontes tas stolas (wash their robes) and poiountes tas entolas (do his commandments).

Alef Tav

“Alef” is the first and “Tav” is the last letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Just like the English phrase “from A to Z” suggests a full spectrum of thought, Alef-Tav does the same thing in Hebrew and Aramaic. This must especially be borne in the mind because it appears inside the creative act and affirms YHWH’s authorship of creation as “the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End”.

In English characters the key phrase is et hashamayim v’et ha’arets and could literally be thought of in total as “In the beginning, Elohim sent creation to the heavens and the earth”. Alef Tav is “the energy force” behind Creation Who reveals Himself in the name of YHWH.

בְּרֵאשִׁית בָּרָא אֱלֹהִים אֵת הַשָּׁמַיִם וְאֵת הָאָרֶץ:

In the beginning, Elohim created the heavens and the earth

וְהָאָרֶץ הָיְתָה תוֹהוּ וָבֹהוּ וְחָשֶׁךְ עַל־פְּנֵי תְהוֹם וְרוּחַ אֱלֹהִים מְרַחֶפֶת עַל־פְּנֵי הַמַּיִם:

And the earth was without form and void and darkness was upon the face of the waters.

וַיֹּאמֶר אֱלֹהִים יְהי אוֹר וַיְהי אוֹר:

And Elohim said, “Let there be light” and there was light.

Genesis (B’re sheet) 1:1-3

Within these first three lines Torah reveals wonderfully deep elements of Mashiyach, that are far beyond coincidence. The very first word בְּרֵאשִׁית (b’re sheet) contains a hidden Messianic prophecy teaching us that the son will be the head of all things. Bar is the Aramaic word for “son” and resh means “head, chief” as well as “starting point”. The use of the direct object pointer, as showing what part of a Hebrew sentence receives an action, is also a hint for the deeper truth of the son as the Alef and Tav (the first and the last), the beginning and the completion.

Notice the chronological pattern within creation itself. First YHWH speaks (“the Word”) and then He creates (became flesh). His first creation is light which is aur in Hebrew, the Aramaic word for “Torah” is related to that root and used by the rabbis of the Talmud: aurayta. So “let there be light” also suggests, “let there be Torah”; just as within the word b’re sheet (in the beginning) is the word breet (covenant). These are clues about who the Son was from the very beginning (the Word), but also that he would be the Living Torah. Mashiyach himself would keep (observe) Torah and as the “first fruits” of all creation he would write Torah upon the hearts of everyone who puts their trust in him.

Almah

“...behold a virgin shall conceive...” Isaiah 7:14

Over the past 2,000 years, perhaps no passage of Scripture has elicited more controversy between Jews and Christians than the virgin or maiden of Isaiah 7:14. Modern Rabbinical Jews insist that the prophet is writing about people and events – including himself and his family – that are rooted solely in his time and therefore cannot be relevant to the birth of Y’shua some 700 years later.

Christians, on the other hand, insist with equal fervor that the word in question, almah, refers to a virgin birth that would have nothing to do with Isaiah at all. Their studies often focus on how almah was rendered as “virgin” in two key translations of the Tanakh that were done prior to the controversy.

Regardless of our personal perspectives, one Jew two millennia ago took a radical view of this passage and greatly influenced the entire field of biblical studies, only to have his unique vision lost, even to his most ardent supporters. His name: Levi Bar Alphaeus, known more popularly to the world as the Apostle Matthew.

To Rabbinical Jews, Matthew was a heretic, plain and simple. However, recent scholarship, such as Paul Bradshaw's Passover and Easter: Origin and History to Modern Times (University of Notre Dame Press, 2000), suggests that the rabbis' ancient counterparts were not so closed-minded. The First Century Rabbi Gamaliel, tutor to the Apostle Paul (Acts 22:1-2) and grandson of the great Rabbi Hillel, is recorded as having written a parody on Matthew's Gospel in Hebrew<sup>1</sup>. That being the case, it would have required the Rabbi to have at least read the Gospel in the first place and become familiar with its approach and terminology. It is also worth pointing out that large portions of Y'shua's parables were copied and inserted almost verbatim into the Talmud 200 years later.<sup>2</sup>

Furthermore, the picture that continues to emerge is that there was a frequent dialogue and mutual influence between the Nazarene and Rabbinic camps during the First Century which later editors of the Mishnah tried to edit out of their official records. However, fortunately for us, they did not completely succeed.<sup>3</sup>

First to the Jews

The strongest aspect to the Jewish argument on Isaiah 7:14 is also the most obvious. It's called "reading the first thirteen verses before talking about verse fourteen"! To wit: In the days of Ahaz the son of Jotham, son of Uzzi'ah, king of Judah, Rezin the king of Syria and Pekah the son of Remali'ah the king of Israel came up to Jerusalem to wage war against it, but they could not conquer it. When the house of David was told, "Syria is in league with E'phraim," his heart and the heart of his people shook as the trees of the forest shake before the wind.

And YHWH said to Isaiah, Go forth to meet Ahaz, you and She'ar-jash'ub your son, at the end of the conduit of the upper pool on the highway to the Fuller's Field, and say to him, 'Take heed, be quiet, do not fear, and do not let your heart be faint because of these two smoldering stumps of firebrands, at the fierce anger of Rezin and Syria and the son of Remali'ah. Because Syria, with E'phraim and the son of Remali'ah, has devised evil against you, saying, "Let us go up against Judah and terrify it, and let us conquer it for ourselves, and set up the son of Ta'be-el as king in the midst of it,"'

Thus says YHWH ELOHIM: 'It shall not stand, and it shall not come to pass. For the head of Syria is Damascus, and the head of Damascus is Rezin. (Within sixty-five years E'phraim will be broken to pieces so that it will no longer be a people.) And the head of E'phraim is Sama'ria, and the head of Sama'ria is the son of Remali'ah. If you will not believe, surely you shall not be established.'"

Again YHWH spoke to Ahaz, 'Ask a sign of YHWH your Elohim; let it be deep as Sheol or high as heaven.' But Ahaz said, 'I will not ask, and I will not put YHWH to the test.' And he said, 'Hear then, O house of David! Is it too little for you to weary men, that you weary my Eloah also?'"

If Isaiah 7:1-13 sets the scene for us this is what we know:

- The start of Isaiah's prophecy in this chapter is rooted during his day, specifically the time of King Ahaz, and not seven centuries later. In fact, as early as verse 3, we see YHWH

1 That is, in Hebrew letters, but in the Aramaic language. There is no question that ktav asshuri script was used for both Hebrew and Aramaic inscriptions in First Century Israel.

2 See Andrew Gabriel Roth's Signs of the Cross, p. 17-41 for a thorough treatment about how parables such as those in Luke 14:1-24 were largely adapted by Judah the Prince in his version of the Mishnah.

3 See Neal Altman, Support for the Authenticity of the Gospel of Matthew Comes from an Unlikely Place, (Kansas City Star, June 7, 2003).

telling Isaiah to speak these words of comfort to Ahaz directly.

- The time-limit for this prophecy is clearly established in verse 8 as 65 years, so once again this is not talking about Y'shua's day.
- The "sign" that is about to be revealed in verse 14 is one that YHWH prompts Ahaz to ask of Him, yet another indicator tying the prophecy to the time of Isaiah.

Therefore, it is only with this background that the next line can be interpreted: "*Therefore YHWH Himself will give you a sign. Behold, a young woman (almah--אִמָּה) shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Imman'u-el. He shall eat curds and honey when he knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good. For before the child knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land before whose two kings you are in dread will be deserted."*

As we can easily see, the birth of Immanuel is within the lifetime of the two earthly kings mentioned earlier. So where is Y'shua in all of this, the rabbis rightly ask? In fact, if you follow the line to the end of chapter 7, and even well into chapter 8, there is no indication of a future well beyond the 65-year window that the prophet himself gives. That being the case, by this reasoning, Matthew's direct quoting of this passage in support of a virgin birth seems at best misguided and at worst, irresponsibly deceptive....

And then to the Christians

The Christian side of this argument has the unfortunate general and prevailing attitude that the Tanakh should simply be ignored in favor of the "higher" revelation of the New Testament. This particular attitude, however, was condemned by another group of very pious and orthodox Jews, straight out of the "New Testament" who warned us to keep the Torah at all costs: Luke, James, Peter, John and Paul who made comments such as the following:

"Do we nullify the Torah through faith? YHWH forbid! Rather, we establish the Torah" (Romans 3:31). See also Luke 16:17, Romans 7:12, James 1:22-25; 2:8-10, 1 Peter 1:23-25, 2 Peter 1:19, 1 John 3:4 and Revelation 12:17.

The Rabbinical school points out that almah means "young woman" as does the NKJV Christian translation. When the Christian then asks, "But it says it's a sign, so what is so miraculous about a young woman bearing a son and calling him a common Jewish name?" The rabbi has a ready-made answer: Put simply, YHWH is clearly asking Ahaz to select a miracle that will make the king feel more confident. Then, in line 14, Isaiah says to Ahaz that, because he did not pick a sign, YHWH would pick one for him.<sup>4</sup> This young woman, who turns out to be Isaiah's wife and a prophetess in her own right, is herself a sign by her very existence, as well as the existence of her son. In other words, the pregnancy alone is the sign of encouragement that YHWH is giving to Ahaz.

When the Christian follows up with the fact that Rebekah, who was a virgin, is also called almah, the rabbis show Proverbs 30:18-20, where an adulteress was called the same thing.<sup>5</sup> As if that was not bad enough, the rabbis can even show that the most ancient version of Isaiah, the Dead Sea Scrolls, also says almah.<sup>6</sup> But, as good as the Rabbinical argument is, it also has a serious flaw, a nasty snaking crack in its otherwise perfect interpretive wall: "*Behold a parthenos (virgin--παρθενος) will conceive and bear a son, and you will call him Immanuel*" (Isaiah 7:14 Septuagint reading, ca. 250 BCE).

4 But not exclusively for Ahaz alone, as we will see later on.

5 This reading, linking the adulterous woman with almah, is granted somewhat controversial. Nevertheless, it is easy to see why such a linkage is widely held among rabbinical adherents. They are probably right, but the distance of those two words in the text makes a definitive verdict impossible. The bottom line is that I am willing to grant the full argument to the rabbis in this instance, because even if everything they say is true, their fundamental flaw in not seeing the embedded characteristics of Isaiah 7-9 remains.

6 See Martin Abegg Jr., Peter Flint & Eugene Ulrich, The Dead Sea Scrolls Bible, p. 281. Not only does the Dead Sea Scrolls version read "young woman" but the rest of the line is "has conceived and is bearing a son"; yet more proof that this part of the prophecy applies to Isaiah's time, not Y'shua's.

The Jewish scholars from Jerusalem knew Isaiah 7:14 relates to Isaiah's time, and more to the point, they knew Isaiah's wife did not have a virgin birth and translated almah into the virgin-exclusive term parthenos anyway! How could that be Christian bias then, if the translation was done by Jews more than two centuries before Y'shua was even born? Now, here is what the Jews of Babylon, whose descendants helped compile the Talmud, wrote in their Aramaic version of Isaiah almost 200 years later:

"Behold a beytola (virgin--בתולה) will conceive and bear a son, and you will call him Immanuel" (Isaiah 7:14 Aramaic Peshitta Tanakh reading, ca. 100 BCE).

Once again, we see virgin exclusive terminology, and this time by a Jewish group universally acknowledged by biblical scholars to be much closer to the Apostolic Age than the LXX redactor was. Furthermore, the fact is, there is an ancient Hebrew variant behind both the LXX and the Peshitta Tanakh reading, as is testified by both groups involved in their respective works' production.

Now let's compare the Greek with the Aramaic:

"Behold a parthenos will conceive and bear a son..." (Matthew 1:23).

"Behold a beytolta<sup>7</sup> will conceive and bear a son..." (Matthew 1:23).

Suddenly, Matthew is not as simple as some might posture, here is a man adding his voice to the traditions of his own scholarly ancestors since these are the exact same words! There are all kinds of definitions for the word "virgin" but let's take a look at the definition the Torah gives for "marriageable maiden":

"The girl was very beautiful, a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ)<sup>8</sup> and no man had had relations with her; and she went down to the spring and filled her jar and came up" (Genesis 24:16).

"A widow, or a divorced woman, or one who is profaned by harlotry, these he (the high priest) may not take; but rather he is to marry a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ), of his own people..." (Leviticus 21:13-14).

"If a man takes a wife and, after lying with her, dislikes her and slanders her and give her a bad name, saying, 'I married this woman, but when I approached her I did not find proof that she was a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ), then the girl's father and mother shall bring proof that she was a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ) to the town elders at the gate. The girl's father shall say to the elders, 'I gave my daughter in marriage to this man, but he dislikes her. Now he has slandered her and said, I did not find your daughter to be a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ), but here is proof of my daughter's virginity.'"

Then the parent shall display the cloth before the elders of the town, and the elders shall take the man and punish him. They shall fine him a hundred shekels of silver and give them to the girl's father, because this man has given an Israelite virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ) a bad name. She will continue to be his wife; he must not divorce her as long as he lives" (Deuteronomy 22:13-19).

"If a man happens to meet in town a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ) pledged to be married and he sleeps with her, you shall take both of them to the gate of that town and stone them to death" (Deuteronomy 22:23-24).

"For as a young man marries a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ), so your sons will marry you; and as the bridegroom rejoices over the bride, so your Elohim will rejoice over you" (Isaiah 62:5).

<sup>7</sup> These are the exact same words, beytola and beytolta, rendered slightly differently due to dialectical variances that arise regionally and also with the passage of time. The Hebrew version of the word, beytola (בתולה), also retains this precise meaning.

<sup>8</sup> It should be pointed out that because of conjugation issues in Greek, technically speaking the spelling of parthenos is not uniform. However, whatever form such variations appear in, they are the same word. For example, in the LXX version of Joel 1:8, the word appears as parqenkon.

"Can a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ) forget her ornaments, Or a bride her attire? Yet My people have forgotten Me days without number" (Jeremiah 2:32).

"Wail like a virgin (בתולה/παρθενοσ) girded with sackcloth, for the bridegroom of her youth" (Joel 1:8).

Put simply, there is not a single biblical reference to a beytolta or a parthenos having had sexual relations prior to meeting their husbands.<sup>9</sup>

The Almah Connection

Thus far, we have only discussed two meanings of the word almah (אַלְמָה), that of "young woman" and "virgin". These are the two meanings that are most apparent given the context of the passage. However, Hebrew has a tendency to have additional meanings heaped onto a given collection of letters that are not necessarily the exact same word, but nevertheless are valid owing to the divine arrangement of every stroke of every letter. If we then can study the numerical value of Hebrew words in an attempt to understand their deep relationships, then surely looking at identical spelling configurations and their concordant meanings is an equally beneficial pursuit. In terms of the gematria of course, these words would be related to one another anyway because their numerical values would be identical. Going by this standard then, אַלְמָה does not just have two meanings that are relevant to our study, but five, and these meanings could very well be the key that unlocks Matthew's understanding of Isaiah 7:14. Without going into much further detail, however, it is also important to note that, in Ezekiel 36:24-27, the nations are scattered throughout the Earth, and this references the wider world – which also happens to be a phrase spelled the same as almah!

"And behold I am with you always, even unto the end of the world (almah--אַלְמָה)" (Matthew 28:20).

And of course Y'shua is called the "light of the world" (אוֹר, אֶלְמָה),<sup>10</sup> in John 1:4 and 9:5, marrying the dual meanings of light/Torah and young woman/world perfectly. There is also a clear linkage between the "light of men" in John 1:4, and the "light of the nations" language in Isaiah. On the other hand, that line in Matthew 28:20 can also be read another way, due to yet another meaning of this phrase:

"And behold I am with you always, even unto the end of the age (almah--אַלְמָה)" (Matthew 28:20).

Interestingly enough, the Greek word aion which is also used here, means "world" and "age", one of the few times such a precise match between languages has been found in their respective versions of the Renewed Covenant. Be that as it may, however, the fact is "world" and "eternity" are ideas bound together in Hebraic thought. When the rabbis for example talk about olam haba, the world that is to come, it is also known as the eternal place. Surely then the use of אַלְמָה by Isaiah when more precise terms could have been utilized, hints that there is more to this prophecy than a young woman bearing a son named Immanuel! This "son" instead, is the shadow for the type of the other Son, who is born of and whose goings forth are from eternity (Micah 5:1-2)<sup>11</sup>, and yet he also rules the world, (Daniel 7:1-13)!

9 Torah however does allow for a virgin who is seduced to be married to the man who forced himself on her. In that case, while technically the בתולה/παρθενοσ did have sex, she is not blamed and retains that title, because the man who took her virginity did shortly thereafter become her husband, just as a regular young maiden who was not seduced would have been (Exodus 22:16). The salient point is that Scripture never calls a woman who did not marry the first man she had sex with a בתולה/παρθενοσ, and so by that definition Joseph expected his wife Mary to be fully chaste.

10 It should be noted that the word for "light" in Aramaic is different from the Hebrew; however that is fine because nohra, which means "flame" or "light" and is the phrase from which the Hanukkah menorah is derived, also dovetails with evidence in John's Gospel that Y'shua was conceived during this time, the Festival of Lights!

11 Granted, the word in Micah is a synonym for אֶלְמָה, which is meqedem, but that works too for two reasons. First, the word is derived from qedem/qadim that also means "eastern or ancient". Micah himself was born in the town of Moresheth Gath (Micah 1:14, Jeremiah 26:18), and so from his perspective he is writing about events in Bethlehem, located directly northeast from his position! And second, Micah uses meqedem as a synonym for olam in 5:1-2, and this is of course the cognate of the Aramaic almah that we have linked with identical spelling to the almah in Isaiah 7:14!

The Rest of the Vision

Moving onto Isaiah 9, we see that the infant being talked about there is not the same one that began in Isaiah's time two chapters earlier. Let's see why: "Thou hast multiplied the nation, thou hast increased its joy; they rejoice before thee as with joy at the harvest, as men rejoice when they divide the spoil. For the yoke of his burden, and the staff for his shoulder, the rod of his oppressor, thou hast broken as on the day of Mid'ian. For every boot of the tramping warrior in battle tumult and every garment rolled in blood will be burned as fuel for the fire. For to us a child is born, to us a son is given; and the government will be upon his shoulder, and his name will be called "Wonderful Counselor, Mighty Elohim, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace." Of the increase of his government and of peace there will be no end, upon the throne of David, and over his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from this time forth and for evermore. The zeal of YHWH of hosts will do this" (Isaiah 9:3-7).

So, after the people in Galilee see a great light, the conditions at that time also appear ripe for war. Can this be an apt description of the troubles of King Ahaz with Syria? Absolutely. However, it is equally apt to the position Jews found themselves in seven centuries later, under the oppression of the Roman Empire, so here again we see that the shadow of chapter 7 has manifest itself in chapter 9. Obviously, Isaiah's own child is not called "Wonderful, Counselor..." because we already know the name of that child as Maher-shalal-hash-baz (Isaiah 8:3), since that portion of the prophecy is still within the 65-year window. Isaiah would also surely not name his son the Mighty Elohim, the everlasting Father, because that would be blasphemous!

However, those titles would be appropriate for a promised Messiah whom Isaiah himself referred to as a righteous branch and to having the Spirit of YHWH rest upon him (Isaiah 11:1-2), because the Spirit of YHWH is that of the Mighty Elohim and the Everlasting Father, since they are one and the same! As for the rest of the portion, and the government will be on his shoulder cannot refer to Isaiah's child either, because only the king's descendants had the right to rule in Israel. And so, even though the sign of Isaiah's newborn son was meant for Ahaz, that son cannot be the ruler referred to here in chapter 9, and yet almah links them both!

Then, as if this were not a strong enough point, we are told that this child's government is eternal and that he himself will rule forever – something not even Ahaz or his descendants could rightfully claim. The text literally reads that "he will uphold it now and forevermore."

Notice that after 9:7 another stray letter appears; a samekh. Its appearance and symbolism tells us that the long-term prophecy is now also sealed up, and the balance of chapter 9 shifts back to present and near future. This was done, at the key juncture between 8:15 and 8:16, when the short-term prophecy was also sealed symbolically and by direct reference with this same letter.

However, before wrapping this up, it is fair to ask where that last meaning of almah, namely "virgin" is finally found. The answer is in the lines we just looked at, because in order to have a ruler live forever, as 9:1-5 clearly states, that person must also be without sin, because the soul that sins surely dies (Ezekiel 18:4, Romans 6:23). So, if sin prevents us from immortality, as is clearly the case with Adam and Eve, then it stands to reason that another process must occur in order for that person to escape the inheritance of Adam.

This seems to be why Matthew saw the almah word in Isaiah 7:14 as a root from which multiple lexical branches sprang, reaching all the way to the time when he would have to talk about another almah, this time a virgin, conceiving and bearing a son. In doing so, Matthew then saw the same thing that the compilers of the LXX and Peshitta Tanakh did, and therefore quoting the first part (7:14) in Matthew's mind must have been tantamount to bringing all these future shadow-type-extra meanings also to the table.

Furthermore, Matthew surely would have seen the Zechariah 12:10 image of YHWH saying He was pierced but they mourned for him - the Suffering Servant (Isaiah 52:14-53:12), as the only begotten son. The word in Hebrew, yachid, is an exclusive singularity, meaning that the rules for Messiah could never apply to anyone else, either before or since Y'shua. Hence, referring to 7:14 and then part of Isaiah 9 just a little bit later (Matthew 4:15-16), was sufficient for the Gospel writer to make his case from Tanakh.

And finally, it is probably also the case that Matthew himself expected his readers to search the Scriptures to see why he made the choices he did, which may also go a long way to explaining why Matthew quotes from Tanakh 128 times, way more than any other Gospel writer.

A Prophet like Moshe

"YHWH will raise up for you a prophet like me from among yourselves, from your own kinsmen. You are to pay attention to him..." Deuteronomy 18:15

Contrary to popular opinion, Moshe was not "the Lawgiver"; he was the man whom YHWH chose to reveal His Torah. Y'shua Mashiyach was not "the Lawgiver" either; he was and is the Word of YHWH who came from the Father in physical bodily form to "reveal the Father."

Many of the commandments that Moshe taught were clearly given before the flood, specifically the Eser haDibrot (Ten Commandments). In the same fashion Mashiyach Y'shua did not bring any of his own "new" commandments, but rather, he brought a Renewed Covenant. In Aramaic "khawdata" literally means "renewal" or "to make new," therefore the New Covenant is a "renewal" or a "making new" of the Covenant YHWH had formerly established between Himself and His people. Every commandment that Y'shua taught had its origin in Torah, and Mashiyach magnified the Torah. Torah is a book of Love, Grace and Mercy which is the basis for all Justice on earth and in heaven; but it is Mashiyach who is a prophet like Moshe who harmonizes Torah and Covenant according to the original Truth and intent of Torah.

"The Torah" which Mashiyach revealed is "very broad" – far beyond the boundaries of human intellect. Rav Shaul taught that "the Torah is Spiritual"; therefore to have Torah written upon our hearts means to have the Spirit of Mashiyach within us. Mashiyach is the focal point of life; everything is harmonized and unified in the spiritual and physical worlds according to Mashiyach. As Moshe clearly spelled out the "blessings and curses," Mashiyach elucidated mankind on how to draw close to YHWH – or how to deny Him by turning away from Torah.

Torah is a universe within itself, with dimensions that mankind has not begun to either plumb or comprehend; yet many foolishly "brush off" both Torah and Y'shua because they erroneously believe they are intellectually and spiritually equipped to assess the Word of Elohim according to their own "higher criticism." Y'shua said "...if you desire to enter into life, keep the commandments" (Matthew 19:17); in other words, life begins when we surrender ourselves and keep YHWH's commandments. "He who desires to do His will can comprehend my teaching, if it is from Elohim, or if from my own will I speak" (John 7:17). Therefore, if we do not "do His will" neither will we understand or experience how Mashiyach and Torah unify all things.

"I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto you, and will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak to them all that I shall command him" (D'varim/Deut. 18:18). (See also John 6:14.) Torah came and dwelt among us in the body of Mashiyach ben Yoseph who is the Salvation of YHWH. Through the Mashiyach, "Messiah Consciousness" is accessible to bring humankind into harmony with each other, with Creation around us and to the Father. A careful examination of Torah reveals that mankind has been endowed with limitless potential, but we have struggled to bring harmony to ourselves and to the worlds over which we were given responsibility – which is why Mashiyach came to bring redemption.

If mankind is enslaved by injustice, we can only blame ourselves for choosing to live contrary to Mashiyach who is the Prophet like Moses. Though most of the world is busy remodeling the tower of Babel, the followers of Mashiyach recognize the futility of man's rebellion against the Perfection of Mashiyach which is able to preserve humankind and ensure abundant prosperity for everyone. Even while mankind continues to destroy the "pale blue dot," leaving devastating moral poverty, famine, injustice and horror in his wake, Mashiyach is setting forth the Standard that judges all manner of unrighteousness. Moshe demanded of Pharaoh to "Let my people go" (Sh'mot/Ex. 5:1), but it is Mashiyach who vests his followers with the power of freedom from within to stop sinning, and stop rebellion, and to turn from all manner of destructive habit to be conformed into the "Image of Elohim." Y'shua came in the authority of his Father, he said; "These words that I speak, I do not speak of myself but He who dwells in me, my Father does these works" (John 14:10).

Aramaic or Greek Lingua Franca?

All of Rav Shaul's epistles (with the possible exception of Philemon since it was sent through a Roman contact, then to the assembly) were sent to Synagogues that contained Jewish and Gentile believers whose halakha (legal faith practices) were governed by Ya'akov HaTzadik (James the Just) head of the Jerusalem Assembly. This is why in Acts 9 and 15 James writes letters in Aramaic (about circumcision and other matters) for individuals like Rav Shaul to deliver. Once delivered, a meturgeman (targumist) would translate the letters into Greek for Greek speaking members. There is plenty of evidence indicating inconsistency of Greek translation quality of Paul's original Aramaic letters. Galatians was a terrible translation disaster, but 1 Corinthians was reasonably well translated. But there is clear evidence that Rav Shaul was well aware that "wolves" were going to misconstrue everything he said to posture their own ideas, for example:

1) 1 Corinthians 16:22 has the Aramaic phrase Maran Atha (our Master [Y'shua] comes) but why would he write this to a Greek audience? Using Maran Atha indicates two things: a) This is a "distinguishing mark" that Rav Shaul refers to elsewhere as being in all his letters, a code word to authenticate his material from the many fakes that we know were circulating early. See also 2 Thess. 3:17. Since the autographs are lost but the text is faithfully preserved in the Peshitta Aramaic traditions, it appears that Maran Atha appeared as some kind of seal or marking, but in 1 Cor. Rav Shaul chose to insert it in the body of the text. b) The expectation by this distinguishing mark indicates that at least one person at the synagogue would be able to translate that Aramaic phrase for a Greek audience. The NT shows elsewhere in Acts 10 that Hebrew synagogue services were translated into Greek for the benefit of people like Cornelius. There is no reason to assume given the similar letters that James has delivered to Jews and Gentiles that the exact same process did not happen from the Aramaic to Greek Epistles. By this method, everything Rav Shaul wrote, with the possible exception of Philemon, can be easily shown to have been targummed from Aramaic into Greek at the assembly level.

2) Paul states that he has a poor scribal hand/training in Galatians 6:11. He also admits in a variety of places that he has both co-writers and co-translators into Greek, as well as those who help him speak wherever he goes. We read in 2 Peter 3:15 and 16 where Peter states that Paul's letters are "difficult to understand" and those who are "ignorant and unstable pervert" what he writes as well as the "other scripture". Paul's letters were not considered as "Scripture." The Scripture was and is the Torah, Prophets and Writings (Tanakh) and evidently the "theologians" that Peter talks about did not have a foundation in Tanakh; plus, they most likely bungled Paul's writings because of it. However, we also see that both letters to the Thessalonians are from "Paul, Silas and Timothy." That is also why the scribe Tertius writes his own name at the end of Romans (16:22) and why John Mark's absence at Pamphylia results in Rav Shaul needing to travel with Luke and others instead. Put simply, Rav Shaul goes nowhere outside of Israel without a Greek translator like Barnabbas, John-Mark, Luke, etc.

3) There are many examples indicating good and bad targumming from Aramaic and into Greek, clearly indicating that Paul's writings or dictation was originally in Aramaic.

If Luke was a Gentile why then would he write in Aramaic rather than Greek?

Luke's Greek is the best by far in the Renewed Covenant writings, but the First Century Jewish historian Josephus' Greek is superior; and Josephus admits several times that he wrote his histories in Aramaic and that even after nearly 30 years of living in Rome he was still not proficient in Greek. What is true for Josephus must also be considered for both Luke and Paul. Rav Shaul was a Pharisee who studied under Rabbi Gamaliel but Josephus descended from both priests and kings and was a leading Pharisee of his day.

Luke may have been a Gentile, but he was likely a Semitic Gentile. Although he worked in Troas, Asia Minor, he was born and raised in, "Antioch boomeus en" or "The famous Antioch," meaning the one in Syria, not Pisdia. Syrian Antioch had a huge native Aramaic speaking population and it is from "Syria" that we get Syriac, a synonym for Aramaic. Aramaic speaking Jews and pagans have been living there for millennia. On the other hand, Antioch was also the seat of Roman power from at least 65 BCE (the Seleucids 100 years earlier, also Greek speakers), and the other half of the city was fully Hellenized as well. It was a center of tremendous Greco-Roman learning eclipsed perhaps only by Alexandria Egypt and her great library there. There was perhaps no city on earth at that time more capable of producing the most sophisticated bi-lingual scholars than was the city of Luke's birth. Therefore, his Greek mastery should be no surprise or unexplainable within the Aramaic primacist model. But even if Luke's Greek is superior to the rest of the NT, this is not saying it is at par with wider classical standards, but only in comparison to the other targumists. From the reality of the Roman occupation there was no such thing as "KOINE Greek," only good and bad classical Greek. The Alexandrian dialect of Classical Greek was likely similar to the way Americans mangle the English language and yet it is still understood by British folks even though they might wince at the different accents and expressions.

Frequently what we see in the NT Greek are attempts to retain Semitic word order which is opposite from the Classical or retain other Semitisms like casus pendens (and it happened while in the doing...). The tendency for Semitisms in NT Greek (things like NOT FEAR instead of FEAR NOT) were so great that some scholars in the 19th century posited a "Jewish Greek" dialect. The Western theological posturing of Greek lingua franca among the original followers of Y'shua versus tribal Hebrew and Aramaic vernacular is extremely far fetched when we understand that the original followers of Y'shua relied on the Hebrew Tanakh to prove or disprove Y'shua being Mashiach. The highest authority of Scripture and ideas from which to make your best arguments come from the Tanakh. When evangelizing both Jews and Gentiles it was and is imperative to teach from the Tanakh to establish context and history. When sharing ideas, values, terms and definitions that pertain to the Kingdom of Elohim and are as important as life itself, every individual prefers their vernacular language, most certainly not a vehicular language.

Brooke Foss Westcott (1825 - 1901) wrote that the Greek NT had an original Aramaic autograph; "Moreover it is known that books were soon translated from Syriac into Greek, and while such an intercourse existed it is scarcely possible to believe that the Scriptures themselves remained untranslated. The same conclusion follows from the controversial writings of Bardesanes [154 - 222] which necessarily imply the existence of a Syriac Version of the Bible. Tertullian's [160 - 225] example may show that he could hardly have refuted Marcion [85 - 160] without the constant use of Scripture. And more than this, Eusebius tells us that Hegisippus [110 - 180] 'made quotations from the Gospel according the Hebrews and the Syriac and especially from [writings in] the Hebrew language,' showing thereby that he was a Christian of Hebrew descent. This testimony is valuable coming from the only early Greek writer likely to have been familiar with Syriac literature.... Ephraem Syrus [306 - 373], a deacon of Edessa, treats the [Aramaic] Version in such a manner as to prove that it was already old in the fourth century. But meanwhile there is no sufficient reason to desert the opinion that has obtained the sanction of the most competent scholars that its formation should be fixed to the first half of the second century: The text, even in its present revised form, exhibits remarkable agreement with the most ancient Greek Manuscripts and the earliest quotations from. The very obscurity that hangs over its origin is a proof of its venerable age." A General Survey of the History and Canon of the New Testament" (Seventh Edition, 1896), p. 244-8.

Aramaic Primer

Both the Hebrew and Aramaic alaph-beet (alphabet) are relatively easy to learn. The many transliterated words throughout this publication will give the reader a familiarity with the sounds and easier identification of the Aramaic words in Hebrew letters, and perhaps even inspire the reader to learn the languages.

Original ancient Aramaic and Hebrew writings did not originally have written vowels, but centuries later various vowel pointing systems were introduced to standardize pronunciation of the text. However, it is simple to show how the ancient pronunciation was well known in the Middle East and harks back directly to Y'shua's time, as well as to the dialect that he and his followers originally spoke.

As the centuries passed, rivalries between various assemblies forced the competing religious groups to alter the original Aramaic Estrangela alaph-beet and introduce vowel pointing systems so no one group's manuscripts could be mis-construed as coming from the rival group.<sup>12</sup> In the end, this divergence in pronunciation and new appearance of the Aramaic alaph-beet marked the divisions that we broadly know today as Eastern and Western Aramaic.<sup>13</sup>

The Eastern system is comprised of a series of dots that go above and below a letter and, in addition, the Eastern style slightly modified five of their letters from the older Estrangela style. By contrast, the Western system used reverse Greek letters to indicate which vowels were intended, but then turned the Estrangela into an extremely hard to read Arabic-looking alaph-beet known as Serto.

Throughout the rest of the 19th and 20th centuries, many great academic works in Europe and America, such as Compendious Syriac by Payne Smith, then adopted full Serto style. The result was that Serto, while most familiar to these academics, nevertheless became frowned by later Peshitta Primacist scholars who were familiar with the original.

That being said, the reversal of Serto is evident in newer works such as Daniel Mahar's "Aramaic Made E-Z" (Aramaic Bible Society, 2001), which went with the best of both worlds, retaining the original Estrangela consonants for easy reading, combined with the Western vowel pointing.

The result: A beautiful modified font known as Estrangela Midyat that maintains the overall original manuscript look while giving the intermediate Bible student a much easier way to approach the general pronunciation of the text. This approach is very much consistent with trends in Hebrew education. Hebrew students know that the prayer books are vowel pointed but Torah scrolls are not. And so, after weighing all these factors such as purity of original presentation against scholarly clarity, the first two editions of the AENT employed this compromise solution; however, the reader must understand that this is not exactly how the original manuscripts appeared. So, with these ideas in mind, the chart indicates both the consonants and vowels that form the basis for this system.

12 Ironically western scholars in the 19th century ignored Middle Eastern traditions on this score and provided the lone exception to this easy rule. They thought the Western Aramaic manuscripts were the oldest and most original even when the Syrian Church told them otherwise! Even today, most authoritative western studies on Aramaic remain in the Western dialect of Serto, along with their pointing. The problem even extends to the fact that later additions to the Peshitta on the Western side were accepted as original readings, even though they clearly were not.

13 Both combating groups, the Church of the East and the Syrian Orthodox Church, maintain the use of Estrangela for headings and titles of important documents and acknowledge Estrangela as the oldest alaph-beet, the original style of the oldest manuscripts that they have preserved. Both sides also agree the Eastern pronunciation is the original one used by Y'shua and the apostles. Finally, both groups have actively begun talks that are, if not bringing them back together, are creating greater understanding and agreement between them, even though this linguistic divide is likely to stay intact for the foreseeable future.

Understanding How Aramaic Impacts Hebrew Pointing

While the text in this diglot is meant for the average Hebrew reader to approximate Aramaic sounds, there are numerous elements we must bear in mind when vocalizing Aramaic:

- Not all Aramaic sounds are carried over into Hebrew. In particular, the letter beyt occasionally takes on a W sound whereas a standard ruchaka pointing of it as a BGDKPT<sup>14</sup> letter might have normally called for something closer to a V. For example, “Abraham” lacking a dagesh lene (“heart dot”) would more likely be rendered as “Avraham” in Hebrew but is actually “Awraham” in Aramaic.<sup>15</sup> As this is quite common in Aramaic pronunciation of names, the reader should check the transliterated English words of the AENT for the proper sounding.
- Aramaic has one extra prepositional prefix or proclitic than Hebrew, the letter dalet which can mean “of, that, who, or which” and that will change the way the rest of the word is accented as a leading syllable. Other uses of dalet in genitive form or as “because” are more complex and fall outside of the scope of this discussion.
- In general terms a segol is treated the same way as a sere. Even though technically speaking some grammarians look at the segol as a long vowel and the sere as a short one, each for the medium length “e” sound (as in “Elephant” or “end”).
- A similar thing applies generally but not exclusively to the vowels patah and kamets. The former is thought of as a short vowel and the latter the long version of the same medium “a” sound (as in “bat” or “cat”). However, it is more precise to point out that a patah is most appropriate in a closed syllable where the consonant containing the patah is stressed. A kamets is most appropriate in an open syllable attached to a consonant that is not stressed in a word.
- Kamets Hatuf is a variation of the Kamets where the Hatuf is pronounced ha-toof; the h sound is the h or ch of the Aramaic letter Chet. It looks identical to the Kamets; a small inverted T shape under the letter. However, it is pronounced o, like on or gone. Almost always the normal Kamets is used (pronounced a), but in a small number of words Kamets Hatuf is used instead. Kamets Hatuf (pronounced o) is only used when there is a closed, unaccented syllable. Two common Hebrew words with the Kamets Hatuf are kol: all, each, every; is pronounced kol, not kal. Wisdom is pronounced hoch-ma, not hach-ma.
- Kamets or Patah followed by Yood, the Aramaic vowels are immediately followed by the ee sound of the Aramaic letter Yood. Pronounced together, they are similar to the English words eye or I. Kamets or Patah followed by Waw, the Aramaic Vowels are followed by the v sound of the Aramaic letter Waw. Pronounced together, they are similar to the “av” in English words such as have.
- Dagesh is a dot which occurs inside a Aramaic letter. Dagesh in Aramaic is not really a vowel, but it affects the way the Aramaic letters are pronounced. It occurs when an Aramaic letter is doubled, for emphasis. Most of the time the presence of Dagesh makes <sup>14</sup> BGDKPT is a shorthand employed by Hebrew grammarians to indicate six letters that can have either a hard or a soft pronunciation: beyt (b), gimel (g), dalet (d), kaph (k), peh (p) and taw (t).

<sup>15</sup> The reader should bear in mind that these general descriptions are no substitute for a solid biblical Hebrew grammar. My favorite one, Biblical Hebrew: An Introductory Grammar by Paige Kelley, is especially targeted at showing the reader examples in Biblical passages as opposed to more modern Hebrew phraseology. They also provide an excellent companion handbook to provide the student exercises to bolster their study. This resource correctly points out (p. 12-13) that what I call a “heart dot” can be either a dagesh lene, or a dot that instructs a hard pronunciation for BGDKPT letters or a dagesh forte that doubles the sound of a letter. They look identical, the only way to know which is correct is to understand that a dagesh lene never stands after a vowel whereas a dagesh forte always stands immediately after a vowel. It’s rules like these that make supplementing this guide absolutely essential for proper understanding of all the rules of Hebrew vowel pointing.

no difference to the way the Aramaic letter is pronounced. The Aramaic letters Beet, Kap and Pe, sound differently when a Dagesh is added. These Aramaic letters are pronounced b, k and p, but without Dagesh they are pronounced v, ch and f.

From here, it is easy to see how these same vowels are applied to the Aramaic text, in this case the very first line from the Epistle to Titus:

דְּגַבְיָא דַּאֲלֵהָא וִידְעוּתָא דְּשַׁרְרָא דְּבִדְחִלַת אֲלֵהָא :

Paulos, a servant of Eloah and an apostle of Y'shua the Messiah, by the faith of those chosen of Eloah, and the knowledge of the truth of the awe of Eloah.<sup>24</sup>

16 Waw or the W sound, is the more ancient pronunciation in both Hebrew and Aramaic. However, later Hebrew literature leans more to the Vav or V sound for the 6th letter.

17 Any joined and final forms of these letters are represented after the main forms, provided there are significant differences in appearance. This is done even if the actual writing methods between the main and joined forms diverge significantly.

18 Letters Kaph, Mem and Noon are written differently when at the end of a word, here the two letters are joined together.

19 A calligraphic style of Estrangela is to combine the Lamed and Aleph letters, as well as the Taw and Aleph letters, when they are the last two letters of a word. Both endings are very common in Aramaic words.

20 The Mem and final Mem that is used at the end of a word are joined together here.

21 The Noon appears in three forms in both the Estrangela and Midyat columns. In the Midyat column the right-most figure is a combination of the letter as it appears at the beginning of a word (𐤎) followed by how it looks at the end of a word (𐤏). The remaining figure (𐤐) is also a final Noon as appears after a letter that it could not connect to.

22 Technically pronounced “Alaha”, which is simply Eloah/Elohim in this Aramaic dialect.

23 Aramaic pronunciation of yodh-sheen-waw-ayin, or Yay-shoo-wah, in Hebrew.

24 This Aramaic word means something closer to “awe/fear” rather than the Greek translation “godliness”. In Aramaic, the awe/fear of YHWH is a righteous act.

Assemblies

Ya'akov (James) stated he was writing to Jews who were scattered “among the peoples,” a key divergence from “nations.” He addresses Jews who were and are living among, and as Gentiles. In every culture including Jewish, there is distinction made between the people (Israel) and the peoples (everyone else). In this case the phrase b’ammeh literally means “in/among peoples” with the “b” proclitic having these prepositional meanings attached to ammeh. When we say “nation” in English, we envision a fixed place with borders and limits set by treaty and legal convention. While there are surely “peoples” living in these locations for long periods of time, we do not consider the nation dissolved if many were to pack up and leave. By contrast, James is writing to Jews of the dispersion, and his intent is clearly to pull them out from their national ties and have them return to their tribal/ethnic ones.

The reason we can be certain of this has to do with the second term: “For if there come into your assembly a man with rings of gold or splendid garments, and there come in a poor man in sordid garments” (James 2:2). Most of the time when Paul, Peter or other Renewed Covenant writers address a group of believers, they use the term eidta, the Greek equivalent is ekklesia which refers to a body of people. This term is closest to the Hebrew term adat, usually “congregation” in English (Exodus 12:3), which is indicative of a general gathering of believers.

However, in spite of its Hebrew counterpart having strong usage in Tanakh, the fact of the matter is that adat/eidta or ekklesia is a later concept that emerges in the letters of Paul and others in the Renewed Covenant. A more primitive and direct word is knooshta which James uses, usually translated as “assembly”; it is also the word from which the Israeli Cabinet, or Knesset (assembly) is derived. Knooshta is the original word from which the Greek word synagogue was derived. Ya'akov then is not only writing from his Beit Knesset (synagogue), but is sending his letter to Jewish believers among the nations about their Beit Knessets which must, by virtue of their taking instruction from James, be Netzarim: Torah observant Believers in Y'shua Mashiyach.

What we have then is nothing less than an international network of “synagogues” comprised of believers in Y'shua Mashiyach. These “houses of meeting” as evidenced by the letter sent out from Jerusalem in Acts 15, are clearly comprised of both Jews and Elohim Fearers (Gentile proselytes) who worship together, just as their conventional Israeli counterparts (Acts 10). The letters also serve as powerful proof that Ya'akov was the Rosh Beit Din (head of the Beit Din) in Jerusalem, the overseer of all legal matters affecting the worship of Jews and Gentiles alike, regardless of their location.

The “assemblies” are meeting places where the Ruach haKodesh is invited and welcomed; a place of studying the Word of YHWH, prayer and all form of worship, which facilitates education and emulation of Torah values for the common good of the community. Karaites use the term Kenesa, which is derived from Aramaic to denote “Beit Knesset,” but the modern Yiddish term shul that is commonly used for a synagogue, comes from the German word for school.

Netzarim Assemblies existed as a recognized people group up until 400 CE; however, heavy opposition from both Christian and Rabbinical sources forced them underground. There are rapidly increasing numbers of people today who are interested in returning to the Netzari Faith and, in most cases, they come from either Christian or traditional Jewish backgrounds. However, whether they remain in or leave traditional religious institutions, their calling is to observe Torah and preach Mashiyach. Whether Jewish or not, Israel and her seed are they “who keep the commandments of Elohim, and have the testimony of Y'shua” (Revelation 12:17). This unified covenant exemplifies the Faith that is upheld by all Netzari Assemblies.

A survey of Peshitta Primacist scholarship 19th and early 20th Century

“The material of our four Gospels is all Israeli<sup>25</sup> and the language in which it was originally written is Aramaic, then the principle language of the land.”

C.C. Torrey, Our Translated Gospels, p. ix (1936)

Precious few Bible students have researched the Peshitta Aramaic text on their own volition; most have relied on the commentary and opinions of others. Among some who are counted as “scholars” there are those who were unable to discern the difference between Eastern Aramaic originals and the Western Aramaic-Serto texts with which they have become most familiar; and even up to the present, most conventional resources reflect bias toward the more modern Western Aramaic traditions. But up until a century ago, many scholars studied the Aramaic texts to recognize the discoveries that are revealed in this publication. Unfortunately, many modern scholars have no knowledge of who these former scholars were; neither do they understand the importance of their discoveries.

Many scholars disregarded the ancient testimony about the originality of the Peshitta text, while “replacing” reliable traditions with their own theories that later became discredited by successive scholars. Such was the case with Burkitt’s hypothesis on Rabulla of Edessa being the author of the Peshitta, when in fact Rabulla wrote Old Syriac instead. These issues are discussed at length in numerous publications and online studies by Andrew Gabriel Roth. Dr. Charles Cutler Torrey, one of the most capable Peshitta scholars, has already weighed in with his assessment of the Peshitta in the opening quote.

In 1843 Dr. Asahel Grant, a missionary and physician to Aramaic assemblies in Babylon, published a definitive work on the Church of the East based on his travels throughout Iraq, which he called The Nestorians or Lost Tribes. Additionally, while explaining his thesis, Dr. Grant also came away with some very important observations about Peshitta traditions. Then, in 1889 William Norton published a masterpiece on Peshitta Primacy called: A Translation in English Daily Used, of the Peshitto-Syriac Text, and of the Received Greek Text, of Hebrews, James, I Peter and I John. All his quotations are taken from this key resource. Norton also frequently quotes from many sources including Dr. Grant, but the overall treatise is from Norton’s pen. Unless Dr. Grant or the other sources are specifically indicated, the reader should assume it is Norton, who is referencing them. What follows then is a topical organization from these sources.<sup>26</sup>

The Ancient Netzarim (Nazarene) link to the Nestorians

The original followers of Y’shua Mashiyach were referred to as Netzarim, while the Nestorians, who preserved the Peshitta text, were better known as the Church of the East. “Nazareans is a term very commonly employed by themselves and others to designate the Nestorians. It is never applied to other Christian sects. The term Nazareans has been well defined to mean Christians converted from Judaism...who adhered to the practice of the Jewish ceremonies...Jerome speaks of them as Hebrews believing in Christ. We have good reason from Acts xv.5, to believe that the Gentiles never adopted the rites of the Jews, nor the name of Nazareans, to whom these rites were peculiar. It must then have been applied exclusively to the Jewish converts. Hence, the conclusion that the Nestorians must have been Jews. (Grant, p. 153-4)

The Connection between Hebrew and Syriac (Aramaic<sup>27</sup>) as the languages of the Tanakh and NT Scripture

Syriac was the native tongue of Syria. There were two territories called Syria; one to the east, the 25 Where 19th Century scholars have referred to Israel as “Palestine” and Israelis as “Palestinians,” we have restored all such occurrences to “Israel” and “Israelis.”

26 Emphases within quotations are not the original writer’s.

27 Whenever “Syriac” is used, “Aramaic” is intended.

other to the west of the Euphrates. The capital of Syria, west of the Euphrates, was Damascus. In 2 Samuel 8:6, “The Syrians of Damascus” are mentioned. Before the ten tribes were carried captive into Assyria, the kings of Syria had reduced them to long servitude (2 Kings 8:12; 10:32; 13:4-7). Dr. Grant suggests that this tended to change the language of the ten tribes from Hebrew to Syriac. (p. 147)

Syria, to the east of the Euphrates included the important city called Edessa. Bar Hebraeus, a very learned Syrian of the Thirteenth Century, said: “Of the Syriac language there are three dialects. Of these the most elegant is the Aramaean spoken by the inhabitants of Edessa and Haran, and Syria the Exterior,” that is, Syria in Mesopotamia. (Walton’s Poly. Prol. xiii. 4; Asseman’s Bibliotheca, Vol. I., p. 476)

G. Amira, a Syrian of note, and the author of a Syriac Grammar, made a statement that indicates how widely the Syriac language was used in that he was “able to define the Syriac or Chaldaic tongue to be that which was born, and had chief rule in the East; which could alike be called Assyrian, Babylonian, Aramaean, Hebrew, or Christian; since it was known by nations of those names, and used by them.” (Wichelhaus on N. C. Peshitto, p. 21) Walton also, in his Polyglot, (Prol. xiii. 2) says that the language in which the books of the Old and New Covenants exist in the east, and which to-day is called Syriac, “has been called Chaldaic, Babylonian, Aramaean, Syriac, Assyriac, and even Hebrew.” The dialect in which the Chaldeans spoke to the king of Babylon, Dan. ii. 4; and that in which Rabshakeh, the Assyrian, was asked by the elders of Israel to speak to them, Isa. xxxvi. 11, are both called in those passages, Aramaean, a name which includes different Syriac dialects. (Norton, page 8)

On the general regard in Israel of non-Semitic languages as the proper vehicle for sacred Scripture

“Prof. Neubauer provides many reasons for his belief that ‘few Jews in Israel had a substantial knowledge of Greek.’ One of them is that ‘no events had occurred which could have made Greek prominent in Israel,’” (Norton pg. 62); that no nation ever makes so great a change in its language as to adopt “a totally different” one, unless the conqueror transports the greater part of the inhabitants, and introduces foreign colonists who are far more numerous than the remaining inhabitants; and that the Greeks had never this superiority of numbers in Israel (pg. 64). He says that few Greek words occur in the Jewish writings such as the Mishnah, the Targums, and the Talmud of Jerusalem; that “no apocryphal book, as far as our knowledge goes, was composed in Greek by an Israeli Jew,” (pg. 65); that so far as he can judge, “all that the Jews in Israel learned of Greek was at most a few sentences, sufficient to enable them to carry on trade, and to hold intercourse with the lower officials; and that even this minimum certainly ceased after the Maccabean victory over Antiochus Epiphanes; because it was the interest of the Asmonean Princes to keep the Jews aloof from the influence of the neighboring dialects” (pg. 66).

“Professor Neubauer concludes that those Hebrews who lived in cities occupied chiefly by Greeks, “may have acquired a fair knowledge of conversational Greek, but not to such an extent as to enable them to speak it in public” (pg. 67). He says that even those Jews of Egypt and Asia Minor who spoke Greek, maintained a connection with the mother-land by going to Jerusalem for feast-days; and that “we may infer that they all still spoke, more or less, their native Hebrew dialect, because no mention is made of interpreters being required for them either in the temple or outside of it” (pp. 62, 63).

The Septuagint is a Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures that was made in Egypt and existed before the New Covenant writings; but Prof. Neubauer says, “we may boldly state that this Greek translation of the Bible was unknown in Israel, except to men of the schools, and perhaps a few of the Hellenistic Jews. It is said in the Talmud that when the Greek translation of the Seventy appeared, there came darkness upon the earth, and that the day was as unfortunate for Israel, as that on which the golden calf was made” (pg. 67). The fact that the Jews at Jerusalem who spoke Greek are called HELLENISTS, that is, GRECIANS, in Acts vi. 1, and ix. 29, shows that their Greek speech made them a peculiar class quite distinct from the rest of the people. (Norton, page 13)

Evidence for Aramaic supremacy in Israel derived from traditions preserved in the Greek New Testament

“The Greek Scriptures record some of the exact words used by Jesus. Many of these are words which were used only in Syriac dialects. This fact is often referred to as proof that Christ spoke in Syriac. Bishop Walton, in the 13th of his Prolegomena, section 19, says, There are many purely Syriac words left in the Greek NT, which cannot be explained without a knowledge of Syriac; as raca, Matt. v. 22; momuno, riches, vi. 24; bar de yauno, son of a dove, xvi. 17; kurbono, offering, Mark vii. 11; shebakthonia, thou has forsaken<sup>28</sup> me, Matt. xxvii. 46; benai regesh<sup>29</sup>, sons of thunder, Mark iii. 17; talitho kumi, Damsel, arise, Mark v. 41; khekal demo, the field of blood, Acts i. 19. Many others occur in Acts v. 1; ix. 36; John i. 47; 1 Cor. xvi. 22, --moran etho<sup>30</sup> our Lord has come]; and elsewhere. Indeed Jesus, the name of our Lord, is Syriac for Savior; the name Messiah is also Syriac, meaning Anointed.....The writers of the New Covenant first made known the heavenly words to the Jews, and to other surrounding populations in this their native tongue, and afterwards wrote in the Greek language, but in doing so retain everywhere a flavor of Syriac.” Prof. Neubauer says, with reference to 1 Cor. xvi. 22, written to Greeks, “Is not the watchword<sup>31</sup>, Moran etho, [our Lord has come], which passed to Greek-speaking populations, a sufficient proof that the speech of the first Christians was Aramaic,” (pg. 54). A still more decisive proof that it was so occurs in a remark made by Luke. He, guided by God’s Spirit, said that the word akeldama, (in the Peshitto khekal demo), the field of blood, was part of the language commonly used in Jerusalem. There is no such word as khekal, field, in Ancient Hebrew. The only languages in which Castle, in his Lexicon of the six related languages: Hebrew, Chaldee, Syriac, Samaritan, Aethiopic and Arabic, says it occurs, are Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic. It does not occur in Gesenius’s Lexicon of ancient Hebrew. When therefore Luke says--“And it became known to all the dwellers in Jerusalem, insomuch that in their language that field is called akeldama, that is, the field of blood,” (Acts i. 19), we have infallible proof that the Syriac language was the language of Jerusalem. (Norton, page 14)

Preservation of the Peshitto traditions by this community from Apostolic times and the accuracy of their liturgy and Scripture

Concurring proofs seem to make it certain that these Nestorian Christians received the gospel from some of the apostles; that there has been a succession of them from that time to this; that their copies of the Peshitto-Syriac Scriptures are derived from copies received at a very early date; that they have been carefully made and preserved, and are of great value in determining the true text and meaning of God’s word.

A similar settlement to that in Coordistan, of Christians and Hebrews dwelling near to each other has also existed from the time of the apostles until now, in Travancore and the Malabar Coast of India. These Christians, as well as those of Coordistan, use the ancient Peshitto-Syriac Scriptures in their worship at the present day. They believe they have had these Scriptures from before A. D. 325, in which year their bishop signed his name at the council of Nicea. There is ancient testimony that the Gospel of Matthew in Syriac was left with them by the apostle Bartholomew, 28 See footnote on Matthew 27:46.

29 These transliterations are from Western Aramaic, not the original Eastern Aramaic used in this diglot. As a result, the words here have the western –oh sound on the last syllables, not the more ancient –ah sound that the Eastern has. The letters in Aramaic are exactly the same; it is merely a pronunciation variant due to dialect and changes over time and place.

30 Again, Western emphasis of Aramaic pronunciation is very evident here, as the original Eastern version is well known as Maran atha.

31 Neubauer here seems to be echoing a point I made in Ruach Qadim, again not knowing of this scholarship in advance of my own opinions. In Ruach Qadim I called Maran atha the “distinguishing mark” that Rav Shaul refers to elsewhere, a code to authenticate his manuscripts for the local assemblies as having legitimately come from his pen.

and that the apostle Thomas preached the gospel among them. The Hebrews, to whom these Apostles preached, must have been settled there at a still earlier period.

Dr. Asahel Grant said of the Christians of Travancore, “They may be, in part at least, a branch of the present Nestorians of Media and Assyria. We have good evidence that they were formerly of the Nestorian faith, though they have more recently become connected with the Jacobite Syrians. It is worthy of inquiry whether they have not traditions, rites, customs, or other evidence of Jewish origin” (pg. 155). “That the apostle Thomas preached in India, we have the testimony of numerous Greek, Latin, and Syrian authors quoted by Asseman in his Bibliotheca Orientalis, vol. iv., pp. 5-25, 435.” (Grant, pg. 156, note. Norton, p 5)

Eusebius says that in the reign of Commodus (A. D. 180-192), Pantaenus, a Christian who had been a philosopher, went as an evangelist from Egypt as far as India; and was said to have found there “the Gospel of Matthew in Hebrew,” that is, in Syriac, then called Hebrew, “among some who there knew Christ; to whom Bartholomew<sup>32</sup>, one of the apostles, had proclaimed Him.” Dr. Buchanan says that these Christians now possess the Peshitto-Syriac Scriptures of both covenants in writing; that they believe they possessed them “before the year A. D. 325” (pg. 118); that “they have preserved the manuscripts of the Holy Scriptures incorrupt” (pg. 124); and with such care that in one written copy which he saw, “the words of every book are numbered.” (pg. 118)<sup>33</sup> (Norton, page 7)

The errors of Westcott, Hort<sup>34</sup> and others who supported the fraudulent manuscripts known as Old Syriac

Drs. Westcott and Hort published in 1881, six years after Dr. Westcott’s fourth edition of his work on the Canon, dated 1875, a long and mysteriously made introduction to a new Greek text full of strange changes. Both editors are responsible for the principles, arguments and conclusions set forth in this introduction, but it was “written by Dr. Hort.” (Intro. pg. 18)

The following suggestions made by the above-mentioned people are founded wholly on imagination, without one word of proof. “The popular Peshitto version, till recently, has been known only in the form it finally received by an evidently authoritative revision.....An Old Syriac must have existed as well as an Old Latin. Within the last few years the surmise has been verified. An imperfect Old Syriac copy of the Gospels, assigned to the fifth century, was found by Cureton among MSS. brought to the British Museum from Egypt in 1842, and was published by him in 1858.” This is assumed by the writers to be the Peshitto “in its original form,” and is said to “render the comparatively late and revised character” of the Peshitto, “a matter of certainty” (pg. 84). Upon this dream of the imagination, continued references are made to the Peshitto as “not coming up to the requirements of criticism,” etc. (Norton, pp. 84, 92, 136, 156, 158-159)

Sadly, “false witnesses rose up against” the teachings of Mashiyach and his disciples. But it must be deemed an alarming proof of the diseased state of biblical criticism if we find even leading men indulging not only in wild fancies, but even in false accusations against the most truthful of witnesses.

The late Dean Burgon in his work, “The Revision Revised, 1883,” pp. 273-278, said in reference to these conjectures: “Not a shadow of proof is forthcoming that any such recension as Dr. Hort 32 The Gospel of John calls this disciple Nathanael, whereas the Synoptics use his surname, Bar Tulmay (the son of Tulmay), which is later corrupted in Greek as “Bartholomew.” Many ancient Eastern and Western traditions, though, insist this must be the same man, primarily because we cannot get a list of twelve apostles as mentioned by all four Gospel writers without doing so. All other double-names (e.g. Shimon-Keefa) of the apostles are referenced between the Synoptics; this is the only disciple who is referred to exclusively by one name in the Synoptics and the other in John.

33 This last fact is extremely important, as it shows that the Aramaic NT scribes employed similar methods that the Jewish sopherim did in ensuring perfect transmission of their Scripture. Hebrew and Aramaic letters are also numbers, and so by recording the numeric value of whole lines, words or letters, we can be certain that the text is fixed.

34 Westcott and Hort are the two scholars most responsible for developing the most widely accepted critical edition of the Greek New Testament.

imagines, ever took place at all.” He has, “firstly, assumed a ‘Syrian Recension;’ secondly, invented the cause of it; and thirdly, dreamed the process by which it was carried into execution.”

After reminding Dr. Hort that Bishop Ellicott has said that, “It is no stretch of the imagination to suppose that portions of the Peshitto might have been in the hands of the Apostle John,” Dean Burgon said, “The abominably corrupt document known as ‘Cureton’s Syriac,’ is by another bold hypothesis, assumed to be the only surviving specimen of the unrevised version, and is thenceforth invariably designated by these authors as the Old Syriac.”

“Not a shadow of reason is produced why we should suppose, first, that such a Revision took place, and secondly, that all our existing manuscripts represent it.” “These editors even assure us that ‘Cureton’s Syriac’ renders the comparatively late and ‘revised’ character of the Syriac Vulgate,” i. e., the Peshitto “a matter of certainty. The very city in which it underwent revision, can, it seems, be fixed with ‘tolerable certainty.’ Can Dr. Hort be serious?”

These painful details are given for the double purpose of guarding the reader, first, against wrong conclusions as to the Peshitto itself; and secondly, against placing confidence, without due examination, in the conclusions of the most influential critics of the day. The habit of substituting mere conjecture for proof is far too common with respect to the Peshitto. (Norton, page 24)

Other evidences to the Peshitta’s ancient origins

A manuscript of the four Gospels in Syriac, bearing the date A.D. 78, is mentioned by J. S. Asseman, in his Bibliotheca. The manuscript was preserved at Baghdad on the river Tigris; at the end it had these words under written; “This sacred book was finished on Wednesday, the 18th day of the month Conun, in the year 389,” that is of the Greeks, which was A. D. 78, “by the hand of the Apostle Achaeus, a fellow labourer of Mar Maris, and a disciple of the Apostle Mar Thaddeus, whom we intreat to pray for us.” This prayer implies that the statement was written after the time of Achaeus (who is probably the person called also Aggaeus), and Dr. Gloucester Ridley says that Achaeus died A. D. 48. For this and other reasons J. D. Michaelis says that the statement “is of no authority.” (Marsh’s Michaelis, 1823, vol. ii., pg. 31)

The great number of converts made by Thaddeus, needed to be supplied immediately with written divine records in Syriac, to teach them what to believe and what to do. Greek books would not have been suitable, for their language was Syriac. The ancient Syriac copy of “The Teaching of Thaddeus,” from which the above extracts are taken, states that not only King Abgar, and many of the people of that city, were converted, but many also throughout “all Mesopotamia, and the regions round about it.” It says that Thaddeus “received all those who trusted in the Anointed, and immersed them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Spirit of Holiness”; that the king gave money with which a house of worship was built; that in it they “offered praises all the days of their lives;” that in the worship conducted there, the teachers “read in the Old Covenant and in the New, and in the Prophets, and in the Acts of the Apostles every day.” By the New Covenant seems to be meant the Gospels; for the New Covenant is distinguished from the Acts of the Apostles, and a little afterwards it is said that many people assembled from day to day, and came to the prayers of the service, and the [reading of the] Old Covenant and of the New in four parts. (Syriac, pp. 13, 15)

The Syriac of this narrative is like that of the Peshitto itself; a fact which corroborates the statement that the Peshitto was made by the care of Thaddeus.

Some doubt, however, attaches to some of the above statements, because, “The Teaching of Thaddeus” has at the end, received forged additions. Dr. Gloucester Ridley says that Achaeus (sometimes called Aggaeus), a disciple of Thaddeus, died A. D. 48.

Serapion was bishop of Antioch about A. D. 192-214; Zephyrinus was bishop of Rome 202-217. Yet in this record it is said that when Aggaeus died, “Palut received the hand of priesthood from Serapion, bishop of Antioch, which hand Serapion received from Zephyrinus, bishop of Rome, from the succession of the hand of priesthood of Simon Cephas.” Although the above extracts do not seem to be corrupted, some of them may be.

Bardesanes was a Syrian writer of note in the Second Century. Cave says that he flourished about A. D. 172. Dr. Nathaniel Lardner, in his Credibility, 1735, vol. ii., pg. 673, says, “Eusebius speaks favourably of him, though most later writers call him a heresiarch.” Eusebius says that he was “a most eloquent writer in the Syriac language”; and that he “wrote several dialogues in his own language against Marcion and other authors of different opinions.” (See Eusebius’ Hist., Cent., iv., ch. 30) Also that he was at first a follower of Valentinus, and that though he gave up some of his errors, he did not get rid of all the filth of his former heresy. Epiphanius says that he was a native of Edessa and very intimate with the king then reigning there, who was also called Abgar, and a professed Christian; that Bardesanes “went into several great errors but continued to use the Law and the Prophets, both the Old and the New Covenant, joining with them some apocryphal books.” (Lardner ii. 677-678) This is evidence that at that time a Syriac “New Covenant” existed. Canon Westcott says also of the controversial writings of Bardesanes that they “necessarily imply the existence of a Syriac Version of the Bible.” (On the Canon, pg. 237)

Hegesippus lived in the latter part of the Second Century. Eusebius, bk. iv., ch. 22, says, “He sets forth some things from the Gospel according to the Hebrews, and from the Syriac, and from the Hebrew dialect as his own, showing that he was one of the Hebrews who had trusted. Dr. Westcott (on Canon, pg. 238) says, “This testimony is valuable, as coming from the only early Greek writer likely to have been familiar with Syriac literature.” The bare reference of Hegesippus to “the Syriac,” leaves it uncertain to what part of the Scriptures in Syriac he referred; but it shows that he made use of some Syriac copy, and the Peshito is the only one which can be supposed to be intended.

Aphraates, a Persian sage, wrote twenty-two Syriac homilies, A. D. 337-345. The citations from the gospels met with in these homilies, are said by Professor Wright to be very loose; to have some occasional resemblance to Cureton’s Syriac, but to be on the whole, much nearer to the text of the Peshito. (Scrivener’s Int. pg. 323, note.)

Ephraem, of Edessa, was a very eminent Syrian writer. He died A. D. 373. J. S. Asseman devotes 140 folio pages to extracts from his writings, and to comments on them. They are in the same Syriac dialect in which the Peshito is written. Dr. Westcott (on Canon, pg. 238) says, “Ephraem treats the version in such a manner as to prove that it was already old in the fourth century.” One of Ephraem’s similes will show the beauty of his style, and though it does not prove that he believed the New Covenant Peshito to have divine authority, yet his constant use of it seems to imply that he was referring to it when he spoke of the New Covenant as a harp, the notes of which have been played by the finger of God. He said, “Praise be to the Lord of all, who framed and fitted for himself two harps, those of the Prophets and of the Apostles; but it is the same finger which has played upon the two, the different notes of the two covenants.” (Asseman’s Bib. Or., vol. i., pg. 103) (Norton, pages 29-30)

Read almost any encyclopedia or commentary on the New Testament, and you are bound to come across a reference to Rabbula (died 433 A.D.), the Monophysite “Tyrant of Edessa”, supposedly “suppressing” the Diatesseron - which they claim was the “earliest” gospel in Aramaic. If we are to believe that, then how does one explain the following subscription to an Arabic translation of the Diatesseron made in the 11th century by the Church of the East?

“Here endeth the Gospel which Tatianus compiled and named Diatessaron, i.e., The Fourfold, a compilation from the four Gospels of the holy Apostles, the excellent Evangelists (peace be upon them). It was translated by the excellent and learned priest, Abu’l Faāraāj ŌAbdulla ibn-at-Tayyib (may God grant him favour), from Syriac into Arabic from an exemplar written by Isa ibn-Ali’ al-Motatabbib, pupil of Honain ibn-Ishaq (God have mercy on them both). Amen.”

A little history is in order here. This is from an Arabic translation of the Diatesseron made by Ibn-at-Tayyib (died 1043). He is a well known man, a Church of the East monk and scholar who was secretary to Eliyah I, Patriarch of the Church of the East (c.f., Ciasca's Introduction, p. xi. f. and Steinschneider's Polemische and apologetische Lit. in Arabische Sprache, pp. 52-55). Honain ibn-Ishaq (also mentioned in the subscription) was a famous physician, a member of the Church of the East who is well known for his contributions to modern medicine.

Of this Arabic translation today we have 7 manuscripts which survive. Four of them happen to contain the subscription above. The most well-known manuscript is called the "Borgian" and it currently resides in the Vatican Library (and is listed in the Ante-Nicene Fathers series.)

So here we have a translator living in the 11th century (a full 600 years after Rabbula died) who plainly states that he translated the Syriac (Aramaic) Diatesseron into Arabic.

Notice, also, that this is the only translation of the Diatesseron which explicitly states that it was made from the Syriac (Aramaic). No other manuscript makes this claim (not the Latin nor the Armenian.)

Also, notice that the Arabic harmony begins with John 1:1, which we know to be a trademark of Tatian's harmony (c.f., bar-Salibi (12th century in Bib. Or., ii., Volume I pp. 59) who states "Its commencement was, 'In the beginning was the Word.'"

But I thought Rabbula "suppressed" the Diatesseron? At least the dated material in encyclopedias and commentaries state this. In fact, these are the words of Rabbula, verbatim: Rabbula wrote: "Let the presbyters and deacons give heed that in all the churches there be provided and read a copy of the Distinct Gospel," i.e., not the harmonized or mixed gospel.

The truth of the matter is: while it's possible that Rabbula had the power to suppress the Diatesseron in his little corner of the world called Edessa (in Byzantine territory), that hardly gives him the power to extend into Persia and destroy their copies of the Diatesseron.

The subscription to a 600-year later Arabic translation of the Aramaic Diatesseron proves that Rabbula did not suppress the Diatesseron - at least not in Persia where the Church of the East reigned independent of him and his maniacal rantings.

This Arabic translation so exactly matches the Peshitta against the so-called "Old Syriac", that F.C. Burkitt found it necessary to make the unfounded charge that the text of the Arabic translation must have been tampered with to make it read like the Peshitta. (c.f., Burkitt, Evangelion de-Mepharreshe (2 Vols; Cambridge; University Press, 1904, 1.200)

In Burkitt's worldview, the Peshitta couldn't have existed before Rabbula's time - so the Diatesseron (created ~175 A.D.) couldn't possibly read like it against the so-called "Old Syriac." All this accusation, by the way, without a shred of evidence to support his theory (like his "Rabbula created the Peshitta" theory, which has already been disproved by many scholars).

It makes perfect sense that a harmony of the Gospels would necessarily require that the distinct 4 Gospels actually existed prior to the harmony. This is common sense. It makes ever more sense that an Aramaic harmony of the Gospels, which Tatian's Diatesseron was, was woven together from the 4 distinct Aramaic Gospels.

Of the 3 surviving translations of the Aramaic Diatesseron (Latin, Armenian and Arabic) the Arabic is the only one which was made in a sister Semitic tongue. The relationship of Latin to Aramaic (or even Armenian to Aramaic) is like the relationship of Chinese to English. The relationship of Aramaic and Arabic is well documented, and one is the daughter of the other.

Since the Arabic translation by Ibn-at-Tayyib is the only one we know for sure was made directly from the Aramaic, and since it reads like the Peshitta (so much so that it worried Burkitt), and since we know that a harmony necessitates a base of 4 distinct Gospels from which it must be drawn - I submit that Tatian's Aramaic Diatesseron was a harmony of the distinct Gospels in Aramaic we currently find today in the canon of scripture we know as the Peshitta.

Occam's Razor is a logical principle which states that one should not increase, beyond what is necessary, the number of entities required to explain anything. In other words, the simplest explanation is usually the best.

The simplest explanation is that Tatian created a harmony of the Peshitta gospels. This harmony existed in Persia until at least the 11th century, when it was translated into Arabic. It then fell out of popular use. This was not a problem - since they had the distinct Gospels in Aramaic from day one. Tatian's harmony was popular at one time in the life of the church - just as any number of contemporary gospel harmonies are popular today. But that doesn't mean that it predates the Peshitta Gospels.

In fact, if we are to believe the textual evidence in the Arabic translation (rather than Burkitt's personal opinion) - the Peshitta Gospels were the base of the Diatesseron which history attributes to Tatian. And this places the Peshitta Gospels at or before 175 A.D.

Ban on the Name of YHWH

Netzari followers of Y'shua, for many reasons, have never subscribed to the rabbinical ban on vocalizing and publishing the Name of YHWH. The very nature of Y'shua as Mashiyach is revealed in his name; through the Name of YHWH Y'shua's followers know that it is the Ruach haKodesh who gave him his authority, which was not of his human soul. The Spirit of Mashiyach is the Spirit of YHWH, and these are One. Y'shua was not vested with all the powers of his Father because Mashiyach is the Arm of YHWH revealed, which means that he serves his Father in everything to do with time and space, whereas his Father is outside of time and space. Y'shua clearly states that there are things that his Father has not revealed to him regarding the End of Days, but there are also many places where Mashiyach shows himself to be a reflection of the Father.

The "Arm of YHWH" provides a picture of Mashiyach being joined to YHWH as the instrument of YHWH to do His bidding. The "Word of YHWH" is a title that was given to Mashiyach, and the Netzarim restored the Name of YHWH accordingly.

The Spirit of Mashiyach is of YHWH and Mashiyach came in the authority of his Father. The titles "Word of YHWH" and "YHWH Tsidkenu" can only apply to Mashiyach; there is no man or messenger (angel) who could bear the Name of YHWH in this manner.

"You shall not take the name of YHWH your Elohim in vain; for YHWH will not hold him guiltless that takes His Name in vain" (Sh'mot/Ex. 20:7). This Commandment protects the Name of YHWH against being changed or distorted, or brought to nothing. Netzarim respect this Commandment by not substituting Hebrew or Greek titles in place of the Name of YHWH. As Andrew Gabriel Roth has clearly demonstrated in several publications, the title MarYAH definitively connects the usage of the Name of YHWH from the Tanakh and throughout the Ketuvim (writings) Netzarim.

Master YHWH was and is the designation that YHWH's Set Apart people have been instructed to refer to Him by. The Name of YHWH carries very specific Messianic insights when revealed with titles such as Raah (shepherd), Yireh (provider), M'kaddesh (sanctifier), Rapha (healer), Nissi (banner) and Tsidkenu (righteousness) which are all revealed to mankind through the Word of YHWH, who is known as Mashiyach. Therefore, contrary to religious opinions the Name of YHWH is Set Apart and to be proclaimed, published and lauded among the nations as the Name of the One True Elohim. "And these four creatures had, each of them, six wings around it: and within they were full of eyes: and they have no cessation, day or night, from saying: Kadosh, Kadosh, Kadosh, the Master YHWH, Elohim, the Omnipotent, who was, and is, and is to come" (Revelation 4:8).

Mainstream rabbinical Judaism decided that because of the sanctity of the Name and the fierce punishment required for abuse and blasphemy of the Name, that they would ban the pronunciation and say “Adonai” instead of the Name of YHWH. “Adonai” was then translated into the Greek “Kurios” which was then translated into the English “LORD.” Some have been led to believe that YHWH instructed Jews to stop using His Name, but neither Scripture nor history bears this out. In fact, YHWH removed His Name from those who “profaned” His Name “among the heathen.”

“And I scattered them among the heathen, and they were dispersed through the countries: according to their way and according to their doings I judged them. And when they entered unto the heathen, whither they went, they profaned my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of YHWH, and are gone forth out of his land. But I had pity for mine holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the heathen, whither they went. Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus says YHWH Elohim; I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for mine holy name’s sake, which you have profaned among the heathen, wherever you went. And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen, which you have profaned in the midst of them; and the heathen shall know that I am YHWH, says YHWH Elohim, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes. For I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land” (Ezekiel 36:19-24).

The Most High YHWH has a Name that is Set Apart from all other names and He promises that the heathen shall know the Truth of His Name according to His Set Apart Righteous Authority and Will, regardless of what religions have to say about it: “So will I make my holy name known in the midst of my people Israel; and I will not let them pollute my holy name any more: and the heathen shall know that I am YHWH, the Holy One in Israel” (Ezekiel 39:7).

“O YHWH, my strength, and my fortress, and my refuge in the day of affliction, the Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth, and shall say, Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things wherein there is no profit. Shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are no gods? Therefore, behold, I will this once cause them to know, I will cause them to know mine hand and my might; and they shall know that my name is YHWH” (Jeremiah 16:19-21).

Furthermore, Y’shua the Mashiach did not subscribe to the ban; rather, he proclaimed<sup>35</sup> the Name of YHWH. However, when the teachings of Y’shua were put into the Greek language the theologians of the day readily adopted Greek terms that had previously been used to refer to Greek deities and which were also in line with conventions of the Pharisees within the Greek language.

“I have heard what the prophets said, that prophesy lies in my name, saying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed. How long shall this be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies? yea, they are prophets of the deceit of their own heart; Which think to cause my people to forget my name by their dreams which they tell every man to his neighbor, as their fathers have forgotten my name for Baal” (Jeremiah 23:25-27).

This prophecy is literally fulfilled by a majority of Judeo and Christian religions. The equivalent word for Baal is “Lord,” which is traditionally used to replace the Name of YHWH. Baal is used to reference many deities; Christians call upon the “Lord Gawd.” There is a place name in Scripture called “Baal Gawd”: “Even from the mount Halak, that goes up to Seir, even unto Baalgad in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon...” (Joshua 11:17). Gad (pronounced “gawd” as in the English “god”) means troop or fortune which is consistent with many Christians’ belief that their God provides “good luck” and many carry “lucky” images of Mary, Jesus, angels, crucifixes, etc.

“Therefore hear ye the word of YHWH, all Judah that dwell in the land of Egypt; Behold, I have sworn by my Great Name, says YHWH, that my Name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, Adonai YHWH Chai. Behold, I will watch over them for evil, and not for good: and all the men of Judah that are in the land of Egypt shall be consumed by the sword and by the famine, until there be an end of them. Yet a small number that escape the sword shall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, and all the remnant of Judah, that are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall know whose words shall stand, mine, or theirs. And this shall be a sign unto you, says YHWH, that I will punish you in this place, that you may know that My Words shall surely stand against you for evil” (Jeremiah 44:26-29). It is a religious normative practice today to reference the name of “the LORD” to endorse all manner of false theology and lifestyle, which is also why YHWH removed His original Set Apart Name from the religious status quo in former times.

“But they rebelled against me, and would not hearken unto me: they did not every man cast away the abominations of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt: then I said, I will pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt. But I wrought for my name’s sake, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, among whom they were, in whose sight I made myself known unto them, in bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt” (Ezekiel 20:8-9).

Although there are clear prophetic directives that YHWH removed His Name because of rebellion, He also promises to reveal His Great Name in the acharit hayamim (latter days). When Mashiyach Y’shua entered Jerusalem in the final days of his life, the people declared: “Blessed be he that comes in the name of YHWH: we have blessed you out of the house of YHWH” (Psalm 118:26). The Name of YHWH was openly declared by those who recognized Y’shua as YHWH’s Mashiyach. This infuriated the Pharisaic elite because their authority had been brought to nothing. In Matthew 23:39 Y’shua states, “I say to you that you will not see me from now on until you say, ‘Blessed is he who comes in the name of Master YHWH’ indicating that a faithful remnant will return to the Ancient Paths within the Renewed Covenant and be awaiting Y’shua’s return as Mashiyach ben David.

“But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of YHWH shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of YHWH, and to the house of the El of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the Torah shall go forth of Zion, and the word of YHWH from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of YHWH of Hosts has spoken it. For all people will walk every one in the name of his god, and we will walk in the name of YHWH our Elohim for ever and ever” (Micah 4:1-5).

“I will also stretch out mine hand upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and I will cut off the remnant of Baal from this place, and the name of the Chemarims with the priests” (Zephaniah 1:4).

“Then they that feared YHWH spoke often one to another: and YHWH hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared YHWH, and that thought upon His Name” (Malachi 3:16).

Basar Echad or Polygamy?

Exploring Sexuality According to the Scriptures

As everyone knows, the Torah teems with stories of men who married several women: Kings David and Solomon, for example, along with many of the patriarchs. Using these illustrations, some modern day rabbis and pastors are teaching the false premise that YHWH condoned adultery, or more specifically, polygyny (the state or practice of having more than one wife or female mate at a time). An in-depth study of the Scriptures, however, reveals quite the contrary!

Basic information and definitions:

- 1) Adultery happens when either the husband or wife in a marriage takes a second sexual partner to themselves, whether the third party is single or married to another person.
- 2) Adultery is avoided if the husband takes his second sexual partner also as a wife while the first wife lives, but is guilty of it if he has sexual relations with a woman who is betrothed or married to another man. In this scenario the women must remain monogamous but the men do not.

From these two definitions we will also ask the following questions:

- 1) Which definition of adultery was the original one as defined by YHWH at the creation of man?
- 2) Was there a time when both definitions according to Scripture could have been valid?
- 3) Were there warnings in Scripture that these choices were going to change and/or revert back to the original definition of adultery, whatever it may be?
- 4) Is there absolute proof as to which definition is binding today?

With these ideas in mind, let us begin then at the beginning:

They shall be one flesh

“So YHWH Elohim caused the man to fall into a deep sleep; and while he was sleeping, he took one of the man’s ribs and closed up the place with flesh. Then YHWH Elohim made a woman from the rib he had taken out of the man, and he brought her to the man. The man said, “This is now bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called ‘woman,’ for she was taken out of man.” For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife, and they will become one flesh. The man and his wife were both naked, and they felt no shame” (Genesis 2:21-24).

The first question one needs to ask is: If plural marriage was the original model why was only one wife made for Adam?<sup>36</sup> Why not two, ten, or twenty? After all, if Adam was supposed to be fruitful, multiply and fill the earth with his descendants, wouldn’t multiple wives for him make this task easier?

We will be looking at the way the Renewed Covenant deals with this precise verse a little later on. For now, let’s focus on phrases like “united to his wife” and “they will become one flesh.” We see here that woman is formed out of man’s body and therefore the act of sex in a sacred context reunites man and wife physically as well as spiritually. In that same way a man can be said to have gone astray from his first wife by marrying another, as Malachi explains in graphic terms here:

<sup>36</sup> Obviously I have just renounced the rabbinic tale of Adam having a first wife named Lilith. However, even if we were to consider the lore of Lilith, the point still stands since the legend states that Lilith abandoned Adam to join the Evil One. When she did that she was in violation, and Adam was free to take Eve as wife since Lilith had dissolved the marriage by adultery. It is also worth noting that since the divorce would have been proper for Adam in that particular case, YHWH subsequently gave him Eve to fill the world with his descendants. The same can be said of Noah, who had but one wife during and after the Flood.

“Have we not all one Father? Did not one Elohim create us? Why do we profane the covenant of our fathers by breaking faith with one another? Judah has broken faith. A detestable thing has been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem: Judah has desecrated the sanctuary YHWH loves, by marrying the daughter of a foreign god. As for the man who does this, whoever he may be, may YHWH cut him off from the tents of Jacob—even though he brings offerings to YHWH Almighty. Another thing you do: You flood YHWH’s altar with tears. You weep and wail because he no longer pays attention to your offerings or accepts them with pleasure from your hands. You ask, “Why?” It is because YHWH is acting as the witness between you and the wife of your youth, because you have broken faith with her, though she is your partner, the wife of your marriage covenant. Has not YHWH made them one? In flesh and spirit they are his. And why one? Because he was seeking godly offspring. So guard yourself in your spirit, and do not break faith with the wife of your youth. “I hate divorce,” says YHWH, Elohim of Israel, “and I hate a man’s covering himself with violence as well as with his garment,” says YHWH Almighty. So guard yourself in your spirit, and do not break faith. You have wearied YHWH with your words. “How have we wearied him?” you ask. By saying, “All who do evil are good in the eyes of YHWH, and he is pleased with them” or “Where is the Elohim of justice?” (Malachi 2:10-17).

Clearly “the wife of your youth” refers to the only and original wife, as long as she is alive. To take another is, in Malachi’s pronouncement, to literally abandon YHWH. True, here the prophet is drawing an analogy between idolatry and infidelity, but the template of that example is still one man, one wife. When Judah marries another daughter who was previously a single maiden, he betrays his first wife! Furthermore, any man need only ask his own wife how she would feel about him taking a second spouse under the guise of “righteousness.” This obviously would not go over well in most households, and that being the case, and how then is the first wife honored and cherished when wife number two moves into her house? Malachi’s passionate question then, has not YHWH made them one, is directly on point. There is also proof that, according to Rav Shaul, the wife has total power to stop her husband from seeking carnal pleasure from any other source:

“And concerning the things of which you wrote to me, it is praiseworthy for a man not to approach a woman. But, on account of sexual temptation, let each have his own wife and let a woman have her own husband. And let the man render to his wife the kindness which is due; and so also the woman to her husband. The woman is not the sovereign over her body, but her husband: so also the man is not the sovereign over his body, but the wife. Therefore, deprive not one another, except when you both consent at the time you devote yourselves to fasting and prayer; and return again to the same disposition that Satan does not tempt you because of the passions of your body” (1 Corinthians 7:1-5).

If the wife rules the husband’s body, it stands to reason she has quite a say in what he does with it, and vice versa.

At this point, as uncomfortable as it might be, we cannot ignore the delicate subject of the physical aspects of intercourse between a man and wife. What is not commonly understood is that sex is required in a marriage. Sex itself is the mechanism that allows a man to leave his mother, a woman leave her home, and the two to be united in the flesh:

*“Don’t you know that your bodies are the members of the Mashiyach? Will one take a member of the Mashiyach, and make it the member of a harlot? May it never be! Or don’t you know, that whoever joins himself to a harlot, is one body (with her)? For it is said, the two will be one body. But he that joins himself to our Master (Y'shua), is with him one spirit. Flee from sexual sin" (1 Corinthians 6:15-18).

Therefore, and in contradistinction to the idea that men according to Tanakh can now have multiple wives and not be counted as adulterers, it remains a fact of biology that the two women in such a union cannot unite their flesh in the same way one man and woman can. That is also one reason among many why homosexuality of every kind is condemned in the Scripture. If the two wives then cannot unite in flesh, then the marriage unit itself is not united in flesh either, and is therefore invalid. Also consider: Once the flesh between one man and one woman is united, how can another come and be one with it?

Much of the controversy on this idea, of course, concerns the word for "one" in Hebrew, echad, because it can sometimes allow for a compound unity of a plurality of things becoming one. While this is true, we need to look at some other basic facts. First of all, 99 percent of the time echad means just one. Even in Israel today, you would say echad when you meant "only" or "just one." The alternative word that means "only one" all the time – yachid – is extremely rare and not the normal phrase for "one" either in ancient or modern Hebrew.

Second of all, paralleling the male-female union is the creation pattern itself, where evening and morning in Genesis 1:5 form the "greater yom" of day one.<sup>37</sup> Five more individual sets of days and nights are similarly joined after this, in unity. Let's see what Y'shua had to say about this issue:

"And the Pharisees drew near to him there, and were tempting him and saying, "Is it Lawful for a man to put away his wife for any cause?" But he answered and said to them, Have you not read, that He who created from the beginning, He created them male and female? And he said, Because of this, a man will leave his father and his mother and will be joined to his wife, and they will be both of them one flesh. Henceforth, they will not be two, rather one flesh. Therefore, what Elohim has united, man should not separate. They said to him, "Why then did Moshe command to give a letter of divorce and to put her away?" And he said to them, Because of the hardness of your heart, you were allowed to put away your wives. But it was not thus from the beginning. But I say to you that he who leaves his wife without a charge of adultery, and takes another, commits adultery. And he that takes a divorced woman commits adultery. His disciples said to him, "If such is the difficulty between husband and wife, it is not worthwhile to take a wife. But he said to them, Not every man can apply this word to himself, but only he to whom it is given. For there are eunuchs who were born thus in the womb of their mother. And there are eunuchs who became eunuchs by men. And there are eunuchs who made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the Kingdom of Heaven. Let him comprehend who is able to comprehend" (Matthew 19:3-12).

Y'shua is talking about the original marital arrangement that YHWH intended: As long as the first wife lives and is faithful to her husband, any other wife is to be considered an adulterous partner. He is reiterating YHWH's command that, unless the first wife commits adultery, a second partner after a valid first marriage with a living spouse is always considered adulterous!

Another consideration is this: What if the man doesn't "leave" his first wife per se, but simply allows another wife under his roof while taking care of both of them? The answer is here:

"Blessed are all who fear YHWH, who walk in His ways. You will eat the fruit of your labor; blessings and prosperity will be yours. Your wife will be like a fruitful vine within your house; your sons will be like olive shoots around your table. Thus is the man blessed who fears YHWH. May YHWH bless you from Zion all the days of your life; may you see the prosperity of Jerusalem, and may you live to see your children's children" (Psalm 128:1-6).

This is the idealized picture YHWH demands: A monogamous family passing on its virtues through the generations as was the case in the beginning. And so the next important question to ask in this study can be summed up in two words:

What happened?

The Tanakh makes it clear that monogamy was the original paradigm for the married state. However, by the time of the Patriarchs, it seems that polygamy – or more precisely, polygyny – was pandemic. What happened in between?

There are only two possibilities: Either YHWH made some temporary concessions for marriage, or both models were acceptable at the same time. If the latter is the case, we must determine whether or not the two methods are both still acceptable marriage modes for us today.

Therefore, let's take a look at the genealogy in Genesis: According to Genesis 4:19, the first man to take two wives was Lamech, a descendant of Cain, who confessed to his wives that he had killed two men in cold blood (verse 23), even as his ancestor Cain, who killed his own brother Abel, was the first murderer. Is this the kind of family that we really want to draw examples of proper moral behavior from? Is their template of intimacy between male and female the one we should emulate for all time? Think about it, because Scripture says that's where it came from.

Instead of a righteous choice then, this was the introduction of perversion into the Scriptural record that would force compromises away from the original Set-apart model. As we move forward, we see that only Cain's progeny continued this practice for many hundreds of years and it is from here that evil nations were born that would later corrupt the seed of Seth, who was the progenitor of a more righteous race. But it was only the line from Seth right on down to Noah that was monogamous, and it was only that lineage that was spared from the Flood!<sup>38</sup>

After the deluge, Noah's three sons began re-populating the world and, for a time, the lineages of Shem, Ham and Japheth continued in exclusive monogamous practice for at least ten generations, into Awraham's day. But at this point, all gehenna seems to have broken loose for a variety of reasons, as a terrible precedent began to be set:

"Now Sarai, Abram's wife, had borne him no children. But she had an Egyptian maidservant named Hagar; so she said to Abram, "YHWH has kept me from having children. Go, sleep with my maidservant; perhaps I can build a family through her." Abram agreed to what Sarai said. So after Abram had been living in Canaan ten years, Sarai his wife took her Egyptian maidservant Hagar and gave her to her husband to be his wife. He slept with Hagar, and she conceived. When she knew she was pregnant, she began to despise her mistress. Then Sarai said to Abram, "You are responsible for the wrong I am suffering. I put my servant in your arms, and now that she knows she is pregnant, she despises me. May YHWH judge between you and me." "Your servant is in your hands," Abram said. "Do with her whatever you think best." Then Sarai mistreated Hagar; so she fled from her" (Genesis 16:1-6).

So we see this "experiment" – Lamech's Folly we will call it – that began in the belief of necessity, actually backfired! Instead of bringing reassurance that the tribal lineage would continue, the opposite happened. Sarai and Hagar became bitter enemies and Awraham later was forced to eject this same “security” – namely Hagar and her son Ishmael – straight out of the community they were supposed to help! The result is that four millennia later the children of Isaac and Ishmael remain at war with one another even to this day. So, in the first two polygamist/polygynist “tests” the result was utter failure and mass murder!

<sup>38</sup> Genesis 6:1-2. As you go through Genesis 5, notice that the ten generations that went from Adam but away from Cain's line were all monogamous marriages. Furthermore, it was the adultery with Cain's daughters that was given as one of the principle reasons that YHWH shortened man's life span and sent the global flood to destroy him. It is also no coincidence that the man whose family line was spared, the sole righteous man in that generation, also had only one wife!

“The Messenger added, “I will so increase your descendants that they will be too numerous to count.” The Messenger of YHWH also said to [Hagar]: “You are now with child and you will have a son. You shall name him Ishmael, for YHWH has heard of your misery. He will be a wild donkey of a man; his hand will be against everyone and everyone’s hand against him, and he will live in hostility toward all his brothers.” She gave this name to YHWH who spoke to her: “You are the Elohim who sees me,” for she said, “I have now seen the One who sees me.” That is why the well was called Beer Lahai Roi; it is still there, between Kadesh and Bered. So Hagar bore Abram a son, and Abram gave the name Ishmael to the son she had borne. Abram was eighty-six years old when Hagar bore him Ishmael” (Genesis 16:10-16).

Worse than that, we can also see that, even though YHWH allowed this plural marriage to happen, it really only came about from a lack of faith in His promises:

“After this, the word of YHWH came to Abram in a vision: “Do not be afraid, Abram. I am your shield, your very great reward.” But Abram said, “O Sovereign YHWH, what can you give me since I remain childless and the one who will inherit my estate is Eliezer of Damascus?” And Abram said, “You have given me no children; so a servant in my household will be my heir.” Then the word of YHWH came to him: “This man will not be your heir, but a son coming from your own body will be your heir.” He took him outside and said, “Look up at the heavens and count the stars--if indeed you can count them.” Then he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.” Abram believed YHWH, and he credited it to him as righteousness” (Genesis 15:1-6).

A son coming out of Awraham’s body, as YHWH put it, could only mean through Sarai, the only wife he had at that moment! Furthermore, YHWH saying that “your servant won’t inherit” should have been a huge hint that YHWH preferred Awraham not take Hagar as a wife. Later on YHWH gets even more specific:

“Elohim also said to Abraham, “As for Sarai your wife, you are no longer to call her Sarai; her name will be Sarah. I will bless her and will surely give you a son by her. I will bless her so that she will be the mother of nations; kings of peoples will come from her.” Abraham fell facedown; he laughed and said to himself, “Will a son be born to a man a hundred years old? Will Sarah bear a child at the age of ninety?” And Abraham said to Elohim, “If only Ishmael might live under your blessing!” Then Elohim said, “Yes, but your wife Sarah will bear you a son, and you will call him Isaac. I will establish my covenant with him as an everlasting covenant for his descendants after him. And as for Ishmael, I have heard you: I will surely bless him; I will make him fruitful and will greatly increase his numbers. He will be the father of twelve rulers, and I will make him into a great nation. But my covenant I will establish with Isaac, whom Sarah will bear to you by this time next year.” When he had finished speaking with Abraham, Elohim went up from him” (Genesis 17:15-22).

So we see here that not even faithful Awraham could believe his wife would bear him a son, let alone be a mother of nations, apparently because he didn’t totally understand what was being promised to him. As a result of failing this test of not just faith but pursuing the ultimate intent of the revelation he was given, Awraham would have to face a much more frightening trial to see if he would sacrifice his own son Isaac! This is clear from the text, since YHWH only then said basically: “Now I know you really believe me!” Sarah didn’t do much better in the faith department, either, as the following scripture shows:

"Then YHWH said, 'I will surely return to you about this time next year, and Sarah your wife will have a son.' Now Sarah was listening at the entrance to the tent, which was behind him. Abraham and Sarah were already old and well advanced in years, and Sarah was past the age of childbearing. So Sarah laughed to herself as she thought, 'After I am worn out and my master is old, will I now have this pleasure?' Then YHWH said to Abraham, 'Why did Sarah laugh and say, 'Will I really have a child, now that I am old?' Is anything too hard for YHWH? I will return to you at the appointed time next year and Sarah will have a son.' Sarah was afraid, so she lied and said, 'I did not laugh.' But he said, 'Yes, you did laugh'" (Genesis 18:10-15).

We see also here another dimension to this critical juncture. YHWH had given Awraham a choice: Believe that somehow He would make an elderly couple have a male heir, or use "worldly wisdom" to second-guess YHWH and not believe in His Power, and go around His original intentions. But, because YHWH was determined to keep His favor with Awraham to bless the rest of the nations, He gave him another chance and proceeded with those intended blessings once it was clear Awraham finally understood. However, the bad choices of Awraham and Sarah initially forced YHWH to make certain concessions for a time that would take almost two millennia to rectify, as our next section shows.

The temporary compromise

As stated above, the practice that began with Cain's descendant Lamech grew so widespread that YHWH wiped those people out with a flood. However, it is clear from the genealogical records in Genesis 10 that the sons of Ham were the first to go astray spiritually. Cush, Ham's eldest son, was the father of Nimrod, whose people would build the Tower of Babel in an early challenge to YHWH's authority. Another son of Ham, Mizraim, gave his name to Egypt, a well-known early center of polygamy. Yet another son of Cush, Canaan, gave birth to an equally perverse polygamist group that YHWH would later vomit out of the land, and all these would be surrounding the ancient Hebrews wherever they went!

As a result, Awraham, who hailed from these same areas in Ur and Hebron, was bound to have some of this polygamist ideology seep into his thoughts, making it that much easier for him to listen to Sarah's suggestion over YHWH's.

The dilemma that YHWH faced was enormous: If he cut Awraham off for his lack of faith/understanding then His whole plan would go awry, but if He didn't, YHWH had vowed to bless all Awraham's descendants with nationhood and prosperity, whether they had pure origins or not. The answer, then, was to bless all the clans that came from Awraham's loins but to reserve special status for the intended lineage through Isaac in matters of special purity and inheritance in Canaan, later to be known as Israel. It would also be YHWH's intention that Israel would teach the other nations around her, but unfortunately the opposite happened and Israel became corrupt.

Then, as YHWH predicted to Awraham, his people would go to Egypt and eventually become enslaved – once again, in a society where polygyny was the norm. Complicating matters, by the time of their emancipation under Moshe, the Hebrews had grown into what Exodus 12:40 calls erev rab, a mixed or multi-racial multitude, among who were no doubt other polygynists!

Because the entire nation had to leave quickly then, there was no time to try to separate those engaged in plural marriages from those who were in monogamous ones. Instead, Moshe had to accept the current state of his population that was following him into the wilderness. He would have deal with them first and try to make the best legislation for all concerned later on. That is why you get some Scriptures that read like this:

"If a man has two wives, and he loves one but not the other, and both bear him sons but the firstborn is the son of the wife he does not love, when he wills his property to his sons, he must not give the rights of the firstborn to the son of the wife he loves in preference to his actual firstborn, the son of the wife he does not love. He must acknowledge the son of his unloved wife as the firstborn by giving him a double share of all he has. That son is the first sign of his father's strength. The right of the firstborn belongs to him" (Deuteronomy 21:15-17).

Since the plural marriages were already in his midst, Moshe didn't want to add to the problems he was already having with a discontented populace who kept pining for Egypt by taking children away from their mothers. The tumult that would have arisen there, in combination with the all too familiar record of the backsliding multitude, would have put the entire redemption plan in jeopardy.

But didn't Moshe have two wives himself?

"Miriam and Aaron began to talk against Moses because of his Cushite wife, for he had married a Cushite. "Has YHWH spoken only through Moses?" they asked. "Hasn't he also spoken through us?" And YHWH heard this. (Now Moses was a very humble man, more humble than anyone else on the face of the earth.) At once YHWH said to Moses, Aaron and Miriam, "Come out to the Tent of Meeting, all three of you." So the three of them came out. Then YHWH came down in a pillar of cloud; he stood at the entrance to the Tent and summoned Aaron and Miriam. When both of them stepped forward, he said, "Listen to my words: "When a prophet of YHWH is among you, I reveal myself to him in visions, I speak to him in dreams. But this is not true of my servant Moses; he is faithful in all my house. With him I speak face to face, clearly and not in riddles; he sees the form of YHWH. Why then were you not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?" The anger of YHWH burned against them, and he left them" (Numbers 12:1-9).

When polygamists try to prove their case scripturally, this is often one of the first places they come to. Their argument goes something like this:

- 1) Moshe only has one wife listed by name, Tzipporah, the daughter of Jethro.
- 2) Tzipporah's death is not recorded anywhere from the time she marries Moshe to the opening moments of this verse and therefore she must be alive at this time.
- 3) Now, instead of his Midian (Arabian) wife, Moshe has taken a total foreigner from Cush, which can mean Ethiopia.
- 4) Therefore, Moshe has two wives at the same time: Midianite Tzipporah and this unknown Cushite wife here.

There are a few fatal flaws to this sham argument: First of all, Tzipporah's death is unrecorded, period! Therefore, if this Cushite is in fact another woman, there is no reason to suppose that Tzipporah has not passed on, especially given the fact that Moshe is already well past 80 at this point. Secondly, Cush was not confined to Ethiopia:

Numbers 12:1-9 MIRIAM'S AND AARON'S SEDITION

an Ethiopian woman--Hebrew, "a Cushite woman"--Arabia was usually called in Scripture the land of Cush, its inhabitants being descendants of that son of Ham accounted generally a vile and contemptible race. The part that Miriam and Aaron had against Moses was the great change made in the government by the adoption of the seventy rulers [Numbers 11:16]. Their irritating disparagement of his wife (who, in all probability, was Zipporah [Exodus 2:21], and not a second wife he had recently married) arose from jealousy of the relatives, through whose influence the innovation had been first made (Exodus 18:13-26), while they were overlooked or neglected. Miriam is mentioned before Aaron as being the chief instigator and leader of the sedition. (Jamieson, Fausset & Brown, Commentary Critical and Explanatory on the Whole Bible)

As a result, the much stronger case can be made that this is simply Tzipporah being called a derogatory name. Moshe's sister was considered a prophetess and his brother Aaron was high priest. They were clearly used to running the show and being the stars of it. But now, although the inciting incident is not recorded, it is easy to see how Aaron and Miriam would be more jealous of Tzipporah than they would against some pretty young thing that just came on the scene without power; reason being, Tzipporah's father is also a kohen of the most high El (Exodus 3:1), and Mount Sinai where they all received the Ten Commandments was in her backyard! It is certainly the case that Jethro gave Moshe counsel that Moshe did not take from others (Exodus 18:14-27), thus perhaps nursing a long-standing jealousy between the two religious groups attached to Moshe that served YHWH. Whichever the case may be, this text does not prove Moshe was a bigamist. One can only arrive at such a conclusion through a series of false assumptions and erratic leaps away from logic.

So when did the perversion end?

As mentioned earlier, the end of the tolerance of plural marriage was about a thousand years after Moshe's time. YHWH would have to wait for an appropriate time when circumstances would essentially allow Him to press a kind of re-set key for the re-constitution of the nation of Israel from the ground up. But first, Israel would have to pass through its Monarchy period where, in addition to all these cultural cross-currents of history, we must add other traditions that allowed royalty to enjoy multiple spouses:

"Later when the anger of King Xerxes had subsided, he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what he had decreed about her. Then the king's personal attendants proposed, "Let a search be made for beautiful young virgins for the king. Let the king appoint commissioners in every province of his realm to bring all these beautiful girls into the harem at the citadel of Susa. Let them be placed under the care of Hegai, the king's eunuch, who is in charge of the women; and let beauty treatments be given to them. Then let the girl who pleases the king be queen instead of Vashti" (Esther 2:1-4).

Like the King of Persia, Israelite kings Dawid and Solomon kept multiple wives, concubines and harems. Sometimes this was done to showcase their prosperity. At other times it was strategic to quell dissent both from within and beyond the borders of Israel. Whether we like it or not, these examples of polygyny were considered normal for Eastern kings (e.g. Ecclesiastes 2:1-11), which may be why the Monarchy period is completely contained during the period that plural marriages were tolerated by YHWH. On the other hand, Moshe foresaw this trending as well and still did his best to limit its damage even if the secondary marriage was a remedy against war:

"The king, moreover, must not acquire great numbers of horses for himself or make the people return to Egypt to get more of them, for YHWH has told you, You are not to go back that way again. He must not take many wives, or his heart will be led astray. He must not accumulate large amounts of silver and gold" (Deuteronomy 17:16-17).

Now while pro-polygynists can argue that "not multiplying wives" can still allow a few extra ones, provided the numbers don't get excessive; the fact remains that Moshe was looking well beyond his days, and attempting to rein in the royalty who was engaging in polygyny. As Solomon himself would discover, the foreign wife that brings you peace today may very well lead you away from YHWH tomorrow.

In any case, while monogamy has always been held in high esteem throughout the ages, we don't see the Scriptural record turning back to it and away from plural marriages until the main prophetic period, when voices like Isaiah and Jeremiah would frequently compare YHWH as a husband fettered to an unfaithful wife that was either Israel or Judah:

"During the reign of King Josiah, YHWH said to me, "Have you seen what faithless Israel has done? She has gone up on every high hill and under every spreading and has committed adultery there. I thought that after she had done all this she would return to me but she did not, and her unfaithful sister Judah saw it. I gave faithless Israel her certificate of divorce and sent her away because of all her adulteries. Yet I saw that her unfaithful sister Judah had no fear; she also went out and committed adultery. Because Israel's immorality mattered so little to her, she defiled the land and committed adultery with stone and wood. In spite of all this, her unfaithful sister Judah did not return to me with all her heart, but only in pretense," declares YHWH" (Jeremiah 3:6-10).<sup>39</sup>

Jeremiah's rebuke is as sharp as it is sweeping, encompassing events for the past two and a half centuries. In 722 BCE, "faithless Israel" was taken into captivity by the Assyrians essentially because the Northern Kingdom's deep idolatry was counted by YHWH as "spiritual adultery". But Jeremiah himself would live to see an equally great catastrophe befall the remaining Hebrew kingdom of Judah, as the Babylonians came in and burned Solomon's temple also to the ground.

The comparisons of idolatry with adultery, then, which permeate the writings in this period obviously make no sense without a one man/one woman template to hang them on. The same can also be said in the Renewed Covenant where the faithful are now portrayed as the Bride of Mashiyach.

The toleration for plural marriage clearly ended when the Hebrews were allowed to return to the Land under Ezra and Nehemiah. At that point, in about 515 BCE, YHWH really could start over with them and set things right. Whereas before Moshe had been forced for reasons of expediency to deal with the plural marriages from the mixed multitude that came up from Egypt, under Ezra and Nehemiah YHWH could use his people's eagerness to return as an incentive to finally get rid of those foreign wives that confused them:

"And on the twentieth day of the ninth month, all the people were sitting in the square before the house of Elohim, greatly distressed by the occasion and because of the rain. Then Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, "You have been unfaithful; you have married foreign women, adding to Israel's guilt. Now make confession to YHWH, the Elohim of your fathers, and do his will. Separate yourselves from the peoples around you and from your foreign wives." The whole assembly responded with a loud voice: "You are right! We must do as you say. But there are many people here and it is the rainy season; so we cannot stand outside. Besides, this matter cannot be taken care of in a day or two, because we have sinned greatly in this thing. Let our officials act for the whole assembly. Then let everyone in our towns who has married a foreign woman come at a set time, along with the elders and judges of each town, until the fierce anger of our Elohim in this matter is turned away from us" (Ezra 10:9-14).

With these preparations now in place, the entire nation of Israel could finally start fresh and return to the original monogamous model of marriage that Torah demanded: One man and one woman exclusively united to one another in flesh and spirit. From this point on there is not a single mention of bigamy being tolerated in Israel, including the time of Y'shua and the early Netzarim movement. For those reasons, the words of Y'shua that we quoted in the beginning bear repeating now:

<sup>39</sup> This quote appears to suggest that both kingdoms of Judah and Israel were equally wedded as separate and legitimate wives unto YHWH; however, that was never the case. YHWH gave rulership to Solomon's line from David; Jeroboam (the northern kingdom's first ruler) was not even remotely related to Solomon. Jeroboam attempted to prohibit access to the Temple for his subjects because he feared it would give the Judahite king (the rightful heir Rehoboam) unfair leverage, and this was followed by a curse against his entire line (1 Kings 12:25-13:34). The northern kings were always viewed as illegitimate by YHWH, and their "certificate of divorce" specifically came about because they had engaged in idolatries before and after separating from the Davidic dynasty. When they rejected YHWH's anointed, they inadvertently excluded their rulership from the redemptive promises of YHWH, but the people themselves were not collectively held culpable (unless, of course, an individual chose to reject the true faith). It was YHWH's choice to bring them back under the banners of David and Solomon (Jeremiah 31:31-34, Ezekiel 36:24-27). Much like the promises of all believers regardless of ethnicity (which would be given two millennia later), the righteous are collectively considered to be one bride - as were Israel and Judah.

“Because of the hardness of your heart, you were allowed to put away your wives. But it was not thus from the beginning. But I say to you that he who leaves his wife without a charge of adultery, and takes another, commits adultery. And he that takes a divorced woman commits adultery.”

The Return of Monogamy is in the KHADs

As referenced in the beginning of this essay, much of the discussion on this topic has centered on the use of echad, the Hebrew word meaning “one”. In Aramaic, the cognate word is khad, and it carries the same meanings. Like its Hebrew counterpart, 99 percent of the time the normative reading is “one/only”. The problem that has arisen is that pro-polygamists/polygynists take the one percent of the time that a compound unity is being drawn on and use that as a default usage to pervert plain readings that one wife really does mean just that!

“And concerning the things of which you wrote to me, it is praiseworthy for a man not to approach a woman. But, on account of sexual temptation, let each have his own (ܚܕ) wife and let a woman have her own (ܚܕ) husband” (1 Corinthians 7:1-2).

The wording “his own” and “her own” derived from Aramaic khad (ܚܕ), clearly refer to an exclusivity of sexual access between husband and wife. Such a point is even more forcefully made here:

“I would that you could bear with me a little, that I might talk foolishly: and indeed, bear with me. For I am jealous over you, with a righteous jealousy for I have espoused you to a (ܚܕ) husband as a chaste virgin whom I would present to the Mashiyach” (2 Corinthians 11:2).

The wording here is l’gabra khad or “to one husband”. This is not exclusively figurative language. Rather, the spiritual message makes absolutely no sense if it is not built upon the physical monogamous model between husband and wife. After all, there is only one Y’shua for the bride to go to and he is exclusively bound only to the collective “virgin” represented by his followers – and, please note, this is NOT a sexual relationship! Some other verses that show Torah upheld monogamy are as follows:

“It is a faithful saying that if a man desires the eldership, he desires a good work. And an elder should be such that no blame can be found in him; and he should be the husband of one wife (ܚܕ), with a vigilant mind and sober and reliable (in his behaviors), and affectionate to strangers, and instructive, and not a transgressor in regard to wine, and whose hand is not swift to strike; but he should be humble and not contentious, nor a lover of money; and one that guides well his own house and holds his children in subjection with all purity. For if he knows not how to guide his own house well, how can he guide the assembly of Elohim?” (1 Timothy 3:1-5) (See also Titus 1:6.)

And:

“It is fitting for men so to love their wives as (they do) their own bodies. For he that loves his wife loves himself. For no one ever hated his own body; but nourishes it and provides for it, even as the Mashiyach (did for) the assembly. For we are members of his body and of his flesh and of his bones. For this reason, a man should leave his father and his mother and cling to his wife; and the two should be one flesh. This is a great mystery; but I am speaking of the Mashiyach and of his assembly” (Ephesians 5:28-32).

Furthermore we have this important statement:

“For there is neither Jew nor Aramean, nor slave nor free, nor male nor female, but you are all one in Y’shua the Mashiyach. And if you are of the Mashiyach then you are seeds of Awraham and inheritors by the promise” (Galatians 3:28-29).

The meaning here is simple. If all are one in Mashiyach, including male and female, then the previous accommodations that favored men and discriminated against women in this regard are also abolished, and in fact, have been for some centuries by this time. The dividing wall is gone (Ephesians 2:14-16) and while the roles and functions of men and women will never be identical, neither will they exalt one gender to the detriment of the other in an unfair manner.

Most people understand that YHWH revealed Himself through male and female attributes so that humans could see components of His attributes in the physical world which extend into the spiritual world. YHWH is not a person; He is referred to according to the male gender because He is all the attributes of the perfect Father. However, both the male and female attributes of YHWH point to Mashiyach and are Mashiyach. Mashiyach was born of a woman, and he was the ultimate seed of a woman which, of course, validates the human spirit within an eternal purpose. However, Mashiyach himself stated that the male and female elements of human life are temporal: “For in the resurrection of the dead, men do not marry women, nor are women given to husbands. Rather, they are as the Messengers of Elohim in Heaven” (Matthew 22:30). Neither the male or female nature will have relevance in the olam haba (world to come), which means they must then point to the world to come.

Understanding the male and female attributes of YHWH according to Torah and Mashiyach allows men and women to advance toward the Perfection of Mashiyach. When a husband and wife are married and joined together in Mashiyach they become one; the sum of the two is neither male nor female, but echad, one. This new entity of one portrays the perfection of the spiritual body that is in harmony with YHWH. Marriage is a covenant that is made in Mashiyach and witnessed by YHWH and all the wedding party for the purpose of bringing the will of YHWH from heaven to earth (Genesis 1:28).

Man and woman as husband and wife together rebuild what was lost by original sin and subdue the enemy who, of course, is on a full-time mission to rip their marriage apart and then turn the children from obedience to rebellion. Marriage is clearly the single largest contributor within the human race to loving and belonging to one another! Marriage also pictures each person's love and belonging to Mashiyach as the “bride of Mashiyach,” as footnoted earlier.

When a husband and wife individually press into the things of Mashiyach they are conformed into the Image of Elohim as their unique male and female attributes are merged into one. From this unity of one their children are able to discern and recognize the Image of Elohim because they are literally witnessing and experiencing trust, honor, love, respect, etc. – attributes that are protected by a covenant according to the perfection of Mashiyach and emulated by their loving father and mother.

Therefore, a monogamous relationship is a heavenly-based covenant made on Earth wherein one man and one woman marry once and for life; it is a covenant that thoroughly demonstrates the spirit of Torah according to the high calling of Mashiyach. Polygamy and polygyny, on the other hand, are man-made traditions that elevate the male gender, distorting the balance and harmony that is revealed within YHWH as male and female. Those who seek Mashiyach to endorse their polygamist/polygynist ideas are clearly deficient in understanding the Spirit of Mashiyach.

Conclusion

The “freedom” of the individual to sin has led many down the path of destruction. But the fact is, one can only find true sexual freedom in the security and unity of a monogamous marriage, which includes freedom from the fear that their intimacy and hard-earned goals might at some point be destroyed by their carnality. Unfortunately, some individuals have chosen to cloak their lusts in religious garb, and attempt to “read into” the Scriptures in order to fool themselves and others into believing that YHWH condones multiple partners in a marriage. The Torah, however, proves otherwise. Whether Jewish or Gentile, leader or follower, anyone who perverts the Word by twisting adultery into a meaningless restriction runs the risk of being condemned. All who engage in, or teach others that polygamy or polygyny is condoned by YHWH are guilty of lying and they will be held accountable before YHWH come Judgment Day! This goes double for teachers who are in turn held to a much more severe judgment (1 Corinthians 6:9; James 3:1). True freedom comes not via the way of Cain, but from intimate Set-apart marital love between husband and wife as equals, which is the bedrock of our civilization.

Beit Din

A Beit Din is a Torah requirement for all communities who follow Mashiyach. Beit means house, as in the people of. Din means judge, contend or plead the cause, as in; “And YHWH said, My spirit shall not always diyn (contend) with man...” (Genesis 6:3). Beit Din is a house of “judges,” or counselors who contend with all important matters requiring discernment and reconciliation. The role of a Beit Din is to provide wise and effective leadership to the body, to strengthen and protect the sovereignty of each individual, to nurture the qualities of healthy leadership and prevent abusive leadership or individuals from bringing harm to others.

Each Beit Din is comprised of three or more qualified men who are mighty in Scripture and knowledgeable of the power of Elohim who are able to provide counsel and direction for individuals and the community as a whole. The members of a Beit Din are responsible to seek YHWH’s instructions regarding important matters of the congregation. Matters of reconciliation and discipline follow the order as set out in Matthew 18:15-20; verse 20: “Wherefore two or three are assembled in my name, there I am also among them” is a reference to the inner operation of a Beit Din. Each member who sits on the Beit Din must be accountable to all others on the Beit Din as well as all members of the congregation.

Those who serve on the Beit Din are distinguished as YHWH’s servants based on Torah qualifications: “Moreover you shall provide out of all the people upright men, such as fear Elohim, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens” (Sh’mot/Exodus 18:21). These timeless qualifications are established by Torah in addition to, “Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you. And you answered me, and said, The thing which you have spoken is good for us to do” (D’varim/Deut. 1:13). This makes for a total of seven qualities or attributes.

These seven attributes are further explained (or amplified) by Rav Shaul: “And so also the deacons should be pure and not speak double, nor incline to much wine, nor love base gains; but should hold the mystery of the faith with a pure conscience. And let them be first tried and then let them serve if they are without blame. So also should the wives be chaste and of vigilant minds; and they should be faithful in all things; and they should not be slanderers. Let the deacons be such as have each one wife and guide well their children and households. For they who serve well (as deacons) procure for themselves a good degree and much boldness in the faith of Y’shua the Mashiyach” (1 Timothy 3:8-13). It is the responsibility of each individual who sits on a Beit Din to ensure they observe the guidelines set forth in Torah and the Renewed Covenant to live by the same standards that they uphold for the rest of the congregation. Those who sit on a Beit Din must be examples of Mashiyach in their conversation and conduct and be able to train up other men in the things of Mashiyach. No one is to place themselves above others; everyone must be accountable for their conversation and conduct.

There are plenty of cases in traditional religious worlds where leaders hide wicked deeds behind “important” flattering titles, and who spurn Scriptural qualifications while maintaining positions as Rabbis, Reverends, Pastors, Priests, etc. However, the Beit Din widens the leadership responsibilities within each community according to a team of men who are transparent and hold each other accountable to a higher standard. As each congregation grows more men are added, allowing the spiritual gifts to operate through all who participate. Simple cases may be heard by one member of a Beit Din, more difficult cases are heard by additional men, cases with farther reaching implications are heard by regional, national or international Beit Din. Regardless of the complexity of each issue all who sit on a Beit Din are called to go before YHWH and seek His counsel regarding each matter set before them.

The matter of leadership “authority” within each congregation is extremely important to YHWH and guarded by many Commandments within Torah. Each member of the congregation is required to respect YHWH’s authority by not endorsing hierarchal leadership who establishes themselves as their own authority based on their titles, credentials or popularity. The original Shlichim including Rav Shaul never adopted “flattering titles” (Matt. 23:8).<sup>40</sup> Netzarim do not subscribe to unqualified hierarchical leadership, but rather elevate the spiritual qualities and qualifications of individuals according to spiritual fruits:

“Him who is blameless, who is the husband of one wife and has believing children who are no revilers nor ungovernable in sensuality. For an elder should be blameless as the steward of Elohim; and not be self-willed nor hot tempered, nor excessive in wine, nor with hands swift to strike, nor a lover of base gains. But he should be a lover of strangers and a lover of good (deeds), and be sober, upright, kind-hearted, and restraining himself from evil passions; and studious of the doctrine of the Word of Faith that he may be able by his wholesome teaching both to console and to rebuke them that are contentious. For many are stiff necked and their discourses vain; and they mislead the minds of people, especially such as are of the circumcision. The mouth of these should be stopped: they corrupt many families; and they teach what they should not, for the sake of filthy lucre” (Titus 1:6-11).

The very important role of teachers within the community is established and guarded by the Beit Din who are also responsible for the content and teaching methods. The original Shlichim were teachers, yet they were not referred to as “Rabbis.” It is important to note that Aramaic in Matthew 23:8 does not mean “Rabbi” as in “teacher” per se, as Y’shua commands his disciples to teach the world (Matthew 28). Instead, Y’shua is addressing the more literal “rab,” which means “great,” as in Genesis 6:5, “the wickedness of man was great on the earth.” Y’shua taught against elitist behavior, therefore; “do not be called MY GREAT ONE, for you have One that is Great, YHWH.” The prohibition against calling leaders “father” or “Rabbi” is to avoid being entrapped by false religions that give high status or authority to men that is due solely unto YHWH.

Most Christians and Jews openly defy this commandment by preferring to use flattering titles for their leaders, see Job 32:21-12. Isaiah 56:10-12 also exposes leaders who “can never have enough” and who keep their “followers” in spiritual and sometimes financial poverty by seeking personal gains for themselves. See also 1 Timothy 4:3. A Beit Din serves to uphold Torah standards and protect the community from insubordinate carnally minded (“wannabe”) leaders who are religious career minded men and women who seek large followings and financial support for their own visions. The days in which we live are “as it was in the days of Noach” before the flood; therefore, a Beit Din is more essential now than ever before, to protect individuals and congregations from immoral and indecent leaders who are not qualified according to the standard of Mashiyach, but also to raise up righteous leaders who seek YHWH’s fullest blessings upon each individual.

<sup>40</sup> However, there is a less formal teacher title that Y’shua clearly found more acceptable, that being malpana (Matthew 22:36, Mark 13:1, Luke 21:7, John 20:16).

Book of the Torah

The Word of YHWH teaches that Moshe wrote the “Book of the Torah.” “And it shall be, when he sits upon the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write for himself a copy of this torah in a book out of that which is before the priests the Levites: And it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life: that he may learn to fear YHWH his Elohim, to keep all the words of this law and these statutes, to do them” (D’varim/Deut. 17:18, 19). Moshe wrote the Torah, and it was first “before the priests and Levites.” YHWH commanded Torah to be written (Sh’mot/Exodus 34:27). “And Moshe wrote their goings out according to their journeys by the commandment of YHWH: and these are their journeys according to their goings out” (B’midbar/Numbers 33:2). Torah is not complicated or difficult for the average person to understand; it is provided for everyone. It represents the “character” of YHWH and His values according to His Will and it elevates human life by establishing Justice and Equality for everyone. Torah was revealed to a “mixed multitude” of people from every race and creed; however, it was the Jewish people who were given the responsibility to preserve and establish Torah for each generation. “On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses to ba’ar (make plain) this Torah...” (D’varim/Deut. 1:5). YHWH commanded that after crossing over the Yarden river that the “people of YHWH” “shall write upon the stones all the words of this Torah very plainly” (D’varim/Deut. 27:8). This indicates that everyone should have access to Torah, and that according to Torah everyone is responsible to observe and do Torah.

Torah instructs us on how to have a Covenant relationship with YHWH. It contains specific commandments for men only, for women only, for priests and for Nazirites, while other commandments are specifically for the nation; therefore, not all commandments are given to every individual. For those who do not have a relationship with YHWH, Torah might be viewed as a book of do’s and don’ts, but in reality Torah is a love letter from a Father to his children that provides instruction and wisdom for life.

Moshe wrote most of the “Book of the Torah” which was successively copied by his descendants. Joshua also wrote in the Book of Torah (Joshua 24:26) and David charged his son Solomon to do “as it is written in the Torah of Moshe” (1 Kings 2:4). Jehoshaphat brought a revival to his people after the Book of Torah had been neglected for many years, “And they taught in Judah, and had the book of the Torah of YHWH with them, and went about throughout all the cities of Judah, and taught the people.” In 2 Kings 17:37 we read, “the statutes, and the ordinances, and the law, and the commandment, which he (YHWH) wrote for you, you shall observe to do for evermore; and you shall not fear other gods.” YHWH directed His prophets to write the Book of the Torah as YHWH directed; therefore, it is the Word of YHWH. 2 Kings 22:8 says, “Hilkiah the high priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, I have found the book of the Torah in the house of YHWH”; Hilkiah brought revival to his people from the “book of the Torah of YHWH given by Moshe” (2 Chronicles 34:14).

“So they read in the book of the Torah of Elohim distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading” (Nehemiah 8:8). “And all the congregation of them that were come again out of the captivity made booths and sat under the booths: for since the days of Yeshua the son of Nun unto that day had not the children of Israel done so. And there was very great gladness. Also day by day, from the first day unto the last day, he read in the book of the Torah of Elohim. And they kept the feast seven days; and on the eighth day was a solemn assembly, according unto the manner” (Nehemiah 8:17-18). The Feast of Tabernacles is a time for everyone to learn Torah; it represents a time when all the nations of the earth will come together in Mashiach’s government and learn of his ways, and walk in Torah. “And they stood up in their place, and read in the book of the Torah of YHWH their Elohim one fourth part of the day; and another fourth part they confessed, and worshipped YHWH their Elohim” (Nehemiah 9:3).

YHWH says, “Remember the Torah of Moshe my servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments. Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of YHWH: And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse” (Malachi 4:4-6). Notice the “great and dreadful day of YHWH” refers to the coming of Mashiach ben David, NOT to Y’shua’s first coming as Mashiach ben Yoseph. Here we can see that the book of the Torah was known in Malachi’s day. YHWH instructed us to remember the Torah of Moshe BEFORE the coming of the “great and dreadful day of YHWH” till Mashiach returns again, at his second coming!

“Now concerning the dead who (you say) will not rise, Have you read in the book of Moshe of how from the bush Elohim said to him, ‘I AM the Elohim of Awraham and the Elohim of Yitz’chak and the Elohim of Ya’akov. And he is not the Elohim of the dead, but of the living’” (Mark 12:26, 27). Y’shua not only expects the Sadducees to understand the “book of Moshe” but he tells all the people, “For if only you had believed in Moshe, you would also be believers in me, for Moshe wrote concerning me. And, if you do not believe the writings of that man, how will you believe my words?” (John 5:46, 47) After Y’shua heals a man from leprosy he commands “show yourself to the priests, and offer the offering as Moshe commanded, for their testimony” (Matthew 8:4) which are given in Vayikra/Lev. 13:2, 49; 14:2, and clearly demonstrate that Mashiach upheld very intricate aspects of Torah.

Y’shua taught that the Word of Elohim came through Moshe: “For Moshe said to honor your father and your mother, and anyone who reviles his father and his mother, ‘Let them be put to death!’ But you say, ‘If a man says to his father or to his mother, ‘My offering is what you have gained from me’” then you do not allow him to do anything for his father or for his mother. And you despise the Word of Elohim because of the tradition’” (Mark 7:10-13). Here Y’shua is quoting the Book of the Torah from Sh’mot/Ex. 20:12; D’varim/Deut. 5:16 and Sh’mot/Ex. 21:17; Vayikra/Lev. 20:9 and he is upholding Torah but rejecting the traditions of the Pharisees.

After Y’shua arose from the grave, he taught from the Book of the Torah: “Then Y’shua said to them, Oh fools and of hardened heart and slow to believe in all these things that the prophets spoke! Were not these things necessary that the Mashiach endure and to enter into his glory? And he did begin from Moshe and from all the prophets and did expound to them about himself from all the Scriptures” (Luke 24:25-27). From these words we recognize that a foundational understanding of “the Scriptures” is expected of all of Y’shua’s followers. Additionally, “he opened their mind to understand the Scriptures” (Luke 24:45). Y’shua also levies a stern charge against the Pharisees, “Did not Moshe give you the Torah, yet not a man among you kept the Torah?” (John 7:19) This would be a ridiculous and redundant statement if it were impossible to keep Torah and if Y’shua himself didn’t keep Torah!

Peter stood up and declared from the Book of Torah, “For Moshe said [that] A prophet will raise up for you from Master YHWH from your brothers. Hear him like me in everything that he speaks to you, and it will be [that] every soul which does not hear that prophet, that soul will perish from his people” (Acts 3:22, 23). Peter quotes D’varim/Deut. 18:15, 16 as an authoritative prophetic commandment and Stephen quotes this same passage from the Book of the Torah in Acts 7:37.

The Gentiles who were first being introduced to Mashiach learned from the Book of the Torah, “For from ancient generations in all cities Moshe had preachers in the synagogues that on every Shabbat they read him” (Acts 15:21). This was written for the benefit of those who are not Jewish. The Gentiles were instructed by the leading of the Ruach haKodesh, according to the Book of the Torah to “abstain from uncleanness of sacrifices (idols) and from adultery and from things that are strangled and from blood” (Acts 15:20). Mashiach himself is a continuum of the Book of the Torah, and this continuum extends into the World to Come.

Shaliach Paul (the Apostle) taught the Kingdom of Elohim, testifying of Mashiach and the Book of the Torah and persuading many souls to believe in Y’shua, “out of the Torah of Moshe, and out of the prophets,” from morning till evening (Acts 28:23). Rav Shaul gives a very stern warning when he says, “For if he who transgressed the Torah of Moshe, died without mercies at the mouth of two or three witnesses; how much more, do you think, will he receive capital punishment who has trodden upon the Son of Elohim and has accounted the blood of his covenant by which he is sanctified, as the blood of all men and has treated the Spirit of grace in an insulting manner?” (Hebrews 10:28-29) By comparing YHWH’s capital punishment from the Torah of Moshe with violations against the “blood of his covenant” or against the “Spirit of grace,” Rav Shaul clearly teaches that Torah is a Living Covenant.

As Malachi contains an exhortation to remember the Torah of Moshe and keep the commandments of YHWH, so does Revelation close with several similar exhortations including; “And the dragon was enraged against the woman; and he went to make war upon the residue of her seed who keep the Commandments of Elohim and have the testimony of Y’shua” (Revelation 12:17). “Here is the patience of the set apart believers who keep the Commandments of Elohim and the faith of Y’shua” (Revelation 14:12). “Blessed are they who do His (YHWH’s) Mitzvot, that they may have a right to the tree of life and may enter through the gates into the city” (Revelation 22:14).

The Book of the Torah contains the Commandments of Elohim which are a continuum from the time YHWH gave them to Adam and Eve, until the World to Come. Mashiyach offered the Renewed Covenant in his blood so that many who accept his offering could open their hearts to YHWH and allow the Ruach haKodesh to write Torah upon their hearts. Those who try to enter the wedding feast but they have no wedding garments are as the five foolish virgins who have no oil; their garments are stained because they willfully chose to break the Commandments and violate the “Book of Torah.”

Born from the Beginning

“...if a man is not born from the beginning, he is not able to see the Kingdom of Elohim.” John 3:3

The importance of being “born from the beginning” is mentioned from Genesis to Revelation; it is the single most important concept to humanity since Adam and Eve sinned in Gan Eden. Since “the fall,” YHWH has required that mankind return to him from a sinful state of thought, speech and action that is contrary to the Perfection of the Image of Elohim. The basic key of being spiritually born anew is found in Jeremiah 31:31-34 as it pertains to the Renewed Covenant, which is why this verse is very often quoted and referred to in Netzarim writings. When we respond to the Ruach haKodesh, our hearts become open to Torah and we are transformed into the Image of Elohim. What this means is, we allow each part of our lives to be sanctified and Set Apart unto YHWH who gave Torah (His Word) to establish and maintain an intimate spiritual connection between Him and us, and to protect us from self destruction. All the forefathers of the Faith experienced intimate spiritual relationships with YHWH and the Word of YHWH, which means they were born from the beginning; they went from living according to the natural man to living in the spiritual, and they returned to their spiritual beginning when man did not know sin.

No one is exempt from the need of being spiritually born anew. The Ruach haKodesh (Spirit of YHWH) prompts each one to return to a life that is pleasing to YHWH, which is healthy for us and our loved ones and beneficial for all people and for our planet. Many souls are driven by idealism, justice, responding to needs of others, or just plain survival after realizing they’ve been their own worst enemy. Those who have been spiritually born anew come from all levels of religion, intellect, sophistication, refinement, race, cults, witchcraft, sorcery and abomination known to man. There is no “new sin” under the sun; just volunteers for many variations of the same old stuff. Thankfully, YHWH is no respecter of persons. While others may be impressed at the level of reprobation you may have experienced, YHWH isn’t. Even if a person credits him or herself for choosing to be spiritually born anew, the point is that YHWH knows the needs of His people much more than they can understand. YHWH is the one who provides consciousness about the importance of Justice, Peace and Mercy, and we simply respond in agreement by turning to Him (repenting) and seeking His Kingdom.

Mankind is not capable enough to create global Justice and Peace; otherwise we would have already done so. While the majority of people want to see a better world, it's impossible for man on his own to change his sinful disposition. Mankind has corrupted itself and the Earth to such extreme measures that vain souls are now suggesting that they be financed to build another Tower of Babel (rebellion against YHWH) and go to live on other habitable planets. In reality the latest scam is to bring "higher intelligence" back to Earth, to enslave mankind into following a "one-world-government" that has no regard for YHWH or His Mashiyach (Revelation 13:8).

Uncomfortable though it may seem, the only way to be born from the beginning is to pray and wait until our prayers are heard. Of course, souls are born spiritually at all manner of time, place and circumstance; there is no universal formula. It is very helpful to be in fellowship with those who have been spiritually born in Mashiyach, but this is not a prerequisite. There must not be any religious strings attached to becoming "born again." This is not of men but of the Spirit of YHWH. For instance, many religions expect allegiance to their theology and your financial support for helping you to become "born again" – when in reality the ONLY thing that matters is your relationship with YHWH and His Mashiyach.

Y'shua taught in Matthew 18:3, "unless you change and become like children, you will not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." He was of course referring to the capacity of children to believe, trust and have faith without doubting; and once we learn to walk "in" Mashiyach, he teaches us the things we need to know, which is why the Word of YHWH is so vitally important. When a person is truly "born again" they enter into the Malchut Elohim<sup>41</sup> and can easily distinguish between religion and the things of the Kingdom of Elohim, because "...the Word of Elohim is living and all-efficient and sharper than a two-edged sword, and enters even to the severance of the soul and the spirit, and of the joints and the marrow and the bones, and judges the thoughts and reasonings of the heart: Neither is there any creature which is concealed from before him; but every thing is naked and manifest before his eyes, to whom we are to give account" (Hebrews 4:12-13).

Prayer means communicating with YHWH in the moment just as you are. Whether praying alone or with others, it is your connection to YHWH that is important. If you feel stressed, tense, uncomfortable or awkward, just imagine how Adam and Eve felt after they sinned! Since Adam and Eve, millions have been redeemed from their sin.

The Ruach can also take us by surprise. Some have experienced a new spiritual birth when they least expected it. Rav Shaul, for instance, was on his way to wreak havoc with the followers of Mashiyach when he was stopped in his tracks (Acts 9). YHWH spoke through the prophets to reveal that "today" while we are still drawing a breath, even right at this moment is the "right" time to surrender to YHWH and His Mashiyach. We need to remember, this is on HIS terms, not ours.

In reality, when we feel the need to repent of sin, this is evidence that the Ruach haKodesh is speaking to us and preparing us for the Kingdom of Elohim. The Kingdom of Elohim is spiritual, not worldly or carnal, which is why knowing YHWH is called a spiritual birth; it is new because we enter into a new experience in Him, a new birth. The external factors are not so relevant; however, they are used to try and test: How much do we really value the One who gave us life?

<sup>41</sup> In Jewish thought, the Malchut (kingdom) of YHWH is connected with two other terms that translate roughly as "Crown" and "Will". It is very interesting to note that both definitions of the Kingdom are found and described in the NT. Look for the crown concept in 1 Corinthians 9:25, Philippians 4:1, 1 Thessalonians 2:19, 2 Timothy 2:5, 4:8; James 1:12, 1 Peter 5:4 and Revelation 2:10, 3:11. The concept of the Kingdom being defined as direct obedience to YHWH's will is of course mentioned by Y'shua in Matthew 5:17-19, 6:33, 7:21 and elsewhere.

Mankind's creative ways to cope with sin are not working because sin is destroying our earth and its inhabitants. YHWH has given mankind the means to mitigate the destruction, but rather than resist the demons, the majority of humanity (the fallen world) has made a pact with evil. Some pretend that YHWH is unknowable, or that the world was destined to be the way it is, but the fact of the matter is that YHWH Himself says the exact opposite. He says they shall know me, "And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know YHWH: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, says YHWH: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more" (Jeremiah 31:34). The purpose and reason that we have been given life is to know YHWH and serve Him. With life comes the individual responsibility of choice, and whether we accept it or not we each have exercised the power of choice since there is no middle ground.

When a person is spiritually born, they have passed from (spiritual) death to life in Mashiyach and they belong to YHWH, not to institutions of men; their unity is in the Spirit with YHWH and they belong with His people. It's impossible to both simultaneously break YHWH's Commandments and maintain a spiritual connection with Heaven; all manner of unclean thoughts, speech and association with evil become burdensome to one who is born of the spirit. Walking in Faith is a distinct spiritual journey for every soul: "By faith Awraham, when he was called, obeyed and departed to the place which he was to receive for an inheritance: and he departed while he knew not where he was going. By faith he became a resident in the land that was promised him as in a foreign land; and abode in tents with Yitz'chak and Ya'akov, the heirs with him of the same promise. For he looked for the city that has a foundation of which the builder and maker is Elohim" (Hebrews 11:8-10).

The biggest obstacle preventing you from returning to YHWH and being "born from the beginning" is you. No one lives or dies solely unto themselves; each of us is part of the "mystery" of the Kingdom of Heaven. People have mocked, scorned Mashiyach, some call him a mamzer (bastard); others have believed Mashiyach to be a fairy tale when in reality mankind has no other hope of Peace and Justice on this earth, outside of Mashiyach.

Christmas

The vast majority of Christians insist on celebrating the "Christmas holiday" as though it has something to do with the birth of "Jesus" – even though most realize that "Jesus" wasn't born on December 25th and even that the roots of "Christmas" go deep into paganism and nowhere to be found in the Bible. YHWH never suggested we celebrate birthdays, let alone the birth of the Savior who was born around Sukkot (Feast of Tabernacles) in September of 5 BCE.<sup>42</sup> This Biblical fact debunks the Roman Catholic based December 25th "holiday" and clearly exposes it as an outright lie.

The Word of YHWH foretold that from the "seed" of woman would come the Savior of all mankind, and by this seed "the Serpent" would be destroyed: "And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her seed; it shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise his heel" (Genesis 3:15).

After the flood when the human race was centralized on the plains of Babylon, haSatan began to turn mankind away from YHWH's plan of redemption by producing a counterfeit Messiah.

<sup>42</sup> It is generally accepted in the Netzeri community that Y'shua was born on the first day of Sukkot. However, Andrew Gabriel Roth has presented compelling information in his book Signs of the Cross (pages 47-95) that pins the Nativity between September 10th and 13th, 5 BCE, or after Yom Kippur but just before Sukkot. One of the arguments is that the Holy Family were sheltered under a sukkah when there was no room at the inn. If all the people of this area around Jerusalem were in their houses or similar permanent structures, then the festival could not have started and everyone would be living outside. With all the inns full the only remaining structures were the sukkahs that had been erected but were not occupied yet. Since the publication of this book in 2001, more details of the mechanisms of this timing have been improved upon, with respect to the priestly service cycles.

HaSatan found an ambitious woman named Semiramis, the widow of Nimrod, he was of course “the mighty hunter before YHWH” (Genesis 10:9) who met with a violent death. Nimrod had been deified as the deliverer from the menace of wild animals. His widow sought to perpetuate his worship while also retaining the power of his kingdom, and she deceived people into believing that she gave birth, through a miraculous conception, to a son she named Tammuz (branch) whom she purported to be the reincarnation of Nimrod. 2,000 B.C.E. saw the haSatan’s counterfeit to the promised “Seed.” Semiramis was thenceforth worshipped as “the mother of god” (Madonna) or “the queen of heaven,” and her illegitimate son also became a deity. This is where the ancient Babylonian mystery religion originated, the fountainhead of all idolatry. Every idol, whether mentioned in the Set Apart Scriptures or in Mythology, can be traced to these beginnings.

Alexander Hislop, in his monumental work “The Two Babylons” has shown that papal worship is based on none other than the worship of Nimrod and his wife, disguised in a garb of Christianity. Concerning the Christmas festival Hislop writes: “That Christmas was originally a pagan festival is beyond all doubt. The time of the year, the ceremonies with which it is celebrated, prove its origin. In Egypt, the son of Isis, the Egyptian title for the queen of heaven, was born at this very time, about the time of the winter solstice. The very name by which Christmas is popularly known among ourselves - Yule day - proves at once its pagan and Babylonian origin. “Yule” is the Chaldee name for “infant,” or “little child”; and as the 25th of December was referred to by Anglo-Saxon ancestors as the “Yule-day” or “the child’s day”, and the night that preceded it, “Mother night”, long before they came in contact with Christianity, that sufficiently proves its real character. Far and wide in the realms of paganism was this birthday observed.” (The Two Babylons; Alexander Hislop, p.93)<sup>43</sup>

As mentioned above, it can be clearly demonstrated from Scripture that Y’shua Mashiyach was not born in the winter, but during the Fall Feasts. Since YHWH in no way authorized the celebration of Christmas, not to mention birthdays, what would possess Christians to fabricate a birth date for our Savior? As early as the First Century Rav Shaul rebuked Gentile followers of Mashiyach for attempting to incorporate paganism into the True Faith: “Then, for when you did not know Elohim, you served those things who, by their very nature, are not Elohim. Now that you have knowledge of Elohim, and especially have knowledge from Elohim, that you have returned to those weak and poor principles, wishing to come under their bondage. You have observed days and months and times and years. I am afraid that perhaps my being among you has been in vain” (Galatians 4:8-11). Rav Shaul’s letters, of course, were not heeded by the Church.

In the year 230 C.E. the Christian Church founder Tertullian wrote: “By us [Gentile Christians] who are strangers to (Jewish) Sabbaths, and new moons, and festivals, once acceptable to G-d, the Saturnalia, the feasts of January, the Brumalia, and Matronalia are now frequented, with gifts being carried to and fro.”

Moving on, Tammuz was worshipped as god incarnate which implied that he was an incarnation of the “Lord of the heavens.” Since the sun grows stronger after the 25th of December, this date came to be known as the rebirth of Nimrod and of the Sun. In ancient Rome this day was known as “Natalis Invicti Solis,” the birthday of the unconquered sun. Lights were kindled then to burn until the 6th of January (Epiphany). The week-long feast of Saturnalia was held at the time of the winter solstice, accompanied with much evil revelry and debauchery. HaSatan managed to find masses of gullible and willing men to seduce into believing the lie that these pagan festivals were acceptable to the Almighty, and various “religious men” were instrumental in incorporating them into the Catholic religion. As a matter of fact, it became policy for the papacy to amalgamate heathen festivals with Christendom. Pope Gregory wrote to Augustine

43 “Yule” is also the name of a winter feast practiced by Germanic and Norse tribes where they cooked the last of their meat for the winter. It was also celebrated around the winter solstice and dedicated to their false god Odin, whose appearance bears a striking resemblance to a certain corpulent bearded man in a red suit who is supposed to give gifts to children on Christmas day.

the first missionary to the British Isles (C.E. 597): Do not destroy the temples of the English gods; change them to Christian churches. Do not forbid the 'harmless customs' which have been associated with the old religions; consecrate them to Christian use. The Vatican views paganism as “harmless customs” which is why the church is rife with paganism that was syncretized into Greco-Roman Christianity.

Sir James Fraser in “The Golden Bough” writes: Thus it appears that the Christian Church chose to celebrate the birthday of its founder on the 25th of December in order to transfer the devotion of the heathen from the sun to him who was called the Sun of Righteousness. If that was so, there can be no intrinsic improbability in the conjecture that motives of the same sort may have led the ecclesiastical authorities to assimilate the Easter festival of the death and resurrection of their Lord to the festival of the death and resurrection of another Asiatic god which fell in the same season. To be appealing to the masses, the early post-apostolic church founders asserted their political and immoral relativism against the Word of YHWH, thus making void the Commandments of YHWH by their pagan traditions.

The term “Christmas” first appeared around 450 C.E. when Pope Julius decreed that all Catholics must celebrate the birthday of Christ at the same time that the heathen were celebrating the pagan Saturnalia feast. It was designated as “Christe-masse” or Christ’s mass. Sadly, there are precious few Christians who recognize that the origin of the “Christmas tree” is from Babylon mystery religion as many believe the tree originated among Christians in Europe. But there are even fewer Christians who know this and will actually dare to speak out to warn others against the pagan origins of Christmas.

The decorated tree represents Tammuz (which means a branch); it is haSatan’s counterfeit of the true “Branch” – Hebrew: NETZER; a shoot; or a sprout. Mashiyach was prophetically called “The Root out of dry ground” (Isaiah 11:1; 53:2; Jeremiah 23:5). “Behold the man whose name is The Branch” (Zechariah 6:12). Ancient Babylonian coins pictured a tree stump which represented dead Nimrod and a small tree growing nearby which represented Tammuz. The Egyptians used the palm; the Romans a pine tree. The “Xmass tree” as once worshipped by idolatrous Israelites is described in Jeremiah 10. Mistletoe and holly figured prominently in the early Anglo-Saxon and Druidic tree worship.

“Hear ye the word which YHWH speaks to you, O house of Israel: Thus says YHWH, learn not the way of the heathen, and be not dismayed at the signs of heaven; for the heathen are dismayed at them. For the customs of the people are vain: for one cuts a tree out of the forest, the work of the hands of the workman, with the axe. They deck it with silver and with gold; they fasten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not. They are upright as the palm tree, but speak not: they must needs be borne, because they cannot go. Be not afraid of them; for they cannot do evil, neither also is it in them to do good” (Jeremiah 10:1-5).

Clearly Jeremiah records a vivid depiction of a tree that is cut down from the forest, erected and decorated for a religious celebration. Ezekiel also shows how YHWH’s people sorely grieved Him by adopting the “imagery” of Tammuz which now has become the decorated Christmas tree. “Then said He unto me, Son of man, have you seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? For they say, ‘YHWH does not see us; YHWH has forsaken the earth.’ He said also unto me, turn yet again, and you shall see greater abominations that they do. Then He brought me to the door of the gate of YHWH’S house which was toward the north; and, behold, there sat women weeping for Tammuz” (Ezekiel 8:11-14).

Part of Tammuz worship was to place golden balls on the tree which were representative of his testicles, as he was also considered a god of sex. The women weeping for Tammuz was a pagan ritual that continued long after he died because his sexual services were no longer available. As one can plainly see, the whole hearted Believer would not contribute to the perpetuation of Christmas in any manner; he or she will withdraw from all pagan-born celebrations revered by the same evil spirit that tried to slay the infant Messiah by Herod's sword. The blood of the slaughtered babies of Bethlehem cries out against the diabolical hatred toward the infant Savior whom the world hated. Sadly, the world is now racing towards the fulfillment of YHWH's Word, his witnesses shall be slain and "they that dwell upon the earth shall rejoice over them and make merry and shall send gifts to one another" (Revelation 11:10).<sup>44</sup>

Christians and all who would follow the Elohim of Awraham, Yitzchak and Ya'akov, would do well to act upon Rav Shaul's teachings, a man of truth! "And have no commerce with the works of darkness which are unfruitful, but reject them" (Ephesians 5:11). Torah reminds us: "You shall not follow a multitude to do evil" (Exodus 23:2). Many think that Christmas isn't a big deal, even though they know it has pagan origins; but Mashiyach states, "That which is highly esteemed among men is abominable in the sight of Elohim" (Luke 16:15). Rav Shaul writes: "And be not conformed to this world; but be you transformed by the renovation of your minds: and discern you what is the good and acceptable and perfect pleasure of Elohim" (Romans 12:3). All children of Elohim have an obligation to love each other and warn each other against delving into pagan rituals, because this is not a light matter, it's impossible to serve two masters.

Circumcision

There are zealots of all religions who "demand a performance" of new converts so they can claim them as their followers. Little has changed in 2,000 years. In the days of the Shlichim circumcision was used as one of these elements of "performance." The Shlichim were clearly unified on the principle of circumcision but the application of when and why brought contention. There were fanatics who pushed for premature circumcision before the candidate understood the important elements of Covenant, while others felt all Gentiles had to be circumcised before they could be part of Mashiyach. Jeremiah 9 specifically states that circumcision in the flesh (because it is a local custom in Edom, Moab, Egypt) does not in itself satisfy Covenantal obligation with YHWH unless a person also lives an upright life which is what establishes his circumcision.

The very same, of course, can be said of "baptism" or "saying the sinners prayer"; both are utterly useless if a person does not turn from their sin and follow Mashiyach, but that's not what false religion tries to make us to believe. False religion has a "salvation pill" – cunningly devised fables that get people "saved" – but all false religions base their authority on one sort of theological elixir or another. There is little point in being circumcised or baptized unless a person demonstrates that the Ruach haKodesh is working in their heart and that they desire to conform their lives to Mashiyach, the Word of YHWH. It was on this simple and basic principle that all the controversy and confusion over circumcision was generated.

Rav Shaul taught that faith and intent of the heart determines whether or not a person is ready to be circumcised and walk in Torah. At no time did Shaul ever teach against either circumcision or Torah; however, he opposed the "traditions of the Pharisees" who demanded blind observance to their religious traditions. Rav Shaul required that Gentile converts be taught about Covenant and have clear understanding of what they were doing in relationship to YHWH and His Mashiyach because, to be expected to know and observe complex halakha at early stages of belief was unacceptable. Both the Pharisees and Netzarim taught that a person must study to develop their understanding and establish the intent in their heart before circumcision, rather than to blindly follow the wishes of others. Only a small group of zealots demanded immediate circumcision, which is something Rav Shaul clearly opposed.

It is very evident that Awraham received instruction before his circumcision, and he is the father of Faith for both Jews and Gentiles alike. Awraham was circumcised at age 99 after receiving the commandment directly from YHWH; therefore, each adult also must first be called and agree to enter into Covenant with YHWH. Awraham was counted righteous before he was circumcised because he had Faith to observe all that YHWH commanded. Based on this fact, those who are not as yet circumcised in the flesh but who fulfill and observe Torah, will judge those who are circumcised and know the scriptures well, but yet transgress against Torah. Torah has equal weight; no one can pick and choose what they wish to believe of the Scriptures and still hold themselves to be qualified enough to judge others. One could be physically circumcised (or baptized) and still be a thief, liar, adulterer, murderer, etc.

The whole key to understanding the matter of circumcision is to realize that religious tradition had distorted it into something far different from what YHWH intended. Most Christians tend to blow way out of context “circumcision is nothing” (1 Corinthians 7:19), as if that were the message Rav Shaul intended – which is a falsehood because the next part of the verse states, “neither is uncircumcision; but the keeping of Elohim’s commands.” In other words, those who have not been circumcised are no better off than those who are. So, even if neither group is keeping Torah, circumcision itself is still one of YHWH’s commandments. Paul says, “For in Mashiyach Y’shua, circumcision and uncircumcision are nothing, but faith is completed through love” (Galatians 5:6). He is most certainly not anti-circumcision, but he does speak of “faith that is completed through love,” which reveals the intent of the heart to act according to righteousness.

Rav Shaul makes it very clear that those who follow Mashiyach must also fulfill the steps of faith of our father Awraham. “For he received circumcision as the sign and the seal of the righteousness of his faith while in uncircumcision: that he might become the father of all them of the uncircumcision who believe; and that it might be reckoned to them also for righteousness: And the father of the circumcision; not to them only who are of the circumcision, but to them also who fulfill the steps of the faith of our father Awraham in (his) uncircumcision” (Romans 4:11, 12).

Being circumcised for justification is a moot point; every student of the Word knows this. But does this mean that non-Jews should be instructed not to be circumcised? No! If they desire to be circumcised they do it unto YHWH; if they choose not, then they choose not to be circumcised unto YHWH; so whether they get circumcised or not, they do it unto YHWH according to His Mashiyach. There is nothing in Scripture to suggest that a person should not get circumcised; however, when they do it, they must do so for the right reasons. Ironically, large numbers of Christians have their newborns circumcised for “health reasons” but most of these same Christians are against circumcision “as the sign and the seal of righteousness” of faith. The Christian world has had a very difficult time comprehending that the physical actions of obedience are to come after spiritual convictions (faith) are written upon the heart, and that physical actions of obedience guide the spiritual man away from carnal lifestyles.

“Now I say, that Y’shua the Mashiyach ministered to the circumcision in behalf of the truth of Elohim in order to confirm the promise (made) to the fathers; And that the Gentiles might glorify Elohim for his mercies upon them, as it is written: I will confess to you among the Gentiles, and to your name will I sing psalms. And again he said: Rejoice, you Gentiles, with His people. And again he said: Praise MASTER YHWH, all you Gentiles; (and) laud him, all you nations. And again Isaiah said: There will be a root of Jesse; and he that shall arise will be a prince for the Gentiles; and in him will the Gentiles hope” (Romans 15:8-12). There is certainly no division between Jews and Gentiles here. Instead, Paul makes it very clear that Mashiyach ministered to the circumcision and calls Gentiles to rejoice with “His people,” rather than hacking away at the Renewed Covenant and turning it into a license to sin or treating it as though it was originally given to Gentiles.

“What then is the superiority of the Jew? Or what is the advantage of circumcision? Much in every way. And first, because to them were entrusted the words of Elohim” (Romans 3:1, 2).

Romans 1:16; 2:9 and 10 also indicates that Jews were offered the Kingdom first, through the Covenant promise given to Avraham that carried on to Yitzak, Ya’akov and all the Children of Israel, through Faith. Clearly there is only one Kingdom that Gentiles could be grafted into.

“At that time YHWH said unto Joshua, Make thee sharp knives, and circumcise again the children of Israel the second time. And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at the hill of the foreskins” (Joshua 5:2, 3).

This act of circumcision in the Name of YHWH separated the Israelites unto YHWH: “And YHWH said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you. Wherefore the name of the place is called Gilgal unto this day” (Joshua 5:9).

There is only one way to roll away the reproach of paganism from Greco-Roman based Gentile Christianity, and it happens to be the same method as for Jews: Each one must put Faith in Mashiyach Y’shua and let the Ruach haKodesh, by Grace, write Torah upon the heart. By nullifying Torah, the Christian world has become as culpable of transgression as rebellious Israelites, the name “Christian” means to be “Christ-like” rather than simply calling oneself a: _____ (fill in the name of your denomination of choice).

Greek followers of Y’shua who were being trained up by his disciples, were caught between two opposite worlds. They could one day be invited to a bris milah (covenant of circumcision) party, and the next, attend a gymnasium event where their uncircumcised countrymen competed in the nude. Circumcision was detestable within Greek and Roman culture, so Jews who participated in the Greek games underwent operations to reverse their circumcision (epispasm). This simply turned these Jews into a laughing stock of those whom they imitated, but this same cultural status quo value also caused Greek-based Christianity to reject circumcision, and spawned theologies that suited their anti-circumcision culture. The Gentile Christians allowed worldly culture to influence their religious choices just as much as the Jewish world let religious traditions override the authority of the Word of YHWH.

Paul never discounted circumcision one bit, but he did enlighten people to the fact that circumcision comes after Faith, after a person believes, after they have made a lifestyle change: “And the father of the circumcision; not to them only who are of the circumcision, but to them also who fulfill the steps of the faith of our father Avraham in (his) uncircumcision” (Romans 4:12).

Avraham’s physical circumcision came some time after he believed and had faith, so it is with everyone else who puts their Faith in YHWH and His Mashiyach. While Rav Shaul never discounted physical circumcision, he clearly rejected false religious traditions that turned circumcision into a device to micromanage new converts. This principle also applies to forced baptism or conversion, which is a senseless and wicked thing to do to another human being. Nevertheless, circumcision came to be viewed as a “Jewish thing” rather than being honored as an act of Covenant faithfulness toward YHWH.

Circumcision by faith also has a prophetic future component:

“And the uncircumcised man child whose flesh of his foreskin is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from his people; he has broken my covenant” (Genesis 17:14).

Isaiah then says, “Awake, awake; put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city: for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean” (Isaiah 52:1).

Y’shua Mashiyach alludes to these garments in Matthew 22:11 “And the king entered to see the guests, and he saw a man there who was not wearing the attire of a wedding.”

Y’shua used this parable to teach about his return for his bride: The wedding is the Kingdom of Elohim being brought to Earth, and Tsiyon will don beautiful garments, which is referring to the righteousness of Mashiyach within the Kedoshim (Set Apart People).

Ezekiel also stated: “Thus says YHWH Elohim; No stranger, uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any stranger that is among the children of Israel” (Ezekiel 44:9).

These prophecies of Isaiah and Ezekiel will be fulfilled in the Millennium when Mashiyach will rule and reign and the whole Earth will shine with the Glory of Elohim, but it also contains a very clear directive for “the stranger,” not bloodline Israel, who will also be physically circumcised. Therefore, anyone who teaches an ultimatum against circumcision is clearly disparaging the Word of YHWH, the teachings of Y’shua and Paul, and the intent of Torah.

“My brothers, if I then preached circumcision, why was I persecuted? Why? Has the stake ceased to be an offense? Oh that those who are also troubling you would be expelled!” (Galatians 5:11-12)

If Paul had preached the “party line,” the Pharisees would have taken him back with open arms. But from the dawn of time – Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel and onwards – every soul on Earth has always been and is being judged according to the intent of the heart, and this will be consistent to the end of time. Neither is there any variance or shadow of turning within the intent of the Word of YHWH; but mankind has a propensity to judge Torah as being unjust or too burdensome when, in fact, it is man who is a burden to YHWH by thinking himself to be wiser, more modern and more refined than the giver of life. If someone, Jewish or Christian, chooses to be circumcised, it is between them and YHWH. It is not up to religious people to judge others or condemn them for what they feel is pleasing unto YHWH. The reality, of course, is that carnal man simply does what is pleasing to himself, and he seeks the Word of YHWH to endorse what is right in his own eyes.

The Renewed Covenant was given to the house of Israel and Judah (Jeremiah 31:31-34, Hebrews 8:8), but includes all who join; meaning the Renewed Covenant is not a “Jewish thing” only, nor is there a division between what Jews observe and what “Elohim Fearing” non-Jewish disciples of Y’shua observe. The Kingdom of Elohim is open for all to enter, and we are all called into His Kingdom on His terms, not ours.

Y’shua restored the Ancient Path spoken of in Jeremiah 6:16. The Brit Chadasha (Renewed Covenant) was offered by YHWH so that both Jew and Gentile can fully embrace Torah in Mashiyach. Unfortunately, this isn’t always easy because those living among Christians are persecuted for observing Torah and those living among Jews are persecuted for proclaiming Y’shua! Religion is comfortable but Truth demands sacrifice; nothing has changed in 2,000 years. The Shlichim/Apostles did not invite new converts for brit milah (covenant of circumcision) without first witnessing that the study-faith context and intent of the heart was established. There is no evidence in the Ketuvim Netzarim that the Shlichim prohibited circumcision of Gentiles; this would have presented an inequality between Jew and Gentile, which is simply not done in Mashiyach. In reality, the Covenant of circumcision was given to mankind as a sign in the flesh to also remind a person that they belong to YHWH and His Mashiyach.

Coequal of Elohim

“...who, as he was in the likeness of Elohim, deemed it no trespass to be the coequal of Elohim”
Philippians 2:6

The Greek reading of this verse (NASB) is: “Who did not regard equality with Elohim a thing to be grasped.” But why the difference? The answer is with what Catholic and Protestant churches would later call, “the mystery of the Trinity.” Greek almost seems to say: “I really can’t speak for Godhead issues.” Aramaic clearly says it is “not blasphemous” to grasp this truth. In reality, the divine component of Mashiyach must be understood in the context of the Tanakh. Paul is not “robbing” anything from the Truth which was in place long before his arrival; he declares the Truth which is from the beginning.

By the revelation given him and diligent study of the Tanakh, Paul knows well that Mashiyach is the “coequal of Elohim.” A very Torah-based concept. Some may counter: “You make a man out to be Elohim,” which is not “Jewish” – which is one of the very reasons Paul is considered apostate from Torah. But who are his critics? Obviously they are the Pharisees of old and their direct spiritual descendants this day, who deny Y’shua Mashiyach in the first place. It’s not the followers of Y’shua who made him out to be Elohim, but YHWH Who put the Spirit of Mashiyach into a human body. It is the omnipotence of the Almighty YHWH which is under attack by those who reject Y’shua as Mashiyach. Critics posture that the Father YHWH, who is ein sof (without end) cannot indwell a human being, but these critics are simply plying theological limitations upon YHWH’s omnipotence.

The issue shifts to not if YHWH could do this, but would He do this? In 134 places in the Tanakh, the Scribes (Masoretes) working under authority of the rabbinate removed the Name of YHWH and inserted “Adonai” in many places where the Name YHWH was directly pointing to Mashiyach! Rabbinical tradition was very “inconvenienced” by this very fact (in places like Psalm 110), so they rewrote many verses to suit their own religious traditions.

Aramaic and Greek both state that Y’shua came “in the image/appearance of the sons of men” (Phil. 2:7). This is a key point, as it shows that while Mashiyach appears as a man, he is not wholly like other men in all respects. Aramaic reads: “And He humbled himself and became obedient up to the point of death - the death of the stake. For this reason also Elohim exalted Him...” (verse 9). If this sounds familiar it should: “Of the travail of his soul he shall see to the full, even My servant who by his knowledge did justify the Righteous One to the many, and their iniquities he did bear. Therefore I (YHWH) will divide him a portion among the great, And he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he bared his soul unto death and was numbered with the transgressors; yet he bore the sin of many and made intercession for the transgressors” (Isaiah 53:11-12 1955).

Several Hebrew and Aramaic words, each with precise, discreet and subtly different shades of meaning, are uniformly translated into the generic English words “soul” and “spirit”. In this case Isaiah tells of the nefesh/naphshah (life force) that Mashiyach lays down. Obviously the divine attributes in Mashiyach (Isaiah 11:1-2) cannot die. This is important because Elohim can neither bleed nor perish, and yet a portion of Mashiyach is equivalent to YHWH.

Another important Scriptural guide is found here: “And they shall look upon Me (et) whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him as one mourns for an only son” (Zechariah 12:10). However, the JPS renders this verse, “they shall look upon Me because they have thrust him through,” which does violence to the Hebrew, so as to shore up their own traditional religious orthodoxy. Usage of et, as in “B’resheet bara Elohim hashamayim v’et ha’aretz; In the beginning Elohim created (et) the heavens and the earth” (Genesis 1:1). The key word et, acts as a direct object pointer; its purpose is to point to the part of the sentence that receives the action from another. In this case, the heavens and earth receive the action of their creation from YHWH. This is such a basic and consistent rule that in every other place et appears, the direct object is always pointing to the phrase after it as the receptor. Granted though in Genesis 1:1 et appears after heavens but before earth, because it is a compound structure (heavens and earth) and the pointer must in this case appear before the appearance of the latter term. Still, that minor oddity does not prevent JPS translators from telling us rightly where the heavens and earth are receiving their action from, nor does this difficulty arise in any of the several hundred other places in Scripture; however, this passage in Zechariah 12:10 is very controversial in their own eyes.

In Zechariah’s case, the placement of et leaves no doubt whatsoever that it is YHWH receiving the action of piercing, and yet they mourn for him (Mashiyach) as an only son! This fact alone clearly proves that YHWH is somehow pierced and yet He does not die, but it also shows that His son does! But then if the son can die how is he “equal” with YHWH who can never die? The answer lies in understanding the difference between “equal” in Aramaic and English. When we say “equal” we mean a sense of equivalence, such as  $2 + 2 = 4$ . However, to say “equal with YHWH" in this context does not mean identical but rather "of the same substance as Elohim." Water and ice have the same substance but they are not identical; neither does each one do the exact things of the other. Mashiyach is made up of the same "divine" nature as YHWH, but is given a subservient function by the very nature of the fact that he had become human. That is also why he can say "I am nothing without my Father" because without the divine component he is just as another man. This of course brings us back to Paul's description of Y'shua having the "likeness of men and was found in fashion as a man" (Phil. 2:7).

Conversion

"Truly I say to you, that unless you change and become like children, you will not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." Matthew 18:3

In the religious worlds much energy is put into conversion – becoming a Jew or Christian, or "converting" from one sect or denomination into another. Many are baptized, re-baptized and dedicated, re-dedicated and consecrated and initiated and given all manner of recognition by various peer groups as they jump through the "religious hoops" of whatever religion they have chosen. Unfortunately, many souls don't seem to realize that there is only one conversion that will ever matter when it comes to eternity, and that is to be converted from the carnal man into the spiritual man according to trusting in Y'shua Mashiyach.

Throughout Scripture the burden of change is upon Israel, not upon Heaven. In Matthew 18:3 Y'shua instructs us to change and become like children – teachable, forgiving and trusting. The inner man must change from his personal carnal agendas and be transformed into the "likeness of Elohim," which is a virtual impossibility unless a person has a spiritual relationship with Mashiyach. As in every healthy relationship both parties have unique qualities, experiences, gifts and abilities that they bring into a relationship and so it is that each one of us present ourselves to Mashiyach in a very unique way.

We are made in the "Image of Elohim" which means that there is a portion of the Master inside each one of us, and it is this "point of contact" that allows us to know we have changed and converted and passed from death to life in Mashiyach. It is, however, a fatal error to judge one's conversion on the merits of someone else's experiences or doctrines. Paul explains: "For we dare not value or compare ourselves with those who vaunt: but they, because they compare themselves with themselves are not wise" (2 Corinthians 10:12).

Perhaps you've noticed that your own soul doesn't cope well with religious formulas for "conversion" and, of course, this is because you were not created to fit into a man-made mold. If we were to remove all the external factors of conversion, we would be left only with a conversion into Perfection. The spiritual man is made in the Likeness of Elohim which is Mashiyach, and in this regard each person is called to be a mashiyach. Therefore, that Perfection we all look for in conversion is already planted within us, but we must first take hold of it and then walk in it.

Change is good, but Perfection is better because we are individually created by YHWH according to His Perfection. He will lead and guide. As Yochanan stated, "And you also, if the anointing which you have received from him remains in you, you need not that any one should teach you; but as that anointing is from Elohim, it teaches you all things; and it is true, and no falsehood is in it. And as it has taught you, remain you in Him" (1 Yochanan 2:27). In other words you are free in Mashiyach and don't need any "religious baggage," but not free to transgress against your own anointing that sustains your spirit being. Yochanan said: "And now, my children, remain you in him; that so, when he will be manifested, we may not be ashamed before Him, but may have an open countenance at His coming. If you know that he is righteous, you also know that whoever does righteousness is from Him" (verses 28, 29).

David's Master

"Therefore, if Dawid calls him Master YHWH, how is he is son?" Matthew 22:45

The Greek Kurios (Lord), and Adon/Adonai, (Master) can easily be applied to either Y'shua or YHWH; therefore, few scholars have noted that the Greek Kurios could mean YHWH in Matthew, and "human masters" in Mark and Luke, as referenced in the Aramaic Peshitta readings. Compare the Aramaic readings of Matthew 22:41-46; Mark 12:35-40; Luke 20:39-47: Notice that Mark and Luke say: "Dawid, calls Him 'my master'; so how is He his Son?" But in Matthew: "Dawid calls Him 'YHWH'; how is He his Son?" Both Mark 12:39 and Luke 20:39 read: Some of the scribes answered, "Teacher, You have spoken well." And they no longer dared to ask Him anything. Then He said to them, "How can they say that the Mashiyach is the Son of Dawid?" Matthew 22:41-42 reads: While the Pharisees were together, Y'shua questioned them, "What do you think about the Mashiyach? Whose Son is He?" "Dawid's," they told Him."

Compare the differences:

1. Luke says that Y'shua first silenced the Pharisees, and then asked his question. Matthew says that Y'shua first asked the question.
2. Luke and Mark do not provide the Pharisees' initial answer that Matthew includes. In other words Luke and Mark record Y'shua responding to the answer!
3. Luke writes "no one dared ask him anymore questions" at the beginning of the phrase.
4. But look at Matthew 22:45-46: "If, then, Dawid calls Him 'YHWH' how is He his Son?" No one was able to answer Him at all, and from that day no one dared to question Him anymore." Matthew puts "no one dared ask him any questions" at the end, not the beginning like the others. This is also how it has been translated into Greek. Which version of the story is correct? Both! They are providing accounts of different stages of the same exchange.
5. Mark does not record "no one dared ask him any questions" in his narrative. Some suggest that is because his writing style is much more abbreviated than the others; however, Mark frequently includes details that others don't: Matthew: "while the Pharisees were together". Mark 12:35: "while teaching in the temple". Luke: "while he taught the people in the temple".

Let's examine all three accounts:

Matthew 22: 41. "While the Pharisees were together, Y'shua questioned them, 42. "What do you think about the Mashiyach? Whose Son is He?" "Dawid's," they told Him. 43. He asked them, "How is it then that Dawid, inspired by the Spirit, calls Him 'Master' YHWH, for he said: 44. Master YHWH said to my master, 'Sit at My right hand until I put Your enemies under Your feet'. 45. "If, then, Dawid calls Him 'YHWH' how is He his Son?" (Refers to YHWH's part in Psalm 110.)

Mark 12: 35 "While teaching in the temple, Y'shua answered and said, How do the scribes say that the Mashiyach is the son of Dawid?" (Refers to Y'shua's part in Psalm 110.)

Luke 20: 39 "Some of the scribes answered, "Teacher, You have spoken well." 40. And they no longer dared to ask Him anything. 41. Then He said to them, "How can they say that the Mashiyach is the Son of Dawid? 42. For Dawid himself says in the book of Psalms: Master YHWH said to my master, 'Sit at My right hand 43. until I make Your enemies Your footstool.' 44. Dawid, then calls Him 'my master'; so how is He his Son?"

Mark and Luke: "Beware of the scribes, who want to go around in long robes..."

Matthew, Mark and Luke: "No one was able to answer Him at all, and from that day no one dared to question Him anymore.” Same conversation, same event, same day. But the questions are clearly addressed to the two different groups: Group 1, the Pharisees (Matthew); Group 2, the Scribes (Mark and Luke).

The Pharisees emphasize oral law (Matthew 23:1-2). The Scribes emphasize written law (Mark/Luke). Each group is addressed separately though they complement one another. Each group performs different roles within the same religious structure. Each group requires a unique approach. The questions began with the Pharisees. Y’shua asks, “What do you think about the Mashiyach? Whose Son is He?” Y’shua expects them to answer that Mashiyach is “the son of YHWH” as Zechariah 12:10 and many other verses in the Tanakh indicate. The answer provided by the Pharisees relates to the family line Mashiyach is from – which is Dawid – which is also true, but certainly not the whole answer. Then Y’shua quotes Psalm 110 and shows the Pharisees that Dawid knew Mashiyach was YHWH Himself! This not only involves Psalm 110 but also Psalm 2, 8:4-8, 97:7, etc. That is why Y’shua says in Matthew that Dawid spoke “under inspiration,” referring not only to Psalm 110. In this context, Y’shua uses MarYah, thus making the point that by being the Word (Psalm 33:6) that made everything (Psalm 33:6), Mashiyach is from YHWH’s mouth and therefore part of YHWH! So the question is how and why does Dawid provide such a full account of Mashiyach being YHWH, and yet Mashiyach is Dawid’s descendant (the human part of him)?

To the Pharisees he simply inquired of whose son Mashiyach is (as in Matthew 16); then after his dialogue with the Pharisees, Y’shua turns to the scribes to see how they’ll make out. But, Y’shua has a surprise; he takes the answer from the Pharisees and turns it into a question for the Scribes. “Why do they say he is the son of Dawid?” They are scribes after all, and they should know what Dawid wrote, shouldn’t they? So, Y’shua says in Luke, “why does Dawid say in the book of Psalms.....” Different group, different question; so this time Y’shua says, “Look people! In the Psalms of Dawid, it says that his master is his descendant!”

Consider also that the scribes give the same response as the Pharisees; they answer that Mashiyach comes from Dawid. But Y’shua (not YHWH) draws the Scribes into the Mari/human master part of the Psalm to make a separate point. That point is that all of Jewish culture points to the Father as the Master and the son/descendant (the word can mean either) as the servant, and yet Dawid calls his future descendant his Master. Y’shua wants them to tell him why. But it seems, all of a sudden they either don’t know or don’t remember? No, they knew the correct answer, but they found themselves in a very, very “tight spot”! The answer that every Jew knows, is that because the “son of Dawid” is destined to be an eternal and universal ruler (as the Psalms and nearly all the prophets indicate), his Eternity is superior to Dawid’s mortality, even though he is Dawid’s offspring. In addition, this is not the only time that Dawid takes a lower seat than his offspring.

The office of Mashiyach is superior to Dawid’s kingship, whether referring to the human or divine components. Mashiyach inherits Dawid’s throne and secures additional powers that Dawid could never have (Daniel 7:14, Revelation 3:21). Although Dawid’s descendants may look back to King Dawid and derive status and power from their ancestral relationship to him, here it works the other way around. Dawid is most certainly the anointed king of Israel, but his anointing with oil is itself a symbol of the type of power that was to manifest in Mashiyach at a later time (Isaiah 9:7, Luke 1:32)!

Let’s also remember that Dawid desired to build the Temple to YHWH, but YHWH would not allow him. Instead, the honor went to Dawid’s son Solomon who became even more prosperous and was also wiser than Dawid. Solomon represents a “type” of Mashiyach because he built the Temple. Regarding the building of the Temple, Solomon outdid his father just as Mashiyach outdoes his illustrious ancestor.

Y’shua says: “and now someone greater than Solomon is here” (Matthew 12:42). While most assume that this simply means that Mashiyach is wiser and more righteous than Solomon, there are also additional components regarding the way the Kingdom of YHWH is being manifested. Matthew 12:43-45 gives some context to this by providing a brief discussion about casting out demons, something that extra-Biblical legends give Solomon much credit for. One of the rabbinical legends suggests that Solomon used a “magic ring” to force demons to build the Temple! Others point out that the call Solomon received, even as a child, had to include matters of the spirit:

“Elohim gave Solomon wisdom and very great insight, and a breadth of understanding as measureless as the sand on the seashore. Solomon’s wisdom was greater than the wisdom of all the men of the East, and greater than all the wisdom of Egypt. He was wiser than any other man, including Ethan the Ezrahite - wiser than Heman, Calcol and Darda, the sons of Mahol. And his fame spread to all the surrounding nations. He spoke three thousand proverbs and his songs numbered a thousand and five. He described plant life, from the cedar of Lebanon to the hyssop that grows out of walls. He also taught about animals and birds, reptiles and fish. Men of all nations came to listen to Solomon’s wisdom, sent by all the kings of the world, who had heard of his wisdom” (1 Kings 4:29-34).

Legends aside, Scripture bears strong testimony of Solomon’s power to conquer unclean spirits; which was something “the men of the East and Egypt” were famous for. The fact that Y’shua speaks about casting out demons points to his superiority over Solomon, and by extension his father Dawid, in all manner of earthly and spiritual power. The scribes and Pharisees, however, are so focused on their Dawid-veneration, that they don’t recognize the true symbols and ranking that Dawid himself understood. Yet again Aramaic conveys the original meaning and nuances within Y’shua’s original language and culture. In this case, the Greek Kurios could mean either YHWH or Y’shua, which obscures the beauty that MarYah/YHWH clearly reveals.

Definition of Love

Although the Scriptures clearly define love, it has been given all manner of modern definition by various institutions and religions. Most souls think of love according to its attributes because love is rather difficult to define. Many Christians assert that “God is love” and one of the popular clichés is to “just love the Lord.” But the manner of how one “loves the Lord” brings up much opinion and debate, especially since Christians often teach a love that is quite the opposite of what Scripture teaches. For example, “And by this we know that we love the children of Elohim, when we love Elohim and follow his commandments. For this is the love of Elohim, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not burdensome. Because, whoever is born of Elohim overcomes the world: and this is the victory that overcomes the world, our faith” (1 John 5:2-4).

The definition of love is best understood through Mashiyach’s life and teachings: “If you love me, keep my commandments” (John 14:15); and, “He who has my commandments with him and keeps them, he is who loves me and he who loves me will be loved by my Father. And I will love him and reveal myself to him” (John 14:21); and, “If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept the commandments of my Father, and I abide in His love” (John 15:10).

Abiding in His love is clearly connected to “keeping the commandments.” The “commandments of my Father” always refers to Torah; and Y’shua taught that “if you love” him, you will keep the Commandments. In other words love has everything to do with Sanctifying the Name of YHWH, which means to Set His Name and His Word (Torah) apart from all other authorities.

Mashiyach Y’shua clearly kept the commandments of his Father, but yet only a tiny minority of Christians would even consider the importance of these same Commandments – even though the name “Christian” comes from the same root haMishchah (the anointing) which means to be “Mashiyach like.” Y’shua is the Word of YHWH, and about this Spirit of Mashiyach Moshe wrote: “And showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me, and keep My Commandments” (Sh’mot/Exodus 20:6); and, “Therefore you shall love YHWH your Elohim and keep His charge and His Statutes and His Judgments and His Commandments, always” (D’varim/Deut. 11:1).

There are dozens of places in Scripture where “love” is tied in with keeping the Commandments. Unfortunately, those Christians who truly “love the Lord” according to Scripture are labeled as Legalists and Judaizers for keeping the Commandments, and often encounter persecution from “the Church.” This is because in Christianity “love” is defined by status quo, so to be a good Christian each one must fashion their “love” according to the values of a core group or denomination. In recent times, many good, YHWH-fearing Christians have become ashamed to even be called “Christians” after being attacked by so many Christians for keeping the Commandments. Many opt instead to be labeled as “Believers” because they realize that love requires sacrifice, and that love is not a cerebral ideology that neglects the Commandments.

“And owe nothing to anyone; but to love one another. For he that loves his neighbor has fulfilled Torah. For this likewise, which it says: You shall not kill; nor commit adultery; nor steal; nor covet; and if there is any other commandment, it is completed in this sentence: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. Love does no evil to one’s neighbor because love is the fulfillment of Torah” (Romans 13:8-10). Rav Shaul is clearly teaching that these four Commandments are examples of how a person demonstrates love to their neighbor; this kind of love is the fulfillment of Torah. “For the entire Torah is properly understood in one Miltha (Word/Manifestation): ‘You will love your neighbor as you would yourself’” (Galatians 5:14). The many other definitions of love that lack the Commandments also lack the connection to Justice and Righteousness. Man’s interpretation of “love” often reverts to carnal instincts like anarchy, excess, sensuality, emotionalism etc.

The Brit Chadasha literally means Covenant Renewed, a “making new” of the Covenant of Love that YHWH had formerly established between Himself and his people. Although there is a change of priesthood in the Renewed Covenant, YHWH’s Word and Commandments remain eternal, love has never changed; if anything love has been magnified. “You have heard that it has been said that you should not commit adultery. But I say to you that all who that looks at a woman as lustfully at once has committed adultery in his heart” (Matt. 5:27, 28). Y’shua “raised the bar” but he also said, “And because of the growth of iniquity, the love of many will grow cold” (Matt. 24:12). Therefore, as the Commandments grow within the heart, true love will also grow. Love, therefore, is a voluntary and personal choice to do the right thing and keep the Commandments.

Joshua teaches that loving YHWH means “to walk in His ways and to keep His commandments”: “But take diligent heed to do the Commandment and the Torah, which Moshe the servant of YHWH charged you, to love YHWH your Elohim, and to walk in all His ways, and to keep His commandments, and to cleave unto Him, and to serve Him with all your heart and with all your soul” (Joshua 22:5). He declared “...as for me and my house, we will serve YHWH” (Joshua 25:15). To love YHWH means to keep His Commandments. There is no other substitute a person can make to demonstrate their love to YHWH or to each other, because true love is righteous; it is Set-Apart and does good towards YHWH and all of His creation. We are to become as “little children” who can put trust in Mashiyach and simply do what he asks, rather than be rebellious and find religious loopholes that make us feel better about breaking the Commandments.

“Consider how I love your precepts: quicken me, O YHWH, according to your lovingkindness” (Psalm 119:159). Love is a reciprocal giving and sharing that is based on being true to the Word of YHWH, and “great peace have they which love your Torah: and nothing shall offend them” (Psalm 119:165). Peace is established by love because love is the action of doing what is Right, Set Apart, Just and Good.

One of the greatest perversions accomplished against the Word of YHWH was to superimpose a false religious definition of love based on Church theology which, in the eyes of millions of Christians, has rendered the Torah null and void. The unpleasant realities of “Christian love” through the centuries have spoken volumes in times when “Christian nations” like Spain, Germany and Poland brought hatred upon Jews and other races or religions that were not “Christian.” Today members of the World Council of Churches are launching new crusades against the Jewish “occupation” of their homeland of Israel – the very lands YHWH gave to the Jewish people as an “everlasting possession” (Genesis 15:18); and from which He promised they would never again be removed (Amos 9:15).

Christian love is fashioned after “tolerance,” rather than temperance and self control and discipline and accountability to one another and the Word of YHWH. Crime and decadence has escalated in “Christian nations” like the USA that would embarrass Sodom and Gomorrah. Y’shua said that the land of Sodom would fair better than some cities that had the truth presented to them but rejected it (Matthew 11:23, 24). The United States claims to be led by “Christian” Presidents and approximately 65 percent of the nation claims to be Christian. The reality is that Christian America has one of the largest per capita crime rates in the world and twice the homicide and rape statistics of many European countries, under “Christian” leadership and “Christian” government.

What’s more, Christians have an extremely high divorce rate simply because Christianity has defined love according to man’s opinions. Most Christian leaders teach that Torah is taboo because “Jesus nailed it to the cross” and gave them the Commandment to love, so they teach carte blanche Torahlessness for the “forgiven.” Sin is hidden under “Christian grace” because the new “Christian definition” of love provides unlimited pardon of willful and repetitive sin. Religious “Christian” love is based on doublethink that replaces YHWH’s love with a religious tradition about love, but in reality this has desensitized people’s hearts to one another and to Mashiyach. In reality this kind of Christian love is tyranny because it is simply love of the status quo; it is certainly not love according to Mashiyach and the Set Apart Scriptures!

The prophet Daniel wrote, “And I prayed unto YHWH my Elohim, and made my confession, and said, O YHWH, the great and dreadful Elohim, keeping the covenant and mercy to them that love Him, and to them that keep His Commandments” (Daniel 9:4). Israel broke the Covenant that YHWH gave, just like Christianity is breaking the Renewed Covenant that is offered in Mashiyach. The Covenant is evidenced by an exchange of love between YHWH and His people, but it is incumbent upon mankind to love YHWH and to demonstrate love to others by keeping the Commandments. James wrote, “And if in this you fulfill the Torah of Elohim, as it is written, ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself,’ you will do well” (James 2:8). The majority of Christian theologians translate the word “fulfill” as “bring to an end” but it clearly means to bring to a reality, perform or do, as in a person’s duty to love their spouse by their actions, where the actions of love is love demonstrated. To fulfill Torah means to have the love of the Father dwelling within the soul, and this means to not only welcome His Commandments but to delight in them as obedient children.

“There is no love that is greater than this that a man lay down his life for the sake of his friends. You are my friends if you do all that I commanded you” (Yochanan 15:13, 14) Y’shua speaks according to the Spirit of YHWH in him rather than his own soul; therefore, “all that I commanded you” is specifically referring to Torah.

Deliverance

“The Spirit of MASTER YHWH is upon me and because of this, He has anointed me to declare hope to the poor. And He has sent me to heal the brokenhearted and to preach release to the captives and sight to the blind. And to free those who are oppressed (by the power of) forgiveness. And to preach the acceptable year of MASTER YHWH.” Luke 4:18, 19

Y’shua Mashiyach is quoting Isaiah 61 in this verse and revealing his awesome power to bring about true deliverance. This also contains a very powerful revelation of who Mashiyach is. Here’s the passage:

“To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of YHWH, that he might be glorified” (Isaiah 61:3).

Mashiyach brought forth beauty for ashes and replaced despair with hope. In this same chapter in Luke (verse 33) Y’shua is delivering a soul from an unclean spirit (demon), so that there is no mistaking his absolute power over the demonic. Millions of souls can and will testify to being delivered from oppression and torment by the power of Mashiyach. We can put our full and complete trust in Mashiyach Y’shua who epitomizes righteousness, goodness, fairness and wholeness with the greatest of love and compassion, and who brings great joy and comfort to our souls. Although we are able to experience tremendous peace and joy whenever we praise YHWH for what He has done through His Mashiyach, we are also called to be “trees of righteousness” which means that each one of us is responsible to co-labor in righteousness with Mashiyach.

Trees of righteousness refers to people of righteousness: “the trees of the field shall clap their hands” (Isaiah 55:12), “And all the trees of the field shall know that I YHWH have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish: I YHWH have spoken and have done it” (Ezekiel 17:24).

YHWH has planted His trees (souls) of righteousness all over the Earth. These are souls who are being formed in the Image of Elohim and who live according to righteousness rather than the pleasures of sin for a season. These souls are “trees of righteousness,” not spectators or vendors of righteousness, but a Kedoshim (Set Apart People) who practice and experience righteousness (the nature of Mashiyach) every day.

“I will greatly rejoice in YHWH, my soul shall be joyful in my Elohim; for He has clothed me with the garments of salvation, He has covered me with the robe of righteousness as a kahan (priestly dress), and as a bride adorns herself with her jewels” (Isaiah 61:10). The imagery of Mashiyach being covered with a robe of righteousness as priestly dress also applies to all who are “priests of Elohim and of his Mashiyach” (Rev 1:6; 5:10; 20:6) who are the Bride of Mashiyach.

A “bride adorns herself with jewels” is a picture of the Kehillath (congregation) of Mashiyach who wears precious jewels that depict the fruits of her righteousness. Mashiyach is clearly establishing a “righteous bride” who is known by her righteousness. “Come, I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb” (Revelation 21:9). “Let us rejoice and exult, and give glory to him: for the marriage supper of the Lamb has come, and his bride has made herself ready. And it was granted her to be clothed in fine linen, bright and clean: for fine linen is the righteousness of the Set Apart believers” (Revelation 19:7, 8).

This righteousness is set forth in Torah which is “deep extensive learning in righteousness.” “All Scripture that was written by the Spirit is profitable for instruction and for decisive refutation, and for correction, and for deep extensive learning in righteousness” (2 Timothy 3:16). Torah and Mashiyach are One Truth, and herein lies the basis of all deliverance; however, there are three basic perspectives of Torah observance:

Deliverance through Obedience

Obedience to the Word of YHWH is evidence of true deliverance. Mashiyach says that those who do not do the will of his Father will not partake of the Kingdom of Elohim (Matt. 7:21). The judgment of all peoples and nations is according to the same Standard which is revealed in the Word of YHWH and that the Set Apart believers obey: “And the temple of Elohim in heaven was opened; and the ark of His Covenant was seen in his temple: and there were flashes of lightning and thunders, and voices and an earthquake, and great hail” (Rev. 11:18). There is a clear and future judgment on the horizon. The ark of His Covenant contains all of the Ten Commandments that are to be “written upon the hearts” of YHWH’s people. Those who don’t have Torah written upon their hearts will not be able to excuse themselves by suggesting that “Jesus did it all for them” or that their Rabbi or Pastor promised them that they would be in heaven.

“For as the earth brings forth her bud, and as the garden causes the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so YHWH Elohim will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations” (Isaiah 61:11). YHWH says that He will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all nations; this is very clearly stated within the original Tanakh reference regarding the Renewed Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34). Therefore, it is clearly a great deception to think that a person is fully delivered from the clutches of the enemy while they continue to transgress against Torah. All sin is transgression of Torah (1 John 3:4); without Torah we wouldn’t know what constitutes sin (Romans 7:1-12).

There are plenty of indicators that point to the need for deliverance. The spiritual fruit within our souls, or lack thereof, is one good way in which to evaluate ourselves: “Love, joy, peace, kindness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control” (Galatians 5:22, 23). Each of these attributes manifest themselves within those who walk after the Spirit of Mashiyach. Many view these attributes as being relative to their current situation in life; yet others compare and judge their spiritual and emotional status against the rest of the populace. Unfortunately, the most popular attitude is to define spiritual fruits according to religious and cultural tradition rather than the Word of YHWH. Regardless as to how accurate the personal assessment of our needs, deliverance is something that we all require over the course of our lives. No one is immune or exempt; even Mashiyach endured temptation and manifold trials.

Deliverance is won when a person turns away from carnal habits and actively pursues righteousness, and this is also a good definition of Faith; this is beyond just belief or intellectual acknowledgement of righteousness or the knowledge of good and evil. If this were not the case, then Adam and Eve would never have been expelled from Gan Eden as their “knowledge” about the Tree of Life would have been sufficient to keep them in! Instead, it was their direct disobedience to YHWH, that changed their status. The fact remains that Adam and Eve’s story originates in the oldest part of the Tanakh, but their fall from grace because of their disobedience remains very much a current problem today and for the Good News writers! (Romans 5:12-21, 1 Corinthians 15:22, 45) So, if the earliest part of the Torah remains relevant, binding and in need of resolution for every current believer, how then can later parts of Torah become irrelevant? NO, it’s impossible, it can’t! The deliverance from sin that Adam and Eve experienced was through Mashiyach. Torah therefore details and elucidates elements of the Tree of Life and the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil that were birthed in Mashiyach!

Faith then brings a progressive desire to live righteously, which is clearly by inspiration of the Ruach haKodesh, which in turn brings harmony between YHWH and His Creation. Furthermore, as anyone with the most basic Hebrew and Aramaic understanding knows, there is a direct linguistic and prophetic linkage in Genesis 1 between “in the beginning/creation” (bereshit) and “covenant” (breet) and the verb for “to make” (bara) and “Son” (bar)!

Y’shua taught, “It is written that the Son of man does not live by bread alone, but by all the Words that proceed from the mouth of YHWH” (Matthew 4:4). It is obvious that mankind must live on this “bread” of the Word of YHWH (Deuteronomy 8:3). Y’shua declared that he as well as all of mankind are called and required to live by the “Words” of YHWH. This fact is also why Mashiyach was born in Beyt-Lechem (Bethlehem), or literally “the house of bread”!

The enemy attempts to micro-manage souls into doing his bidding; therefore, it is imperative to remember that Torah sets the Standard by which all flesh shall be judged. Torah observance protects us from becoming prey for the enemy. Although many religious people may claim that Torah observance “doesn’t matter,” the evidence shows that lack of trust, faith and disloyalty towards the Word of YHWH is what is waging war against the Unity of the Body. Those who say it “doesn’t matter” are simply relying on their own religious traditions to carry them through. But Mashiyach says, “All who loosen, therefore, from one (of) these small commandments and teach thus to the sons of man, will be called little in the Kingdom of Heaven, but all who do and teach this will be called great in the Kingdom of Heaven. For I say to you that unless your righteousness exceeds more than that of the scribes and the Pharisees, you will not enter the Kingdom of Heaven” (Matthew 5:19, 20).

Lies, Procrastination and Rebellion

We could examine a host of indicators, but lies, procrastination and rebellion are clearly normatives of the carnal flesh. It appears many souls will go through their entire life lying to themselves and others, procrastinating and rebelling against YHWH, while at the same time believing themselves to be “saved.” The problem is, all form of rebellion is protected by pride. The individual may think him or herself to be loving, generous and caring, but if they are ever confronted about lying, not keeping their word, or procrastination and rebellion against Mashiyach, they often indict the messenger instead of examining the status of their own souls. Y’shua said, “The spirit is ready but the body is weak” (Matthew 26:41). Therefore when we recognize the need for change but realize we don’t have the power to do it on our own, we must realize we’re in immediate need of deliverance. Some people are wise enough to get on their knees right now and change, but most will lie to themselves and procrastinate. Y’shua said, “But if your eye should be evil, all your body will be darkness. If therefore, the light that is in you is dark, how much your darkness will be!” (Matthew 6:23) In other words, when deliverance is needed we often have no idea of the severity of the problem. If there is darkness then how much darkness? Often when a person begins to root out the darkness (hidden rebellion) they discover much more than they realized. Darkness is a constant; where there is no light there is immediate darkness. However, the good news is that darkness flees when light shines into hidden areas of the soul.

A very simple and logical way to defeat darkness is to welcome the light and focus on the Truth – but what is Truth? Y’shua says, “Father sanctify them by your Truth, for Your Word is Truth” (Yochanan 17:17). Y’shua also says that his word will judge all those who reject him (Yochanan 12:48). Mashiyach is the Standard; therefore, when the Spirit begins to convict us of sin (like lies, procrastination and rebellion) we can distinguish between the carnal man who is lazy to make change, and the spiritual man who has unlimited resources to change and become like Mashiyach. It is also very helpful to have others who are mighty in Scripture and full of the discernment of the Ruach haKodesh to bear witness for our spiritual nature and against our carnal nature.

The Power of Belief

Each soul must believe that YHWH exists and that He rewards those who seek Him (Hebrews 11:6). This is a beautiful discipline and promise that Rav Shaul takes directly from Torah: “But if from thence you shall seek YHWH your Elohim, you shall find him, if you seek him with all your heart and with all your soul. When you are in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, even in the latter days, if you turn to YHWH your Elohim, and shall be obedient unto his voice; For YHWH your Elohim is a merciful Elohim; He will not forsake you, neither destroy you, nor forget the covenant of your fathers which he swore unto them” (Deuteronomy 4:29, 31). Seeking YHWH with all your heart and soul means to obey His Torah and put trust in Him alone.

Notice that this promise extends into the “latter days” which are the days in which we are now living.

With Faith all things are possible, as Y’shua said: “...if you are able to believe anything is possible to be for him who believes” (Mark 9:23). “By faith Enoch was translated and did not taste death...” (Hebrews 11:5). Faith is the action of “entering in” to the Word of YHWH. “So shall My Word be that goes forth out of My Mouth: it shall not return unto Me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in that which I sent it” (Isaiah 55:11). The Word of YHWH Elohim “quickens the dead and calls those things which are not, as if they were” (Romans 4:17). Therefore, we must think, speak and pray according to the authority of the Word of YHWH, regardless of what “the world” might send our way; this is how “the blind see, the lame walk, the deaf hear, the dead are raised and the poor are given hope” (Matthew 11:5). By Faith we can see things according to YHWH’s assessment and then respond to the Word of YHWH with obedient expectation. This is evidence of true deliverance. We must never look at others for what only Mashiyach can provide, and not compare ourselves to others or expect things from others that belong to the hand of YHWH, “But when Y’shua heard, he said to them, The healthy are not in need of a doctor, rather those that are badly afflicted” (Matthew 9:12).

Dispersion

The dispersion of the Twelve Tribes extends throughout all manner of geography, culture and religion. Those from the northern ten tribes of Israel “feared YHWH, and served their graven images, both their children, and their children’s children: as did their fathers, so do they unto this day” (2 Kings 17:41). This is why we find evidence of “Jewish synagogues” that also adopted sun worship and paganism while retaining a “Jewish” identity. The dispersion has also caused many Jews to continue to forsake the Ancient Paths spoken of by Jeremiah and the prophets of YHWH.

The majority of Jews today have adopted lifestyles that are acceptable to their local pagan (or secular) cultures, wherever they reside. “And I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you: and your land shall be desolate, and your cities waste. Then shall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lies desolate and ye be in your enemies’ land; even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths. As long as it lies desolate it shall rest; because it did not rest in your sabbaths when ye dwelt upon it” (Vayikra /Leviticus 26:33-35).

There are numerous examples of Hellenized Jewish groups who feel the importance of retaining a “Jewish” identity within various religious labels. Jews for Jesus is just one of many examples. Even the name, “Jews for Jesus” is often received in an offensive manner by Jews because of what Christians have done against the Jewish people “in the name of Jesus.” Ultimately YHWH is our Savior; what it comes down to within Jewish-Christian debate, is a difference of opinion on how YHWH saves His people. As Netzarim we proclaim that the promises in Tanakh have been and will be fulfilled by Y’shua of Nazareth, but to imply that the rest of Jewry is against Y’shua (the true Mashiyach) is very problematic, even when taking into account centuries of acrimonious history. No Jew would deny that righteous Israelite men and women have been raised up by YHWH to give us the benefit of their wisdom, character and examples for better living. To the extent then that it can be proven that Y’shua observed Torah and kept the sacred days—and this extent is tremendous—no Jew could respectfully be “against” every single thing he said and did. However, Jews for Jesus teach that Jews must convert to Christianity to be “saved.” The Jews for Jesus organization spurns Torah lifestyles and they live in such a manner as to be fully accepted in Christian Sunday churches.

As most other Christo-Pagan based institutions, the Jews for Jesus organization touts the Christian doctrines as the way to “salvation.” They view Netzarim Jews as “Legalists” and “Judaizers” and do not subscribe to being conformed to Mashiyach through Torah observance. As in other post-Constantinian Christian traditions, salvation is offered through the Jews for Jesus organization to those who say a “sinners’ prayer” and the candidate for “salvation” must agree that their “doctrine of salvation” is truth in order to get “saved.” In effect, Jews for Jesus are simply token Jews who endorse Marcionite and Constantine Christianity, but who prefer to retain a veneer of “Jewish” identity. These kind of tactics, which are surely not confined to just JFJ, are part and parcel of what some Netzarim refer to as “Greeks in Jewish clothing.”

On the other end of the spectrum are the Reform and Conservative Jewish movements. The Reform Jewish Movement is the largest Jewish movement today which is comprised of various splinter groups. Some of these, such as the Reconstructionists, appear to be focused on a feel-good, self-deterministic humanism for Jews, but relationship to YHWH’s covenant is greatly de-emphasized as stated in the following excerpts from www.jrf.org:

“Many people have come to reject God because they understand God as a being that can break the laws of nature and act like a person. Reconstructionism rejects those ideas about God, as have many Jewish philosophers over time. Reconstructionism has offered many people who previously rejected God a renewed possibility of belief as they have been exposed to different conceptions of God.”

“But some Jews will continue to reject even a reconstructed idea of God. It is possible to feel committed to Jewish values without believing in God. Throughout the ages, God has been the source of the commandment for us to create a just and fair world. But it is certainly possible to feel committed to a better world without connecting the source of that commitment to God... Reconstructionism has stressed belonging over believing when it comes to Jewish identity. Belonging to a group with common commitments, culture and memories has given us a valuable sense of peoplehood and mission that has power regardless of what we believe about God.”

“There are indeed many similarities between Reconstructionism and Reform Judaism as it is currently practiced. In their attitude toward halakhah as tradition rather than as binding law, in their belief in equality between women and men, in their acceptance of gays and lesbians in all aspects of the life of the congregation, and in their inclusion of intermarried families, Reform Judaism and Reconstructionism have taken a stand together as the most progressive elements in Jewish life.”

“Reconstructionists prefer to think of Judaism as a living, ever-growing way of life. This means that Jews today do not practice their religion the same way that Jews did even 100 years ago, let alone farther back in time. Those who currently consider themselves the guardians of halakhah for the most part refuse to acknowledge this process, and instead look at Jewish law as a rigid, unchanging body of laws.”

“People choose their practices based on their study of holy text, of history, and on the basis of their own personal values and their community’s practices. Reconstructionists feel that decisions about how to practice religion as a community should be made by the community, and that personal religious decisions are best left to the individual, in connection with Jewish tradition and with others in the community. Certainly Reconstructionists strive to be dedicated, educated, and practicing Jews, and that’s what’s important.”

Reform Judaism and Reconstructionism weigh in on identity and belonging, where Jews can collectively define God according to the traditions of modern secular culture. In this manner, Jews rely on humanism, relativism and materialism while “belonging” together with other Jews who also elevate similar worldly values and ideals. In other words these Jewish institutions clearly recognize their physical Jewish ancestry but define the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in a way that is pleasing their modern thinking.

Moving on, the Conservative Jewish Movement is the “modernization” of Orthodox Judaism whereas Orthodox Judaism has its origins with the Pharisees of Y’shua’s day. None of these groups are all too interested in what the Tanakh (Torah-Prophets-Writings) or the B’rit Chadasha (Renewed Covenant) actually teaches, as they put their own authority (commentaries and traditions) on an equal footing with Scripture (Tanakh). Two thousand years ago Y’shua addressed this matter in Matthew 15:1-20 and 23:13-33, while also admitting Pharisaic authority elsewhere when they use Torah in proper isolation (Matthew 13:52, 23:1; Mark 12:28-34, John 7:19). A few centuries later we would see these Pharisaic excesses crystallize in places like Rambam’s Introduction to the Mishnah, which states: “If there are 1000 prophets, all of them of the stature of Elijah and Elisha, giving a certain interpretation, and 1001 Rabbis giving the opposite interpretation, you shall incline after the majority and the law according to the 1001 Rabbis, not according to the 1000 venerable prophets...Elohim did not permit us to learn from the prophets, only from the Rabbis who are men of logic and reason.” Since this diglot also notes excesses on the Roman Catholic side, the Jewish version of the same thing can hardly escape notice either.

Another case in point from “The Torah: A Modern Commentary,” W. Gunther Plaut, p. xviii, xxiii (1981, Union of American Hebrew Congregations) reads: “Moses...had...nothing to do with the writing of the complete Torah. His name was attached to it as author at the time of the book’s canonization. This whole analysis is vigorously disputed by those who attempt to show that Moses was indeed the author. They consider much or all higher literary criticism as erroneous and some of its foundations as infected by Christian bias.”

So if Jews feel they invented Torah, then Jews can also rewrite it to suit their modern purposes. But of course that would mean that if Jews invented Torah, then they would have invented Mashiyach also! This is a very integral part of “the dispersion” as it depicts the new gods which many Jews are following, but all these “gods” have one thing in common, they trash torah and speak evil against Mashiyach. But let’s not pick on Jews only, here’s what the Vatican has to say about the authority of “biblical texts”:

“Fundamentalism also places undue stress upon the inerrancy of certain details in the biblical texts, especially in what concerns historical events or supposedly scientific truth. It often historicizes material which from the start never claimed to be historical... Fundamentalism likewise tends to adopt very narrow points of view. It accepts the literal reality of an ancient, out-of-date cosmology, simply because it is found expressed in the Bible; this blocks any dialogue with a broader way of seeing the relationship between culture and faith. Its relying upon a non-critical reading of certain texts of the Bible serves to reinforce political ideas and social attitudes that are marked by prejudices -- racism, for example -- quite contrary to the Christian gospel.” (The interpretation of the Bible in the Church (Rome: Libreria Editrice Vaticana, 1993), pp.71-72.)

Rabbinical Judaism has been saying all along that their traditions are more authoritative than Torah! Catholics have been saying all along that they’ve got an “infallible pope” (a man)! So neither institution feels an imperative need to follow the Word of YHWH as their authority! The nature of the dispersion was prophesied that Israel will experience and absorb everything the nations have to offer, including all forms of paganism and humanism; “And YHWH shall scatter you among the nations, and you shall be left few in number among the heathen, whither YHWH shall lead you. And there you shall serve gods, the work of men’s hands, wood and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell” (D’varim/Deut. 4:26-28). The work of men’s hands has produced Rabbinical Judaism and Catholicism, but of course there are also the greater gods, a.k.a. “movie stars”, “sports figures”, “athletes” and “rich business figures” that many religious people venerate; and lesser gods, a.k.a. palatial homes, planes, trains, automobiles and luxury vacations which are the center of worship, attention and conversation for many. The aforementioned gods are fashionably dressed in intellectualism, relativism, syncretism, humanism, evolution and, of course, religion. Materialism is a popular deity for many Christians and Jews who assert that either God (or Chance) has given them many wonderful blessings. Most religious folks see YHWH's everlasting righteousness (Psalm 119:142) as impartial, old or embarrassingly unfair; hence, the need to devise a new "god" according to their own higher criticism that allows a favorable comparison with all the rest of the modern "isms".

Although the dispersion appears to have sent the ancient Israelites into oblivion, most Jews already have a good idea that they can run, but they can't hide from YHWH. Jews have taken everything the pagan or humanistic world has to offer and turned it to their advantage. Jews are known for remarkable achievements in all sectors of human endeavor and have clearly refined and defined the best and the worst things on the planet. YHWH has released His people Israel to penetrate deep into the soil of the nations, for a purpose. The dispersion has been established for Mashiyach's sake; it is now a universal consequence and nobody can reverse it. Israel's "dispersal" into Egypt was only a type of what has happened to the Jewish people over the last two and a half millennia, but there is a mystery element to the dispersion according to the Word of YHWH.

The world is heading into the big storm and the when ship appears to be going down, Mashiyach ben David will reveal the next "Jonah" (dove) as both scapegoat and deliverer. The grand finale is found in Revelation but YHWH's response to His people is, "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him" (Hoshea 14:4), but of course this comes at a great cost. In another place, "YHWH has appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved you with an everlasting love: therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee" (Jeremiah 31:1). Just as YHWH was "forgotten" by the Israelites in Egypt so is He forgotten today by the "educated" masses who "say in their heart, YHWH will not do good, neither will he do evil" (Zephaniah 1:12).

The dispersion was prophesied to be for a finite period of time so, "Hear the word of YHWH, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd does his flock" (Jeremiah 31:10).

Divine Communication

Most believers communicate with Shemayim (heaven), in one way or another, throughout the day. Whether through prayer or just simple silence, we are "testifying" with the thoughts and choices we make; and, whether we realize it or not, every choice affects our relationship with Mashiyach. What we choose to eat, wear, think and do is neither isolated nor irrelevant to the Malchut (Kingdom of) Elohim. Whom we choose as our friends and what we talk about and plan for is all done on the platform of our world view and relationship with YHWH. Each of us is very precious in YHWH's eyes and, just as a loving father or mother who is enthralled with a precious son or daughter, our Heavenly Parent provides counsel and wisdom to those of us who have "ears" to hear.

It is therefore very wise to question everything, to test all things and prove all things – and, most importantly, to hold fast to what is true and become a person of truth. Yet the prophets have warned us, "How do you say, We are wise, and the Torah of YHWH is with us? Lo, certainly in vain made he it; the pen of the scribes works falsehood. The wise men are ashamed, they are dismayed and taken: lo, they have rejected the Word of YHWH; and what wisdom is in them?" (Jeremiah 8:8,9) Whatever we read in the Word of YHWH must also be confirmed in our neshama (spirit). We must be open to instruction into our spirits through the Ruach haKodesh and live in favor of the Word of YHWH, instead of allowing wishful or fearful thinking simply because we feel like a small minority in the grand scheme of things. YHWH's Ruach speaks to us as we meditate on His Word and, whether we realize it or not, we all respond – either positively or negatively – through our thoughts and the intents of our hearts.

Whenever we find the Word confusing and difficult to understand it is because our own spirits have not been trained to enter in. It is then that we must realize the need to apply our hearts, minds and souls to listen and hear and DO the Word of YHWH in order to understand. Y'shua taught, "He who desires to do His will can comprehend my teaching, if it is from Elohim, or if from my own will I speak" (John 7:17). When a person believes enough in themselves that YHWH created each one for greatness and purpose then the burden of change rests in choosing to "do His will" rather than being conformed to the modern world's values.

Much confusion occurs when trying to study Scripture through the intellect, when in fact, we needed to listen and apply YHWH's Word which is written upon our hearts (Jeremiah 31:31-34). The door to the heart is love and by demonstrating love to YHWH we establish a bond with the Father. When Y'shua said "If you love me, keep my Commandments" (John 14:15), he was speaking in the Spirit of YHWH; therefore, the most powerful way to open up the lines of communication between us and "heaven" is to begin to keep the Commandments.

Perhaps you or someone you know is asking YHWH to reveal His Perfect will for their lives. At this point we can tell them something they will rarely, if ever, hear from the pulpits or magazines: When we choose to be obedient, Torah observant believers in Messiah, YHWH will hear our prayers. If not, then our words will fall on deaf ears: "The foolish shall not stand in Thy sight: You hate all workers of iniquity" (Psalm 5:5). There is no need to be frustrated if one cannot "hear from heaven." When or if you believe you have heard from heaven, it is far better to ask YHWH about what you thought you heard, instead of soliciting the opinions of others. Many actually do hear from YHWH but shut out His voice when their Rabbi or Pastor, family members or friends speak against YHWH's Word.

Divine communication opens to us when we repent of breaking YHWH's Torah and return to Him and enter into His Kingdom. It is only after we finally decide to open our hearts to Torah (not religion) and order our lives according to His Word that we are able to enter into a dialogue with Heaven and can begin to understand the deep and everlasting love He has for all His Creation. There can only be one singular supreme all-knowing authority Who has an absolute interest in perfect justice, and that Authority is YHWH. The reason that mankind was created with free choice, was to allow each one of us to individually sanctify (Set Apart) the Name of YHWH and (many believe) to replenish the spiritual beings who turned away from YHWH to join the rebellion against Heaven. The Word of YHWH (Torah) is the book of Life that draws the spirit of man to the Spirit of Mashiyach. Truth harmonizes all things and satisfies the most difficult of questions about our connection to YHWH.

YHWH knows each one of us far better than we know ourselves. As we approach Mashiyach we can easily recognize both our failings and our unlimited potential in Him. YHWH has "breathed" a unique spirit into each of us; this is YHWH's gift and will to impart Himself into His Creation.

Humankind has approximately 6,000 years of cumulative intelligible experience recorded in Scripture and through archeological and historical records. Our generation can look back to the cause and effect of human choice and how the decisions of our ancestors helped shape us and our world into who and what we are today; but each soul in every generation has the power of choice regardless of what our forefathers have chosen. If we put away all religious ideas about YHWH and simply do what He requires, we will most certainly each discover manifold profound experiences in the Divine: "He has shown you, O man, what is good; and what YHWH requires of you, to do justly and to love mercy, and to humble yourself to walk with your Elohim" (Micah 6:8). The fact of the matter is when we humble ourselves, and seek YHWH and keep His Commandments, many other people will seek to humble us even further. They will scorn, mock and ridicule us for our Faith causing us to either continue choosing "the narrow door and straight road" that leads to life, or to decide to follow the multitudes to destruction....

Divine communication is not some “super spiritual” experience as postured by some, but about being humble and obedient: “For the worship that is pure and set apart before Elohim the Father, is this: to visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction; and: that one keep himself unspotted from the world” (James 1:27). The world is the carnal world of religion and entertainment, the lust of the flesh, pride of life, paganism, materialism, relativism and humanism – those things which have no part in eternity. We make ourselves available to YHWH by completely rejecting the fallen world, Babylon the Great, which promotes the Mystery of Iniquity.

Can you hear from Heaven? Yes you can; the choice is yours! YHWH demonstrated the most extravagant love possible by sending Mashiyach Y’shua so that Heaven would open to all who seek Divine Communication through His Spirit. This is the Kingdom Offer that Mashiyach holds out all who accepts his offer and repents and turns to Him and is obedient to His Commandments.

Divinity Passages

Whether you follow Orthodox Judaism, or Messianic, or Christian perspectives regarding the nature and office of Mashiyach, here’s something to consider. Even though some of the greatest contentions in these religions is centered on the divinity of Mashiyach, it’s also possible that they can all be correct. Many Orthodox Jews do not acknowledge Y’shua as Mashiyach simply because they learned about Jesus from the classic anti-Torah Hellenized perspective that was born in pagan Greek mythology. Orthodox Jews believe Y’shua was put to death for blasphemy on the grounds that he made himself out to be YHWH. The Orthodox Jewish community also believes that it’s impossible for the flesh of anyone (including Mashiyach) to be YHWH and from Genesis to Revelation the Hebrew and Aramaic Scriptures clearly prove they are correct, flesh is flesh and spirit is spirit.

However in Yochanan 1:14 we read “And the Miltha became flesh and dwelt among us...”:

וּמִלְתָּא בָּסְרָא הָוָא וְאַגֵּן בִּין

The footnote on the word Miltha clearly explains that the physical flesh of Y’shua is not the Miltha (Word of YHWH), but the manifestation of the Ruach haKodesh is YHWH within Y’shua.

It is not difficult to imagine how Greek culture influenced early Greek Christians into believing that a “spirit being” could transform himself into human flesh. One of the elements of paganism is that their gods came to earth and became part god and part human. However Y’shua teaches, “The thing, which is born from flesh, is flesh, and the thing, which is born from spirit, is spirit.” (Yochanan 3:6)

Unfortunately, the New Testament was translated by those who lived outside a Torah based culture and by those who had not entirely abandoned paganism, neither had they a mature intellectual understanding of Torah. This resulted in verses such as: “God (theos) was manifest in the flesh” (1 Timothy 3:16 KJV) becoming proof for the majority of Christians today that Jesus had divine flesh. The original verse in Aramaic reads; “And truly great, is this mystery of righteousness which was revealed in the flesh and righteous in the spirit...”. Yes indeed, a mystery of righteousness was revealed in the flesh of one very important human being.

The majority of Christians believe that “Jesus is God” which may also be correct within Torah, if understood and explained within the context of Torah. The anointing (mishcha) of Y’shua by the Ruach haKodesh is uniquely differentiated in the Tanakh by the office of Mashiyach (Messiah) as the Son of Elohim, let’s first examine Scriptures in Tanakh that elucidate us about the office of Mashiyach.

1) Genesis (B'resheet) 1:1-3; to begin with we need to understand how Mashiyach was revealed through the Alef Tav, please consult the first appendix entitled Alef Tav for this first witness.

2) Exodus (Shemot) 23:20-21

הִנֵּה אֲנִי שֹׁלֵחַ מַלְאָךְ לִפְנֶיךָ לְשַׁמְרֶךָ בְּדֶרֶךְ וְלְהַבִּיאֲךָ אֶל־הַמָּקוֹם אֲשֶׁר הִכֵּנִתִּי

Behold I am going to send a Messenger before your face to guard and keep you along the way and bring you that I have prepared for you.

הַשָּׁמֶר מִפְּנֵיו וְשָׁמַע בְּקוֹלוֹ אֶל־תִּמְרָוּ בּוֹ כִּי לֹא יִשָּׂא לְפָשַׁעְכֶם כִּי שְׁמִי בְּקִרְבּוֹ

Be on your watchful guard in his presence and hear and obey his voice. Do not disobey him for he will not pardon your skirting around (My) commands because My Name is in him.

Here we discover that this “Messenger” is utterly unique in Scripture. Since no heavenly messenger has the authority to forgive sin, there is no need for YHWH to warn that such forgiveness would not be forthcoming directly from that Messenger unless that same Messenger otherwise had this authority. In the Renewed Covenant we are told the Son’s name is superior to all other messengers. This must then be derived directly from this Torah passage because no messenger in Tanakh had YHWH’s Name directly, but merely His title of El (RaphaEL, UriEL, MichaEL, etc.) and this one has Yah in his name directly, the same Name that has the power to redeem all men (Acts 4:12).

3) Numbers (Bemidbar) 23:19

לֹא אִישׁ אֶל וִיכֹזֵב וּבִנְאָדָם וִיתְנַחֵם הֵהוּא אָמַר וְלֹא יַעֲשֶׂה דְבָר וְלֹא יִקְמְנָה

El is not a man that He should be false; nor a son of man that He should reconsider.

Has He said and not made it happen or spoken and had it not be established?

Here is one of the greatest clues in all of Tanakh that pertains to the office of Mashiyach. YHWH is literally not a man or the son of man—so the Son cannot be the Father! And yet, in Genesis 18 and 19 it is clear that of the three Messengers that visit Abraham, one of them is actually YHWH Himself. So if YHWH chooses to look like a man, He literally is not a man but merely the appearance of one. That doesn’t mean however that Y’shua the Son was not really a man—which is Gnostic heresy. In Y’shua’s case he was a human being—the only one—prophesied to have YHWH’s spirit to dwell completely within him but side by side and separate from his humanity.

It is also critical to make the distinction between Christian-speak statements like “Jesus is LORD” and actual New Testament statements that YHWH is Y’shua the Mashiyach—those are two different things. The former suggests that a man with one of the three most common names in ancient Israel can as a human be the equal of YHWH, and therefore is idolatry. The latter is that YHWH willed, prophesied and actualized His Ruach within the Only Begotten, as was foretold in Isaiah 11:1-2 and Zechariah 12:10 and many other verses.

4) Numbers (Bemidbar) 24:17

אֶרְאֶנּוּ וְלֹא עָתָה אֲשׁוּרֵנּוּ וְלֹא קָרוֹב דֶּרֶךְ כּוֹכֵב מִיַּעֲקֹב וְקֵם שֹׁבֵט

מִיִּשְׂרָאֵל וּמַחֵץ פְּאֵתִי מוֹאֵב וְקָרַךְ כָּל־בְּנֵי־יִשְׁת׃

I see him, but not now. I behold him, but not close by.

A star shall come forth from Ya’akov.

A scepter shall rise up from Israel and shall crush the forehead of Moab and tear down all the sons of chaos (Sheth).

This very unique “star” comes forth from Ya’akov, or more precisely, the heavenly counterpart of Ya’akov comes down to inherit the scepter of Judah. This reference is clearly about the Son of Yah who comes down from heaven, for whom Proverbs 30:4 asks, “what is His Name and what is the name of His Son?”

וַיֵּצֵא חֹטֶר מִגֹּזֵעַ יֵשׁוּ וַיִּצְרֹךְ מִשָּׁרְשָׁיו יִפְרֶה:

Then a twig will spring forth from the stock of Jesse and a branch from his roots will bear fruit.

וְנָחָה עָלָיו רוּחַ יְהוָה

The Ruach of YHWH will rest on him:

רוּחַ חָכְמָה וּבִינָה

The spirit of wisdom and understanding;

רוּחַ יֵצֶה וּגְבוּרָה

The spirit of counsel and power;

רוּחַ דַּעַת וִירְאָת יְהוָה:

The spirit of knowledge (and) reverence for YHWH,

וְהִרְיָחוּ בִּירְאָת יְהוָה

And he will delight in the reverence for YHWH.

It would be beyond foolish for anyone to claim that Isaiah's teaching is pagan since he proclaims seven spirits of YHWH! Each of these attributes come from YHWH and they rest in Mashiyach. These attributes are not separate "gods" any more than the man who is prophesied to have YHWH's Ruach dwell bodily, yet separately inside him!

מִי הָאֱמִין לְשִׁמְעַתְנוּ יְהוָה עָלֵמִי נִגְלָתָה

Who has believed our report?

And to whom has the arm of YHWH been revealed?

Here's that part of Isaiah 53 that actually has not been debated "into the ground" by Christians and Jews. Nevertheless, the Netzari perspective is differentiated from both schools. The arm of YHWH is a metaphor that, by direct reference here, will simply be rejected by Isaiah's people who won't believe the report—or Gospel. As a result, this verse clearly tells us that whomever Israel popularly proclaims as Mashiyach cannot be the right guy, as history has more than proven over the past two millennia.

But within these few words is also a wealth of magnificent information. If we consider our own limbs and their relationship to the rest of our body we will have the single greatest metaphor for understanding YHWH's nature and His relationship to Mashiyach. The arm mentioned here is not a separate man. It is not superior to other limbs. It cannot move without the express permission and command of the brain. Such is the nature between Father and Son on the divine side, or with respect to their sharing the one divine nature.

In this verse the Hebrew word for "reveal" is gela, from this word we get the name Galilee. There are many such place names in Scripture that reveal a parallel message of their own, these are currently being detailed in an essay entitled "The Secret of the 50 Names" see www.aent.org.

חָזָה הָיִית בְּחֻזִּי לֵילִיָּא וְאָרוּ עֲסַעְנִי שְׁמִיָּא כְּבַר אֲנֹשׁ אֲתָה הָוָה

וַעֲדַעְתִּיק יוֹמִיָּא מְטָה וּקְדָמוּהִי הִקְרְבוּהִי:

I kept gazing into the night visions and behold! With the clouds of heaven was drawing near one like a Son of Man! And he came up to the Ancient of Days and was presented before Him.

וְלֹהֵי יְהִיב שְׁלֹטָן וַיִּקְרַח וּמַלְכוּתוֹ וְכָל עַמֻּמְיָא אֲמִיָּא וְלִשְׁנָיָא לֵהּ יִפְלְחוּן
 שְׁלֹטְנָה שְׁלֹטָן עָלֵם דִּילָא יַעֲדָה וּמַלְכוּתָהּ דִּילָא תִתְחַבֵּל :
 And to him was given dominion, glory and a kingdom so that all the peoples, nations and men of every language might be under his command.
 And his kingdom is one which will not be destroyed.

This entire chapter of Daniel tells us there are two thrones in heaven. On one sits the Ancient of Days—also known as “the Eternal” or YHWH. On the other is a universal and eternal ruler called the Son of Man. Whether that appellation is meant as just referring to a prophet like Ezekiel or to Mashiyach is irrelevant. The point is there is a great personage called the Son of Man who gets eternal and universal kingship. Regardless then as to how a person views the rabbinic rejection of Y’shua in this context, this should at the very least dispel the notion that Y’shua’s claims about himself were never part of the Tanakh, they clearly were. Obviously this concept is not of pagan origin!

8) Daniel 9:24-27

שְׁבַעִים שָׁבָעִים נִחְתָּף עַלְעֲמָךְ וְעַלְעִיר קִדְשֶׁךָ לְכָלֵא הַפֶּשַׁע וּלְחַתֵּם וּלְהַתֵּם חֲטָאוֹת
 חֲטָאת וּלְכַפֹּר עֲוֹן וּלְהַבִּיא צֶדֶק עַל־מִים וּלְחַתֵּם חֲזוֹן וְנִבְיָא וּלְמַשַּׁח קֹדֶשׁ קִדְשִׁים :
 Seventy weeks have been decreed for your people and your Set-Apart city in order to finish transgression, to be finished with sin, to cover over (make atonement) for iniquity, to bring in eternal righteousness, to seal up vision and prophecy and to anoint the most Set-Apart place.

וְתִדְעַ וְתִשְׁכַּל מִן־מִצָּא דְבָר לְהָשִׁיב וּלְבָנוֹת יְרוּשָׁלַם עַד־מָשִׁיחַ נָגִיד שְׁבַעִים שָׁבָעָה
 וּשְׁבַעִים שָׁשִׁים וּשְׁנַיִם תָּשׁוּב וְנִבְנְתָה רְחוֹב וְחָרוֹץ וּבְצוֹק הָעֵתִים :

Therefore know and clearly understand that from the issuing of the decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until the Anointed Prince there will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks. It will be rebuilt with a large open place and a moat even in times of great trouble.

וְאַחֲרֵי הַשְּׁבַעִים שָׁשִׁים וּשְׁנַיִם יָבֹרֶת מָשִׁיחַ וְאֵין לוֹ וְהָעִיר וְהַקֹּדֶשׁ יִשְׁחִית עִם נָגִיד
 הַבָּא וְקִצּוֹ בְּשִׁטָּף וְעַד קֵץ מַלְחָמָה נִחְרָצַת שְׁמֹמוֹת :

Then after the sixty-two weeks the Anointed Prince will be cut off and have nothing, and the (other) people of the prince who is to come will destroy the city and the sanctuary. And its end will come with a flood and to the end there will be war as desolations have been decreed.

וְהַגִּבִּיר בְּרִית לָרִבִּים שָׁבוּעַ אֶחָד וַחֲצִי הַשָּׁבוּעַ יִשְׁבִּית זָבַח וּמִנְחָה וְעַל כָּנָף
 שְׁקוּצִים מָשִׁים וְעַד־כָּלָה וְנִיחָרָצָה תִּתֵּן עַל־שָׁמַם :

And he will confirm a covenant with the many for a single week, but in the midst of that week he will put an end to sacrifice and offering and on the wing of abominations will come the one who brings desolation, even up to a complete annihilation, one that is decreed and poured out on the one who makes desolation.

The Messianic and prophetic nature of this passage is dealt with elsewhere. For now the main issue is that the Mashiyach must come before the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 CE.
 The question then becomes how many would-be “messiahs” were even falsely alleged by great numbers of people to put a complete end to sin and offering during this period?

וְאָמַרְתָּ אֵלָיו לֵאמֹר כֹּה אָמַר יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת לֵאמֹר הִנֵּה אִישׁ צֶמַח

שָׁמוֹ וּמִתְחַתִּיו יֵצֵא וּבָנָה אֶת־הַיֵּכָל יְהוָה:

Then say to him, “Thus says YHWH Tsavaot, “Behold a man who has the same name as The Branch, for he will branch out from where he is and he will build the temple of YHWH.”

Most of Zechariah deals with setting up men in his day who are symbolic of future events and in many cases have the same names as their future counterparts. This trend begins in chapter 3 where the associates of the high priest Yehoshua ben Yehozadak are directly called forerunners of things to come. By chapter 6, it becomes clear that the same is true for the high priest himself as he will have the same name of The Branch—a common title for Mashiyach. By the time five more centuries pass, the long form of this high priest’s name became popularly truncated to “Y’shua” even though the original form never really went away altogether. The bottom line though is this: Zechariah 6:10 is the only place in Tanakh that directly tells us the Mashiyach will be named Yehoshua and called The Branch at the same time.

וְשִׁפְכִי עַל־בֵּית דָּוִיד וְעַל יוֹשֵׁב יְרוּשָׁלַם רוּחַ חַן וְתַחֲנוּנִים וְהִבִּיטוּ אֵלַי אֵת

אֲשֶׁר־דָּקְרוּ וְסָפְדוּ עָלָיו כְּמִסְפֵּד עַל־יָחִיד וְהִמָּר עָלָיו כְּהִמָּר עַל־הַבְּכוֹר:

“And I will pour out on the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication. And they will look upon Me whom they have pierced and they will mourn for him as an Only Begotten son and will weep bitterly over him as they would in mourning a first born son.”

This passage very clearly points to Y’shua as haMashiyach. The original Hebrew provides a far greater accuracy than an English translation could possibly hope to do. The first and most important thing to establish is Who is speaking this verse, and when we look at 12:9 the answer is very clear: YHWH.

The second element to investigate is this phrase et asher dakaru, where YHWH says with the help of the direct object et: Towards me have pierced they. YHWH though cannot be pierced literally, so there must be another explanation.

That answer, and the last one I needed before I surrendered my life to Y’shua, was in the word yachid. Unlike echad, this is an exclusive singularity and means “never before and never again”. That told me there were aspects of Mashiyach that only applied to him and no other human being, including the in-dwelling of all aspects of YHWH’s Ruach in Isaiah 11:1-2. The term “Only Begotten” is carried over intact into the Aramaic NT with the phrase Eykhadiya, which literally means “the One”. And so he is!

Now that we have a Torah basis to establish the nature of Mashiyach, let’s investigate and compare these elements within the original Aramaic Renewed Covenant writings:

אֶתִּילֵד לְכֹן גִּיר יוֹמָנָא

For born to you all today

פְּרוֹקָא דְאֵיתְהוּי מְרִיא מְשִׁיחָא בְּמַדְינַתָּא דְדָוִיד:

(is the) Savior that is Master YHWH the Mashiyach in the city of Dawid.

2) John 1:1-4, 14

In the beginning was the Miltha. And that Miltha was with Elohim.
And Elohim was that Miltha. This was with Elohim in the beginning.

3) John 20:28

And Tooma answered and said to him, "My Master and my Elohim!"

4) Acts 2:36 (literal word order presented here; see passage in AENT for more information)

שריראית הכל נדע פלה בית איסריל דמריא ומשיחא

Truly, therefore, let all the house of Israel know that Master YHWH and Mashiyach has made Elohim this Y'shua whom you executed on a stake.

5) Acts 2:38

Shimon said to them, Repent and be immersed each of you in the name of Master YHWH-
Y'shua for the forgiveness of sins that you may receive the gift of the Ruach haKodesh.

6) Acts 10:36

(This is) the Word that he sent for to the sons of Yisrael to give hope and peace and tranquility to them through Y'shua the Mashiyach He is Master YHWH of all!

Yet to us, on our part, there is one Elohim, the Father from whom are all things, and we in him; and one Master YHWH-Y'shua, the Mashiyach, by whom are all things, and we also by him.

I therefore explain to you that there is no man that speaks by the Spirit of Elohim who says that Y'shua is accursed. Neither can a man say that Master YHWH is Y'shua except by the Ruach haKodesh.

So also is it written: "Adam, the first man, became a living soul;" the second Adam (became) a resurrecting spirit. And the spiritual was not first; but the animal, and then the spiritual.
The first man was of dust from the earth; the second man was Master YHWH from heaven.

That at the name of Y'shua every knee should bow, of (beings) in heaven and on earth and under the earth. And that every tongue should confess that Master YHWH is Y'shua the Mashiyach to the glory of Elohim his Father.

אֲזַדְהֵרוּ דְלִמָּא אֲנִשׁ נַחְלִצְכוּן בְּפִילִסְפוּתָא וּבְטַעֲוִיתָא סְרִיקְתָּא

Beware, or else any man make you naked by philosophy and by vain deception, according to the doctrines of men, according to the rudiments of the world, and not according to the Mashiyach, in whom dwells all the fullness of Elohim bodily.

And finally, we must separate certain grammatical issues from deep spiritual truths. Aramaic is a language that often requires extensive re-ordering of words to make them come out in proper syntactical English.

However, those type of necessary switches that happen for clarity's sake are wholly different than certain word orders in key phrases where the actual order must be retained. In the Western mindset, there seems little difference between saying "YHWH is Y'shua" and "Y'shua is YHWH" or, to put the latter in Christian verbiage, "Jesus is Lord".

To the Eastern Aramaic believer however the difference is between night and day. The writers of the Renewed Covenant were either Jewish by birth or perhaps in Luke's case proselytes with extensive training. Either way this imparted a certain historical mindset that was vehemently anti-pagan. So the idea of a man being a god, while very compatible in Roman theology, was anathema to the writers of original the New Testament.

Instead, they wanted to focus on the fact that YHWH allowed His Ruach to be fully manifest in one man and in accordance with His own prophecies in Tanakh. Since no man can have authority over YHWH, it must therefore be totally correct to say that, if such is His will, "YHWH is Y'shua" but never "Y'shua is YHWH" in the sense that Y'shua the man cannot make that decision since all authority comes from his Father without whom he is nothing. As a result, the Aramaic New Testament boldly proclaims in every appropriate place without exception that YHWH is Y'shua, not the other way around.

Divisions of the Day

According to Scripture, the day begins not at midnight nor at sunrise, but at sunset. This is purely ancient understanding, not later Rabbinical innovation; it is supported in both Hebrew Tanakh and Aramaic Peshitta. For the vast majority of Bible students this statement is hardly surprising; however, a small group of people actively work against this idea, creating division and confusion. Others are unclear as to the Scriptural reasons for the day beginning at sunset and believe it simply a later traditional development, even though most accept that the day begins at sunset on that basis.

In the Beginning

"In the beginning Elohim created the heavens and the earth. Now the earth was formless and empty, darkness was over the surface of the deep, and the Spirit of Elohim was hovering over the waters. And Elohim said, "Let there be light," and there was light. Elohim saw that the light was good and he separated the light from the darkness. Elohim called the light (אור--aur) "day," (yom--יום) and the darkness (choshekh--חשך) he called "night." (layil--ליל) And there was evening (ereb--ערב), and there was morning (boker--בקר)--the first day" (Genesis 1:1-5).

From these very famous passages in Torah, we glean many important facts. The plain (peshat) language tells us:

1. In the beginning it was dark, and light (אור) emerged from that darkness through YHWH's will. As a result, light became separated from that darkness (חשך).
2. Then YHWH gave the light another name, that of yom (יום) or "day."
3. Similarly, YHWH then called the darkness by its alternate title layil (ליל) or "night."
4. When there is evening (ערב) followed by morning (בקר), this constitutes a fuller version of yom which counts as the first day.

Sunrise-sunrise advocates posture that Hebrew could read "and there was evening and then there was morning, one day." In other words, Hebrew allows for the interpretation that the real starting point of the first day is boker, or dawn. However, other passages in the Tanakh clearly do not agree with this. Furthermore, just because the construction of the sentence allows it to be read,

“and then there was” does not mean a separation of the first period from the second. That would be like saying “And there was sports and then there was weather during the newscast” as though sports and weather could not be part of the same event! As simplistic as this example sounds, it is even more ridiculous to apply this logic to force “and then there was” into a pure separation. Not only are there five more occasions where Genesis 1 uses this construction, but many other places in the Tanakh: “*Hear, O Israel: YHWH is our Elohim, YHWH is one. Love YHWH your Elohim with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength. These commandments that I give you today are to be upon your hearts. Impress them on your children. Talk about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up” (Deuteronomy 6:4-7). There are two evening-morning cycles mentioned here. The order is when you sit at home, which is usually at night, when you walk along the road, which is usually in the morning, when you lie down in evening and then when you get up in the morning again! This statement, though, from the Psalms is even stronger: “*But I call to Elohim, and YHWH saves me. Evening, morning and noon I cry out in distress, and he hears my voice” (Psalm 55:16-17).

“You must pay (a laborer) his wages on the same day, before the sun sets.” (Deuteronomy 24:15).

The reason is that after sun set is technically another day!

“Then I heard a holy one speaking, and another holy one said to him, ‘How long will it take for the vision to be fulfilled--the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, the rebellion that causes desolation, and the surrender of the sanctuary and of the host that will be trampled underfoot?’ He said to me, ‘It will take 2,300 evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary will be re-consecrated’” (Daniel 8:13-14).

“And the vision of the evenings and mornings which has been told is true, but keep the vision secret because it pertains to many days in the future” (Daniel 8:26).

These are the same parts of the greater yom, a 24 hour period that begins with sunset.

There’s no place like Yom for the holidays

יָוֹם, ‘YOWM’, (#3117), “daylight, 24 hour day, a working day”, comes from a root meaning “to be hot.” This can refer either to daylight alone, or to a 24-hour period called the “day.” An examination of special occasions in the Tanakh reveals the components of a normal day. “YHWH spoke to Moses in the Desert of Sinai in the first month of the second year after they came out of Egypt. He said, ‘Have the Israelites celebrate the Passover at the appointed time. Celebrate it at the appointed time, at twilight on the fourteenth day of this month, in accordance with all its rules and regulations.’ So Moses told the Israelites to celebrate the Passover, and they did so in the Desert of Sinai at twilight on the fourteenth day of the first month. The Israelites did everything just as YHWH commanded Moses. But some of them could not celebrate the Passover on that day because they were ceremonially unclean on account of a dead body. So they came to Moses and Aaron that same day and said to Moses, “We have become unclean because of a dead body, but why should we be kept from presenting YHWH’s offering with the other Israelites at the appointed time?” Moses answered them, “Wait until I find out what YHWH commands concerning you.” Then YHWH said to Moses, “Tell the Israelites: ‘When any of you or your descendants are unclean because of a dead body or are away on a journey, they may still celebrate YHWH’s Passover. They are to celebrate it on the fourteenth day of the second month at twilight. They are to eat the lamb, together with unleavened bread and bitter herbs’” (Numbers 9:1-11).

From here two aspects become apparent. First, it is clear that the celebration of the holiday is keyed to sunset, and there is no indication that it is different from a regular day which one would almost expect if the holiday made such a shift. And second, here the “day” includes the night: “On that same (Passover) night I will pass through Egypt and strike down every firstborn--both men and animals...This is a day you are to commemorate; for the generations to come you shall celebrate it as a festival to YHWH--a lasting ordinance” (Exodus 12:12-14).

The question is sometimes asked, “If they are slaughtering the Passover Lamb on the fourteenth at twilight, isn’t that really the next day, the fifteenth?” No, because this same Hebrew word of erev may also refer to the sun in the process of setting, which is the late afternoon on the fourteenth. Others suggest that Passover can then be said to start on the thirteenth, thinking that once it is sunset, it marks “the fourteenth day at the beginning of twilight.” Again, the answer is no, because the Torah is clear that it is again “between the evenings” which is the sun beginning to set after the daylight period of the fourteenth day began, and further Torah instruction makes this clear. The order shown is night and then day; “the greater yom” includes the night as the “day” is clearly happening after sunset but before dawn! YHWH adds this confirmation for clarity: “It is a Sabbath of rest for you, and you must deny yourselves. From the evening of the ninth day of the month until the following evening you are to observe your Sabbath” (Vayikra/Leviticus 23:32)

To clarify which “twilight” is meant for ancient Israel, i.e., the sunset that marked the beginning of the previous (9th) or the one for the day being discussed (10th), YHWH clearly says to go through the 9th day and then celebrate the Shabbat after the sunset on that day. This is why Yehudim have always adopted this pattern and applied it throughout the Tanakh. In addition, we find the weekly Shabbat also occurring at sunset: When evening shadows fell on the gates of Jerusalem before the Sabbath, I ordered the doors to be shut and not opened until the Sabbath was over. I stationed some of my own men at the gates so that no load could be brought in on the Sabbath day. Once or twice the merchants and sellers of all kinds of goods spent the night outside Jerusalem. But I warned them and said, “Why do you spend the night by the wall? If you do this again, I will lay hands on you.” From that time on they no longer came on the Sabbath. Then I commanded the Levites to purify themselves and go and guard the gates in order to keep the Sabbath day holy” (Nehemiah 13:19-22).

Some “light” reading

Another way to understand this structure is to remember that, in the beginning: Elohim called the light (aur--אור) “day” (yom--יום) and the darkness (khoshekh--חשך) he called “night” (layil--לילה). By the direct reference of this verse, we see “light” and “day” are synonyms, as are “darkness” and “night.” Also: “And Elohim said, ‘Let there be lights in the expanse of the sky to separate the day from the night, and let them serve as signs to mark seasons and days and years, and let them be lights in the expanse of the sky to give light on the earth.’ And it was so. Elohim made two great lights--the greater light to govern the day and the lesser light to govern the night. He also made the stars. Elohim set them in the expanse of the sky to give light on the earth, to govern the day and the night, and to separate light from darkness. And Elohim saw that it was good. And there was evening, and there was morning--the fourth day” (Genesis 1:14-19).

So, if “light” is called “day,” and there are “lights” also at night, then it stands to reason that where there is “light” – be it greater or lesser – it is part of the yom, or “day”! We see here night and then day, darkness and then light, clearly making up the greater unit which is also called day. There is also a special prophetic Yom which will not be confined to a day or nighttime period: “Then YHWH my Elohim will come, and all the holy ones with him. On that day there will be no light, no cold or frost. It will be a unique day, without daytime or nighttime--a day known to YHWH. When evening comes, there will be light” (Zechariah 14:1-7).

Watches and Hours

In the First Century, the day was mapped into twelve equal periods of time, or hours, which were demarcated on a sundial, but “hours” would vary in length according to the time of year. So while the daylight had twelve hours, rarely would each hour be equivalent to our modern interval of 60 minutes. The word for “hour” (shaiah--שעה) is first referred to in the Aramaic portion of Daniel. In some places a better translation is “brief moment” but that only raises the question as to what “brief” constitutes. The clearest reading is in Daniel 4:19, where the prophet himself is said to have been in a state astonishment for “one hour.” A shorter interval of time, perhaps seconds, is suggested in the Hebrew term rehgah (רֶהַג), which is closer to the English word “instant,” derived literally from “a winking of the eyes.” A more generic time reference in the Aramaic of Daniel is iddawn (ܝܕܐܘܢ), whose root is more closely associated with a woman’s menstrual cycle, but which can refer to either a moment or even a year, depending on context. It is this exact root and word which is used throughout early Aramaic writings as well, in the form of the word shaita (ܫܝܬܐ). However, prior to these times the day and night were divided into watches. Starting with dawn, it would take a few hours for the sun to heat things up; at around the third hour from dawn, this time was generally known as the beginning of “the heat of the day”:

“The next morning Saul put the people in three companies; and they came into the midst of the camp at the morning watch (just before dawn - AGR) and struck down the Ammonites until the heat of the day...” (1 Samuel 11:11).

This verse indicates that the attack began somewhere around 4 AM, and ended about five hours later, when the “heat of the day” began. However, the time period continued from that point until late afternoon. At that time, prior to sunset we would have “the cool of the day” (Genesis 3:8). Finally, the mid point of this time from dawn to late afternoon was called “midday.” The Hebrew word for “noon,” tzohar (צֹהַר), is from a primitive root that means “roof,” or the time when the sun is directly overhead. As for the night, it was divided into three parts.

First, there was the period from sunset to midnight: “Arise, cry aloud in the night at the beginning of the night watches; pour out your heart like water before the presence of YHWH; Lift up your hands to Him for the life of your little ones who are faint because of hunger at the head of every street” (Lamentations 2:19).

Then from midnight until the roosters began crowing: “Now the same night it came about that YHWH said to him, ‘Arise, go down against the camp, for I have given it into your hands’... So Gideon and the hundred men who were with him came to the outskirts of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch, when they had just posted the watch; and they blew the trumpets and smashed the pitchers that were in their hands” (Judges 7:9, 19).

Finally, from the rooster crowing until sunrise: “At the morning watch, YHWH looked down on the army of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and cloud and brought the army of the Egyptians into confusion... So Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to its normal state at daybreak, while the Egyptians were fleeing right into it; then YHWH overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea” (Exodus 14:24, 27).

By Y’shua’s time, the Hebrews had added a fourth watch, as noted in Mark 13:35.

The many faces of EREV

Erev has many different meanings; the most common ones are “even, eventide, evening, and mixing.” It is derived from arav which also means “to darken, or to cover with a texture.” Erev also has several figurative meanings which include the sense of “ending” or “closure”; therefore, it is important to know how to determine a literal from a figurative use of this word. Scriptural evidence also shows erev can refer to late afternoon; it is derived from the same root that describes mixing, particularly of shades of light and darkness (Exodus 12:38). It is precisely the mixing of daylight transitioning to night as the sun sets. We will also see later how the meaning “to darken” relates directly to the Aramaic NT and its equivalent term ramsha, as we review a passage in Luke. The daylight can be said to start closing or setting, another meaning of erev: “Prepare war against her; Arise, and let us attack at noon. Woe to us, for the day declines (panah--פָּנָה), for the shadows of the evening (erev--עֶרֶב) lengthen!” (Jeremiah 6:4)

How does the “day” decline, or go into panah? Because noon is counted as the mid-point from dawn, the daylight-only form of yom. From there it’s a very smooth transition to the “going down” or setting of the day period. But notice another aspect to this key verse as well: Erev is defined as the first time that the shadows lengthen past mid-day. Other verses in Tanakh show a clear separation of time between first erev and sunset: “He hanged the king of Ai on a tree until evening (erev--ערב); and at sunset (bow ha-shemesh—בוא השמש) Joshua gave command and they took his body down from the tree and threw it at the entrance of the city gate and raised over it a great heap of stones to this day” (Joshua 8:29). “The battle raged that day, and the king of Israel propped himself up in his chariot in front of the Arameans until the evening (erev--ערב); and at sunset (bow hashemesh—בוא השמש) he died” (2 Chronicles 18:34). In both these cases the “first erev” is before sunset, or as the sun is going down. If erev only referred to a literal sunset, there would be no need for another additional term right after it! Erev is clearly not being understood here as “the time after sunset and before darkness.”

Even more precisely we read: “*You shall keep (the lamb) until the fourteenth day of the same month, then the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel is to kill it between the evenings (beyn ha eruvim--בין הערבים). Then they are to take some of the blood and put it on the sides and tops of the doorframes of the houses where they eat the lambs. That same night they are to eat the meat roasted over the fire, along with bitter herbs, and bread made without yeast. Do not eat the meat raw or cooked in water, but roast it over the fire-head, legs and inner parts. Do not leave any of it till morning; if some is left till morning, you must burn it” (Exodus 12:6-10). It is beyn ha eruvim, or between the evenings--plural. Then after these two evenings we have night, followed by morning. Therefore, since we know the latest erev is at sunset, it stands to reason that the previous erev must be in the late afternoon, or the difference between a setting sun and one that has just gone down.

The final “face” of erev that we must address is the sense of closing of an occasion of time, as we find here: “*Thus says YHWH concerning the prophets who lead my people astray; ‘When they have to bite with their teeth, they cry, “Peace,” But against him who puts nothing in their mouths they declare holy war. Therefore night for you--without vision, and darkness for you--without divination. The sun will go down on the prophets, and the day will become dark over them” (Micah 3:5-6). And it also works for dawn, in the sense that people will or will not have renewal based on their deeds: “When men tell you to consult mediums and spiritists, who whisper and mutter, should not a people inquire of their Elohim? Why consult the dead on behalf of the living? To the law and to the testimony! If they do not speak according to this word, they have no light of dawn. Distressed and hungry, they will roam through the land; when they are famished, they will become enraged and, looking upward, will curse their king and their Elohim. Then they will look toward the earth and see only distress and darkness and fearful gloom, and they will be thrust into utter darkness” (Isaiah 8:19-22). “*Your troops will be willing on your day of battle. Arrayed in holy majesty from the womb of the dawn you will receive the dew of your youth” (Psalm 110:3).

These metaphors are also carried over in the Ketuvim Netzarim: “Be angry, but do not sin. Do not let the sun go down (nerev--נרעב) upon your wrath” (Ephesians 4:26). “*And we have the word of the prophets made more certain, and you will do well to pay attention to it, as to a light shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts” (2 Peter 1:19-20). In Aramaic there are two words that stand in for erev and its various meanings. They are eruvata (ܐܪܘܒܬܐ), the direct cognate from the Hebrew, and the Aramaic-exclusive term ramsha (ܪܡܫܐ) which we will review next along with other Aramaic equivalents for Hebrew Tanakh time markers.

Hebrew Tanakh into Aramaic Renewed Covenant Writings

As we move from Tanakh and into the Aramaic, many of the Hebrew terms we’ve discussed are carried over: Boker Shapira/Tzapira or Negeh: Morning, dawn or daybreak; Aur Nohra: Light; Yom Yom: Daylight period or sunset-sunset 24 hour period; Erev Erev/Erubata, Ramsha: Late afternoon or evening/sunset; Layil Layila/Lalia: Night; Machar Machar.

As previewed earlier, ramsha dovetails with the “between the evenings”: “Now when it became ramsha (evening), a rich man from Ramtha whose name was Yosip who also was taught by Y’shua, this man drew near to Peelatos and asked for the body of Y’shua. And Peelatos commanded that the body be given to him” (Matthew 27:57-58). There is also a “straight” erev in Aramaic, spelled exactly like the Hebrew and taking the form nerev (let set) in Ephesians 4:26. In this case the first erev is indicated because 27:62 says the sunset happened later, literally phrased as l’yoma din machar d’aytohi beter eruvata, or “the next day that was after sunset.” The same clarification is given in Mark 1:32 which reads b’ramsha din b’merevi shemsha, or “in the evening during the setting of the sun.” In both cases there would be no need to make the distinction if the sunrise-sunset model were the correct one! Only when we have yom referring to the overall structure beginning at sunset does this phraseology make sense. In addition, we need to see that the word ramsha is attached to the daylight when it is “first erev” but other times to the night when it is “second erev.”

Here’s proof: “And at ramsha on that day he (Y’shua) said to them, ‘Let us cross over to the other side’” (Mark 4:35). The events in Mark 4 are clearly during daylight, so here as in Mark 1:32, the sun can be in the process of setting, which is by definition not the actual moment of sunset. On the other hand, the second meaning of ramsha is also represented in Mark: “Be vigilant therefore because you do not know when the master of the house will come – In ramsha or in the middle of the night or at the crow of the rooster, or in the morning” (Mark 13:35).

Here is an example of this other meaning, because these are four watches that belong to the night, not the previous erev that belongs to the day. In those other instances, the day is said to be “in setting,” i.e. giving way to sunset. Here sunset begins the timing of the watches mentioned. Perhaps the strongest example is in Mark 14:30: “Y’shua said to him, ‘Amen, I say to you that today in this night you will deny me three times before the cock will crow.’” The Aramaic here reads literally yomana b’lalia hana qedem (this day in the night before). The rooster crows before dawn, so the day must begin prior to that time, at sunset! Furthermore, the timing of this incident is clearly established as coming first. This use of machar disproves any idea that the word never refers to the “greater yom” where the day begins after sunset. To say “the next day after sunset” is to clearly differentiate that “day” from the boker at sunrise; hence, bringing us back again to “and it was erev and it was boker, day one.” See also Matthew 14:25 and Mark 6:48, ramsha/evening (Mark 14:17) and then b’hana lalia or “in this night” (Mark 14:27), immediately after which Y’shua calls it “today”! Similar wording is found in Luke 22:34, niqara taragala yomana (will crow the rooster this day).

Not your “average Joe”

If Joseph of Ramtha came “in the evening” how could he have the time necessary to get Y’shua’s body off the stake, prepared and put in the tomb before sunset? For many sunrise-sunset advocates, this is the foundational “proof” of their theory. For them, it is impossible for Joseph to do all the things mentioned in the Good News, even if they accepted the “between the evenings” understanding. They point out that Joseph had to be informed and know Y’shua was near death, then get approval from Pilate, procure the massive amounts of burial spices, and so on. Let’s carefully examine the logistics: “And a certain man whose name was Yosip, a counselor from Ramtha, a city of Yehud, was a good and righteous man. This man did not agree with their will and with their actions, and was awaiting the Kingdom of Elohim. This man drew near to Peelatos and asked for the body of Y’shua” (Luke 23:50-52).

“After these things Yosip, who was from Ramtha, pleaded from Peelatos that he might take the body of Y’shua because he was a disciple of Y’shua and had concealed himself for fear of the Yehudeans. And Peelatos gave permission, and he came and took the body of Y’shua. And Niquodemus also came, he who had come previously to Y’shua at night. And he brought with him spices of myrrh and of aloe, about one hundred pints” (John 19:38-39).

These verses, along with what was highlighted earlier from Matthew 27:57-58, reveal important facts about Yosip: 1) He was a wealthy and member of the Sanhedrin, the Jewish ruling council: 2) He disagreed with the Sanhedrin's decision to hand Y'shua over to the Romans for execution: 3) He was a secret disciple of Y'shua, who was taught directly by him: 4) He was awaiting the "Kingdom of Elohim" – a very specific term of the Netzarim (Acts 24:12-14), characterizing someone who believes Tanakh prophecy as being fulfilled in Y'shua: 5) He is joined by Nicodemus, another secret disciple and fellow Sanhedrin member.

In light of these facts, Yosip was very well positioned as someone who could take custody of Y'shua's body. As members of the Sanhedrin, both Joseph and Nicodemus were privy to the details of the arrest and trial of Y'shua. As disciples of their Master, they were also in a position to be trusted by Y'shua and his inner circle. And because they are both wealthy, it would be easy to plan and procure the spices needed to bury their Master whenever he died, knowing that both were powerless to stop the execution. Pilate, the Roman governor, had to work directly with the Sanhedrin to maintain order. It is also the Passover, a time of extreme unrest in the land where Jewish celebrations of freedom from Egypt could very easily be transferred to rising up to break the Roman yoke. Pilate clearly does not want to be in Jerusalem; he would rather be at Caesarea. The reason he had to come up at this time was to maintain his own position which would be endangered if riots broke out or if the flow of tax to Rome was disrupted. To keep order, Pilate complied with these two men who asked for the body; they were very well known throughout Israel and of excellent reputation. It would have been in the best interests of the bureaucratic machinery to comply and not impede the request.

"Daylight Savings Time"

Another key fact is this: It was not a normal day as far as ramsha/erev is concerned:

"Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour. And about the ninth hour, Y'shua cried out with a loud voice and said, "My El! My El! Why have you spared me?" (Matthew 27:45-46) "And about six hours had passed and darkness was over all the land until the ninth hour. And the sun darkened and the veil of the temple was torn from its middle" (Luke 23:44-45).

From these verses we know: 1) It was after the mid-day began, or the sixth hour, when darkness fell over the land. 2) We are specifically told the sun darkened. The question is, what does Scripture call such an event, and by what term? "In that day," declares the Master YHWH, "I will make the sun go down at noon and darken the earth in broad daylight. I will turn your religious feasts into mourning and all your singing into weeping. I will make all of you wear sackcloth and shave your heads. I will make that time like mourning for an only son and the end of it like a bitter day" (Amos 8:9-10). The word used here is bow (בּוֹא), which literally means "to set" and is a synonym for erev. Then erev, in turn, is rendered into Aramaic as ramsha. Furthermore, we should remember that one of the original meanings of erev/ramsha is simply "to darken"! The sixth hour then, in three of the Gospels, is being described as the transition time between when the sun darkens and when it sets; only this time it's happening hours earlier.

This scenario was referenced earlier: "Prepare war against her; Arise, and let us attack at noon. Woe to us, for the day declines, for the shadows of the erev lengthen!" (Jeremiah 6:4) This appears to be exactly what the prophets are describing; the time is after the sixth hour, or noon. And then the sun darkens, the shadows lengthen – spread throughout the land! The word used is erev or ramsha! Harkening back to another definition of erev also, we see this moment at the sixth hour as a "mixing" of light and darkness, also a very apt description of what is going on here.

Finally, from a linguistic standpoint, we need to consider the words in Matthew 27:57, kad hwa din ramsha, which can indeed be translated as "now when it was evening." However, the word din also carries several other meanings, including “while”, “yet” or even just plain “and.” As a result, the plain reading of the text more than allows for the clearer rendering of “when it was still ramsha,” which would clearly indicate Matthew viewing the supernatural darkness as a very early first erev. Even the previous reading, though, also reinforces this idea. That being the case, Joseph of Aramathea had plenty of time from when he consulted with Pilate, along with his friend Nicodemus who brought spices along with him.

As for logistical considerations, Pilate was very nearby the execution site, with his “common hall” being in the Antonia Fortress on the grounds of the Temple, while the execution site was just outside the city walls. Pilate was surprised Y’shua had already died and sent a soldier to check on him (Mark 15:44-45), and this would have added an extra bit of time. However, a Roman Centurion could have easily made a round trip to the execution area in thirty minutes or less, or within minutes on horseback. The Centurion would easily see that Y’shua was in fact dead with the blood and water poured out on the ground. Therefore, both the death of Y’shua and the granting of permission to Joseph could have fit within the ninth hour. Pilate’s sole concern was to verify his death; he had otherwise made up his mind. Armed with the approval, Joseph and Nicodemus go to the stake, probably early in the tenth hour, still allowing time to prepare and place the body of their Master in the tomb.

What about John?

In John’s account we have the phrase, beter haleyn Yosip, or “after these things Joseph,” linking the arrival of the counselor to “after” the death of Y’shua on the stake. John is the only writer who was actually at the execution site (John 19:26, 35). Therefore, when he talks about the arrival of Joseph of Aramathea, he means at the stake, not about his arrival to Pilate. Furthermore, Mark 15:42 goes out of the way to inform us it was still daylight but in “evening” or first erev. Luke 23:50-55 does the same but does not mention Joseph’s arrival was “after” anything. However, the most important details rest with John: 1) That Y’shua is condemned about the sixth hour of the day of Preparation, which other Gospels say always, “is before the Sabbath” (John 19:14, compare to Mark 15:42 and Luke 23:54): 2) That Y’shua is buried on that same day before sunset (John 19:42) but still “at evening” which must mean late afternoon (Matthew 27:57). When we combine these facts with those in the previous section, it becomes clear that “after these things” means that to synch John with the other accounts puts Joseph’s arrival at the stake at the tenth hour, and it is at the tenth hour of the day that generally fits the late afternoon time line and specifically fits even better when we consider the “first erev” beginning four hours earlier. Two hours before sunset is still plenty of time to get Y’shua buried, especially since the Gospels tell us how near the actual tomb was.

And the Sabbath was dawning?

Analysis of each context and the usage of specific terms indicates the use of dawning and setting as metaphors for opening and closing an occasion, and we have seen several examples from Scripture about how that works. Even so, sunrise-sunrise advocates point to a reading in the Greek that says, in two places, “The Sabbath was dawning.” The word used for “dawn” is epiphosko and it literally means “growing light.” The idea is that if the Sabbath is tied to the literal dawn, then the day must start at sunrise.

However, almost all Greek NT primacists recognize this phrase as an Aramaic or Hebraic expression and render it “and the Sabbath was beginning” in their versions of Matthew 28:1 and John 19:31. A quick survey of the two dozen most popular NT translations of those verses more than proves this point.

But it should also be pointed out that in this edition of the AENT, we have restored the meaning of a key Aramaic word that got mistranslated into Greek as epiphosko, from which nearly 2,000 years of misunderstandings have resulted on when Y’shua actually died!

Most Greek translations posit that Y'shua either died on a Friday afternoon or before the coming of the Annual Shabbat of the Feast of Unleavened Bread on the 15th of Abib. Neither position is correct. A quick look at several key footnotes in places like Matthew 28:1, Luke 23:54 and John 19:14,31 and 42, more than proves this point. The key word, erubata, is derived from Hebrew ereb and as we saw earlier this means “to mix light” and also “to set”.

From epiphosko, or “growing light” we see exactly where the bad translation happened. If light is mixing, the only thing it can mix with is shade or darkness. If the light is then “freeing” itself from that darkness that light could be said to “grow”, but this is far too much of a stretch for the Semitic word that epiphosko was translated from. Somehow, “mixing light” got mangled into “growing light”, and the intended meaning of closing or setting from ereb/erubata was lost.

However, this proper context is recovered in at least one key definitive resource. Compendious Syriac by Payne Smith (Oxford at the Clarendon Press, 1903) says of this word (p. 427) “to cause to set as the sun...metaphorically, of souls caused to go down into sleep or death”. Therefore, many things, including the day or afternoon, can be said to “close” or “set” from this mixing of light in a Semitic context, and the Greek reading simply got a bit confused.

But whether by Greek or Aramaic primacist model, the problem for the sunrise advocate is the same: The dawning is not meant literally!

However, it should be pointed out that even though there is no conflict between the Greek or Aramaic in naming the day, neither version discredits the plain reading of this verse which is literally: “and when it became the ramsha that was setting.” So evening itself, whether first ereb or second, can be said to set or give way, or close. This is also how we understand the Peshitta reading above in light of the Greek for this same verse: “Opse de Shabbaton in the dawning of the first of the week...” (Matthew 28:1 Greek). That phrase may also indicate that while John does not mention the three hours of darkness in his Gospel, he nevertheless is aware of it and using it to synch the time. The phrase Opse de Shabbaton is taken to mean in nearly all translations “closing/after the Sabbath” as well as “evening” where ramsha appears on the Aramaic side. Therefore, the Greek is actually covering and giving witness to both literal and figurative uses. In fact the Aramaic of Mark 16:1 may very well reflect an attempt at clarifying and making the right choice for Matthew 28:1.

Conclusion

To summarize, the only way to allege that a sunrise-sunrise model is supported in the Aramaic New Testament – which in turn “clarifies” the Tanakh to this position – is to use terms out of context by not discerning when literal or figurative meanings are intended. There are no Aramaic or Hebrew speaking congregations – Netzari, Messianic, Christian or otherwise who have studied the sacred text over the last 2,000 years, and deviated from the traditional Jewish understanding of what makes up the day and when it begins. No advocate of the sunrise-sunrise model can prove when and why this alleged day-switching supposedly happened. If the traditional reckoning of the day was changed as these folks suggest, then where is this alleged mass conspiracy recorded in history? If Mashiyach had advocated or adopted such a practice it would have angered the Jewish establishment and brought much accusation against him and his disciples, but there is nothing whatsoever found in Jewish writings. Sunrise-sunrise advocates reference a story regarding Rashi's grandson Samuel Ben Meir observing that the “day” began with ereb and not “night” but this matter is purely of modern speculation. There is no evidence that either Rashi or his grandson adopted the day beginning at sunrise.

Easter or Pesach

In most Bibles the term paskha is understood to mean Passover; it occurs twenty-nine times in the Renewed Covenant Writings. There is good reason for this: It is the same exact word for Passover from the Greek, the Hebrew original being pesach. However in Acts 12:4 the King James Bible adds the word “Easter”: “intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people”. Most Bible scholars assume that the word “Easter” is derived from the Greek paskha but this is certainly not the case.

Strong's Exhaustive Concordance defines paskha as: pas'-khah Noun. Neuter Definition: the paschal sacrifice (which was accustomed to be offered for the people's deliverance of old from Egypt) the paschal lamb, i.e. the lamb the Israelites were accustomed to slay and eat on the fourteenth day of the month of Nisan (the first month of their year) in memory of the day on which their fathers, preparing to depart from Egypt, were bidden by God to slay and eat a lamb, and to sprinkle their door posts with its blood, that the destroying angel, seeing the blood, might pass over their dwellings; Christ crucified is likened to the slain paschal lamb, the paschal supper, the paschal feast, the feast of the Passover, extending from the 14th to the 20th day of the month of Nisan. King James Word Usage - Total: 29 – Passover 28, Easter 1.

Paskha is mentioned in: Matthew 26:2, 17-19; Mark 14:1, 12, 14, 16; Luke 2:41; Luke 22:1, 7-8, 11, 13, 15; John 2:13; John 2:23; John 4:45; John 6:4; John 11:55; John 12:1; John 13:1; John 18:28; John 18:39; John 19:14; Acts 12:4; 1 Corinthians 5:7; Hebrews 11:28. Note that in John 19:14 that Pesach (Passover) is clearly being addressed. If “Easter” was being referred to as the “holiday” it could hardly pose a security threat for Herod. However, a Jewish festival that commemorates freedom from a foreign power obviously forced Rome to take extra measures to prevent riots and an uprising against them. This is also why Pilate offered to free one prisoner during Pesach to placate a potentially volatile situation. The NIV renders paskha in Acts 12:4 as Passover. In fact, KJV stands alone in scholarly dishonesty by inserting Easter, as the root and usage of paskha/pesach is self evident.

Tracking the Origins of Easter

Easter is an occasion that happens in the early Spring and is described in considerable detail within Scripture. It is not something that would have been foreign to people in the land of Israel during the First Century. It is an occasion replete with imagery relating to life, death and resurrection. Two of the most prestigious Christian Bible dictionaries define “Easter” as follows:

Easter [S]: Originally a Saxon word (Eostre), denoting a goddess of the Saxons, in honor of whom sacrifices were offered about the time of the Passover. Hence the name came to be given to the festival of the Resurrection of Christ, which occurred at the time of the Passover. In the early English versions this word was frequently used as the translation of the Greek paskha (the Passover). When the Authorized Version (1611) was formed, the word “Passover” was used in all passages in which this word paskha occurred, except in Acts 12:4. In the Revised Version the proper word, “Passover,” is always used. (Easton's Bible Dictionary)

...intending after Easter - rather, ‘after the Passover’; that is, after the whole festival was over. (The word in our King James Version is an ecclesiastical term of later date, and ought not to have been employed here.) (Commentary Critical and Explanatory on the Whole Bible (Jamiesson, Faucett and Brown), Acts 12:4)

Easton's Bible Dictionary states that Easter was the name of a Saxon goddess that was applied to the resurrection of Y'shua. The timing of pagan sacrifices were synchronized somewhat to Passover. Jamiesson, Faucett and Brown state that the King James translators should not have adopted the Easter reading in what is for them the “Authorized Version.” The Catholic position on this matter is as follows:

“The English term, according to the Venn. Bead (De tempo rum rationed, I, v), relates to Ester, a Teutonic goddess of the rising light of day and spring, which deity, however, is otherwise unknown, even in the Eddo (Smock, Mythoi., 362); Anglo-Saxon, Easter, Easton; Old High German, rostra, strata, stratum; German, Astern. April was called easter-monadh...”

“Because the use of eggs was forbidden during Lent, they were brought to the table on Easter Day, colored red to symbolize the Easter joy. This custom is found not only in the Latin but also in the Oriental Churches. “The symbolic meaning of a new creation of mankind by Jesus risen from the dead was probably an invention of later times. The custom may have its origin in paganism, for a great many pagan customs, celebrating the return of spring, gravitated to Easter. The egg is the emblem of the germinating life of early spring. Easter eggs, the children are told, come from Rome with the bells which on Thursday go to Rome and return Saturday morning.” (Catholic Encyclopedia)

Catholic literature clearly states that some facets of its Easter celebrations were derived from paganism; however, most “reform” movements still follow their “mother church” by using the detestable name of Easter and practicing fertility rites.

Tanakh makes reference to Easter

By transliterating the word Eostre/Ester into Hebrew, we arrive with the name and root word of Astarte/Ishtar, a pagan fertility goddess who is also known as Asherah and Ashtoreth in the Tanakh. Ashtoreth was a moon goddess. The moon was linked with fertility; Ashtoreth was Baal/Molech’s consort. From Easton’s Bible Dictionary:

Ashtoreth: The moon goddess of the Phoenicians, representing the passive principle in nature, their principal female deity; frequently associated with the name of Baal, the sun-god, their chief male deity Judges10:6; 1 Samuel 7:4; 12:10). These names often occur in the plural (Ashtaroth, Baalim), probably as indicating either different statues or different modifications of the deities. This deity is spoken of as Ashtoreth of the Zidonians. She was the Ishtar of the Accadians and the Astarte of the Greeks (Jeremiah 44:17; 1 Kings 11:5, 33; 2 Kings 23:13). There was a temple of this goddess among the Philistines in the time of Saul (1 Samuel 31:10). Under the name of Ishtar, she was one of the great deities of the Assyrians. The Phoenicians called her Astarte. Solomon introduced the worship of this idol (1 Kings 11:33). Jezebel’s 400 priests were probably employed in its service (1 Kings 18:19). It was called the “queen of heaven” (Jeremiah 44:25).

The variances between these goddess’ names in terms of pronunciation are directly related to the region and dialect of Israel, Canaan and Babylon, respectively. Easton’s Dictionary states:

“Asherah, and pl. Asherim in Revised Version, instead of “grove” and “groves” of the Authorized Version. This was the name of a sensual Canaanitish goddess Astarte, the feminine of the Assyrian Ishtar. Its symbol was the stem of a tree deprived of its boughs, and rudely shaped into an image, and planted in the ground. Such religious symbols (“groves”) are frequently alluded to in Scripture (Exodus 34:13; Judges 6:25; 2 Kings 23:6; 1 Kings 16:33, etc.). These images were also sometimes made of silver or of carved stone (2 Kings 21:7; “the graven image of Asherah,” RSV). (See GROVE [1]).”

Brown, Driver Briggs Hebrew Lexicon states: Ashera(h) = “groves (for idol worship)” a Babylonian (Astarte)-Canaanite goddess (of fortune and happiness), the supposed consort of Baal...sacred trees or poles set up near an altar.

The Tanakh (Hebrew Scriptures) makes reference to these pagan goddesses in numerous places: “And YHWH will strike Israel, so that it will be like a reed swaying in the water. He will uproot Israel from this good land that he gave to their forefathers and scatter them beyond the River, because they provoked YHWH to anger by making Asherah poles...They also set up for themselves high places, sacred stones and Asherah poles on every high hill and under every spreading tree” (1 Kings 14:15, 23).

“Now summon the people from all over Israel to meet me on Mount Carmel. And bring the four hundred and fifty prophets of Baal and the four hundred prophets of Asherah, who eat at Jezebel’s table” (1 Kings 18:19).

“When all this had ended, the Israelites who were there went out to the towns of Judah, smashed the sacred stones and cut down the Asherah poles. They destroyed the high places and the altars throughout Judah and Benjamin and in Ephraim and Manasseh. After they had destroyed all of them, the Israelites returned to their own towns and to their own property” (2 Chronicles 31:1).

“By this, then, will Jacob’s guilt be atoned for, and this will be the full fruitage of the removal of his sin: When he makes all the altar stones to be like chalk stones crushed to pieces, no Asherah poles or incense altars will be left standing” (Isaiah 27:9).

“I will uproot from among you your Asherah poles and demolish your cities” (Micah 5:14).

See also: Exodus 34:13; Deuteronomy 7:5, 12:3, 16:21; Judges 6:25, 26, 28, 30; 1 Kings 15:13, 16:33; 2 Kings 17:10, 16, 18:4, 21:3, 7, 23:4, 6, 7, 14,15; 2 Chronicles 14:3, 15:16, 17:6, 19:3, 24:18, 33:3, 19; Isaiah 17:8.

Clearly there is an Easter festival mentioned in the Set Apart Scriptures and it is very clearly an abomination unto YHWH and His Mashiyach! Seeing also a consistent linkage of Asherah with poles, trees and groves, a very similar “feast” is mentioned in Tanakh that has been co-opted into another very well known Christian holiday:

“Hear what YHWH says to you, O house of Israel. This is what YHWH says: “Do not learn the ways of the nations or be terrified by signs in the sky, though the nations are terrified by them. For the customs of the peoples are worthless; they cut a tree out of the forest, and a craftsman shapes it with his chisel. They adorn it with silver and gold; they fasten it with hammer and nails so it will not totter. Like a scarecrow in a melon patch, their idols cannot speak; they must be carried because they cannot walk. Do not fear them; they can do no harm nor can they do any good.” No one is like you, O YHWH; you are great, and your name is mighty in power. Who should not revere you, O King of the nations? This is your due. Among all the wise men of the nations and in all their kingdoms, there is no one like you. They are all senseless and foolish; they are taught by worthless wooden idols. Hammered silver is brought from Tarshish and gold from Uphaz. What the craftsman and goldsmith have made is then dressed in blue and purple-- all made by skilled workers. But YHWH is the true Elohim; he is the living Elohim, the eternal King. When he is angry, the earth trembles; the nations cannot endure his wrath. “Tell them this: ‘These gods, who did not make the heavens and the earth, will perish from the earth and from under the heavens’” (Jeremiah 10:1-11).

Asherah/Astarte/Eostre/Ester derived her power from her male counterpart Baal who, not be outdone, had a festival of his own under his other title Molech:

“As Solomon grew old, his wives turned his heart after other gods, and his heart was not fully devoted to YHWH his Elohim, as the heart of David his father had been. He followed Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, and Molech the detestable god of the Ammonites. So Solomon did evil in the eyes of YHWH ; he did not follow YHWH completely, as David his father had done. On a hill east of Jerusalem, Solomon built a high place for Chemosh the detestable god of Moab, and for Molech the detestable god of the Ammonites. He did the same for all his foreign wives, who burned incense and offered sacrifices to their gods” (1 Kings 11:4-8) Notice that Ashtoreth (another name for Asherah), is linked to her consort Baal, here alternatively named Molech.

Here is what YHWH caused to happen to that “old time religion”: “He also tore down the quarters of the male shrine prostitutes, which were in the temple of YHWH and where women did weaving for Asherah. Josiah brought all the priests from the towns of Judah and desecrated the high places, from Geba to Beersheba, where the priests had burned incense. He broke down the shrines at the gates--at the entrance to the Gate of Joshua, the city governor, which is on the left of the city gate. Although the priests of the high places did not serve at the altar of YHWH in Jerusalem, they ate unleavened bread with their fellow priests. He desecrated Topheth, which was in the Valley of Ben Hinnom, so no one could use it to sacrifice his son or daughter in the fire to Molech" (2 Kings 23:7-10). Notice that the pagan priests were associating their festivals with the unleavened bread of Passover season, just as they did with the European version of the same fertility goddess who gives Easter her name.

Christian carry-over

Christianity has transferred pagan rites and the very name of a pagan celebration into the Resurrection of Mashiyach! To top off their celebrations most Christians dishonor the Jewish Mashiyach by putting a "traditional" Easter ham on their tables! This is a clear and defiant demonstration of disrespect toward Mashiyach Y'shua, yet Easter and its trappings is painted by the majority of Christians as acceptable behavior for Christians. Christ-ian means to be "Christ-like" but Easter and its pagan trappings are entirely against Mashiyach!

Renewed Covenant writings clearly warn against the same consort of Asherah and all form of paganism: "But Elohim turned away and gave them over to the worship of the heavenly bodies. This agrees with what is written in the book of the prophets: "'Did you bring me sacrifices and offerings forty years in the desert, O house of Israel? You have lifted up the shrine of Molech and the star of your god Rephan, the idols you made to worship. Therefore I will send you into exile beyond Babylon" (Acts 7:42-43).

"I ask then: Did Elohim reject his people? By no means! I am an Israelite myself, a descendant of Abraham, from the tribe of Benjamin. Elohim did not reject his people, whom he foreknew. Don't you know what the Scripture says in the passage about Elijah--how he appealed to Elohim against Israel: "Master YHWH, they have killed your prophets and torn down your altars; I am the only one left, and they are trying to kill me"? And what was Elohim's answer to him? "I have reserved for myself seven thousand who have not bowed the knee to Baal." So too, at the present time there is a remnant chosen by grace" (Romans 11:1-5).

"Nevertheless, I have a few things against you: You have people there who hold to the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to entice the Israelites to sin by eating food sacrificed to idols and by committing sexual immorality. Likewise you also have those who hold to the teaching of the Nicolaitans. Repent therefore! Otherwise, I will soon come to you and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth...I know your deeds, your love and faith, your service and perseverance, and that you are now doing more than you did at first. Nevertheless, I have this against you: You tolerate that woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess. By her teaching she misleads my servants into sexual immorality and the eating of food sacrificed to idols. I have given her time to repent of her immorality, but she is unwilling. So I will cast her into a coffin, and I will make those who commit adultery with her suffer intensely, unless they repent of her ways. I will strike her children dead. Then all the assemblies will know that I am he who searches hearts and minds, and I will repay each of you according to your deeds" (Revelation 2:14-16, 20-23).

Note that Balaam mentioned here is not the false god Baal, nor is this Jezebel woman the same as the nemesis of Elijah. However, these names being referenced in Revelation draw very clear and direct links to the Tanakh and are certainly not coincidental!

If any Christian reader should still believe it acceptable to co-opt practices of pagan origin to honor Mashiyach Y'shua, then Rav Shaul addresses such shameful indifference with these words:

“Do I mean then that a sacrifice offered to an idol is anything, or that an idol is anything? No, but the sacrifices of pagans are offered to demons, not to Elohim, and I do not want you to be participants with demons. You cannot drink the cup of YHWH and the cup of demons too; you cannot have a part in both the YHWH’s table and the table of demons. Are we trying to arouse YHWH’s jealousy? Are we stronger than he?” (1 Corinthians 10:19-22)

The earliest record of Christians celebrating Easter is in connection with the visit of Polycarp (the bishop of Smyrna) to Anicetus (the bishop of Rome) in 154-155 AD for the purposes of maintaining Pesach observance. Polycarp was a disciple of John. He was known to have discourse with the original disciples of Mashiyach and he was a faithful follower of Mashiyach for eighty six years. Polycarp represented the ancient observance of Pesach through the night of the fourteenth of Nisan (the first month of the Jewish calendar), which is both the Torah and the Renewed Covenant Passover, regardless of what day of the week it might fall on our Gregorian calendars. Anicetus argued for a new calendar that would cause “Easter” to always fall on a Sunday. By changing the original date for Pesach, which Mashiyach and all his original disciples followed, the post-apostolic founders of the church used a syncretistic effort to bring paganism into the pews, which is clearly the work of the “anti-Christ.”

Conclusion: What shall be done then?

All followers of Mashiyach must with full assurance mark and celebrate the death, burial and resurrection of Mashiyach Y’shua which occurred on Pesach (Passover). If this feast seems “too Jewish” Christians would be well advised to consider whether they prefer to follow the Messiah who came through the Tribe of Judah, or a Messiah who is a product of pagan culture. Rather than following dates and feasts that accommodate pagan culture, true Christians (Christ-like ones) are called to imitate Mashiyach who gave his life to raise up a Set Apart people.

John writes: *“After these things, I saw another Messenger come down from heaven; and he had great authority and the earth was illuminated by his glory. And he cried with a strong voice, saying: “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great: and has become a cavern of demons, and the home of every unclean spirit, and the home of every unclean and hateful bird and the home of every unclean and hateful beast of prey. For all the nations have drunken of the wine of her wrath; and the kings of the earth have practiced whoredom with her; and the merchants of the earth have been enriched by the abundance of her luxuries. And I heard another voice from heaven, saying: “Come out of her my people; that you may not participate in her sins, and may not partake of her plagues. For her sins have reached up to heaven; and Elohim has remembered her iniquities. Recompense you to her, as she also has recompensed; and render to her double, according to her deeds; in the cup which she has mixed, mix you to her two fold. As much as she pleased herself with lusting, so much of anguish and sorrow give you to her. Because she says in her heart, ‘I sit a queen, and am no widow, and I will see no sorrow;’ therefore, in one day, will these her plagues come, death, and mourning, and famine; and she will be burned with fire: for strong is Master YHWH, Elohim, who judges her.” (Revelation 18:1-8).

All of us understand the metaphor behind, “Come out of her (Babylon) my people.” It refers to all false religious authority and ideals, but most don’t realize that this passage is also very literal: “With the help of Silas, whom I regard as a faithful brother, I have written to you briefly, encouraging you and testifying that this is the true grace of Elohim. Stand fast in it. She who is in Babylon, chosen together with you, sends you her greetings, and so does my son Mark” (1 Peter 5:12-13).

Keefa (Peter) is writing from Babylon, where a group of ex-pagans have turned to Mashiyach and are gathered together in the name of YHWH. One must remember that Babylon was home to the largest population of Jews who lived outside of Israel. Keefa and Mark, in fact, viewed their mission to the Babylonian assembly as so critical that it is very likely Keefa’s testimony took shape here, eventually becoming the Gospel According to Mark. This assembly would become part of the group that preserved the original Aramaic New Testament. Today we know them as the Church of the East (COE), but originally they were called an Assembly of the Nazarenes! This body of believers literally had to flee Babylon as it was rife with paganism. While some may criticize the COE understandably for adopting Western traditions, one fact is indisputable:

These Aramaic Christians knew the truth regarding the origin of “Easter” and they ran from it as fast as they could! Instead, they marked the occasion of Y’shua’s great triumph by honoring it as Qyamteh D’Maran (Resurrection Day).

“Easter” is clearly the “sacred” female partner of two deities that are associated with murdering children; therefore, at a minimum the pagan name of Easter must die from the lips of every true Christian! There is, however, another level that takes the occasion of the Resurrection to a much purer place: Celebrating the Passover as Y’shua and his followers originally did, and as Rav Shaul and other Netzarim continued to do for decades afterwards, even to this day. Every true Believer should celebrate Passover according to the true Gospel that is from everlasting, which is the Word of YHWH, not the traditions of men!

Y’shua said, “Blessed are those who do His Commandments, for they shall be given the right to the Tree of Life and will be allowed to enter into the city” (Revelation 22:14).

The 450 Years of Acts 13:20

The period of the Judges is one of the most difficult to verify chronologically. However, there is no contradiction between the 480 years from the Exodus to Solomon’s 4th year (1 Kings 6:1), and the linear calculations from Moshe through Solomon that yield a number closer to 600 years. Three factors must be included in the calculations:

1) Events in Judges 17-21 do not take place after Samson’s death but are a separate summary of events from the beginning of that period. Phinehas cannot possibly serve as a priest at the beginning of Judges and then 300+ years later (20:28). The descendants of Phinehas who ministered after him are recorded in 1 Chronicles 6. 2) Judges 11:26 demands 340 years elapse between the Exodus and some part of Jephtah’s rule. 3) Judges provides the record of civilian rulers who were simultaneously serving with the priestly rulers (Eli and Samuel). The entire chronology for the Judges begins in 1392 BCE with Joshua’s death and brings us to when Eli was judge from 1122-1082 BCE. Within that 40 year period we must determine when Samuel was born and his age when Eli died in 1082 BCE.

1 Samuel 3:19-4:1 says Samuel was both a prophet and a priest (by performing sacrifices), however at the same time he was also proclaimed a judge (1 Samuel 7:1-6). This suggests an age of 25 (Numbers 8:23-26). But since 2 Chronicles 31:15-17 suggests a minimum age of 30 let’s average these ages to 27 (1 Samuel 6:1 would put this 7 months after Eli’s death). He could easily be a bit older, but not any younger. Samuel’s birth then would be in Eli’s 13th year, or about 1109 BCE. As for fixing his death, 1 Samuel 27:7 says David stayed with the Philistines for 1 year and four months, which is very shortly before Saul’s death (1 Samuel 28-29). Three days later (2 Samuel 1 and 2), a 2 year long civil war starts between David and one of Saul’s sons, but Scripture counts David’s rule from that moment; ruling from Hebron 7½ years before taking Jerusalem (2 Samuel 2:1-11). The precise date for Samuel’s death then is 1013 BCE, 2 years before David begins ruling at Hebron. Samuel’s 96 year long life also explains why he is called old some years before his 38 years of service to Saul commences (1 Samuel 8:1).

Our 450 year clock then ends with Samuel being made a judge 7 months after Eli’s death (1081 BCE), so that same clock must begin in about 1531 BCE, give or take 2-3 years on either side.

The clue then for what Paul means is in Acts 13:17; “Elohim chose our forefathers and magnified them while they were sojourners in Egypt.” What happened after Joseph and Jacob’s time that “magnified” Israel? Moshe was 80 years old at the time of the Exodus in 1447 BCE (Exodus 7:7) which would put his birth in about 1527 BCE, 80 years earlier and exactly at the right time for Israel to be “magnified”! As a result, the 40 years of wandering in the wilderness must be included within the 450 years that Paul is referring to in Acts 13:20.

Eighteen New Testament Misconceptions

Most people are blissfully unaware that there are 18 widely held modern Christian theologies that are the exact opposite of what was taught in the First Century by Y'shua, Paul and the original Netzarim Shlichim (Apostles). This is, in part, due to the fact that the Hebrew and Aramaic languages contain many words that have several meanings. For example the word ruach (רוח): Does it mean "spirit", "wind" or "breath"? Or, in Aramaic does miltha (מלתא), mean "word", "instance", "emanation", "substance", "occurrence" or "manifestation"? Perhaps when Yochanan wrote "In the beginning was the miltha," he meant all of these definitions, and yet the Greek redactor could only pick one phrase that reflected one meaning, out of a possible six! Understanding the language of Y'shua and his disciples is certainly not difficult, but the problem remains that original Hebraic teachings have not been very accessible to the majority of Christians. Any doctrine that makes void the teachings of Y'shua and Torah has very broad implications, and so we'll begin with the greatest opposite of all.

#1: Fulfilling the Torah

"Do not think I have come to destroy the Torah or the Prophets. I tell you I have not come to destroy (ashrea--אשרא) but to fulfill (amala--אמלא)." Matthew 5:17

It is an absolute impossibility for "destroying" and "fulfilling" Torah to be or to mean the same thing! Here the text is putting them in opposition to one another; so if it isn't A but it is B, then B cannot be the same thing as A. As basic as this is, mainstream Christianity has levied a false assertion that "fulfilling the Torah" means that it is no longer necessary, i.e. destroyed!

The Aramaic word used for "fulfill" is amala, derived from the root mela, which means "to complete". This completion is not one that results in destruction, but better understanding of the promises made. Let's examine a few verses:

"So that you might know the d'amlā (complete--דאמלא) truth about the things you have been taught" (Luke 1:4).

"And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, as of the only begotten from the Father d'amlā (complete--דאמלא) in grace and truth" (Yochanan 1:14).

"The words which You have given me I have given them, and they received them, and understood d'amlā (completely--דאמלא) that I came forth from You, and they believed that You did send me" (Yochanan 17:8).

This last verse clarifies the point in the strongest possible terms; this is where Y'shua clearly teaches that "fulfilling / completing" commands does not cast those commands aside; but rather, shows that they have been interpreted properly, as these citations from the Tanakh also prove:

"So Solomon dismissed Abiathar from being priest to YHWH, in order to fulfill (male--מלא) the word of YHWH, which He had spoken concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh" (1 Kings 2:27).

"To fulfill (male--מלא) the word of YHWH by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed its sabbaths. All the days of its desolation it kept Sabbath until seventy years were complete" (2 Chronicles 36:21).

"May he grant you your hearts desire and fulfill (male--מלא) all your counsel!" (Psalm 20:4)

Here is the exact word that Y'shua used, but for a slight dialectical difference in accent and, as the reader can see, nowhere in any context does the command pass away! Instead, the opposite is shown, since it is the power and validity of the command which forces its hearer to first interpret it properly and then carry it out exactly as intended. There are also half a dozen other words in Hebrew that carry the same meaning, and in all of their cases the “fulfillment” of a command coincides with its proper interpretation (Leviticus 22:21, Numbers 15:8, Ezra 1:1, Nehemiah 5:13, Psalm 76:11, 145:19).

“Fulfill” also means to have proper understanding of a scriptural passage, such as recognizing a precise fulfillment of prophecy. Therefore, when Y’shua says, “This word is fulfilled in your hearing,” he means that he is the goal or object of that prophecy and has now arrived on the scene to do his mission as specified according to prophecy. Now, if the “fulfillment” has not happened yet, as is the case when Y’shua says, “All that is written in the Torah and Prophets must be fulfilled,” then it means, quite obviously “kept”, “vouchsafed” or “adhered to” – the exact opposite of passing away! That is also why he says, “He who keeps (fulfills) my words shall not taste death”!

#2: Destroying the Torah

While keeping or vindicating Torah is the true meaning of “fulfill”, let’s also look at the word “destroy.” “Destroying the Torah” is an equivalent to the English phrase to “break the law,” meaning that the broken law is not then made null and void by the criminal who went against it. For example if you are caught speeding it does not mean there are no longer any speed limits on that roadway. Technically, however, the Aramaic word Y’shua uses does not mean “destroy” at all, but rather “to loosen”, “release” or “unravel”. Here are a few verses that use this exact root:

“When therefore they were gathered together, Pilate said to them, “Whom do you want me to let loose (d’ashrea--דאשרא)? Barabbas or Y’shua, who is called the Mashiyach?” (Matthew 27:17)

“Pilate therefore said to him (Y’shua), “You do not speak to me? Do you not know that I have the authority to let you loose (d’ashrikh--דאשריך) and I have the authority to crucify you?” (Yochanan 19:10)

“And Agrippa said to Festus, “This man might have been let loose (d’neshtarea--דנסחרא) if he had not appealed to Caesar” (Acts 26:32).

Obviously none of these verses contains the idea of destruction! However, in Aramaic thought, destruction is a kind of unmaking, literally creation in reverse. Another way to think of this idea, then, would be to consider that we sometimes talk of divorce as “dissolving the bonds of marriage.” In the same way, YHWH’s covenant can also be undone when his people disobey Him. Once this unraveling is completed, though, it is fair to look at what has been unraveled as having been effectively destroyed, even as we realize the other, better meaning for our Western minds would be “release”. Furthermore, on the Tanakh side, there are several words that have this same meaning:

“The fountains of the great deep were released and the floodgates of the sky were opened (pathach--פתח). Shake yourself from the dust, rise up, O captive Jerusalem; Loose (pathach--פתח) yourself from the chains around your neck, O captive daughter of Zion” (Isaiah 52:2).

What makes pathach a particularly important word is its usage in Hebrew grammar. Ptaha (same word) is the term used to give an open “A” sound via a special vowel marking. The Hebrew speaker is expected to open his mouth very wide as he releases the sound. Y’shua also used the Aramaic version of this word (ephatha) in Mark 7:34, as he commands that a man be released from his blindness. Either way, whether we are dealing with a sound or an infirmity. This word clearly designates the strong sensation of deep release. Therefore, to restore the original meaning of this verse in Matthew it best reads:

“Do not think I have come to unravel the Torah or the Prophets. I tell you I have not come to unravel but to give proper interpretation of them” (Matthew 5:17).

#3: Under the Law

Before previewing the usage of this word in the Renewed Covenant, let us look at how it is used in the Tanakh:

“They should collect all the food of the good years that are coming and store up the grain under (tachath--תחת) the authority of Pharaoh, to be kept in the cities for food” (Genesis 41:35).

“Then the priest shall put the woman under oath and shall say to her, “If no man had laid with you and if you have not gone astray into uncleanness, being under (tachath--תחת) the authority of your husband, be immune to this water of bitterness that carries a curse” (Numbers 5:19).

As we see here, to be “under” something means to derive authority from it, and this is true not just of the word highlighted in Hebrew here, but several other synonyms translated into English as “under” as well. Therefore, if we are “under the Torah,” that would mean that we derive authority from the Torah, a doctrine that is never taught in Tanakh:

“YHWH appeared to Isaac and said, “Do not go down to Egypt; live in the land where I tell you to live. Stay in this land for awhile, and I will be with you and will bless you. For to you and your descendants I will give all these lands and will confirm the oath I swore to your father Abraham. I will make your descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky and will give them all these lands, and through your offspring all nations of the earth will be blessed because Abraham obeyed Me and kept My requirements, My commands, My decrees and My Torah.” So Isaac stayed in Gerar” (Genesis 26:1-6).

“In any dispute, the priests are to serve as judges and decide it according to My ordinances. They are to keep My laws and My decrees for all My appointed feasts, and they are to keep My Sabbaths holy...declares the Sovereign YHWH” (Ezekiel 44:24,27).

There are dozens of other examples of this same idea. All the requirements in Torah are not “Jewish” or even just “for Israel”. Rather, they are YHWH’s requirements, and it is from YHWH, and not the Torah, from which justification for doing the right things comes from. In other words, if you just happen to do a ritual commanded in Torah because it seems trendy, then by Torah standards you are absolutely not justified! This idea is true even with a foundational requirement, like that of circumcision:

“The days are coming,” declares YHWH, “when I will punish all who are circumcised only in the flesh. Egypt, Judah, Ammon, Moab and all who live in the desert in distant places. For all these nations are really uncircumcised, and even the whole house of Israel is uncircumcised in heart” (Jeremiah 9:25-26).

Clearly circumcision never justified those people who are being referenced. Jeremiah’s insight is identical to that of Acts 15! But let’s hear more on this from other prophets:

“Stop bringing meaningless offerings! Your incense is detestable to Me. Your New Moon festivals and your appointed feasts My soul hates.<sup>45</sup> They have become a burden to Me. I am weary of bearing them. When you spread your hands in prayer, I will hide My face from you; even if you offer many prayers, I will not listen. You hands are full of blood; wash and make yourselves clean. Take your evil deeds out of My sight! Stop doing wrong and learn to do right! Seek justice, encourage the oppressed. Defend the cause of the fatherless, plead the case of the widow” (Isaiah 1:15-17).

<sup>45</sup> Romans 3:19, or “Now we know that whatever the Torah says, it speaks to those who are under the Torah, so that every mouth may be closed and all the world may become accountable to Elohim”, uses a synonym to express the same idea. The construction there is l’aylin d’b’namusa, which parses out literally as: l (to) aylin (those) d (who are) b (under) namusa (Torah). The key to the verse is the B proclitic, which usually means “in”, but is better translated as “under”. The true etymology though is that the B proclitic lexically is “by, through, in, inside or into”, and therefore, if you have gone into something - like a tunnel for example - you are also under it.

“For I desire mercy and not sacrifice, and the acknowledgment of Elohim rather than burnt offerings” (Hosea 6:6).

“With what shall I come before YHWH and bow down before the exalted Elohim? Shall I come before Him with burnt offerings, with calves a year old? Will YHWH be pleased with thousands of rams or ten thousand rivers of oil? Shall I offer my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He has shown you, O man, what is good. And what does YHWH require of you? To act justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with your Elohim” (Micah 6:6-8).

This is also why Abraham comes up as an example in the Renewed Covenant over and over again. The message, in every case, is the same. Abraham performed a ritual because he believed the Word of Elohim, who instructed him to do it in the first place! Therefore, justification for Abraham, and for the rest of us, comes in two parts:

- 1) Hearing and understanding the word of YHWH
- 2) Taking what YHWH has said and manifesting that understanding by following the instructions

Neither faith nor works alone is sufficient. Works without faith shows a lack of understanding the Torah, and faith without works, as Ya’akov Ha Tzadik says, is dead. Put simply, “under the Torah” is not an idea that was coined during Mashiyach’s time, but is a false teaching that has been rampant from the beginning of time. For example, in Genesis 4, Cain and Abel give offerings to YHWH. It has been a common misconception that Cain’s offering was not accepted because it was from grain, whereas Abel gave a blood/meat sacrifice. The fact is, both grain and blood/meat offerings were deemed acceptable under the right circumstances, (Exodus 29:41, Leviticus 2:1, 5:13, 6:14-15, many others).

Instead, YHWH rebukes Cain this way:

“Then YHWH said to Cain, “Why are you downcast? If you do what is right, will you not be accepted? But if you do not do what is right, sin is crouching at your door. It desires to have you, but you must master it” (Genesis 4:6-7).

In a sense, Cain thought he was “under the Torah,” that by simply doing the ritual motions he was justified. However, since Elohim knew his heart, He did not accept the Cain’s offering. Similarly, the Pharisees had also fallen into this trap, which is why Yochanan the Immerser says:

“You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the coming wrath? Produce fruit in keeping with repentance. And do not say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham as our father.’ I tell you that out of these stones Elohim can raise up children of Abraham” (Matthew 3:7-9).

Y’shua’s frequent rebukes on this same idea hardly need to be laid out exhaustively here. It is enough to simply say that Yochanan did not want the Pharisees to boast in their rituals or lineage, but actually to turn their hearts towards YHWH and admit their sins. With these thoughts in mind, let’s look at some more familiar verses on this idea:

“For all who have sinned without the Torah will also perish without the Torah, and all who have sinned under (tachyt--תחת) the Torah, will be judged by the Torah” (Romans 2:12).<sup>46</sup>

“To the Jews I became as a Jew, so that I might win Jews; to those who are under (tachyt--תחת) the Torah, as under the Torah though not being myself under (tachyt--תחת) the Torah, so that I might win those who are under (tachyt--תחת) the Torah, to those who are without Torah, as without Torah, though not being without the Torah of

---

<sup>46</sup> It is a common misconception that Galatians 3:23 is an “under the Torah” verse. The fact is, it is not, for while the Greek does read that way, the Aramaic says, “Torah was guarding us”. Lamsa translates this as “guided”, probably to align with the Greek but also because the guide/teacher synonym taraa as used in the next few lines.

Elohim, but in the instruction of Mashiyach, so that I might win those who are without the Torah” (1 Corinthians 9:20-21).

If the word תחית looks familiar, it should. It is simply the Aramaic cognate of the word that was referenced at the beginning of this section. Therefore, “under the Torah” really means “to derive justification from the authority of Torah and not from YHWH.” For the sake of completeness however, let us examine more places where “under the Torah” appears:

“But when the fullness of time was come, Elohim sent forth His Son who, born of a woman, became subject (tachyt--תחית) to the Torah” (Galatians 4:4).

Here is how George Lamsa translates this verse. Instead of merely rendering תחית "under" again, Lamsa has correctly surmised that תחית better reads as "being subject to the Torah," which is an efficient way of bringing on the Tanakh understanding that refers to the power of various authorities. In this case the woman is subject to the Torah pronouncement that all of us are under sin. It is not the Torah itself that is sin (Romans 7:12) but, rather, that the Torah tells us what sin is (Romans 7:7-9). Let's continue this thought further:

“To redeem those who were under (tachyt--תחית) the Torah, that we might receive the adoption of sons” (Galatians 4:5).

In this context, the message Rav Shaul gives here is that the proper understanding of Torah by Gentiles grafts them into Israel. This is why he says elsewhere:

“Do not be arrogant, but be afraid, for if Elohim did not spare the natural branches (Jews who did not follow Torah), He will not spare you either” (Romans 11:21).

“Therefore, remember that formerly you who are Gentiles by birth and called “uncircumcised” by those who call themselves “the circumcision” (that is done in the body by the hands of men)--remember that at that time you were separate from Mashiyach, excluded from citizenship in Israel and foreigners to the covenants of the promise, without hope and without Elohim in the world. But now in Mashiyach Y’shua, you who were far away have been brought near through the blood of Mashiyach” (Ephesians 2:11-13).

Finally, and perhaps most importantly, we have this verse proving once again that the Torah itself is not the problem:

“Tell me, you who want to be under the Torah, do you listen to the Torah?” (Galatians 4:21)

#4: Justified by Torah

This term is largely a synonym for “under the Torah” in that it looks to Torah ritual alone for forgiveness of sins. Further, the same rules just discussed for “under the Torah” apply here also. The reason for the slight repetition, however, is two-fold. First, “justified by the Law” is a common buzzword in conventional Christianity, and therefore should be dealt with separately lest anyone think that idea is correct under that title. And secondly, because it gives another chance to dispel the myth that the Torah preaches salvation through works:

“In YHWH all the generations of Israel will be justified, and in Him they will boast” (Isaiah 45:25).

This could not be clearer. It is obedience to Elohim’s laws, precisely coming from the knowledge that they came from Him, which causes justification. Here is yet another witness to this same idea:

“‘Cursed is anyone who does not affirm the terms of this Torah by obeying them.’ And all the people will reply, ‘Amen’” (Deuteronomy 27:26).

Let’s look at a parallel passage in Galatians on this same idea with the next pair of terms.

#5: Curse of the Torah

First, here are some Scriptures that are rarely taught in a church setting:

“And I will bless those who bless you, and the one who curses you I will curse (kelawlaw--קלל) And in you all the families of the earth will be blessed” (Genesis 12:3).

“You will receive a curse (kelawlaw--קלל) if you reject the commands of YHWH your Elohim and turn from his way by worshiping foreign gods” (Deuteronomy 11:28).

“Then afterward he read all the words of the Torah, the blessing and the curse (kelawlaw--קלל), according to all that is written in the book of the Torah” (Joshua 8:34).

Most understand very well that Torah was not invalid during “Old Testament” times; it is crystal clear, then, that the “curse of the Torah” does not cause Torah itself to pass away! Nor is it tenable to suggest that a curse is something invented among the apostles, who were allegedly trying to divorce themselves from their own Hebraic roots. With this in mind, let us examine a familiar verse:

“All who rely on observing the Torah of Moshe are under a curse. For it is written, ‘Cursed is everyone who does not continue to do everything written in the book of the Torah’” (Galatians 3:10).

This portion of Galatians is, in fact, so critical that it is necessary to go line by line to uncover the true nature of Rav Shaul’s argument. Again, if this was the first time “curse of the Torah” was being discussed, perhaps the idea that Torah was passing away might be a little more plausible - and yet Torah remained in force during the many centuries since the passages in Genesis, Deuteronomy and Joshua were written. In addition, if Rav Shaul was actually trying to undermine the authority of the Torah, it would be very foolish of him to quote almost verbatim from Torah while also teaching Torah as his authority!

“Clearly no one is justified before Elohim by the Torah, because the righteous will live by faith” (Galatians 3:11).

Again, if Rav Shaul says no one is justified by the Torah, and he is quoting from the Torah, or, more specifically, Habakkuk 2:4, then he is simply repeating what was said earlier – that ritual is empty without intentionally accepting the fact that the requirement came from YHWH, and that our observance is based on YHWH’s will, not what is trendy or traditional among men.

“The Torah is not based on faith; on the contrary, the man who does these things will live by them” (Galatians 3:12).

The Torah then, as Rav Shaul says, is merely the instruction manual. It is acknowledging, though, the faith in Torah’s divine origins that justifies us. Mashiyach redeemed us from the curse of the Torah by becoming a curse for us, for it is written:

“Cursed is everyone who is hung on a tree” (Galatians 3:13).

To properly understand this verse, we must understand the source of Rav Shaul’s quote:

“If a man is guilty of a capital offense is put to death and is hung on a tree, you must not leave his body on the tree overnight. Be sure to bury him the same day, because anyone who is hung on a tree is under Elohim’s curse” (Deuteronomy 21:23).

In other words, the only way Mashiyach could “become a curse” is by being put to death in the manner of a criminal. Make no mistake about it, Mashiyach was completely innocent of all charges levied against him! He committed no capital offense; however, he died in the manner of a criminal:

"I am poured out like water and all my bones are out of joint. My heart is turned to wax, it has melted away within me. My strength is dried up like a potsherd, and my tongue sticks to the roof of my mouth. You lay me in the dust of death. Dogs have surrounded me, a band of evil men has encircled me. They have pierced my hands and my feet. I can count all my bones. People stare and gloat over me. They divide their garments among them, and cast lots for my clothing" (Psalm 22:14-18).<sup>47</sup>

"He was assigned a grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death, though he had done no violence, nor was any deceit in his mouth" (Isaiah 53:9).

Concluding this portion of Galatians:

"He redeemed us in order that the blessing given to Abraham might come to the Gentiles through Mashiyach Y'shua, so that by faith we might receive the promise of the Spirit" (Galatians 3:14).

"The promise of the Spirit" is that YHWH spoke to Abraham, and when Abraham did as he was instructed, he procured the blessing of YHWH on the entire world for his obedience. This is also the promise that Rav Shaul says was not nullified at Sinai, because the giving of the Torah to Moshe was simply another step in a lengthy promise which was working itself out for centuries prior to Moshe even being born. Now, the Gentiles, who previously did not know the true Elohim, were allowed to come near to Him by faith in His Son.

Therefore, all the Scriptural evidence clearly points to the idea that the "curse of the Torah" is simply that Torah shows us what sin is and sets a standard for Perfection. However, the Torah also points us to Redemption, Salvation and Deliverance and a time of reckoning when those who are dead will awake to everlasting life or everlasting contempt (Daniel 12:1-10). Enoch and Elijah are two exceptions who did not taste death; therefore, the "curse of Torah" does not automatically apply to physical death. Both of these men were righteous and observed Torah according to how YHWH intended by Faith, and because of their Faith they did not see death.

"Do we then nullify the Torah through faith? Not at all! Rather, we establish the Torah" (Romans 3:31).

#6: Works of the Torah

"Works of Torah" also appears in Galatians 3:10. However, the more accurate phrase is, "those who rely (only) on observance of the Torah of Moshe." In other words, this means that "works of the Torah" is something that stands alone without the faith element required to sanctify the ritual, as seen in other verses:

"Therefore no one will be declared righteous in His sight by works (abdeh-- עֲבֹדָה) of the Torah; rather through the Torah we become aware of sin" (Romans 3:20).

"For we maintain that a man is justified by faith apart from the works (abdeh-- עֲבֹדָה) of the Torah" (Romans 3:28).

"We who were Jews by birth and not Gentile sinners, know that a man is not justified by the works (abdeh-- עֲבֹדָה) of the Torah, because by the works of the Torah no man shall be justified" (Galatians 2:16).

In this last verse Rav Shaul appeals to his own people and says that, out of their own Scriptures and traditions, they should know that ritual alone does not justify themselves! Furthermore, the word used here for "works" is עֲבֹדָה and it has an interesting etymology. The word עֲבֹדָה can also be personified, turning the meaning into "servant" or even "slave", as we see here:

"Paul, a servant (abdeh-- עֲבֹדָה) of Mashiyach Y'shua, called to be an apostle and set apart for the Gospel of Elohim" (Romans 1:1).

<sup>47</sup> Also see Philippians 3:5-11, where you have a vivid description of ritual for ritual's sake. But, as Rav Shaul rightly states in so many places, it is the belief behind the ritual that counts.

“Ya’akov, a servant (abdeh-- עֲבָדָא) of Elohim and of our Master, Y’shua the Mashiyach” (Ya’akov 1:1).

Therefore, the teaching in a sense is not to be a slave of any form, but to understand that we are to follow the commandments of YHWH. With that idea established then, let us look at the remainder of the Scriptural record:

“You foolish Galatians, who has bewitched you, before whose eyes Y’shua the Mashiyach was publicly portrayed as crucified?” (Galatians 3:1).

Compare this statement to two others Rav Shaul makes. The first one is in Galatians 1:6-7 where he talks about these people turning to “another Gospel, which is no Gospel at all.” The second is here:

“For the secret power of lawlessness is already at work; but the one who now holds it back will continue to do so till he is taken out of the way. And when the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Master Y’shua will slay by the breath of his mouth and destroy by the splendor of his coming. The coming of the lawless one will be in accordance with the works of Satan, displaying in all kinds of counterfeit miracles, signs and wonders, and in every sort of evil that deceives those who are perishing. They perish because they have refused to love the truth and so be saved. For this reason Elohim sends them a strong delusion, so that they will believe the lie and so that all will be condemned who have not believed the truth but have delighted in wickedness” (2 Thessalonians 2:8-12).

The message is that the Galatians should have known better by what they have seen and heard, and that the heresies that have ensnared them arose very early and will continue right until the End Times. Now let us examine the next verse:

“This is the only thing I want to find out from you: did you receive the Spirit by the works (abdeh-- עֲבָדָא) of the Torah, or by hearing with faith? Are you so foolish?” (Galatians 3:2-3)

Clearly no one, neither Jew nor Gentile, ever became righteous by doing the Torah. Instead, they came to the decision to do Torah through spiritual revelation that this was YHWH’s will:

“Having begun by the Spirit, are you now being perfected by the flesh? Did you suffer so many things in vain--if indeed it was in vain? So then, does He who provides you with the Spirit and works miracles among you, do it by the works (abdeh-- עֲבָדָא) of the Torah, or by hearing with faith?” (Galatians 3:4-5)

It is extremely important to understand that the “Spirit” is not above Scripture. Rather, the Spirit guides us to the proper interpretation of Scripture as well as proper implementation of Scripture’s commands:

“Even so Abraham believed Elohim, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness. Therefore, be sure that it is those who are of faith who are sons of Abraham. The Scripture, foreseeing that Elohim would justify the Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, “all the nations will be blessed in you.” So then those who are of faith are blessed with Abraham, the believer” (Galatians 3:6-9).

Here we see the climax of Rav Shaul’s argument. Abraham heard the Voice of YHWH, recognized The Voice as the One true Elohim, and then, by obeying that Voice, had his belief credited as righteousness. It just does not get any clearer than this. Rav Shaul aligns with the same understanding in the Tanakh, which is that works without understanding the origin of its requirements is a dead ritual. It certainly does not mean that the Torah, which has this truth, is to be set aside!

#7: Died to the Torah

“Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die to the Torah through the body of Mashiyach, so that you might be joined to another, to Him who was raised from the dead, in order that we might bear fruit for Elohim. For while we were in the flesh, the sinful passions, which were aroused by the Torah, were at work in the members of our body to bear fruit for death. But now we have been released from the Torah, for we died with Mashiyach, and we are no longer captive to its power. Now we can really serve Elohim, not in the old way by obeying the letter of the Torah, but in the new way, by the Spirit” (Romans 7:4-6).

The heart of this passage is the phrase, “For while we were in the flesh, the sinful passions, which were aroused by the Torah, were at work in the members of our body to bear fruit for death.” Sinful passions have always been aroused by Torah. In the Garden of Eden, Adam and Eve came to know sin only when YHWH said “thou shalt not eat” and then after they sinned they tried to cover up their nakedness. In addition the “new way, by the Spirit” is really the old way, of Abraham (Romans 4:2-16), but it became new because by Y’shua’s time the “conventional wisdom” of the Pharisees was anything but wise! The consistent point of Rav Shaul, though, is that Torah is the way sin is defined, and yet, just a few lines later he makes it clear that:

“As a result, Torah is Set Apart; and the Commandment is Set Apart, and righteous, and good” (Romans 7:12).

Notice that the “old way” was the Pharisees tradition of obeying the “letter of the Torah,” but this is most certainly not an indictment against Torah! Y’shua taught that Torah is good, but we are instructed to look at the intent, heart and spirit of Torah:

“Woe to you, teachers of the Torah and Pharisees, you hypocrites! You give a tenth of your spices--mint, dill and cummin. But you have neglected the more important matters of the Torah--justice, mercy and faithfulness. You should have practiced the latter, without neglecting the former” (Matthew 23:23).

“Yet a time is coming, and now has come, when the true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth, for they are the kind of worshippers the Father seeks. Elohim is spirit, and His worshippers must worship Him in spirit and in truth” (Yochanan 4:23-24).

Now let us look at the other passage where “died to the Torah” appears:

“For when I tried to keep the Torah, I realized I could never earn Elohim’s approval. So I died to the Torah so that I might live for Elohim. I have been crucified with Mashiyach” (Galatians 2:19).

Rav Shaul realized that he had fallen into the same trap that he now accuses other religious authorities of being in. He gives more details on the method behind that trap here:

“For you have heard of my former way of life in Judaism...I was advancing in Judaism beyond the Jews of my own age and was extremely zealous for the traditions of my fathers” (Galatians 1:13-14).

Notice Rav Shaul does not mention Torah here, but “the traditions of my fathers” (i.e., the fences built by men around the Torah). Here the ritual became so important that it gave birth to regulations that became erroneously identified as sanctification. Instead, the true justification is in the next line:

“But when Elohim, who set me apart from birth and called me to His grace, was pleased to reveal His Son to me so that I might preach him among the Gentiles, I did not consult any man” (Galatians 1:15-16).

Once again, it is always the faith behind the rituals that really counts.

#8: End of the Torah

Here is an important and very beautiful phrase that is equally apparent in both Aramaic and in Greek:

“Mashiyach is the end (Gk. telos) of the Torah, so that there may be righteousness for everyone who believes” (Romans 10:4 NIV).

While telos can mean, “end”, it is very irresponsible to render it this way due to the flexibility of that term in the receiving language. In English, “end” has two meanings. The first is “termination” which is the majority usage of the word in English. However, we also have phrases such as “the ends do not justify the means.” In this case, the lesser-used meaning is that of “goal”, which applies in both Greek and English.

Rav Shaul clearly refers to the Torah itself as “perfect, righteous and good” (Romans 7:12), so it is very foolish to then think that he turns around and teaches the “termination” of Torah. Instead, and as Rav Shaul clearly teaches in Galatians 3, Torah is the tutor that instructs and brings people to Mashiyach. Then, when a person understands and accepts the fact that Y’shua is Mashiyach, he (Mashiyach) becomes Torah’s goal. This is also one of the many meanings behind the cryptic remark in Yochanan 1, calling Y’shua the “Word (Torah/Miltha) made flesh.” By extreme contrast, the NIV translation of Romans 10:4 is the exact opposite of what the original texts meant! NIV makes it sound like Rav Shaul is a train conductor calling out a stop--“End of the Torah! Everyone get off!”

Furthermore, in certain key Renewed Covenant passages, telos can only mean “goal”:

“But now that you have been set free from sin and have become slaves to Elohim, the benefit you reap leads to holiness, and the goal (telos) is eternal life” (Romans 6:22).

“The goal (telos) of this command is love, which comes from a pure heart and a good conscience and a sincere faith” (1 Timothy 1:5).

“Obtaining as the goal (telos) of your faith the salvation for your souls” (1 Peter 1:9).

In Aramaic we find these same verses have the same reading as “goal” with the word saka. Like telos, the context provides the key to realizing the intended meaning. Because Rav Shaul continually upholds Torah in every way (Romans 3:31), then “goal” is also very consistent with the rest of his teaching.

#9: My Word/Commands/Commandments

Many Christian theologians posture that Y’shua brought “his own commandments”, and that these are somehow new and improved over the ones given in Torah. The same principles apply here as with the synonyms we discussed earlier, namely “commands” and “words”. However, since the Aramaic foundation for these principles has been established earlier, we need not visit linguistics again here, so let’s examine a few verses that are often twisted right out of context:

“Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away” (Matthew 24:35).

“For all who are ashamed of me and my words in this sinful and adulterous generation, the Son of man will also be ashamed of him when he comes in the glory of his Father with his Set Apart Messengers” (Mark 8:38).

“If you abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask whatever you wish, and it will be done for you” (Yochanan 15:7).

“This is my commandment: That you love one another, as I have loved you” (Yochanan 15:12).

The truth is that Y’shua’s words, commandments and commands, were all according to and validated by Torah:

"Now He said to them, "These are my words that I spoke to you while I was still with you, that all things that are written about me in the Torah of Moshe and the Prophets and the Psalms must be fulfilled" (Luke 24:44).

"You search the Scriptures because you think that in them you have eternal life; it is these that testify about Me; and you are unwilling to come to me so that you may have life. I do not receive glory from men; but I know you, that you do not have the love of Elohim in yourselves. I have come in my Father's name, and you do not receive me; if another comes in his own name, you will receive him. How can you believe, when you receive glory from one another and you do not seek the glory that is from the one and only Elohim? Do not think that I will accuse you before the Father; the one who accuses you is Moshe, in whom you have set your hope. For if you believed Moshe, you would believe me, for he wrote about me. But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?" (Yochanan 5:39-47)

In these other passages, Y'shua makes it very clear that his teachings do not even come from himself:

"My teaching is not my own, but His who sent me" (Yochanan 7:16).

"Do you not believe that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me? The words that I say to you I do not speak on my own initiative, but the Father abiding in me does His works" (Yochanan 12:49).

"For I did not speak on my own initiative, but the Father Himself who sent me has given me a commandment as to what to say and what to speak." (Yochanan 14:10).

"He who does not love me does not keep my words, and the word that you hear is not mine, but the Father's, who sent me." (Yochanan 14:24).

#10: A New Commandment

A variant of the above idea is the "new commandment" as a kind of sudden "New Testament" enlightenment that was not possible in Torah. Once again though, Scripture begs to differ. As with the previous topic, let's take a look the passage that gets twisted:

"A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another, even as I have loved you, that you also love one another" (Yochanan 13:34).

Now let us stop and think for a moment. Is anyone really so foolish as to believe that Torah, in all its writings, has no commandments for people to love one another? This was a brand new idea just 2,000 years ago? Really? Let's look at just a few Scriptures:

"You shall not take vengeance, nor bear any grudge against the sons of your people, but you shall love your neighbor as yourself; I am YHWH" (Leviticus 19:18).

"The stranger who resides with you shall be to you as the native among you, and you shall love him as yourself, for you were aliens in the land of Egypt; I am the YHWH your Elohim" (Leviticus 19:34).

"So show your love for the alien, for you were aliens in the land of Egypt" (Deuteronomy 10:18).

Obviously this is not a "new commandment" in the sense of it never having been given before. Rather, it is clear that this "new commandment" means this is the first time that Y'shua is giving this particular teaching to his apostles! Let's investigate more places where this "radical new idea" occurs:

"Now I ask you, lady, not as though I were writing to you a new commandment, but the one which we have had from the beginning, that we love one another. And this is love, that we walk according to His commandments. This is the commandment, just as you have heard from the beginning, that you should walk in it” (2 Yochanan 1:5-6).

What else can “His commands from the beginning” be other than Torah? Finally, the apostle Yochanan makes an even clearer statement on how new commandments are really about as ancient as it gets:

“Beloved, I am not writing a new commandment to you, but an old commandment that you have had from the beginning; the old commandment is the word that you have heard. On the other hand, I am writing a new commandment to you, which is true in Him and in you, because the darkness is passing away and the true Light is already shining” (1 Yochanan 2:7-8).

What we are seeing here is that these commandments have been with us from the beginning, but their highest and truest understanding has come through Mashiyach, the light of the world:

“In him (Y’shua) was life, and that life was the light of men. The light shines in the darkness, but the darkness has not understood it...For the Torah was given through Moshe, and grace and truth came through Y’shua the Mashiyach” (Yochanan 1:5, 17).

“This is the message we have heard from Him and announce to you, that Elohim is Light, and in Him there is no darkness at all” (1 Yochanan 1:5).

“For Elohim, who said, “Light shall shine out of darkness,” is the One who has shone in our hearts to give the Light of the knowledge of the glory of Elohim in the face of Mashiyach” (2 Corinthians 4:6).

“To me, the very least of all saints, this grace was given, to preach to the Gentiles the unfathomable riches of Mashiyach, and to bring to light what is the administration of the mystery which for ages has been hidden in Elohim who created all things; so that the manifold wisdom of Elohim might now be made known through the assembly to the rulers and the authorities in the heavenly places. This was in accordance with the eternal purpose which He carried out in Mashiyach Y’shua our Master, in whom we have boldness and confident access through faith in Him. Therefore I ask you not to lose heart at my tribulations on your behalf, for they are your glory” (Ephesians 3:8-14).

#11: Commandments Nailed to the Torture Stake

“And in his flesh (the) enmity and regulations of commands (contained) in his commandments are abolished (so) that in himself (an occurrence of the divine nature, or qnoma), he might make the two into one, establishing peace. And has reconciled both with Elohim in one body and has slain the enmity by his stake (of execution)” (Ephesians 2:15-16).

The key word, namusa, can sometimes mean “Torah” and other times “custom” or “regulation”. In Ephesians 2:15 though, it cannot mean “Torah” because a few lines earlier, in 2:11, Rav Shaul talks about the Gentiles being excluded from the “commonwealth of Israel” as a bad thing, and what else separates Israel from the nations other than Torah observance?

Instead, the better reading of namusa here and in several other key passages is “man made rules” or “regulations of the Pharisees.” The Greek backs this usage up beautifully in Ephesians 2:15 by recording the word dogma for “ordinances”, which can also only mean man-made doctrines. The Aramaic carries the meaning to an even clearer level by conjugating the phrase as namusa d’poqda b’poqadonhi, or “regulations of commands (dogma, rules of the Pharisees) contained in his commands (Y’shua’s true teaching) is abolished, leaving only the truth for the faithful to follow. Obviously no one else but Y’shua could be the “he” behind those commands, since only Y’shua can forgive sin!

Let us go even deeper into this critical portion of Scripture by looking at the previous line:

“For He Himself is our peace, who made both groups into one, and broke down the syaga (סִיגָא), the dividing wall” (Ephesians 2:14).

The highlighted word syaga means “fence”. Does this sound familiar?

“Moshe received the Torah at Sinai and handed it on to Joshua, Joshua to the elders, and elders to the prophets. And the prophets handed it down to the men of the great assembly. They said three things: Be prudent in judgment. Raise up many disciples. Make a fence (syag) for the Torah.” (Mishnah, Pirkei Avot, 1:1)

The Mishnah was written by the Pharisees! The “fences” are nothing but man made regulations that restrict access to the Torah! Look what Y’shua taught about this very thing:

“But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, because you shut off the kingdom of heaven from men; for you do not enter in yourselves, nor do you allow others who are entering to go in” (Matthew 23:13).

Y’shua even goes so far as to say that he is the Way to avoid fences:

“Truly I say to you he who does not enter by the tarea (תִּרְעָא) into the fold of the sheep, but climbs up some other way, he is a thief and a robber. But he who enters by the tarea (תִּרְעָא) is a shepherd of the sheep. To him the doorkeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice, and he calls his sheep by name and leads them out...Truly I say to you, I am the tarea (תִּרְעָא) of the sheep” (Yochanan 10:1-4, 7).

The word tarea can mean “door” but more specifically, a “sheep gate.” So while the Pharisees and later rabbis are busy making fences around Torah to get control over people, Y’shua is the shepherd who swings the gate open, letting everyone in to enjoy! Here is a similar passage that also gets twisted out of context:

“Having canceled out the certificate of debt consisting of decrees against us, which was hostile to us; and He has taken it out of the way, having nailed it to the stake” (Colossians 2:14).

At the risk of being overly repetitive, the same man who wrote that the Torah is Set Apart just and good cannot be referring to the Torah as the “certificate of debt nailed to the cross.” More fundamentally however, we have this:

We have already seen two Aramaic words (aurayta; namusa) and one Greek word (nomos) that have been the cognates used in the Renewed Covenant for the word “Torah” as mentioned in Tanakh. Even if you cannot read Aramaic or Greek it is not so difficult to consult a concordance either online or in any reference library. None of the words that mean “Torah” ever appear in either Greek or Aramaic in Colossians 2:14! So what, then, is “the certificate of debt”?

In Aramaic the word khawbayn, means both “debt” and “sin”. In addition, Y’shua used the same word in the Sermon on the Mount when he says, “Forgive our debts/offenses, as we forgive those who are in debt to us/have offended us.” Note that half the Greek texts read “debt” and the other half read “offense” because each group chose one of this word’s two meanings. However, in Aramaic thought, to be in sin is literally to be in debt! Also note that khawbayn is in the plural state, meaning “the certificate of our debts,” as in humanity collectively. That is why Y’shua says elsewhere:

“Y’shua said to them, ‘If you were blind you would have no sin, but since you say ‘we see’, your sin/debt remains’” (Yochanan 9:41).

Clearly, the certificate of our debts is simply a record of all the transgressions that we have generated throughout our lives. Torah tells us what those sins are, but what Y’shua did was take the transcript of our sins and nail it to the torture stake symbolically! However, the list of sins is only covered if the sinner is repentant and turns from sin, otherwise they stay on the books as a witness against them.

#12: Grace and Torah

Another very common misconception is that “grace” only came with Mashiyach’s advent. Prior to Mashiyach, many Christians posture, Jews were under the “age of law”, which has become obsolete by yielding to the “age of grace”. The fact is being either unilaterally “under grace”, or “under the law”, is a doctrine that has never been true! However, the “under grace” theology usually employs this verse:

“For the Torah was given through Moshe, grace and truth came through Y’shua the Mashiyach” (Yochanan 1:17).

Many claim that “grace” was only made manifest through the birth of Mashiyach. The big problem with this idea is that Yochanan himself bears strong witness against it!

In the beginning there was the Word, and the Word was with Elohim, and the Word was Elohim. He was with Elohim in the beginning...And the Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the One and Only, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth” (Yochanan 1:1-2, 14).

Y’shua’s origins are very clearly before Moshe existed. In fact, as the Word, his origins go back to a time before all humanity existed (Micah 5:1-2). Furthermore, promises relating to Mashiyach go all the way back to Genesis, since 49:10 tells us the scepter will not depart from Y’shua’s tribe of Judah. The fact is, the moment Adam and Eve were expelled from the Garden, a contingency in the plan of Elohim was created that culminated with Y’shua’s sacrifice on the torture stake. More fundamentally, is the matter of linguistics. Put simply, Aramaic writings very easily correlate the ancient values of “grace” or “mercy” that is not understood in the vehicular language of Greek:

“Anyone who rejected the Torah of Moshe died without mercy (rakhem--רחם) on the testimony of two or three witnesses” (Hebrews 10:28).

“Speak to those who are going to be judged by the Torah that gives freedom, because judgment without mercy (rakhem--רחם) will be shown to anyone who has not been merciful. Mercy (rakhem--רחם) triumphs over judgment” (Ya’akov 2:12-13).

As we can easily see here, “grace” could well be the valid reading in both these verses, the very same word is used in Tanakh:

“And may Elohim Almighty grant you grace (rakhem--רחם) in the sight of the man, that he may release to you your other brother and Benjamin. And as for me, if I am bereaved of my children, I am bereaved” (Genesis 43:14).

“And nothing from that which is put under the ban shall cling to your hand, in order that YHWH may turn from His burning anger and show mercy (rakhem--רחם) to you, and have compassion (rakhem--רחם) on you and make you increase, just as He has sworn to your fathers” (Deuteronomy 13:17).

If these pairs of quotes are not sufficient to make the point then there are nearly 40 additional passages with rakhem as “mercy”, “grace” or “compassion” to indicate this fact. There are also many synonyms to rakhem that have at least as many references that could be brought to the reader’s attention. Additionally, in the Renewed Covenant writings, rakhem is the overwhelming word of choice for “grace” appearing nearly two hundred times, and interestingly enough, the same word also means “love”. So, since YHWH has always loved us, we have also always had access to His grace if we admit our failings and seek Him with all our hearts.

#13: Praying in the Name of Y'shua

One of the foundational concepts within Christianity is that prayer is made in “the name of Jesus”,<sup>48</sup> and there are many verses that appear to support this but not all verses as we will soon discover. Nevertheless, here are some verses that appear to uphold this from the NIV:

“Peter replied, ‘Each of you must turn from your sins and turn to God, and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins. Then you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.’” (Acts 2:38 NIV)

“But Peter said, ‘I don’t have any money for you. But I’ll give you what I have. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, get up and walk!’” (Acts 3:6 NIV)

Also see Acts 3:16; 4:10; 4:30; 5:40-41; 9:27; 10:48; 16:18; 19:5; 19:13; 19:17; Romans 15:30; 1 Corinthians 1:2; 5:4; Ephesians 5:20; Philippians 2:10; 1 Thessalonians 4:1-2; 2 Thessalonians 1:12; 3:12; Hebrews 13:15; 1 John 3:23 that also appear to bolster this idea. However, we must correctly understand the difference between names and titles while considering that there is One Name - imbued with power and linked directly to the One Elohim – and then there are many titles, even of the human variety that are comparatively powerless on their own. The ironic point is, Name and names look and sound the same. The difference is not only within the intentions we display when speaking them, but the distinguishing office or power behind the name.

A very important Torah concept is that of the power of the promise. Put simply, Elohim gives or changes someone’s name, and the new meaning that is given to it points to a promise that He will fulfill. The best example of this is the patriarch Abraham:

“Abram threw himself on his face and Elohim spoke to him further, “As for Me, this is My covenant with you: You shall be the father of a multitude of nations, and you shall no longer be called Abram, but your name shall be Abraham” (Genesis 17:3-6).

Abram is Hebrew for “exalted father”. However, Abraham translates to “father of many nations,” which is exactly what Elohim promises. A short time later, after Abraham almost sacrifices his son Isaac, he is told:

“All nations of the earth shall bless themselves by your descendants” (Genesis 22:18).

Consider that the world shall bless itself through Abraham’s seed and now witness how this principle manifests itself:

“Jehosaphat stood in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem in the House of YHWH at the front of the new court. He said, YHWH Elohim of our fathers, truly You are the Elohim in heaven and You rule over the kingdoms of the nations; none can oppose You. O our Elohim, you dispossessed the inhabitants of this land before Your people Israel, and You gave it to the descendants of Your friend Abraham forever. They settled in it and built a House for Your name. They said, Should misfortune befall us--the punishing sword, pestilence or famine, we shall stand before this House and before You--for Your name is in this House--and we shall cry out to You in distress and You will listen and deliver us”’ (2 Chronicles 20:5-9).

Jehosaphat addressed Elohim directly in His House and then invoked the name of Abraham to access the power of Elohim’s promise to the patriarch. In Orthodox liturgy, this is called Yitzkar, or “Yah remembers.” It is done on Judaism’s holiest day, Yom Kippur, when the faithful pray that Elohim will remember their loved ones who have passed on because of the covenant with Abraham and his seed. This is very obviously not the same thing as someone invoking the name of a man as if he were Elohim. Rather, it is an affirmation of Elohim that says:

1) I heard Your words: 2) I understood Your promise: 3) I understood how and by whom You will carry that promise out: 4) I am grateful that You have done this for us, Your people Israel: 5) And now I pray in Your Name, and access the power of that promise by invoking the Name that You gave to the recipient of that promise.

This is a very Jewish concept to pray only in the name of YHWH, but ask in the name of the receiver of the promise. In Aramaic, the words pray and ask are not as nearly interchangeable as they appear to be in English. These are two very distinct words derived from completely different roots. As such, it is very easy to tell the difference between them. That clear delineation is also why, when you go through the Aramaic Renewed Covenant, you will always see Mashiyach or Paul addressing their prayers to MarYah, which literally means Master YHWH. In fact, the Aramaic Tanakh has MarYah in place of YHWH almost 7,000 times, so there is no doubt whatsoever of its meaning.

Conversely, if anyone wanted to pray in the name of the man, they would have used the phrase “Our Master” - Maran (מרן). However, as with Abraham, they can access the power of the promise of Elohim with Maran. From here, two questions emerge: How did this happen? Is it really in harmony with Tanakh?

It is quite obvious that the post-apostolic church founders never understood that the name Y’shua is empowered by YHWH, and by that empowerment, the greatest promise of all is within it. Put simply, we have name and Name here too. The mortal, and common name, of a man is Y’shua, a form of “Joshua” in English. There may be millions of Yehoshua-Joshua-Y’shuas in the world right now and for them it is their legal name, but there is no power or divine promise embodied into the person because they have this proper name.

However, the Name Y’shua was Set Apart by YHWH for Y’shua to also receive his unique anointing as Mashiyach: Y’shua means “Yah is salvation” in Hebrew. Therefore, to call upon Y’shua is to call upon Yah to save you if you pray with the appropriate intent. Because of this one crucial fact, it is a major transgression to apply a pagan name toward the Almighty Elohim. Exodus 20:7 restricts us from taking the Name in “vain”--shav-- means “to make desolate”. How is this done? By either directly transgressing against His Name, or taking the name of a pagan deity and applying it to YHWH. For example, one of the pagan gods was named Zeus and was addressed as “Kurios” and “Theos”, – exactly the same words that the Greek translators applied to YHWH in the Greek “New Testament”! To use a name for Zeus and then apply it YHWH renders the Name above all Names as shav, literally giving His glory to another (Isaiah 42:8). If is true for the Father, then this same principle also applies for the Son! Furthermore, that is why Philippians 2:9-11 says:

“Wherefore, also, Elohim has highly exalted him and given him a name which is more excellent than all names; that at the name of Y’shua every knee should bow, of (beings) in heaven and on earth and under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Master YHWH is Y’shua Mashiyach to the glory of Elohim his Father.”

Hebrews 1:4 also teaches that the glory always goes to YHWH, but “the name that is above all names” is also YHWH; reason being, every other name for an angel has EL in it (MichaEL, UriEL, RaphaEL, etc). EL is a name for Elohim but not the name of Elohim that YHWH is. Once again, the verse points to the Hebrew and Aramaic name and identity of Mashiyach, because the Name of YAH is in the name of Y’shua.

However, as alluded to earlier, not all verses support the mainstream Christian tradition; in fact, one neglected passage can correct the standard interpretation of dozens of others. That is why the “name of Jesus” references were kept intact with the Gentile name Jesus, because now you will see for yourself how difficult it is to understand the truth of what “Y’shua” means by using the Gentile name of “Jesus”. However, here is the passage that breaks the truth wide open:

“I will remain in the world no longer, but they are still in the world, and I am coming to you. Holy Father, protect them by the power of Your Name--the same name you gave me--so that they may be one as we are one” (John 17:11).

How about that? Even the Greek New Testament reads this way, proclaiming that the “name of Y’shua” is really that of YHWH. Therefore, every time we lift up our voices to Y’shua, we are really proclaiming praise to the one and only YHWH, literally, to the glory of the Father. Furthermore, since there is only One Name for the One Elohim, those who call on the true Name of YHWH become one with Y’shua, which then makes them one with YHWH. So, to bring it all together we can confidently:

- Pray in the name of YHWH.
- Ask for the power of YHWH’s promises in the name of the method of their fulfillment, but only as a way to bring glory to YHWH. This involves, by the way, performing miracles. Take the case in Acts 4:1-12. In that passage, Jews who witnessed the miracles of Peter and Yochanan were not content to hear that they simply came from Elohim. Instead, they wanted to specifically know by what name it was done. Peter says it was by the name of Y’shua the Mashiyach of Nazareth that a lame man was healed. However, Peter is careful to make the point that YHWH Himself raised Y’shua from the dead so that this power could be accessed when he believed the same thing. So, when he adds in verse 12, “For there is no name under heaven given to men by which we must be saved,” he is not saying that Y’shua the man replaces YHWH. Rather, what Peter means is that there is no other Mashiyach that Elohim has chosen except Y’shua to fulfill YHWH’s promise. To say the Name then of Y’shua, is to acknowledge the power of YHWH to save us according to His Word.
- Immerse in the name of the Father (YHWH, Who promised and sent the Son), in the name of the Son (Y’shua, who fulfilled YHWH’s promise) and the Set Apart Spirit (who is the “spirit of truth” that gives you the reasons behind the ritual). Reason: for only in that manner are the complete methods of fulfilling that promise recognized (Ezekiel 36:24), with all the glory again to YHWH. The Aramaic word for this carries a meaning closer to “immersion”, as in using Jewish ritual mikveh baths. Also, the fact is that Ruach haKodesh (Set Apart Spirit) is another name for YHWH (Psalm 51:11) and the Mashiyach has the Divine Nature within him that only comes from YHWH (Isaiah 11:1-2, 1 Corinthians 12:3).
- Assemble in the Name of YAH – SHUA: “When two or more gather in my name, there I am in the midst,” refers to these days when Mashiyach has physically departed from the world. He resurrected and ascended to “the right hand of the Father.” This is a metaphor that means “to dwell next to the Father” (Psalm 110:1). Two or three souls gather together to bear witness to the directives given by the Spirit of Mashiyach. So, remembering that Yochanan told us about the Word made flesh that was with Elohim in the beginning (also see Yochanan 17:5), what happens after ascension is that Y’shua becomes the Word again. We know this because when he comes out of heaven again he is called by the name that he took on when he entered it two millennia before: Word of Elohim (Revelation 19:13)! Therefore, since the Word is with YHWH again, they are inseparable, and to gather in that Name is to gather in the Name of YHWH, while accessing the power of the promise of His Mashiyach.

#14: Israel and the Church

A doctrine known as replacement theology began in early all-Gentile Christian churches that postures the idea that all the blessings of the Bible were transferred to Christians and all the curses in the Bible fell upon Jews. While this may remain as a popular Christian belief, it is nevertheless very unscriptural:

*“Sing for joy, O heavens! Rejoice, O earth! Burst into song, O mountains!
For YHWH has comforted his people and will have compassion on them in their sorrow.*

Yet Jerusalem says, "YHWH has deserted us; YHWH has forgotten us." Never! Can a mother forget her nursing child? Can she feel no love for a child she has borne? But even if that were possible, I would not forget you! See, I have written your name on my hand. Ever before me is a picture of Jerusalem's walls in ruins. Soon your descendants will come back, and all who are trying to destroy you will go away" (Isaiah 49:13-17).

"What then is the superiority of the Jew? Or what is the advantage of circumcision? Much in every way. And first, because to them were entrusted the words of Elohim. For if some of them have not believed, have they, by their not believing, made the faith of Elohim inefficient? Far be it: for Elohim is truthful, and every man false: as it is written: That you might be upright, in your declarations; and be found pure when they judge you" (Romans 3:1-4).

Obviously, both of these passages refer to Jews and not Gentile Christians, since Christians are assumed to be Rav Shaul's audience in Romans. Also please read Romans 11:1, 11-17 and verses 25 through 29.

Rav Shaul clearly attacks hypocrites (who happen to be Jewish), rather than all Jews which would include himself. It is also very clear that Jewish sinners are not the only people Rav Shaul rebukes in his writings. Please see 1 Corinthians 5:1-13.

So if all Israel is saved, where is the "Church" in all this? You will find the answer in Ephesians 2:11-14. But, the reality is, there never was such thing as the "Church" in the days of the original Apostles - only a renewed Israel that Gentiles are welcomed to join! Gentiles do not "replace" Israel but become part of Israel! Please read Jeremiah 31:31 which very clearly references the recipients of the Renewed Covenant.

#15: The "New" Covenant

The "New" Covenant is introduced within the writings of the "Old" (please see Jeremiah 31:31-34/ Hebrews 8:8). So, when Hebrews 8:13 says that the Renewed Covenant is to put aside the "Old," it is not that the Old became obsolete and terminated. Rather, it is a clear fact of Scripture that the "New" Covenant arises as a contingency out of the "Old," because Israel rejected YHWH's laws. If the "New" Covenant gains its power from what was revealed beforehand, then what came before cannot be rendered as useless. Paul explains this matter:

"And for this reason he became the Mediator of the renewed covenant, that he might by his death be redemption to them who had transgressed the first covenant; so that they who are called to the eternal inheritance might receive the promise" (Hebrews 9:15).

This is, once again, also described in the "Old" Covenant and was in fact prophesied in Isaiah 53:1-12. In reality, the terms "Old" and "New" Covenant are a misnomer, of course, and very misleading. Nevertheless the Ancient Paths that lead to the Everlasting Truth about the Renewed Covenant are right within most Bibles, accessible by all "lovers of Truth."

#16: Echad as Plurality

"Hear O Israel, YHWH is our Elohim, YHWH is One." Deuteronomy 6:4

This is enough evidence, right here, to convince most Jews that there is only One Elohim whose Name is YHWH. Three is not one regardless of how you do the math and that's the problem. Man's math and science and tradition is opposed to YHWH's! Perhaps you've heard that in Deuteronomy 6:4 "one" is echad (אחד), which can mean a unity. If Elohim were exclusively singular, this would read yachid (יחיד) which can only mean one." Yes, Echad (אחד) does in fact have a compound singularity in it, such as having one synagogue with a hundred people inside. However, the situation is more complicated than this. The fact is, yachid is a very rare word, and in Hebrew the number one is echad, so it also refers to things that are exclusively singular. This does not mean, however, that Christians are entirely wrong in using echad as a pointer to the “Godhead.” Some of the greatest Jewish rabbis, sages and mystics have been doing just that for centuries.

Nevertheless, the reality is that echad is pointing to the fact that Elohim is infinite. 1 Kings 8:27 relates this very clearly. Not even the uttermost reaches of the heavens can contain Him. Therefore, we must say echad, because while He is One, the number one cannot contain Him either. Infinity is greater than one!

On the other hand, Deuteronomy 6:4 agrees with the rest of Scripture which states:

“By the Word of YHWH the Heavens were made, and by the breath of His mouth, all their host” (Psalm 33:6).

“But a shoot will grow out of the stump of Jesse. A twig shall sprout from his stock. The Spirit of YHWH shall alight upon him: A spirit of wisdom and insight, a spirit of counsel and valor, a spirit of devotion and reverence for YHWH” (Isaiah 11:1-2).

“Listen to Me, O Jacob, Israel, whom I have called: I am He - I am the first, and I am the last as well. My own hand founded the earth. My right hand spread out the skies” (Isaiah 48:12).

The Spirit of YHWH sends several spirits also from YHWH to alight on a man and the Word of YHWH doing creation but wait - Isaiah says Elohim did that alone! Once again, Elohim is One, and Infinity includes everything. That is why Trinity does not work, because it reduces Elohim to the level of His aspects, or the signs of His Infinity.

In the century before the birth of Mashiyach, Judaism was an incredibly diverse and variegated phenomenon, with deep disagreements on just about every major issue. This plurality of belief is not only mentioned in detail by the first century historian Josephus (Antiquities 18.1.2.) and in the Renewed Covenant Writings with regard to Messianic expectations, (Matthew 16:13-14), but it also permeates almost every aspect of what we know about life in Israel during that period. Even so, and of course acknowledging deep differences of opinion on the identity and power of Mashiyach, Torah – just before the dawn of the Common Era – paints a far different picture of “the Godhead.” Instead of three Divine persons, the infinite Elohim has spirits or aspects, and it is these aspects, imbued with His one divine nature, that manifest themselves in various ways. This is echad (אחד), not Trinity.

After the advent of Mashiyach, however, the Netzarim (Acts 24:12-14) revised this picture slightly. To them, the Word of YHWH (davar in the Hebrew of Psalm 33:6) became the Arm of YHWH, or Mashiyach, (Isaiah 53:1). It is the Arm of YHWH’s job to save (Exodus 6:6). Additionally, the “spirit of counsel” mentioned in Isaiah 11:1-2, was linked to the Ruach haKodesh that David prayed about (Psalm 51:11); again the main point being, they all came from Elohim and share in the one divine nature.

#17: His Blood Be on Us and Our Children

Perhaps the most famous “anti-Semitic” line in the entire “NT” is Matthew 27:25 where “all the crowd” is said to have invoked an eternal curse upon all the Jewish people. But let’s remember that Matthew himself was also called Levi and Matthew is certainly not pronouncing a curse upon himself and his own people!

In response to the obvious facts, some bigots suggest that the religious elite were the ones who set the curse, and then, by extension the curse flows over all Jews. Those who are obsessed with hating Jews will always find reason to hate; they obviously know not Y’shua or the Word of YHWH. Nevertheless, some Pharisees did in fact pronounce a curse upon themselves and their descendants, yet very few realize how this works. Yochanan 11:48-53 makes it quite obvious that the religious elite feared for the entire destruction of Israel at the hands of the Romans, and not just their own personal loss of power. In addition, they were trying to deal with two Scriptural possibilities.

Since Y'shua was performing miracles, they knew it was very possible that he could be the Mashiyach. However, if so, Mashiyach's main purpose was to die for Israel, to be a substitutionary sacrifice for the nation (Isaiah 53:1-12). That is perhaps why Caiaphas even says Y'shua would die, either way. If Y'shua was the Mashiyach, he was supposed to do this. If he wasn't, according to their human reasoning, his death might still prevent the deaths of tens of thousands of others should Rome decide to destroy Israel, which it turns out, they in fact did, anyway. Even Y'shua predicted this, so he and Caiaphas actually agreed on this same point.

However, if they killed an innocent man in order to save the nation (better that one should die than the rest perish), Caiaphas still believed Israel would benefit. The reason is, if they made this horrible mistake, the worst that could happen is that their sin would be carried to the fourth generation (Exodus 20:5, 34:7; Numbers 14:18, Deuteronomy 5:9), but Israel proper would survive. If they did not act, however, then the fear was, justifiable or not, that there would be no Israel ever again, for hundreds of generations. In other words, no matter what, Y'shua had to die, which was exactly his mission in his own words, anyway. It may seem self-serving that Paul would speak so highly of his own race but he clearly taught that Jews “...are beloved for the fathers' sake” (Romans 11:28).

#18: Turn Thy Cheek

Y'shua taught his followers to make sacrifices for the Kingdom and to “take up their cross” and follow him. Many Christians take these ideas literally, knowing what he did on the stake; and, at certain times of the year, they parade large wooden crosses through the streets of their cities. While Y'shua predicted hardships for his followers, he also told them to rejoice when it happened – but this didn't mean he wanted them to roll over and play dead. Clearly he intended his followers to live! And while it is true that Y'shua instructed his disciples not to resist his accusers on his behalf (when he was being arrested), that does not mean he taught against self-defense.<sup>49</sup> Y'shua, in fact, instructed his disciples to buy swords in Luke 22:36-38 in spite of the reference in John 18:10-12 concerning his knowledge that a contingent had come against him as part of his mission. That is why Y'shua says in John 18:33-37, “My kingdom is not of this world. If it were, my servants would fight to prevent my arrest by the religious authorities. But now my kingdom is from another place.” “You are a king, then!” said Pilate. Y'shua answered, “You are right in saying I am a king. In fact, for this reason I was born, and for this I came into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone on the side of truth listens to me.”

Y'shua clearly teaches that his kingdom does not exist based on people dying even to save his life! Yet in Matthew 5:38-42 many assume that “do not resist an evil person” means to be a pacifist, when in reality, it simply means to not repay evil with evil!

As everyone knows, a person who unjustly assaults or steals from his fellow man is subject to penalty and discipline, and is required to make restitution. In ancient times it was not uncommon for some to try to “get even” with an adversary by killing them over very minor offenses, even going so far as to murder that person's family. Therefore YHWH put a limitation on vengeance (i.e. take one eye for an eye), the opposite of what has been taught in the Christian West which views “eye for an eye” as the judgments of a wrathful Elohim.

In addition, Torah rightfully interpreted and understood is the most just and fair of any legislation on this earth. Where else in the world were the rich commanded to leave the edges of their fields un-harvested so as to feed the poor? Nowhere! Where else were the rich required to make non-interest-bearing loans for the poor? Where else were criminals required to make restitution for their lies and stealing so that anyone who participated in criminal activity would be rehabilitated and treated as an equal? In most countries there is no legislation to rehabilitate criminals or make restitution for what they have stolen from others, yet many people think and speak very evil things against Torah.

<sup>49</sup> The famous saying “those who live by the sword will die by the sword” applied to men trying to dominate the earth and fill it with evil (Luke 21:20-28), not to those defending their right to survive.

Y'shua always taught obedience to the law! In other words, if someone is going to sue for your tunic and cloak – the only two pieces of clothing a Jew was required to wear – it must truly be for a very good reason. If the judge then grants the plaintiff's request, the guilty party must comply, even if it means he will be going home naked. Granted this is an extreme example, but it is exactly the kind of graphic imagery that Y'shua knew would have an impact on his listeners.

Finally, Y'shua advised his followers to do everything they could to prevent such lawsuits. If we give more than we are actually asked to, no one can hold us guilty. But it is the “flip side” to that concept that relates to the heart of what we are discussing. An investigation of Matthew 5:25-26 indicates that settling matters with your adversary is far better than a confrontation in court. Even if you are in the right it is always in your best interests to do whatever you can to resolve the matter outside of court.

Y'shua calls his followers to be beyond reproach so that false accusations against them will not have a negative impact. He knows that “they will lay hands on you and persecute you” on account of his name's sake (Luke 21:12) and he tells us: “If the world hates you, keep in mind that it hated me first” (John 15:18-25). Nevertheless, the fact remains that Y'shua always expects the best possible efforts from his followers, and this is where “turning the other cheek” really comes into play.

Keefa (Peter) was rebuked for cutting off the ear of a member of the arresting party. Y'shua felt so strongly about this being wrong that he restored the stricken man's ear. Why? Because he didn't want to escalate the situation and risk the safety of his own disciples.

Y'shua wanted the assaulter to have an opportunity to re-think his actions. Oftentimes assaults are made during momentary acts of emotion. For these reasons, Y'shua says turn your left cheek, and then see if your attacker is running on their emotions. Most people, if given a moment to think about what they are doing, would probably not resort to violence. However, even if someone did, the act would indicate the intent and be so blatant that it would virtually guarantee either arrest and/or conviction of assault. Either way, this would again serve as an opportunity for both parties to make one final attempt toward reconciliation before escalating the matter further and winding up in court.

Epistle to the Hebrews

The author of the Hebrews Epistle was none other than Rav Shaul (Apostle Paul). But if there is confusion about this, don't be surprised; even Origen stated that “only G-d knows who wrote this.” However, in the Middle East, there has never been any doubt about it. The earliest Aramaic manuscripts of this Epistle state:

End of the Letter to the Hebrews; which was written from Italy of Rome;
and was sent by the hands of Timothy.

Timothy was known to deliver manuscripts for Rav Shaul alone. Plus, the timing of Hebrews fits very well with Rav Shaul being imprisoned in Rome, from which he wrote a number of other letters according to reliable Eastern and Western sources. Timothy would not be acting as a courier for either Barnabbas or Luke; therefore, the only other possibility would be Peter, who was also imprisoned in Rome at about this same time. However, if Peter had written Hebrews, especially since Galatians 2:8 calls him the Apostle to Jews, there would be ancient testimony to support this. But there is none.

Instead, Peter's letters, unlike his in-person ministry which we know was centered east of Jerusalem (Galatians 2:8, 1 Peter 5:12), are focused on Gentile populations (1 Peter 1:1-2; 2 Peter 3:1<sup>50</sup>). Furthermore, Timothy is only mentioned as being imprisoned along with Rav Shaul in Rome and released before his master to deliver his letters (Romans 16:21, Philippians 1:1<sup>51</sup>; 1 Thessalonians 3:2; 1 Timothy 1:2, 2 Timothy 1:16; Philemon 1:10, 13).

For these reasons and many others, the Eastern traditions supporting Pauline authorship are extremely strong. As a result, other early Aramaic sources such as the Marganitha have no problem, whatsoever, in proclaiming on page 124 "Fourteen epistles of the Great Apostle Paul..." specifically including Hebrews.

Introductory Doxology

Hebrews does not retain the familiar introductory doxology that Rav Shaul was known to use, but this in no way detracts from the ancient testimony and internal textual evidence that otherwise points to its authenticity. Perhaps the author was identified by his famous "distinguishing mark" or a seal on the original document (1 Corinthians 16:22;<sup>52</sup> 2 Thessalonians 3:17) but not on the copies of the text that came later. Perhaps the Hebrews Epistle was part of a corpus sent from Rome by Rav Shaul that the courier or couriers separated out as it made the rounds. The Marganitha relates how Timothy sent both letters to the Thessalonians, and it is confirmed that he was sent for this purpose by Rav Shaul in 1 Thessalonians 3:2. However, the Epistles to the Ephesians and the Colossians were also written from the apostle's imprisonment in Rome but sent by another messenger, Tychicus. Still another Roman written Epistle, Philippians, was sent by Epaphroditus to its destination.<sup>53</sup> And so, with these facts in mind, it is quite conceivable how some of these messengers could have traveled together from Rome and then, when parting company, Timothy was given this text from an existing letter to courier to the Hebrews. As for the receiving assemblies, Timothy's prior courier activities would have automatically provided authenticity to manuscripts coming from him as having been written by his master Rav Shaul, and Hebrews was received on that basis by the Church of the East for that very reason.

There are also other possibilities; but these examples are meant to show that both Scripture and early traditions can point us in the right direction.

When was Hebrews Written?

Clearly Hebrews was written during Rav Shaul's lifetime since Hebrews 8:4 reads: "And if he [Y'shua] were on earth, he would not be a priest; because there are priests [there], who offer oblations agreeably to the Torah." Since this is written in the present tense, it indicates that the source of the earthly sacrifices, namely the Temple in Jerusalem, was still standing when the Epistle was written.

Hebrews & Torah

Hebrews 8:13 is often cited as being anti-Torah, however, throughout chapter seven the "instruction" (Torah) of the Levitical priests is shown according to priestly modalities consistent with Torah. By his tithe, Awraham submitted his sons to the MalkiTsedec priesthood. The priestly model in Exodus gives way to its predecessor from Genesis, which is in accordance with 50 In 2 Peter 3:1, Peter refers to his audience as getting his second letter. Therefore, the strong implication is that they are the same assemblies in Asia Minor that received his previous epistle.

51 Particularly clear in this verse, if "bondservant" for Rav Shaul and Timothy is taken literally, it can refer to their joint imprisonment, which is directly mentioned by Rav Shaul later in that chapter, in 1:14.

52 In Ruach Qadim I argue that an Aramaic phrase like Maran atha (our Master, come) in 1 Corinthians 16:22 may in fact be a distinguishing mark going to a predominantly Greek speaking audience! My suspicion is that the phrase acted as an authenticating code word for the synagogue officials who were charged with translating it from Aramaic into Greek for their congregation.

53 Both according to ancient eastern testimony on Peshitta NT manuscripts and as recorded in the Marganitha, p. 124.

all the prophecies in the Tanakh. It is simple anti-Torah posturing to use this passage to teach that the “Law” is passing away, when in fact it is clearly referring to instructions for the Levitical priesthood!

However, it is also vital to understand that the akeida (binding of Isaac) points to the MalkiTsedec priesthood, not to the Levitical priesthood. The akeida is fully realized in Mashiyach ben Yoseph, the Suffering Servant who is Y’shua. Furthermore, a change in the priestly line also requires the Levitical priesthood to actualize the order of the MalkiTsedec priesthood as it pertains to their service unto YHWH as Cohanim.

The Golden Censer

Some theologians posture that Hebrews 9:3-4 erroneously mentions a “golden censer” in the Holy of Holies. However, Torah supports the reading in Hebrews and indicates a golden censer in the Kadosh Kadoshim (Set Apart of the Set Aparts). “And he shall take a machtah (censer) full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before YHWH, and his hands full of sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the veil: And he shall put the incense upon the fire before YHWH, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not” (Leviticus 16:12, 13).

The word machtah for “censer” is also translated as “incense” because the censer holds the incense. Not all the times that “incense” is mentioned necessarily refer to the censer, but all “censers” can also be referring to the incense they carry. However, the Aramaic besma in Hebrews 9:4, has the majority meaning of “incense” and can never be referring to the altar.

In the Peshitta Tanakh, the censer by itself can be called pyrma, but when the incense is in it, then it is besma, especially when the kohen is carrying the “incense”; then it must also be a “censer”. Bamidbar (Numbers) 17:11 (Jewish) /16:46 (Christian) actually contains both words but one is understood to also include the other. Greek, too, holds up well, as libanatos refers to the censer, but it is derived from the same word as frankinsence, a key part of the incense recipe! Furthermore, Hebrews tends to favor besma, whereas Revelation 8 favors pyrma, but they both refer to the same thing. One could easily become confused, but a bit of extra effort reveals that what was rendered “incense” is actually another censer in the Kadosh Kadoshim. Some have objected that Moshe does not call that censer “golden”: however, to answer that, here is a very reliable ancient Jewish testimony which does not conflict with the written Torah:

“There were also many, and those of various kinds, of sweet spices, that belonged to the tabernacle, and such as were of very great price, and were brought to the golden altar of incense;” (Josephus Antiquities 3:198)

It is important to note that “golden” need not refer to the metal, but the fact that Torah says that burning coals and incense are in the “firepan” making it glow through the apertures.

The bottom line is, if the meaning of only one key word is somehow misconstrued, then the truth of the whole passage can easily be lost. Even most Hebrew translations indicate “incense” and besma as “censer”. Hebrews 9:4 reflects the ancient tradition that does not overturn the peshat (plain, basic, simple understanding) of Scripture. Aramaic speaks plainly: there was a censer in the Kadosh Kadoshim and it was golden, exactly as Hebrews says.

Hebrews 9:19

Some theologians posture that Hebrews 9:19 is inaccurate when referring to the heifer and the mixture of its blood, hyssop, water and scarlet wool because the sprinkling is not mentioned in Exodus 24, nor is the mixture stated therein. However, Leviticus 14:6 mentions scarlet yarn, referencing the color, not the material. Most experts assume “thread” is implied (Genesis 38:28), just like the Hebrew does not say “hand” directly when Benjamin is interpreted literally as “son of my right” but everyone knows it is “right hand.” Wool is, of course, white in its natural state, but the Torah commands it to being dyed scarlet, which is why Isaiah uses the metaphor in the first place.

More specifically, Rav Shaul probably derived the idea that the scarlet material was wool from verses like Exodus 26:31, 36 which indicate the tentway is made of A) scarlet (insert material of choice here)” and B) fine twisted linen.” In other words, the linen is not dyed and material A) is clearly shown to not be linen. Well, what’s left if not wool? Scarlet goat hair? No! The fact is, specific material is not mentioned in Torah unless it is required, as is also the case in Leviticus 13:47-48 and Deuteronomy 22:11.

Deuteronomy 22:11 forbids mixing material to make garments, but there are two issues here. First, that it seems to refer to common clothing, and not priestly vestments, as is shown here: Exodus 28:15 “You shall make a breastpiece of judgment, the work of a skillful workman; like the work of the ephod you shall make it: of gold, of blue and purple and scarlet (material) and fine twisted linen you shall make it. If it were all linen it would say so. And second, although it is possible to weave linen and wool into one yarn, this is clearly not being done here, either. You have garment A) out 100 percent wool yarn, and garment B) out of 100 percent fine twisted linen. The linen certainly does not have wool in its thread, or vice versa.

Is there a contradiction in the manner of sprinkling?

Again, no. There are two separate issues. First, there is a clear telescoping of two events we know to be separated by the monthly timetable established by the Tanakh. Two events are being taught together at one time, to establish a spiritual point; the seams are quite evident. Event #1 in Hebrews 9:19-20, teaches that the blood is for atonement. Event #2 is the blood being sprinkled on the tabernacle later. This appears to suggest the blood from that day lasted 8-9 months and then was sprinkled on the tabernacle; but again, this is how events are combined to make a spiritual point. Clearly Paul knew, as did his audience, that additional blood prepared in the same manner was required in Exodus 40. Although the reading may appear as “this same blood” the meaning more closely resembles “blood derived from this same manner.”

This idea becomes even clearer when we realize that Exodus 24:5 refers to burnt offerings and sacrificed bulls, whereas Exodus 40:29 refers to burnt offerings and meal offerings. We could be much more demanding and ask where the specific reference to the sacrificed bull is in Exodus 40, but that is hardly the smoking gun against Hebrews. Again, telescoping does not mean this is one flowing event; the details from both events are being used in a spiritual discussion, something sages and rabbis have done from the beginning. On the other hand, blood is still involved with the burnt offering: Leviticus 4:7 ‘The priest shall also put some of the blood on the horns of the altar of fragrant incense which is before YHWH in the tent of meeting; and all the blood of the bull he shall pour out at the base of the altar of burnt offering which is at the doorway of the tent of meeting.’

The second issue is that there are multiple references to the altar and the people being sprinkled with blood from the same sacrifice. Therefore, it would not be inaccurate to conclude, given the book’s placement by the altar, that it also absorbed an amount of blood.

Is there a contradictory language in Hebrews 9:23?

“For it was necessary that these, the representations of heavenly things, should be purified, with those things; but the heavenly things themselves, with a sacrifice superior to them.” (Hebrews 9:23). Here we find a poor translation from original Aramaic into Greek, with certain singular-plural confusions arising.

The word damota indicates a representation, not an exact reflection, of an object. Sometimes critics of Hebrews say that the comparison of the earthly Temple objects to the heavenly puts the epistle into error. However, if exact reflection/image was intended, another word, tzelma, would have been used. This word is used, for example, in Hebrews 1:3, where Y'shua is called the exact identical reflection/image of YHWH's nature.

Another Aramaic word daka (purification) refers only to earthly representations of Temple objects, not the heavenly. The items in the Heavenly Temple need no such purification.

And finally, the Aramaic word here, debkha (sacrifice), appears the same way in the singular and plural form. In this context, there is only one sacrifice superior to the earthly Temple, and that is Y'shua himself.

Much of the misinformation that has been disseminated about the Epistle to the Hebrews is relatively easy to refute. In reality, the writer of Hebrews displays an accurate and very detailed understanding of the priesthood and Temple services, which rings very true of Rav Shaul's expertise.

Father of Heavenly Lights

The title Father of Heavenly Lights as mentioned in James 1:17, depicts YHWH as residing from above but not necessarily as in "up there." The highest level of Scriptural understanding is known as the sod (secret or hidden) level. The mystics reasoned that since the greatest reaches of the heavens could not contain YHWH (1 Kings 8:27), that there must be another dimension of space that holds "the rest of Him," for lack of a better term. This other place then would be a complete spiritual dimension for infinity to reside, because infinity divided by any sum is still infinity. To the mystics then, this region is called the "highest heaven" and its sole Resident is the part of YHWH that can never be seen (John 6:46), otherwise known as Ein Sof ([He that is] without end). So what James is saying here is that all good things come from above where Ein Sof is, and then descend down to us, even as Y'shua says:

"But this is the Bread that has descended from Heaven that a man may eat from it and he will not die! I am the Living Bread who has descended from Heaven. And if a man should eat from this Bread, he will live forever. And the Bread that I give is my body which I give for the sake of the life of the world" (Yochanan 6:50-51).

Jewish mystics have taught for thousands of years that in highest heaven all shining splendors (heavenly lights) come down from Ein Sof (the Father), and because there is no shifting of shadow He cannot be seen! It is also no coincidence that all the major mystical works were rendered in Aramaic as is this Epistle. Scholars have noted for decades that the dialect of the Zohar and related works is closely related to Aramaic of the Peshitta Renewed Covenant. Continuing with the imagery presented in this brief but very powerful verse, we have the phrase in the exercise of His will. In the mystical tradition, the chief heavenly light (or sefira) is called Keter. In terms of its dictionary definition, Keter means "crown," but idiomatically the crown of a king also contains his will and his knowledge. The mystics also teach that this first emanation from the Father of Heavenly Lights contains all the forces and vibrations of all the other sefirot combined, and these other attributes all unfold out from Keter forming the "tree of life."

Feasts

The Feasts of YHWH address all aspects of community, education, fellowship with YHWH and one another; they play an extremely essential role in preparing YHWH's people for the return of Mashiach. Within these set times of YHWH the perfection of Mashiach is exercised through giving, sharing and experiencing the Kingdom of Elohim. Each of the Feasts holds spiritual and prophetic connections to the Divine that connect our spirits in ways far beyond the intellect. Elements of the Feasts in the natural world all point to the spiritual world. The Feasts of YHWH are signs between the Almighty YHWH and His people. YHWH created the Sun, Moon and Stars for Moedim (appointed times or feasts); they serve as YHWH's timepieces set in the heavens to allow mankind to be in tune with the Kingdom of Elohim and learn of His will for our lives.

"YHWH said to Moshe, "Tell the people of Israel, 'You are to observe my Shabbats (feasts); for this is a sign between me and you through all your generations; so that you will know that I am YHWH, who sets you apart for me. Therefore you are to keep my Shabbat, because it is set apart for you. Everyone who treats it as ordinary must be put to death; for whoever does any work on it is to be cut off from his people'" (Exodus 31:12-14). YHWH set forth His Feasts for mankind to distinguish between ordinary time where mundane work is done, and Set Apart time that belongs unto YHWH. Each of YHWH's Feasts have unique Shabbats which are Set Apart for rest and separation unto YHWH which enable the spiritual man to grow from faith to faith.

Succoth versus Christmas

Every original and authentic Feast of YHWH also has an opposing counterfeit "feast" that Christianity adopted from paganism. For example Succoth (Feast of Tabernacles) is the Feast on which Y'shua was born and circumcised; this Feast has many distinguishing components for all peoples of every nation on Earth. Succoth was prophesied to be observed by YHWH's people from the time it was revealed, all the way through into the seventh millennium (see Zechariah 14:16). The counterfeit feast to Succoth is Christmas, which has its origins in "mystery" Babylon and pagan sun worship. Christmas was celebrated long before post-apostolic pagan church founders syncretized Mithras into Gentile Christianity and, although most Christians realize the impossibility of Y'shua's being born on December 25th, it is strongly defended by false theology – and, of course, is one of the most popular counterfeit pseudo Christian feasts on Earth.

Rebellious and lawless feasting is devastating the moral fabric of society; and ranking at the top among these festivals of the fallen world are Christmas and New Years day. Parties are rife with drunkenness, gluttony and debauchery, unfortunately considered by the majority of society as "normal behavior." The fruits of these anti-Mashiyach festivals are often loneliness, depression, anxiety and financial stress. In contrast, YHWH's Set Times are abundant with righteousness and goodness along with a wholeness that elevates each soul and brings equality and deep spiritual connection with YHWH and His Mashiyach. It is sad that precious few Christians have ever sought to test YHWH's Word to discover what it means to be a Kedoshim (Set Apart People) unto YHWH!

The household of Faith will never recognize Christmas in any fashion because it is anti-Mashiyach and was installed into Christianity by a pagan culture. The pagan feasts like Christmas, Easter, Valentine's Day, Halloween and worship on Sunday, originated with haSatan for the purpose of leading souls away from the Kingdom of Elohim. These same "feasts" and the pagan deities being commemorated were strongly opposed by YHWH through His prophets. Only a fool would think that what was once a wicked thing has become sanctified and good because of religious traditions.

The root of paganism and rebellion is to claim that man with his various "religions" has the ability to sanctify what YHWH calls evil. For instance, when the golden calf was made in the wilderness the Israelites dared to call it by the Name of YHWH, and they built an altar to the golden calf in the Name of YHWH. These rebellious acts resulted in 3,000 deaths by the sword; and afterward, YHWH also sent a plague against them. One has to wonder, if YHWH hated paganism and rebellion in Moses' time, why would He tolerate it today?

Christmas originated with the "rebirth" of the sex god, Tammuz; and therefore, it is no coincidence that a massive phallic symbol is prominently displayed at St. Peter's Square at the Vatican, donated by Caligula, one of the most sexually reprobate and wicked emperors of Rome. The Feasts of YHWH, on the other hand, do not carry over any customs of the pagans; they are completely Set Apart unto YHWH according to His Righteousness.

Renewed Covenant Feasts

There are many insights in the original Aramaic Renewed Covenant verses that provide insights into the Feasts. For example Y'shua says; "About the day and about the hour no man knows, not even the Messengers of heaven, but the Father alone" (Matthew 24:36). From a literal superficial reading this says that no man can know the day or the hour of Mashiyach's return, but from higher levels of PaRDeS Y'shua is, in fact, revealing a very particular day. "No man can know the day or the hour" is an idiomatic Jewish expression for observing a watch that leads up to a specific Feast day. Rav Shaul confirms this prophetic insight: "Suddenly, as in the twinkling of an eye, at the last shofar, when it shall sound; and the dead will arise, without corruption; and we shall be changed" (1 Cor. 15:52). The last shofar also addresses this same Feast and confirms what the ancients have known for thousands of years; however, the revelation of which year Mashiyach will return is also hidden below the surface of the text and revealed according to YHWH's servants the prophets (see Amos 3:7).

The Feasts of YHWH are exceedingly broad and would take one or more publications to thoroughly address. The objective is simply to acknowledge that Y'shua, the Shlichim (apostles) and Talmidim (disciples) observed the Feasts of YHWH according to their ancient appointed times, not counterfeits invented by Christo-Pagan post-apostolic theologians. Not only are Y'shua and his followers zealous to observe YHWH's Set Apart Feasts but, of course, they do so at the Temple in Jerusalem along with the rest of the Jewish population. The Feasts of YHWH, in short, are extremely powerful tools for helping to grow and sustain the spiritual man. Mashiyach Y'shua taught, "He who desires to do His will, can comprehend my teaching, if it is from Elohim, or if from my own will I speak" (Yochanan 7:17).

The key element of doing "His will" is to enter into life and experience His voice in our spirits. As we celebrate the Feasts we press into a Set Apart relationship with YHWH. His Appointed Times help guide the soul to greater consciousness of Mashiyach and his Government; they are awesome reminders of our Father's love towards us and also reveal the vital importance of our love for one another. The Feasts present deliverance, redemption, acceptance into the beloved, separation from evil, victory over the fallen world and many more things. Rav Shaul taught that the Feasts of YHWH are to be guarded by the Body of Mashiyach: "Let no (pagan) therefore judge you about food and drink, or about the distinctions of festivals and new moons and Shabbats which were shadows of the things then future; but the body of Mashiyach" (Colossians 2:16, 17). The fallen religious world judges those who set YHWH's feasts apart, while observing their own, man-made religious festivals. Believers must remember to keep Christianity or any "worldly" people from dictating how YHWH's Feasts are to be observed.

"The people of Israel are to keep the Shabbat, to observe Shabbat through all their generations as a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the people of Israel forever; for in six days YHWH made heaven and earth, but on the seventh day he stopped working and rested" (Exodus 31:16, 17). The Shabbat is a sign and seal between YHWH the Creator of Heaven and Earth, and each Believer. Those who call themselves Christians but reject the Shabbat of YHWH have adopted the traditions and feasts of post-apostolic Gentile theologians who changed times and laws according to anti-Mashiyach (see Daniel 7:25). Those who have the seal or "Mark of YHWH" (Genesis 4:15, Ezekiel 9:4, Ezekiel 9:6, John 6:27, 2 Corinthians 1:22, Ephesians 1:13, Ephesians 4:30, 2 Timothy 2:19) are they who not only have the testimony of Mashiyach but have Torah written upon their hearts (Revelation 12:17 and 14:12). Rav Shaul himself stated: "...I must certainly keep the approaching feast at Urishlim. But, if it is Elohim's will, I will come again to you" (Acts 18:21). And of course we read in a couple chapters later that Rav Shaul is being called up to Jerusalem for the feast of Shavuot (Pentecost) which is one of the pilgrim Feasts (see Acts 20:16).

Torah instructs: "Three times in a year shall all your males appear before YHWH your Elohim in the place which he shall choose; in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles: and they shall not appear before YHWH empty: Every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of YHWH your Elohim which He has given you” (D’varim/ Deut. 16:16, 17). These three Feasts are also known as pilgrim Feasts, which all the males of Israel were commanded to attend.

Whether the Temple is standing in Jerusalem or not, the prophetic calendar continues to count the years, months and days to the return of Mashiach. Within the Moedim (Appointed Times) everyone enters into YHWH’s prophetic calendar not only on an individual level but also as an entire community of people as a Kingdom unto Mashiach. The world events happening today, as in every other generation, are within the timetable YHWH established before the foundation of the Earth began. The Feasts of YHWH serve to help His people view time through His eyes and to understand current events, and even their own individual personal experiences, according to the scope of His Word.

Contrary to popular opinion, the Feasts of YHWH have not come to an end anymore than time itself. When the sun, moon and stars are no more then the Feasts of YHWH will also be completed. These vitally important Feasts of YHWH help equip the Body of Mashiach for the acharit hayamim (latter days) but, unfortunately, they are being neglected by the vast majority of Christians who prefer man-made “feasts” that were synchronized with pagan feasts and adopted by modern commerce. It has become popular for many Christians to claim that they don’t celebrate Christmas day, but rather what “Jesus did for them.” Yet most continue to erect decorated Christmas trees and exchange gifts to make a “tribute” to Jesus – which is nothing more than stubborn rebellion that employs semantics to justify willful disobedience. None of the reborn pagan rituals and relativism against Y’shua will stand against the return of Mashiach ben David.

“These are they who, in their feasting, riot while polluting themselves, feeding themselves without fear; clouds without rain, moved about by the winds; trees whose fruit has failed, and they are without fruit, twice dead, and uplifted from their root; raging waves of the sea which, by their foam, manifest their confusion; shooting stars for which is reserved the blackness of darkness forever. And of them also prophesied Enoch who was the seventh from Adam when he said: Behold, Master YHWH comes with myriads of his Set Apart believers; to execute judgment upon all and to convict all the wicked because of all the deeds they have wickedly committed; and because of all the hard speeches which they, sinners without Elohim, have uttered. These are they who murmur and complain of everything while they walk according to their lusts; and their mouth speaks shocking things; and they flatter people for the sake of gain” (Yehuda 12-16).

Both Christian and Jewish religions have fashioned “feastings” according to religious tradition, and many speak evil against Torah-based Feasts and those who celebrate them.

The eternal Feasts of YHWH are prophesied to carry on into the seventh millennium and the world to come for all who are in Mashiach. “And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, says YHWH.” (Isaiah 66:23). This is a specific reference to YHWH’s calendar based on the Moedim (appointed times). All counterfeit festivals will be coming to an end when Mashiach returns, and those who turn their backs on YHWH’s Feasts will be cut off (Zechariah 14:18, 19).

All who follow Mashiach, whether Jews or Gentiles, are sojourners like Awraham and Dawid, and part of the commonwealth of Israel. “And when a sojourner shall dwell with you, and will keep the Passover to YHWH, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof. One Torah shall be to him that is a native Israelite, and unto the sojourner that dwells among you” (Sh’mot/Exodus 12:48, 49). YHWH’s Set Times are rehearsals within these “days of Mashiach,” yet many who are returning to YHWH’s feasts are finding themselves in a “wilderness experience” after being ostracized from churches and from their friends and family for choosing the Ancient Paths of Mashiyach. Clearly there is a small remnant of “Israelites” who would rather suffer with the infamy of Mashiyach than be flattered with the futility of religious fame.

Fellowship

“...and to the assembly in your house...” Philemon 1:2

Those who followed Y’shua in the First Century dared to be different from the popular religions; they were persecuted because they followed a “new authority” that was not accepted by the religious or secular institutions of the day. Resistance against their freedom to follow Y’shua did the reverse of what their opponents expected, but even as the Netzari Faith grew, there was no interest among Y’shua’s followers to build an institution around Y’shua or the Faith itself in which they believed. Their emphasis was to enter in themselves and bring the knowledge of the Kingdom of Elohim to as many souls as possible, to deliver the lost, heal the sick and set the captives free. What made these souls different from everyone else was their spiritual fellowship with Mashiyach Y’shua. Erecting buildings was not a priority as there were plenty of buildings to meet in, and those who held Faith in Y’shua met in homes or in Beit Knessets (synagogues) and grew their Faith together in Mashiyach.

Y’shua’s days saw radical diversity within religious sects which stood at odds with each other; but, regardless of which label a person chose, they were not automatically forced to break ties with their respective communities. Many Jews from a variety of sects put their faith in Y’shua but still held traditional labels. The fact of the matter is that Faith in Mashiyach was gaining popularity so rapidly that many found themselves in an identity crisis. The label on the outside said one thing but who they were becoming on the inside in Y’shua was something far more spiritually satisfying. Y’shua made such a sustained and powerful impact on the world that even after nearly two millennia, he is still by far the most famous Jew who ever lived, with followers from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. To fully encapsulate the fellowship with Mashiyach or the potential that lies within the human soul is impossible, which is likely why Yochanan wrote: “And there are many other things that Y’shua did, which if those were written one by one, not even the world as I suppose would be sufficient for the books that would be written” (Yochanan 21:25). And so it is with each soul who puts their Faith in Mashiyach and experiences him, and who says, “what Y’shua did for me.” Even the world cannot understand or contain what this fellowship with YHWH and His Mashiyach truly means.

There is no record of Netzari Jews ever building a church or institutionalizing their Faith because in those days there were many more important quests afoot. Living under the harsh, greedy and evil tyranny of Rome, they had all been harmed in some way by the institutions of man and were witnessing almost daily the unfair religious hierarchies that were oppressing their friends and families. All we know is that Y’shua’s disciples and the first generation Shlichim (Sent Ones) were devoted to Mashiyach and to helping others enter into the Kingdom – which at that time was certainly not accomplished from inside any church building.<sup>54</sup>

Mashiyach is the central pillar, the Alap-Taw (Alpha-Omega) who manifests attributes of the Spirit that can never be institutionalized by man. The first church that was built in the mid-Second Century was a building project credited to “Marcion the heretic.” Marcion, who harbored a very deep-seated hatred toward Jews, was much like the “churn ’em and burn ’em evangelists” of today who seek fame and fortune to themselves. Contrast that to the first hundred years of the Good News, where Y’shua’s followers went from Believer to Believer and from one community to the next spreading the Truth of the Kingdom of Elohim by word of mouth, simply because of their love for Mashiyach Y'shua. Paul frequented regions with large Jewish populations where he was often persecuted, but he always met those who wanted to connect to Mashiyach and who sought fellowship with others of the Way. Instead of building projects and the things of the world, their time and energies were daily focused on their relationship with Mashiyach and working and living together as a body (Acts 2:44-47).

The Netzari Faith is a Torah-based lifestyle according to Faith in Y'shua Mashiyach who himself was Torah Observant. Instead of setting up a religious institution, the Netzari Faith points to the relationship between the individual and YHWH according to Mashiyach. Faith isn't as much a "statement of belief" or a theology as it is about righteous conduct and lifestyles conformed to Mashiyach. Therefore, as witnessed in the Renewed Covenant writings, it was common for followers of Y'shua to retain their labels as Pharisees, Levites, scribes, priests, or president of a synagogue. There were also many "secret believers" like Yosip of Ramtha and Niqodemus (Hebrew Nakdimon) who put their trust in Y'shua while retaining their positions in their local communities and synagogues. Today, Netzari fellowships are often small, intimate and humble meetings in homes as it was in the First Century. Unlike the Western mindset, the Netzari Faith is more about entering into Mashiyach rather than attending services about Mashiyach.

Fellowship at its root level means the Spirit of Mashiyach guides the whole body of souls; each person recognizes the Spirit within them and within each other in the community. Each Shabbat and Moed is a Set Apart gathering (Miqrā haKodesh) where Believers enter into an appointment with Mashiyach and with others in the Body at a time and place that YHWH appoints. "And they came to Ephesus; and Paul entered the synagogue, and discoursed with the Jews. And they requested him to stay with them: but he could not be persuaded. For he said: I must certainly keep the approaching feast at Urishlim. But, if it is Elohim's will, I will come again to you" (Acts 18:19-21). Every true follower of Mashiyach sets their agenda according to the will of Elohim. All of YHWH's appointments are scheduled according to His Will; even as the weekly Seventh Day Shabbat has been maintained by Jews and "Fearers of Elohim" since the beginning of Creation. And, of course, the annual Feast Days are given according to YHWH's calendar in Torah so that His people can be in fellowship with Him to experience prophetic Kingdom insights from generation to generation.

True fellowship in Mashiyach is progressive, dynamic and life giving; it cannot be canned by some sort of institutional tradition or religious formula. Fellowship is based in the Living Word of YHWH that nurtures individuals from faith to faith through an ever advancing relationship with Mashiyach towards perfection. If a person turns their back on YHWH's Shabbat or His Feast days, they are in effect rejecting appointments with YHWH that He established from before the foundation of the Earth, and which extend into the "new Heavens and new Earth" (Isaiah 65:17; 66:22; 2 Peter 3:13; Rev. 21:1). It is this essential component of fellowship according to the Word of YHWH that guides our souls into the Kedoshim – and there are no substitutes, only counterfeits. "And now I commend you to Elohim, and to the Word of His Grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all the Qadisha (Set Apart) believers" (Acts 20:32). Qadisha (Kedoshim in Hebrew) is a commonly used Renewed Covenant term denoting a unique and peculiar people whose souls rise above the mundane each Shabbat and Feast day as Torah is being written upon their hearts according to their delight in YHWH's Commandments and His Mashiyach.

Only by entering into the Word of YHWH and experiencing fellowship with Mashiyach can we distinguish the Perfection of Mashiyach from the fallen world. Torah is Spiritual; each of YHWH's instructions point outside of time and space, each component of observance is a universe outside the dimensions of this world. For example, a Beit Din operates as a group of qualified and inalienable individuals who are mighty in Scripture and full of the discernment of the Ruach haKodesh, who bring YHWH's counsel and decisions into the fellowship and stand against the wiles of the fallen world. It is a much higher reality than simply a different structure of leadership because, within the Beit Din itself are connections to the Divine that are unique within itself. It is simply impossible to institutionalize a spiritual connection where “two or three are gathered” according to the perfect Will of YHWH. Attempts to institutionalize a Beit Din according to doctrines or man’s credentials will always fail miserably because relationships between members of the Beit Din and their relationships to YHWH are unique and dynamic. True fellowship always maintains Truth as the present reality of being, rather than a theology about “truth.”

The distinguished identity of the “body of Mashiyach” manifests every level of equality, sovereignty of individual and protection of property and liberty, including economic equalities for each individual. There is nothing on Earth outside the Faith of Mashiyach and Torah that elevates the value of all human life as does Mashiyach, but in this same respect the true and original faith is as uncommon and rare as it is understood. It is pseudo-faith to intellectualize the truth and slap a brand on it to make it acceptable to the carnal man – but, of course, this is much more convenient than admitting that our church or synagogue is far, far away from the Faith which was revealed in Mashiyach. The true Faith is both an embarrassment to most “Messianic” establishments and an enemy of their hierarchies; hence, there are many unwritten guidelines to punish those who would even publicly speak of such equality in Torah and Mashiyach.

Most Christians use a cherished “statement of Faith” to classify themselves, as in the Nicene Creed; but unfortunately, this is a static ideology ripped right out of paganism. Regardless as to how intellectually or supposedly spiritually satisfying such a “statement of Faith” is, it barely begins to address the progressive spiritual importance of becoming a Kedoshim. Rather than the statement of Faith, the true Body of Mashiyach is identified by the visible attributes of Mashiyach and an “abundant life” in Mashiyach and Torah, which is very peculiar and distinct from religion or the world’s values.

To enter into the Kingdom one must leave Babylon’s values of spirituality and physicality behind. It’s extremely difficult for one individual to accomplish this alone, and therefore, must be addressed as a community. At the community level children develop much of their confidence and identity in Mashiyach and Torah. “And these words, which I command you this day, shall be in your heart: And you shall teach them diligently unto your children...” (D’varim 6:6, 7; 11:19). This is a universal and eternal Torah requirement that is totally in Mashiyach; therefore, children must have spiritual sovereignty to grow up in a home and community where they experience and rehearse Torah. “Allow the children to come to me, and do not hinder them, for of those who are like these is the Kingdom of Heaven” (Matthew 19:14; Mark 10:14; Luke 18:16).

Children must be taught to listen to the voice of the Spirit within them, but this of course is very difficult if parents and teachers are not capable of ministering according to the Ruach haKodesh themselves. From a very young age children are capable of “hearing” the Ruach haKodesh; but fathers, mothers and their micro community must help them confirm the voice of the Ruach and train them up in the Way by demonstrating Faith through a Set Apart lifestyle. “If the anointing which you have received from him remains in you, you need not that any one should teach you; but as that anointing is from Elohim, it teaches you all things...” (1 John 2:27). The presence of the Ruach haKodesh is the anointing that Mashiyach sends to guide and reveal truth; “But when the Spirit of Truth comes, He will guide you in all truth. For He will not speak from Himself but He will speak everything that He hears. And future things He will make known to you. And He will glorify me because He will take of my own and show it to you” (John 16:13).

Precious few focus on their fellowship with Mashiyach; most “go to a fellowship” and listen to the ideas of others “about fellowship” with Mashiyach. Moreover, many tend to shop around for “fellowship.” But as with most things in life, we only get out of something what we invest into it. “Hear the Word of YHWH, you that tremble at His Word; Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for My Name’s sake, said, ‘Let YHWH be glorified:’ but He shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed” (Isaiah 66:5). The Malchut Elohim has never been about quantities of people in attendance, but about individual spiritual refinement and observance of the Word of YHWH to the Perfection of Mashiyach. A Miqra haKodesh (Set Apart gathering) is true fellowship when it is comprised of a collective group of souls who are in fellowship with Mashiyach and honor the work of the Ruach in one another. In this environment of the Kedoshim (Set Apart people) our anointing increases along with our boldness and our Faith.

Feminine Attributes

Contrary to popular Christian belief, YHWH is not a person; He is Spirit; neither male nor female. YHWH is referred to in the male gender simply because of His attributes as the perfect Father. However, the male and female attributes of YHWH (the Image of Elohim) point to Mashiyach Y'shua and are Mashiyach because he was born of a woman. Y'shua was the ultimate seed of a woman who taught that the male and female gender is temporal: "For in the resurrection of the dead, men do not marry women, nor are women given to husbands. Rather, they are as the Messengers of Elohim in Heaven" (Matthew 22:30). In other words, male and female genders will not exist in the Olam Haba (world to come); they were created for this life as we know it, but they also point to the world to come and illustrate unity and harmony within diversity.

Those who belong to Mashiyach are referred to as the "Bride of Mashiyach." Yochanan preached, "He who has the bride is the bridegroom, but the friend of the bridegroom, he stands and listens to him, rejoices great joy because of the voice of the bridegroom. Therefore behold this my joy is full!" (Yochanan 3:29)

Gender roles are Set Apart unto YHWH, and Torah clearly instructs that the Image of Elohim is both male and female (B'reshet/Gen. 1:27). Some have even interpreted Elohim (a plural term) to be referring to the plurality of male and female attributes within YHWH. In Romans 1:19-20 Rav Shaul states: "Because a knowledge of Elohim is manifest in them; for Elohim has manifested it in them. For, from the foundations of the world, the hidden things of Elohim are seen by the mind in the things he created even his eternal power and divinity, so that they might be without excuse." Rav Shaul goes on to explain that the natural created world reveals the hidden things of Elohim, including the fact that many fallen men and women have changed their Elohim given "natures" and descended into reprobation by engaging in homosexuality. Clearly the male and female gender itself is a hidden thing of Elohim and is distinguished according to covenant.

Those who belong to Mashiyach are referred to as the wife of the Lamb: "And there came one of those seven Messengers who have the seven cups filled with the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying: Come, I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb" (Revelation 21:9). The Body of Mashiyach is referred to by the feminine gender to instruct us about our relationship to Mashiyach. Isaiah stated, "For as a young man marries a virgin, so shall your sons marry thee: and as the bridegroom rejoices over the bride, so shall your Elohim rejoice over you" (Isaiah 62:5). Clearly, this points towards deep spiritual intimacy and a covenant relationship between YHWH and His people.

The balance of male and female attributes in Scripture points to a far deeper spiritual principle than simple grammatical gender recognition within the Hebrew language. Male and female attributes are revealed according to the Netzer (Branch or sprout) in Isaiah 11:2, which portrays a seven-branched menorah that is equally balanced with masculine and feminine attributes. Rav Shaul addressed the unity within male and female when he taught, "...nor male nor female, but you are all one in Y'shua the Mashiyach." (Galatians 3:28) Certainly, male and female roles are interdependent upon one another and very much protected in Torah, and therefore there is a greater unity of purpose within male and female that is beyond the natural world which reveals the nature of Elohim and the purpose of life itself.

Within ancient Jewish writings, it was understood that Isaiah 11:2, 1 Chronicles 29:11-13, and Proverbs 8:12-18 revealed the emanations or attributes of YHWH, and male and female attributes were recognized as Father and Mother. Within Tanakh we find YHWH referred to as both a Father in Isaiah 63:16 and a Mother in Isaiah 66:13. However, the ancients also recognized that there was a unifying factor between Father and Mother which took on many names, like the “Middle Pillar” or “The Son of Yah” and it was upon this line of thinking that Philo coined the word Triad which was incorporated by Tertullian into the “persons of the Trinity.” The Ruach haKodesh (Set Apart Spirit), another Name for YHWH, is feminine; and therefore, long before Y’shua came to Earth as Mashiyach there was an ancient understanding of the feminine component within the Image of Elohim. This, then, is the “hidden” Nature of YHWH who is definitely not persons, and most certainly not separate Gods.

Due to the backlash of a male-dominated society and religion, many women have been provoked into following a female goddess deity as a way to recognize and honor their own feminine natures. This, however, is nothing short of entrapment. The fact is, the feminine nature or attributes by virtue of their existence within Elohim are spiritually equal components to the masculine nature. The real power of the feminine nature is within the feminine attributes of YHWH according to Chochmah (wisdom), Chesed (mercy) and Natzach (victory), which are to be nurtured according to Mashiyach.

It is futile to assert feminine characteristics upon the external or physical world by attempting to personify YHWH as a Goddess – because, in reality, He is neither male nor female, nor is He both. However, the more that both masculine and feminine spiritual attributes are elevated, the more harmony, wisdom and victory each will experience in this life and in the world to come.

Finally, there is a huge distinction between grammatical gender and literal gender that all too often is ignored in these discussions. The English language does not insist on assigning a gender to nearly every word as do most other languages. Hebrew and Aramaic, however, do assign genders to words that have nothing to do with whether the object is masculine or feminine. In Hebrew, for example, plural masculine nouns usually end in -im and feminine ones in -ot. That being the case, the Hebrew word for “fathers” is not “avim” but rather “avot.” No one believes fathers are women, and yet this same kind of logic is applied to YHWH and His title of Ruach haKodesh.

In terms of the grammar, YHWH is classified technically as male with male verbs around Him. However, in Isaiah 11:1-2 we have both masculine and feminine endings for His “spirits”. This is merely the naturalistic tendency of the way Semitic languages express themselves. Even the generic word for “spirit” (ruach) is technically feminine, but can be tied to masculine adjectives that do not speak to literal gender.

Similarly some “theologians” assert very questionable doctrine from whether the term “ruach ha kodesh” is in masculine (Peshitta) or feminine (Greek) forms, but the reality is, it means nothing at all. YHWH in all “His” attributes contains all genders and yet transcends them. Yochanan bar Zawdee, however, comes close to showing this mystery in the first line of his Gospel when he combines the female phrase Miltha (Word) with two masculine verbs, since YHWH is all this and so much more, containing attributes that are both known to us, and yet totally beyond our knowledge.

Foreordained or Predestinated

Aramaic “qedem reshem” simply means “foreordained” or “predetermined” in that YHWH has set up all the potential choices a human can make, along with their concordant good or ill consequences. The All-Powerful, All-Knowing YHWH has haSatan under control; like a rabid dog chained to an anchor, the Adversary is held to the boundaries YHWH has established. Does that mean, then, that YHWH creates evil? YHWH is ein sof (without end) and rebellion entered into the world He Created; rebellion and evil were placed in the Garden of Eden in the form of “fruit” on a forbidden tree. But before we judge evil as being a product of its own creation consider this:

The term “foreordained” references the totality of human choice. Depending on the level of your belief that YHWH is ein sof, omnipotent, omnipresent and the Creator of all spiritual and material worlds, you will either see “foreordained” through His eyes or through private conceptualization. In both Greek and Aramaic, the word associated with what became known as “predestination” occurs six times, the first being in Acts 4:28. The same word appears in this precise context in 1 Corinthians 2:7. Nevertheless, the question is often asked; “If YHWH foreordained something, how can we have choice?” Another is, “If an evil event like Pharaoh hardening his heart or Yehuda betraying Mashiyach is foreordained, why is it that these souls are punished if this is part of the divine plan that leads to greater glory for YHWH?” Rav Shaul writes, “And he knew them previously; and he sealed them with the likeness of the image of his Son; that He might be the first-born of many brothers. And those whom he previously sealed, them he called: and those whom he called, them he made righteous: and those whom he made righteous, them he glorified” (Romans 8:29-30). This does not mean YHWH favored or controlled their actions or made their decisions for them; it simply means He knew about their actions past, present and future. Understood in this light, YHWH would clearly need to possess this knowledge in order to be the Eternal One.

“Blessed be Elohim, the Father of our Master Y’shua the Mashiyach who has blessed us with all blessings of the Spirit in heaven by the Mashiyach: According as He had previously chosen us in him, before the foundation of the world, that we might be set apart and without blame before Him; and, in love, as that before our beginnings for Himself; And adopted us for sons, in Y’shua the Mashiyach as was agreeable to His will: That the glory of His grace might be glorified which He poured upon us by his Beloved One; By whom we have redemption and the forgiveness of sins by his blood, according to the riches of his grace Which has abounded in us, in all wisdom and all spiritual understanding. And he has made us know the mystery of his will, which he had before determined in himself to accomplish In the stewardship of the fullness of times; that all things might again be made new in the Mashiyach, things in heaven and (things) on earth. And in him we are elected, according as that before our beginnings and willed, who works all things according to the counsel of his pleasure” (Ephesians 1:3-11).

YHWH obviously knows who will find salvation through His Son, but it remains up to the individual in his or her own moment in time and personal choice to turn from sin; therefore, “predestination” relates to YHWH’s infinite insight into man’s individual choices. It is not logical for “foreordained” to mean YHWH makes our choices for us, or that we are robots because, if this were the case, the “saints” would never have to experience sin; there would be no need because their destiny would be universally recognized. Why does a ray of light exhibit properties of both a particle and wave? These two things are mutually exclusive definitions, just as sin and righteousness are experienced and considered by each soul. Y’shua told Nicodemus in Yochanan’s third chapter, “I have explained earthly things and you do not believe. How then shall I explain heavenly things?”

But this insight is hardly confined to Rav Shaul’s audience alone and certainly did not just come into existence during Y’shua’s time with his talmidim, as close examination of the Tanakh will indicate. “Remember the former things, those of long ago; I am Elohim, and there is no other; I am Elohim, and there is none like me. I make known the end from the beginning, from ancient times, what is still to come. I say: My purpose will stand, and I will do all that I please. From the east I summon a bird of prey; from a far-off land, a man to fulfill my purpose. What I have said, that will I bring about; what I have planned, that will I do. Listen to me, you stubborn-hearted, you who are far from righteousness. I am bringing my righteousness near, it is not far away; and my salvation will not be delayed. I will grant salvation to Zion, my splendor to Israel” (Isaiah 46:9-13).

YHWH knows the end from the beginning; He inhabits all times. The Word of YHWH revealed to Jeremiah his first and best destiny (Jeremiah 1:1-5). And yet from our view in our present moment, we clearly have choices that, seemingly paradoxically, affect our fate: “This day I call heaven and earth as witnesses against you that I have set before you life and death, blessings and curses. Now choose life, so that you and your children may live and that you may love YHWH your Elohim, listen to his voice, and hold fast to Him, for YHWH is your life...” (Deuteronomy 30:19-20). YHWH knows the outcome, although the hairs on our head are numbered; yet we are still given a choice.

As YHWH’s creation, we are presented with the opportunity to evaluate life and the conclusions we draw and choices we make are entered as evidence of who we are in Mashiyach. Y’shua said: “Woe to the world because of offenses. It is necessary for offenses that should come, but woe to the man by whose hand the offenses come. And if your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and cast it away from you. For it is better to enter into life lame, or while you are maimed, than while you have two hands or two feet to fall into the fire that is everlasting. And if your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out and cast it away from you, for it is better for you that with one eye you enter into life than while you have two eyes to fall into the Gehenna of fire” (Matthew 18:7-9). The elements of the Passion drama are unchangeable; this is the fulfillment of Tanakh prophecy we are seeing, and again: “And the Son of Man will go just as it is written concerning him, but woe to the man by whose hand the Son of Man is betrayed. It would have been better for him if he had not been born” (Matthew 26:24).

Notice the distinction Y’shua made between the act of his betrayal and the one who perpetrated it. That’s because, while our fates are sealed, each individual who is a potential traitor still has the personal choice. Yehuda could have chosen to say no; he could have decided not to see the authorities and not to turn Mashiyach over to them. Eventually another would have risen to do the deed instead – but the bottom line is, that particular man or woman would also have had the same choice. Sooner or later, the inevitable was bound to happen, and YHWH knew the outcome from before the foundation of the world. The “contradiction” is at our level, not His.

Considering that man has a choice to do good, he also has the choice to turn away from it: “But they who have once descended to immersion and have tasted the gift from heaven and have received the Ruach haKodesh and have tasted the good Word of Elohim and the power of the world to come, cannot again sin and a second time be renewed to repentance; or a second time execute him on a stake and insult the Son of Elohim. For the earth that drinks the rain which comes often upon it and produces the herb that is of use to those for whom it is cultivated, receives a blessing from Elohim. But if it should put forth thorns and briers, it would have reprobation and be not far from a curse, and its end would be a burning” (Hebrews 6:4-8).

Clearly, a person can experience new life “in” Mashiyach, and then choose to turn away from him. There is no “once saved, always saved” scenario going on here. The Malchut Elohim is available to all who will put their trust in YHWH and His Mashiyach and do what is pleasing to Him. In the final analysis, the Love of the Father is not isolated to a select few. All whom YHWH created have the potential to enter in and be born anew; therefore, all who rebel have clearly made their choice to suffer the consequences. Being “born from the beginning” (born again) or “born anew” carries with it the imperative of personal choice.

Mashiyach provides universal and equal opportunity for all souls; this is the nature and office of Mashiyach, and this is what makes the value and importance of Mashiyach different from all other “saviors.” Mashiyach is the mediator for all and the standard he established is set equally for all; anything less than this is simply politics.

Founders of the all Gentile Church

Many religious customs within the Christian churches are based on the counsel of “early post-apostolic writers,” like Ignatius, Marcion and Tertullian. Regardless of how much a person may choose to agree or disagree with some of their conclusions, the fact of the matter is these men have shaped Christianity into what it is today. There are some very basic themes threaded throughout their writings and those of their contemporaries which provide insights about the spirit in which they wrote. One of the most common threads, as you are about to see, is that the Gentile church founders severely opposed Jewish culture and law, as do most Christian pastors today. Most church founders appear to have been utterly unable to distinguish between Rabbinical Tradition (halakha) and Torah observance as taught by Y’shua and the Shlichim. For the sake of brevity we’ll look at three of the most influential founders of what is now referred to as the “Christian” church.

Ignatius of Antioch 35-107 CE

Ignatius was considered as an “auditor” and “disciple” of John, although he never met John personally nor studied under him. Ignatius, in fact, pioneered the Greek-based Christian religion. He was very instrumental in the assimilation of paganism into early Christianity, as you will see, and he packaged Christianity for a Greco-Roman Hellenic culture. Ignatius saw Jewish followers of Y’shua as nothing but legalists and Judaizers. He despised the observance of Shabbat in favor of the Ishtar sunrise “Lord’s day” Sun-Day. Theologians claim that, “it is scarcely possible to exaggerate the importance of the Ignatian letters to modern Christian institutions.” Ignatius promoted the “infallibility of the church” and the “universal church.” If there ever was a hierarchy loving “Christian” politician with a Hellenistic autocratic mindset, it was Ignatius who taught that deacons, presbyters and bishops were a separate category of people infused with Jesus-like authority to be lords over people. He even gave himself the nickname Theophoros (the God-bearer). Ignatius taught that “without the bishop’s supervision, no baptisms or love feasts are permitted” and he believed Mary to be the eternal virgin mother of God. Below are a few samples from his writings:

In his letter to the Magnesians Ignatius writes:

4:2 even as some persons have the bishop’s name on their lips, but in everything act apart from him.

4:3 Such men appear to me not to keep a good conscience, forasmuch as they do not assemble themselves together lawfully according to commandment. (i.e. the commandment of “the hierarchy”)

8:1 Be not seduced by strange doctrines nor by antiquated fables, which are profitless.

8:2 For if even unto this day we live after the manner of Judaism, we avow that we have not received grace: (Ignatius taught that grace was invented in the “New Testament” and wasn’t present in “Judaism”)

9:1 If then those who had walked in ancient practices attained unto newness of hope, no longer observing sabbaths but fashioning their lives after the Lord’s day. (Y’shua kept the Seventh Day Shabbat according his Father YHWH’s Commandment, as did Paul; so then which “Lord” would Ignatius be referring?)

10:5 Therefore put away the vile leaven which hath waxed stale and sour, and betake yourselves to the new leaven, which is Jesus Christ. (Evidently Ignatius was ignorant of the fact that “leaven” represents sin, so in reality he promoted a new sin under the label of “Jesus Christ”)

 10:7 It is monstrous to talk of Jesus Christ and to practice Judaism. (Ignatius projected his anti-Torah image of “Jesus” upon the Jewish Mashiach; he is a forefather of “replacement theology” and utterly incapable of discerning between Torah and religious traditions.)
 10:8 For Christianity did not believe in Judaism, but Judaism in Christianity, wherein {every tongue} believed and {was gathered together} unto God. (Y’shua and his disciples were in fact a sect of Judaism; Ignatius was instrumental in fashioning a sect of Greek based “Christianity.”)

Ignatius to the Philadelphians:

6:1 But if any one propound Judaism unto you, hear him not:
 6:2 for it is better to hear Christianity from a man who is circumcised than Judaism from one uncircumcised.
 6:3 But if either the one or the other speak not concerning Jesus Christ, I look on them as tombstones and graves of the dead, whereon are inscribed only the names of men.
 6:4 Shun ye therefore the wicked arts and plottings of the prince of this world, lest haply ye be crushed by his devices, and wax weak in your love. (To make such a statement Ignatius was obviously up against “uncircumcised” Gentiles who kept Torah and the circumcised Jews who followed Y’shua; both could potentially have been followers of the original Netzari Faith)

Ignatius to the Smyrnaeans:

6:9 because they allow not that the eucharist is the flesh of our Saviour Jesus Christ, which flesh suffered for our sins, and which the Father of His goodness raised up. (Ignatius teaches that the eucharist and “flesh” of Jesus is “holy,” and cannot distinguish between the nephesh, neshama and Ruach haKodesh; therefore, he maintains his pagan ideology and simply projects it onto Mashiach.)
 8:2 Do ye all follow your bishop, as Jesus Christ followed the Father, and the presbytery as the Apostles;
 8:3 and to the deacons pay respect, as to God’s commandment.
 8:4 Let no man do aught of things pertaining to the Church apart from the bishop.
 8:5 Let that be held a valid eucharist which is under the bishop or one to whom he shall have committed it.
 8:6 Wheresoever the bishop shall appear, there let the people be;
 8:7 even as where Jesus may be, there is the universal Church. (Ignatius is credited for being the first person to mention the “Catholic church,” but notice also how he twists “God’s commandment to elevate the authority of his hierarchy)
 8:8 It is not lawful apart from the bishop either to baptize or to hold a love-feast;
 8:9 but whatsoever he shall approve, this is well-pleasing also to God; (Ignatius is one of the biggest heroes of Christo-Paganism because he installed veneration of the hierarchy of man. His followers wear labels such as Pope and Reverend which is high-handed blasphemy as these titles are exclusive to YHWH and His Mashiach. Every religion has one form of Priesthood or another but, of course, those who are called of Mashiach are given their authority through Mashiach, and certainly not according to man’s hierarchy.)

Ignatius to Polycarp

6:1 Give ye heed to the bishop, that God also may give heed to you.
 6:2 I am devoted to those who are subject to the bishop, the presbyters, the deacons.

In this letter Ignatius gives directives to Polycarp who is in the historical record for passionately resisting the Ishtar (Easter) celebration of Gentile Christians. Polycarp made a special trip to Rome to exhort the Church to continue observing Pesach according to Torah! Polycarp and Ignatius appear to be in two very different camps, yet it seems Ignatius is on a letter writing campaign to make himself appear as an authority of the church and install himself as a key element (or perhaps was painted into this caricature by later Catholic theologians). Nevertheless, the writings of Ignatius are one of the earliest deficits to the original teachings of Mashiach and Paul, regardless as to how his letters may have been manipulated to suit the founders of the Catholic Church. The fact of the matter is that church hierarchy, massive cathedrals, wickedness within church leadership and outright malice against the Torah had to start somewhere, and the evidence clearly points to such men at this time in history.

For those who postulate that the Catholic Church began in the Fourth Century, they've obviously not read "Ignatius" who appears to be the quintessential Catholic. Ignatius carried favor by his ostentatious copying of Paul's style of speech and then morphing himself into the likeness of Paul's authority within "the Church." While claiming to be nobody special, Ignatius wrote great swelling letters to the early churches, clearly seeking political hierarchical authority. On this note we must always remember that among the early "post-apostolic founders" one can never assume anything to be true, because each and every account has been twisted, reinvented and rewritten by various theologians to suit their religious ideology. According to Catholic "perjurymen" who slandered and defamed the characters of honorable men of the Bible, Apostle Paul converted and became a Roman Catholic and Peter was the first Pope....As abominable and despicable as the idolatry loving Vatican is, it's not too difficult to imagine what Peter and Paul would do if they walked into a modern day Catholic church and saw the images and idols covering the walls, or what manner of paganism the "post-apostolic" leaders have invented for themselves.

Marcion 110-160 AD

Marcion coined the terms "Old" and "New" Testament. The son of a bishop from Sinope (on the Black Sea), he was a wealthy ship-owner who made large and welcomed contributions to the Roman churches. For awhile, he waited in the wings as a highly respected member of the Christian community; but finally "showed his true colors" during a hearing before Christian leadership in 144 CE. Since the hearing ended with some of Marcion's theories receiving the "thumbs down," he aggressively went out on his own, propagating his new concepts of Christianity which rapidly took root throughout the Roman Empire. Using maligned teachings of Paul, who he believed to be the only Apostle who actually understood the teachings of Y'shua, Marcion set out to free the Christian church from "false Jewish doctrines." By the end of the Second Century Marcion was challenging the mainstream Christian Churches and rapidly pushing them into the background with his own popular all-Gentile gospel.

In every city of significance Marcionites set up their own churches in defiance (competition with) of the "other Christians" and they flourished right into the Tenth Century. Even today Marcion's theology, which taught that instruction within the Old and New Testaments could not be reconciled to each other, still plays a very distinguished role within most denominations of Christianity. Like most Christian leaders, Marcion was very ignorant of basic Torah principles. Here's a sample of his teachings that heavily influenced Christian theology:

1. Marcion taught: Moses' form of law was "eye for an eye," but that Jesus reversed this. BUT: It is written in Torah; "Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe. And if a man smite the eye of his servant, or the eye of his maid, that it perish; he shall let him go free for his eye's sake" (Exodus 21:23-26). Eye for eye, tooth for tooth means to render equivalent compensation toward the value of loss, even set the servant or maid free. Eye for eye does NOT ever suggest physical punishment to avenge the loss; this is NOT what YHWH instructs nor was this ever practiced within the Israel of Elohim. In Marcion's day Gentiles were an easy prey to his false teachings because, as today, most have very little or no Torah consciousness to determine even basic halakha.
2. Marcion taught: Elisha caused bears to devour the little children, but Jesus said, "let the little children come to me." BUT: It is written in the Tanakh that Elisha cursed the mocking children in the Name of YHWH and 42 children were torn apart by two she-bears. The number 42 represents disaster towards those who rebel against YHWH. There were 42,000 Ephraimites slain in Judges 12:6 and 42 relatives of Ahaziah were killed by Jehu in 2 Kings 10:14. According to Revelation 11:2, the Gentiles wreak havoc and do all manner of blasphemy for 42 months. The number 42 can also be a remez (hint) that refers to pagan Gentiles forcing people to worship their Jesus god at pain of death. Elisha raised a child from the dead and showed great compassion for children; but Marcion, levied a wicked judgment against YHWH.

3. Marcion taught that: Joshua stopped the sun in its path to continue a slaughter of the enemy, but Paul said, “don’t let the sun go down on your wrath.” BUT: Joshua would have no success in “stopping the sun” on his own strength. More people died when YHWH sent hailstones down on them, than were slain by Joshua’s armies (Joshua 10:11-13). The hailstones in Joshua 10:11 also remind us of Sodom and Gomorrah, not a popular motif with Marcion and friends who lived in a culture where sodomy was commonplace. Joshua and Y’shua Mashiyach share the same Hebrew name; Joshua is a very powerful type of Mashiyach. YHWH instructed the Israelites to go to war and “destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves (statues)” so His people wouldn’t be tempted to sacrifice unto pagan gods or make molten images (see Sh’mot/Exodus 34:12-17). “And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man, when he gives of his seed unto Molech, and kill him not: Then I will set my face against that man, and against his family, and will cut him off, and all that go a whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people” (Vayikra/Leviticus 20:4, 5). Petra, Jordan, retains the ruins of the places where pagans sacrificed the blood and live, beating hearts of their children to a sun deity. YHWH commanded that such wickedness be wiped off the face of the Earth for purposes of His ultimate justice. Those who disapprove of YHWH’s Judgments are both ignorant and rebellious towards the intent of YHWH’s Commandments and His Mashiyach.
4. Marcion taught: The “Old Testament” permitted divorce and polygamy; but the “New Testament” denies both. BUT: It is written that Moshe permitted divorce because of hardness of heart, and most Christians are unaware of the process and/or consequences of seeking release from a marriage covenant. The John 8 fallacy of a woman caught in adultery was inserted into Christian Bibles as a theological proof text that there are no consequences for Christian adulterers. The levels of adultery within the Christian Churches was as uncontrollable in the early days of Gentile Churches as it is today; so the “post-apostolic” founders made it appear that adultery will be forgiven by “Jesus”. In terms of polygamy YHWH states in D’varim/Deuteronomy 17:17 that “you shall not multiply wives.”<sup>55</sup>
5. Marcion taught: Moses enforced the Jewish Sabbath and Law, but Jesus freed believers from both. BUT: It is written in Torah that the Shabbat was given by YHWH at the Creation of the world for all eternity. The Tanakh (Isaiah 56, 58, 66) tells of Gentiles observing the Seventh Day Shabbat through the Light of Mashiyach! It is written in the Renewed Covenant that Mashiyach and all the Shlichim observed Shabbat and also brought Gentiles into synagogues on Shabbat to learn about the Kingdom of Elohim. Clearly it was the assimilation of pagan culture into Gentile Christianity that changed worship from Shabbat to Sunday. When Mashiyach proclaimed to be “master” of Shabbat, he was exercising his authority regarding the way Shabbat is to be observed, and he demonstrated this by his life! He did not “do away with Shabbat” – he, in fact, resurrected Shabbat from the clutches of dead religious traditions and magnified Shabbat (see Isaiah 42:21).
6. Marcion taught: God commanded that no work be done on the Sabbath, yet he told the Israelites to carry the ark around Jericho seven times on the Sabbath. BUT: Scripture does not say that the seven days around Jericho began on the first day of the week (Sunday); therefore, one cannot assume that the seventh day at Jericho was on a weekly Shabbat. The Israelites had just observed Pesach and therefore the seven-day cycle round Jericho may have started on the first day of Chag haMatzah. On the seventh day of this Feast the Israelites defeated the armies of Pharaoh and celebrated the victory; on the seventh day of this same Feast Jericho was defeated. YHWH gave the command to march and He pulled down the walls of Jericho. Marcion chose to judge YHWH's authority and speak evil against the Most High Elohim.

7. Marcion taught: Graven images were prohibited by the 10 Commandments, yet Moses was instructed to fashion a bronze serpent. BUT: The bronze serpent on the pole was the visible antidote to the venom of the snake. Those who looked to the bronze serpent were saved from certain death. Those who look to the suffering servant on the pole are saved from the bite of the serpent haSatan. Marcion indicted YHWH for wrongdoing, regardless of that fact that the Israelites weren't worshipping the bronze serpent; neither did Marcion respect the fact that YHWH's Word is Sanctified by His Perfection which is revealed in Mashiyach.
8. Marcion taught: The God of the Old Testament could not have been omniscient, otherwise he would not have asked, "Adam where are you?" (Genesis 3:9) BUT: It is written that YHWH is an all merciful and loving Father; therefore, He gave Adam and Eve a few moments to compose themselves before having to approach Him. They had fallen into transgression and were devastated and ashamed, as illustrated by their nakedness. But, with an apparent brazen hatred towards YHWH, Marcion and Christo-Paganism invented a false religious premise from which they fashioned their own god unto themselves whom they named Je-Zeus.
9. Marcion taught: The God of the Old Testament was a ruthless God of vengeance, cruelty and wrath, but Jesus was full of grace and compassion. BUT: Y'shua, is the Word or Mind of YHWH who became flesh and dwelled among us; these are ONE, yet Marcion taught that God exists in "persons." Marcion's theology divided the "Godhead" against itself, following a very common pagan mindset that the gods are at war with each other. The Gentile culture that birthed Marcion viewed the Hebrew (One God) based faith as old and passé. Marcion's carnal perspective of YHWH left an indelible mark within Christianity that is commonplace to this very day.
10. Marcion coined the terms Old and New Testament. BUT: It is written that YHWH would bring a Renewed Covenant to His people and therefore the onus was on His people to extend the invitation of the Kingdom of Elohim to the rest of the world. By replacing the word "Covenant" with "Testament" Marcion and other pagan theologians wrestled Jeremiah 31:31-34 away from the foundational teachings of Y'shua and the Shlichim. Most Christians had no access to the Tanakh (Hebrew Scriptures) and would not know that Brit Chadasha means "Renewed Covenant" and that Mashiyach would come to write Torah upon the hearts of his followers. By replacing the word covenant with testament Marcion theologically divided Jesus and his followers away from YHWH the Father and turned him into a self sustained deity that opposed the "the Old Testament." Everyone who ever used the terms "Old and New Testament" can thank Marcion the heretic for implanting such contrary values against the Unified and Eternal Word of the Living Elohim.

Polycarp, who was mentioned earlier, referred to Marcion as "the firstborn of the devil." But, Marcion's judenrein (Jew-free) all-Gentile churches became very popular among early Gentile Christians, and one of the largest Christian denominations on Earth. Marcion was inventor and/or the major contributor to dispensationalism, supercessionism, and replacement theology – all of which are extremely popular among the vast majority of Christians today, preached in nearly every church.

Tertullian 155-230 CE

Tertullian was born into a mainstream Gentile pagan family, but became a devout Christo-Pagan. Like Marcion he also found mainstream Christianity intolerable so he set out to make broad sweeping reform. According to Jerome, Tertullian was “distressed by the envy and laxity of the clergy of the Roman church” so he joined with the Montanists (also known as the Cataphrygian Heresy) founded by Montanus. Montanus was formerly following the pagan mother goddess of fertility named Cybele where he learned plenty of things to adapt into Christianity. One of Montanus’ “achievements” was to fall into a trance and prophesy under the influence of the “Holy Ghost,” insisting that his utterances were the voice of the “Holy Ghost.” Modern day “tongue-speaking” Pentecostal or Charismatic denominations apparently have very similar experiences to those of the church of Montanus. As Montanus’ theologies and influence advanced, he was joined by Priscilla and Maximilla, who abandoned their husbands to follow the call of his “prophetic” ministry.

Tertullian, though, while fumbling in all manner of paganism and spiritism also picked up an “anointing” of the “Holy Ghost” and through demonic inspiration, he compartmentalized the “Godhead” and coined the word “Trinity” which, of course, is one of the most cherished doctrines of the Christian Church today. The “persons of the trinity” doctrine flourishes in the hierarchy-based Christian religion, which also views itself as a pyramid structure. Tertullian wrote using puns, wit, sarcasm and a continual pounding of his opponents with invective and platitude; yet he was the architect of the pinnacle doctrine of Christianity, the “persons of the Trinity.” Tertullian theology is very akin to the likes of Nimrod, Semiramis and Tammuz who were the original trinity of Babylon and he inserted the “persons” of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, making him extremely popular among pagan Gentile Christians.

In these “end times” it is imperative to understand that these three men are “pillars of the Church.” Their teachings have influenced every soul who has ever called themselves Christian in the last 1,800 years. These church founders who are venerated by Christendom displayed unfathomable resentment toward the original Netzari Jewish followers of Y’shua – not because they happened to be Jews who followed Y’shua, but because they “accepted Christ without ceasing to observe the old law.” Certainly there are exceptions, but still today the vast majority of Christianity maintains a very deep-seated, vitriolic anti-Semitism towards Jews and Torah which was planted within the Church by such men as these.

Lest anyone think that the times have changed regarding the “Christian” disdain for the authority of the inerrant Word of YHWH, here’s a quote from the head of the largest Christian institute on Earth:

“The fundamentalist approach is dangerous, for it is attractive to people who look to the Bible for ready answers to the problems of life. It can deceive these people, offering them interpretations that are pious but illusory, instead of telling them that the Bible does not necessarily contain an immediate answer to each and every problem. Without saying as much in so many words, fundamentalism actually invites people to a kind of intellectual suicide. It injects into life a false certitude, for it unwittingly confuses the divine substance of the biblical message with what are in fact its human limitations.” (Quoted from The Interpretation of the Bible in the Church; Pontifical Biblical Commission, presented on March 18, 1994)

Contrary to the wickedness of religious men YHWH declares: “...man does not live by bread only, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of YHWH does man live” (D’varim/ Deut. 8:3; Matt. 4:4; Luke 4:4). Our Father in Heaven wants people to look to Him rather than “old time religion” or “the new science” that claims to have all the answers for humanity but is progressively destroying the Earth and setting forth greater and greater immorality.

“...Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which you shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this Torah. For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing you shall prolong your days in the land, where you go over Jordan to possess it” (D’varim/Deut. 32:46, 47).

Christo-Paganism denotes the assimilation of paganism into Christianity, introduced into the world’s churches by the aforementioned, highly venerated post-apostolic founders of Gentile Christianity. Traditions like erecting images of Mary or Jesus, painting Easter eggs, going to church on Sunday, anti-Semitism, erecting and decorating Christmas trees or dressing up as Santa Claus all originated within paganism and are the exact opposite to the Kingdom of Elohim. Unfortunately, the vast majority of Christians have willfully adopted these forms of paganism as part of their “Christian tradition.” These Church “founders” never met the original Shlichim, nor did they have YHWH’s instructions in righteousness written upon their hearts. In fact, these early Christian philosophers and opportunists had no more first-hand knowledge of Y’shua’s or Paul’s teachings than theologians today. But nowadays, by accessing the original Aramaic Writings, we can compare for ourselves the writings of the post-apostolic founders of the modern “Christian gospel” and see that is very far removed from the original Netzari Faith.

Regardless of the rude, crude and hateful attacks against the Netzari Faith by a multitude of naysayers who are ignorant of the Scriptures, there is a growing number of Jews and Gentiles who are returning to YHWH and living the Faith of Y’shua Mashiyach that was once delivered to the righteous. Clearly there is a very stark difference between what the post-apostolic founders of the Gentile Church taught and what the original Shlichim (Sent Ones) of Mashiyach lived and taught. The Netzari movement in our day is a fulfillment of the following Prophecy:

“O YHWH, my strength, and my fortress, and my refuge in the day of affliction, the Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth, and shall say, Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things where there is no profit. Shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are no gods? Therefore, behold, I will this once cause them to know, I will cause them to know mine hand and my might; and they shall know that my name is YAHWEH” (Jeremiah 16:19-21).

Gentiles

Y’shua stated in Matthew 21:43 that the Kingdom is given to “a people” who bear fruit. This “people,” which obviously includes Gentiles, is known as a “Kedoshim” (Set Apart People), who keep the Commandments (Torah) of Elohim and have the testimony of Mashiyach Y’shua (Rev. 12:17). Gentiles originally met along with Netzari Jews in the synagogues as shown in Acts 13:42; 14:1; 17:1-4; 18:4; and 19:8-10, and are equals in the Malchut Elohim as “Fearers of Elohim.” It would seem that such basic facts would be very evident to anyone who has ever studied a Bible, but in the world of religion many prejudices exist between Jew and Gentile.

The “light” of Mashiyach was presented to Adam and Eve who were neither Jewish nor Gentile. From their first breath of life, Adam and Eve enjoyed spiritual intimacy with YHWH and after their transgression atonement was provided for them according to Mashiyach. However, since YHWH set a Covenant Standard through the line of Judah and within tribes of Israel, the term Gentile came to denote all souls who were not born into the commonwealth of Israel. However, all who belong to Mashiyach are the Israel of Elohim, and are therefore no longer Gentile, per se, but “Fearers of Elohim.”

Neither Jews or Gentiles have their own exclusive Covenant with YHWH. There is no discrimination in Torah or the Renewed Covenant against non-Jewish converts of Mashiyach; but neither is it acceptable for Gentiles to discriminate against Jews. These important directives are found in Jeremiah 50:6, Isaiah 42:1-6; 49:6; 60:3; Jeremiah 16:19; Hosea 8:8; Micah 5:8; Matthew 15:24, and in many other places in Torah. Because Mashiyach Y’shua presented “light” to Jews first, it is imperative for non-Jews to comprehend the “roots” of Mashiyach and the Renewed Covenant according to Torah in the original Hebrew and Aramaic languages. This is important because counterfeit religions have attempted to displace the original Faith by removing Y'shua and his teachings out from the original context of Torah and reinventing a different Messiah within an anti-Torah culture. Therefore, the challenge today for both Jew and Gentile is to depart from all manner of man's religion and turn to Mashiyach according to Torah.

Scripturally speaking, the term "Gentile" bears heavier weight regarding a spiritual state (heathen) rather than one's birth lineage; as a matter of fact, there is no such thing as a "Gentile" in the Kingdom of Elohim. When a person comes to Mashiyach and has Torah written upon their heart they become a new creation in Mashiyach. Old things have passed away and behold, all things are made new, which is why Gentiles who follow Mashiyach are referred to as "fearers of Elohim." It is utterly futile for Gentiles to believe that because they are not born Jewish that they are not required to have Torah written upon their hearts. In reality the first Gentile who put his Faith in Mashiyach Y'shua was Qurnelius who "was righteous and feared Elohim, he and all his household" (Acts 10:2) and many "Greeks who feared Elohim" were also observing Torah (Acts 17:4). See also Acts 2:5; 10:2, 7; 13:43; 16:14; 17:7; 18:7; Hebrews 11:7.

Ger Toshav

Throughout Torah one can find mention of the stranger, alien, sojourner or temporary resident (ger toshav) who joins him or herself with Israel and becomes part of the Israel of Elohim, as one people. "One law shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the ger (temporary resident) that toshav (sojourns) among you" (Sh'mot/Ex. 12:49). Regardless as to what Christian and Rabbinical traditions say, Torah tells us that the Ger belongs to YHWH just as much as those who are as blood line Jews or Israelites. Even King Dawid referred to himself as a Ger.

"Hear my prayer, O YHWH, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears: for I am a Ger (temporary resident) with you, and a Toshav (sojourner), as all my fathers were" (Psalm 38:12). When Dawid says "all of my fathers" he means his fathers going back to Adam, Noach, Awraham, Yitzkhakh, Ya'akov. All who enter into the Kingdom of Elohim are considered Ger Toshav; all were/are strangers and aliens to this world as Rav Shaul said of Awraham: "By faith Awraham, when he was called, obeyed and departed to the place which he was to receive for an inheritance: and he departed while he knew not whither he was going. By faith he became a resident in the land that was promised him as in a foreign land; and abode in tents with Yitz'chak and Ya'akov, the heirs with him of the same promise. For he looked for the city that has a foundation of which the builder and maker is Elohim" (Hebrews 11:8-10). That foreign land that Rav Shaul refers to is a type of the Malchut (Kingdom of) Elohim as it pertains to the Olam Haba (world to come). All of YHWH's people are pilgrims and sojourners when it comes to the Kingdom of Elohim as the Kingdom is outside of this world's system. Whether Jews or non-Jewish souls, it is irrelevant from which background a person enters.

There was a "mixed multitude" (erev rav) at Mt. Sinai who fled Egypt along with Israel. Rabbis even suggest that Torah was given in 70 languages so the "mixed multitude" and all nations could hear and understand Torah. Torah states that the "mixed multitude" who sojourned with Israel entered into Life, not as second class citizens but as equals who are considered the Special Treasure of YHWH. Neither Calev nor Ruth were Jewish by birth, however, they both fulfilled extremely important roles in the Kingdom of Elohim, indicating that YHWH and His Mashiyach have made a place for all souls to enter into the common good of the Kingdom of Elohim.

Throughout the prophets, especially in Isaiah who addresses this theme most often, there is considerable mention of the role that Gentiles play in the Malchut Elohim. After revealing the Netzer in Isaiah 11, Isaiah goes on to say, "And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Goy (Gentiles) seek: and his rest shall be glorious" (Isaiah 11:8). Goy is used in Scripture to denote nations, heathen, Gentiles or people; when Greeks came to follow Y'shua they were no longer referred to as Goy (Gentiles), but as Elohim fearers. “I YHWH have called you in righteousness, and will hold your hand, and will keep you, and give you for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; To open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house” (Isaiah 42:6, 7).

YHWH showed Isaiah how the Gentiles were to be brought out of paganism and all manner of false religion, and offered a heritage along with the Jewish people. “Neither let the son of the stranger, that has joined himself to YHWH, speak, saying, YHWH has utterly separated me from his people: neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree. For this is what YHWH says unto the eunuchs that keep my Sabbaths, and choose the things that please me, and take hold of my covenant; Even unto them will I give in mine house and within my walls a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off. Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to YHWH, to serve him, and to love the name of YHWH, to be His servants, every one that keeps the Sabbath from polluting it, and takes hold of my covenant; Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon my altar; for mine House shall be called the House of prayer for all people. YHWH Elohim which gathers the outcasts of Israel says; Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him” (Isaiah 56:3-8). Clearly YHWH intended the Gentiles to enter into Covenant with Him, which means to observe His Torah and to “keep the Sabbath from polluting it.”

Most believers realize that we are living in the acharit hayamim (latter days) and as such we are entering into a time for the fulfillment of many prophecies including; “But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of YHWH shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations (Goy) shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of YHWH, and to the house of the El of Jacob; and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths: for the Torah shall go forth of Zion, and the Word of YHWH from Jerusalem” (Micah 4:1-2). The mountain is a symbol of YHWH’s government authority which means that many will seek the Kingdom of Elohim which is established above all of man’s kingdoms and religions. Although Torah and the Word of YHWH have been trodden asunder by most Christians (most are currently observing only 61 percent of Torah) the fact remains that Torah will be acknowledged and accepted by many Christians who realize that they have never been shown the deeper application and meaning of Torah. Notice how the Word of YHWH is equated with Torah, but the Word of YHWH is Mashiyach! Torah and Mashiyach are One and the same Spirit; they are perfectly unified as One. It is man’s “religion” that has pitted them against each other.

In Brit Chadasha (Renewed Covenant) Writings when Gentiles (Ger Toshav) entered into the Kingdom through Mashiyach, they were given the designation of “Fearers of Elohim”: “Now there was a certain man in Caesarea, a centurion, whose name was Qurnelius, from that band of soldiers which is called Italiqa. And he was righteous and feared Elohim, he and all his household. And he did many alms among the people, and he beseeched Elohim at all times” (Acts 10:1, 2). Some might dispute this and suggest that a Ger Toshav is not equivalent to a Gentile; however, this is a moot point if we consider what YHWH says about the Jewish people: “Israel is swallowed up: now shall they be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure.” (Hosea 8:8). Jews went into the dispersion because they threw off YHWH’s Torah and broke Covenant with Him, and they have been punished in every generation since. Had Jews as a race been obedient, they would have lifted up Mashiyach and taught Torah to all who had ears to hear. Many more Gentiles would then be Ger Toshav as they would have access through the Jewish people to learn of YHWH and His Mashiyach; but as it stands today, most Jews are embarrassed to be associated with the Ancient Paths (Jer. 6:16). Many who acknowledge Y’shua as Mashiyach openly break Torah, just as most Christians falsely believe that Y’shua or Paul did away with Torah.

Qurnelius was the first of many Ger Toshav to enter into the Kingdom as witnessed by Mashiyach's talmidim: "he was righteous and feared Elohim, he and all his household" (Acts 10:2). Here are two essential elements of true faith for any Jew or Gentile to be "righteous and fear Elohim."

"And while they were departing from their midst, they beseeched from them that they might speak on another Shabbat these words to them. And after the congregation was dismissed, many Yehudeans went after them, and even proselytes who feared Elohim. And they were speaking and persuading them to be adherents of the grace of Elohim. And on another Shabbat all the city gathered to hear the Word of Elohim. And when the Yehudeans saw the large gathering they were filled with envy and they were standing against the words that Polous was speaking. And they were blaspheming" (Acts 13:42-45). Not only Yehudeans but "even proselytes who feared Elohim" were meeting together on Shabbat as one people. The proselytes were Gentiles who entered into Covenant with YHWH through Mashiyach Y'shua and observed Shabbat together; they feared Elohim, which means they repented of breaking Torah. It is through Torah that we have the knowledge of sin, so rather than to fear man and do what religion prescribed, many Gentiles turned to YHWH through Mashiyach and entered into the Renewed Covenant which requires Torah to be written upon the heart.

"And on the Shabbat day, we went without the gate of the city to the side of a river, because a house of prayer was seen there. And when we were seated, we conversed with the women who there assembled. And a certain woman who feared Elohim, a seller of purple, whose name was Lydia, from the city of Thyatira, (was there). Her heart our Master opened, and she listened to what Paul spoke. Then she was immersed, and her household..." (Acts 16:13-15). The symbol of entering into a mikveh (living waters) and coming out purified was being practiced for centuries before Y'shua; the candidate arose from the waters renewed unto YHWH and born anew. Lydia "feared Elohim" and therefore presented herself to YHWH according to the requirement of the Word of YHWH (Torah). To Jewish onlookers Lydia's immersion at the side of the river was a mikveh based on Torah (the covenant of immersion [baptism] is Torah). "And some of them believed, and adhered to Paul and Silas; and of those Greeks who feared Elohim, a great many; and also of noted women, not a few" (Acts 17:4).

As larger numbers of Gentiles turned to YHWH, the Netzarim Jewish community was being challenged to disciple each new soul into Mashiyach, but a dispute arose regarding the matter of circumcision for Gentiles. Acts 15 records how followers of Y'shua from P'rushim (Pharisaic) background demanded Gentiles be circumcised and keep the Torah of Moshe, but it is clearly particulars of circumcision that were contested, not observance of the Torah of Moshe. "Because of this <I> say that you should not be those oppressors who from the Gentiles are turning to Elohim. But we will send (word) to them that they should abstain from uncleanness of sacrifices (idols) and from adultery and from things that are strangled and from blood. For from ancient generations in all cities Moshe had preachers in the synagogues that on every Shabbat they read him" (Acts 15:19-21). These four Commandments provided preliminary elements (initiation) for Gentiles to join with the existing Messianic community. Gentiles were meeting with the Netzarim followers of Y'shua in homes and synagogues and on Shabbat they were learning about Torah (Moshe) in the synagogues, but all-Gentile based Christianity rapidly turned the tables. Not only did the Gentile Church abandon Moses, but they soon began to demand that Jewish followers of Y'shua forsake both Torah and their Jewish heritage.

The true remnant followers of Y'shua are they who sing the Song of Moshe (observe Torah) and have the Testimony of the Lamb (follow Y'shua). In much of the world today it is non-Jewish followers of Y'shua who are returning to the Netzari Faith and are teaching Jews about Mashiyach and the importance of Torah observance. Many "fearers of Elohim" (Gentiles) are sanctifying the Name of YHWH, observing Shabbat and the Moedim equally alongside Jewish talmidim. "Now I say, that Y'shua the Mashiyach ministered to the circumcision in behalf of the truth of Elohim in order to confirm the promise (made) to the fathers; And that the Gentiles might glorify Elohim for his mercies upon them, as it is written: I will confess to you among the Gentiles, and to your name will I sing psalms. And again he said: Rejoice, you Gentiles, with His people. And again he said: Praise MASTER YHWH, all you Gentiles; (and) laud him, all you nations. And again Isaiah said: There will be a root of Jesse; and he that shall arise will be a prince for the Gentiles; and in him will the Gentiles hope” (Romans 15:8-12).

Many Gentiles have been led by the Ruach haKodesh into Kingdom through Mashiyach and delight in the Torah of YHWH. “But I say: Did not Israel know? First, Moshe said thus: I will awaken your emulation by a people which is not a people; and by a disobedient people I will provoke you. And Isaiah was bold, and said: I was seen by those who sought me not; and I was found by those who inquired not for me. But to Israel, he said: All the day have I stretched out my hands to a contentious and disobedient people” (Romans 10:19-21). According to Rav Shaul the Gentiles, by turning to YHWH also create opportunity for the Jewish people to make teshuva: “But I say: Have they so stumbled as to fall entirely? May it never be! Rather; by their stumbling, life has come to the Gentiles for (awakening) their jealousy. And if their stumbling was riches to the world, and their condemnation riches to the Gentiles; how much more their completeness?” (Romans 11:11-12) Those who break Torah can in no way make anyone jealous for Mashiyach or Torah. Paul is clearly talking about the Gentiles attaining righteous qualities that come about by having Torah written upon the heart.

Although Jewish and Christian religious traditions deem that Gentiles are under a different covenant than Jews, the fact of the matter is there is only One Kingdom, One Mashiyach and One Covenant. There can never be one law for one person and a different law for another within a united Kingdom; this is absolutely absurd thinking and foolish to postulate yet it is a very common theme within Jewish and Christian religious worlds. The big question in the First Century was not a matter of if, but when the Gentiles would be expected to bear righteous fruit of having Torah written upon their hearts. Clearly there are massive expectations on Jews to live upright and righteous lives in YHWH according to Torah. However, when a Gentile soul enters into the Kingdom of Elohim after a life of paganism, polytheism and all manner of Torahlessness, then logic and reason would suggest that people need time to grow in Torah and develop an understanding of what it means to have Torah written upon their hearts.

Jews are called to enter into Covenant, be circumcised at eight days old, observe Torah and follow Mashiyach; this is what YHWH intended for every Jewish soul. But YHWH is not a “respector of persons” – He is Creator of both Jew and Gentile which is why Mashiyach warned the chief priests and Pharisees in the Temple: “...I say to you that the Kingdom of Elohim will be taken from you and will be given to a people who bear fruit” (Matthew 21:43). Therefore, if the Kingdom of Elohim were to be taken from the Pharisees for denying the cornerstone who is Y’shua Mashiyach, then it would also be impossible for Gentiles to break the Torah that is incumbent upon Jews to observe, and somehow bear fruit without Torah! Those who “bear fruit” are righteous Jews and Gentiles who have Torah written upon their hearts and who bear fruit of the Love of YHWH and love for their fellow man which is specified in the Terms and Conditions of Torah Covenant, which is Mashiyach.

Whether you are a Jew who is taking the heat from your Jewish community for putting your trust in Y’shua Mashiyach, or a Gentile who is being abused by family members and friends for your love of Torah, the Kingdom of Elohim is all about bearing righteous fruit and being Set Apart unto YHWH and His Mashiyach.

Good News

The Good News (Gospel) originated in Gan Eden when YHWH introduced Adam and Eve to the “Tree of Life” and revealed to them that the fruit of that Tree would cause them to live forever. That Tree, of course, represented the Malchut Elohim (Kingdom of Elohim), which has no beginning or end. The Netzer (Branch or sprout) which was spoken of in Isaiah 11:1 is the prophetic birth of this Tree of Life through Mashiyach and which is the foundation of the Good News, but clearly the Good News did not originate at the coming of Y’shua: “Because Elohim knew beforehand that the Gentiles would be declared righteous through faith that he first preached to Awraham, as it is said in the Set Apart Scriptures, “In you shall all the Gentiles be blessed” (Galatians 3:8). The KJV and other translations read, “preached before the gospel unto Awraham,” plainly teaching us that Awraham responded to the Good News about 2,000 years before Y’shua’s sufferings!

Most Christians believe that Mashiyach is the Word of YHWH who existed before the foundations of the world. Wherever Mashiyach is, there is Good News; the two are inseparable. Mashiyach has always been intimately connected to his people. He was and is the Right Hand of YHWH and every blood sacrifice that was ever made in the Name of YHWH for any purpose, past, present and future, was done “in” Mashiyach. Faith in YHWH provided forgiveness and it was that same faith in YHWH that provided the complete confidence that our sacrifices and prayers would be accepted. But the sacrifice itself is only a token of atonement; in itself a sacrifice could do nothing unless the intent of the heart was right with YHWH. Without faith it is impossible to please YHWH. The ancients, our forefathers knew very well that their sacrifices by faith were demonstrations of their obedience, and all pointed to the greater and more perfect offering.

“And they searched for the time which the Spirit of the Mashiyach dwelling in them did show and testify when the sufferings of the Mashiyach were to occur, and his subsequent glory. And it was revealed to them (in regard to) all they were searching that, not for themselves were they inquiring, but for us they were prophesying of those things which are now manifested to you by means of the things we have announced to you by the Ruach haKodesh sent from heaven; which things the Messengers also desire to look into” (1 Peter 1:11-12). The Spirit of Mashiyach dwelling in our forefathers is the Good News received: Adam, Noah, Awraham, Yitzkhakh, Ya’akov, Moshe, Yehoshua, King Dawid, Daniel and all the Prophets of YHWH knew the Good News and responded with all their hearts, souls, might and minds. Daniel, for instance, saw Mashiyach in visions: those who were cast into the fiery furnace were joined by “one like the Son of Elohim” (Daniel 3:25) who is Mashiyach. Most Christians and Jews know very well that the Tanakh is all about Mashiyach.

“For to us also is the announcement, as well as to them: but the Word they heard did not profit them because it was not mingled with the faith of those who heard it” (Hebrews 4:2). Again the KJV inserts, “For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them:” Rav Shaul makes it clear that it’s not good enough to hear the Truth and accept it intellectually; the Good News is activated only when we exercise Faith, which means we observe Torah and live according to the Word of YHWH. This is the requirement on our part to participate in the Good News.

The majority of Christians are aware of the vital importance of a mikveh (baptism), which is a total immersion of the physical body in living water. This is an outward sign that is made after there is a change to the inner man. Once he has repented of his sin and dedicated himself to Mashiyach, there is no other action that is more indicative of one who has received the Good News than to be immersed into the Kingdom of Elohim. “And, my Brothers, I would have you know, that our fathers were all of them under the cloud, and they all passed through the sea; And they were all immersed by Moshe, in the cloud and in the sea; And they all ate the same spiritual food; And they all drank the same spiritual drink; for they drank from the spiritual rock that attended them, and that rock was the Mashiyach” (1 Corinthians 10:1-4). All the Israelites who passed between the parted waters were immersed into the Good News. They had returned to their ancestral spiritual heritage of Awraham through the leading of Moshe Rabbeinu. “Your father Awraham did long to see my day, and he saw it and rejoiced!” (John 8:45 (56))<sup>56</sup> The Israelites were given every advantage to know and understand the Good News; their own deliverance after participating in the Passover lamb gave them a blood covering which was accepted before YHWH and a substitute for the life of their own first-born sons.

The Scriptures indicate beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Good News originated at the very beginning of time. The True “gospel” has always incorporated YHWH’s Torah (instruction in righteousness) in building a relationship between YHWH and humankind. “A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit in you, and cause you to live by my Torah, and ye shall keep my statutes and judgments, and do them” (Ezekiel 36:26, 27). Here we clearly see the basis of the Good News, that YHWH Himself shows favor and mercy to His people who will live according to His Word. The Good News is the revelation of YHWH’s Eternal Grace that saves and empowers His people to be able to stop transgressing (breaking Torah) against Him. Torah is YHWH’s blueprint for moral, righteous living. To attempt to annul Torah is to teach a different “gospel” than what the Talmidim (disciples) and Shlichim (Apostles) originally taught.

False gospels preach that Y’shua is “the gospel” and/or that belief alone in Y’shua brings salvation. However, Adam and Eve “got saved” long before Y’shua came to earth because YHWH is Salvation. Y’shua is the door to salvation but belief in his atoning blood is utterly futile without being “re-born” spiritually and keeping his Father’s Commandments (becoming Set Apart). Even the demons believe in YHWH and the fact that there is only One Elohim; but demons are certainly not Set Apart unto YHWH, and therefore belief in itself without a righteous lifestyle is simply false religion. The false gospel has removed the TERMS & CONDITIONS of salvation, covenant and atonement and replaced them with a cerebral belief system or Christian religious label (identity); whereas the Renewed Covenant demands a complete change of lifestyle once Torah (instructions in righteousness) is written upon the heart.

Increased popularity of a false gospel will in no way make it acceptable to YHWH or His Mashiyach. Even if every soul on earth put their faith in a false gospel, it would not cause YHWH to change His Word to comply with man’s opinion. YHWH Is His Word and His Promise and He cannot change Who He Is! The false gospel is a theology that pits Y’shua (Grace) against the Word of YHWH (Torah). Those who lead the charge of the false gospel adamantly speak against the terms and conditions of the Renewed Covenant. The Good News is that YHWH our Creator is a Loving, Merciful and Forgiving Father, which is why “the sacrifices of Elohim are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart.” This Love of the Father is clearly demonstrated in Y’shua Mashiyach as an offering for all souls to turn to YHWH, to enter His Kingdom and turn away from transgression of His Word.

Head Coverings

1 Corinthians 11:4

Much of the contention among believers who wear and those who do not wear head coverings is based on this verse. But as we investigate this matter it becomes very obvious that Rav Shaul made this statement in the context of what was happening at the local level, and he also stated that no one has any right, whatsoever, to be contentious about it.

<sup>56</sup> The differing numbering systems reflect the differences between whether the story of the adulteress is included (later Western canon) or excluded (original Aramaic and Greek traditions) in John 8.

YHWH Commanded His priesthood to wear head coverings; “And these are the garments which they shall make; a breastplate, and an ephod, and a robe, and a brodered coat, a mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron” (Exodus 28:4).

The High Priest wore a nezer (crown) on top of their mitre or turban; “And you shall put the mitre upon his head, and put the holy nezer (crown) upon the mitre” (Exodus 29:6; 39:30, 31; Leviticus 8:9). The Hebrew nezer comes from the word nazar which means to separate and, of course, this head covering and crown distinguishes the High Priest as separated unto YHWH. All of the sons of Aaron also wore head coverings or turbans; “And for Aaron’s sons you shall make coats, and you shall make for them girdles, and turbans shall you make for them, for glory and for beauty. And you shall put them upon Aaron your brother, and his sons with him” (Exodus 28:40-41). (See also Leviticus 8:13 and Ezekiel 44:18.)

The High Priest was not permitted to remove his head covering even in time of mourning for a loved one: “And he that is the high priest among his brethren, upon whose head the anointing oil was poured, and that is consecrated to put on the garments, shall not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes” (Leviticus 21:10). According to Scripture Aaron and his sons wore their head coverings before YHWH while they served in the Tabernacle and while Aaron was in the Holy of Holies, see Exodus 29:38, 43. From these verses a vivid picture emerges of these men wearing head coverings while they served YHWH and prayed and conducted their official duties. It is also interesting to note, then, that by the rules of Leviticus 21:10, High Priest Khayapa was in direct violation of a command to not tear his clothes when Y’shua gave an answer he did not like! (Matthew 26:65/Mark 14:63)

Head coverings and garments symbolized a priests’ receipt of YHWH’s authority and were symbolic of the spiritual “crowns” He gave each of them. Notice also two distinctions in the headcoverings: “And you shall make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, Qodesh l’YHWH” (Exodus 28:36). The words “Set Apart unto YHWH” upon the head signifies a very distinct designation of ownership or belonging to YHWH. As Aaron fulfilled his role as the high priest he was emulating YHWH’s Attributes to the people of Israel and thus YHWH’s Name was foremost upon his mind.

Aaron’s garments symbolized the robes of the great multitude: “And after these things, I looked, and lo, a great multitude which no one could number, from all kindreds and nations and tribes and tongues; who stood before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and palms in their hands” (Revelation 7:9). The white robes distinguish YHWH’s people and are symbolic of the spiritual man. Furthermore, we read in Renewed Covenant writings about the crown of rejoicing, the crown of righteousness, the crown of life, the crown of glory and also of the “...twenty and four Elders, who were clothed in white robes, and on whose heads were crowns of gold” (Revelation 4:4). Therefore not only the garments, but the head coverings are mentioned at a time in the future for those who live according to Mashiyach. And also those who are born into the Kingdom of Elohim, “...will see his face, and his name (will be) on their foreheads” (Revelation 22:4).

Here is another distinction for the priests’ head coverings: “And you shall put it on a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre; upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be” (Exodus 28:36). Those who are familiar with tzit tzit – the fringes which contain the blue thread as a reminder to do all of YHWH’s Commandments (Matthew 9:20) – will immediately identify the importance of the blue lace upon the forefront of the mitre. In other words, the head covering was a very special item given by YHWH to the priests to remind them of who they were in Him.

Scriptures indicate that covering the head while praying is showing brokenness and humility while petitioning Elohim: “And David went up by the ascent of Mount Olives, and wept as he went up, and had his head caphah (covered), and he went barefoot: and all the people that were with him covered every man his head, and they went up, weeping as they went up” (2 Samuel 15:30). At times of deep anguish and mourning the elders of Israel put dust upon their heads while petitioning YHWH: “And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of YHWH until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads” (Joshua 7:6). (See also Job 2:12; Lam. 2:10; Amos 2:7.) Putting dust upon the head symbolizes mankind’s human nature as dust before YHWH; mankind who is powerless without YHWH’s help.

In Psalm 140:7 we read that YHWH covered or defended David’s head when he went into battle: “O YHWH, my Master the strength of my salvation, you have covered my head in the day of battle.” The imagery here is manifold as David unashamedly declares that YHWH wins his battles, and that he as the anointed King of Israel wore a crown that symbolized the authority YHWH gave him (see Psalm 110:1).

In Daniel 3:21 we see how the king of Babylon ordered three Jews to be thrown into the fiery furnace, turbans and all: “Then these men were bound in their coats, their tunics, and their turbans, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.” This is further proof that, like other cultures with their own respective head covering customs, righteous Jews also wore head coverings.

Zechariah had a vision of Joshua the High Priest wearing a head covering: “And I said, Let them set a fair mitre upon his head. So they set a fair mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments. And the angel of YHWH stood by” (Zechariah 3:5).

In the light of what Scripture teaches about head coverings we must consider Rav Shaul’s letter to the spiritually “deteriorated” Corinthians who “were pagans...led away by idols” and who were practicing high-handed rebellion against Mashiach. Here we discover that other cultures boasted their own head coverings that had very different values than what YHWH instructed. Rav Shaul wrote: “In short, it is reported, there is sexual sin among you; and such sexual sin as is not even named among the pagans, that a son should even take the wife of his father. And you are puffed up, and have not rather sat down in grief, that he who has done this deed might be separated from you” (1 Corinthians 5:1, 2). If the recipients of this letter were even worse than unregenerate pagans, then their particular use of “head coverings” must not apply to all the household of the righteous. Rav Shaul would never honor unregenerate souls by using them as model examples for all other assemblies. In reality some pagans (and Jews) abused Jewish customs as a way of renouncing the “G-d of the Jews” and thus showing their displeasure towards YHWH’s Word.

Greek scholars point out that the use of katakalypto for the male “covering” and peribolaion for the female “covering” may have indicated something beneath the text. Apparently, men would wear veils when worshipping pagan female deities to look feminine; and Rav Shaul, of course, taught against this practice. Pagans were known to wear clothing of the opposite sex while performing perverse sexual rituals. In this passage, Rav Shaul does not distinguish the type of head coverings the men were wearing or the reason they were wearing long hair, but given the culture they came out of it is easy to see that what they were doing had nothing to do with Jewish practices. Also, he would have been a hypocrite if on one hand he renounced all long hair on men while also participating in Nazirite offerings (Acts 21:24). Rav Shaul clearly reprimands certain individuals for their “impurity, the sexual sin, and the lustful acts” (2 Corinthians 12:21)

The bottom line is, in light of what the Scriptures tell us, it would be very reckless to conclude that Rav Shaul sent out blanket halakha for all men everywhere to stop wearing all manner of “head coverings” while praying. YHWH sanctified head coverings as part of man’s service unto Him. If Rav Shaul’s directive (the Temple was in operation when he wrote this letter) was levied to “every man,” then he would have also had two or three witnesses to establish the matter as halakha (Matthew 18:20). In reality Rav Shaul would have appealed to Ya’akov HaTsaddiq and other Shlichim in Jerusalem to establish such a directive. But in fact, just a few verses later Rav Shaul issues this statement: “But if any one is contentious about these things, we on our part have no such custom, nor has the assembly of Elohim" (1 Corinthians 11:16). In other words, whatever these people were doing it had not been a custom of the Jews, or any assembly of Elohim prior to this.

Furthermore, the wearing of head coverings by observant Jews and various Christian hierarchies neither validates nor invalidates YHWH's authority. In reality, there are two main purposes for religious men to wear head coverings. First, it symbolizes their authority in these organizations where only the hierarchy is allowed to wear the head coverings. Secondly, some men wear a head covering as a reminder that the Master is above them. Like tzit tzit, the head covering reminds them to heed what comes out of their mouths and to judge their actions and cause them to maintain thoughts that are pleasing unto YHWH.

Rav Shaul taught: "But if any one is contentious about these things, we on our part have no such custom, nor has the assembly of Elohim" (1 Corinthians 11:16). Clearly, if anyone wants to be contentious about this matter, they cannot presume to use Rav Shaul as their authority.

Hearing in the Ear

"Hearing in the ear" in Romans 10:17 is another example of the kind of double imagery that can be found throughout the Aramaic language; it is not something that carries over well into non-Semitic speech. "Hearing in the ear" could easily be misunderstood to refer to the sound of prayer or scripture operating in a magical, repetitive way; but this was expressly forbidden by Y'shua and Rav Shaul as a pagan practice (Matthew 6:5-8, 1 Corinthians 14:19).

The context of the Hebrew/Aramaic word shema is to hear and do. In other words, we don't just interpret the sonic vibrations of a divine scriptural message; we incorporate it into our hearts and carry out its commands. This concept is found throughout Scripture:

"Hear, O Israel: YHWH is our Elohim, YHWH is one. Love YHWH your Elohim with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength. These commandments that I give you today are to be upon your hearts. Impress them on your children. Talk about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up. Tie them as symbols on your hands and bind them on your foreheads. Write them on the doorframes of your houses and on your gates. When YHWH your Elohim brings you into the land he swore to your fathers, to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to give you – a land with large, flourishing cities you did not build, houses filled with all kinds of good things you did not provide, wells you did not dig, and vineyards and olive groves you did not plant – then when you eat and are satisfied, be careful that you do not forget YHWH, who brought you out of Egypt, out of the land of slavery. Fear YHWH your Elohim, serve Him only and take your oaths in his name. Do not follow other gods, the gods of the peoples around you; for YHWH your Elohim, who is among you, is a jealous Elohim and his anger will burn against you, and he will destroy you from the face of the land" (D'varim/Deut. 6:4-15).

Hearing YHWH's Commandments is not sufficient unless the "hearing" is followed by deliberate action. Such is also the case in Romans 10 where Rav Shaul expands on the hearing in the ear by saying: "Consequently, faith comes from hearing the message, and the message is heard through the word of Mashiyach. But I ask: Did they not hear? Of course they did: 'Their voice has gone out into all the earth, their words to the ends of the world.' Again I ask: Did Israel not understand? First, Moshe says, 'I will make you envious by those who are not a nation; I will make you angry by a nation that has no understanding.' And Isaiah boldly says, 'I was found by those who did not seek me; I revealed myself to those who did not ask for me.' But concerning Israel he says, 'All day long I have held out my hands to a disobedient and obstinate people'" (Romans 10:17-21).

Every student of the Word of YHWH is well aware that when the Kings of Israel were obedient to YHWH and kept Torah, the nation prospered; but when they refused to do Torah they were punished, often very severely. As we read the history of Israel our hearts are delighted to discover kings who were faithful to YHWH, as in the testimony of Asa. “And Asa did that which was good and right in the eyes of YHWH his Elohim: For he took away the altars of the strange gods, and the high places, and brake down the images, and cut down the statues: And commanded Judah to seek YHWH Elohim of their fathers, and to do the Torah and the commandment” (2 Chronicles 14:2-5). The word “do” in Hebrew is asah; therefore, Asa was clearly being true to his name. It is not good enough to simply stop doing the old materialistic, relativistic or pagan traditions. Rather, the Household of Faith is called to replace old, worldly things with new life in Mashiyach, which is Torah being written upon the heart by the Ruach haKodesh.

The whole world back then knew that one must do the Torah rather than just hear it and in addition to the Word of YHWH and the Prophets even a very unlikely source – the king of Persia – said:

“And you, Ezra, after the wisdom of your Elohim, that is in your hand, set magistrates and judges, which may judge all the people that are beyond the river, all such as know the laws of your Elohim; and teach them that know them not. And whosoever will not do the law of your Elohim, and the law of the king, let judgment be executed speedily upon him, whether it be unto death, or to banishment, or to confiscation of goods, or to imprisonment” (Ezra 7:25-26). Even Artaxerxes the King of Persia in his royal commission to Ezra commanded the Israelites to “do” Torah; he did not mince any words. Obviously, doing Torah is a great struggle for those who have not won the victory over their carnal nature, but Y’shua himself and the Apostles weighed in on this matter with very definitive and encouraging words.

Ya’akov Ha Tzadik (James the Just), goes to great lengths to ensure his fellow Hebrew believers in Y’shua avoid the easy interpretation of just “hearing” without follow-through, and his action steps are very evident: “But be you doers of the Word, and not hearers only; and do not deceive yourselves. For if any man shall be a hearer of the Word and not a doer of it, he will be like one who sees his face in a mirror: for he sees himself and passes on and forgets what a man he was. But everyone that looks upon the perfect Torah of liberty and abides in it, is not a hearer of something to be forgotten, but a doer of the things; and he will be blessed in his work.” (Ya’akov 1:23-25).

Rav Shaul added: “For not the hearers of Torah are righteous before Elohim; but the doers of Torah are being made righteous” (Romans 2:13). It may appear to some as though Rav Shaul and Ya’akov haTsaddiq are not employing the most eloquent speech in their “doers of Torah” ministries, but “doing Torah” is such a basic and universal concept among the followers of Mashiyach Y’shua that it hardly needs to be stated! If anyone were to be ignorant of such basic principles of the Malchut Elohim, as “doing Torah,” surely upon immediate hearing of Torah they would make Teshuva (turn and repent) and immediately stop breaking the Word of YHWH! The doers of Torah are being made righteous because Torah is being written upon their hearts, and these souls respond with Mashiyach-like conduct. Righteousness and separation from sin is what the Kingdom of Elohim is all about.

Y’shua sealed this very important truth with these words: “For anyone who does the will of my Father who is in heaven, is my brother, and my sister, and my mother” (Matthew 12:50).

How much Torah do Christians already keep?

There is a common lie being spread around by many Christians that “the Law (Torah) is impossible to keep,” which is mainly precipitated by ignorance of Torah. In reality there are 613 Mitzvot (Commandments) in Torah. The majority of Christians are keeping about 203 of YHWH’s Commandments; a much smaller minority of Christians are keeping as many as 275 of the Commandments. However, 221 Commandments are applicable only to the Temple, and even if there were a Temple, most of these would apply to Jews only, or persons living outside of Israel; these are “Not Applicable” (N/A) in the list below. An additional 74 of the Commandments “May Not Apply” (MNA), these are special Commandments which involve judges, agricultural matters, or are specifically for men or for women, widows etc. If we examine how much Torah that Christians already keep, factoring in what doesn’t apply to them, then we discover that the range is from 66 to 85% of Torah! Judge for yourself; the list below has a YES or NO according to Christian communities that do or do not observe each Commandment. Also note that there are 94 Commandments being “Observed by Christian Minorities” (OCM).

The laws of the Nazarite are voluntary; therefore, we could potentially include these eight Commandments into the category that “May Not Apply,” which brings the average up to 69 to 87% of Torah being observed by Christians! The 94 Commandments which fall into the category of being both a YES/NO are presently being observed depending on the individual Christian. Obviously there is a very wide latitude of observance and doctrines within the Christian world. Can Christians observe 100% of Torah that is applicable to them? ABSOLUTELY! Should they? ABSOLUTELY! In fact, Mashiyach is the Salvation of YHWH who came to write Torah upon the hearts of his people and to raise up a Kedoshim (Set Apart People).

Humanism – Relativism – Materialism

“Elohim saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth” Genesis 6:5

Man has been very impressed with himself and his own accomplishments since the dawn of time, to the point of man worship as the measure of all things. Believing himself to be in control, the carnal man employs humanism, relativism and materialism to convince himself that he is his own god.

Today, however, the earthlings are racing towards perilous times because of a growing concern about environmental sustainability, global warming, chemtrails, world poverty and hunger, global destruction, war, deadly pharmaceutical drugs, depleted uranium, “Crapitalism,” the insatiable greed of the “Bildergate power mongers,” polluted air, water and food, along with all forms of toxic immorality and injustice – pure products of humanism fueled by an insatiable desire for instant gratification. Hardly anyone seems to be aware of the fact (or cares) that these things have been predicted within the writings of the Renewed Covenant which contains many prophetic declarations against those who are destroying the earth: “And the nations were angry; and your anger is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged: and that You should give a reward to your servants, the prophets, and the Set Apart believers, and to them that Fear Your Name, the small and the great; and that You should destroy them who destroyed the earth” (Revelation 11:18).

Individual stewardship of the material world is a major component of man’s inherent responsibility by which he is being judged and yet the vast majority of religious people continue to make significant contributions to the Humanist, Relativist Materialist (HRM) agendas. It’s their “right” after all and so, many (if not most) mock and scorn the very idea that YHWH will require us to give an account for the life we’ve lived. The wickedness of man is great in the earth yet mankind resents absolute demands upon his “rights and freedoms” and prefers to escalate his transgression.

The “sciences” and modern philosophies of life have attempted to reverse the criterion of Justice, Faith and Judgment, so it is up to each individual to choose and decide who will win. Will rebellious men who hold the value of human life in contempt win and destroy everything, or will YHWH do battle against all the forces of evil and finally wipe them off the face of the Earth? Is it a reasonable conclusion to think that YHWH would create all life and the purpose of life, only to then watch it all go up in a nuclear mushroom cloud?

Evil cannot triumph over good because it is constrained by time and space; the domain of humanism, relativism and materialism is temporary and finite. Peter put it this way, “Because all flesh is as grass and all its beauty like the flower of the field. The grass dries up and the flower withers away; but the Word of our Elohim abides forever: and this is the Word that is announced to you” (1 Peter 1:24, 25).

Immerser

A common misconception among many Christians is that “baptism” was invented by “John the Baptist,” but of course Jews have been “purifying” themselves with a ritual immersion in water for over 3200 years and at least 1300 years before Y’shua came to Earth as Mashiyach. The synagogue system that arose after the Captivity but before +/- 150 BCE had as one of its key architectural aspects a ritual bath called a “mikveh,” through which the faithful passed prior to entering the service. Mikveh is first mentioned in Genesis: “And Elohim called the dry land Earth; and the mikveh (gathering together) of the waters called he Seas: and Elohim saw that it was good.” (Genesis 1:10). “Nevertheless a fountain or pit, wherein there is mikveh (plenty of water), shall be clean: but that which touches their carcass shall be unclean” (Leviticus 11:36).

Literally hundreds of mikveh baths (baptisms) have been uncovered at the foot of the entrance to the Temple in Jerusalem. Before entering the Temple every soul was required to purify themselves by putting off the old man and turning their hearts toward praise and worship of YHWH. Torah requires that all males come up to Jerusalem at least three times a year to keep the Annual Feasts or Set Times of YHWH and, of course, at this time each one would enter into a mikveh before entering the Temple. Y’shua and many of his disciples went into the Temple daily to pray (Matt. 26:55; Mark 14:49; Luke 19:47; 22:53; Acts 2:46; 3:2; 5:42); they would partake of a mikveh to separate themselves unto YHWH and to make a distinction between coming out from the mundane and into that which is Set Apart unto YHWH. Today, observant Jews enjoy a mikveh before Shabbat and at other special times to cleanse the inside; the mikveh actually has nothing to do with washing the outside of the body. Everyone takes a shower before entering a mikveh; but in ancient times, of course, there were not such luxuries.

The mikveh (baptism) was and is a vital part of the requirement for new converts to enter the Faith. Peter makes the point: “You are also saved in that very manner by immersion, not merely by washing the filth from your body, but by confessing Elohim with a clean conscience and by the resurrection of Y’shua the Mashiyach” (1 Peter 3:20-21). Mashiyach’s name is derived from a word that means to “save,” however another word for “save” is khaya, a slightly different inflection that also means “life.” There is a direct wordplay between khaya (save/life) and kaya (clean). There is also another similar sounding word which means “resurrection” – Khaya (save): Khaya (life): Khayat (resurrection - Romans 7:9): Kaya (clean). Another bit of cleverness has to do with the word for “resurrection” as used in this passage. The more commonly used Aramaic word is nukhama, such as when Y’shua declared at Lazarus’ tomb that he is the “resurrection and the life.” However, in this case the word is qayamta, the middle word is yam (sea); it was at Yam Suph that Moses, who was “resurrected or saved” from water at infancy, was also “resurrected or saved” by the parting of the waters along with the entire nation of Israel.

Immersion is not a one time “quick fix” solution, as Yochanan indicates: “And when (he) saw the many from the Pharisees and Sadducees that came to be immersed, he said to them, ‘Generation of vipers! Who has informed you to flee from the wrath that will come?’” (Matthew 3:7) Certainly, it is very easy to be immersed by a famous prophet and use the immersion as some sort of credential of authentic conversion; however, Yochanan would not permit this. Those who were not made ready in their Spirit could not be immersed until they surrendered their lives according to the Kingdom of Elohim.

Immersion is as a Set Apart procedural directive, and responsibility lies with those who conduct and witness the immersion to follow the instructions that Torah and Mashiyach set forth. Rav Shaul was also very careful about who he immersed because of this status in the community: "I thank my Elohim that I immersed none of you, except Crispus and Gaius; And therefore that not any one should say that I immersed in my own name" (1 Corinthians 1:14, 15). Rav Shaul exposed counterfeit immersions to illustrate the validity of the resurrection: "Otherwise, what shall they do who are immersed for the dead, if the dead do not rise? Why are they immersed for the dead?" (1 Corinthians 15:29) It is foolish for someone to be immersed on behalf of a dead person because it is the voluntary will of each living soul to live for YHWH and His Mashiyach according to His Word. It is also foolish and despicable to pay monies to a Priest or any "religious" leader to pray for the dead or to make some sort of intercession for the dead, because each person's choice during their lives cannot be invalidated by the will of others after they are dead. We have one life to live and one opportunity to make our choices count. Immersion is a voluntary act of obedience and a witness to others of our willingness to live for Mashiyach and our desire to turn from the fallen world of haSatan and enter into the Kingdom of Elohim.

"Alive in the waters" (1 Peter 3:20) points to the waters of the Mikveh, the complete immersion (baptism) into living waters after a soul has repented of his sin and agreed to walk in the newness of life (the Kingdom) as offered by Mashiyach. "For those who have been immersed in Mashiyach have been clothed with Mashiyach" (Galatians 3:27). Being clothed with Mashiyach means to have the Spirit of Mashiyach within and live as Mashiyach and his disciples lived. "I will greatly rejoice in YHWH, my soul shall be joyful in my Elohim; for he has clothed me with the garments of salvation, he has covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decks himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorns herself with her jewels" (Isaiah 61:10). When Y'shua's talmidim were providing immersion (mikveh) for Jewish souls, the new converts were not demonstrating an act of conversion from one religion to another, but were entering into Mashiyach for redemption and purification from sin. Immersion is only one of many outward symbols for those who desire to be "clothed with Mashiyach," but immersion in itself without the intent of the heart means nothing; the heart must first be humble and contrite and have turned from all sin to YHWH and His Mashiyach. Before going into a mikveh (baptism), everyone must count the cost and be prepared to live for Mashiyach when he or she comes out.

The event of "Philip and the eunuch" is also notable: "And he arose and went and met a certain believer who had come from Cush" (Acts 8:27). The Aramaic word "MHYMNNA" can mean either "believer" or "eunuch." Greek versions mistranslate this as "eunuch" instead of the more contextually correct "believer." Eunuchs were disqualified from entering the Temple in Jerusalem but obviously this was a righteous man who was reading the Prophet Isaiah and wanting to learn more. Pileepos (Philip) taught him about Mashiyach Y'shua and about immersion into the Kingdom of Elohim in Y'shua. However, both ancient Greek and Aramaic texts do not contain this verse that was inserted in later Greek texts: "And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God" (Acts 8:37 KJV). This added verse bolsters the ideology of "belief" for conversion, but in this case the man was already a "believer" who had yet to put his trust in YHWH's Mashiyach for atonement. Someone who is not already a believer in YHWH must turn from sin, begin to have Torah written upon the heart (keep YHWH's Commandments) and co-labor with Mashiyach to purify himself and produce the fruits of righteousness. Those who follow Mashiyach are to put on garments of righteousness as Y'shua himself also wears see Rev 3:4-6; 16:15; Isaiah 61:10.

Today, there is no doubt that baptism is viewed as an act of conversion. It indicates a very clear demarcation of the time and place when a person is buried in the waters of a mikveh and resurrected in living waters unto Mashiyach. Immersion is a most beautiful and joyous occasion for all believers; it is a powerful act of Faith and yet it is only a beginning because each one of us lives and grows from faith to faith: "For in it is revealed the righteousness of Elohim, from faith to faith; as it is written, The righteous by faith, shall live" (Romans 1:17). Many Christians rededicate their lives to YHWH and are re-baptized as they grow from “faith to faith” in a wonderful progressive development. Nevertheless all who follow Mashiyach also enter into many aspects of his sufferings. Mashiyach endured great temptations after his mikveh, and everyone who follows Mashiyach must also endure their own temptation in a similar manner, but we will not be tried beyond what we can bear (1 Cor. 10:13). Wherefore, let him who thinks he stands beware or else he may fall.

Mashiyach instructs his followers: “Go therefore make disciples of all nations, and immerse them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Ruach haKodesh” (Matthew 28:19). Note that Aramaic uses “name” – singular – which does not support the traditional trinity theology. Ruach haKodesh is a title for YHWH (see Isaiah 63:1-11; Psalm 51:1-11); the Son has his Father’s Name within him and the Father keeps His people in His Name (John 17:11). All converts to Y’shua were baptized in the Name of YHWH. This is the central focus: the Name of Y’shua (YHWH is Salvation) reveals the Name of YHWH as our Salvation and “there is not another name under heaven which is given to men by which it is proper to have life!” (Acts 4:12)

Once we are immersed into YHWH our Salvation (Y’shua) then the “righteous by faith, shall live” which means living righteous lives and having Torah written upon the heart. As we live from faith to faith we recognize the development of the spiritual man within us and each Shabbat and Feast day of YHWH we enter in literally to the days of Mashiyach; these are prophetic days within our own generation and our own lives. The physical immersion in water is the first step toward drawing close to YHWH after repentance is made; it is also the first step towards the excitement and joy of living in Mashiyach.

Jealous Elohim

“For you shall worship no other elohim: for YHWH, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous Elohim” Sh’mot/Exodus 34:14

There are two types of jealousy revealed in Scripture: Qannaw or qannow which is the righteous jealousy of YHWH; and qinah, which is the jealousy common to the fallen world, based on lust, pride, envy, hate, and insecurity, etc.

YHWH is jealous of His people and vice-versa. When we desire the same things that YHWH desires it’s because YHWH has put His Spirit within and made us into a Kedoshim, or Set Apart people, whether Jew or Gentile (D’varim/Deut. 7:6, 14:2, 21; Yeshayahu 62:10-12; Ephesians 5:3; 1 Keefa 2:9; 2 Keefa 3:11). If we are jealous for what is righteous, then we also must hate evil and all transgressions against Torah, which goes contrary to our spirit. YHWH’s jealousy over His people clearly depicts His desire for an intimate relationship with each soul. He most certainly cannot be thought of as a passive Father who desires agnostic attitudes towards Him when in fact He is “a jealous Elohim.”

YHWH is One and His Name is One. He is exclusive and does not permit His divine glory to be shared by false authorities. As the architect of Life, there is no other Creator to be compared to YHWH; therefore, “You shall not make any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: You shall not bow down to them, nor serve them: for I YHWH your Elohim am a jealous Elohim” (Sh’mot/Ex. 20:4, 5).

Being jealous of our Creator YHWH also means being jealous to live according to the Way of YHWH and His Mashiyach. Our lifestyles clearly reveal whether or not we are in a relationship with YHWH and His Mashiyach. Paul wrote, “You cannot drink the cup of our Master and the cup of demons; and you cannot be partakers at the table of our Master, and at the table of demons. Or, would we provoke our Master’s jealousy? Are we stronger than he?” (1 Corinthians 10:21, 22) Whenever we provoke YHWH to jealousy, we are asking for disciplinary measures. Unfortunately, many religious people feel they have the upper hand and presume to tell YHWH how to run the universe. Rather than being jealous of YHWH's Ways, they've fashioned their own gods according to religious traditions, something which Y'shua our Mashiyach frequently railed against (Matthew 15:1-9, 23:13-33; Mark 7:1-23, Luke 11:37-44).

YHWH is jealous for His Name's sake. He guards all that is Righteous according to His Word; in some cases He even leads rebellious souls into greater rebellion to make a clear demarcation between the righteous and the wicked. "Therefore Elohim will send upon them the strength of a deception that they may believe a lie; and that they all may be condemned who believe not the truth but have pleasure in iniquity" (2 Thess. 2:11, 12).

Since YHWH's love for His creation is constant according to His Righteous Judgments, why then should anyone question whether YHWH loves them? Why would YHWH create life unless He delighted in it for His good pleasure? Everything YHWH Creates is part of His plan and purpose. "But, as it is written: The eye has not seen, nor has the ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man, that which Elohim has prepared for those who love him" (1 Corinthians 2:9-14).

When mankind is jealous of his Creator he becomes "divinely inspired" in Mashiyach's government and in the Olam Haba (the world to come). Everything in the natural world has repercussions in the spiritual world. "Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, has turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, in that he was jealous with my jealousy among them, so that I consumed not the children of Israel in my jealousy" (B'midbar/Num. 25:11). In the same manner that YHWH is jealous for His people, we His people are jealous of Him, and thus refrain from entertaining false deities or religions that are in opposition to Him.

Rav Shaul echoed the same jealousy for YHWH that Phinehas displayed when he wrote; "For I am jealous over you, with a righteous jealousy: for I have espoused you to a husband as a chaste virgin whom I would present to the Mashiyach. But I fear, or else, as the serpent beguiled Eve by his craftiness, so your minds should be corrupted from simplicity towards the Mashiyach. For if he that comes to you, had proclaimed to you another Y'shua, whom we have not proclaimed; or if you had received another Spirit, which you have not received; or another gospel, which you have not accepted; you might well have given your permission..." (2 Corinthians 11:2-5).

The idea that many opposing religions all lead to the Kingdom of Elohim is a fallacy! Mashiyach taught: "Enter by the straight door; for wide is the door and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many are they, those that go in it. How narrow the door and straight the road that leads to life, and few are they, those that find it. Beware of false prophets that come among you in the clothing of lambs, but from within are ravenous wolves" (Matthew 7:13-15).

The Renewed Covenant Scriptures clearly reveal that Y'shua and his followers were Torah observant and entrusted with YHWH's Commandments. As a result, Mashiyach was jealous for that which belongs to his Father YHWH, and his lifestyle demonstrated a continuum of Covenant that extends from everlasting to everlasting (Malachi 3:6, Hebrews 4:8, 13:8). Jeremiah wrote, "Thus says YHWH, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the ancient paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and you shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein" (Jeremiah 6:16). Y'shua taught: "Bear my yoke upon you and learn from me. That I am tranquil and I am meek, and in my heart you will find tranquility in your souls. For my yoke is pleasant and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:29, 30). Y'shua is the Ancient Path that originated when Adam and Eve were redeemed from sin.

All counterfeit religion is exposed through belief upon Y'shua Mashiyach and Torah observance. "And Y'shua said to those Yehudeans who believed in him, If you should abide by my words, truly you are my disciples. And you will know the truth and that truth will set you free. They said to him, "We are the seed of Awraham and never has bondage to anyone been served by us. How do you say that you will be free men?" Y'shua said to them, Amen, amen I say to you that anyone who commits sin is the servant of sin. And a servant does not remain forever in the house, but the Son remains forever. If therefore the Son should free you, truly you will be free men” (Yochanan 8:20-25).

Josephus the Netzari

“So the Word of Elohim spread. The number of disciples in Jerusalem increased rapidly, and a large number of kohenim became obedient to the faith.” Acts 6:7

Throughout the Gospels, we are told of prominent members of the Jewish aristocracy, particularly from the Sanhedrin Council, who were “secret followers” of Y’shua Mashiach (John 12:42, 19:38). Two men who are directly mentioned by name are Joseph of Ramtha and Nicodemus, but there can be little doubt that there were many others. Here we will examine the possibility of another such man, descended by his own account from both priests and kings. His name was Yoseph bar Matthias, better known as the Jewish historian Josephus Flavius.

In the two millennia since his death, the writings of Josephus have become one of the foremost focal points in the Jewish Christian divide and debate. His works are among the only surviving sources for documenting the trials and tribulations of First Century Israel. While some would add Philo of Alexandria to this short list as well (although he visited Israel just once), Josephus was a long-time resident who was an eyewitness to events like the Jewish War and the destruction of the Second Temple, which makes Josephus an even more critical witness than his Alexandrian counterpart and literally puts him in a category all by himself.

Josephus also emerges as a huge enigma when we consider how different groups have portrayed him over the centuries. In Rabbinic circles, he is largely looked upon as a traitor, because by Josephus’ own account, he had surrendered to the Romans after commanding Galilean forces in the Jewish War. He then “switched sides” interpreting for the Romans the Hebrew laments of his brothers while living the last quarter century of his life in Gentile splendor. The fact that Josephus gives approval to Y’shua and his early followers surely did not help curry favor with his brethren. In addition, Josephus the Pharisee provides a fair amount of negative appraisals of the key tenets of that sect, and it is from the Pharisees that we get the Rabbis of today.

On the other hand, Josephus’ account of the Second Temple’s destruction and other key aspects of Jewish history have never been successfully refuted by the Rabbis either, so like it or not, they admit Josephus is generally reliable. The modern state of Israel in fact uses the story of Masada as a major symbol of their national identity, and this is in spite of the fact that Josephus is the sole source for this event. Generally speaking, the grudgingly difficult but rock solid consensus is that Josephus is overall considered one of the greatest and most accurate historians the world has ever known. So while many Rabbis accuse Josephus of abandoning them, they have not altogether abandoned Josephus.

But if the Rabbinic response to Josephus appears to be confusing, the Christian version of this could well be considered downright schizophrenic as Christians have actually attempted to add to his writing for credibility. And, while accepting as a normative fact Josephus’ love of Torah and status as a Pharisaic leader, they have also suggested that his positive portrayals of the early Nazarenes pointed to the historian as an early Bishop of Jerusalem! All these centuries later, we may well look at such an idea as Christian fable, but the fact remains that even many of the most fantastic legends have some basis in real history. But the question is: What are the facts behind this theory? Is it possible that Josephus was an early follower of Y’shua, and that this formed the basis of Christian legend about him? If so, can we demonstrate from the historical record how Josephus’ genuine beliefs may have been morphed for their purposes? At the end of the day, can we say with any certainty that the most famous Jewish historian of them all was really a Nazarene Jew? In order to find out, we will need to answer a series of progressively interesting and difficult questions, starting with the easiest one first:

Josephus' love for Torah

Josephus writes<sup>57</sup>:

For we have not an innumerable multitude of books among us, disagreeing from and contradicting one another, [as the Greeks have,] but only twenty-two books, (8) which contain the records of all the past times; which are justly believed to be divine; and of them five belong to Moses, which contain his laws and the traditions of the origin of mankind till his death. This interval of time was little short of three thousand years; but as to the time from the death of Moses till the reign of Artaxerxes king of Persia, who reigned after Xerxes, the prophets, who were after Moses, wrote down what was done in their times in thirteen books. The remaining four books contain hymns to Elohim, and precepts for the conduct of human life. It is true, our history hath been written since Artaxerxes very particularly, but hath not been esteemed of the like authority with the former by our forefathers, because there hath not been an exact succession of prophets since that time; and how firmly we have given credit to these books of our own nation is evident by what we do; for during so many ages as have already passed, no one has been so bold as either to add any thing to them, to take any thing from them, or to make any change in them; but it is become natural to all Jews immediately, and from their very birth, to esteem these books to contain Divine doctrines, and to persist in them, and, if occasion be willingly to die for them.<sup>58</sup> (Against Apion, 1.8)

Josephus and Pharisaism

The historian clearly identifies himself as a Pharisee, having taken up affiliation with that sect when he was nineteen years old. However, Josephus also goes out of his way to express the strong points of other forms of Judaism as well<sup>59</sup>:

I was commended by all for the love I had to learning; on which account the high priests and principal men of the city came then frequently to me together, in order to know my opinion about the accurate understanding of points of the law. And when I was about sixteen years old, I had a mind to make trim of the several sects that were among us. These sects are three: - The first is that of the Pharisees, the second that Sadducees, and the third that of the Essens, as we have frequently told you; for I thought that by this means I might choose the best, if I were once acquainted with them all; so I contented myself with hard fare, and underwent great difficulties, and went through them all. Nor did I content myself with these trials only; but when

<sup>57</sup> All quotes from Josephus are derived from the William Whiston translation. Elsewhere, though, common names for Father YHWH and His Son Y'shua have been replaced with the originals as enshrined in Scripture. In other cases, where archaic KJV-style English terminology seems to create confusion, a more modern syntax is preferred.

<sup>58</sup> It is possible to argue that, since Josephus says not to add or take away from the Tanakh, this might exclude the Renewed Covenant writings. However, the real meaning is that no one is to add or subtract from the content of the Tanakh books themselves. The Renewed Covenant then, owing to the fact that it is a contingency of what went before, is not so much adding to Tanakh as it is showing how Tanakh themes developed into the time of Y'shua. Also, as a Pharisee, Josephus knows full well that their traditions are much more likely candidates for "adding" to Tanakh than the Renewed Covenant is!

<sup>59</sup> Quoted from Against Apion, 2.42: "As to the laws themselves, more words are unnecessary, for they are visible in their own nature, and appear to teach not impiety, but the truest piety in the world. They do not make men hate one another, but encourage people to communicate what they have to one another freely; they are enemies to injustice, they take care of righteousness, they banish idleness and expensive living, and instruct men to be content with what they have, and to be laborious in their calling; they forbid men to make war from a desire of getting more, but make men courageous in defending the laws; they are inexorable in punishing malefactors; they admit no sophistry of words, but are always established by actions themselves, which actions we ever propose as surer demonstrations than what is contained in writing only: on which account I am so bold as to say that we are become the teachers of other men, in the greatest number of things, and those of the most excellent nature only; for what is more excellent than inviolable piety? what is more just than submission to laws? and what is more advantageous than mutual love and concord? and this so far that we are to be neither divided by calamities, nor to become injurious and seditious in prosperity; but to condemn death when we are in war, and in peace to apply ourselves to our mechanical occupations, or to our tillage of the ground; while we in all things and all ways are satisfied that Elohim is the inspector and governor of our actions."

I was informed that one, whose name was Banus, lived in the desert, and used no other clothing than grew upon trees, and had no other food than what grew of its own accord, and bathed himself in cold water frequently, both by night and by day, in order to preserve his chastity, I imitated him in those things, and continued with him three years. (3) So when I had accomplished my desires, I returned back to the city, being now nineteen years old, and began to conduct myself according to the rules of the sect of the Pharisees, which is of kin to the sect of the Stoics, as the Greeks call them. (Life, 1.2)

Josephus and “the Oral Law”

It is clear that Josephus calls both customs and written Torah requirements as “law” or nomos. However, the broad contours of Josephus’ assessment of good and bad Oral Law are still very evident:

Now, for the Pharisees, they live meanly, and despise delicacies in diet; and they follow the conduct of reason; and what that prescribes to them as good for them they do; and they think they ought earnestly to strive to observe reason’s dictates for practice. They also pay a respect to such as are in years; nor are they so bold as to contradict them in any thing which they have introduced; and when they determine that all things are done by fate, they do not take away the freedom from men of acting as they think fit; since their notion is, that it hath pleased Elohim to make a temperament, whereby what he wills is done, but so that the will of man can act virtuously or viciously. They also believe that souls have an immortal rigor in them, and that under the earth there will be rewards or punishments, according as they have lived virtuously or viciously in this life; and the latter are to be detained in an everlasting prison, but that the former shall have power to revive and live again; on account of which doctrines they are able greatly to persuade the body of the people; and whatsoever they do about Divine worship, prayers, and sacrifices, they perform them according to their direction; insomuch that the cities give great attestations to them on account of their entire virtuous conduct, both in the actions of their lives and their discourses also.

But the doctrine of the Sadducees is this: That souls die with the bodies; nor do they regard the observation of any thing besides what the law enjoins them; for they think it an instance of virtue to dispute with those teachers of philosophy whom they frequent: but this doctrine is received but by a few, yet by those still of the greatest dignity. But they are able to do almost nothing of themselves; for when they become magistrates, as they are unwillingly and by force sometimes obliged to be, they addict themselves to the notions of the Pharisees, because the multitude would not otherwise bear them. (Antiquities, 18:1.3-4)

Notice here that the Sadducees “addict” themselves to some Oral Laws of the Pharisees—not exactly a pleasant image. Surely then there would be no “addiction” to Torah in the mind of Josephus, so this is a very clear conceptual separation. A further rebuke of the Sadducees is in Antiquities 20.9.1 which we will visit later.

He was also of the sect of the Sadducees, who are very rigid in judging offenders, above all the rest of the Jews...

On the other hand, we also see above that when it came to ministrations at the Temple level, Josephus had little problem with the Pharisees being in charge. Josephus extends additional praise to the Pharisees’ overall process as well:

But then as to the two other orders at first mentioned, the Pharisees are those who are esteemed most skillful in the exact explication of their laws, and introduce the first sect.

These ascribe all to fate [or providence], and to Elohim, and yet allow, that to act what is right, or the contrary, is principally in the power of men, although fate does co-operate in every action. They say that all souls are incorruptible, but that the souls of good men only are removed into other bodies, - but that the souls of bad men are subject to eternal punishment. But the Sadducees are those that compose the second order, and take away fate entirely, and suppose that Elohim is not concerned in our doing or not doing what is evil; and they say, that to act what is good, or what is evil, is at men's own choice, and that the one or the other belongs so to every one, that they may act as they please. They also take away the belief of the immortal duration of the soul, and the punishments and rewards in Hades. Moreover, the Pharisees are friendly to one another, and are for the exercise of concord, and regard for the public; but the behavior of the Sadducees one towards another is in some degree wild, and their conversation with those that are of their own party is as barbarous as if they were strangers to them.<sup>60</sup> And this is what I had to say concerning the philosophic sects among the Jews. (War, 2.8.14)

Note the use of “their laws” (oral traditions) and not Torah by Josephus. This quote is one of the few times he seems to draw the distinction. In addition, his point seems further expounded upon when we consider the other phrase here, the so-called “notions of the Pharisees” referenced above, because there Josephus implies it is popular support of their policies, not Scripture, from which the Pharisees draw authority.

Finally, in the case of Josephus' account of Yochanan the Immerser, which we will examine later, we see him very upset about other traditions concerning the proper way to convene a trial. The rules of jurisprudence are clearly not directly from Torah, but they are applications from broader commands. So the validity of Oral Law is very much a situational decision for Josephus, and it is that flexibility that begins to show us exactly how he can depart from mainstream Pharisaic traditions when he deems it necessary.

If Josephus is strictly a Pharisee, why does he profess admiration for the early Nazarenes?

Indicators that Josephus' attained “rebel” status have to do with two main factors. First, Josephus has no concerns about documenting Jews who followed Yochanan the Immerser, Y'shua and his brother Ya'akov as normative Jews. This positive accounting of those whom a normal Pharisee would have viewed as heretics is in stark contrast to the Rabbis who, in the year 90, pronounced a universal curse on these very same Nazarenes! Granted, Josephus was living in Rome at that time, but we can hardly doubt that such a huge event escaped his notice. This is especially true when we consider how detailed his accounts of the final destruction of Jerusalem were twenty years before – the destruction which was the catalyst that led to the new Rabbinic learning academies and this same curse. At the very least, Josephus' decision was certainly not mainstream for those of the Pharisee sect.

The second issue is that Josephus universally regarded the oppression of the Nazarenes as a bad thing, and yet it was policy for the Pharisees and their later Rabbinic brethren to do just that, and even sending an “enforcer” named Shaul of Tarsus (the apostle Paul) to give direct approval to the execution of these “heretics.”<sup>61</sup> If Rav Shaul then called himself “a Pharisee and the son of a Pharisee” how might the pre-conversion Shaul have viewed what Josephus wrote? In both cases, the writings of these men reveal that they can be proud of the way they advanced in Pharisaic traditions while at the same time feeling totally free to criticize other portions of those traditions and, if need be, to set them aside.

<sup>60</sup> The ironic part of this rebuke, of course, is that the Sadducees did what Josephus' detractors heavily criticized him for, namely cooperating with the Romans. Some of this sentiment also appears reflected in the Renewed Covenant as well, (Acts 4:1-4, 23:6-8).

<sup>61</sup> See Acts 7:1-8:1, and two of Rav Shaul's admissions of guilt for his conduct in 1 Corinthians 15:9 and Galatians 1:13.

What can be attributed to Josephus's faith from the "Testimonium"?

Now there was about this time Y'shua, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man; for he was a doer of wonderful works, a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both many of the Jews and many of the Gentiles. He was [the] Mashiach. And when Pilate, at the suggestion of the principal men amongst us, had condemned him to the cross, (9) those that loved him at the first did not forsake him; for he appeared to them alive again the third day; (10) as the divine prophets had foretold these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning him. And the tribe of Christians, so named from him, are not extinct at this day. (Antiquities 18.3.3)

The first main criticism that this passage excites is: It doesn't belong here. Critics argue that a later editor recklessly inserted it here because the previous paragraphs referenced Pilate. There is some weight to this argument simply because Josephus references Yochanan the Immerser two chapters later, and he knew Yochanan came before Y'shua.

In addition, and unlike the Immerser reference, this paragraph can be easily removed from the narrative pieces before and after it, allowing the remaining pieces to make perfect sense. This is usually a sign of bad editing, as we see here:

So he bid the Jews himself go away; but they boldly casting reproaches upon him, he gave the soldiers that signal which had been beforehand agreed on; who laid upon them much greater blows than Pilate had commanded them, and equally punished those that were tumultuous, and those that were not; nor did they spare them in the least: and since the people were unarmed, and were caught by men prepared for what they were about, there were a great number of them slain by this means, and others of them ran away wounded. And thus an end was put to this sedition...Now there was about this time Y'shua, a wise man...About the same time also another sad calamity put the Jews into disorder, and certain shameful practices happened about the temple of Isis that was at Rome...

It seems clear that it is at least plausible the Testimonium may have simply been put between two "Jewish calamities" under Pilate. The editing is also in stark contrast to the Immerser reference:

So Aretas made this the first occasion of his enmity between him and Herod, who had also some quarrel with him about their limits at the country of Gamalitis. So they raised armies on both sides, and prepared for war, and sent their generals to fight instead of themselves; and when they had joined battle, all Herod's army was destroyed by the treachery of some fugitives, who, though they were of the tetrarchy of Philip, joined with Aretas's army. So Herod wrote about these affairs to Tiberius, who being very angry at the attempt made by Aretas, wrote to Vitellius to make war upon him, and either to take him alive, and bring him to him in bonds, or to kill him, and send him his head. This was the charge that Tiberius gave to the president of Syria. Now some of the Jews thought that the destruction of Herod's army came from Elohim, and that very justly, as a punishment of what he did against Yochanan, that was called the Immerser: for Herod slew him, who was a good man, and commanded the Jews to exercise virtue, both as to righteousness towards one another, and piety towards Elohim, and so to come to baptism; for that the washing [with water] would be acceptable to him, if they made use of it, not in order to the putting away [or the remission] of some sins [only], but for the purification of the body; supposing still that the soul was thoroughly purified beforehand by righteousness. Now when [many] others came in crowds about him, for they were very greatly moved [or pleased] by hearing his words, Herod, who feared lest the great influence Yochanan had over the people might put it into his power and inclination to raise a rebellion, (for they seemed ready to do any thing he should advise,) thought it best, by putting him to death, to prevent any mischief he might cause, and not bring himself into difficulties, by sparing a man who might make him repent of it when it would be too late. Accordingly he was sent a prisoner, out of Herod's suspicious temper, to Macherus, the castle I before mentioned, and was there put to death. Now the Jews had an opinion that the destruction of this army was sent as a punishment upon Herod, and a mark of Elohim's displeasure to him. (Antiquities, 18.5.1-2)

Looking at the highlighted portions, one can easily see how Yochanan cannot be removed from the narrative without the entire structure falling apart. Josephus even suggests that Yochanan's death invited a curse on Herod both before and after referencing him. Clearly then, this entire paragraph must stand as written by Josephus, but the same cannot be definitely said of the Testimonium. The problem with ruling absolutely against the Testimonium en masse is that this might only apply to a copyist or Christian editor's placement of the text, which does not prove the text invalid!

The second major theory is that the Testimonium is from Josephus, but that certain lines were added later; however, this is circular reasoning. If we understand that Josephus is a conventional Pharisee, then these "questionable" lines don't make sense coming from his pen. There would be no benefit of a "later insertion" attempting to "prove" Josephus was a conventional Pharisee!

Josephus likes to employ the phrase "who was called the ____" in his writings. In the Ya'akov reference he says "Y'shua who was called the Mashiyach." Therefore, beliefs aside, it does seem out of character for Josephus to toggle from an absolute statement (he was the Mashiyach) in the disputed text to a neutral one in a non-disputed portion!

However, in fairness, this argument can cut both ways. If writing style in this case can throw doubt on parts of the Testimonium then concordance and agreement between the Testimonium and non-disputed portions of Josephus can have the opposite effect. Let's now investigate his Nazarene quote about Ya'akov:

And now Caesar, upon hearing the death of Festus, sent Albinus into Judea, as procurator. But the king deprived Joseph of the high priesthood, and bestowed the succession to that dignity on the son of Ananus, who was also himself called Ananus. Now the report goes that this eldest Ananus proved a most fortunate man; for he had five sons who had all performed the office of a high priest to Elohim, and who had himself enjoyed that dignity a long time formerly, which had never happened to any other of our high priests. But this younger Ananus, who, as we have told you already, took the high priesthood, was a bold man in his temper, and very insolent; he was also of the sect of the Sadducees, (23) who are very rigid in judging offenders, above all the rest of the Jews, as we have already observed; when, therefore, Ananus was of this disposition, he thought he had now a proper opportunity [to exercise his authority]. Festus was now dead, and Albinus was but upon the road; so he assembled the Sanhedrim of judges, and brought before them the brother of Y'shua, who was called Mashiyach, whose name was Ya'akov, and some others, [or, some of his companions]; and when he had formed an accusation against them as breakers of the law, he delivered them to be stoned: but as for those who seemed the most equitable of the citizens, and such as were the most uneasy at the breach of the laws, they disliked what was done; they also sent to the king [Agrippa], desiring him to send to Ananus that he should act so no more, for that what he had already done was not to be justified; nay, some of them went also to meet Albinus, as he was upon his journey from Alexandria, and informed him that it was not lawful for Ananus to assemble a Sanhedrim without his consent. (24) Whereupon Albinus complied with what they said, and wrote in anger to Ananus, and threatened that he would bring him to punishment for what he had done; on which king Agrippa took the high priesthood from him, when he had ruled but three months, and made Joshua, the son of Damneus, high priest. (Antiquities 20.9.1)

When combining these sources, there is agreement on the following facts:

- 1) That a man named Y'shua was called the Mashiyach (anointed one).
- 2) That this Y'shua had many followers, particularly among Jews, and these men drew the ire and attention of Jewish and Roman authorities.
- 3) That the common accusation against these Nazarenes was that they were "Torah breakers" but Josephus himself calls those who wanted mercy on them "equitable" and those who sought their deaths as "unlawful."
- 4) That other Jewish authorities, unlike the Rabbis who cursed the Nazarenes, are praised by Josephus for punishing those who deprived those Nazarenes of what was the ancient equivalent of their civil rights!

As a result, the rest of the Testimonium (less the strong Messianic verbiage) is very likely Josephus' authentic words:

Now there was about this time Y'shua, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man; for he was a doer of wonderful works, a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both many of the Jews and many of the Gentiles, and the tribe of Christians, so named from him, are not extinct at this day.

The final consideration for this section is this: Since even Y'shua's enemies both in his lifetime and later in Rabbinic polemics admit he could do miracles, there is no reason to suppose that the phrase "he was a doer of wonderful works" was not also from Josephus' pen.

Does Josephus quote from the Renewed Covenant writings?

It is clear that Josephus is aware of events and persons of the Renewed Covenant writings. However, finding actual quotes that rise to the level of his Tanakh reporting is difficult. On the other hand, there is a middle ground here between quoting and merely summarizing from historical sources, and that area resides with a Jewish storytelling and teaching technique known broadly as Midrash.

Derived from a Hebrew word meaning "lesson" – or more literally "comparison" – midrash refers to the way rabbis and sages have attempted to fill in gaps in knowledge in the scriptural record. They do this by either focusing on different snippets of text that on first glance seem unrelated, or by exploring linguistic clues in the multiple meanings of words.<sup>62</sup>

Under close scrutiny of the text we discover that Josephus is in fact midrashing key aspects of the Renewed Covenant writings; a very important fact that speaks volumes about the historian's own faith. Jews simply don't midrash a text unless they view its message as extremely sacred and important, and this was more true in Josephus' day than today. Therefore, this activity alone points to the true level of high regard that Josephus had not just for the people and events he mentions, but for the faith behind those people and events, and his view on the reliability of the Renewed Covenant writings as history in general.

Y'shua Son of Mercies from YHWH

The following are excerpts from Josephus' War Against the Jews, 6.5.3-4. However, Josephus' intentions appear to go far deeper than simply telling the story. Notice the opening line regarding the celestial events:

Thus were the miserable people persuaded by these deceivers, and such as belied Elohim himself; while they did not attend nor give credit to the signs that were so evident, and did so plainly foretell their future desolation, but, like men infatuated, without either eyes to see or minds to consider, did not regard the denunciations that Elohim made to them. Thus there was a star (20) resembling a sword, which stood over the city, and a comet, that continued a whole year.

The “star resembling a sword” sounds much like another iconic image from the Gospels:

“And when Y’shua was born in Beth-Lekhem of Yehuda, in the days of Herodus, the king, Magoshi came from the east to Urishlim. And they said, “Where is he who has been born the king of the Jews? For we saw his star in the East and have come to worship him... And when they heard from the king, they departed, and behold the star which they saw in the East was going before them until it came and stood from over where the boy was. And when they saw the star, they rejoiced (with) very great joy” (Matthew 2:1-10).

The sword theme is also evident elsewhere in the Renewed Covenant writings:

“And Shimon blessed them and said to his mother Maryam, Behold this one is appointed for the fall and for the rise of many in Israel, and for a sign of dispute and in your soul will pass through a spear so that thoughts of many hearts may be revealed” (Luke 2:34-35).

“For the Word of Elohim is living and all-efficient and sharper than a two-edged sword, and enters even to the severance of the soul and the spirit, and of the joints and the marrow and the bones, and judges the thoughts and reasonings of the heart” (Hebrews 4:12).

This also links to another part of Josephus’ story:

Thus also before the Jews’ rebellion, and before those commotions which preceded the war, when the people were come in great crowds to the feast of unleavened bread, on the eighth day of the month Xanthicus, (21) [Nisan,] and at the ninth hour of the night, so great a light shone round the altar and the holy house, that it appeared to be bright day time; which lasted for half an hour.

Notice the timing: Passover is about to begin. A light shines around the Temple – there was a light at the resurrection and the Temple veil was torn in half. Also the ninth hour of the day is the time Y’shua died on the stake, but Josephus changes it to night instead!

And then the matter of earthquakes:

“Then again Y’shua cried out with a loud voice and gave up his spirit. And immediately, the curtains at the door of the temple were torn in two from the top to the bottom. And the earth was shaken and the rocks were split. And the tombs were opened and many bodies of the Set Apart believers<sup>63</sup> who were asleep arose, And went out. And after his resurrection, they entered into the Set Apart city and were seen by many. And the centurion, and those with him who were watching Y’shua, when they saw the earthquake and those things that had occurred, they were very afraid and said, “Truly this was the Son of Elohim” (Matthew 27:50-54).

“And behold a great earthquake occurred for a Messenger of Master YHWH descended from heaven and came and rolled away the boulder from the entrance, and he was sitting upon it” (Matthew 28:2).

Josephus’ writes:

Moreover, at that feast which we call Pentecost, as the priests were going by night into the inner [court of the temple,] as their custom was, to perform their sacred ministrations, <sup>63</sup> Being “Set Apart” unto YHWH means to be led by the Ruach haKodesh to keep the Commandments of YHWH. Belief in itself does not make one Set Apart, even the demons “believe” in YHWH and His Mashiych. See Ya’akov (James) 2:19.

they said that, in the first place, they felt a quaking, and heard a great noise, and after that they heard a sound as of a great multitude, saying, “Let us remove hence.”

This brings up another parallel in the book of Acts, about another earthquake happening on Shavuot or Pentecost as Josephus calls it:

And after the days of Shavuot (Pentecost) were fulfilled, all were assembled as one. All of a sudden there was a sound from heaven like a roaring wind and all that House in which they were sitting was filled. And (it) appeared to them like tongues divided, and fire sat upon every one of them. And all of them were filled with the Ruach haKodesh, and they were compelled to speak in different tongues, just as the Spirit had given them to speak...“Behold we are hearing from them that they are proclaiming the wonders of Elohim in our language!” (Acts 2:1-11)

Then, Josephus’ next line introduces his hero, a prophet of doom with a peculiar name and some interesting titles:

But, what is still more terrible, there was one Y’shua, the son of Ananus a plebeian and a husbandman...

Although Y’shua was a common name of the time, this title was not. “Y’shua bar Khanan-Yah” – This is the Aramaic form of the name which translates to Y’shua, son of our mercies (from) YHWH!

Also notable is how Josephus employs this title for this particular man named Y’shua. The first phrase, “plebeian,” is a Greek word meaning “common man,” which Y’shua surely was. The second word, “husbandman” is equivalent to a gardener, and this is extremely significant because Y’shua called himself the vine and his followers, the branches, Nazarenes. Mary Magdala, when she saw Y’shua after he was raised from the dead, thought he was the gardener. The rabbis who would later compile slanders against Y’shua took this imagery from John’s Gospel and made the gardener the one who buried Y’shua’s body in secret.

Furthermore, in John 4, Y’shua used the Sower parable in his talk about followers being ripe for harvest. The point is: The code has been extended to read, Y’shua, son of our mercies (from) YHWH, a common man and planter of the branches (Netzarim). In other words, the branch (netzer) of Jesse discussed in Isaiah 11:1-2 who has the spirit of YHWH rest on him, and who is literally raised in Branch Town (Netzer-et), and this hero of Josephus – are one and the same! If there is any lingering doubt on the matter, then let’s let Josephus speak for himself:

[Y’shua bar Khanan-Yah], four years before the war began, and at a time when the city was in very great peace and prosperity, came to that feast whereon it is our custom for every one to make tabernacles to Elohim in the temple, (23) began on a sudden to cry aloud, “A voice from the east, a voice from the west, a voice from the four winds, a voice against Jerusalem and the holy house, a voice against the bridegrooms and the brides, and a voice against this whole people!” This was his cry, as he went about by day and by night, in all the lanes of the city.

If this sounds familiar, it should:

“And Y’shua entered into the temple of Elohim and drove out all who were buying and selling in the temple. And he overturned the tables of the moneychangers and the chairs of those who were selling doves. And he said to them, It is written that my House will be called a house of prayer, but you have made it a cave of bandits” (Matthew 21:12-13).

Therefore I am sending you prophets and wise men and teachers. Some of them you will kill and crucify; others you will flog in your synagogues and pursue from town to town. And so upon you will come all the righteous blood that has been shed on earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Berekiah, whom you murdered between the temple and the altar. I tell you the truth, all this will come upon this generation. “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you who kill the prophets and stone those sent to you, how often I have longed to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you were not willing. Look, your house is left to you desolate. For I tell you, you will not see me again until you say, ‘Blessed is he who comes in the name of YHWH.’”

“Behold, because of this I will send to you prophets and wise men and scribes. Some of them you will kill, and you will execute them on stakes, and some of them you will scourge in your assemblies. And you will pursue them from city to city, So that will come upon you all the blood of the righteous... Urishlim! Urishlim! Murderess of the prophets and stoner of those that are sent to her. How often I have desired to gather your children like a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you did not desire it! Behold, your house is left desolate” (Matthew 23:34-38).

And as for the “a voice from the east” and so on, Y’shua used very similar metaphors:

“For as the sunshine comes out from the East and is seen even in the West, thus will be the coming of the Son of man” (Matthew 24:27).

“And they will come from the east and from the west and from the south and from the north and they will recline in the Kingdom of Elohim” (Luke 13:29).

“The wind will blow where it desires, and you hear its voice. But you do not know from where it comes or to where it goes. Likewise is everyone who is born from spirit” (John 3:8).

“And I saw and heard an eagle which flew in the midst, and it had a tail of blood, while it said with a loud voice: Woe, woe, to them who dwell on the earth because of the remaining sounds of the trumpets of the three Messengers, who are to sound” (Revelation 8:13).

Josephus also continues to develop these themes further:

Now, during all the time that passed before the war began, this man did not go near any of the citizens, nor was seen by them while he said so; but he every day uttered these lamentable words, as if it were his premeditated vow, “Woe, woe to Jerusalem!” Nor did he give ill words to any of those that beat him every day, nor good words to those that gave him food; but this was his reply to all men, and indeed no other than a melancholy presage of what was to come. This cry of his was the loudest at the festivals...

We begin to see what happens to this Y’shua. They beat him daily and he doesn’t protest, just like a certain suffering servant in Isaiah 53. And like the Y’shua in the Gospels, this man’s rebukes are loudest at the festivals of YHWH! Then, this is what happens to him when he speaks one word too many against the religious establishment:

However, certain of the most eminent among the populace had great indignation at this dire cry of his, and took up the man, and gave him a great number of severe stripes; yet did not he either say any thing for himself, or any thing peculiar to those that chastised him, but still went on with the same words which he cried before. Hereupon our rulers, supposing, as the case proved to be, that this was a sort of divine fury in the man, brought him to the Roman procurator, where he was whipped till his bones were laid bare; yet he did not make any supplication for himself, nor shed any tears, but turning his voice to the most lamentable tone possible, at every stroke of the whip his answer was, “Woe, woe to Jerusalem!”

“Severe stripes...whipped till his bones were laid bare”! Indeed, this is a very apt description of the crucifixion, where Y’shua received very severe wounds, a crown of thorns on his head, impaled wrists and feet, and a spear thrust into his side! But there are still more parallels between Josephus’ writings and accounts in the Renewed Covenant:

And when Albinus (for he was then our procurator) asked him, Who he was? and whence he came? and why he uttered such words? he made no manner of reply to what he said, but still did not leave off his melancholy ditty, till Albinus took him to be a madman, and dismissed him.

This portion speaks for itself: Albinus the procurator is standing in for Pilate in the midrash. The procurator thinks him mad and wants to let Y’shua go but is forced to punish him anyway! However, the most startling fact is that Josephus even accurately portrayed the execution site:

For as he was going round upon the wall, he cried out with his utmost force, “Woe, woe to the city again, and to the people, and to the holy house!” And just as he added at the last, “Woe, woe to myself also!” there came a stone out of one of the engines, and smote him, and killed him immediately; and as he was uttering the very same presages he gave up the ghost.

Here we have Y’shua “going around upon the wall” – the exact place of the crucifixion was just outside the walls of Jerusalem. Y’shua then once more pronounces woe on Jerusalem, and then a woe on the Temple (one greater than Solomon is here) and then on himself (My spirit is troubled to the point of death). Then, to top it all off Josephus takes the fact that many attempted to stone the real Y’shua while he was alive and makes that the manner of his death here! Even the phrase “he gave up his spirit” is identical to what Matthew wrote.

Obviously, no amount of “coincidence” will convince some that Josephus was a follower of Y’shua haMashiyach. But his writings testify to a man who knew that he lived in momentous times and who likely became a prolific writer because of the extreme significance of events for not only himself but all the Jewish people. For the complete account please see Josephus’ War 6.5.3-4.

What about the resurrection?

As Rav Shaul (the Apostle Paul) said, without belief in the resurrection of Y’shua our faith is worthless. So then, by what standard did Josephus’ claim faith? Let us see, keeping in mind a pattern of Josephus interchanging events chronologically and adding codified phrases:

And when I was sent by Titus Caesar with Cerealins, and a thousand horsemen, to a certain village called Thecoa, in order to know whether it were a place fit for a camp, as I came back, I saw many captives crucified, and remembered three of them as my former acquaintance. I was very sorry at this in my mind, and went with tears in my eyes to Titus, and told him of them; so he immediately commanded them to be taken down, and to have the greatest care taken of them, in order to their recovery; yet two of them died under the physician’s hands, while the third recovered. (Life, 1.75)

Is this coincidence or code? Note that he records Titus rather than Pilate, and a place called Thecoa rather than Jerusalem. Nevertheless, look at the basic storyline:

- 1) Three men are crucified in the same place.
- 2) An influential Jewish man (or two) comes to beg the Roman authorities to take them (or him) down from the stake.
- 3) One of the three crucified men recovers. The other two die.

Granted that three people are taken down from the stake, but the parallels remain striking. Y’shua is crucified with one man on each side. Furthermore, the phrase “under the physician’s hands” seems redundant. Who else but a physician would Titus have employed? Compare this to Luke:

"Y'shua said to them, Perhaps you might tell me this parable, "Physician heal yourself. And all that we have heard that you did in Capurnakhum, do here also in your city." And he said, Truly I say to you that there is no prophet who is accepted in his own city" (Luke 4:23-24).

Y'shua prophesied of naysayers taking up a parable against him, but he also stated that he has the power to raise up his own body from the grave (John 2:19). Isn't it interesting that Josephus suggests that one of the three crucified men recovered at "the physician's" hands?

The Gospel according to Josephus

If Josephus was able to subtly weave his Netzarim faith into his histories, then it stands to reason we may be able to recover his "Gospel" of sorts by similar means. Specific verses are used for brevity; however, the reader is encouraged to read the full account.

The Nativity

Thus were the miserable people persuaded by these deceivers, and such as belied Elohim himself; while they did not attend nor give credit to the signs that were so evident, and did so plainly foretell their future desolation, but, like men infatuated, without either eyes to see or minds to consider, did not regard the denunciations that Elohim made to them. Thus there was a star (20) resembling a sword, which stood over the city...and at the ninth hour of the night, so great a light shone round the altar and the holy house, that it appeared to be bright day time; which lasted for half an hour.

Yochanan the Immerser

Aretas (the king of Arabia Petres) and Herod (then) had a quarrel on the account following: Herod the tetrarch had, married the daughter of Aretas, and had lived with her a great while; but when he was once at Rome, he lodged with Herod, (15) who was his brother indeed, but not by the same mother; for this Herod was the son of the high priest Sireoh's daughter. However, he fell in love with Herodias, this last Herod's wife, who was the daughter of Aristobulus their brother, and the sister of Agrippa the Great. This man ventured to talk to her about a marriage between them; which address, when she admitted, an agreement was made for her to change her habitation, and come to him as soon as he should return from Rome: one article of this marriage also was this, that he should divorce Aretas's daughter.

So Antipus, when he had made this agreement, sailed to Rome; but when he had done there the business he went about, and was returned again, his wife having discovered the agreement he had made with Herodias, and having learned it before he had notice of her knowledge of the whole design, she desired him to send her to Macherus, which is a place in the borders of the dominions of Aretas and Herod, without informing him of any of her intentions.

Accordingly Herod sent her thither, as thinking his wife had not perceived any thing; now she had sent a good while before to Macherus, which was subject to her father and so all things necessary for her journey were made ready for her by the general of Aretas's army; and by that means she soon came into Arabia, under the conduct of the several generals, who carried her from one to another successively; and she soon came to her father, and told him of Herod's intentions.

So Aretas made this the first occasion of his enmity between him and Herod, who had also some quarrel with him about their limits at the country of Gamalitis. So they raised armies on both sides, and prepared for war, and sent their generals to fight instead of themselves; and when they had joined battle, all Herod's army was destroyed by the treachery of some fugitives, who, though they were of the tetrarchy of Philip, joined with Aretas's army.. So Herod wrote about these affairs to Tiberius, who being very angry at the attempt made by Aretas, wrote to Vitellius to make war upon him, and either to take him alive, and bring him to him in bonds, or to kill him, and send him his head. This was the charge that Tiberius gave to the president of Syria.

Now some of the Jews thought that the destruction of Herod's army came from Elohim, and that very justly, as a punishment of what he did against Yochanan, that was called the Immerser: for Herod slew him, who was a good man, and commanded the Jews to exercise virtue, both as to righteousness towards one another, and piety towards Elohim, and so to come to immersion; for that the washing [with water] would be acceptable to him, if they made use of it, not in order to the putting away [or the remission] of some sins [only], but for the purification of the body; supposing still that the soul was thoroughly purified beforehand by righteousness.

Now when [many] others came in crowds about him, for they were very greatly moved [or pleased] by hearing his words, Herod, who feared lest the great influence John had over the people might put it into his power and inclination to raise a rebellion, (for they seemed ready to do any thing he should advise,) thought it best, by putting him to death, to prevent any mischief he might cause, and not bring himself into difficulties, by sparing a man who might make him repent of it when it would be too late. Accordingly he was sent a prisoner, out of Herod's suspicious temper, to Macherus, the castle I before mentioned, and was there put to death. Now the Jews had an opinion that the destruction of this army was sent as a punishment upon Herod, and a mark of Elohim's displeasure to him. (Antiquities 18.5.1-2)

Y'shua Bar Khanan-Yah begins his ministry

But, what is still more terrible, there was one Y'shua, the son of our mercies of YHWH, a common man and a branch (Netzer) planter, who... came to that feast whereon it is our custom for every one to make tabernacles to Elohim in the temple, (23) began on a sudden to cry aloud, 'A voice from the east, a voice from the west, a voice from the four winds, a voice against Jerusalem and the holy house, a voice against the bridegrooms and the brides, and a voice against this whole people!' This was his cry, as he went about by day and by night, in all the lanes of the city.

Y'shua's suffering, trial and execution

However, certain of the most eminent among the populace had great indignation at this dire cry of his, and took up the man, and gave him a great number of severe stripes; yet did not he either say any thing for himself, or any thing peculiar to those that chastised him, but still went on with the same words which he cried before.

Hereupon our rulers, supposing, as the case proved to be, that this was a sort of divine fury in the man, brought him to the Roman procurator, where he was whipped till his bones were laid bare; yet he did not make any supplication for himself, nor shed any tears, but turning his voice to the most lamentable tone possible, at every stroke of the whip his answer was, 'Woe, woe to Jerusalem!'

And when...our procurator asked him, Who he was? and whence he came? and why he uttered such words? he made no manner of reply to what he said, but still did not leave off his melancholy ditty, till (the procurator) took him to be a madman, and dismissed him.

Now, during all the time that passed before the war began, this man did not go near any of the citizens, nor was seen by them while he said so; but he every day uttered these lamentable words, as if it were his premeditated vow, 'Woe, woe to Jerusalem!'

Nor did he give ill words to any of those that beat him every day, nor good words to those that gave him food; but this was his reply to all men, and indeed no other than a melancholy presage of what was to come. This cry of his was the loudest at the festivals... and he continued this ditty... without growing hoarse, or being tired therewith, until the very time that he saw his presage in earnest fulfilled in our siege, when it ceased; for as he was going round upon the wall, he cried out with his utmost force, 'Woe, woe to the city again, and to the people, and to the holy house!' And just as he added at the last, 'Woe, woe to myself also!'...and as he was uttering the very same presages he gave up the ghost. (War 6.5.3)

Execution aftermath and resurrection

And when I was sent...to a certain village...as I came back I saw many captives crucified, and remembered three of them as my former acquaintance. I was very sorry at this in my mind, and went with tears in my eyes...and told him of them; so he immediately commanded them to be taken down, and to have the greatest care taken of them, in order to their recovery; yet two of them died...while the third recovered. (Life 1.75)

Ruach haKodesh comes at Shavuot

Moreover, at that feast which we call Pentecost...they said that, in the first place, they felt a quaking, and heard a great noise, and after that they heard a sound as of a great multitude, saying, "Let us remove hence." (War 6.5.3)

Y'shua's brother Ya'akov and other Nazarenes falsely persecuted as Torah-breakers

AND now Caesar, upon hearing the death of Festus, sent Albinus into Judea, as procurator. But the king deprived Joseph of the high priesthood, and bestowed the succession to that dignity on the son of Ananus, who was also himself called Ananus.

Now the report goes that this eldest Ananus proved a most fortunate man; for he had five sons who had all performed the office of a high priest to Elohim, and who had himself enjoyed that dignity a long time formerly, which had never happened to any other of our high priests.

But this younger Ananus, who, as we have told you already, took the high priesthood, was a bold man in his temper, and very insolent; he was also of the sect of the Sadducees, (23) who are very rigid in judging offenders, above all the rest of the Jews, as we have already observed; when, therefore, Ananus was of this disposition, he thought he had now a proper opportunity [to exercise his authority].

Festus was now dead, and Albinus was but upon the road; so he assembled the sanhedrim of judges, and brought before them the brother of Y'shua, who was called Mashiyach, whose name was Ya'akov, and some others, [or, some of his companions]; and when he had formed an accusation against them as breakers of the law, he delivered them to be stoned: but as for those who seemed the most equitable of the citizens, and such as were the most uneasy at the breach of the laws, they disliked what was done; they also sent to the king [Agrippa], desiring him to send to Ananus that he should act so no more, for that what he had already done was not to be justified; nay, some of them went also to meet Albinus, as he was upon his journey from Alexandria, and informed him that it was not lawful for Ananus to assemble a sanhedrim without his consent.

Whereupon Albinus complied with what they said, and wrote in anger to Ananus, and threatened that he would bring him to punishment for what he had done; on which king Agrippa took the high priesthood from him, when he had ruled but three months, and made Y'shua, the son of Damneus, high priest. (Antiquities 20.9.1)

When did Josephus become a Nazarene?

Perhaps the most difficult thing to determine based on his writings alone is when Josephus would have become a follower of Y'shua.

So when I had accomplished my desires, I returned back to the city, being now nineteen years old, and began to conduct myself according to the rules of the sect of the Pharisees, which is of kin to the sect of the Stoics, as the Greeks call them. (Life, 1.2)

Josephus refers to Jerusalem as "the city." When he was 19, or about the year 56/57, Jerusalem was a very busy city.<sup>64</sup> To get some idea about the "talk around town" please read Acts 21:27-22:29.

64 For an in-depth analysis as to how these events relate to common years 56-57, please see Illustrated Dictionary and Concordance of the Bible (GG The Jerusalem Publishing House, 1986), subject heading "Paul".

Yes, Rav Shaul was certainly stirring things up, but he was far from a lone voice. There were already myriads of Jews following Y'shua who were zealous for Torah (Acts 21:20). How then could Josephus, a man consecrated to history and learning everything he could about his own people, not have been there in Jerusalem when Rav Shaul was causing this tumult? How could he, as a newly dedicated 19 year old Pharisee not have rushed out there to engage this "heretic" – the "heretic" who in fact, had much in common with the historian. Both were mentored by the finest rabbis their country could produce, and both were Roman citizens caught up in the tidal forces between assimilation with the Gentiles and remaining faithful to their origins.

Similarly, neither Josephus nor Paul ever denied being a Pharisee or the son of a Pharisee. Once both men had committed to the sect – and in spite of any radical opinions they would hold later that opposed mainstream Pharisaic thought – they held their testimonies until death. Put simply, it is improbable that Josephus would not have "rubbed shoulders" with men like Paul, and we know from his own mouth that he was in Jerusalem at that time. What we don't know is if he made his decision to become a secret follower of Y'shua right then and there, or if Rav Shaul simply provided him teaching that bore fruit in his later years.

Why did Josephus midrash from the Renewed Covenant writings?

While it is impossible to know the full answer to this question, we can learn much about Josephus from the extensive writings he left behind. One piece to the puzzle comes from a fairly extensive rebuke he gives on the kind of Temple he would like to see, after the one he previously knew was destroyed:

There ought also to be but one temple for one Elohim; for likeness is the constant foundation of agreement. This temple ought to be common to all men, because he is the common Elohim of all men.

High priests are to be continually about his worship, over whom he that is the first by his birth is to be their ruler perpetually. His business must be to offer sacrifices to Elohim, together with those priests that are joined with him, to see that the laws be observed, to determine controversies, and to punish those that are convicted of injustice; while he that does not submit to him shall be subject to the same punishment, as if he had been guilty of impiety towards Elohim himself.

When we offer sacrifices to him, we do it not in order to surfeit ourselves, or to be drunken; for such excesses are against the will of Elohim, and would be an occasion of injuries and of luxury; but by keeping ourselves sober, orderly, and ready for our other occupations, and being more temperate than others.

And for our duty at the sacrifices (22) themselves, we ought, in the first place, to pray for the common welfare of all, and after that for our own; for we are made for fellowship one with another, and he who prefers the common good before what is peculiar to himself is above all acceptable to Elohim.

And let our prayers and supplications be made humbly to Elohim, not [so much] that he would give us what is good, (for he hath already given that of his own accord, and hath proposed the same publicly to all,) as that we may duly receive it, and when we have received it, may preserve it. Now the law has appointed several purifications at our sacrifices, whereby we are cleansed after a funeral, after what sometimes happens to us in bed, and after accompanying with our wives, and upon many other occasions, which it would be too long now to set down. And this is our doctrine concerning Elohim and his worship, and is the same that the law appoints for our practice. (Against Apion, 2.24)

Parallels between the teachings of Josephus and Y'shua are very obvious. In Revelation Yochanan bar Zawdee speaks of an idealized heavenly Temple coming down to Earth, and that the tabernacle of YHWH is now with men again. This appears to be the hope that Josephus shared as well, but there are many more factors because Josephus viewed the destruction of the Temple, though he loved it very dearly, as inevitable:

For that it was a seditious temper of our own that destroyed it, and that they were the tyrants among the Jews who brought the Roman power upon us, who unwillingly attacked us, and occasioned the burning of our holy temple, Titus Caesar, who destroyed it, is himself a witness, who, daring the entire war, pitied the people who were kept under by the seditious, and did often voluntarily delay the taking of the city, and allowed time to the siege, in order to let the authors have opportunity for repentance. (Preface, War Against the Jews)

The same wonderful sign you had also experience of formerly, when the forementioned king of Babylon made war against us, and when he took the city, and burnt the temple; while yet I believe the Jews of that age were not so impious as you are.

Wherefore I cannot but suppose that Elohim is fled out of his sanctuary, and stands on the side of those against whom you fight. Now even a man, if he be but a good man, will fly from an impure house, and will hate those that are in it; and do you persuade yourselves that Elohim will abide with you in your iniquities, who sees all secret things, and hears what is kept most private? Now what crime is there, I pray you, that is so much as kept secret among you, or is concealed by you? nay, what is there that is not open to your very enemies? For you show your transgressions after a pompous manner, and contend one with another which of you shall be more wicked than another; and you make a public demonstration of your injustice, as if it were virtue.

However, there is a place left for your preservation, if you be willing to accept of it; and Elohim is easily reconciled to those that confess their faults, and repent of them. O hard-hearted wretches as you are! cast away all your arms, and take pity of your country already going to ruin; return from your wicked ways, and have regard to the excellency of that city which you are going to betray, to that excellent temple with the donations of so many countries in it. (War, 5.9.18)

So Titus retired into the tower of Antonia, and resolved to storm the temple the next day, early in the morning, with his whole army, and to encamp round about the holy house. But as for that house, Elohim had, for certain, long ago doomed it to the fire; and now that fatal day was come, according to the revolution of ages; it was the tenth day of the month Lous, [Ab,] upon which it was formerly burnt by the king of Babylon... (War 6.4.5)

From here, though, we find Josephus to be an interesting study in contrasts. On the one hand, he is extremely proud of his heritage and scholarship within both Jewish and Gentile quarters:

THE family from which I am derived is not an ignoble one, but has descended all along from the priests; and as nobility among several people is of a different origin, so with us to be of the sacerdotal dignity, is an indication of the splendor of a family. Now, I am not only sprung from a sacerdotal family in general, but from the first of the twenty-four (1) courses; and as among us there is not only a considerable difference between one family of each course and another, I am of the chief family of that first course also; nay, further, by my mother I am of the royal blood; for the children of Asamoneus, from whom that family was derived, had both the office of the high priesthood, and the dignity of a king, for a long time together. (Life, 1.1)

And I am so bold as to say, now I have so completely perfected the work I proposed to myself to do, that no other person, whether he were a Jew or foreigner, had he ever so great an inclination to it, could so accurately deliver these accounts to the Greeks as is done in these books. For those of my own nation freely acknowledge that I far exceed them in the learning belonging to Jews; I have also taken a great deal of pains to obtain the learning of the Greeks... (Antiquities 20.11.2) On the other hand as proud as he is, Josephus also seems to feel criticism towards him with particular acuity. He views any attack on his people by Gentiles as if it were directed exclusively at him, and criticism from other Jews as almost an act of betrayal. Let's see how Josephus handles these disputes from each group:

It is true, these writers have the confidence to call their accounts histories; wherein yet they seem to me to fail of their own purpose, as well as to relate nothing that is sound. For they have a mind to demonstrate the greatness of the Romans, while they still diminish and lessen the actions of the Jews, as not discerning how it cannot be that those must appear to be great who have only conquered those that were little. Nor are they ashamed to overlook the length of the war, the multitude of the Roman forces who so greatly suffered in it, or the might of the commanders, whose great labors about Jerusalem will be deemed inglorious, if what they achieved be reckoned but a small matter. (Preface, War Against the Jews)

And now I perceived innovations were already begun, and that there were a great many very much elevated in hopes of a revolt from the Romans. I therefore endeavored to put a stop to these tumultuous persons, and persuaded them to change their minds; and laid before their eyes against whom it was that they were going to fight, and told them that they were inferior to the Romans not only in martial skill, but also in good fortune; and desired them not rashly, and after the most foolish manner, to bring on the dangers of the most terrible mischiefs upon their country, upon their families, and upon themselves. And this I said with vehement exhortation, because I foresaw that the end of such a war would be most unfortunate to us. But I could not persuade them; for the madness of desperate men was quite too hard for me.

I was then afraid, lest, by inculcating these things so often, I should incur their hatred and their suspicions, as if I were of our enemies' party, and should run into the danger of being seized by them, and slain; since they were already possessed of Antonia, which was the citadel; so I retired into the inner court of the temple. Yet did I go out of the temple again, after Manahem and the principal of the band of robbers were put to death, when I abode among the high priests and the chief of the Pharisees. But no small fear seized upon us when we saw the people in arms, while we ourselves knew not what we should do, and were not able to restrain the seditious. However, as the danger was directly upon us, we pretended that we were of the same opinion with them, but only advised them to be quiet for the present, and to let the enemy go away, still hoping that Gessius [Florus] would not be long ere he came, and that with great forces, and so put an end to these seditious proceedings...

Nay, after that, when those that envied my good fortune did frequently bring accusations against me, by Elohim's providence I escaped them all... and when I had frequent accusations laid against me, he would not believe them. And Domitian, who succeeded, still augmented his respects to me; for he punished those Jews that were my accusers, and gave command that a servant of mine, who was a eunuch, and my accuser, should be punished. (Life, 1.4-5, 76)

Nay, indeed, lest any Jews that lived elsewhere should convict him of his villainy, he extended his false accusations further, and persuaded Jonathan, and certain others that were caught with him, to bring an accusation of attempts for innovation against the Jews that were of the best character both at Alexandria and at Rome. One of these, against whom this treacherous accusation was laid, was Josephus, the writer of these books. However, this plot, thus contrived by Catullus, did not succeed according to his hopes; for though he came himself to Rome, and brought Jonathan and his companions along with him in bonds, and thought he should have had no further inquisition made as to those lies that were forged under his government, or by his means; yet did Vespasian suspect the matter and made an inquiry how far it was true. And when he understood that the accusation laid against the Jews was an unjust one, he cleared them of the crimes charged upon them, and this on account of Titus's concern about the matter, and brought a deserved punishment upon Jonathan; for he was first tormented, and then burnt alive. (War, 7.11.3)

And to these we must add one more quote that details Josephus' own personal situation, also from Life 1.76:

I also received from Vespasian no small quantity of land, as a free gift, in Judea... And these were the circumstances of my domestic affairs. However, the kindness of the emperor to me continued still the same; for when Vespasian was dead, Titus, who succeeded him in the government, kept up the same respect for me which I had from his father; He also made that country I had in Judea tax free, which is a mark of the greatest honor to him who hath it; nay, Domitia, the wife of Caesar, continued to do me kindnesses. And this is the account of the actions of my whole life; and let others judge of my character by them as they please. But to thee, O Epaphroditus, (28) thou most excellent of men! do I dedicate all this treatise of our Antiquities; and so, for the present, I here conclude the whole.

Josephus, in fact, lived under Roman protection, both in Rome and in Judea, for the last three decades of his life. And yet, he also doesn't want to offend his own people either, as if he expects them to forget his role – fair or not – in the destruction of the Temple! Regardless, his transformation from Jewish commander of the Galilee to Roman interpreter who basks in the glow of Caesar's favor came at a huge personal cost.

And so, in deference to both groups, Josephus walked a very fine line to express his faith in Y'shua of Nazareth. As stated at the beginning, he would have known the Rabbinics had placed a curse on the Nazarenes in the year 90, and continued a love-hate relationship with them for the rest of his life.

Although, for the Roman part in this drama, Josephus may have had a completely different motive: Survival. Put simply, the Romans were persecuting as many Jewish and Gentile followers of Y'shua as they could. It had begun under Emperor Nero in the 60's and would continue to break out periodically for the rest of Josephus' life. If his Gentile masters were to discover his beliefs his life would have been in jeopardy. However, it is clear from Antiquities 20.11.2 and elsewhere that Josephus considered himself a scholars' scholar, utterly unique in his qualifications to deliver the history he reports.<sup>65</sup> Consequently, he must have also thought himself able to continually deliver to diverse groups whatever they wanted to hear; in effect, playing it both ways against the middle.

As a result, part of him may have simply delighted in seeing what he could get away with. What could he say in praising Y'shua and his followers that might annoy but not exclude him from his Rabbinic brethren? Could he even go so far as to "tweak" his people by rubbing their faces in the facts that normal Jews of the time gave great weight to these people that the world would later dub as Christians? Why the whole idea in the Testimonium where he talks about massive numbers of Jews and Gentiles as a "tribe of Christians/Messianics" that all but shows them under a Jewish system of governance all their own? These are facts that later Rabbinic generations would try their hardest to forget, and yet Josephus exposed them for the entire world to see! The Romans weren't immune from this balancing act, either, for Josephus spared no details regarding their atrocities in Jerusalem, while also praising them just enough to stay in their good graces.

<sup>65</sup> Much of his boasting, while a tad excessive and perhaps even distasteful at times, was probably also justified in light of the facts. It is impossible to fake the knowledge that Josephus had of his contemporary world, language and of his people.

But then, just when it seems as he is headed towards an outright confession of Y'shua as Mashiyach, he quickly changed course and/or provided just enough disinformation to remove himself from the debate. Fortunately for us, however, Josephus left enough clues to figure out his true intentions all these centuries later. He was perhaps the most famous secret Nazarene of them all, and the most successful at hiding his faith...until now.

Judaizers

The term "Judaizer" is a disparaging term aimed at those who conform to the spirit, character, principles, or practices of Judaism. In reality, followers of Y'shua who are labeled as Judaizers, rarely follow Rabbinical Judaism; all they are guilty of is having Torah written upon their hearts. Y'shua stated to the Pharisees, "Why also do you transgress against the Commandments of Elohim because of your traditions?" (Matthew 15:3) Regardless whether it is Pharisaical or Christian tradition, transgression against the Commandments of Elohim is certainly not at all acceptable to Y'shua.

Unfortunately, Christians who aren't familiar with Torah employ the term "Judaizer" to disgrace Christian or Messianic souls who are Torah observant; condemning them as having "fallen from Grace," "legalists," "pro-Jewish" or as "enemies of the gospel." In other words, Christians who choose to observe the Seventh Day Shabbat and the Biblical Feasts, or who follow a Torah based diet, risk being disgraced by other Christians for doing so.

Today, as in the First Century, there were various Judah-isms (sects of Judaism). Before Gentile based Christianity evolved, Gentiles were converts to the original Way which was referred to as Netzarim Judaism. Apostle Paul was labeled as a "ringleader of the sect of the Netzarim" (Acts 24:5), clearly a Jewish sect. Jewish followers of Mashiyach brought Gentile converts into their homes, synagogues and into the Temple; therefore, the chain of Judaizing obviously returns back to Mashiyach himself as the quintessential "Judaizer." Essentially, anyone who keeps the Commandments of Elohim could be referred to as a Judaizer.

The term Judaism is derived from the tribe of Yehudah (Judah) which became prominent within the 12 tribes of Yisrael when YHWH anointed David as King and his son Solomon to build the Temple in Jerusalem. "And she conceived again, and bare a son: and she said, Now will I praise YHWH: therefore she called his name Y'hudah; and left bearing" (Gen. 29:35). Y'hudah (Judah) is derived from the Hebrew word yadah praise (or give thanks) the yad (hand) is extended in thanks to YHWH and is likened to the branches of the menorah that reach upwards towards heaven. In full context Yehudah means, "one who praises (or gives thanks to) YHWH."

The toledot (line) of Yehudah was highly honored by YHWH: "The sceptre shall not depart from Yehudah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be" (Gen. 49:10). YHWH orchestrated Mashiyach to be born into the line of David through the tribe of Yehudah. The scepter of Government and the Lawgiver is Mashiyach. Mashiyach is the seed of Awraham (Galatians 3:16) and the promised seed of woman (Gen. 3:15). The line of Mashiyach is both a genetic and spiritual continuum beginning with Adam and Eve and extending into the Olam HaBa (World to Come), after the 7,000th Millennium is complete.

Whether traditional Jewish tradition approved or not, the most prophetically defining moment for the Jewish people was when "...Peelatos asked him and said to him, 'Are you the king of the Yehudeans?'" He said to him, 'You say it!'" (Luke 23:3) It is unthinkable that the king of the Jews would teach against Torah since YHWH promised Moshe: "I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee" (Deut. 18:18).

YHWH's Mashiyach is the true King of the Jewish people and, of course, it was Jews who first accepted Y'shua as their Mashiyach. It was Jews who were first called and believed in Mashiyach and who gave witness that Y'shua was Mashiyach, which opened the door for Gentiles to enter into the Kingdom of Elohim. And it was these Netzari Jews who originally "Judaized" Gentiles into the original Faith of Mashiyach. Jews were astonished when non-Jews began receiving the Ruach haKodesh (Acts 10:45) a fulfillment of Isaiah 11:10; 42:6; 49:6. The Judaism of YHWH is Mashiyach yet many Christians berate fellow believers for seeking to live according to a Torah observant lifestyle that was common to Y'shua and the Shlichim (Sent Ones).

Politics (and ism's) aside, most realize that the Kingdom of Elohim was portrayed in the Garden of Eden according to the Tree of Life. Every succeeding generation has been given access to that Tree through Mashiyach therefore it is Mashiyach who defines Judaism certainly not Jewish sects (Judaisms) that were and are largely comprised of those who reject Y'shua as Mashiyach. Mashiyach is the Word of YHWH, therefore it was Mashiyach who chose Y'hudah to carry the physical and spiritual line of Mashiyach from Awraham to the nations (Genesis 17). It is therefore Mashiyach who is both the Living Torah and quintessential Jew making it very ironic that Christians feel threatened by Torah-observant followers of Mashiyach.

If Mashiyach truly defines his followers, then according to the Book of Genesis, it was Mashiyach who established the Seventh Day Shabbat as His Appointment with mankind. It was Mashiyach who set the Sun, Moon and Stars in their places to establish His Moedim (Appointed Biblical Festivals) for all of mankind. Jews have been called to follow the Ancient Paths of YHWH that existed long before the tribe of Judah, but that Ancient Path is ultimately defined by Mashiyach Y'shua, who was born of a Jewish mother according to the Promise. Every person has the choice to be defined by Mashiyach or by an "ism," most Christians define themselves according to a denomination whether it be Catholic, Orthodox, Pentecostal, Baptist etc, according to their hierarchy of choice and of course most Jews subscribe to Reform, Orthodox, Conservative Judaism, etc. Although the Netzarim faith is Jewish to the core, it is most certainly not exclusive to either Jews or Gentiles, but it does reflect those who chose not to "transgress against the Commandments of Elohim," in favor of either Jewish or Christian traditions.

Every denomination of "Christianity" and sect of "Judaism" has their own priesthood and "Mashiyach" and with so much religious diversity, it is clear that mankind has invented many "Mashiyachs," exactly what Y'shua warned would happen (Matthew 24:24). The post-apostolic Gentile church founders wanted their own religious traditions devoid of "Jewish" or Hebraic content and consequently changed YHWH's appointed times and laws, and became their own "Messiah" by making void the Ancient Paths. In essence, "the Church" abolished all those things that they deemed as "Jewish," when in fact Torah is YHWH's universal "blueprint" for human life according to Mashiyach! Precious few souls seem to appreciate that YHWH commanded that everyone who believes on Him as the Elohim of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob is to be Torah-observant:

"Everyone who is native-born must do these things in this way when he brings an offering made by fire as an aroma pleasing to YHWH. For the generations to come, whenever an alien or anyone else living among you presents an offering made by fire as an aroma pleasing to YHWH, he must do exactly as you do. The community is to have the same rules for you and for the alien living among you; this is a lasting ordinance for the generations to come. You and the alien shall be the same before YHWH: The same laws and regulations will apply both to you and to the alien living among you" (Numbers 15:13-16).

"And he came and proclaimed peace to you afar off, and to those near: Because by him there is access for us both, by one Spirit, to the Father. Wherefore you are not strangers nor sojourners, but you are fellow-citizens with the Set Apart believers and of the household of Elohim. And you are built upon the foundations of the Shlichim and the prophets; and Y'shua the Mashiyach has become the head of the corner in the edifice" (Ephesians 2:17-20).

Torah Observance is in fact Messianic Consciousness. Shabbat observance connects the spiritual man to eternity past and future; it is a Way to enter life in Mashiyach. Torah provides “platforms” for us to connect to Mashiyach, and through the power of Grace each redeemed soul enters new life in Mashiyach and allows Torah to be written upon their hearts. Few nowadays would suggest that putting trust in Mashiyach is “Judaizing,” yet Christian tradition links the observance of Shabbat with “Judaism” rather than with Mashiyach who is the Master of Shabbat. Gentile Christianity has in many ways invented “another Jesus” (2 Cor. 11:4) by adopting a pagan framework from which to build the Greco-Roman based Christian religion.

The all-Gentile Christian Church has long viewed “Judaizers” as the single biggest threat to their Torah-breaking “liberty.” The post-apostolic Gentile founders of the Church wrote extensive condemnation against the Judaizers and history is replete with Judaizers facing all manner of untimely death, torture and disgrace at the hands of “Church people.” Cecil Roth notes in his publication, The Spanish Inquisition: During the Inquisition in Spain (1478–1808), 323,362 people were burned alive, 17,659 were burned in effigy. But by far, the greatest number of cases tried were for Judaizing (Cecil Roth, 1964. The Spanish Inquisition. USA: W. W. Norton & Company, Inc.).

The Gentile Christian Church was clearly founded upon anti-Torah, anti-Semitic principles that existed in the minds of its founders long before they became “Christians” and this sentiment is evidenced today by Christians who disgrace others as being “Judaizers” for returning to the original Faith of Mashiyach. “My beloved, while I take all pains to write to you of our common life, it is needful for me to write to you, exhorting you to maintain a conflict for the faith which was once delivered to the Set Apart believers” (Yehuda 3). Notice that there was and has always been a “conflict” for the faith and whether the Judaizer likes it or not, he or she is at the middle of this conflict. If you feel you are somewhere in between Judaism and Christianity, you will understand this perfectly. Those who are born Jewish but have converted to Christianity are often pressured into giving up their “Jewish” lifestyles so they won’t “Judaize” fellow Christians. Those who weren’t born Jewish but who want to live a Torah based lifestyle like Mashiyach himself are pressured into giving up Y’shua by traditional Judaism.

Christians who employ the term “Judaizer” to disgrace others for “fulfilling and observing Torah” (Acts 21:24) are demonstrating enmity for both the Renewed Covenant and YHWH’s own people: “Haven’t you noticed that these people are saying, YHWH has rejected the two families he chose? Hence they despise My people and no longer look at them as a nation” (Jer. 33:24).

In modern times a majority of Christians theologize that the State of Israel no longer belongs to Jews, that the Covenant YHWH gave the Israelites is conditional and therefore annulled because of Israel’s disobedience. Through its theological posturing the Gentile church sees itself as “spiritual Israel” and therefore the sole heirs to the promises and blessings, all while breaking the Renewed Covenant and disparaging others from allowing Torah to be written upon their hearts. Although Replacement Theology is a self-serving fallacy of the mainstream Church, numerous Christian minorities refuse to endorse it. However, Christians who don’t subscribe to Replacement Theology also risk being numbered among the “Judaizers,” simply because they understand the nature of the irrevocable Covenant that is based on the Word of YHWH according to eternal Promises. In reality YHWH forgives the Jewish people their transgressions according to the same Mercy that He offers Gentiles. YHWH is no respecter of persons.

Gentile Judaizers

When Gentiles first began to follow Y’shua Mashiyach they were referred to as “Fearers of Elohim.” In the early days Gentiles met in synagogues with both Jewish followers of Y’shua and traditional religious Jews. As the Jewish Apostles were establishing halachic (way to walk) needs for believing Gentiles, it was incumbent upon Jewish believers to demonstrate temperance towards new Gentile converts who were leaving pagan lifestyles to enter into the Kingdom of Elohim. A dispute arose between Rav Shaul and Keefa that brought issues of halakha front and center; at one point Barnabas refrained from dining with Gentiles because of peer pressure from those of traditional religious backgrounds. However, it is obvious that an anti-Judaizing campaign also evolved among secular Gentiles who disapproved of family and friends following the “Jewish Mashiyach.” Originally, it was unbelieving Gentiles who opposed the Netzari lifestyle, not Jews; but ironically it was Apostle Paul (Apostle to the Gentiles) who wrote some of the strongest words: “But that what the Gentiles sacrifice they sacrifice to demons, and not to Elohim. And I would not that you should be associates of demons. You cannot drink the cup of our Master and the cup of demons; and you cannot be partakers at the table of our Master, and at the table of demons” (1 Cor. 10:20, 21).

Gentiles who follow Y’shua have always been required to break from popular Gentile cultural traditions that oppose Mashiyach and Torah; nothing in this regard has ever changed. However, nowadays the Christian majority is in clear opposition to the original Hebrew/Aramaic-based lifestyle of Y’shua and his followers in favor of traditional Gentile lifestyles. Apostle Paul gave a clear warning against this; “For if he that comes to you, had proclaimed to you another Y’shua, whom we have not proclaimed; or if you had received another Spirit, which you have not received; or another gospel, which you have not accepted; you might well have given your permission” (2 Corinthians 11:4). The irony is that anti-Torah Christianity views its Gentile traditions and culture as though it were the original faith, and shows very little regard for the Ancient Paths of YHWH (Jeremiah 6:16) that have progressively been revealed since the dawn of time. Faith in Mashiyach is not a doctrine, but an action and lifestyle that is conformed into the Image of Elohim.

Most people never think of the fact that Noah could have been categorized by his contemporaries as a notorious “Judaizer” because he was deeply entrenched in “YHWHism” the foundation of Netzari Judaism. In Noah’s day the earth had spawned its own “alternative” anti-YHWH religions. During the hundred years it took Noah to build the ark one can easily imagine his unpopularity for suggesting that YHWH was displeased with mankind’s bad choices. But, in these latter days “the Church” reflects the same anti-Torah, anti-YHWH spirit as those of Noah’s day. Noah’s salvation was an act of Mashiyach; it is Mashiyach who forever bears witness of YHWH as the Voice of YHWH who spoke to Noah and guided and protected him.

Jewish Judaizers

In Rabbinical circles Jews are cautioned against making Torah “attractive to the Gentiles.” Much of this sentiment evolved when the Gentile Church began tormenting Jewish and Gentile Christians for “Judaizing.” Constantine and his mother made it official for Christians to hate the Judaizers (321 AD).

One must also consider how Judaizing became so unpopular among Jews. Imagine being Jewish and sharing your faith with a Gentile friend, only to later find them strung up on a Christian torture stake for “Judaizing.” The Roman Christians traditionally crucified people next to busy roadways to instill fear in the rest of the population. Certainly such deep “Christian” hatred towards Judaism forced the Jewish people from making Torah attractive to Gentiles.

It is important to note that Abraham was not “Jewish” by birth but yet he is the father of Faith for both Christianity and Judaism. Abraham heavily “Judaized” his 318 servants into getting circumcised and putting their trust in YHWH, clearly YHWH loved Abraham for his heartfelt loyalty and obedience. Moshe spoke “mouth to mouth” with YHWH and – of course – he “Judaized” not only all the 12 tribes of Yisrael, but the mixed multitude of Gentiles who came out of Egypt along with the Israelites.

Paul the Judaizer

"...If you who are Yehudeans, live as Arameans; why do you urge the Gentiles who have joined themselves to Yehuda to live as Yehudeans?" (Galatians 2:14) This verse is cited as proof that Paul was an anti-Judaizer. Many Christians are of the opinion that Paul was speaking against Judaizing and one translation even goes so far as to spell that out; "...If thou, being a Jew, in the manner of the nations dost live, and not in the manner of the Jews, how the nations dost thou compel to Judaize?" (Galatians 2:14 Young's Literal Translation) The clear implication here is that Gentiles are being compelled to live according to Jewish traditions. But the sad reality is that most Christians are virtually incapable of distinguishing between what is Jewish tradition and what are Torah observant lifestyle distinctions according to Mashiyach, often a very big difference.

Rabbinical Judaism imposes plenty of religious traditions on its followers to be circumcised and keep their traditional interpretations of the "law of Moses" – a much different "law of Moses" than how Mashiyach himself revealed and interpreted Torah. In reality, those who are Torah observant realize that having Torah written upon the heart is a spiritual process; but religious politics is what pressures people to conform to religious tradition.

Circumcision, for example, is a Torah Commandment; but how and when a converted person is circumcised is very dependent upon the leading of the Ruach haKodesh, not on political or religious forces. For Christianity to annul circumcision because of how it was ministered by Rabbinical Judaism simply demonstrates brute ignorance of the Way of Mashiyach. Paul demonstrates in many places that he, as a Pharisee who follows Y'shua, would not tolerate Rabbinical religious authority to be lorded over Jews or Gentiles; he distinguished between man's religious tradition and Mashiyach's truth.

"And Elohim who knows what is in the hearts testified concerning them and gave to them the Ruach haKodesh as (he did) to us. And He differentiates nothing between them and us because He cleansed their hearts by faith. And now, why do you test Elohim so as to place a yoke upon the neck of the disciples that which not even our forefathers nor us were able to carry?" (Acts 15:8-10) Notice that Paul teaches that Elohim differentiates nothing between Gentiles and Jews, yet both Rabbinical Judaism and Christian tradition puts Jews and Gentiles into two very different categories for Torah observance. The yoke Paul speaks of is the oral law; the traditions of the forefathers are halachic legal requirements that are a product of religion, not of the Ruach haKodesh. Yet most Gentile Christian leaders are willfully ignorant of the fact that Torah is neither a yoke nor a burden to the household of Faith. Those who believe Torah to be a yoke are clearly serving humanist self-serving traditions. Yochanan says, "For this is the love of Elohim, that we keep his Commandments: and his Commandments are not burdensome" (1 Yochanan 5:3).

Judaizing in the World to Come

"Thus says YHWH of Hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the hem (wing or border) of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that Elohim is with you." (Zechariah 8:23). In reality, YHWH Himself forecasts His own efforts to "Judaize" by showing Himself strong on behalf of the Jew. For those who believe this prophetically refers to Mashiyach, the quintessential "Jew," then it stands that only a false religious system would attempt to disrobe Y'shua of his "Jewishness." The "hem" of the garment is where tzit tzit (fringes) are located (Numbers 15:38, 39). Tzit tzit are for a remembrance of YHWH's Torah to protect us from being drawn away by the lusts of the carnal flesh. Y'shua wore tzit tzit; therefore, when one "touches" the hem of Y'shua's garment it symbolizes their acceptance of his headship and Torah-based Government.

Conclusion

Although many Christians have long used the term “Judaizer” to disgrace fellow Christians and Messianic believers, the reality is that Y’shua Mashiach is calling a Set Apart and spiritually renewed people out of the world – those who are not conformed to this world or the religions of it, but renewed in mind and spirit and who have the Word of YHWH (Torah) written upon their hearts. The condemnatory and judgmental Christian spirit against the “Judaizers” is a straw man that hides ignorance and spiritually immature religious prejudices; it is one of the hallmarks of the false Church system.

All who enter into the Kingdom of Elohim and live like Y’shua and his Shlichim run the risk of being marginalized by the mainstream Christian status quo. The negative or condescending spirit against “the Judaizers” is a product of the demonic world that inspires the lower nature of mankind to fear what it does not understand. Scriptural elements of Messianic culture that are considered as “Judaizing” by some, are providing intimate experiences in Mashiach for many others. It is very contrary to the Spirit of Mashiach to harbor inter-religious hatred between persons of Christian, Jewish or Muslim religions because of each one’s observance and personal disciplines. Rav Shaul taught, “Who are you, that you judge a servant not yours...” (Romans 14:4).

Khabouris Codex

The Khabouris Codex was first revealed to America in April 1954. Initially presented at the White House to President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, it was escorted via police motorcade and armed guards, along with much pomp and circumstance to the Library of Congress for display. The Chaplain to the United States Senate, Frederick Brown Harris referred to it as the “N.T. (New Testament) Time Bomb.” His words were recorded in a newspaper article as follows:

“...Here are the very syllables as they fell from His lips when the matchless Teacher was here among men. It is a record to make the heart leap with excitement. Somehow, it is like hearing the One whose birth broke the ages in two, talking to our modern age without a language barrier between. Here is not a translation of the words, but the words themselves of that One...who declared: ‘My words shall not pass away. They are spirit and they are life.’ Gazing across the years to be, He warned that those who defy His precepts, which are the laws of life, will be ground to powder. What treasures will be found as the very language of Jesus is studied can only be imagined.”

The Khabouris Codex was found in the library of a small church in Kurdistan whose remaining contents were later seized by Turkish authorities in 1966 and brought to Ankara, Turkey. In that same year the Turkish government seized all the other remaining contents of the Kurdistan church (1966), the Khabouris Codex was given as a gift to the Yonan Codex Foundation by two Americans; and, in 1970, the Yonan Codex Foundation published a book entitled, “Enlightenment” which discussed the Codex and brought much of the contents to light.

On June 7, 1965 the Archdeacon and Pastor Sadook De Mar Shimun, B.A.B.D., verified and described the Khabouris codex as follows:

“The Manuscript is written on animal skin, and consists of 254 leaves (folios). They measure about 10” plus x 7”. The writing is in black ink, now somewhat brownish, and is in one column of 29 lines to the page. Titles and subscriptions of books are in red ink, as well as the names of the places where they were written. The handwriting is uniform and very skilful, evidently the work of one scribe...The manuscript was written as a whole New Testament of the twenty-two books of the Oriental Canon, which excludes Revelation and four short Epistles (2 Peter, 2 and 3 John, and Jude)...

“The significance of the Codex should be based on the following factors, each of which is of supreme importance. Its colophon which ascribes it to the first decade of the 3rd century, makes it the oldest Syriac-Aramaic known to exist.” This 3rd century date however, is more conservative than how most scholars interpret the colophon today. The most natural conclusion is the reference, “dated one hundred years from the Great Persecution” that refers to about year 164 CE, which would ascribe the Great Persecution as the first one in history that occurred in the reign of Nero, after he set Rome ablaze and blamed the fire on Christians and Nazarenes. Over time, older pages had been replaced and new ones dated to centuries later.

“Its complete text offers the scholars a source of information hereto-fore lacking in the Aramaic field...it should be remembered that the Syria-Aramaic Canon and text of the New Testament were already long established before the Christological disputes, which were then smoldering, and finally erupted in the fifth century, first divided the so-called Nestorians and then the Monophysites...Because this Manuscript is our first such whole New Testament, with so early a colophon, it becomes invaluable beyond comparison as a primary source in text criticism. It should be born in mind the authority which its early date commands.”

“For it was His language as well as that of His disciples and the people to whom He proclaimed His teachings. Aramaic studies thus play a key role in the New Testament problems, many of which are hotly contested problems of understanding, interpretation, translation, transmission, etc. Whatever we can glean from such studies increases the value of the New Testament to us. The significance of the prime source which the Khabouris Codex offers scarcely needs to be pointed out.”

In recent years high quality digital photos of the text were made and distributed online for all interested parties. One would have thought that the Khabouris Codex would have brought much excitement to the Christian community, but quite the opposite has happened, and at time of printing most pastors have never heard of the Khabouris Codex, much less could hold an intelligent conversation about it. Perhaps as you study the Aramaic for yourself it will become obvious as to why such an ancient authority has remained unpopular....

All we like sheep have gone astray. The burden of change is not upon ancient and reliable texts to modify and conform to contemporary religious ideals; the burden of change is upon mankind to return to “the faith which was once delivered.”

King of Kings and Master of Masters

Part 1 Revelation 17:14

The Aramaic in Revelation 17:14 “malka d’malka mara maraota” stands out for two reasons. First, unlike the conjugation for “King of Kings” (malka d’malka), there is no dalet proclitic to read as “of” between the words “mara” (master) and maraota (masters). Also the general rule of Aramaic nouns is that a “ta” ending indicates the feminine! The combination of these two oddities together suggests that an additional meaning is intended along with the generally accepted reading of “King of Kings and Master of Masters.” One possibility is that the word we think of as “Masters” is actually another noun derived from the same root but which takes on a feminine form when spelled this way. An example of this use is in Colossians 1:16, where it means “dominion” in what grammarians call the singular emphatic state. Therefore, one could read this sentence as a clarification of a thought rather than a synonymous mirror – echo, as “King of Kings and Master of (all) dominions,” which would closely parallel descriptions of Mashiach in Daniel 7.

However, there are other aspects of this phrase which must also be considered. First is the use of “metaphoric transference” which is an exception to the rule when Hebrew and Aramaic terms for “Lordship” are applied to YHWH or His Son. In the Aramaic portions of Daniel 5:21-23 we see the word “mara” used both for pagan deities and YHWH. From Path to Life (page 163):

“The reader will recall that in “Definitions of MarYah” the related word also used in the above Scripture, Mara, is defined in terms of human kings or false deities, not YHWH. Only a few pages later and it seems as this rule is broken - or is it? What is going on in this case is a phenomenon I refer to as metaphoric transference. Put simply, metaphoric transference means that two concepts that are not alike at all in reality are linked through metaphor as though they were. In this case, the pagan court of Belshazzar does not know the personal name for the Creator, YHWH. But their Aramaic dialect certainly is used to address their false gods with the title Mara. Enter Daniel, who is in this one instance transferring this word temporarily to YHWH to make a point that the deities the Babylonians think are supreme are false and have no power – they are dust compared to the real Master – Mara of Heaven!

“In later times then, Jews who stayed behind in Babylon would simply take off the alap and strip the word down to the root level so that it would not appear to have dual pagan – Yahwistic use; hence “MarYah” which was not used in Daniel’s time but which clearly grew out of this usage in his book. Furthermore, it is very easy to see Daniel as the pivot point in the usage for this word for two special reasons:

1) This portion of Daniel is in Babylonian Aramaic, in a form fairly close to the later Babylonian variety that the Peshitta Tanakh would be translated into. As a result, it is also no coincidence that Daniel is the only Tanakh book to even have this word.

2) The use of Mara in Daniel is effectively split between human (4:19, 23) and divine (2:47, 5:23) applications, which is also instructive in showing how the root Mar would become attached to Yah later.

“Another key point is: just because the metaphoric usage ends up referring to YHWH, does not mean it is equivalent to the Name of YHWH by its plain definition or usage.”

So it is important to note that in Daniel and Revelation there are metaphoric usages of “Lordship” that do not appear anywhere else in Tanakh or NT; and, the kinship between Daniel and Revelation is not just thematic, but is linked with Aramaic in both books. We see this kind of ironic metaphoric transference also in Tanakh, where the prophet Elijah mocks non-existent deities in 1 Kings 18:27 by saying to the pagan priests: “Shout louder! Surely he (Baal) is an elohim! Perhaps he is deep in thought, or busy, or traveling. Maybe he is sleeping and must be awakened.”

Another factor that must be noted is: Who is Y’shua referring to as “King of Kings and Master of Masters”? In Revelation 17:14, the narrator says this applies to Y’shua. However, 1 Timothy 6:15-16 says something different: “Almighty Elohim, King of Kings and Master of Masters who only is incorruptible and dwells in light to which no one can approach; and whom no man has seen, or even can see: to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.” Here Rav Shaul uses the same phrase to apply to YHWH alone. Can both be true? The answer is clearly yes, because YHWH gives life, power and authority in His will to the Son (Yochanan 5:25-26), who was the Miltha/Word acting on YHWH’s commands. Y’shua clearly came in his Father YHWH’s Name, and when someone comes in the name of a king in the Middle East and elsewhere, they bear authority from the king to stand and act on behalf of the king when he is not physically present. Obviously YHWH is omnipresent, but the model holds true because His Son was the physical embodiment of His authority on Earth, which is why the Son judges on behalf of the Father but the Father metes out actual judgment and is the only One who knows future appointed times as stated in Matthew 7:21, 24:36; Yochanan 5:30, 8:15-16.

Part 2 Revelation 19:16

The dual meaning of “King of Kings and Master of Masters” from Revelation 17:14 is also present here. In this case however, a totally new vista of possible understanding opens up with the detail of the name being inscribed on Y'shua's thigh. The significance of the area of the thigh principally comes from the patriarch Ya'akov wrestling with a heavenly messenger – possibly Y'shua himself as the Face of El – and having that Divine Being touch him on that part of his leg (Genesis 32:24-26). Also, even prior to that event, the thigh was an area that the patriarchs used to impart sacred promises (Genesis 24:1-9), of which Mashiyach is the most important! However, there is another connection of this matter of the thigh that is not quite as obvious. Path to Life (pages 20-23) references the research of Neil Altman (a Dead Seas Scrolls expert) and investigative reporters David Chowder and Bill Norton. They wrote an article entitled, "Support for the Gospel of Matthew Comes from an Unlikely Place" which appeared in the Kansas City Star, January 7th, 2004.

Their article addressed an ancient fragment of the Talmud that mentions a parody of the Gospel of Matthew written by Gamaliel, the same Rabbi who taught Rav Shaul (Acts 22:1-3). The main significance of this find was that Gamaliel died in the 73 CE, which would mean that if the parody of Matthew belonged to him, the original book of Matthew circulated at least two decades earlier than most scholars previously believed. Gamaliel was and is an extremely important Rabbi in Rabbinical Judaism; many of his teachings were passed down into later traditions like the Talmud. About a hundred years later, Gamaliel's parody of Matthew would have likely found its way into the hands of Rabbi Tarphon, who had a famous debate with Justin Martyr in the city of Ephesus. Ephesus was also the residence of Yochanan bar Zawdi prior to his exile to the island of Patmos, where Revelation would be finished. However, because Yochanan's previous fame was associated with this city, this same book of Revelation is mentioned by both men in their debate many decades later.

Why is this important? Because from this time onward, the Rabbinic schools were collecting their own apologetics against the teachings of Mashiyach Y'shua. Known as the Toldot Yeshu, the work reached its final written stage in about the Sixth Century, but it was well known that earlier written and oral versions were also in circulation. Three of these versions may have had their origins based on the two Gospels and Revelation.

The end of Matthew relates how the Pharisees began propagating a lie that the talmidim stole the body of Mashiyach at night, a theme that is also loosely echoed in the Toldot Yeshu. Later, perverting a theme in Yochanan's Gospel, the body of Mashiyach is found buried by a gardener – as opposed to Mashiyach being mistaken for a gardener himself – as though the talmidim tried to fake the resurrection. But, if ancient traditional sources are correct, the same Yochanan who wrote the Good News of Yochanan, also wrote the Book of Revelation.

So here is where all these threads tie together: In the final version of Toldot Yeshu, the Pharisees invent an elaborate myth about Mashiyach's miracles being as a result of his copying the original 72-letter name of YHWH onto a small piece of parchment, the Name that was inscribed on the foundation stone of the Temple; a Name that other legends say was spoken to create the universe. Since this kind of "divine forgery" is a capital offense the myth suggests that "Yeshu" concealed the holy Name by cutting a hole in the skin of his thigh and placing the paper inside it! Perhaps the phrase "King of Kings and Master of Masters" was contained in the "72-letter name" that was lost? Another weird aspect to this legend of the Pharisees continues along the lines that Yehuda the traitor became a hero and fought back with the same name. Then, by "defiling Yeshu in the air" the holy letters escape both men, rendering them powerless – but not before explaining the source of the false Mashiyach's healing powers. In fairness, we do not know to what extent either Rabbi Gamaliel or Rabbi Tarphon may have directly contributed to the Toldot Yeshu in its final form, but the fact remains they had opportunities to be aware of that work and perhaps spin a tale or two of their own. Therefore, it could very well be that what Rabbi Gamaliel helped begin, Rabbi Tarfon might well have further developed in part by reading Revelation prior to his debate with Justin Martyr.

Legalism

Legalism is a theological term that was coined circa 1830-1840. The Concise Oxford Dictionary defines legalism as: (a) preference of the Law to the Gospel, (b) doctrine of justification by works, (c) exaltation of law, (d) formula, or (e) red tape. “Legalism” is a Christian term that Christians apply to Christians, Jews, Muslims and others who promote the function of “Law” as it pertains to righteousness and salvation. The Oxford definition postures that some individuals prefer the Law over the Gospel, pitting the two concepts against each other, when in reality the Gospel was given in conjunction with “Law.” The Law specifies what is good and acceptable conduct according to YHWH, and provides guidelines for righteousness and repentance, which are integral components of “the Gospel.”

From the ancient Paleo Hebrew letters that spell Torah (mistranslated as “the Law”), a word picture emerges that means, the “Seal or Covenant-Head of Man-Revealed.” Torah is the Covenant and Seal that YHWH progressively revealed to mankind through Adam, Noach, Awraham and all His chosen prophets and people. The word Torah contains the Hebrew sound “owr” which means light. YHWH declared through Isaiah: “To the Torah (law) and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them” (Isaiah 8:20). The Psalmist teaches that the Word of YHWH (Torah) is a Light unto our paths.

Torah means instruction in righteousness and is likened to a person aiming and shooting at a target. Unfortunately, sometimes we miss the mark and “sin.” A child is not expected to hit the mark as well as an adult, but when YHWH gave Torah He did not make His instructions impossible to “hit” as many have been led to believe.

The instructions (Torah) of YHWH have been progressively revealed from Adam and Eve right through to Mashiyach. However, many Christians muse that Torah is “legalism” and something that is supposedly impossible to keep and, consequently, they have replaced Torah principles with the more popular Christian traditions of the post-apostolic Gentile Church founders.

We are introduced to the consequences of breaking “the Law” (Torah) in the beginning of the Bible (Genesis 3) where the very first case of blatant disobedience occurred – an act that impacted the children of Adam and Eve and every single generation of man since then! Because of that one act of disobedience, man has been “born into a world full of death and evil” ever since; constantly forced to battle the wiles of the Evil One and facing possible eternal separation from YHWH. Before sin, Adam and Eve were clothed in righteousness (the Light of Mashiyach); but haSatan exposed their nakedness through guilt, shame and condemnation. Guilt (which results from wrong-doing, is spiritual separation), is a function of the Ruach haKodesh; it is a spiritual force that motivates us to make it right with YHWH and one another. The guilty parties – not knowing whether they will be forgiven their transgression until they confess and present their case – feel sorrow, emptiness, depression and despair for breaking faith and violating the peace and harmony of Mashiyach. The shame that Adam and Eve experienced was compounded in the knowledge that their sin had been preventable, and that they had needlessly and willingly exposed themselves to a difficult situation that caused them to risk everything without considering the consequences.

The curses against Adam and Eve became part of universal natural law that applies to all inhabitants of the Earth. “Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever...” (Genesis 3:22). Man was formerly a sinless and immortal being who became as the angelic host to know good and evil (many believe that the angelic war between good and evil is what spawned the creation of mankind); therefore, YHWH provided redemption through death and resurrection. The plan of redemption is this Good News that Mashiyach demonstrated through his resurrection as the “Firstfruits” of all Creation. Mankind has always been sustained according to the Word of YHWH, “For YHWH is our judge, YHWH is our lawgiver, YHWH is our king; He will save us” (Isaiah 33:22).

Long before Y'shua arrived on Earth, Torah Observant Jews were teaching that "her seed" points to Mashiyach who is the foundation of all "Good News": "And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her seed; it shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise his heel" (Genesis 3:15). Hebrews 4:2 states that "the Gospel was preached unto them" – therefore, those who left Egypt were given the opportunity to respond to the Gospel; therefore, the Gospel originated long before the First Century.

A popular theological spin on "the Gospel" is that "Jesus kept the Law" (Torah) so that Christians wouldn't have to. The anti-legalist Christian purports "freedom in Christ" which is simply religious justification to break Torah and put the full responsibility and penalty of past, present and future sins upon Jesus. However, those branded as legalists are trusting that Y'shua empowers them to be renewed in body, mind and spirit so as to put away their own carnal flesh that desires to break Torah.

There have been many lawgivers but it is YHWH's Torah and His Mashiyach that sustains the plan of Redemption. His Word is His LAW! Therefore, all theological posturing that pits Torah against the Gospel is deception. Having Torah "written upon the heart" is at the heart of the Renewed Covenant which completes the revelation of "the Good News."

"The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be" (Genesis 49:10). The Scepter is the imperial rod of divine lawmaking and justice. YHWH holds the Scepter who is Mashiyach. The "lawgiver from between his feet" refers to the lineage of Yehudah (Judah); therefore, successive generations of Judah "hold" this Scepter until Shiloh (Mashiyach) takes his seat over all other "lawmakers." Therefore, the "Way" of righteousness was, is and always will be prophetically connected through the Judaic and Hebraic-based Faith that Mashiyach Y'shua revealed to the world. Through belief in him, the Final Sin Sacrifice, we are able to receive YHWH's Mercy and Grace which assures us eternal life in heaven.

Thanks to His Mercy and Grace – which in no way negates Torah! – we were loved while we were yet sinners. Therefore, how much more do we desire to please our Father? We demonstrate our acceptance of what Y'shua did for us by becoming a Torah observant, law abiding people. That is the meaning of the Scripture when Y'shua teaches:

"Ask, and it shall be given to you. Seek, and you shall find. Knock, and it shall be opened to you. For anyone that asks will receive, and that seeks, will find. And to him that knocks, it will be opened to him. Or whom among you fathers if his son asks of him for bread, why to him would hold out a rock? And if he asks a fish of him, why to him would hold out a snake? And if, therefore, you who are imperfect know to give good gifts to your sons, how so much more your Father who is in heaven will give good to those that ask Him. All that which you desire that the sons of men should do for you, also like this you do to them. This is for Torah and the prophets. Enter by the straight door, for wide is the door and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many are they, those that go in it" (Matthew 7:7-13).

Most people understand how the Gospel works, but here's a small example: Early in our children's lives, we explain to them the cause and effect of good and evil. For instance, we teach them that lying is wrong and that, if the behavior continues, it can destroy their lives. After that, we praise them when they try to behave properly, and punish them whenever they misbehave or fail in their efforts to always tell the truth. Obviously, it is inconceivable to punish a child every time they fail, especially if it is evident that they are genuinely sorry and regret what they did. So instead, we continue to reinforce proper behavior and hug our children and love them even when they fail, and explain that we, too, occasionally failed to "be good" when we were children, because we all have to go through a learning process. The end result of this learning process in the lives of our children is that one day they will realize on their own that lying brings destruction, curses and shame, and it puts them in disfavor with YHWH and others because YHWH hates liars.

This is essentially what YHWH did for us through Mashiyach: Although He had every right to punish us for our disobedience, He chose not to. Instead, after the “Fall” He saw our need as His children to be instructed in righteousness and to be loved and taught. Therefore, He sent His only Son, Mashiyach Y’shua, to teach us face-to-face, personally demonstrating how to keep Torah and walk according to YHWH’s will. Y’shua demonstrated perfect patience and love towards YHWH’s creation before pouring out his own life as the Final Sin Sacrifice – which forever abolished the need for mankind to kill an innocent animal to atone for our sins. Thus, Law and Grace have been applied in a functional way so that all YHWH’s children understand the cause and effect of sin and righteousness.

YHWH’s Good News (Gospel) is the Way of Truth which is a continuum of truth revealed of YHWH’s intent to redeem fallen man. This plan of redemption is what provided protection to Cain after he killed Abel, when YHWH showed great Grace to Cain after he murdered his brother. It was haSatan who had put the envy, hatred, evil imaginations and jealousy in Cain’s mind against his brother. The Law at that time was a spiritual consciousness, and Cain knew that he had committed murder by acting out very wicked thoughts about his brother. Fortunately for Cain, the applied Gospel kept YHWH from killing him, and ultimately also kept him from being killed by others.

In Noah’s days evil was rampant upon the Earth, much like today, and the Gospel went something like this: Get on the boat, or you’ll have to tread water for 150 days without food or fresh water... will you receive “the Gospel” and get on the boat? The Good News applied was that Noah invested 100 years of his life building a big boat. Within that span of time every human being on Earth would have heard of YHWH’s intentions to flood the Earth – but of, course, the “riff raff” scorned and mocked the Gospel of Noah....

Abraham and the men of his household agreed to be circumcised and enter into Covenant with YHWH. The Gospel went like this: There is ONE ELOHIM, whose Name is YHWH; either accept the Covenant of Promise or you will not receive YHWH’s blessing. Circumcision symbolizes the separation of good from evil as a part of the flesh is cut away. “For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of YHWH, to do justice and judgment; that YHWH may bring upon Abraham that which he has spoken of him” (Genesis 18:19).

Mashiyach’s followers were referred to as those of the WAY! Peter issues a clear warning when he said: “For it would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than after having known it, to turn back from the Set Apart Commandment that was delivered to them” (2 Peter 2:21). The Gospel and “the Way of righteousness” are synonymous with the Kingdom of Elohim which advocates individual personal responsibility to uphold Torah observant, righteous conduct.

Moshe received “Ten Commandments” written by the Finger of Elohim, but if you went your own way and kindled a fire on Shabbat or ate barbecued pork, you were “cut off” (killed) because YHWH gave us all the choice to either follow or ignore Him. That was the Gospel according to YHWH revealed by Moshe. As a sovereign individual you can choose life or death by your obedience or disobedience; not by a cerebral theology that makes you “acceptable.” Moshe preached the Gospel to all the Israelites; however, in the course of time the Levites (leadership) turned away from YHWH: “But ye are departed out of the way; ye have caused many to stumble at the Torah; ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi, says YHWH of hosts. Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before all the people, according as ye have not kept my ways, but have been partial in the law” (Malachi 2:8, 9).

Without “the Law” (Torah) there is no Gospel. Torah reveals and defines good from evil and reveals the elements of Covenant. About 6,000 years of human experience on this planet witnesses that YHWH’s Laws are Set Apart and Just. YHWH’s Law provides the parameters for Freedom, Peace, Justice, Judgment, Equality, protection of personal liberty and property and the protection of the sovereignty of each individual. To pit the Law against the Gospel is a false Gospel as Rav Shaul teaches:

"I am stunned into silence, as if dead, that you have so quickly forgotten Mashiach who has called you to his grace and gone to another gospel that is non-existent, but there are men who agitated you and desired to pervert the Gospel of Mashiach. For if us, or even an angel from heaven, preach outside from what was preached to you, let them be cursed. As I said before, so I say again: Whichever man preaches to you outside of what you have received, let him be accursed" (Galatians 1:6-10).

Nearly all Christian denominations ply the term "legalism" against others in one form or another. However, the second definition of legalism is the "Doctrine of Justification by Works." Essentially any Christian who does "good works" could be disgraced as a legalist; the intentions of their hearts being judged by the naysayer as though their "good works" are done for "justification" or salvation. Rav Shaul (Paul) put it this way: "Who are you to judge another man's servant?" (Romans 14:4)

The religious stance is that you can do nothing to bring about justification or righteousness for yourself, but in reality, Salvation isn't a mindset as much as it is a lifestyle, and a transformation from a carnal to a spiritual man. Salvation comes about by being conformed into the Image of Elohim. Each soul must co-labor with Mashiach for salvation which must be evidenced in this lifetime, in the here and now; the work or service "of the heart" is to guard the heart and mind from degradation or backsliding into a carnal, worldly lifestyle. It is ironic that the individual who Gentile Christians have discredited for bringing an end to Torah was thus spoken of: "you yourself also walk orderly, and keep the Torah" (Acts 21:24). Paul the Apostle emphatically lived and taught the importance of Torah being written upon the heart!

The dilemma many Christians face is what to do when they discover their church hierarchy has been promoting a doctrine of demons by teaching against Torah. What can be done when Christians point their fingers and call you a legalist for desiring to live according to the Word of the Living Elohim? In reality it is the power of Grace that strengthens each soul to cease from breaking Torah and to stand up for what is right. The religious power of the word "legalism" is simply designed to keep souls in bondage to false religion and keep them from leaving the comforts of "the church," but there is a huge gulf between being imbedded in a church and being embedded in the Kingdom of Elohim! Apostle Paul taught: "As a result, Torah is Set Apart; and the Commandment is Set Apart, and righteous, and good" (Romans 7:12).

Christians who are often quick to condemn others as "legalists" have never learned the most rudimentary principles of Torah. It was the pre-incarnate Mashiach who said: "If you shall hearken unto the voice of YHWH your Elohim, to keep His commandments and his statutes which are written in this book of the Torah, and if you turn unto YHWH your Elohim with all your heart, and with all your soul. For this commandment which I command you this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven, that you should say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that you should say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? But the word is very nigh unto you, in your mouth, and in your heart, that you may do it. See, I have set before you this day life and good, and death and evil; In that I command you this day to love YHWH your Elohim, to walk in His ways, and to keep His commandments and His statutes and His judgments, that you may live and multiply; and YHWH your Elohim shall bless you in the land where you are going to possess it. But if your heart turn away, so that you will not hear, but shall be drawn away, and worship other elohim, and serve them; I denounce unto you this day, that you shall surely perish, and that you shall not prolong your days upon the land, whither you pass over Jordan to go to possess it. I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both you and your seed may live: That you may love YHWH your Elohim, and that you may obey his voice, and that you may cleave unto him: for he is your life, and the length of your days: that you may dwell in the land which YHWH swore unto your fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them” (D’varim/Deuteronomy 30:10-20).

Torah is freedom. We are either walking in Torah and are free from sin, or breaking Torah and are in bondage to sin. All the religious posturing and propaganda in the world has NEVER and could NEVER substitute for truth and righteousness.

The fourth definition of legalism according to the Oxford dictionary is “a formula” which is defined as: a set form of words, or something definite or authoritative, or a procedure to be followed or something prescribed for a specific occasion. Interestingly, this describes the basic thrust of the “statement of faith” issued by most denominational churches, does it not? This fourth definition simply suggests that one denomination’s (or person’s) formula is better than yours. All preachers have their own “formulas” – the fact that they would preach, hold a “service” or teach others simply means they have their own model of belief, or “formula.” Most theologians have received their credentials from some university so they can “authoritatively teach” denominational formulae. If someone asks, “What must I do to be saved?” any answer could be construed as a “formula.” So, in reality, those who point fingers at your “formula” as “legalism” are simply suggesting that their formula is better than yours.

Finally we come to “red tape” as the fifth definition of “legalism.” Traditionally, official Vatican documents were bound in red cloth tape, and this is also where the 17th to 18th Century British Monarchy derived their government tradition. During the Fourth Century, the Roman Empire was “made Christian.” Rome was the “superpower” that controlled all religious and governmental matters and Rome invented her own anti-Torah, anti-Semitic and anti-Mashiyach “Christianity.” However the Apostle Paul had issued a very strict warning 275 years before the Nicene Creed:

“For the mystery of iniquity does already work: only he who now will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Master shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming: Even him whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause Elohim shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie: That they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness” (2 Thessalonians 2:7-12).

The applied thinking of the term “legalism” within Christianity epitomizes the work of the “mystery of iniquity.” There is no better way to define man’s religion than “red tape.” Religion is man’s carnal response to YHWH; it makes rules, traditions, buzz words, status quo trends and puts walls between YHWH and His people. YHWH sent Mashiyach to expose and take down the false traditions of man, but many love the bondage of religious traditions far more than they love the freedom of Truth. What Mashiyach did for us came at a very great price, and it is because of what he did that his followers become empowered to observe Torah by Grace, not of our own strength lest any man should boast.

All who point their fingers at others and call them legalists are showing solidarity to their own religious tradition. Condemnation of other human beings is, in fact, acting as haSatan’s “little helper.” Where did Christians learn this ministry of condemnation? “For Elohim sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved” (John 3:17). “Judge not, and you shall not be judged: condemn not, and you shall not be condemned: forgive, and you shall be forgiven” (Luke 6:37). Those who label people as legalists are simply asking for judgment to fall on their heads! See Romans 14:13; James 4:10-12; 5:8-11; and Isaiah 58:9.

MarYah

Andrew Gabriel Roth's "Path to Life" (www.pathtolife.com) amply demonstrates that MarYah is not a conjugation from the root "Mar". It is the Aramaic cognate and actual word for YHWH, and replaces YHWH 7,000 times in the Aramaic Tanakh; each time the Tanakh is quoted in the Aramaic NT it is YHWH who is the speaker. Furthermore, except for stating that YHWH is Y'shua Mashiyach, MarYah is never applied to humans. Much confusion exists on this topic, primarily because sometimes the plural form of "human masters" is spelled the same way. However, the verbs surrounding that word, plus traditional pointing, give us 100 percent certainty when the word spelled meem-reshe-yodh-alap in singular applies to YHWH, and in plural applies to human masters. As detailed in "Path to Life" the conjugation theory (i.e. that the "Yah" is simply a noun ending and not YHWH) is completely disproved even by passages in the Hebrew Tanakh, cross-referenced to its Aramaic counterpart.

Mashiyach Ben Yoseph and Ben Dawid

*"Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me,
I delight to do your will, O my Elohim: yes, your Torah is within my heart."
Psalm 40:7, 8*

We are living in the days of Mashiyach right now. The Talmud states, "All the Prophets prophesied only of the days of the Messiah." (Bavli, Brachot 34B) The "days of Mashiyach" are past, present and future in each and every generation. Rabbis considered the Aramaic Nehora (light) to be a code name for Mashiyach; even the very first words YHWH spoke: "And Elohim said, 'Let there be light...'" (B'resheet/Genesis 1:3). The sages believed this was a reference to Mashiyach. "And I will put enmity between you (the adversary) and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and you shall bruise his heel" (Genesis 3:15). Rabbis understood the seed of woman was Mashiyach who was to crush the head of haSatan. "And Adam knew his wife again; and she bare a son, and called his name Seth: For Elohim, [said she], has appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew" (Genesis 4:25). Rabbi Huna stated, "Elohim prepared another seed from another place, and he is the Messiah-King" (B'resheet Rabbah 23).

Mashiyach is revealed in the volume of the Book, but it's not only the Scriptures that reveal Mashiyach. Every human evaluates life according to their world view and perspective of Justice, based on individual choice, experience and personal interest; however, all "the common good" is the domain of Mashiyach. All form of corruption and all injustice are waged against Mashiyach; when mankind denies Torah and adopts his own justice system he puts himself at war with Mashiyach. Mashiyach is the intermediary between the Father YHWH (who is ein sof - without end) and everything in time and space. The Prophets of YHWH reveal two powerful opposing characteristics of Mashiyach: He was to be rejected and slain, and he is indomitable, whose government shall never end and who sanctifies haAretz (the land of) Israel. The dichotomy of such opposite characteristics caused the sages to conclude there were two Messiahs; one is known as Mashiyach ben (son of) Yoseph, the other as Mashiyach ben Dawid.

Mashiyach ben Yoseph

Moshe Rabbeinu wrote of Yoseph being cast into the pit by his brothers and then drawn out, foreshadowing Mashiyach ben Yoseph who was put in a tomb and then resurrected to life. Yoseph ended up imprisoned in Egypt on false pretenses and then brought out to reign over all the land. Mashiyach Y'shua has been "imprisoned" by a false religious system known as "Christianity" but he is also about to be discovered and revealed to his brothers. When Yoseph was recognized for his allegiance to the One True Elohim and recognized by his brothers, this was a foreshadowing of the beginning of Mashiyach ben Dawid and acharit hayamim (the end of days). Mashiyach ben Yoseph is rejected by the kings of the Earth and most of his own people. As the suffering servant he came to offer the Kingdom of Elohim according to Judgment, Mercy and Faith; a Kingdom not of this earth, so that the Just should live by Faith.

The only prophet greater than Moshe is Mashiyach. YHWH chose Moshe to reveal the government of Mashiyach when He gave Torah to Moshe. The Mishkan (tabernacle) was constructed according to the Tabernacle in heaven, so that each component would reveal the attributes and character of Mashiyach. The aron habrit (ark of the covenant) in the kadosh kadoshim (holy of holies) reveals the Mind of Mashiyach; the table of incense, showbread and menorah reveal the heart, will and character of Mashiyach. This was done so that all who would follow Mashiyach could learn how to enter into the Image of Elohim; Mashiyach is the perfect Image.

Zechariah 12:10 states, “And I will pour out on the House of Dawid and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace and supplication, so that they will look on me whom they have pierced, and they will mourn for him as one mourns for an only son, and they will weep bitterly over him, like the bitter weeping over a first-born.” The Babylonian Talmud Succa 52a / Yalkut Shimoni states, “This is Mashiyach ben Yoseph, who is to be slain.” Rabbinical tradition rapidly digressed from a central Messianic character, to view themselves (or the Jewish people) as the “suffering servant” – which does nothing to satisfy the myriads of requirements of the “person” of Mashiyach ben Yoseph. “As many were astonished (desolate) at you; his visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men” (Isaiah 52:14). “He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not” (Isaiah 53:3). Mashiyach is very clearly foretold of suffering and being rejected and being “cut off.” “And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof [shall be] with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined” (Daniel 9:26). Mashiyach was not only foretold of being “cut off,” but Daniel pins down the precise timing of when this would happen. Mashiyach ben Yoseph presented an offer from his Father of the Malchut Elohim; in doing so he separated the “sheep from the goats.”

Moshe wrote of Yoseph, who was the firstborn of Rachel, Israel’s beloved. Yoseph, firstborn of Rachel, was greatly beloved of his father Israel/Ya’akov; as a matter of fact, his father preferred him above his brothers. When Yoseph was 17 years old he was the apple of his father’s eye. Endowed to carry on the heritage of his forefathers, his own dreams revealed the course his life would take, but his brothers found him intolerable and wanted desperately to remove him from the picture. They threw him in a pit, but then brought him out and sold him into slavery to the Midianites, who in turn sold him to Potiphar. Later, Yoseph adopted an Egyptian identity, thus obscuring his Israelite heritage. What happened to Y’shua is strikingly similar: He spoke with an authority that caused his own brothers to be jealous and resentful. After being brought from the grave, a foreign people gave Y’shua a new identity that obscured his Jewish heritage and values. The majority of Jews can no longer recognize their brother in the Greek persona of “Jesus” as the God of the Gentiles. When Yoseph’s brothers met him years later, they did not recognize him; he had to reveal his identity.

A seductress tried to tempt Yoseph into breaking his vows and disqualifying him as YHWH’s chosen. HaSatan tried to tempt Y’shua into surrendering his “birthright” (Matthew 4:9). HaSatan offered the harlot woman of paganism – the Mystery Babylon religion, the perpetual seductress who heads up all relativism and syncretism to abolish Torah and Mashiyach. Mashiyach offers his Father’s Kingdom of righteousness, justice and truth; these are two mutually exclusive kingdoms.

Yoseph was falsely accused for transgressing with the woman; he was imprisoned, yet there is no record that he verbalized a defense. Y’shua was falsely accused of violating Torah, but he kept silent before his accusers. Yeshayahu (Isaiah) 53:7-8 states; “He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he was brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth. He was taken from prison and from judgment, and who will declare his generation?” and Isaiah 53:12: “he was reckoned among the transgressors.”

Yoseph’s brothers slaughtered a goat and dipped his coat into the blood foreshadowing the offering of a goat as atonement for sin (Vayikra/Leviticus 16:15), which Rashi described as “A life for a life.” Vayikra 17:11 tells us that “the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it to you on the altar to make atonement for your souls, for it is the blood by reason of the life that makes atonement.” Here is a remez (clue or hint) of Yom Kippur and the second goat who was called azazel which carried the sins of Israel into the wilderness. Yoseph was innocent but his brothers sent him away into the “wilderness.” Y’shua was innocent but many of his own people call him a mamzer (bastard) and a violator of Torah, yet through his own blood he made redemption and atonement for his people (extended family) who put their trust in him. Yoseph saved his family from physical starvation and certain death; in so doing the line of Awraham and the Kingdom of Elohim was advanced.

It was reported to Israel (Ya’akov) that Yoseph was dead and he remained with this belief for many years, until a much later time when he was reunited with Yoseph. Mashiyach ben Yoseph has been considered dead and separate from the House of Israel for almost two millennia, by most of the Jewish people. Y’shua gave many parables referring to this reality, “...like a man who went on a journey. He called his servants and delivered his possessions to them... Now after a great time, the master came and received an account from them of those servants” (Matthew 25:14-19). “For it is like a man who went on a journey and left his house and gave authority to his servants” (Mark 13:34). “But first it is necessary that he suffer many things and be rejected by this generation. And as it was in the days of Nukh, likewise it will be in the days of the Son of man. For they were eating and drinking and taking wives and giving them to husbands until the day that Nukh entered into the Ark and the flood came and destroyed everyone. And again as it was in the days of Lot, that they were eating and drinking and buying and selling and planting and were building. But on the day that Lot went out from Sodom, MASTER YHWH rained down fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed all of them. Thus it will be in the day that the Son of man is revealed” (Luke 17:24-30). “Behold, your house is left desolate. I say to you that you will not see me from now on until you say, “Blessed is he who comes in the name of Master YHWH” (Matthew 23:38-39).

While in jail on false charges, Yoseph revealed the fate of Pharaoh’s Cupbearer and Baker, who were also incarcerated by Pharaoh. The Cupbearer and Baker each had dreams; the Cupbearer dreamt of a vine with three branches, and Yoseph interpreted the dream that in three days the Cupbearer would be restored to his office and would be giving Pharaoh his cup as before. Yoseph asked the Cupbearer to remember him when things went well with him and asked the Cupbearer to put in a good word for him with Pharaoh. Y’shua was three days and three nights in the grave before being revealed (Matthew 12:40). When things were going well Y’shua had many followers, but when he was arrested his followers forsook him; even Peter denied him three times. When the Cupbearer was restored to his office he forgot Yoseph.

Yoseph was an “insignificant servant” who was brought forth from obscurity (prison), but YHWH raised him up above the heads of the Egyptians and his own brethren, to sit at the right hand of Pharaoh. “And the king said to him “according unto your word shall all my people be ruled” (B’resheet/Genesis 41). Y’shua was put into the confines of the tomb and by death appeared utterly defeated; but he was brought forth from obscurity and raised up from death, conquering death, but also raised up to sit at the right hand of g’vurah (power) of YHWH. “YHWH said unto my Adon, Sit at my right hand, till I make your enemies your footstool” (Tehillim/Psalm 110:1). Yalkut interprets this as “King Messiah.” Y’shua states in Matthew 28:18, “All authority is given to me in heaven and on earth. And as my Father has sent me, I send you.” In another verse Y’shua states, “...You have said it! But I say to you that from now on you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of power and coming upon the clouds of heaven” (Matthew 26:64). The Prophet Daniel thus describes Mashiyach, as interpreted by Rashi and Metzudat Dawid, as “Melech haMashiyach.” “I saw in the night visions and behold, one like unto the son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of Days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Daniel 7:13-14).

“And Yoseph answered Pharaoh, saying, It is not in me; Elohim shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace” (Gen. 41:16). “Y’shua answered and said to them, Amen, amen I say to you that the Son is not able to do anything by his desire, but what he sees the things that the Father does. For these things that the Father does, the Son also likewise does. For the Father loves the Son and everything that he does he shows to him. And greater than these works He will show him so that you will marvel” (John 5:19-20). Both Yoseph and Y’shua spoke on behalf of the will of Elohim. “But he who does not love me will not keep my Word and this Word that you hear is not mine, rather it is of the Father who sent me” (John 14:24).

Yoseph was given the Gentile name Zaphnathpaaneah which bears no resemblance to his original Hebrew name. Y’shua was given the Gentile name “Jesus” which also bears no resemblance with his original Hebrew name.

Yoseph was given a Gentile wife whose name was Asenath which means “belonging to the goddess Neith.” Asenath was the daughter of Potipherah, priest of On, who was a sun worshipper. Y’shua was “given” a Gentile “wife” by an all-Gentile church whose founders were sun worshippers and pagans who “married” Y’shua with sun worship (Sun-Day, Ishtar, Tammuz etc).

Yoseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh. A man must be 30 years of age before officiating in the Tabernacle (B’midbar/Numbers 4:23). Y’shua was about thirty years old when he began to proclaim the Kingdom of Elohim (Luke 3:22, 23).

“And Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Yoseph, what he says to you, do.” In D’varim/Deut. 18:15, 18, 19 Moshe states, “YHWH Elohim will raise up unto you a prophet from amongst you, of your brethren, like unto me; unto him you shall hearken... I will raise them up a prophet from among your brethren, like unto you, and I will put my Words in his mouth, and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whoever will not hearken unto my Words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him.” Y’shua was chosen by His Father YHWH to bring Torah and the victory over sin to his people and then to all who would follow him.

Yoseph was given guidance by the Spirit to save people from starvation, from lack of bread. The prophet Amos states, “Behold. the days come, says YHWH Elohim, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the Words of YHWH” (Amos 8:11). Y’shua brought the Word of YHWH to feed those who hunger for righteousness and the Kingdom of Elohim. Torah likens bread to the Word of YHWH: “Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every Word which proceeds from the mouth of YHWH” (D’varim/Deut. 8:3).

Four hundred years passed from Malachi the prophet until Y’shua’s arrival in Israel. The nations of the world were immersed in idolatry; the Jewish people were enslaved under Roman occupation and many were becoming Hellenized, but Y’shua said, “I am the bread of life: he that comes unto me shall never hunger. and he that believes in me shall never thirst” (Yochanan/John 6:35). Y’shua brought many souls out of spiritual starvation and provided knowledge of Elohim to the Jew first, and then to the Goyim.

“And Yoseph knew his brethren, but they knew him not” (B’resheet 42:7). Yoseph was in full control of the situation. He recognized his brothers, but his brothers didn’t recognize him. The Prophet Yechezkel (Ezekiel) 39:23 writes: "And the nations shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity: because they trespassed against me, therefore hid I my face from them, and gave them into the hand of their enemies...." Y'shua stated, "I say to you that you will not see me from now on until you say, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of Master YHWH'" (Matthew 23:39). Y'shua's identity was foretold to be hidden from Israel, and yet all would have access to him and he would be known of them as coming in the Name of YHWH.

Yoseph imprisoned his brothers for three days; on the third day he called them forth (B'resheet 42:17-18). This can be likened to a passage in Hoshea 6:2, "After two days he will revive us: in the third day he will raise us up, and we will live in his sight." This prophecy ultimately foretells a 2,000 year period which is near completion; the third day is the beginning of the third millennium of Mashiyach ben Yoseph (the seventh millennium from Creation). Since the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem in 70 AD, the Land of Israel has been under the rule of Gentiles. Although the "Jewish" State of Israel was conceived on May 14th 1948, there has neither been a pro-Torah or pro-Mashiyach Jewish government. Neither have the inhabitants of Israel repented of the very transgressions which brought the Babylonian exile. Y'shua stated, "And they will fall by the edge of the sword and be led away to every land. And Urishlim will be trampled by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled" (Luke 21:24).

The duration of time between Yoseph being sold into slavery and when his brothers recognized him can be likened to the "times of the Gentiles." This era will be completed when Mashiyach is recognized by his own people as well as all the inhabitants of the Earth. "YHWH has made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our Elohim" (Isaiah 52:10). "Behold, the days come, says YHWH, that I will raise unto Dawid a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, YHWH Tsidkenu" (Jeremiah 23:5-8).

Yoseph answered the supplications of his brothers by supplying their needs, loading their donkeys with grain, even returning their silver to their sacks. This illustration of chesed and chen (mercy and grace) indicates that their redemption was not deserved on their own merits, nor could their lives be redeemed with silver. Although many souls in Israel do not live according to Torah or have faith in Mashiyach, YHWH is faithful to uphold His Word, "for his chesed (mercy) endures forever." The prophet Yechezkel (Ezekiel) 36:22 writes in regard to the regathering of Israel, "Thus says YHWH Elohim, I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for my Set Apart Name's sake..."

Yoseph warned his brothers, "You shall not see my face, except your brother be with you." Yoseph's intention was to gather all of his brothers together before him, while his true identity was yet hidden from them. It is prophesied in Yechezkel (Ezekiel) 39:28-29, "Then shall they know that I am YHWH their Elohim, which caused them to be led into captivity among the nations and I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there. Neither will I hide my face any more from them: for I will pour out my spirit upon the house of Israel, declares YHWH Elohim." Yoseph recognized his brothers, but they didn't recognize him. Most Jews know little or nothing of Mashiyach ben Yoseph who is Y'shua; most only know a traditional status quo religious interpretation.

Ya'akov could see nothing good in sending young Binyamin to Egypt along with his brothers; he did not know that Yoseph was the one who summoned him. Ya'akov could only see evil and he was fearful (B'resheet/Genesis 42:35-38). The leaders of the P'rushim were very fearful of Y'shua: "If we let him thus alone, all will believe on him, and the Romans shall come and take both our land and our nation" (Yochanan 11:48).

"And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Yoseph's house" (B'resheet/Gen. 43:18-35). Yoseph's brothers were at first very uncomfortable in his presence, in effect experiencing their transgression. Y'shua said, "If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin, but now they have no holocaust upon the face of their sin" (Yochanan 15:22). Y'shua's ultimate function was to deal with the matter of sin: "This is my blood of the Renewed Covenant, which for the sake of many is shed for the forgiveness of sins" (Matthew 26:28).

In B'resheet 43:18 Yoseph's generosity was interpreted as a malicious plot, although his brothers had betrayed him and sold him into slavery; yet he repaid them with goodness. Y'shua taught, "But I say to you to love your enemies and bless those that curse you and do that which is pleasing to those who hate you. And pray for those that take you by force and persecute you" (Matthew 5:44). Y'shua did nothing against Torah or against his people yet he was ridiculed for breaking religious traditions and was considered a dangerous threat because like Moshe he brought freedom from the slavery of men and their religion.

Yoseph's brothers "bowed themselves to him to the earth" (B'resheet 43:26) which was a literal fulfillment of Yoseph's dream. Revelation 5:12 states, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing."

When the sons of Israel found Yoseph's silver cup in Binyamin's sack, they were overwhelmed with grief and tore their garments as their worst fears had come upon them and all hope seemed lost. Their father Ya'akov was still grieving the loss of Yoseph (his firstborn son with Rachel) and now Binyamin was put into jeopardy by Yoseph's brothers. The grief was beyond what Yehuda could bear and he began to express deep guilt and remorse when he stated, "Elohim has found out the iniquity of your servants" (B'resheet 44:13-16). Yehuda who harbored hatred in his heart toward Yoseph confessed: "What shall we say unto my master? what shall we speak? or how can we clear ourselves." Speaking of Mashiyach ben Yoseph who was pierced, the prophet Zechariah said: "And I will pour upon the house of Dawid, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn" (Zechariah 12:10).

Yehuda brought forward his long harbored anguish of spirit for his crimes against Yoseph and the deep sorrow he had caused their father. In full Teshuva he laid down his own life for the sake of his younger brother Binyamin. Y'shua said, "There is no love that is greater than this that a man lay down his life for the sake of his friends" (Yochanan 15:13). While volunteering his own life for his brothers Yehuda had not yet understood that YHWH had raised up Yoseph to redeem not only himself, but his brothers, his father and the whole tribe of Israel.

"And Yoseph said unto his brethren, I am Yoseph; does my father yet live? And his brethren could not answer him, for they were troubled at his presence." In Matthew 24:30 Y'shua stated, "And then will be seen the sign of the Son of Man in heaven, and then all the tribes of the land mourn, when they will see the Son of Man who comes upon the clouds of heaven with great power and glory."

"Then Joseph could not refrain himself before all them that stood by him; and he cried..." (B'resheet 45:1). Y'shua could not refrain himself but wept over Jerusalem, saying, "If you had only known, in this your day, the things which belong unto your shalom (peace) but now they are hid from your eyes" (Luke 19:41-42).

Yoseph's brothers see that it is well within Yoseph's power to take bitter vengeance upon them all, but Yoseph speaks tenderly to them, "Please come unto me." Similarly Y'shua's beloved talmid Yochanan writes, "For Elohim did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but to give life to the world through him" (John 3:17). Y'shua says, "Come to me all who labor and bear burdens, and I will give you rest. Bear my yoke upon you and learn from me. That I am tranquil and I am meek, and in my heart you will find tranquility in your souls. For my yoke is pleasant and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:28-30). Mashiyach quotes this from Yirmeyahu/Jeremiah 6:16.

Yoseph explains, “I am Yoseph, your brother, whom you sold into Egypt.” He comforts his brothers by explaining that YHWH had made a way for salvation, not only for them, but myriads of Gentiles who were preserved from starvation. Yoseph’s Master is YHWH, and what the brothers had meant for evil YHWH turned to good. Through these circumstances, the whole world heard of the Mighty One of Yoseph; YHWH’s fame spread through Israel’s descendants until YHWH rose up Moshe to bring the Israelites out of Egypt. Like Yoseph who welcomed his brothers into his home and served them at his table, Y’shua says, “That you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom...” (Luke 22:30).

Yoseph stated, “Elohim sent me before you to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance.” Yoseph was the instrument YHWH used to fulfill the promise to Awraham of making his seed a great nation, (B’resheet/Genesis 12:2). Y’shua says, “There are many rooms in my Father’s house, and if not I would have told you so. For I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again for you and take you with me, that where I am, you may be also” (Yochanan 14:2, 3).

After Ya’akov died (seventeen years later, B’resheet 47:28) Yoseph’s brothers went to him to ask his forgiveness: “Forgive, please the crime of your brothers, and their sin, for they did unto you evil: and now please forgive their crime...” (B’resheet 50:15-21). Yoseph wept when they spoke to him. And his brothers fell down before him and said, as the Egyptians had, “Behold we are your servants.” Yoseph answered them, “But as for you, you thought evil against me, but Elohim meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day to save many people alive.” While Y’shua was on the execution stake he stated, “Father forgive them for they do not know what they are doing” (Luke 23:34).

Although Yoseph’s brothers had been made aware of Yoseph’s true identity, seventeen years passed before an open acknowledgement was made. It is written; “For the children will abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a zevach (sacrifice), and without an image, and without an ephod, and without t’raphim. Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek YHWH their Elohim, and Dawid their king, and shall fear YHWH and his goodness in the latter days” (Hoshea 3:4-5).

The sufferings of Mashiyach ben Yoseph pertain to establishing righteous judgments as a Servant of YHWH and in the Name of YHWH. “And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: for he had sworn a charge to the children of Israel, saying, ‘Elohim will surely visit you; and you shall carry up my bones along with you’” (Sh’mot/Ex. 13:19). Moshe was the one who carried the bones of Yoseph out of Egypt, which is a very distinct sign since it was Y’hoshua (the full Hebrew name of Y’shua) who succeeded Moshe. Here’s the connection: Yoseph was anointed by the Ruach haKodesh to be a type of Mashiyach; then Moshe was anointed by the Ruach haKodesh, another type of Mashiyach; and then Y’hoshua was anointed to be a type of Mashiyach, BUT the name Y’hoshua IS the name of Mashiyach ben Yoseph! Y’shua is simply the shortened form of Y’hoshua! There are no candidates for the office of Mashiyach ben Yoseph who can even come close to Y’shua. Mashiyach ben Yoseph is not a prophetic “idea” or a theology; the reality is that YHWH revealed Himself through his “Suffering Servant” according to many prophecies including Isaiah 42:1-4; 53:1-12. Hidden in the Toledot (line of) Adam is the revelation of Mashiyach ben Yoseph as the suffering servant:

Toledot Adam

(The Line or Genealogy of Adam)

ADAM	Man
SETH	Appointed
ENOSH	Mortal
CAINAN	Sorrow
MAHALEEL	Blessed Elohim
JARED	Shall Come Down
ENoch	Teaching
METHUSELAH	His Death Shall Bring
LAMECH	Despairing
NOAH	Comfort

Man (is) Appointed Mortal Sorrow, (but a) Blessed Elohim Shall Come Down Teaching (that) His Death Shall Bring (the) Despairing Comfort.

Mashiyach ben Dawid

The Jewish people have long understood that when Mashiyach ben Dawid comes, he will establish a righteous government in the Land of Israel and judge the nations with righteousness. Mashiyach ben Dawid will operate in dimensions that have not before been revealed to mankind to sanctify the Name of YHWH and harmonize all things to bring perfect Justice, Equality and Peace. The Prophets of YHWH have foretold this from Genesis to Revelation; it's not a matter of if but when. However, it is impossible to understand the office of Mashiyach ben Dawid without understanding Mashiyach ben Yoseph, the "suffering servant." Mashiyach ben Dawid is "commissioned" by YHWH through the servanthood and qualifications of Mashiyach ben Yoseph as there is One Mashiyach, not two. Through the perfect offering of love and sacrifice given through Y'shua, YHWH has now given Mashiyach ben Dawid the mantle of power and authority, and Mashiyach ben Dawid isn't coming to Earth on a colt or a foal of a donkey; he returns with an army of angels on a white horse and with an indomitable sword.

"And YHWH shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall there be One YHWH, and His Name One" (Zechariah 14:9). This, of course, refers to the time of Mashiyach ben Dawid when YHWH alone will be King. All humankind will one day recognize YHWH's Sovereignty and all will live according to His government of universal Justice and Peace. "And the army of heaven followed him on white horses, clad in garments of fine linen, pure (and) white. And from his mouth issued a sharp two-edged sword, that with it he could strike the nations; and he will rule the nations with a rod of iron; and he will tread the wine-press of the wrath of Elohim Almighty. And he has upon his vesture and upon his thigh the words written: King of Kings, and Master of Masters. And I saw an Messenger standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven: Come you, assemble to this great supper of Elohim; that you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains of thousands, and the flesh of valiant men, and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them, and the flesh of all the free-born and of slaves, and of the small and the great. And I saw the beast of prey and the kings of the earth and their warriors, that they assembled to wage battle with him who sat on the (white) horse, and with his warriors" (Revelation 19:14-19).

The dream and goal of every decent human is for Peace on Earth and good will toward men. But the enemies of peace are many and the fullness of sin and unrighteousness is as it was in the days of Noah just before the flood, and the rebellious have long been asking for their day before the heavenly courts. "You went forth for the salvation of your people, even for salvation with your Mashiyach; you wounded the head out of the house of the wicked, by discovering the foundation unto the neck” (Habakkuk 3:13).

“In many ways and many forms, Elohim anciently conversed with our fathers by the prophets: But in the Acharit-hayamim (latter days), He has conversed with us by His Son whom He has constituted heir of all things, and by whom He made the worlds; who is the splendor of His glory and the exact image of His nature, and upholds all by the power of His Word; and by his Qnoma he made a purification of sins and sat down on HaG’dulah BaM’romim (the right hand of the Majesty on high)” (Hebrews 1:1-3).

Modern religions have made Mashiyach out to be a politician, a relativist who “loves everybody the same” and who bends to the traditions and will of the rebellious nature of greedy men. There is a lot of talk in Christian and Jewish circles about Mashiyach coming to Earth and how nice and pretty everything will be when that happens – but the fact of the matter is, the coming of Mashiyach ben Dawid is in conjunction with the Day of YHWH: “Woe unto you that desire the day of YHWH! to what end is it for you? the day of YHWH is darkness, and not light. As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Shall not the Day of YHWH be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it?” (Amos 5:18-20).

Many look forward to the return of Mashiyach, but fail to realize what Mashiyach ben Dawid will bring is beyond the scope of any religious idealism; the installation of a universal justice system based on Torah will come upon the Earth somewhat like the flood in Noach’s days. “Howl ye; for the day of YHWH is at hand; it shall come as a destruction from the Almighty. Therefore shall all hands be faint, and every man’s heart shall melt” (Isaiah 13:6).

Humanity and religion has given itself license to rebel against Mashiyach by fabricating all manner of counterfeit religions and by waging war against Mashiyach ben Yoseph. “Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my Set Apart mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of YHWH comes, for it is nigh at hand; A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: a great people and a strong; there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it, even to the years of many generations” (Joel 2:1, 2).

Ironically, there is Christian song of triumph based on this verse, but the religious fail to realize that they sing of their own impending destruction! The Mountain of YHWH is a Government which will destroy the hierarchy of the Beast; Babylon’s mystery religion and all its daughters will be done. Many have been deceived into following religions that succumb to false governments because they’ve totally missed the point that following Mashiyach is all about following his government and his authority. Unfortunately, most Jews and Christians are very quick to bow to the false governments of the Beast and many even suggest that YHWH installed these false, anti-Torah, anti-Mashiyach governments which their religions require them to follow. Mashiyach ben Dawid will plunder all false governments and religions which will put many souls in a very tight spot; there will be multitudes and multitudes in the valley of decision.

“My son, fear YHWH and the king; and meddle not with them that are given to change: For their calamity shall rise suddenly; and who knows the ruin of them both? These things also belong to the wise. It is not good to have respect of persons in judgment. He that says unto the wicked, You are righteous; him shall the people curse, nations shall abhor him: But to them that rebuke him shall be delight, and a good blessing shall come upon them” (Proverbs 24:21-25). The anti-Messiah is both person/s and spirit/s who have no fear of YHWH and who have changed YHWH’s Torah and recreated a “Messiah” who did away with Torah. Daniel foretold of this anti-Torah religion: “And he shall speak [great] words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time. But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end” (Daniel 7:25, 26).

Nearly 700 prophecies in Scripture are directed toward the Day of YHWH and the coming of Mashiyach. The prophets foretold that mankind will have snubbed YHWH in favor of relativism and tolerance of evil; this collision course with Mashiyach ben Dawid has been in the work since Adam and Eve sinned. “For you are bound to hear of revolutions and rumor of wars. Watch out and do not be disturbed, for it is necessary that all these things happen, but it is not yet the end. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. And there will be famines and plagues and earthquakes in different places. But all these things are only the beginning of sorrows” (Matthew 24:6-8).

We must never think of the truth of YHWH and His Mashiyach as a “religion” but as the only One and True Government of the Universe. When our leaders and governments go to war against YHWH and His Mashiyach, as they are doing now, we must not join the throng or a multitude to do evil. If we do not stand against all form of evil and injustice then we are effectively giving our consent to it; there is no middle ground. “I know your works, that you are neither hot, nor cold; I would desire that you would be either cold or hot. So, because you are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold, I am about to vomit you from my mouth. Because you say, I am rich and affluent, and have no want of anything; and you don’t know that you are helpless and miserable and needy and blind and naked!” (Revelation 3:15-17)

Messengers (Angels)

The Hebrew malakhim, and Greek angelos both mean “messengers,” and are translated as “angels” in most Bibles. YHWH created messengers (Psalm 104:4; 148:1-5). They were created as free moral agents (Job 4:18). The messengers of YHWH existed from the beginning of time; they were singing at the creation of the world (Job 38:7). While some view messengers as being of a lower status than mankind, Scripture says they are superhuman (Psalm 8:5).

In many places Scripture tells of messengers appearing and disappearing as YHWH directs. In Judges 2:1-4 a messenger of YHWH instructs the Israelites to make no covenants with the local inhabitants but to “throw down” their altars (idols). Exodus 23:23 speaks of YHWH sending “Mine Messenger” before the Israelites, instructing them to break down the pagan images. Messenger is also a term used to describe any agent that YHWH sends forth to execute his purposes. There are ordinary messengers who courier information as in Genesis 32:3; Numbers 20:14; Job 1:14-15; 1 Samuel 11:3; Luke 7:24; 9:52. Prophets are referred to as messengers in Isaiah 42:19; Haggai 1:13. Priests are messengers in Malachi 2:7. YHWH sends messengers to bring pestilence, 2 Sam. 24:16, 17; 2 Kings 19:35.

YHWH employs messengers to handle some of the logistics of his government. The title of “messenger” does not denote their nature but their office. The Messenger of YHWH appeared to Abraham at Mamre (Gen. 18:2, 22; 19:1), to Jacob at Peniel (Gen. 32:24, 30), to Joshua at Gilgal (Josh. 5:13, 15); this particular “Messenger” is the Word of YHWH who is Mashiyach. The nature and importance of YHWH’s messengers can only be understood in the context of Scriptures; the Bible provides many details designed to give us understanding of their roles in our lives. Their existence is implied in Gen. 16:7, 10, 11; Judges 13:1-21; Matt. 28:2-5; Heb. 1:4, etc. Although we are not provided a number, the messengers are extremely numerous – “thousand thousands” (Dan. 7:10; Matt. 26:53; Luke 2:13; Heb. 12:22, 23). They are also referred to as having various ranks in authority (Zech. 1:9, 11; Dan. 10:13; 12:1; 1 Thess. 4:16; Jude 1:9; Eph. 1:21; Col. 1:16).

Messengers are spirits (Heb. 1:14), like the neshama of man, but not incorporeal. “Like the messengers” (Luke 20:36) refers to their duties (Gen. 18:2; 19:1, 10; Luke 24:4; Acts 1:10). We even see titles applied to them as “sons of Elohim” (Job 1:6; 38:7; Dan. 3:25, 28) and to men (Luke 3:38), which indicates an intimate relationship between messengers and people.

Messengers are not considered perfect as YHWH is perfect (Job 4:18; Matt. 24:36; 1 Pet. 1:12), but they are finite creatures who may fall under temptation; and accordingly, we learn of “fallen angels” in Scripture. We are not given much information regarding the cause and manner of their “fall,” but we do know it was based on rebellion against the Most High – even though it obviously happened to accomplish all of YHWH’s purposes. We know that the fallen angels brought curses upon themselves (Matt. 25:41; Rev. 12:7, 9), and that they are reserved for judgment (2 Pet. 2:4).

Messengers never die (Luke 20:36). They possess superhuman intelligence and power (Mark 13:32; 2 Thess. 1:7; Ps. 103:20). They are called “set apart” (Luke 9:26) and “elect” (1 Tim. 5:21). The redeemed in glory are like unto the messengers (Luke 20:36). Messengers are not to be worshipped (Col. 2:18; Rev. 19:10). YHWH clearly instructs that no carved or molded images are to be made of angels (Exodus 20:4; Lev. 26:1; Deut. 5:8); this also means no paintings of them.

Messengers are known as ministering spirits to the people of YHWH (Heb. 1:14; Ps. 34:7; 91:11; Matt. 18:10; Acts 5:19; 8:26; 10:3; 12:7; 27:23). They rejoice over a repentant sinners (Luke 15:10) and they will also be ministers of judgment (Matt. 13:39, 41, 49; 16:27; 24:31). Herein lies an item of rebellion with Catholicism and other Christo-Pagan religions which maintain that there is no harm done by graven (carved or from molded) images of “Angels” which is a direct violation of the Second Commandment. “You shall not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth” (Exodus 20:4). This Commandment is reiterated in the Renewed Covenant writings: “Therefore we, whose descent is from Elohim, ought not to suppose that Elohim has the likeness of gold, or silver, or stone, sculptured by the art and skill of men” (Acts 17:29).

Paul very clearly teaches against owning idols of Angels or “Jesus.” Yet many Christians have idols of “Jesus” which are similar to cruciform fertility idols that existed thousands of years before Christendom. The ancient Ashurai religion has depictions of wings on their deities. The Ashurai also had a triune religion; their idols represented the wisdom of man, the wings of spiritual power, and the body of a lion. The ancient Assyrians carved wings on their deities and rulers to indicate their supremacy, which was hand-me-down idolatry adopted by Christianity. Mythological art from Nineveh suggests that wings represent the spirit. Nineveh’s sculptors created some of the world’s first pagan sculptures, which was their “modern art.”

For many generations Christians have carried on a pagan tradition of owning idols installed in churches, homes, cars and workplaces. Many Christians use these figurines as “good luck charms.” While they don’t pray to these idols, they do give them power by expecting that good will come by having them around, which is pure paganism. Some Christians have dreams and visions of Angels and some believe they have met with Angels; but this does not provide license to make or own images, because this is contrary to the Word of YHWH.

YHWH’s Messengers rebuke idolatry (Judges 2:1-4). It is a vile thing to make statutes of angels when the angels themselves have spoken against it. Those who follow Mashiyach must not own statues of Angels or Jesus. Anyone who is in possession of them is called to personally remove and destroy them. They are not to be given away or sold to others nor thrown away, but completely destroyed. According to YHWH and His Mashiyach all persons who manufacture and sell images of angels are rebellious; there are no exceptions.

YHWH instructed Moshe to place two kruvim (cherubs) with outstretched wings over the Ark of the Covenant, indicating YHWH’s Messengers are over those who observe the Ten Commandments and walk in Covenant. However, manufacturing and purchasing images of angels is a direct violation of the Second Commandment; yet many Christians show no regard for this commandment. The Roman Catholic institution is the largest perpetuator of idolatry on Earth, using all manner of Christo-Pagan idols to entice souls into breaking YHWH’s Commandments. The Bible tells us we are to flee from all form of idolatry. By making images of angels or anything in the heavens above, on Earth or in the water of the Earth, mankind is playing god.

My El! My El! Why have You spared me?

Matthew 27:46

Perhaps no Scripture evokes more emotion than the cry from the stake in Matthew 27:46. How is it possible that these powerful words have been misunderstood for nearly two millennia? For many, Y'shua's last utterance was either understood as a cry of desperation or a declaration of his Messiahship from Psalm 22:1; "My El, My El, why have you forsaken me." Greek versions attempt to transliterate the Psalm as Eli, Eli lama sabachthani. However the Aramaic Peshitta NT reads: "Eli, Eli lemana shabakthani," while Hebrew Psalm reads: "Eli, Eli lama azbatani." Greek transliteration reflects the Aramaic word as does the Peshitta. However, there is a key difference between azbatani, which only means "to forsake" and its Aramaic counterpart shabakthani which has multiple meanings but also includes the same concept.

Even so, does this mean Y'shua is quoting Psalm 22? To answer that question, consider these verses: "And from that time onwards, Y'shua began to make known to his disciples that he must go to Urishlim and suffer much from the elders and from the chief priests, and scribes. And he would be killed, and on the third day would rise up" (Matthew 16:21). "Behold, we are going up to Urishlim, and the Son of Man will be delivered to the chief priests and to the scribes. And they will condemn him to death. And they will deliver him to the Gentiles, and they will mock him, and they will beat him, and they will execute him on a stake. And he will rise on the third day" (Matthew 20:18-19). When Peter prepared to fight Y'shua replied, "...don't you think that I am able to ask my Father to raise up twelve legions of Messengers? How then could the Scriptures be fulfilled. Thus say that it must be" (Matthew 26:53-54).

Y'shua informed his disciples that his death was inevitable, and that it would be fulfilled according to Scripture. Anyone who tried to prevent his death, even a loyal disciple like Peter, was referred to as being of haSatan! Y'shua knows that he is laying down his life as a voluntary offering according to John 10:11-18, but he can also take it back. He is referred to as the "lamb of Elohim" because the lamb submits his life unto death; a key requirement of Mashiyach according to Isaiah 53:7. Therefore, when Y'shua is suffering on the stake, he is fulfilling the very reason he came into the world – the suffering he could end in the blink of an eye, according to John 10. In this context then, with full power in him, the blessings of the Father, and YHWH's Messengers with him, he could not have, even for an instant, been forsaken.

When Y'shua was praying in the garden just before being betrayed, his prayer was immediately answered by YHWH sending a Messenger, in Luke 22:43, "...a Messenger appeared to him from Heaven to strengthen him." This being the case, we must look at the final words that come out of Y'shua's mouth; let's examine the Aramaic word shbakthani. As mentioned above, it shares the "forsake" meaning with the Hebrew word used in Psalm 22. However, the root of the word shbak has several other meanings including: 1) reserve 2) keep 3) spare 4) forgive. In Luke 23:34, Y'shua uses the exact same word to say, "Father, shbak (forgive) them for they know not what they do." This multiplicity of meaning in Aramaic, naturally groups related concepts under the umbrella of the same word. In this case, reserve, keep and spare all are variations from the same concept of setting aside. The same can be said idiomatically of forgive, where offenses are metaphorically also "set aside." Conversely, the rabbis throughout the centuries have always translated the Hebrew azbatani in Psalm 22 exclusively as "forsaken." That is not to say the other meanings of shbak do not exist also in its Hebrew equivalent, because they do in other verses of Scripture. In the end only one solution reveals itself, which is that another meaning of shbakthani is intended. The context safely eliminates forgive as a possibility as it makes no sense; therefore, the highly similar concepts of reserve, keep or spare are left to investigate.

Some scholars have suggested that lemana could be interpreted as a statement and that would allow the first two definitions as possibilities with readings like, "My El, my El, for this you have reserved/kept me.” However, traditional understanding of this verse has always affirmed lemana only as a question. Therefore, what remains as the most viable reading is: “My El, my El, why have you reserved/kept/spared me.” While all these possibilities will clearly work, the choice of Paul Younan (a foremost Aramaic scholar) is the wording, “why have you spared me” because reserve or kept has a connotation of a wider question that Y’shua is clearly not asking. Furthermore and in concordance with the other Scriptures mentioned, Y’shua is clearly aware of the reasons for his death, and therefore to use the other options would allow for inadequate options like, “why have you kept me around” or “why have you reserved me for this purpose”. Since he fully knows the reasons for his suffering, the preferred choice is “why have you spared me” or, “I’ve been here for six hours and will die for this cause, but how much more time will this take?” In response to this question Scripture tells us that Y’shua dies shortly thereafter, thus validating the context.

Finally, there is very good reason why tradition has been so strong on linking this utterance to Psalm 22. While Y’shua himself may or may not be quoting the Psalm, the rest of the narrative is clearly referencing it. This section of Matthew is a Midrash, or dramatic story rendering, of Psalm 22. The very rebukes found in the Psalm are on the lips of the Pharisees as they taunt Mashiyach (Psalm 22:6-8; Matthew 27:39-40). The Psalm references his “hands and feet pierced” and having “enemies gamble for his clothing” (Psalm 22:16, 18; Matthew 27:34). Even the probable condition of Y’shua hanging on a stake is described with phrases like, “I am poured out like water and all my bones are out of joint. My heart has turned to wax and has melted away within me. My strength is dried up like a potsherd and my tongue sticks to the roof of my mouth. You lay me in the dust of death.” With all this Psalmic imagery, it’s no wonder many have concluded with apparent logic that Y’shua is quoting Psalm 22:1! But we must also consider other factors; for instance: Y’shua was also experiencing brutal physical trauma, which is known to cause impairment of speech. Secondly, we do not have concise evidence to know whether Y’shua was speaking Hebrew or Aramaic at that moment, so even in the best of circumstances those who stood by listening may not have clearly heard what he was saying. In this matter, Hebrew speaking witnesses at the site of the execution thought he was calling on “Elijah” as opposed to “My El.” Perhaps it was only an exhalation of pain (Eli-ah). Altogether these criteria present a compelling case for determining how two similar phrases were transposed. In the end what we have here is another section of Matthew which “represents” rather than “quotes” from Scripture.

Netzer

“And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Netzer (sprout) shall grow out of his sheresh (roots): And the spirit of YHWH shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of YHWH; And shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of YHWH: and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears” (Isaiah 11:1-3). The word “Netzarim” is derived from the word “Netzer” in Isaiah. The Netzer represents the Kingdom of Elohim which is offered in Mashiyach Y’shua. These spirits (attributes) of YHWH are imparted into the souls of those who follow Mashiyach and permit the Ruach haKodesh to write Torah upon their hearts. These character attributes of YHWH are revealed by Mashiyach through the Torah (righteous instruction) of YHWH according to His Word. Hence the Kingdom is represented by a sprout that grows to fill the whole earth...which is why haSatan (the adversary) has counterfeited Netzarim Faith with all manner of religious substitutes and is also attempting to put forth an imposturous “one world government.”

Y’shua said, “I am the Vine and you are the branches. Whoever abides in me and I in him, this man will produce plentiful fruit because without me you are not able to do anything” (Yochanan 15:5)

Aramaic “shebista” is the word for “branches”; however, the Netzer/branch of Isaiah 11:1-2 is implied. Netzer word-plays with haNatzrati “the Nazarene” and haNetzarim, “the Netzarim.” Rav Shaul was branded a “ringleader” of the Netzarim: “For we have found this man to be an assassin, and a mover of sedition among all Jews in the whole land: for he is a ringleader of the sect of the Netzarim” (Acts 24:5). The Netzarim designation clearly implies the “Tree of Life” which serves as a reminder of the Eternal Kingdom that was offered to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. The term netzer (sprout or branch) is also the root word for the City of the Branch Netzeret (Nazareth); “They said to him, ‘Y’shua the Nasraya.’ Y’shua said to them, ‘I am he’” (Yochanan 18:5). The designation of “Nasraya” serves as a reminder to his followers, not that he dwelled in Netzeret but that his “dwelling” (the Spirit of Mashiyach) is within his people.

“For, if the first-fruits (are) Set Apart, then the rest of the dough (it came from is) also: and if the root is Set Apart, then also the branches” (Romans 11:16). This is the root of the Renewed Covenant that is altogether righteous, Set Apart, just and good, which is built according to the Spirit of Mashiyach that is the Word of YHWH which is forever revealed through the Father YHWH to mankind.

The Netzarim Faith is considered as a sect of Judaism in the First Century because it was originally sponsored only by Jews. The popularity of Mashiyach Y’shua was the impetus for the original Faith to be morphed into pseudo-Christian pagan religions. Polycarp and Clement were the only two post-apostolic writers who had met or known an original Apostle (Yochanan). Polycarp was extremely anti-Marcion, referring to him as the firstborn of the devil, he rejected the introduction of Easter into the church and taught that Christians must return to the Torah based Pesach (Passover). Clement stated that the book of Hebrews was originally penned by Paul in the Hebrew language and then translated into Greek by Luke. Both Polycarp and Clement voiced ideas that are quite contrary to what churchianity believes today, therefore their teachings were not so popular. The rest of the post-apostolic Gentile church founders never met the original Apostles and knew very little or nothing of the original Hebrew and Aramaic-based Netzari Faith. There is no mention of “the Netzarim” among the church founders yet they bother to mention the Ebionite faction that broke away from the Netzarim community.

Once Greek “New Testament” texts began circulating among Gentile theologians, each version became a self sustaining “holy book” according to each translator’s opinions. Although the values of the Netzari Faith are clearly preserved in Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek texts, concepts like having Torah written upon the heart (observance of Torah) is almost non-existent within the Gentile-based Christian religion which evolved in Antioch, Rome and Alexandria Egypt.

There has been a continuum of Netzari believers from the days of Mashiyach until today, but it has been an underground Faith that is largely scorned by Christian theologians and despised by Rabbinical Judaism. However, throughout history numerous church founders/leaders have publicly scorned Christian groups that observe Shabbat and the Feasts of YHWH and who followed a Hebraic rather than a Grecian faith. Rather than to test the ancient truths with a thorough investigation of the obvious evidences, most Christian theologians today are quick to voice all manner of polemic against the Aramaic and Hebrew primacy of Renewed Covenant writings.

The Netzari Faith very much upholds the unique sovereignty of every single soul. The mitzvot (Commandments) are the basis of Covenant that demands a response from each individual according to the neshama (spirit of man). The Netzer symbolizes each soul entering into their fullest potential with Mashiyach according to the Tree of Life. Judgment is a matter of how individuals have developed their spiritual man and used their respective unique talents and gifts. When a person chooses to follow Mashiyach, keep Covenant with YHWH and to obey Torah, they become free; no longer are they slaves to sin.

Mashiyach was not a pacifist but a revolutionary. He was tortured by Romans and put upon a Roman torture stake to show the world that nobody challenges Rome's hierarchy and gets away with it. Mashiyach's government is the only legitimate way of justice and peace on this Earth and it is the Netzari Faith that upholds the distinctions of Mashiyach's government, rather than just being another branch off the same man-made religious-political hierarchy that crucified Mashiyach. The Netzari Faith is making a rapid return to the Earth, and just as the Prophets of YHWH foretold, our numbers are steadily growing. YHWH has placed His called-out ones throughout the Earth for such a time as this. The followers of Y'shua Mashiyach will do valiantly and YHWH will most surely take back everything that belongs to Him.

New Testament Anti-Semitism

"New Testament" devices that breed hatred against Jews are plentiful; a very key phrase was even deleted from all Greek texts that clearly renounced anti-Semitism. But, it should be of no surprise that the Greek "New Testament" became the tour de force behind anti-Semitism when we consider the impact of individuals like Constantine, the Emperor of Rome and his mother Helena Augusta, who were champions of Christianity and also rabid Jew haters. The Nicene Creed of 325 AD was inked under their watchful eyes as they placed "government issued" edicts in official Christian documents that legislated acts of hatred toward Jews.

Gentile Christian Churches each had their own unique New Testament "holy books" with a wide variation of readings. As time went on, interpretive schisms between these assemblies widened in places like Antioch, Alexandria and Rome itself, breeding divisions within Christianity that would later motivate Constantine to standardize the "New Testament" throughout the Roman Empire. The cultural and religious animosity between Jews and Romans wound their way into nearly all the Greek Christian texts and their interpretation.

Many Christian scholars and theologians still consider Constantine as one of the all time greatest Christians in history, despite the fact that he murdered his own son, his nephew and many of his own family members, and wasn't baptized until he was on his deathbed. Other historians suggest that Constantine was simply a shrewd politician who saw Christianity on the rise, jumped on board, and used it as a platform to gain the much needed support that put him into "public office."

Shabbat

"For from ancient generations in all cities Moshe had preachers in the synagogues that on every Shabbat they read him." Acts 15:21

Although Acts 15:21 indicates a direct fulfillment of Isaiah 56:1-9 showing that Gentile converts are observing Shabbat and learning about Torah and Mashiyach along with Jews, such things angered both the Pharisees and anti-Semitic Christians. The Shlichim (Apostles) fully expected Gentiles to be one with Jews in lifestyle and observance which is clearly seen in Acts 13:42-49; 16:12-15; 17:1-5; 18:4; and in Colossians 2:16, Paul even exhorts the Body of Mashiyach to refrain from allowing outsiders to judge them regarding Shabbat and Feast day observance.

Mashiyach is the "middle pillar" (Revelation 22:1-2) who establishes universal common good, but there had to be give and take on both sides. Jews from traditional backgrounds would have to let up on imposing their traditions; Gentiles would have to eliminate their pagan lifestyles.

For most Christians the Shabbat is thought of as a "Jewish thing" and as a major inconvenience, especially since the Church adopted Sunday, despite Scriptures like Isaiah 56, 58, 66 that foretell observance of Shabbat by Gentiles. On the other hand, because of Jewish rebellion against Torah, many Gentiles feel they are not called to observe Shabbat at all. To justify this, Christians quote Scriptures like Isaiah 1:13 and Hosea 2:11 to show that YHWH was displeased with Israel's observance of Shabbat; and therefore many feel that they don't need to show honor or respect for the sign that YHWH gave between Him and His people (Exodus 31:13).

"But when the Pharisees saw them, they said to him, 'Behold, your disciples are doing something that is not lawful to do on the Shabbat'" (Matthew 12:2). Mashiach never subscribed to rabbinical "Shabbat traditions." However, most Jews and Gentiles don't realize there are marked differences between oral tradition and Torah observance. For instance, using oral tradition, the Pharisees in Matthew 12, above, wrongfully accused Y'shua and his disciples of being guilty of "working" on the Shabbat. They didn't seem to realize there was no intent to work; rather, the disciples were merely putting grain in their mouths while walking together on Shabbat. Nowhere does Torah prohibit the picking and eating grain while on a Shabbat stroll!

Unfortunately, the traditions of the Pharisees often stand as final authority for many Christians. How ironic, then, that most Christians inadvertently continue the condemnation ministry of the Pharisees, but simultaneously also level their guns at other Christians who choose to observe Shabbat....

However, in contradistinction to the Pharisees' oral traditions, the original followers of Mashiach recognized that Gentiles are called to observe Shabbat along with the House of Israel, as mentioned in Isaiah 56:6; 66:23; Zechariah 8:22, 23; Micah 4:2; Malachi 1:11. Shabbat is for everyone; it is not an exclusive Jews only Commandment. (See Exodus 20:10; Leviticus 25:6; Deuteronomy 5:14)

Sadly, the rabbinical "Jewish Shabbat" became the measure of how Christians viewed Shabbat; and, rather than entering into the Joy of Shabbat, most of the Gentile world has chosen to reject Shabbat, which fueled yet more "New Testament" anti-Semitism. YHWH and His Mashiach delight in Shabbat; but the Christian theology that taught against Shabbat was clearly initiated by Greco-Roman post-apostolic Gentile Church founders and then fueled by early anti-Semites like Constantine who had Christians executed for observing the Seventh Day Shabbat.

Traditional observant Jews have concocted a series of "loopholes" to get around certain Shabbat Commandments. For instance, the tradition of Shabbat Goys (Gentiles) doing small tasks (work) on Shabbat, so that they themselves do not break Shabbat. The Gentile enters the home or property of the Jew to perform these little tasks – which is a direct violation of Shabbat according to Torah: No work is to be done within our gates (Ex. 20:10; Deut. 5:14). Another traditional "loophole" that violates the intent of Torah is the religious tradition of selling one's Chometz (leavened foods) to a Gentile before Passover – although Torah clearly states that the Ger Toshav (sojourner who lives among Jews) is to be instructed in the Pesach and invited to participate if certain conditions are met (Ex. 12:49; Nu. 15:16). These kinds of rabbinical traditions have helped nurture anti-Semitism by posturing Torah observance as being exclusive to Jews.

Not only is Torah broken by these traditions, but the harmony between nations and peoples is only worsened because, instead of upholding a universal standard for all souls, Gentiles are given opposing messages which separates them from entering into YHWH's Shabbat. Unless Christians are given opportunity to learn and do Torah and experience the bond of Love within YHWH's Covenant, it is impossible for them to understand YHWH's perfect will in Mashiach, and that the Kingdom of Elohim is a continuum that began in Genesis.

Pertaining to the "law"

Mis-translations in the Greek New Testament texts were used to bring accusation against all Jewish people. Here's an example: "But avoid foolish controversies and genealogies and arguments and quarrels pertaining to the law (nomikos--nomikov), because these are unprofitable and useless. Warn a divisive person once, and then warn him a second time. After that have nothing to do with him. You may be sure that such a man is warped and sinful; he is self-condemned" (Titus 3:9-11 NIV). The Greek word nomikos is derived from nomos, and certainly translates as "pertaining to the Torah." However, Aramaic very clearly exposes a Hellenistic redaction here:

“But avoid foolish questions and genealogies and contentions, and the theological arguments of the scribes, for they are unprofitable and vain. After you have admonished the heretic once or twice, shun him, knowing he as such is corrupt; he sins and condemns himself” (Titus 3:9-11 Lamsa). The word sapra, clearly designates “scribe” as opposed to Torah (nomikos, namusa). Here again is a prime example of how addressing a small faction of heretics was misapplied to Torah and the entire Jewish people! “The scribes and the Pharisees” denied Y’shua’s claims outright. These scribes are also rebuked in Galatians 3 and 4 for putting fences around Torah.

But another type of “scribe” that clearly fits this rebuke includes the Evyonim or Ebionites (the poor ones). These were Pharisees who accepted Y’shua as Mashiyach but ultimately rejected all divine claims about him. Their dispute began with the famous circumcision controversy in Acts 15, where they ended up losing the debate. Twenty years later, the Evyonim broke off from the mainstream Netzarim movement and disposed all of the early books of the Renewed Covenant Writings except for a mutilated version of Matthew, which was heavily edited.

Circumcision

As shown in the Appendix entitled “Circumcision,” Greco-Roman Greek New Testament writers twisted Rav Shaul into an anti-circumcision Apostle to the Gentiles. Paul of course levies no arguments against circumcision itself, but against the rabbinical traditions (fences) surrounding circumcision that would pressure an individual to conform to rabbinical traditions that make void faith and the voluntary intentions of the heart. One can easily imagine the acute nature of the conflict because at its very heart are issues of identity and belonging. Those who were pressuring Gentiles to become circumcised were doing so to appease their own religious flesh. Rav Shaul on the other hand very definitively asserts that the faith component, Torah written upon the heart and trust in Y’shua as Mashiyach is what defines a disciple of Y’shua, not whether he is immediately circumcised after accepting Y’shua as Mashiyach.

The post-apostolic Church founders used circumcision as a “New Testament” doctrine to divide Gentiles against Jews. Modern secular society is also divided whether circumcision is a good or bad thing and those who hold doctrines against circumcision are quick to side with whatever “scientific evidence” they can find to suggest that it is bad. But again, it was the Spirit of Mashiyach who Commanded Awraham and all his males to be circumcised! Make no mistake about it, circumcision is a pain in the flesh and something that all adult individuals will not soon forget. The lessons within circumcision apply equally today as they did in Awraham’s, Moshe’s or Joshua’s day and even moreso for those who know Y’shua and who intend to put away the carnal flesh to live according to the spiritual man.

But of course Rav Shaul was doing battle against religious pride and he never pulled any punches: “Oh that those who are also troubling you would be expelled!” (Galatians 5:12) As noted in the footnote, the Aramaic literally means would be “cut off” which, given the subject matter, clearly indicates that Rav Shaul was very strongly defending the position that trust in Y’shua is the essential ingredient to spiritual life, not the forces of tradition. Rav Shaul makes a very critical distinction that following Y’shua is not about making a broad sweeping turn back under the authority of a religious hierarchy, but to allow the Ruach haKodesh to write Torah upon the heart and be conformed into the Image of Elohim. And yet circumcision was painted as a “bad Jewish thing” which of course is a very low level religious assessment of the matter, when in fact it portrays an immutable spiritual component.

Rejection of “the Gospel” breeds Anti-Semitism

Paul said: “But all of them have not obeyed the proclamation of the Good News. For, Isaiah said: My Master, who has believed our report?” (Romans 10:16)

“All of them,” refers to Jews as a race of people. Obviously, Y’shua was born the Jewish Mashiyach and myriads of Jews believed in him; but as a race the Jews did not. Paul lamented:

“But I say: Have they not heard? And, lo, their proclamation has gone out into all the earth; and their words to the ends of the world. But I say: Did not Israel know? First, Moshe said thus: I will awaken your emulation by a people which is not a people; and by a disobedient people I will provoke you. And Isaiah was bold, and said: I was seen by those who sought me not; and I was found by those who inquired not for me. But to Israel, he said: All the day have I stretched out my hands to a contentious and disobedient people” (Romans 10:18-21).

Unfortunately, it seems as though most Christians stop reading here, as though Paul had left the Jewish people in eternal condemnation. However, he went on to say: “But I say: Has Elohim cast off His people? May it never be! For I also am of Israel, of the seed of Awraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. Elohim has not cast off those His people whom He before knew...So also at the present time a remnant is preserved by the election of grace. But if by works, it is not by works: otherwise, grace is not grace. And if by works, it is not by grace: Otherwise, work is not work. What then?... But I say: Have they so stumbled as to fall entirely? May it never be! Rather, by their stumbling, life has come to the Gentiles for (awakening) their jealousy” (Romans 11:1-11).

Certainly as an entire race, the Jews did stumble; yet today there are more Jews who feel that Y’shua “was more than likely” Mashiyach than those who follow Orthodox Judaism.

“(For I want you to know this) mystery, that blindness of heart has in some measure befallen Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles shall come in” (Romans 11:25).

Paul expected the “blindness of heart” to be a finite period of time – and, of course, he took this from both Prophecy and personal revelation of the Ruach haKodesh. But then he went on to say: “...in the Good News, they are enemies for your sake: but in the election, they are beloved for the fathers’ sake” (Verse 28).

Although many traditions of the Pharisees oppose Y’shua as Mashiyach, this doesn’t rule out the rest of the Jewish people. Not all Jews are Pharisees, but all Jews are “beloved for the father’s sake.” During the wicked crusades against Jews, the vast majority of Christians never had access to Bibles; they simply followed what their evil Popes and Priests instructed. It would have shocked many Christians to read: “...beloved for the father’s sake” while witnessing the satanic “Christian” hatred against Jews.

The irony of Christian anti-Semitism is that the Renewed Covenant was made with the Jewish people. “This is my blood of the renewed covenant, which for the sake of many is shed for the forgiveness of sins.” (Matthew 26:28) YHWH revealed the Renewed Covenant in Jeremiah 31:31-37 that He would, “make a Renewed Covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah” (and) “put my Torah in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts... (and that) the seed of Israel also shall never cease from being a nation before me for ever...says YHWH.”

Dogs and Pigs

“You should not hang earrings on dogs and you should not place your pearls before pigs that they should not trample them by their feet and they overtake and wound you.” Matthew 7:6

The symbolism of the two animal groups could not be clearer: Dogs represent apostate Jews (Phil 3:2, 3) while pigs represent apostate Gentiles who rebel against the Almighty. The Kingdom of Elohim was never exclusive to Jews any more than it is to Christians. Whether Jew or Gentile, everyone gets to make individual choices regarding YHWH and His Mashiyach, who is no respecter of persons. We are all ultimately responsible to the Master for how we live, regardless as to whether we wear a Jewish or a Christian label. Hatred against others because of their labels or their race is simply the work of unclean demon spirits; only apostate souls exhibit this hatred. Those who are spiritually regenerated according to the Spirit of YHWH will bear no hatred towards another race of people.

Aristocrats Losing Control

“By the Jewish (authorities), five times was I scourged, each time with forty stripes save one. Three times was I beaten with rods: at one time I was stoned: three times I was in shipwreck, by day and by night; I have been in the sea, without a ship.” 1 Corinthians 11:24, 25

Often when Paul refers to “the Jews” he is referring to a specific faction of people within the religious ruling class. Here, he indicts the religious authorities for their dirty deeds against him; he is neither charging a specific Jewish person or all Jews in general, which many mistakenly believe.

In Jerusalem the religious elite used the corruptible Sanhedrin to enforce their religious authority. Unfortunately, the ruling “elite” of most ethnicities are notorious for self-promotion at the cost of their own people; this isn’t just a Jewish problem.

“And when it was morning, several of the Jews assembled together, and bound themselves by oaths that they would neither eat nor drink until they had slain Paul” (Acts 23:12).

Although Rav Shaul took severe beatings from religious factions, this never stopped him from pouring his heart out with love for his people:

“I say the truth in Mashiyach, and do not misrepresent; and my conscience bears me witness in the Ruach haKodesh; That I have great sorrow, and the sadness of my heart is unceasing. For I have prayed that I myself might be accursed from Mashiyach for my brothers and my kinsmen in the flesh: Who are sons of Israel to whom belonged the adoption of sons, and the glory, and the covenants, and Torah, and the ministration, and the promises, and the fathers” (Romans 9:1-4).

Paul offers his place in the Kingdom of Elohim in exchange for Jewish souls, so it’s not likely that anti-Semites and anti-Torah Christians would fare well with the real Paul. But, this is also why religious Gentile “aristocrats” steeped in Constantinian tradition invented their own hybrid versions of “Paul the Apostle.”

“Then the soldiers of the governor took Y’shua to the Praetorium and assembled against him all of the company of soldiers” (Matthew 27:27).

Anti-Semites would have you believe that a massive mob of angry Jews put Y’shua to death, but in reality the Praetorium only had a maximum capacity of about 200 people. The traitor and false witnesses had been arranged beforehand and the crowd had been stacked against Y’shua to unfairly influence the outcome. Roman soldiers were likely the largest contingent in the Praetorium, followed by a religious element of fanatics who were “yes men” for the religious elite. The religious element that was present did not represent all the Jewish people; these were men who wanted Y’shua dead because he threatened their political and religious strongholds.

Y’shua’s Fame

Y’shua knew from the start of his ministry that he had one objective, which was to fulfill the office of Mashiyach ben Yoseph (the suffering servant). The spiritual forces that collided resulted in a violent cataclysmic impact that will not subside until Mashiyach returns. Through Mashiyach, YHWH openly staked his claim to all His Creation, and it is through belief in Y’shua for good or for evil that YHWH will set forth judgment toward the inhabitants of Earth. It’s not difficult to imagine what would happen to any people group if a standard of Perfection was brought into their midst. There would be love for and hatred against the man and the Standard, but nothing would remain the same.

Y’shua walked among a people who were filled with every bit of reaction and emotion that was common to man. Imagine the contrasts between those who loved him and those who rejected him and wanted him dead. Jews had been waiting for Mashiyach for more than a thousand years, and no prophet, before or since, produced the number of miracles or spoke with authority like Y’shua did. Therefore, it is no wonder that he is the most talked-about soul who ever walked on the face of this Earth. No other Jew begins to come close to his fame, and yet some “religious” people insist on believing that he died in relative obscurity.

The Netzarim community (followers of Mashiyach) was growing so rapidly in the months leading up to his torture and death that the status quo feared for their very survival because the Pharisees recognized that multitudes of Jews were turning to Y’shua. Witnesses record that as he rode up to Jerusalem the people couldn’t restrain themselves. Tens of thousands of Jews were shouting “Hoshiana” (save us or deliver us) and when he went into the Temple, the children inside cried out: “Ushanna to the Son of Dawid” (Matthew 21:15). The religious status quo wanted desperately to wipe him out, but they couldn’t because they feared the crowds (see verse 46).

A seed had been planted in the minds of many Jews that Mashiyach was coming when Herod set out to slay the newborns of Bethlehem (Matthew 2:16). And just as Herod was threatened by the coming of Mashiyach, so were the religious and political elite who feared losing control over the people. As a race, the Jewish people did not accept Y’shua as Mashiyach, but there were myriads (tens of thousands) that did.

Even before this event, Renewed Covenant writings indicate in numerous places that “large crowds” gathered around Y’shua. Because the crowds pressed against him (Matthew 13:2), on one occasion Y’shua was forced to “sit himself on a boat, and all the crowd was standing on the shore of the sea.” Luke 12:1 states, “And when a multitude of many crowds gathered, so that they trampled one another...” indicating they couldn’t begin to count the numbers of people who came to listen to him; yet traditional anti-Semitic lore teaches that very few Jews accepted Y’shua as Mashiyach.

Confirmation of Y’shua’s fame is also evident when Paul went up to Jerusalem to meet Ya’akov; we read that “myriads in Judea believed and are all zealous for Torah!” (Acts 21:20) Why would anti-Semites suggest that Y’shua died in obscurity when Scriptures confirm the opposite? Why would Christians “trash” the Torah when a myriad (which means at least 10,000) were zealous for Torah and following Y’shua under the direction of Ya’akov?

Who dun it?

Peter didn’t mince words about who was responsible for Y’shua’s death: “...he, Y’shua, whom you delivered up and denied before the face of Peelatos after he saw it fitting to let him go. But you denied the Set Apart and Just, and you requested for yourselves a murderous man to be given to you. And that Prince of Life you killed whom Elohim raised from the dead, and we are all of us his witnesses” (Acts 3:13-15). (Peter knew who committed the crime see also Acts 10:39.) HaSatan put the plot into the minds of the religious elite, but Peter continues: “But now our Brothers I know that you did this in ignorance, as did your leaders. And Elohim, according to that which beforehand He preached by the mouths of all the prophets, that His Mashiyach would suffer has fulfilled (it) in this manner” (Acts 3:13-18).

Peter had a very close personal relationship with Y’shua. If anyone had reason to accuse Jews it would have been Peter; but instead, he looked at the very souls who participated and said: “I know that you did this in ignorance” – so it is extremely odd that for nearly 2,000 years many Gentile Christians have held hatred in their hearts toward Jews. Many who have harbored hatred in their hearts towards Jews weren’t even aware of it until they met a Jewish person and found themselves feeling defensive or uncomfortable without knowing why.

To indict a race of people for killing Y’shua is merely a diversion from the real purpose of Y’shua’s life and death. Anyone who willfully commits transgression has, in fact, had a hand in putting Mashiyach ben Yoseph (Y’shua) to death. Mashiyach Y’shua’s sufferings will, for all time, validate love or hatred within the soul for our Creator and toward all other souls who are alive now, who lived before us and who will live after we’ve passed on. Mashiyach epitomizes one solitary soul who can come before YHWH and be true to himself without transgressing against perfection, or accepting the status quo as the measure of a man. Who killed moral Perfection? Only a fool would point their finger at someone else.

One Lost Phrase

“Behold, therefore, how much he suffered from sinners, for they were adversaries of their own soul, that you may not be discouraged nor your soul become remiss.” Hebrews 12:3

Here the Greek redactor dropped an entire phrase! Greek reads: “Consider him who endured such hostility against himself from sinners, so that you may not grow weary or lose heart” (Hebrews 12:3, The Greek-English Interlinear New Testament, UBS 4th Edition, Nestle-Aland 26th Edition). Aramaic reads: “Behold, therefore, how much he suffered from sinners, for they were adversaries of their own soul, that you may not be discouraged, nor your soul become remiss.” Obviously, this is not just some small omission! Consider also the poetry that was lost in Greek. Here are the original sounds: 1) kma saybar min khatayeh hanun 2) d’hanun hawu saqubleh l’naphshayhun 3) d’la teman l’khun 4) w’la tethrapa naphshkhun. A beautiful message lost in all Greek versions. Y’shua states “they” were adversaries of their own soul. Perhaps if the translators would have retained the entire verse, there would have been less impetus for the evil Crusades against Jews!

Conclusion

Y’shua Mashiach’s life personified his Father YHWH, he said; “But I say to you to love your enemies and bless those that curse you and do that which is pleasing to those who hate you. And pray for those that take you by force and persecute you. So that you may be the sons of your Father who is in heaven” (Matthew 5:44, 45). Clearly, anyone who uses a “holy book” about Jesus to provoke anti-Semitism or bigotry towards another race of people are adversaries of the stake of Y’shua; “For there are many who walk otherwise; of whom I have often told you, and I now tell you with weeping that they are adversaries of the stake of the Mashiach; whose end is destruction; whose Elohim is their belly and their glory their shame; whose thoughts are on things of the earth” (Phil. 3:18, 19).

Regardless whether a person feels justified according to a government (nationalistic) or religious mandate, no hate-monger or bigot will enter into the Kingdom of Elohim (Psalm 24:3-4; Matthew 5:22; Galatians 5:18-21). “Therefore, by their fruits you will know them. It will not be that just anyone who says to me “My master, my master.” Will enter the Kingdom of Heaven, but whoever does the will of my Father who is in heaven” (Matthew 7:20, 21). Anti-Semitism among Christians or “Believers” is evil; “What have you done? The voice of your brother’s blood cries unto me from the ground” (Genesis 4:10).

Parallelisms

The Good News of Luke introduced us to basic Semitic poetry which permeates the first six chapters. One of the hallmark features in this Semitic poetry was the use of parallelisms of original Hebrew and Aramaic composition. In the Tanakh we often see these patterns as in the following:

- “Keep my words and store my commands within you” (Proverbs 7:1 NIV): This is synonymous parallelism, which means that the second portion of the line echoes the first but uses slightly different terminology. In this case the synonyms are keeping words and storing them in your heart, the latter being a metaphor as mentioned in Luke. Here’s another example:
- “For a man’s ways are in full view of YHWH, and He examines all his paths” (Proverbs 5:21 NIV): The second part of the verse completes the first; this is referred to as synthetic parallelism. Here the giveaway is that Elohim first sees and then He examines what was just observed.

- “YHWH abhors dishonest scales, but accurate weights are His delight.” Proverbs 11:1 (NIV): This is called antithetic parallelism, where the second part of the line clearly is in opposition to the first. Much of this next chapter of Proverbs contains this form of parallelism with phrases like, “When pride comes, then comes disgrace, but with humility comes wisdom” and “Wealth is worthless in the day of wrath, but righteousness delivers from death.”
- “Her feet go down to death; her steps lead straight to the grave.” Proverbs 3:19 (NIV): This is climactic parallelism, when the second line somewhat echoes the first but adds a little extra “kick” that puts an exclamation point on top of the statement. In this case, the way Hebrew reads here is that her feet go down to her own death in the first part, with the climax being that death also awaits whomever follows her. Again, all these poetic patterns, by universal scholarly opinion, point to Hebrew originality of the Tanakh verses; in this case from Proverbs. It is a distinctly Semitic fingerprint.

With this in mind, let’s look at a few verses in 1 Peter:

“For Messiah died for sins once and for all, the righteous and for the unrighteous, to bring you to Elohim. He was put to death in the body but made alive by the Spirit” (1 Peter 3:18).

– synonymous parallelism.

“For this reason the Good News was preached even to those who are now dead, so that they might be judged according to men in regard to the body, but live according to Elohim in regard to the Spirit” (1 Peter 4:6). – synonymous parallelism.

“Above all, love each other deeply, because love covers a multitude of sins” (1 Peter 4:8).

– synthetic parallelism.

“Be shepherds of Elohim’s flock that is under your care; serving as overseers, not because you must, but because you are willing, as Elohim wants you to be” (1 Peter 5:2).

– synthetic parallelism.

“Governors...are sent by Him to punish those who do wrong and to commend those who do right” (1 Peter 2:14). – antithetic parallelism.

“When they hurled insults at him, he did not retaliate; when he suffered, he made no threats.” (1 Peter 2:23). – antithetic parallelism.

“If anyone speaks, he should do it as one speaking the very Words of Elohim. If anyone serves, he should do it with the strength that Elohim provides, so that in all things Elohim may be praised through Y’shua the Messiah” (1 Peter 4:11). – climactic parallelism.

“For you have spent enough time in the past doing what pagans choose to do--living in debauchery, lust, drunkenness, orgies, carousing and detestable idolatry. They think it strange that you do not plunge with them into the same flood of dissipation, and they heap abuse on you” (1 Peter 4:3-5). – climactic parallelism.

Pole, the Standard

Although Christianity has long employed “the cross” as a symbol of Messiah’s sufferings it bears neither Aramaic nor Greek support; nor does it carry the prophetic significance of the pole or stake which was the shadow of Y’shua’s sufferings. The cross of Christianity was borrowed from the symbol of the Babylonian, then Greek and then Roman sun god, which was depicted by cruciform shaped buildings and graven cruciform images. Julius Caesar and his heir struck coins with symbols of the cross (solar wheel) to commemorate their sun god. The Roman Emperor Constantine was a sun worshipper who became a Christo-Pagan and advanced his version of “Christianity” throughout the Roman Empire. Constantine’s version of “Christianity” included ongoing pagan cultural events that included Sun-day and Ishtar (Easter) worship. Christian folklore suggests that Constantine saw a cross formed by the light of sun which directed him to become a Christian.

From a Biblical perspective the Greek word “stauros” denotes an upright stake; the verb stauroo means to drive stakes. The Greek “xulon” denotes a timber or a log or any piece of dead wood. Bullinger’s Companion Bible notes: “Our English word “cross” is the translation of the Latin crux; but the Greek stauros no more means a crux than the word “stick” means a “crutch.”” Therefore, it is very plain to see that the departure from the original meaning occurred in the Latin language, as did many other pagan contributions to Western Christianity.

Both Aramaic and Greek agree that it was an upright stake or pole on which Mashiyach suffered, which is also seen by the symbol of the pole in B’midbar/Numbers with the use of the term nec (pronounced nace): “And YHWH said unto Moshe, Make a fiery serpent, and set it upon a nec (pole): and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looks upon it, shall live. And Moshe made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a nec (pole), and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived” (Numbers 21:8, 9). When mankind is “bitten” by the serpent (haSatan) of Genesis 3:15 we are to look to Mashiyach for healing and deliverance.

The Hebrew word nec (pole) is also used by the Prophet Isaiah to depict Mashiyach as a sign to all nations: “And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles (nations) seek: and his rest shall be glorious” (Isaiah 11:10). The pole or stake on which Mashiyach suffered is most certainly not the object of importance, it is simply the instrument of torture that received the blood of many people before and after his blood was shed.

Again the Prophet Isaiah equates Y’shua with the standard (nec) that YHWH has lifted up: “Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard (nec) for the people. Behold, YHWH has proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, your yeshua (salvation) comes; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. And they shall call them, The set apart people, The redeemed of YHWH: and you shall be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken” (Isaiah 62:10-12). Mashiyach is the standard who is the salvation of YHWH and the goal of every true Believer who is born of the Ruach haKodesh. The prime Hebrew word for nec means to be lifted up as Y’shua states: “And when I am lifted up from the earth, I will draw all men to me.” (Yochanan 12:32).

In the hands of the post-apostolic founders of the Gentile church “the cross” became a license to break Torah without consequences. In reality Grace is the gift of the Ruach haKodesh that empowers followers of Y’shua to be set free from the slavery of sin. Grace is the empowerment to stop sinning and live a wholesome and righteous life in Mashiyach. A person who has not received Grace continues to break Torah; they are slaves to sin because they cannot stop and have no intention of stopping their sin. Those without Grace refuse to live according to the Word of YHWH, much like a smoker addicted to cigarettes cannot stop smoking, even though little “voices” tell the addict that smoking brings hardship, cancer and even premature death. The “cross-ified Jesus” does not provide Christians the power to stop breaking Torah, because the Harlot Church system preaches a false Jesus that is strictly anti-Torah. One would never expect the board of directors of a cigarette manufacturing company to research, demonstrate and report to the public all the ill effects of smoking; neither can we realistically expect the Church leaders to take up the cause of righteousness and the importance of having Torah written upon the heart! As a matter of fact, theologians within the Church system are the ones who devised a “cross theology” which teaches that Torah was nailed to the cross, and insist the sinner who believes in “the cross” can break Torah without consequence. This is a very popular and convenient religious lie because it caters to the sins of the weak human flesh.

The Certificate of Debts or the sins of the repentant sinner were metaphorically nailed to the torture stake (Matthew 6:12, Luke 7:36-50, Colossians 2:14). The penalty for sin is, in fact, set aside only for those who repent and turn from sin, but YHWH’s Word that requires punishment for sin has never been removed from the books. The will of YHWH and His Mashiyach is for mankind to stop sinning, but the will of haSatan is, and always has been, for mankind to ramp up all manner of sin which leads to destruction. This is the difference between “grace” and “license.” “Grace” will find you guilty as charged, but your sincere repentance and efforts to turn from sin is rewarded with spiritual strength from Mashiyach. Those who look to Mashiyach are delivered and saved from the traps of haSatan who desires to seduce you into breaking Torah. “License” is the opposite of Grace; it teaches that a person who believes in Jesus can continue in sin and all the consequences of their sin are put upon Mashiyach so that the sinner goes free. This, of course, is the central theme of false religion and the root of all Christian wickedness.

For many Christians the symbol of the cross brings comfort even though it is widely believed to be the instrument of torture used against their innocent “best friend.” The cross is also used by Christians to ward off demons; crosses are routinely placed where loved ones were killed and where they were buried. By doing so the Harlot Church has made void the Fear of YHWH and turned their version of the cross into a Christian icon and the license to sin.

The symbols YHWH gave His people are much different, however. For example, the Menorah is a seven-branched-lamp that represents the eternal Light of Mashiyach. The number seven represents completion and each of the branches denotes an attribute of the Spirit of Mashiyach that indwells YHWH’s people (see Isaiah 11:1-4). The Ark of the Covenant is laid with pure gold inside and outside and represents purity on the inside and outside of each soul who is in Mashiyach. The Ten Commandments that are placed inside the Ark represent the Mind of Mashiyach, written by the finger of YHWH Himself, whose immutable Commandments will be used to Judge the whole earth (see Rev. 11:19). These symbols in the Temple represent the Government of Mashiyach that indwells the physical temple of each individual who turns to him, and are representative of the spiritual man. These eternal symbols are YHWH ordained, whereas the cross is merely a man-made icon. If Christians were to take the time to research the origin of the cross symbol they would be shocked and surprised to discover that it is far from what the post-apostolic church founders want them to believe; but these important elements of truth differentiate the One True Faith from the Mystery religion of fallen Babylon.

Prayer

The importance of prayer cannot be overstated. Y'shua prayed daily to his Father (Yochanan 14:16; 16:26) and he taught his talmidim how to pray and make prayer to "our Father" (Matthew 6:9). He taught his followers that we are created in YHWH's image, and that the Father is accessible to all who seek Him with a humble and contrite heart. We do not pray because YHWH needs to hear our prayers; He already knows our thoughts before we think them. We pray because we are the ones who rely on YHWH for life and need to maintain our connection with Him. It is imperative for us to invoke His Name in prayer because, without an active prayer life combined with a contrite heart and obedient disciplined lifestyle, it is very difficult to hear from Heaven.

We are called to be a Set Apart people because He is Set Apart – and this is done by welcoming His Spirit inside of us and having His Torah written upon our hearts so that we may live according to the Ancient Paths, also known as the Way. Rav Shaul exhorted the body of Mashiyach to "pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5:17) which can only be accomplished if prayer is a spiritual conversation.

The promise of the Renewed Covenant is to have Torah written upon our hearts. Torah is the Word of YHWH that dwelt among us in Mashiyach who represents the Spirit of YHWH, and who came in the flesh during the First Century to, among other things, teach his followers how to receive the Ruach haKodesh. The Word of YHWH speaks to us through Mashiyach who provides instruction, discernment and counsel to those who turn their hearts toward YHWH and pray and seek Him. Praise and Worship unto YHWH opens our hearts to hear His Word; our prayers help renew our spiritual lives each day so the Word of YHWH can become part of us while we become part of Him.

All the forefathers and prophets of YHWH prayed "without ceasing" through an ongoing dialogue within their spirits. But at special times the Word of YHWH appeared to them, or He spoke through one of His prophets to provide specific instruction. It is incumbent upon each soul to prepare their own hearts to hear from heaven; there are plenty of examples of formal and public prayer throughout Scripture to learn from. The prophet Daniel, for instance, prayed three times daily. He would face Jerusalem while he prayed, which shouldn't be of any surprise for those who know that Mashiyach is returning to Jerusalem. While Daniel prayed facing Jerusalem, he was clearly showing his allegiance to YHWH's government and to Tsiyon, which is both earthly and heavenly. The Messenger of YHWH called Daniel "greatly beloved" of YHWH and, of course, Daniel was afforded enormous insights into Mashiyach's coming.

Rav Shaul teaches about being "ambassadors for the Mashiyach" and he goes on to say: "...it is as if Elohim was pleading you by us. In behalf of the Mashiyach" (2 Corinthians 5:20). In other words, it is not flesh and blood that reveals Y'shua as Mashiyach but the Spirit of YHWH. The Word of YHWH and the Spirit of YHWH are also the Spirit of Mashiyach; they are descriptive names for the Arm of YHWH revealed. Whether one feels more acquainted with Mashiyach or the Spirit of YHWH, the point is that these are One. When Y'shua came to Earth in the flesh we were able to look upon him with our eyes and hear him speak as he revealed the Spirit of YHWH. Y'shua teaches: "But when the Redeemer comes, He Whom I will send to you from the presence of my Father, the Spirit of Truth, He Who proceeds from the presence of my Father will witness concerning me" (Yochanan 15:26). Notice that "the Redeemer" is also "the Spirit of Truth" – This is referring to the Ruach haKodesh which witnesses on behalf of Mashiyach; and Mashiyach witnesses on behalf of the Ruach haKodesh because they are one. Therefore, when prayer is made in the Name of Mashiyach Y'shua it is not so much that we are reminded of the flesh and blood of Y'shua who once walked on the Earth, but the Spirit of Mashiyach and the Word of YHWH who indwells His people.

In the last few minutes of his life Stephen cried out; "Behold, I see heaven opened and the Son of man standing at the right hand of Elohim" (Acts 7:56). Stephen and King David both saw Mashiyach and the Right Hand of YHWH (Psalm 110:1-5); but then Stephen who was full of the Ruach haKodesh, prayed: “Our Master Y’shua receive my spirit.” He certainly wasn’t praying to the flesh and blood of Y’shua as this would have been idolatry; rather, he prayed to YHWH who is revealed in Mashiyach. If we study Psalm 110:5 from ancient texts we read: “YHWH at thy right hand”; therefore, the revelation of YHWH who is ein sof (without end) is revealed to mankind in Mashiyach in such a way that mankind can have a relationship with YHWH through the Ruach haKodesh and through Mashiyach.

“And in that day you will not ask me anything. Amen, amen I say to you that everything that you ask of my Father in my name, He will give it to you!” (John 16:23) Y’shua did not come as a substitute to replace the Father YHWH; rather, he affirms the original Faith of Awraham and all the forefathers according to the Word of YHWH as given in Torah and the Prophets. We have been directed by Mashiyach to ask YHWH in the name of Y’shua, which addresses not only the essential element of Faith in Mashiyach but the Nature of the Father YHWH who is outside of time. As we approach YHWH in the name of Y’shua, we accept the redemption YHWH provides through Mashiyach, but we don’t pray to Y’shua because this is not what he himself advocated.

In Romans 7:14 Rav Shaul teaches that the “Torah is Spiritual” – it is the unceasing prayer within every follower of Mashiyach that speaks to us and guides us and shows us the Way of Mashiyach. Prayer is a dialogue, which means we must hear from YHWH; but in the Spiritual world mankind “hears” not with his ears alone or even his spirit, but through obedience to YHWH’s Commandments. Y’shua said... “The first of all the Commandments is “Hear O Israel. Master YHWH our Elohim is one” (Mark 12:29). Simply hearing this Commandment audibly in no way satisfies the requirement; in reality the spirit of man must be conformed to the spirit of YHWH. When this Commandment lives within us then we have entered into the Word of YHWH which is Mashiyach. Hear O Israel refers to the Israel of Elohim, those who are alive according to the spirit of YHWH. Master YHWH our Elohim is one refers to the undivided authority and government of YHWH Who is given total authority to direct our lives and each step along our paths.

Prayer is life and connection with YHWH and His Mashiyach, which is why liturgy and the use of a Siddur (prayer book) are very helpful to nurture a dialogue with heaven. Most of the prayers in the Siddur are based on the Word of YHWH; they are simply arranged in a very specific way to approach YHWH with the great awe and reverence that is due to His Great Name. Meditation and study of Torah are very elevated forms of prayer and worship. As we study the Word of YHWH our spirits increase as if to say, “Hineni, here I am Father, teach me Your will.” May our prayers be like David who prayed, “Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy Torah” (Psalm 119:18).

Priesthood

Many people look to Pastors, Priests or Rabbis to fulfill a “priesthood role” in their lives, these same leaders trust in those who mentored, ordained and gave them their credentials to perform their duties. Mentors and teachers are very essential, but when it comes to knowing YHWH and His Mashiyach each one of us is required to seek YHWH personally. But yet most people are a lot like the Israelites who said to Moshe: “You speak with us, and we will hear: but let not Elohim speak with us, lest we die. And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for Elohim is come to prove you, and that His fear may be before your faces, that you sin not” (Exodus 20:20).

YHWH created us in His Image; we are each unique in spirit, soul and physical appearance because we’ve each been endowed with a portion of Elohim that makes us unique. Every individual also has a specific unique expression of Faith that reveals aspects of the Kingdom of Elohim to the rest of the world. Each individual has an inherent responsibility to YHWH and to each other, and each of us is uniquely judged according to what we’ve been given. While there is one Torah, one Mashiyach, one Covenant and one set of Terms and Conditions to the Covenant, we each express our love, devotion and loyalty to YHWH individually. Therefore, it is extremely foolish to put all one's trust in the relationship that others (a priesthood) have with YHWH, instead of developing a personal relationship with YHWH as individuals. It is therefore a fallen and reprobate priesthood that makes people dependent upon itself, rather than upon YHWH.

Each person's gifts, offerings and prayers to YHWH are unique; they materialize through unique life experiences and personal identity to bring Glory unto YHWH. The problem is, religion has the propensity to institutionalize, categorize and restrict unique expressions of revelation and worship according to the hierarchy or status quo, simply because "the hierarchy" feels that it is sustained through its own "authority" over the souls of others.

When the Israelites were offered a theocracy and the ability to live according to a Heavenly Government, they refused because they wanted a king in order to be like other nations. Yet from Genesis to Revelation the Scriptures indicate that YHWH's desire is for each soul to surrender to His Authority rather than to focus on an earthly priesthood. Every soul who acts in the capacity of a "priest" or "minister" is required to be accountable to both YHWH and His people, but this is often not the case. In most cases hierarchies are only accountable to themselves and the authority of their religious traditions. The oral law (Talmud) is a fundamental example of religious efforts to distill spiritual things according to institutionalized authority. The problem, of course, is that if the sage (wise one) was himself off the mark or his perceptions misunderstood to even a slight degree, then each generation of followers would obviously go farther and farther away from the perfection of Mashiyach.

"And you have made them kings and priests to our Elohim; and they reign on the earth" (Revelation 5:10). YHWH has revealed the destiny of those who live according to His Ways and, although it is a reality filled with wonder and beauty, it is also a formidable challenge to be Set Apart unto YHWH. "For who has known the mind of MASTER YHWH, that he should instruct him? But we have the mind of Mashiyach" (1 Corinthians 2:16). Each individual who intends on living in the World to Come must enter into the mind of Mashiyach; this is not something that can be done by other people for us.

"Whoever therefore is in the Mashiyach, is a new creature: old things have passed away; And all things are made new, by Elohim; who has reconciled us to himself by the Mashiyach, and has given to us the ministry of reconciliation" (2 Corinthians 5:17, 18). Every individual in Mashiyach is called to become a servant (minister) of reconciliation, to the capacity that each one is called. Therefore, each must grow in Mashiyach to be equipped to help himself and future generations enter into the Kingdom of Elohim.

"But this is the covenant which I will give to the family of the house of Israel after those days, says Master YHWH: I will put my Torah in their minds and inscribe it on their hearts; and I will be to them a Elohim, and they shall be to me a people" (Hebrews 8:10). This is the Messianic Covenant promise that each one who enters into Mashiyach is called to experience; therefore, it is a tragedy to sit under any form of "priesthood" that resists the Set Apart work of the Ruach haKodesh that writes Torah upon the mind and heart.

If we examine both the method and lineage of the Melchizedek and Levitical priesthoods they both clearly point to Mashiyach. Both priestly lineages are reflected in Torah and illustrated in Bible prophecy. Melchizedek received tithes from Awraham, and therefore Awraham's descendants who became Levites also tithed to the original priesthood line from Salem, a.k.a. Jerusalem. This is also why Y'shua as Mashiyach, is a priest forever after Melchizedek.

Aramaic terms used in the Epistle to Hebrews exclusively reveal a priesthood that is not descended from Aaron's family line. Both priesthoods point squarely to Mashiyach; he is the Great High Priest who by his sufferings brought his followers back to the true Torah and brings glory to Father YHWH as Mashiyach ben Yoseph, the "first priesthood." During the End Days Mashiyach will appear as Mashiyach ben David, the "second priesthood" (Isaiah 66:1-24, Hebrews 13:8, Revelation 22:14). As the revelation and advancement in YHWH's priesthood unfolds, there is also the expectation of advancement within human potential, but this dynamic progression within human potential will ultimately be resisted by the status quo religions which have engraved their institutional theologies in stone. The "old time religion" cannot change for fear of being shown as the false religion that it truly is.

Therefore Mashiach promises: "...when the Spirit of Truth comes, He will guide you in all truth. For He will not speak from Himself but He will speak everything that He hears. And future things He will make known to you. And He will glorify me because He will take of my own and show it to you" (Yochanan 16:13, 14).

"And these things I have written to you on account of those who seduce you. And you also, if the anointing which you have received from him remains in you, you need not that any one should teach you; but as that anointing is from Elohim, it teaches you all things; and it is true, and no falsehood is in it. And as it has taught you, remain you in Him. And now, my children, remain you in him; that so, when he shall be manifested, we may not be ashamed before Him, but may have an open countenance at His coming. If you know that he is righteous, you also know that whoever does righteousness is from Him" (1 Yochanan 2:26-29).

Rabbinical Authority and Torah

When Rav Shaul discusses "being without the Torah" he clarifies that he is "not without the Torah of Elohim, but subject to the Torah of Mashiach." Shaul rejected rabbinical interpretations of Torah and extra unscriptural "fences" around Torah that Y'shua didn't endorse. He has, by being "subject" to Mashiach, transferred his allegiance from the Rabbis he trained under to Y'shua as final arbiter. If Y'shua and the Rabbis agreed, which they often did, then there was no problem. But if they disagreed, Y'shua's interpretation always overruled. This was no small admission at the time and very clearly brought Netzarim Jews into major conflicts with mainstream religion.

The idea that even one Rabbi could outdo all others was revolutionary, as the Talmud records the opposite scenario: "My son! Be careful concerning rabbinical decrees even more than the Torah...the Torah contains prohibitions...But anyone who violates a rabbinic decree is worthy of death," (Babylonian Talmud, Eruvin, 21b). In another place, Rambam's Introduction to the Mishnah, we read: "If there are 1000 prophets, all of them of the stature of Elijah and Elisha, giving a certain interpretation, and 1001 rabbis giving the opposite interpretation, you shall incline after the majority and the instruction according to the 1001 rabbis, not according to the 1000 prophets...Elohim did not permit us to learn from the prophets, only from the rabbis who are men of logic and reason." So we see that even if Y'shua was thought of as a prophet, rabbinic rules would still discount him and uphold traditions over what he taught. As the first and more ancient quote shows, to be in disagreement with rabbinical decrees was and is a dangerous business!

Because Torah was originally written in Hebrew and preserved within Jewish culture, many Jews and Gentiles assume the Jewish Rabbinate is subject to YHWH's Torah. Rabbis claim that if only one letter were to be removed from Torah, the Universe would cease to exist. Although this may sound very poetic, most Jews know nothing of "the Eighteen Emendations" of the Sopherim, or the "Severin" readings which show how the Rabbinate made substantial changes to the Torah to suit their traditions; not to mention the 134 places where scribes removed the Name of YHWH and installed the title Adonai. Torah has, in fact, suffered drastic intervention at the hand of the rabbinical world, which is functionally very similar to Vatican propaganda which also claims to have the only true interpretation of Scripture and god-given authority over people's souls.

The Severin readings showed up in Torah Scrolls that Titus pillaged from the Temple in Jerusalem (see Ginsburg's Introduction to the Hebrew Bible pp. 409-420). In many of the 134 places where the “Sages” of old altered the Hebrew scrolls by removing the Name of YHWH, like in Psalm 110:5, these verses contain important revelation about Mashiyach. The rabbinical world does not accept Y’shua fulfilling the office of Mashiyach ben Yoseph, so they changed the Tanakh to suit their tradition and help reinforce their rejection of Y’shua as haMashiyach. But in so doing they also obfuscated the revelation of the nature of Mashiyach and brought curses upon themselves according to Deuteronomy 4:2.

Rabbinical authority is not YHWH’s authority, but “rabbinical decrees” are based on traditions that seem right in the eyes of the “Sages” based on finite human logic and reason. However, they who are wise in their own eyes have and are breeding hatred toward Y’shua and all Jews who follow him. Within the Ketuvim (writings of the) Netzarim are many examples demonstrating how Mashiyach and his talmidim exposed the Rabbinite for sequestering the written Torah and then elevating Oral Torah (Tradition) as their own “in-house” authority, which the Rabbinite has collectively given itself absolute dominance. In Matthew 3:7-9 Y’shua states that religious Jews claim physical lineage to Abraham but this does not in itself provide right of passage into the Malchut (Kingdom) Elohim. Jew or not, every soul who will enter into Life and the Olam Haba (World to Come) must bear fruits of repentance according to Torah and have the Ruach haKodesh (Set Apart Spirit) operating in their lives. Mashiyach is the only connection between this world and the world to come; without Mashiyach Torah is simply words on a scroll or a dead letter or religious tradition. Mashiyach has always been the spiritual life within Torah. It is the Ruach haKodesh that writes Torah upon the heart whereas religion entices followers to love Torah from within a man-made religious authority. These are two very different worlds.

Certainly not all rabbinical tradition is in conflict with Torah; however, when it comes to Mashiyach, rabbinical tradition has superimposed itself as a “mashiyach” over the Jewish people. Rabbinical Judaism is sustained under carnal Government authorities that dole out salaries to Rabbis (in Israel), provide tax exemptions and kosher food taxes to finance rabbinical institutions. Regardless as to which “political party” wins the election, the government and “justice system” of the people retains higher authority than the rabbinical courts. The “secular” governments sponsor rabbinical Judaism and Christianity and Islam and New Age and occultism, and the sodomy agenda, and every pagan and anti-Torah, anti-Mashiyach institution that operates under a tax exempt status. Certainly Rabbis and other religious leaders want their followers to believe that they somehow “co-govern” with secular government, but the fact is that when the government “of the people” passes legislation that overrules the Word of YHWH, then rabbinical authority is helpless. Whereas Mashiyach is his own government and he judges both religious and secular “government” with the same set of rules....

Christians have also succumbed to rabbinical authority on numerous levels. Most Christians excuse themselves from observing Torah by claiming it is for “the Jews.” Most Christians believe that Shabbat is for Jews but not necessary for Gentiles, which is actually a very rabbinical way of thinking. Christians who explore Judaism but choose not to convert are told they are Noahides. It is rabbinical invention that non-Jews are supposedly free from observing Torah, simply because they weren’t born Jewish. However, YHWH clearly instructs that the “ger” is very much required to observe what YHWH commanded for all of Israel (Exodus 12:19, 48, 49; 20:10; 22:21; 23:9; 23:12 etc.).

The Hebrew word ger is translated as stranger, sojourner, temporary resident, alien; toshav also refers to non-Israelite souls and is also translated sojourner, stranger and foreigner, and these non-Israelites were and are definitely required to observe Torah and be part of the commonwealth of Israel. Awraham was a ger; he and his 318 trained servants were all ger who observed Torah long before there was such a thing as a Rabbinite. There are many Torah-based Commandments that Awraham and all his community observed before Sinai as ger; they were neither called Jews nor Israelites but Hebrews who crossed over from paganism into the Kingdom of Elohim. Torah also states that an erev rav (mixed multitude) of souls went out of Egypt with the Israelites and, of course, they were required to observe all the Torah along with bloodline Israelites.

The Word of YHWH clearly teaches that drawing non-Israelites away from Torah is a false premise. Torah teaches that the stranger is to be refreshed on Shabbat along with the Jewish people: “Six days you shall do your work, and on the seventh day you shall rest: that your ox and your donkey may rest, and the son of your handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed” (Exodus 23:12). (Refreshed = naphash or “take a breather”.) Malachi 3:5 states; “And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the Ger (stranger) from his right, and fear not Me, says YHWH of Hosts.” It is the right of every ger to be treated with honor and respect, and it is evil to keep Torah away from Gentiles. Torah and Mashiyach are synonymous and universal and, truth be told, most Christians are already observing more than 60 percent of Torah.

Rabbinical authorities invented their own “Noachide Laws” for Gentiles, which serves to bring Gentiles under rabbinical authority and prohibits them from observing Torah. In many cases Christians were observing Torah, eating kosher foods and beginning to observe Shabbat until they met a local Rabbi who persuaded them that Torah is for Jews only. However, both the Shabbat and dietary laws (clean foods) were clearly observed by Noah and no Rabbi has the authority to superimpose his own authority over Gentiles. Neither should Gentiles be foolish enough to accept any man who speaks against both Torah and Mashiyach. Torah requires that YHWH’s people “love the ger” (Lev. 19:34; Deut. 10:19; Isaiah 56:6) and bring universal Justice to the world, rather than exclude people from Torah simply because they are not Jewish by birth or because they choose not to come under the authority of a rabbinical regime.

The majority of souls who refer to themselves as Noachides are ex-Christians who have abandoned the Harlot Church systems and Torah directives which are clearly established for the Ger (sojourner) among the Jewish people. However, YHWH also has something to say about this: “Cursed be he that perverts the judgment of the ger (sojourner), fatherless, and widow. And all the people shall say, Amen” (Deuteronomy 27:19). Rabbinical Judaism perverts the judgment of the Ger (sojourner) by turning them away from Torah. The basis of all judgment is righteousness and the foundation of all righteousness is Torah. By withholding Torah from the goy or ger, rabbinical Judaism stands between YHWH’s Creation and the Almighty YHWH who breathes life into the souls of every human being. The reality is that Gentiles who are drawn to Torah and who desire to live among the Jewish people are being drawn by the Ruach haKodesh of YHWH, which is very much the work of Mashiyach. The prophet Isaiah clearly foretold that those who are not Jewish by birth would keep Shabbat and enter into covenant with YHWH and be given a name better than the natural born Israelite sons and daughters. “Neither let the son of the nekar (stranger) that has joined himself to YHWH, speak, saying, YHWH has utterly separated me from his people” (Isaiah 56:3).

In Isaiah 56 we see a clear connection between these strangers and the strangers whom Awraham circumcised to enter into Covenant with YHWH. Make no mistake about it, these are people from all the nations of the world; Awraham’s very name and purpose was given by YHWH as a “father of nations.” “And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any nekar (stranger), which is not of thy seed” (Genesis 17:12). Awraham is a picture of Mashiyach; he represents the universal Kingdom of Elohim being offered unto all the nations of the Earth, and those who teach differently are simply workers of iniquity. Torah defines the nekar (strange/stranger) very clearly, “Then Jacob said unto his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the nekar (strange) gods that are among you, and be clean, and change your garments” (Genesis 35:2). Is this not about as “strange” to YHWH as it gets? In other words, any Gentile or pagan has as much right to the Kingdom of Elohim as those who were Awraham’s seed by birth, provided they repent and enter into Covenant with YHWH.

“And YHWH said unto Moses and Aaron, This is the ordinance of the passover: There shall no nekar (stranger) eat thereof: But every man’s servant that is bought for money, when you have circumcised him, then shall he eat thereof” (Exodus 12:43, 44). The Egyptians were nekar (strangers) to YHWH while in their own land of Egypt but they were also invited to celebrate Pesach, provided they were circumcised. Therefore, it is a rabbinical religious lie that the laws of the ger only apply to those who live in Israel. Here we see nekar (strangers) who were previously devil worshippers who entered into the commonwealth of Israel and the Kingdom of Elohim by YHWH’s own invitation! The fact of the matter is, just because rabbinical Jews have made Gentiles strangers to Torah, it certainly doesn’t mean that YHWH judges Gentiles as strangers to Himself! We see very clear evidence in Mashiyach that YHWH is sorely displeased with Jews who prohibit Jews or Gentiles from entering into the Kingdom. Let’s consider the punishment upon Jews who prefer to follow the traditions of men:

“And YHWH said unto Moshe, Behold, you shall sleep with your fathers; and this people will rise up, and go a whoring after the gods of the nekar (strangers) of the land, whither they go to be among them, and will forsake me, and break my covenant which I have made with them. Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall them; so that they will say in that day, Are not these evils come upon us, because our Elohim is not among us?” (Deuteronomy 31:16, 17) The fact of the matter is that Israel turned its back on YHWH a long time ago; only a very small remnant remained faithful. In Eliyahu’s days there were only 7,000 men of all of Israel who had not bowed to Baal. In Y’shua’s days Israel was at one of its lowest and darkest times in history. Synagogues were rife with assimilation into sun and baal worship, the Temple was polluted with money mongers (“businessmen”) and politicians who were using “Torah” to pervert justice and abuse the poor. Rabbinical Judaism had many factions striving for dominant positions of political power. Y’shua summed up these rabbinical “authorities” in a few sentences:

“Woe to you scribes and Pharisees! Hypocrites! For you shut up the Kingdom of Heaven before the sons of men. For you are not entering yourselves, and those who would enter you do not allow to enter. Woe to you scribes and Pharisees! Hypocrites! For you consume the houses of widows, and that for a pretense you lengthen your prayers. Because this you will receive a greater judgment. Woe to you scribes and Pharisees. Hypocrites! For you traverse sea and land that you might make one proselyte, and when he has become one, you make him double the son of Gehenna that you are yourselves” (Matthew 23:13-15). It wasn’t only that the Pharisees were shutting up the Kingdom of Heaven by turning Jews away from Y’shua; they had been shutting up the Kingdom of Heaven long before Y’shua arrived on the scene. Rather than helping the Jewish people find their way into the Kingdom of Elohim, they exalted their own false “Talmudic” authority which made void Torah in favor of their traditions; but they also turned the ger (sojourner) and nekar (stranger) away from YHWH!

Ofentimes Gentile converts to Judaism are more zealous for Torah than natural born Jews. Had rabbinical Judaism respected that the inner desire to observe Torah is the work of Mashiyach and made Torah attractive to Gentiles, there would not be the massive Jewish assimilation into worldliness, paganism and materialism. The world would now comprehend Mashiyach through the wisdom of Torah. Jewish identity and Torah observance would not be an inbred thing among Jews, but the nations would relate to Jews through their own roles within the Kingdom of Elohim. But of course Jewish identity has become the idol of most religious Jews who elevate and exalt the Jewish soul as G-d incarnate, and the vast majority of Gentiles believe that the Kingdom of Elohim has been stripped from the Jewish people because of their rebellion against Mashiyach.

“And Moshe said unto him, Enviest thou for my sake? Would Elohim that all YHWH’s people were prophets, and that YHWH would put His Spirit upon them!” (B’midbar/Numbers 11:29) YHWH desires all Jews to have a personal and intimate relationship with Him. However, rabbinical authority prefers that Jews have a relationship with their Talmud and Jewish Tradition according to the rabbinate. Jews are taught to repeat traditional prayers day after day, fashioned by Sages; within Jewish religious circles are established peer groups who validate those who do the tradition and chasten those who don't.

Not all prayer is meritorious or beneficial. When prayer becomes an incantation or a mechanical rote exercise without kavanah (righteous/spiritual intent of the heart) it is as white noise and this Y'shua also taught:

"And whenever you pray you should not be like the hypocrites that love to stand in the assemblies and on the corners of the marketplaces to pray that they be visible to the sons of men. And truly I say to you that they have received their reward. But when you pray enter your inner room and close your door and pray to your Father who is in secret and your Father who sees in secret He will reward you in open. And when you pray, you should not be chatters like the pagans, for they hope that by many words they will be heard. Therefore, do not imitate them for your Father knows what need you have before you ask Him" (Matthew 6:5-8).

Prayer is meant to be two-sided communication, but rabbinical authority elevates traditional canned prayers into deep mystical Gnostic absurdity, suggesting that the sound brings mystical power, which is simply a form of sorcery.

Without the intent of the heart, repetition of canned prayers day after day is little more than religious "self stimulation," but while traditional prayer lives a glorious life among the religious, spontaneous spiritual dialogue with heaven lives a wretched existence. A personal and meaningful relationship with YHWH is not promoted by rabbinical authorities because of the inevitability that a personal relationship with YHWH will reveal the humanistic, relativistic and materialistic state of the rabbinical hierarchy.

Observant Jews have succumbed to the fear of rabbinical tradition, which dictates how to pray, how to think and how to have a relationship with tradition. The knowledge base that most Jews acquire about Mashiyach comes by way of some sort of rabbinical authority. Precious few Jews recognize the nature of the Universal Government of Mashiyach as it pertains to both Jews and Gentiles, simply because rabbinical authority has made itself Mashiyach. This is, of course, the main reason why most Jews have not understood or considered the Way of YHWH's Mashiyach.

Rabbinical authority is yet another form of humanism that is based on elements of paganism. The carrot of rabbinical Jew-daism is Jewish pride and identity which is the marketing strategy that brings many Jews under rabbinical authority. But whether a person is Jewish or not, the important question is whether one is following Truth or the traditions of men. The Rabbinate has levied extremely harsh judgment against the Mashiyachship of Y'shua for nearly 2,000 years, yet any rebukes or reproofs of rabbinical authority are often met with a self-sympathy. The Rabbis are quick to cry out "self-hating Jew" when Jews reject their rabbinical hierarchies; or when Gentiles point out the futility of the rabbinical "priesthood" they are berated as anti-Semites.

Clearly rabbinical authority in the religious world is very far-reaching; both the Christian and Muslim worlds follow through with many religious ideals that originated from rabbinical traditions rather than Torah. Rabbinical authorities have paid money to and visited the Vatican to curry favor and recognition for their authority and, of course, rabbinical authority is financed by secular governmental authority. Many social, political and religious elements prove that rabbinical authority is contrary to Torah and has not been raised up by YHWH and His Mashiyach; therefore, rabbinical hierarchy that is based in Talmud must be disqualified as not being part of the Kingdom of Elohim. Therefore, YHWH's people are called to "come out of her my people" (Rev. 18:4) and not be part of what is an essential part of the humanism of Babylon.

If any credit is due to rabbinical Judaism for maintaining Torah consciousness, then credit must also be afforded the Christo-Pagan world for maintaining Messiah consciousness. However, those who are raised up by YHWH and His Mashiyach do not seek the praise of men, but the praise of Elohim. The Kingdom of Elohim is not of this world; all who follow Mashiyach and sing the Song of Moshe (observe Torah) will find themselves caught between the two worlds of religious pride or suffering for bearing the infamy of Truth as they sanctify the Name of YHWH and His Mashiyach.

Rapture

The “rapture theory” teaches that “the saints” who are alive on the earth will miraculously fly to heaven either before, during or after a time of great tribulation on Earth. The main body of the rapture theory was invented by Ribera, a Catholic Jesuit theologian who published his work shortly after the Massacre of St. Bartholomew in 1572. The blood of that horrific Catholic inspired massacre of French Protestants was still being washed off the streets of Paris when the Jesuits presented their rapture theory, designed to take pressure off the Catholic Church system that was being fingered as the Antichrist, the Beast, and/or the Whore of Revelation. To excuse themselves from this embarrassment the Catholic Church developed a “futurist” theology that suggested they could not be the Harlot Church who sits on the Seven Hills of Rome. They began posturing that Revelation speaks of “futurist” prophecies that are not yet fulfilled. (The head of the Vatican was so delighted with his massacre in Paris that he struck a coin to commemorate it.) Ribera wrote: “None of the wicked shall understand,” yet thousands of “Bible teachers” today maintain that Ribera’s idea of a future personal Antichrist is the right interpretation, and that the Reformers’ view of the papacy as the Antichrist was wrong. From 1580 to 1830, the official teaching of the Church of Rome was that an individual personal Antichrist would appear in the future; while the Protestants held that the reign of Antichrist extended all through the Dark Ages, from the Fourth Century onward.

In the mid 1700’s Emanuel Lacunza, a Chilean Jesuit of Spanish descent wrote a book entitled, “The Coming of the Messiah in Glory and Majesty,” which launched a theory that Mashiyach was to come TWICE; once for his saints at the rapture and then again with an army of his saints. But he also wrote that the priesthood of the Catholic Church would apostatize at the coming of the Antichrist and that the Antichrist himself would take over the Roman Catholic Church and persecute Catholics. However, Lacunza also yielded to one of the main contentions of the Protestants that the Antichrist was not a man but a system or body of men animated by one spirit. Lacunza had taken the Reformer’s perspective and melded it with Rome’s but, of course, this publication was immediately put on the Vatican’s list of prohibited books – so, for whom was it written? It came with a commendation of being condemned by the Pope.

Lacunza also wrote his book under the name of “Rabbi Ben Ezra” claiming to be a learned Jew who became a Christian who was out to convert his Jewish brethren to Christianity. “Ben Ezra” became famous among Christians under the cloak of the converted Jew. Did Lacunza really expect to reach Jews by pretending to be an ex-Jewish Rabbi? No, because he was aiming at the Protestants. Lacunza was found dead on June 17th, 1801. There was no record of what caused his death, but after his death his book found its way to Oxford and Cambridge and into the library of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the official head of the Anglican Church and the people of England. In the course of time, the librarian to the Archbishop, Dr. Maitland, became smitten with the teachings of “Rabbi Ben Ezra the converted Jew,” and the ideas of Lacunza the Jesuit rose from the dead and “ministered” to Protestants everywhere.

The Beast

For most Bible students it comes as no surprise that Protestant Christians fingered the Roman Catholic Church as the Antichrist Church of Revelation; especially when the Vatican extended extreme cruelty, torture and death to independent Christian minorities who refused Catholic “conversion.” The Church of Rome continues to provide asylum for criminals and boasts extreme extravagance at the expense of the poorest of the poor while also being found to cover up/minimalize the wicked sexual perversion of Priests who've raped the most vulnerable of society: children. The Vatican, which puts its official "Christification" on images of the sun placed behind the heads of many a "saint," epitomizes the marriage of paganism with Christianity, lavishly pouring condemnation and guilt upon its adherents and then selling cash pardons for "forgiveness."

Anyone visiting or viewing photos of the Vatican has likely noticed a massive obelisk at the center of St. Peter's square, which is dedicated to sex/sun worship. The massive eight-rayed sun wheel around the obelisk is the ancient symbol of Ishtar (Easter) who was a goddess of sex. The obelisk itself is a phallic symbol (penis) that was brought to the Church from Heliopolis Egypt by the Roman Emperor Caligula. Ancient pagan civilizations believed that the fellow who sported the largest penis was sent from the gods; therefore, Protestants pointed to the Catholic erection as evidence that Catholicism is in bed with paganism.

Caligula, according to historical sources, was a man of extreme cruelty, extravagance and sexual perversion who considered himself a deity. For public meetings he dressed up as various gods and demigods, such as Hercules, Apollo, Venus or Mercury, and he demanded that both the senators and people worship him as a physical living god. Similarly, the head of the Vatican also prides himself as "Vicar Christi" (in place of Christ) and operates under the title of "Holy Father" – which is much like the spirit of Caligula and a rather wicked thing in light of Mashiyach's warning; "And do not call yourself Father for your Father is one who is in heaven" (Matthew 23:9).

The Catching Up

"And then we who survive and are alive shall be caught up together with them to the clouds to meet our Master (Y'shua) in the air; and so shall we be ever with our Master." 1 Thess. 4:17

Here Rav Shaul teaches that the first resurrection and the "catching up" will occur at the return of Mashiyach. The survivors of the great tribulation are they who "survive and are alive" which was also witnessed (2 Peter 3:10-12) at the end of what is known as Jacob's Trouble.

Mashiyach says, "Blessed are they who are meek because they will inherit the earth" (Matt. 5:5). (See also Psalm 37:11; 149:4.) Isaiah wrote: "And one cried unto another, and said, Kadosh, Kadosh, Kadosh, is YHWH of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory" (Isaiah 6:3), which was echoed by Rav Shaul: "For the earth is MASTER YHWH's, in its fullness" (1 Cor. 10:26). Certainly the Earth is headed towards catastrophe of unimaginable proportion; but regardless of what man does to destroy it, it is YHWH's property and He clearly intends to redeem every molecule of it.

"For in six days YHWH made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day: wherefore YHWH blessed the Shabbat day, and hallowed it" (Exodus 20:11). YHWH calls tov (good) all that He created; therefore, fallen man's plans to destroy the Earth will come to an end long before the Earth does – which is why Mashiyach says, "For then will be great suffering such as has not been from the beginning of the world until the present, nor will ever be again. And if those days were not shortened, not any flesh would live, but because of the chosen, those days will be shortened" (Matthew 24:21, 22).

Rav Shaul stated: "and then we who survive and are alive... shall be caught up together with them to the clouds..." (1 Thess. 4:17), indicating this event is concurrent with the first resurrection and therefore concurrent with transformation from mortal to immortality. There is nothing particularly bad with picturing oneself flying through the clouds, but how far do Christians think they need to fly to get to their travel destination? Besides "Heaven" is not up; it is "in." There is plenty of Scriptural evidence that Mashiyach will take his bride into a new dimension of time and space; he will establish his Government over all the Earth and universe for the final Millennium (Isaiah 11:6; 65:25), followed by the resurrection of the wicked. Obviously then, the 1,000 year period is not "heaven," but Mashiyach reclaiming what belongs to his Father YHWH.

Although the rapture theory has gained wide recognition and acceptance in the Christian world, the word “rapture” like the word “trinity” is not found in Scripture. It is much more important for those who follow Mashiyach to focus on donning the garments of righteousness instead of supposing they already have all their facts straight. A future rapture is nothing but a clever deception of the enemy to make Christians think they’ve “got it in the bag,” when in fact they are giving authority to the Anti-Christ Church by disobeying Mashiyach and Torah. It should also be noted that the “rapture theory” never penetrated the Church of the East; it is of Western origin.

The Promised Land

A very integral part of the Covenant YHWH made with Avraham included a “Promised Land.” Undoubtedly, there is going to be a lot of scorched earth between now and when Mashiyach returns, but YHWH isn’t nervous and Mashiyach isn’t fearful. HaSatan knows that his days are numbered; therefore, it is utterly foolish to play religious games with “the Devil.” We are told by the Prophet Isaiah that haSatan will be destroyed after he makes the Earth tremble and has shaken kingdoms and destroyed cities; but the irony is: “They that see thee (haSatan) shall narrowly look upon thee, and consider thee, saying, Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms?” (Isaiah 14:16) In other words, people will be amazed at how pathetic the chief of doom really is and they will realize the utter foolishness of even thinking that evil would triumph.

Rapture Not the Goal

The goal then is not Rapture (or religion) but Spiritual Regeneration, because the time of Ya’akov’s trouble is coming for the benefit of “the church.” Ya’akov had his name changed to Israel; Ya’akov represents Christians who are deceived and cheating themselves and others by not entering into the protection of the Kingdom of Elohim. Mashiyach Y’shua was put to death on the merits of religious tradition, but so is religion (false Christianity) putting Y’shua to “death” by turning their backs on Torah, which is Mashiyach preincarnate. The post-apostolic Western Church (inspired by haSatan) has always been at war with the true followers of Mashiyach but: “Judgment begins in the house of YHWH” (1 Peter 4:17, 18), so as the One World Government continues to rape and pillage the Earth of righteousness, one can expect even more false prophets to advertise cheap religious travel packages into the clouds. For more details on the historic background of the Rapture you may download a free brochure called “The Rapture of the Saints” at: www.netzari.org.

Rav Shaul (Apostle Paul)

Rav Shaul is often portrayed as the founder of Christianity, but in order to spin Rav Shaul into an anti-Torah Apostle, the post-apostolic church founders were left posturing him as a two faced sycophant: “Then Paul took those men, on the following day, and was purified with them; and he entered and went into the temple, manifesting to them the completion of the days of the purification, up to the presentation of the offering by each of them” (Acts 21:26). The post-apostolic church theologians claimed that Paul made a sacrifice in the Temple to win friends and influence Jews. But a decent person wouldn’t want much to do with a two-faced man pleaser who used his religion like a “politician.” Anyone who knows even the slightest bit about “sacrifice” knows that it’s not the physical action that weighs in with heaven, but kavanah; the intent of the heart. Many prayers are offered during sacrifices that are combined with personal testimony and dedication, and one would have to be an extremely dishonest two-faced person to make sacrifice in the Name of YHWH for political reasons!

In Galatians 1:14 Rav Shaul states, “And how greatly advanced I was in (Orthodox) Judaism, superior to most of my countrymen who were also my kin. And, in particular, how zealous I was with respect to the teaching of my fathers.” Rav Shaul also explains: “I am a man who is a Jew; and I was born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but was brought up in this city, at the feet of Gamliel, and instructed perfectly in the Torah of our fathers; and I was zealous for Elohim, as you also all are” (Acts 22:3). To study at the feet of Gamliel was to rub shoulders with la crème de la crème; this was the highest rabbinical discipline on earth. Rav Shaul and his fellow yeshiva bochurs (students) would have memorized all or the majority of Torah by the age of 13. Their levels of discipline and observance would be second to none. Furthermore, Rav Shaul was neither ashamed of being a Jew nor of being a Pharisee: “And, as Paul knew that a part of the people were of the Sadducees, and a part of the Pharisees, he cried out, in the assembly: “Men, my Brothers; I am a Pharisee the son of a Pharisee; and for the hope of the resurrection of the dead, I am judged” (Acts 23:6). Paul never once proclaimed to be a “Christian,” and he obviously believed that being a true Pharisee meant to follow the halakha (way to walk) of Y’shua.

Shaul knew that the religious labels people wear on the outside are not what defines the inside. Many priests and Pharisees put their faith in Y’shua for salvation, along with both poor and wealthy individuals. But the fact of the matter is that Rav Shaul was trained as an Orthodox (Pharisee) Rabbi and died as a Torah observant follower of Mashiych. The stripes, beating and perils he endured at the hands of Pharisees were a result of his winning Jews to Y’shua. Not only was he winning Jews to Mashiych, he was bringing Gentiles into a Torah observant lifestyle:

“Wherefore, Torah is Set Apart; and the commandment is set apart, and righteous, and good. Did that which is good, therefore, become death to me? May it never be! But sin, that it might be seen to be sin, perfected death in me by means of that good (Torah); that sin might the more be condemned by means of the commandment. For we know, that Torah is spiritual; but I am carnal, and sold to sin. For what I am doing, I know not: and what I would, I do not perform; but what I hate, that I do. And if I do what I would not, I testify of Torah, that it is right. And then, it is no more I who do that thing, but sin which dwells in me. For I know that in me (that is, in my flesh) good dwells not: because, to approve the good, is easy for me; but to do it, I am unable. For I do not perform the good which I would perform, but the bad which I would not perform, that I do perform. And if I do what I would not, it is not I that do it, but sin which dwells in me. I find therefore a Torah coinciding with my conscience which assents to my doing good, whereas evil is near to me. For I rejoice in the Torah of Elohim, in the inner man” (Romans 7:12-22).

On one hand Paul had anti-Mashiych Pharisees trying to snuff him out; on the other he had Gentiles coming out of sodomy, polytheism, witchcraft and all manner of paganism who were learning about Mashiych and Torah. Paul was feeling heat from both sides (because it is prohibited by Pharisees for a Jew to make Torah attractive to Gentiles); nevertheless, Paul taught that it is Spirit of Mashiych in him who is observing Torah, that Torah is Set Apart, that Torah is right, that Torah works with his conscience assenting to his doing good, and that he rejoices in the Torah of Elohim according to his spiritual man.

“But you yourselves commit wrong, and you defraud even your Brothers. Or don’t you know that the unrighteous will not inherit the Kingdom of Elohim? Make no mistake! Neither sexual sinners, nor idol-worshippers, nor adulterers, nor debauchers, nor liars with males, Nor the avaricious, nor thieves, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, will inherit the Kingdom of Elohim. And these things have been in some of you: but you are washed, and are sanctified, and made righteous, in the name of our Master Y’shua the Mashiych, and by the Spirit of our Elohim” (1 Cor. 6:8-11). Paul, who was clearly up against very high-handed rebellion against Torah, listed five out of ten Commandments for the Gentiles and warned that breaking these Commandments would keep them out of the Kingdom of Elohim. Corinth, at the time, however, had similar immorality to many Western cities that are known for prostitution, gambling, murder and all manner of criminal activity like today, and like today many Christians are expecting to get saved in their sins. Paul’s misunderstood writings quickly became the “scapegoat” that post-apostolic Christo-Pagan theologians used to present a theological model of love and grace without indwelling righteousness of the preincarnate Mashiych which is Torah, the Word of YHWH!

Paul the Theologian

Paul's letter to the Galatians is often referred to as "the Magna Carta of Christian Liberty," with the pinnacle verse being: "Therefore you stand in the liberty of the Mashiyach, liberty and not subjugation, turning from the yoke of servitude" (Galatians 5:1). The liberty of the Mashiyach means that "the Devil" cannot keep on enticing you to sin and that you no longer a slave to sin! Liberty in Mashiyach means that Mashiyach has imparted the strength (Grace) into your soul to turn from sin and toward Torah!

Christian theologians everywhere are teaching that Paul liberated Christians from observance of Torah. Those who sit on the hill of evil counsel preach a "liberty" that means Torah can be broken without consequences. The spin goes that "Jesus did it all so you don't have to", and "you can't stop sinning even if you tried." But the real Rav Shaul was a man passionate about "perfection"; he knew nothing of being "justified" in sin:

"...whom we proclaim and teach and make known to every man, in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Y'shua the Mashiyach. And for this also I toil and strive with the aid of the strength that is imparted to me" (Colossians 1:28, 29). Paul preached the Messianic continuum that originated before Gan Eden (the Garden of Eden) and visited Noach, Awraham, Israel, Dawid, Mashiyach, James, Peter and John through Paul, and is carried into the return of Y'shua Mashiyach Ben Dawid (see footnote to Revelation 3:2). This tamiym (perfect) man within those who follow Mashiyach is the goal of Mashiyach and these fruits are clearly seen in Paul's ministry:

"For our preaching among you was not in words only; but also in power and in the Ruach haKodesh and in genuine persuasion...you became imitators of us and of our Master in that you received the Word in great affliction and with the joy of the Ruach haKodesh. And you were a pattern for all the believers...For from you the Word of our Master sounded forth...in every place, your faith in Elohim is heard of; so that we have no need to say any thing concerning you. For they declare, what progress we had with you and how you turned from the worship of idols to Elohim, that you might worship the living and true Elohim while you wait for his Son from heaven, that Y'shua whom He raised from the dead who delivers us from the wrath to come" (1 Thess. 1:5-10). This beautiful portion of an eloquent love letter reveals souls turned to Elohim in worship while they wait for his Son Y'shua. "Turned" means teshuva (see "They Repented Not" in Appendix). This word is used throughout Renewed Covenant writings and was the very first word that came out of Y'shua's own mouth Matthew 4:17

Not only did Paul clearly state that these souls made teshuva but later in this letter he said: "And may the Elohim of peace sanctify you all perfectly, and keep blameless your whole spirit and your soul and your body till the coming of our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach" (1 Thess. 5:23). No "justification" here, but Elohim is "sanctifying you all"; these souls are a Kedoshim (Set Apart people) who have Torah written upon their hearts. (To get an idea what Kedoshim means, please see the parasha (Torah portion) called Kedoshim in Vayikra/Leviticus chapters 19-20). Being Set Apart means to turn from breaking YHWH's Commandments and keeping Torah. But, in this same letter, Paul declares why he was getting heat from the Pharisees:

"For you, my Brothers, became assimilated to the assemblies of Elohim in Judaea, the persons who are in Y'shua the Mashiyach in that you so suffered, even you from your own countrymen as also they from the Jews, the persons who slew our Master Y'shua the Mashiyach and persecuted their own prophets and us; and they please not Elohim and are made hostile to all men; and they forbid us to speak to the Gentiles that they may have life; to fill up their sins at all times. And wrath comes on them to the uttermost" (1 Thessalonians 2:14-16).

There is only one thing that would cause the Pharisees to go after Paul for teaching Mashiyach to the Gentiles: TORAH! The Pharisees think they sit in Moses' seat. They think they own Torah.

If Paul had been preaching against Torah it would have been no contest. But, more precisely, Paul was teaching the Torah halakha of Mashiyach Y'shua to the Gentiles, and the Pharisees were enraged! In 1 Thessalonians we see that "countrymen" (Gentiles) were also turning on Gentiles, why? Mainly because the classic Greek intellectual modernist, humanist Gentiles don't like to be told that they must also walk upright and observe Torah – and they certainly don't want to be associated with a Jewish "holy book."

Paul the Traveler

Rav Shaul's travels took him to many destinations with large Jewish populations, including Greece, which is home to the longest continuous Jewish presence in the European Diaspora, going back 2,300 years. When Jews first settled in Greece they were called Romanioes, and they preserved distinct synagogue practices. Jewish communities existed in Thessaly, Beoetia, Macedonia, Aetolia, Attica, Argos, Corinth and throughout much of the Peloponnese, and also on the islands of Euboea and Crete. There were synagogues in Philippi, Thessalonica, Veroia, Athens and Corinth, and Rav Shaul visited these areas that had strong Jewish communities for obvious reasons: he was a Jew. In Paul's day, as today, the majority of Jews turned to the religion and culture of the locals, which gave him the opportunity to reach secular Jews as well as Gentiles.

Prosperity Paul

Today all types of Christian denominations ride high on the back of their in-house versions of "Paul the Apostle" – the seminarians, the preachers, the pastors, the priests, and the "TV evangelists" who sport all manner of materialistic accoutrement known to carnal man. But these are definitely not Paul's protégés:

"And Paul hired a house, at his own cost, and resided in it two years; and there he received all that came to him" (Acts 28:30). Even into the latter part of his very dynamic and powerful ministry to the Gentiles Paul, who earned his money working as a saddle maker, was a renter (guest), shelling rent money out of his own pocket.

"...because he was of their trade, he took lodgings with them, and worked with them; for by their trade they were saddle-makers. And he spoke in the synagogue every Shabbat, and persuaded the Jews and Gentiles" (Acts 18:3, 4). Paul the mighty Apostle, a mighty evangelist to the Gentiles, had to work odd jobs to pay his expenses! Just how popular can an evangelist/apostle be who has to do the honorable thing and work with his own hands to pay his own rent?

"And you know also, Philippians, that in the beginning of the annunciation, when I left Macedonia, not one of the assemblies communicated with me in respect to receiving and giving, except you only" (Philippians 4:15). Paul was certainly not flush with finances; those who emphatically claim that they "know Paul" would never live like him. The "rich" hirelings would never give up their ego-maniac massive church buildings or their huge statues of Peter, Paul and Mary – idols that are abominations to the real Paul. No, if the religious folk really preached Paul the Pharisee who followed Mashiyach...it's very likely they wouldn't be nearly so popular after all...just like the real Paul.

Religious Leaders

*"The days of visitation are come, the days of recompense are come;
Israel shall know it: the prophet is a fool, the man of the spirit is mad, for the multitude of your iniquity, and the great hatred."* Hosea 9:7

Pastors, Prophets, Priests, Rabbis and all religious spiritual leaders fall into a separate category when it comes to YHWH's judgment. Spiritual leaders who have spoken in the Name of YHWH (or the LORD) have unique covenant responsibilities to the Almighty as "Shepherds of Israel."

They represent the Word of YHWH on this earth. The lifestyle and teaching of every leader is judged at a much higher level of accountability than those who come to them seeking the Kingdom of Elohim (see Deut. 18:20; Jer. 14; 23; 27; 29). It makes no difference which label a leader chooses, whether Christian, Jewish, Messianic, Israelite or a specific denomination; each leader by virtue of their position in the community has elected to be a voice for YHWH and His Mashiyach. Yet the vast majority of Israel's shepherds, whose religious "credentials" and "ordinations" are highly esteemed among men, have no fear of YHWH. Rather than to sanctify His Name, they prefer to wallow in the praise of men. It is these false shepherds who entice people to be comforted in their sins, and who are fearful of man and government and religious hierarchies that are anti-Mashiyach.

Religious leaders constantly reassure their congregants that they will receive special reward from heaven, and that their "belief" makes them acceptable to YHWH. They have no fear of judgment because they feel "called and chosen" by their "G-d." The people who establish and reinforce religious hierarchies are the most deadly souls on Earth when it comes to the sanctity of Truth because they sit in judgment of truth and teach that "it doesn't matter" whether you observe Torah or not and that "you don't have to" observe Torah as the Word of YHWH because "Jesus did it all" for you. Anyone who makes friendship with false religious leaders is not sanctifying the Word of YHWH. The reason YHWH gave capital punishment to false prophets was because they exercise power over people's souls to destroy them for an eternity. The pleasures of religion for a season are an abomination unto YHWH and His Mashiyach. Y'shua was neither a pacifist nor a social butterfly.

Normally, when the religious leaders are warned about being "off-the-mark," instead of delving into the Scriptures to confirm whether or not their actions line up with YHWH's Word they often become defensive and resort to vehement defense of their traditions and seminary qualifications and go on the attack against those who are upright in Mashiyach and observe Torah. These types are as skilled politicians and businessmen who "are in it" for the praise of men and the money. Most "televangelists" fall into this category; they ask, "what difference does it make" whether Christians keep YHWH's Word and His Feasts or those of pagan origin?

"Woe be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture! says YHWH. Therefore YHWH Elohim of Israel says this against the pastors that feed My people; You have scattered my flock, and driven them away, and have not visited them: behold, I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, says YHWH" (Jeremiah 23:1). Modern Christian leaders are haughty against Torah; they speak evil against the Unity of the Word of YHWH given through Moshe and Mashiyach Y'shua. They uphold religious church "fathers" who speak evil of Torah, the Jews and the original followers of Mashiyach. The Rabbis are also guilty of being haughty against Y'shua, devising cunning fables and shrewd theologies to label themselves as their own "suffering servant" of Isaiah 53. They insist that they (Jews) have suffered, they are the righteous, they are bringing righteousness to the Earth, and that "we" are the true light to the world; not Y'shua. While no one can deny that Jewish people have undergone horrendous trials at the hands of genocidal maniacs of every stripe and almost in every generation, the point is that no human is immune from sin. Furthermore, since Isaiah 53 clearly says that it was Israel's sins that caused the suffering of Mashiyach; the nation of Israel and Mashiyach cannot be one and the same. In other words, Israel cannot be stricken for Israel. Scripture clearly shows that lineage is no bulwark from the responsibility of individual righteousness:

"Howl, you shepherds, and cry; and wallow yourselves in the ashes, you principal of the flock: for the days of your slaughter and of your dispersions are accomplished; and you shall fall like a pleasant vessel. And the shepherds shall have no way to flee, nor the principal of the flock to escape. A voice of the cry of the shepherds, and a howling of the principal of the flock, shall be heard: for YHWH has spoiled their pasture. And the peaceable habitations are cut down because of the fierce anger of YHWH. He has forsaken his covert, as the lion: for their land is desolate because of the fierceness of the oppressor; and because of His fierce anger” (Jeremiah 25:34-38). The shepherds are principals of the flock who prefer to teach about “religious love” rather than YHWH’s sanctified and righteous love. They refuse to bear the infamy of truth in a fallen world and to sanctify the Word of YHWH. Preaching is often masterfully worded, calculated and emotionally packed to stimulate the senses, and the messages are intellectualized with a political spin to make people feel comfortable in sin.

“For the leaders of this people cause them to err; and they that are led of them are destroyed” (Isaiah 9:16). Rabbis, Priests and Pastors stand before pulpits all over the Earth claiming to have been ordained according to the Word of YHWH; yet they endorse anti-Mashiyach government agendas and corporate atrocities that are involved in all-out war against the Kingdom of Elohim. When the Nazis began to perpetrate evil against Jewish communities in Germany many Rabbis were preaching that Jews had nothing to fear. Jews who were choosing to flee Germany were scorned by many Rabbis who were preaching about their “rights,” peace and security. Now the world is facing a very prolonged evil humanist-relativist agenda where money, politics and power determine what is moral, and the religious leaders are again marching in step with the Beast. If it were possible even the chosen (elect) would be deceived; yet a social need lies within each soul desiring the best for everyone and to cherish community values, but when the multitudes have turned against the Kingdom of Elohim it becomes extremely difficult and painful to walk alone.

“For thus has YHWH spoken unto me, Like as the lion and the young lion roaring on his prey, when a multitude of shepherds is called forth against him, he will not be afraid of their voice, nor abase himself for the noise of them: so shall YHWH of Hosts come down to fight for mount Zion, and for the hill thereof” (Isaiah 31:4). This imagery reflects a scenario from ancient times, but the message is for today. The majority of shepherds have made an agreement with anti-Mashiyach; they are set against YHWH and His Mashiyach, but all the large congregations and institutions will not make a shred of difference on Judgment Day. Some estimate that billions of people were living on Earth while Noah was building the ark, and you can sure that many were very religious, just like today.

“All you beasts of the field, come to devour; yea, all you beasts in the forest. His watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping (dreaming, talking in their sleep), lying down, loving to slumber. Yes, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand: they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter. Come you, say they, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink; and tomorrow shall be as this day, and much more abundant” (Isaiah 56:9-12).

YHWH calls the false shepherds “beasts” because they rip His people to shreds. Notice how they “fetch wine” which represents doctrine. The “strong drink” refers to religion that opposes the Kingdom of Elohim; it is high-handed rebellion. Such a point is also made by Mashiyach Y’shua frequently. Mashiyach refers to rebellious Jews and Gentiles as dogs and pigs, respectively; only the righteous are known as sheep. The metaphor also of “new wine in old wineskins” is similarly an attack on the Pharisees who took the old wine (Torah), which Y’shua calls “sufficient” here, and then try to pour into that perfect sweetness their newer man-made traditions. The result, of course, is that the skins burst and the wine is ruined!

Notice how the false shepherds prophesy of future blessings and much more abundance coming your way. This is the prosperity gospel; richness and reward that come by exploitation of the poor, just like today in most churches. Also notice that in a literal sense this prophecy exposes how Sunday is preferred over Shabbat; “tomorrow shall be as this day”... the false shepherds changed Shabbat to the morrow Sunday as part of their “strong drink.” Neither Mashiyach nor his followers would ever have thought to “change times and laws” because that is purely the work of anti-Messiah.

“There is a voice of the howling of the shepherds; for their glory is spoiled: a voice of the roaring of young lions; for the pride of Jordan is spoiled. Thus says YHWH my Elohim; Feed the flock of the slaughter; Whose possessors slay them, and hold themselves not guilty: and they that sell them say, 'Blessed be YHWH; for I am rich: and their own shepherds pity them not' (Zechariah 11:3-5).

A popular wickedness among religious leaders is to claim that “the LORD” is blessing them with riches in the name of “Jesus”; riches, credentials, ordination, popularity and worldliness delight the carnal flesh. But the spiritual man seeks truth, justice, mercy, faith, humility, service and loyalty to YHWH and His Mashiyach. In reality every leader of YHWH is called to be a humble servant who serves, bears each one up, strengthens each one and helps others to overcome by standing along side as equals. The hierarchical religions of this world are anti-Mashiyach, even though they preach from a “Holy Bible” about Mashiyach.

“Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of YHWH; As I live, says Adonai YHWH, surely because my flock became a prey, and my flock became meat to every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search for my flock, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock; Therefore, O you shepherds, hear the word of YHWH; Thus says Adonai YHWH; Behold, I am against the shepherds; and I will require my flock at their hand, and cause them to cease from feeding the flock; neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more; for I will deliver my flock from their mouth, that they may not be meat for them” (Ezekiel 34:7-12). Religious leaders are very foolish to console themselves and their flocks that “Old Testament” prophecies don’t apply to them. They believe and teach that all these Scriptures have to do with Ancient Israel’s false leaders. In reality all these prophecies receive fulfillment in the “days of Mashiyach.” In other words, the Kingdom of Elohim has been in existence since before Adam and Eve were created; and before haSatan brought rebellion against YHWH. Therefore, every prophecy in Scripture that says, “Thus says YHWH” is part of yesterday, today and future in Mashiyach.

Y’shua said, “Beware of false prophets that come among you in the clothing of lambs, but from within are ravenous wolves. But you will know them by their fruits. Why do men pick grapes from thorns or figs from thistles?” (Matthew 7:15, 16) Y’shua was accessible, transparent, accountable and a servant, not a lord like most of the “religious” leaders of today. Y’shua respected everyone and responded with truth, often quoting the Tanakh and elevating Torah as the Living Word of YHWH. Y’shua did not hide behind credentials or the “ordination” of men; he chose to honor his Father by clarifying that he had come in his Father’s Name. Neither Y’shua nor his followers used people in order to obtain wealth, nor did they use Scripture to mine for gold. Rav Shaul served and worked with his own hands rather than to “leech” off the Body of Mashiyach. False religious leaders, however, pick grapes from thorns; they bring stimulating and entertaining worldly discussions into their congregations and meld them with their Bible teachings. In other words, they pick figs from thistles and make sin attractive to their sheep.

“Then they will deliver to afflictions and they will kill you and you will be hated by all nations because of my name. Then many will stumble and will hate one another and will betray one another. And many false prophets will arise and deceive many. And because of the growth of iniquity, the love of many will grow cold” (Matthew 24:9-12).

Religious leaders operate under the authority of worldly governments which are established and endorsed by the Beast. The false prophets deceive many because they are invited into congregations by false shepherds. While the love of many grows cold because of Torahlessness, the false religious leaders puff themselves up and do Satan’s work without bothering to check if their “teachings” line up with the Ancient Path of Mashiyach according to the original Scriptures! “For they are false apostles, crafty workers, and pretend apostles of the Mashiyach. And in this there is nothing strange. For if Satan pretends to be a Messenger of light, It is no great thing if his ministers pretend to be ministers of righteousness whose end shall be according to their works” (2 Corinthians 11:13, 14).

Many Christian leaders are very quick to vilify and label contrarians as anti-Christian, anti-Grace, anti-Jesus and anti-Church, so that they won't have to respond to the lies that emanate from the pulpits. The wolves pretend to know all about righteousness; they use loopholes and religious "solutions" in order to show that you "don't have to" walk in righteousness or be upright according to Torah. They tell you "Jesus paid it all; you don't have to do anything but 'believe'...." And in the meantime, be sure to keep those tithes coming in! In some Messianic Jewish circles leaders are "qualified" simply because they are Jewish. Messianic congregations were underwritten by Christian ministries who posture their denomination and doctrines as having authentic "Jewish roots" simply because they have "Jewish converts" who practice and teach their doctrines.

If you're from a traditional Jewish background, the Rabbis will assure you that you have very special inalienable rights in the Olam Haba (World to Come); you've already got it all in the bag; you don't need Mashiyach, just tradition. "There is a way which seems right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Proverbs 14:12).

"My beloved, do not believe all spirits; but discriminate among spirits whether they are of Elohim: for many false prophets have gone out into the world" (1 John 4:1). The Shlichim ask that we discriminate and discern spiritual matters for ourselves. We are to approach YHWH and welcome Torah (the Word of YHWH) into our hearts so that we can understand the matter according to the Will of YHWH.

Mashiyach said: "I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd lays down his life for the flock. But a hireling who is not the shepherd nor are the sheep his, when he sees a wolf coming leaves the sheep and flees. And the wolf comes and plunders and scatters the flock. Now the hireling flees because he is hired and he does not care about the flock. I am the Good Shepherd and I know those who are mine. And those who are mine know me. Just as my Father knows me and I know my Father and I lay down my life for the sake of the flock" (Yochanan 10:11-14).

Mashiyach is our Rabbi, Pastor, Priest and Shepherd. We must not look to men for what belongs solely to Mashiyach. The hierarchy in the churches and synagogues is a product of Babylon, even though men may adopt "spiritual" titles for themselves. Where two or three are gathered in the Name of YHWH according to Mashiyach, the Spirit of Mashiyach will provide the discernment of the matter if we have ears to hear. Mashiyach chooses individuals for positions of leadership by putting the Ruach haKodesh upon them, but most people choose their leaders based on the size of their fan clubs.

Renewed Covenant

"Behold, the days come, says YHWH, that I will make a renewed (chadash) covenant (brit) with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they broke, although I was an husband unto them, says YHWH: But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, says YHWH, I will put my Torah in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their Elohim, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know YHWH: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, says YHWH: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." (Jeremiah 31:31-34)

Both Aramaic "khawdata" and Hebrew "chadasha" mean to renew, make anew or to repair. Notice how chadash has been translated in: 1 Sam. 11:14; 2 Chr. 15:8; 2 Chr. 24:4, 12; Job 10:17; Psalm 51:10; 103:5; 104:30; Isaiah 61:4; and Lamentations 5:21.

- “You chadash (renew) your witnesses against me, and increase your indignation upon me; changes and war are against me.” (Job 10:17)
- “Create in me a clean heart, O Elohim; and chadash (renew) a right spirit within me.” (Psalm 51:10)
- Who satisfies your mouth with good things; so that your youth is chadash (renewed) like the eagle’s.” (Psalm 103:4)
- “Turn Thou us unto you, O YHWH, and we shall be turned; chadash (renew) our days as of old.” (Lam. 5:21)

It is impossible in the context of these verses for chadash to mean “new.” Isaiah 61:4 also uses chadash to refer to those in Mashiyach who: “...chadash (repair) the waste cities, the desolations of many generations.” The word “chadash” is so instrumental to “replacement theology” that the James Strong’s Concordance (a popular Christian resource), chose to give this term two reference numbers: renew #2318 and new #2319. Theologians have long used this term to steer “the church” away from Torah. As mentioned previously, Marcion, a post-apostolic church founder who was actually considered a heretic by the early Church, coined the terms “Old Testament” and “New Testament” suggesting, in effect, that the “old” was replaced by the “new.” Polycarp referred to him as the “firstborn of the Devil,” yet his false anti-Torah theology is still being honored by nearly every Christian on earth.

Terms and Conditions of Covenant

“This is my blood of the renewed covenant, which for the sake of many is shed for the forgiveness of sins.” Matthew 26:28

All covenants are made in faith, whether it is the Covenant YHWH made, or covenants and contracts between one another. Mashiyach gave his blood in Faith so that those who enter into the Renewed Covenant could put Faith in his Righteous offering. YHWH sees the intent of the heart of those who put Faith in His Mashiyach, and He accepts us according to Faith. As in every other Covenant or contract there is also an exchange of value. In the Renewed Covenant Mashiyach offers redemption for your life, but you must reciprocate your part of the Covenant by Faith and be obedient, just as Mashiyach himself was obedient and Faithful unto death.

“Now the promises were made to Awraham and to his seed as a covenant. He did not say seeds, as of many, but seed, as of one, that is Mashiyach. And this I say: that the covenant that was previously confirmed of Elohim in Mashiyach cannot be repudiated and (nor) the promise nullified by Torah which came four hundred and thirty years later” (Galatians 3:16, 17). Rav Shaul employed two words aymelekh and molkana, which both mean “promise”; therefore, this could be stated as “a promise on top of a promise”. An extremely important factor about the “promise” is that YHWH’s WORD is His promise! The common expression, “I give you my word” or “you have my word on this” is a similar promise of covenant, but YHWH is known for giving and keeping His Word. “For He remembered His holy davar (word/promise), and Awraham His servant” (Psalm 105:42). “And Solomon said unto Elohim...Now, O YHWH Elohim, let Your davar (word/promise) unto David my father be established” (2 Chronicles 1:8, 9).

Rav Shaul emphatically taught that the promises made to Awraham and his seed (Mashiyach) was a Covenant that could not be repudiated or nullified by Torah. Even if religious traditions teach that Torah nullifies the original promise made to Awraham in Mashiyach, we must realize that it’s impossible! Rav Shaul was even more emphatic when he declared: “Is the Torah we received against the promises of Elohim? Elohim forbid!” (Galatians 3:21) The reality is that Jewish or Christian tradition will in no way manipulate Torah or diminish the promise. Those who think they’ve got Torah, but reject Mashiyach are deceiving themselves, because the Promise came before Torah. But let’s be fair, those who use “the Promise” to manipulate or diminish Torah are equally deceived. Both rabbinical Judaism and Christianity are guilty of making void the Covenant Promise and Torah by their own traditions. The “Terms and Conditions” of Covenant apply to every soul, and they are magnified by Y'shua who came to: "magnify the Torah, and make it honorable" (Isaiah 42:21).

Here are some examples of how Y'shua magnified Torah:

- "...whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment" (Matthew 5:22).
- "...who that looks at a woman as lustfully at once has committed adultery in his heart" (Matthew 5:28).
- "...if you desire to enter into life, keep the Commandments" (Matthew 10:17).
- "Depart from me, you workers of iniquity!" (Matthew 7:23)
- "Why do you call to me, 'My Master, my Master' and the thing that I say, you do not do?" (Luke 6:46)

Y'shua and all his original followers clearly taught that the Renewed Covenant is to be written upon the heart.

"But now, Y'shua the Mashiyach has received a ministry which is better than that: as also the covenant of which he is made the Mediator is better, and is given with better promises than the former. For, if the first (covenant) had been faultless, there would have been no place for this second (one)" (Hebrews 8:6-7). Many Christians seem to willfully forget that without the first covenant, the "second one" is impossible! Rav Shaul drew from Jeremiah 31:31-34, indicating that the Renewed Covenant is a contingency triggered by, and deriving authority from, the first covenant.

Let's examine a small selection of the original Terms and Conditions of the first covenant:

Faith:

- "Know therefore that YHWH your Elohim, he is Elohim, the faithful El, which keeps covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations;" (Deut. 7:9)
- "...but the just shall live by his faith." (Hab. 2:4)
- "Open you the gates, that the righteous nation which keeps the faith may enter in." (Isaiah 26:2)

Belief:

- "And he believed in YHWH; and He counted it to him for righteousness." (Gen. 15:6)
- "...the people feared YHWH, and believed YHWH, and His servant Moses." (Ex. 14:31)
- "I come to you in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with you, and believe you forever" (Ex. 19:9)

Love:

- "And you shall love YHWH your Elohim with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your might." (Deut. 6:5)
- "...YHWH loved you, and because He would keep the oath" (Deut. 7:8)
- "He will love you, and bless you, and multiply you" (Deut. 7:13)
- "Love ye therefore the stranger: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt." (Deut. 10:19)

Friendship:

- "And YHWH spoke unto Moses face to face, as a man speaks unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11)
- "Are you not our Elohim, who drove out the inhabitants of this land before your people Israel, and gave it to the seed of Abraham your friend for ever?" (2 Chronicles 20:7)

- "But you, Israel, are my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend." (Isaiah 41:8)
- "...and there is a friend that sticks closer than a brother" (Proverbs 18:24)

Mercy:

- "...and you have magnified your mercy, which you have showed unto me in saving my life" (Gen. 19:19)
- "And showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments." (Ex. 20:6)
- "And he made the mercy seat of pure gold" (Ex. 37:6)
- "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life" (Psalm 23:6)
- "All the paths of YHWH are mercy and truth unto such as keep His covenant and His testimonies." (Psalm 25:10)
- "Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed" (Psalm 85:10)

Grace:

- "But Noah found grace in the eyes of YHWH." (Gen. 6:8)
- "YHWH passed by before him, and proclaimed, YHWH, YHWH Elohim, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin" (Ex. 34:6, 7)
- "Remove from me the way of lying: and grant me thy Torah graciously." (Psalm 119:29)
- "He will be very gracious unto you at the voice of your cry; when he shall hear it, he will answer you." (Isaiah 30:19)

Compassion:

- "...that YHWH may turn from the fierceness of his anger, and show you mercy, and have compassion upon you" (Deut. 13:17)
- "But He, being full of compassion, forgave their iniquity, and destroyed them not: certainly, many times He turned His anger away, and did not stir up all His wrath." (Psalm 78:38)
- "YHWH is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy." (Psalm 145:8)
- "Who is an Elohim like unto Thee, that pardons iniquity, and passes by the transgression of the remnant of His heritage? He retains not His anger for ever, because He delights in mercy. He will turn again, He will have compassion upon us" (Micah 7:18, 19)

Torah:

- "Because that Abraham obeyed My voice, and kept My charge, My commandments, My statutes, and My Torah." (Gen. 26:5)
- "One Torah shall be to him that is native, and unto the stranger that sojourns among you." (Ex. 12:49)
- "that YHWH'S Torah may be in your mouth" (Ex. 13:9)
- "And what nation is there so great, that has statutes and judgments so righteous as all this Torah, which I set before you this day?" (Deut. 4:8)
- "Gather the people together, men, and women, and children, and your newcomer that is within your gates, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear YHWH your Elohim, and observe to do all the words of this Torah." (Deut. 31:12)
- "...observe to do all the words of this Torah. For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life" (Deut. 32:46)
- "The Torah of YHWH is perfect, converting the soul." (Psalm 19:7)

Promise:

- “For YHWH your Elohim blesses you, as He promised you” (Deut 15:16)
- “And YHWH has avouched you this day to be His peculiar people, as He has promised you, and that you should keep all His Commandments.” (Deut. 26:18)
- “For He remembered His holy promise, and Abraham His servant.” (Psalm 105:42)

Blessing:

- “And I will bless them that bless you, and curse him that curse you: and in you shall all families of the earth be blessed.” (Genesis 12:3)
- “And in your seed shall all the nations of the earth bless themselves; because you have obeyed my voice.” (Gen. 22:18)
- “YHWH blessed the Egyptian’s house for Joseph’s sake; and the blessing of YHWH was upon all that he had” (Gen. 39:5)
- “All these are the twelve tribes of Israel: and this is it that their father spoke unto them, and blessed them; every one according to his blessing he blessed them.” (Gen. 49:28)
- “I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life,” (Deut. 30:19)
- “...for there YHWH commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.” (Psalm 133:3)
- “The blessing of YHWH, it makes rich, and He adds no sorrow with it.” (Proverbs 10:22)

Curse:

- “Blessed is he that blesses you, and cursed is he that curses you.” (Numbers 24:9)
- “Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse; A blessing, if you obey the commandments of YHWH your Elohim, which I command you this day: And a curse, if you will not obey the commandments of YHWH your Elohim.” (Deut. 11:26-28)
- “...if you will not hearken unto the voice of YHWH your Elohim, to observe to do all His Commandments and His Statutes which I command you this day; that all these curses shall come upon you, and overtake you” (Deut. 28:15)
- “As he (the wicked soul) loved cursing, so let it come unto him: as he delighted not in blessing, so let it be far from him.” (Psalm 109:7)

Sacrifice:

- “He that sacrifices unto any elohim, save unto YHWH only, he shall be utterly destroyed.” (Ex. 22:20)
- “And Samuel said, Has YHWH as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the Voice of YHWH? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry.” (1 Samuel 15:22, 23)
- “For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of Elohim more than burnt offerings.” (Hosea 6:6)
- “But cursed be the deceiver; which has in his flock a male, and vows, and sacrifices unto Adonai a corrupt thing:” (Malachi 1:14)

Blood:

- “What have you done? The voice of your brother’s blood cries unto me from the ground.” (Gen. 4:10)
- “But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall you not eat. And surely your blood of your lives will I require; at the hand of every beast will I require it, and at the hand of man; at the hand of every man’s brother will I require the life of man. Whoever sheds man’s blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of Elohim made He man.” (Gen. 9:4-6)

- "...and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you" (Exodus 12:13)
- "And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which YHWH has made with you concerning all these words." (Exodus 24:8)
- "And he shall sprinkle the blood upon it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it, and hallow it from the uncleanness of the children of Israel." (Lev. 16:19)

Covenant:

- "But with you will I establish My covenant; and you shall come into the ark" (Gen. 6:18)
- "And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between Elohim and every living creature" (Gen. 9:16)
- "YHWH made a covenant with Abram, saying, 'Unto your seed have I given this land'" (Gen. 15:18)
- "And you shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be a sign of the covenant between Me and you... and I will establish My covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him" (Gen. 17:10-21)
- "And Elohim heard their groaning, and Elohim remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob." (Ex. 2:24)
- "Now therefore, if you will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then you shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: And you shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation." (Ex. 19:5, 6)
- "Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Shabbat, to observe the Shabbat throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant." (Ex. 31:16)
- "And if you shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that you will not do all my commandments, but that you break My covenant...I will set my face against you" (Lev. 26:15-17)
- "So I turned and came down from the mount, and the mount burned with fire: and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands." (Deut. 9:15)
- "...for they have observed Your Word, and kept Your Covenant" (Deut. 33:9)
- "Israel has sinned, and they have also transgressed My Covenant which I commanded them" (Josh. 7:11)
- "I will make a renewed covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah" (Jeremiah 31:31)

Offerings:

- "And YHWH had respect unto Abel and to his offering: But unto Cain and to his offering He had not respect." (Gen. 4:4, 5)
- "And He said, Take now your son, your only son Isaac, whom you love, and get into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of...And Abraham said, My son, Elohim will provide Himself a lamb for a burnt offering...and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son." (Gen. 22:2-13)
- "Moses gave commandment...saying, 'Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary.' So the people were restrained from bringing." (Ex. 36:6, 7)
- "And you shall offer peace offerings, and shall eat there, and rejoice before YHWH your Elohim. And you shall write upon the stones all the words of this Torah very plainly." (Deut. 27:7, 8)
- "Though you offer me burnt offerings and your meat offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts. Take you away from me the noise of your songs; for I will not hear the melody of your viols. But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream. Have you offered unto me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel? But you have borne the tabernacle of your Moloch and Chiun your images” (Amos 5:22-26)

- “Will a man rob Elohim? Yet you have robbed me. But you say, Wherein have we robbed You? In tithes and offerings.” (Malachi 3:8)

Righteous:

- “And YHWH said unto Noah, Come you and all your house into the ark; for you have I seen righteous before me in this generation.” (Gen 7:1)
- “And he believed in YHWH; and He counted it to him for righteousness.” (Gen. 15:6)
- “Will You also destroy the righteous with the wicked? Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city” (Gen. 18:23, 24)
- “And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, I have sinned this time: YHWH is Righteous, and I and my people are wicked.” (Ex. 9:27)
- “Keep yourself far from a false matter; and the innocent and righteous slay not: for I will not clear (justify) the wicked. And you shall take no gift: for the gift blinds the wise, and perverts the words of the righteous.” (Ex. 23:7, 8)
- “If there be a controversy between men, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them; then they shall clear (justify) the righteous, and condemn the wicked.” (Deut 25:1)
- “You join with him that rejoices and works righteousness, those that remember You in Your ways: behold, You are angry; for we have sinned: (but) in those is eternity, and we shall be saved.” (Isaiah 64:5)
- “Your righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and Your Torah is the Truth.” (Psalm 119:142)

Truth:

- “And YHWH passed by before him, and proclaimed, YHWH, YHWH Elohim, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth,” (Ex. 34:6)
- “...who shall abide in Your tabernacle? who shall dwell in Your holy hill? He that walks uprightly, and works righteousness, and speaks the truth in his heart.” (Psalm 15:1, 2)
- “All the paths of YHWH are mercy and truth unto such as keep His Covenant and His Testimonies.” (Psalm 25:10)

Repent:

- “When you are in tribulation, and all these things are come upon you, even in the latter days, if you turn (repent) to YHWH your Elohim, and shall be obedient unto his voice;” (Deut. 4:30)
- “The Torah of YHWH is perfect, converting (repent) the soul: the testimony of YHWH is sure, making wise the simple.” (Psalm 19:7)
- “All the ends of the world shall remember and turn (repent) unto YHWH: and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee.” (Psalm 22:7)

Sin:

- “If you do well, shall you not be accepted? and if you do not well, sin crouches down at the door. And unto you shall be his desire, and you shall rule over him.” (Genesis 4:7)
- “And YHWH said, Because the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous;” (Genesis 18:20)

- “Yet now, if You will forgive their sin; and if not, blot me, I pray Thee, out of Thy book which You have written. And YHWH said unto Moshe, Whosoever has sinned against Me, him will I blot out of My book.” (Ex. 32:32, 33)
- “And if a soul sin, and commit any of these things which are forbidden to be done by the Commandments of YHWH; though he know it not, yet is he guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.” (Lev. 5:17)
- “Stand in awe, and sin not: commune with your own heart upon your bed, and be still.” (Psalm 4:4)

Forgiveness:

- “Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people according unto the greatness of Your mercy, and as You have forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.” (Num. 14:19)
- “...but You are Elohim ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and forsook them not.” (Nehemiah 9:17)
- “Bless YHWH, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgives all your iniquities; who heals all your diseases;” (Psalm 103:2, 3)

Judgment:

- “You shall not bend judgment; you shall not respect persons, neither take a gift: for a gift blinds the eyes of the wise, and perverts the words of the righteous.” (Deut. 16:19)
- “He is the Rock, His work is perfect: for all His ways are judgment: an Elohim of truth and without iniquity, just and right is He.” (Deut. 32:4)
- “For YHWH loves judgment, and forsakes not His saints; they are preserved for ever: but the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.” (Psalm 37:28)
- “Justice and judgment are the habitation of Your throne: mercy and truth shall go before Your face.” (Psalm 89:14)

Vengeance:

- “Rejoice, O you nations, with His people: for He will avenge the blood of His servants, and will render vengeance to His adversaries, and will be merciful unto His land, and to His people.” (Deut. 32:43)
- “O YHWH Elohim, to Whom vengeance belongs; O Elohim, to Whom vengeance belongs, shine forth.” (Psalm 94:1)
- “For the day of vengeance is in Mine heart, and the year of My redeemed is come.” (Isaiah 63:4)

Hope:

- “And he waited (hoped) yet other seven days; and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.” (Gen. 8:12)
- “Be of good courage, and He shall strengthen your heart, all you that hope (wait) in YHWH.” (Psalm 31:24)
- “Blessed is the man that trusts in YHWH, and whose hope is YHWH. For he shall be as a tree planted by the water...” (Jeremiah 17:7, 8)

Hundreds of verses within the first covenant provide instruction for “Love, joy, peace, kindness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control” (Galatians 5:22, 23) and “Against these there is no instruction put in place.” These elements of Covenant known as “the fruits of the Spirit” are revealed throughout the first covenant and bring confirmation of covenant within the spiritual man. Covenantees like Noah, Job, Abraham, Moses and David are covenant keepers who also demonstrated these fruits of the Spirit throughout their lives according to the “Perfection” of the Image of Elohim.

David recognized that the voice of YHWH is the Spirit of Mashiyach, which is why he stated: “YHWH at thy right hand...” (Psalm 110:5). All the forefathers and prophets of YHWH are Covenantees who entered into the First Covenant according to the Terms and Conditions given by the Spirit of Mashiyach. Peter states the obvious when he writes: “...that life (namely) about which the prophets inquired when they were prophesying of the grace which was to be given to you. And they searched for the time which the Spirit of the Mashiyach dwelling in them did show and testify when the sufferings of the Mashiyach were to occur, and his subsequent glory” (1 Peter 1:10-11). The Renewed Covenant is therefore a continuum of Faith and observance of Torah; it is a progressive revelation of not only YHWH and His Mashiyach, but a Covenant that elevates human potential to enter into the Image of Elohim and be transformed according to the spiritual man.

The Renewed Covenant is fulfilled by the Ruach haKodesh writing Torah (righteousness) upon the heart of the Covenantee and it has been established by the Covenantor (YHWH) through the shedding of Y'shua's blood and the power of Y'shua's resurrection. The Renewed Covenant is not based on any form of “human sacrifice” anymore than the martyrdom of a soul who sanctifies the Name of YHWH makes some sort of “human sacrifice.” Y'shua sanctified the Name of YHWH in life and death by his obedience to YHWH. Neither was Abraham at the akeida (binding of Isaac) about to slay his son Isaac to make atonement for his sin as a “human sacrifice.” Abraham was being tested for his obedience to YHWH, he was not asked to offer human blood for sin. Abraham's obedience clearly demonstrated that he would not withhold the life of his own son if that is what YHWH required. “To obey is better than sacrifice” (1 Samuel 15:22).

YHWH did not torture and kill His own son to establish the Renewed Covenant; it was man's religious “justice system” that put the perfection of Y'shua Mashiyach on the torture stake. If sin is condemned by means of the Commandment, how much more is it condemned by being responsible for putting to death YHWH's own likeness? Man's sin put Mashiyach on the torture stake; therefore, the Renewed Covenant upholds the Word of YHWH (Torah) which defines sin and love. “And walk in love; as the Mashiyach also has loved us and has given up himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to Elohim, for a sweet aroma.” (Ephesians 5:2).

The term and definition of “New Testament” is anti-Mashiyach; it was coined by a Christo-Pagan named Marcion who viewed Y'shua as akin to one of the Greek gods of his own culture. Marcion taught that the G-d of the Jews was an evil god of wrath, judgment and terror, but that Je-Zeus was a kind and loving god. Marcion coined the terms “Old and New Testament” to demarcate YHWH and Y'shua as two separate G-ds who were at war with each other; hence, the dualism in Christian churches that use the terms Old and New Testament to uphold replacement and dispensational theology. The consequences of the fatal anti-Torah and anti-Mashiyach deception is very far reaching; so much so, in fact, that permissiveness of Covenant breaking is commonplace throughout Christendom.

The “Renewed Covenant” was foretold when Adam and Eve broke Covenant with YHWH. YHWH forgave their sin and promised the ultimate redemption which He Himself provided through the seed of the woman (Genesis 3:15). Just as Adam and Eve are the father and mother of all living souls, so is the Renewed Covenant offered to all inhabitants of the Earth through Mashiyach Y'shua. A very clear fulfillment of Isaiah 56:1-9 is seen in Mashiyach's followers when Gentile converts observe Shabbat and permit the Ruach haKodesh to write Torah upon their hearts as one body of believers along with Jews.

Sacrifice

There are great disparities between religious perspectives of sacrifice and what YHWH's Word instructs. The word "sacrifice" is generally meant to relinquish something of value, to give something up that you would prefer to keep. But it is impossible to "appease" YHWH by offering up something of monetary value in exchange for forgiveness or atonement. The intent of the heart (motive or kavanah) is the potent "ingredient" of each and every sacrifice; not its monetary earthly value. The physical offering or sacrifice is simply a token of what is in the heart. The process of sacrifice and offering is a mechanism that helps bring restoration between two parties.

Very few people today slaughter their own animals, much less, dedicate the life of an animal to YHWH who created it and kept it healthy. We go shopping, bring food home, prepare it, cook it, pray and have a party; yet, for some strange reason Western culture gets upset about the idea of sacrificing it – thanking YHWH for the life of the animal, for recognizing that YHWH is the one who gave the animal life, for making sure that the animal was treated with compassion, and for being thankful that the Giver of Life has kept it free from disease and for creating it for our pleasure.

Biblically speaking, there is a purpose behind all sacrifices and offerings. Everything we do in this life contains elements that we can sanctify (Set Apart) unto YHWH, and food provides a fundamental example of this. We learned from Cain and Abel that certain sacrifices are acceptable to YHWH, while others are not. We discovered that it isn't only what we sacrifice, but how we sacrifice it. The most common spontaneous sacrifices were the burnt offerings in which the sacrifices went up in smoke, becoming "invisible" except for a few remaining ashes. The burnt offering (olah – "that which ascends") went up in smoke, along with the person's sins. The flesh of the animal represents the flesh of man that also becomes "invisible" and returns to dust. The invisible (spiritual) component belongs to YHWH but it is obedience, righteous conduct and Faith that brings us into harmony with Heaven.

When making a sacrifice, the person's heart and focus is upon YHWH with thankfulness and gratitude for the forgiveness of his sin, for the joy of having inner peace restored and for the opportunity to approach the Master of the Universe. The burnt offerings pointed to mankind's temporary sojourn on Earth; it was given as an acknowledgement of YHWH's presence in a person's life. The temporal physical flesh can be thought of as a dwelling place for the spirit of man (as well as the mind, will and emotions); so if and when the "flesh" is overcome with carnal baggage, it must be completely emptied or destroyed so new life can begin. The olah sacrifice points to this process; the sins of man were symbolically put on the animal and then the flesh of the animal was destroyed. This, of course, points to Mashiyach ben Yoseph, the ultimate sin bearer who died and then resurrected to bring atonement.

Voluntary sacrifices such as burnt offerings were spontaneously made by those who desired to draw near to YHWH and, as all other sacrifices, they were offered with testimony and prayer for specific purposes. Sacrifice and offerings were meant to "open the windows of heaven" so that a person would hear from YHWH and have confidence and assurance their prayers were being heard. The outward demonstration must come from a pure heart but, of course, there are also some who simply go through the outward motions while under the watch of their peers.

The Temple in Jerusalem where prayers were made and sacrifices given, belonged to everyone who gave voluntary contributions. This concept points to the fact that all souls are required to support universal justice and equality. The sacrifices and offerings illustrated the importance of reconciliation, protecting unity, seeking forgiveness and establishing and maintaining harmony between us and YHWH and one another. Torah provides instruction regarding the care of domesticated animals; several Commandments require us to exercise compassion for the lives of animals and also instruct us to be compassionate and caring for people – after all, how much more value is a human soul worth? If we can't show mercy to an animal, we most likely won't show mercy to a human, and vice versa. Animal sacrifices are not for YHWH's benefit; they are for ours (Psalm 50:7-15)! They provide a way for us to draw close to Him and open up our hearts in order to demonstrate the intent and allow us to hear His voice.

Regardless of all the posturing, all religions maintain some form of "sacrificial system." All Jewish and Christian religions expect charity and various forms of tithes and offerings from their adherents, and all modern institutions use creative ways of putting guilt and/or condemnation on people to force them to give a "sacrifice." It's not at all a matter of if, but what and how a sacrifice is made. All sacrifices are a mechanism to assist us in understanding and entering into the perfect work of Mashiyach. The fact that Rav Shaul made animal sacrifices (Acts 21:26) provides insight that sacrifices were not altogether abandoned by the Shlichim.

Torah differentiates between various sacrifices for sin, voluntary surrender, peace, gratitude, holiness, purity of life, reconciliation, atonement, thanksgiving, dedication, or consecration to YHWH and His Mashiyach. During the life of Y'shua and for some 34 years after his resurrection, his disciples were regularly, if not daily, in the temple. While teaching in the Temple, Y'shua discussed the appropriate ways of presenting sacrifices and offerings:

"If it is therefore that you offer your offering to the altar and there you should remember a certain grudge your brother holds against you leave there your offering upon the altar and go first and reconcile with your brother and then come offer your offering. Be in agreement with your adversary at Torah; while you are with him on the way, or else your adversary at Torah deliver you to the judge and the judge deliver you to the officer and you be thrown into the house of captives. And truly I say to you that you will not come out from there until you pay the last coin" (Matthew 5:23-26).

Furthermore, Y'shua never once spoke against sacrifices or the sacrificial system within Torah. Rav Shaul, as well as the Shlichim and the Prophets of YHWH, pointed out that matters of the heart were of extreme importance. Shaul said: "...and it was a symbol for that time during which oblation and sacrifices were offered that could not make perfect the conscience of him who offered them" (Hebrews 9:9). At no time in history could sacrifices be credited for a pure conscience; otherwise Cain's sacrifice would have given him a new pure heart, which was certainly not the case. Rather, sacrifices demonstrate and amplify what is already in the heart.

"And you also, as living stones, are built and become spiritual temples and Set Apart priests for the offering of Spiritual Sacrifices, acceptable before Elohim through Y'shua the Mashiyach" (1 Peter 2:5). Spiritual sacrifices in no way negate correlating physical elements of sacrifice. All authentic spiritual sacrifices have components of righteous Judgment, Justice, Mercy, Faith and Love; they are not cerebral but spiritual. They are not done in word only but in deed, and they are all to be given from a righteous and pure, Set Apart intent of the heart.

Salvation

Many religions claim rite of passage into the World to Come, and some even believe that if you say the "sinners' prayer" or follow certain "salvational doctrines" that you will be "saved." Thankfully, there was a man who posed the question to Y'shua: "Good teacher, what is good that I should do that I should have eternal life?" (Matthew 19:16) Some theologians feel this man was a misguided soul because he suggested that he had to "do" something rather than just "believe." We'll look at Y'shua's answer in a moment, but first let's find out what Keefa (Shimon Peter) was preaching, shortly after Y'shua was resurrected.

"And when they heard these things they were touched in their hearts, and they said to Shimon and to the rest of the Shlichim, 'What should we do, our brothers?' Shimon said to them, 'Repent and be immersed each of you in the name of Master YHWH-Y'shua for the forgiveness of sins, that you may receive the gift of the Ruach haKodesh. For to you was the promise, and to your children, and to all those who are far away whom Elohim will call. And with many other words he would witness to them and he would beseech them while saying, Save (yourselves) from this perverse generation.' And some of them readily received his word and believed and were immersed. And there were added in that day about three thousand souls" (Acts 2:37-41).

Notice that Keefa preached both repentance and immersion in the name of Master YHWH-Y'shua. In this verse MarYah and Y'shua appeared right next to one another; therefore, we know that it is the Spirit of YHWH in Y'shua Who ultimately provides Salvation. Notice also there is not only the required action of repentance and immersion for the forgiveness of sins; but this is done in order to receive the gift of the Ruach haKodesh (Set Apart Spirit). The Ruach haKodesh will not indwell someone who is living in rebellion. The work of the Ruach haKodesh is to write Torah in the inward parts, which is confirmed by the appearance of "fruits" of the Spirit. In other words, each one of us must prepare a place in our hearts to welcome the Ruach haKodesh.

Repentance is an extremely important concept to understand and apply to our lives if we are planning to enter into eternal life. Repentance means "turn to YHWH," which also means one must turn from sin and keep the Commandments. Getting back to the question about eternal life, here's Y'shua's answer: "Now if you desire to enter into life, keep the Commandments" (Matthew 19:17). The answer applies to everyone who has ever drawn a breath. But the fellow wanted a quick fix and asked, "Which ones?" So Y'shua began listing Commandments from Torah (including the Ten Commandments in Exodus 20) and the fellow replied, "All these things I have obeyed them from my youth. What do I lack?" Now, how many have actually kept all the Ten Commandments from their youth, in their original context? Imagine being there yourself; could you respond as this fellow did? Y'shua is clearly teaching that the first prerequisite for salvation is keeping the Commandments!

In Mark 12:29-31 Mashiyach Y'shua teaches: "The first of all the Commandments is "Hear O Israel. Master YHWH our Elohim is one. And you should love Master YHWH your Elohim with all of your heart, and with all of your soul, and with all of your mind, and with all of your strength." This is the first Commandment. And the second that is like it is that "you should love your neighbor as yourself." There is no other Commandment greater than these." Mashiyach taught the central theme of Torah (Deuteronomy 6:4, 5; Leviticus 19:18); that all of Torah revolves around love toward YHWH and our fellow man. This Commandment is so primary that Rabbis have suggested that all the rest of Torah is "commentary" – that the rest of Torah provides the details about how to love YHWH and our fellow man. Clearly everyone must keep these two greatest Commandments for salvation; but we must keep them according to the Word of YHWH, not the traditions of men!

Yochanan (John) explains how we are to keep these great Commandments: "And by this we shall be sensible that we know him, if we keep his Commandments. For he that says I know him, and does not keep his Commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him. But he that keeps his Word, in him is the Love of Elohim truly completed: for by this we know that we are in him. He that says I am in him is bound to walk according to his halakha. My beloved, I write no new commandment to you, but the old Commandment which you had from the beginning; and the old Commandment is the Word which you have heard" (1 Yochanan 2:3-7). Insisting that we "love YHWH" or that we "know Him" can be two very different things. Notice that those who say they "know Him" and don't keep his Commandments are liars! How much more then are they liars who say they "love Him" and yet don't bother to keep His Commandments? Yochanan says he that "keeps his Word" has the Love of Elohim truly completed, and this is how we know that we are in him! Make no mistake, this is the same WORD that Dawid spoke when he declared, "My tongue shall speak of Your Word: for all Your Commandments are righteousness." Psalm 119:172

Rav Shaul (Paul) preached the same message; he emphasized, "circumcision is nothing, neither is uncircumcision; but the keeping of Elohim's commands [is what counts!]" (1 Corinthians 7:19).

Shaul also taught that it's very easy to be seduced by sin, but through the Commandments we are able to recognize what sin is: "For sin, by the occasion which it found by means of the Commandment, seduced me and thereby slew me. Wherefore, Torah is Set Apart; and the Commandment is Set Apart, and righteous, and good" (Romans 7:11, 12).

As we approach the end of the Scriptures there is a beautiful promise for all who expect eternal life: "Blessed are they who do His (YHWH's) Commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life and may enter through the gates into the city" (Revelation 22:14). Is it any surprise that the Commandments of YHWH are tied together with the Tree of Life? At the end of Revelation we return to Gan Eden before original sin, where we see that the Tree of Life is the eternal Kingdom of Elohim. So, if you've heard religious people teach that we "don't have to keep the Commandments" of YHWH for salvation, then ask yourself this: Do those who teach that we don't have to keep the Commandments keep the Commandments themselves? Probably not – because they want you to join with them in what they do....

Most insist they "don't have to keep the Commandments" because "Jesus Christ" kept them perfectly for them. Herein is the "Mystery of Iniquity" revealed (2 Thessalonians 2:3-15). The lawless one, also known as anti-Mashiyach, heads the charge against keeping the Commandments in the name of the false Mashiyach. We can therefore clearly determine that this is the "other Jesus" Paul spoke of, who has inspired many souls into disobedience. We must be very careful about any false parallel, since Rav Shaul says that if anyone else, including a heavenly messenger, teaches a Good News other than the original one, that person is cursed! (Galatians 1:9-10).

Those who don't obey the Commandments don't want you obeying them either. Some "Christians" even teach that if you keep the Commandments you will go to hell because you've fallen from "Grace." The truth is that Grace is the gift of the Ruach haKodesh that empowers us to keep the Commandments of YHWH by Faith! Nearly everyone who keeps the Commandments of YHWH and observes Torah according to Mashiyach will testify that it is a miracle to be spiritually sustained and keep the Commandments in a world of people who've come to hate them for doing so.

In order to truly please our Creator, we must place our trust in Mashiyach Y'shua who teaches: "if you desire to enter into life, keep the Commandments" (Matthew 19:17). On this same theme Rav Shaul teaches; "When we were dead in our sins, (Elohim) gave us life with the Mashiyach and rescued us by His grace" (Ephesians 2:5). To be no longer "dead in our sins" means that we've stopped breaking the Commandments. The word rescued here literally means "saved." A variant of this word is what we call "Savior" in English. In Aramaic the concept of a savior is literally: "giver of life."

Shabbat

"For the Master of the Shabbat<sup>66</sup> is the Son of man." Matthew 12:8

What makes Shabbat so very special is that Y'shua Mashiyach is Master of Shabbat. Those who celebrate the Shabbat in Mashiyach recognize that Mashiyach is the eternal connection and the reason for Shabbat. Like anyone who hosts a celebration, they have purpose and reason for it that is conveyed to those who attend; and Shabbat, of course, is the weekly event of Mashiyach. Mashiyach was, is and forever will be the reason for Shabbat and this has been evident since Shabbat was given at the Creation of the World. Shabbat is the completion of the week where the spiritual man rests and rejuvenates his spirit, soul and body in Mashiyach.

Most folks understand that after six days of "work" that the Creator wasn't "all tuckered out", but He gave rest to those who would recognize His role in our lives. He rested from His works which means He delighted and was very satisfied with all that He created, therefore part of the "rest" we enter into is to enjoy the "fruits" of His and our own labors in Him. The greatest fruit of YHWH's labor was to make man in His Image, so that man could build, invent, plan and fulfill his own dreams and enter into (join) that rest that YHWH Himself Created. When YHWH's people enter into His Shabbat (rest) they are connecting with Mashiyach. However, what was intended as spiritual rest and unity with Mashiyach was soon reduced by many into a ritual effort of the flesh, an intellectual theological idea and a socio-political factor that took on humanist and Gnostic interpretations, making it a "burden" rather than a blessing.

Many Christians follow religious traditions that teach that "it doesn't matter which day you keep as Shabbat" because they've never personally experienced true Shabbat rest. Going to church on Saturday versus Sunday isn't automatically going to bring a person into Shabbat rest. It is Mashiyach who establishes Shabbat within the soul which is why it is foolhardy for religious men to conjur up with their own "Shabbat"... and posture Sunday as the Shabbat. Obviously if Christians would have realized that Mashiyach is the substance of the Seventh Day Shabbat, they would not have abandoned Shabbat. Most Christians believe that Mashiyach created all things (Ephesians 3:9; Colossians 1:16; Revelation 4:11) but for some reason many don't make the connection that it was Mashiyach's rest in Genesis: "And Elohim blessed the Seventh Day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work which Elohim created and made" (Genesis 2:3).

How did Christianity switch from Shabbat to Sunday?

Christians take their authority for Sunday as "the Lord's Day" from the post-apostolic Gentile founders of the Gentile church; "The celebration of the Lord's Day in memory of the resurrection of Christ dates undoubtedly from the apostolic age. Nothing short of apostolic precedent can account for the universal religious observance in the churches of the second century. There is no dissenting voice. This custom is confirmed by the testimonies of the earliest post-apostolic writers, as Barnabas, Ignatius, and Justin Martyr." (Philip Schaff, vol. 1, pg. 201-202). Did you catch the spin? Confirmed by the testimonies of the earliest post-apostolic writers who were none other than who?

Ignatius (AD 107) writes: "Be not deceived with strange doctrines, nor with old fables, which are unprofitable. For if we still live according to the Jewish law, we acknowledge that we have not received grace... If, therefore, those who were brought up in the ancient order of things have come to the possession of a new hope, no longer observing sabbaths, but fashioning their lives after the Lord's Day, on which also our life has sprung up again by Him and by His death (which some deny), through which mystery we received faith, and on account of which we suffer in order that we may be found disciples of Jesus Christ our only teacher, how shall we be able to live apart from him for whom even the prophets were looking as their teacher since they were his disciples in the spirit?... let every friend of Christ keep the Lord's Day as a festival, the resurrection-day, the queen and chief of all the days of the week. It is absurd to speak of Jesus Christ with the tongue, and to cherish in the mind a Judaism which has now come to an end. For where there is Christianity there cannot be Judaism.... These things I address to you, my beloved, not that I know any of you to be in such a state; but, as less than any of you, I desire to guard you beforehand, that ye fall not upon the hooks of vain doctrine, but that you may rather attain to a full assurance in Christ..." (Ignatius, Epistle to the Magnesians, chapters 8-9.) Ignatius very clearly contests the Seventh Day Shabbat; he sees those who observe Shabbat as putting "the hooks of vain doctrine," whereas his Sunday doctrine is held as supreme. The authority of changing the Seventh Day Shabbat to the Sun-day is clearly that of Ignatius!

Epistle of Barnabas (AD 74-132): "Moreover God says to the Jews, 'Your new moons and Sabbaths cannot endure.' You see how he says, 'The present Sabbaths are not acceptable to me, but the Sabbath which I have made in which, when I have rested from all things, I will make the beginning of the eighth day which is the beginning of another world.'" Wherefore we Christians keep the eighth day for joy, on which also Jesus arose from the dead and when he appeared ascended into heaven.” (The Letter of Barnabas, 15:6-8). Notice how this “Barnabas” suggests that his own words are straight from God? This “Barnabas” of course, is NOT the same person as Bar-Naba (Paul’s traveling companion). This is Barnabas of Alexandria (a Gentile Christian) who claimed to have “perfect knowledge” of Christianity. Origen refers to this letter as “a Catholic epistle”. Hilgenfeld, who devoted much attention to the Epistle of Barnabas writes, “it was written at the close of the first century by a Gentile Christian of the school of Alexandria, with the view of winning back, or guarding from a Judaic form of Christianity, those Christians belonging to the same class as himself.”

Even to this day many Christian theologians are not aware that the Epistle of Barnabas was a forgery! It was written by someone who viewed Torah observance as purely Jewish material observance of ceremonial ordinances, of which the literal fulfillment was not sufficient, and the work of the Devil, and, according to him, Jews never received the divine covenant because they never understood its nature (ch. vii, 3, 11, ix, 7; x, 10; xiv). This “Barnabas” of Alexandria teaches that it was never intended that the precepts of the Law should be observed in their literal sense, that Jews never had a covenant with YHWH, that circumcision was the work of the Devil, etc. In his opinion, Jews did not know how to rise to the spiritual and typical meaning which YHWH intended when giving them the Torah.

However, the real Barnabas, who was Paul’s traveling companion, was a Levite and a zealous Torah Observant follower of Mashiach Y’shua. The difference between the real Barnabas and the imposter from Alexandria is like the difference between day and night, yet modern Christian theologians continue to place heavy value on the letter of a false witness. The fact of the matter is that Rome built a church on a false premise; by instituting Sunday the Roman Church took authority over the original Apostles and the Word of YHWH.

Council of Laodicea (AD 360): “Christians should not Judaize and should not be idle on the sabbath, but should work on that day; they should, however, particularly reverence the Lord’s day and, if possible, not work on it, because they were Christians” (Council of Laodicea, canon 29). In 325 AD Constantine declared Sunday as the official day of Christian worship throughout the Roman Empire. From this point onward, if you were a Jewish follower of Mashiach and you were caught keeping the Shabbat, your life and any Hebrew writings about Y’shua would have been in great danger.

Pope Gregory I (AD 597): “But after that the grace of almighty God, our Lord Jesus Christ, has appeared, the commandments of the Law which were spoken figuratively cannot be kept according to the letter. For if anyone says that this about the sabbath is to be kept, he must needs say that carnal sacrifices are to be offered.” (Gal. 5:2) (Letters 13:1). Even in those days there was a remnant of Christians who were observing the Seventh Day Shabbat. But most Christians come under Catholic authority with this same pathetic line of reasoning, that if one were to observe Shabbat they should also do animal sacrifice. Herein is the evidence of who, how, when and why the Seventh Day Shabbat was perverted by Gentile Christianity. The original followers of Y’shua knew nothing of this perversion; it was done solely by Gentile minded men, none of which had ever met or learned from Y’shua’s disciples or the original Shlichim.

“Hence, the first day was already in the apostolic age honorably designated as ‘the Lord’s Day.’ ...it appears, therefore, from the New Testament itself, that Sunday was observed as a day of worship, and in special commemoration of the Resurrection, whereby the work of redemption was finished. The universal and uncontradicted Sunday observance in the second century can only be explained by the fact that it has its roots in apostolic practice.” (Philip Schaff, vol. 1, pg. 478-479). Sunday observance is clearly a Second Century invention. The Gentile Christian “apostles” who invented and endorsed Sunday as the counterfeit Shabbat have been clearly named; their own pens witness of their willful violations against the Word of YHWH. They wrote with a deep anti-Semitic bias which also fueled the cultural acceptance of the Sunday rising Christ. Here Philip Schaff shows a profound disregard for all Torah observant followers of Y'shua by suggesting a "universal and uncontradicted Sunday observance" when in fact, throughout church history, Gentile Church founders have levied ongoing scathing rebukes against followers of Mashiyach who observe the Seventh Day Shabbat. The very fact that Gentile Christian writers are aggressively defending Sunday and warning Christians against Shabbat is clear evidence that many Christians refused to follow the cunningly devised fable of the Christo-Pagan initiated Sunday observance.

Mashiyach is *Master of Shabbat

Mashiyach is Master of Shabbat and all who enter into his rest on the Seventh Day Shabbat are sanctifying the Word of YHWH according to Mashiyach. Even Jews who don't regard Y'shua as Mashiyach but who are observing Shabbat are doing so because of the Word of YHWH, which is of course Mashiyach.

All Netzarim followers of Mashiyach Y'shua encourage everyone of all religious backgrounds and ethnicities to seek the Ancient Paths of Mashiyach and enter into the rest of Mashiyach each Shabbat. Shabbat is a time to deny yourself the daily mundane material tasks and let your spirit become elevated in Mashiyach. Psalms 92 is the Shabbat Psalm which concludes, "To show that YHWH is upright: he is my Rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him." Apostle Paul taught; "Let no (pagan) therefore judge you about food and drink, or about the distinctions of festivals and new moons and Sabbats which were shadows of the things then future; but the body of Mashiyach" (Colossians 2:16, 17). Mashiyach gave these festivals, new moons and Sabbats to the body of Mashiyach and therefore, we are entrusted to guard these precious Moedim (Appointments) as unto him. Don't ever let worldly people or certain groups judge you for your obedience to the Truth!

Spiritual Armor

"The night now passes away, and the day draws near. Let us therefore cast from us the works of darkness; and let us put on the armor of light." (Romans 13:12)

"And as we have worn the likeness of him from the dust, so shall we wear the likeness of him from heaven." (1 Corinthians 15:49)

"Put you on the new [man], that is renewed in knowledge, after the likeness of his Creator." (Colossians 3:10)

"And put on; the whole armor of Elohim, so that you may be able to stand against the strategies of the Accuser. For our conflict is not with flesh and blood, but with principalities, and with those in authority, and with the possessors of this dark world, and with the evil spirits that are under heaven. Therefore put on the whole armor of Elohim that you may be able to meet the evil [one]; and, being in all respects prepared, may stand firm. Stand up therefore, and:

- gird your Loins with Truth; and
- put on the Breastplate of Righteousness;
- And defend your feet with the Preparation of the Good News of Peace. And now take to you the confidence (shield) of faith, by which you will have power to quench all the fiery darts of the evil [one].
- And put on the Helmet of Salvation; and take hold of the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of Elohim. And pray, with all prayers and supplications, in spirit, at all times: and in prayer be watchful, at all seasons, praying constantly, and interceding for all the set apart believers (Ephesians 6:11-18).

Putting on the "new man" or the "armor of light" means to be transformed into the "image of Elohim." Notice the intended wordplay as Rav Shaul contrasts the zayna (armor) of Elohim with the tzentah (strategies) of haSatan (the adversary). The four pieces of armor shield against the four strategies of haSatan. Notice also the order in which Rav Shaul “arrays the battle.” The four classes of shaida (demons) fit into the order of each piece of armor; the Helmet corresponds to “principalities” which bring about accusation; the Breastplate corresponds to the “authorities,” and so on. Rav Shaul teaches that the first Adam was physical, but that the second was spiritual; “And as we have worn the likeness of him from the dust, so shall we wear the likeness of him from heaven.” 1 Corinthians 15:49

Principalities	Helmet of Salvation	Head	Accusation	Zechariah 3:1-5
Authorities	Breastplate of Righteousness	Heart	Temptation/Pride	1 Chronicles 21:1
Possessors	Belt of Truth	Groin	Lies/Deception	Genesis 3:1-6
Evil Spirits	Shoes of Peace	Feet	Oppression	Job

Rather than teaching systematically from either the head or feet, Rav Shaul began with (1) the Belt of Truth which is the groin, meant to protect against lies and deception; then (2) the Breastplate of Righteousness to protect against temptation and pride; (3) the Shoes of Peace to protect against oppression; and then (4) the Helmet of Salvation to protect against accusation.

The enemy attacks the weakest and most vulnerable parts first; then the stronger positions, once weaker ones have been taken. Rav Shaul notes the enemy first attacks the Truth, and that cataclysmic warfare has always been waged over what is “truth.” Remember, the first thing haSatan did was to question YHWH’s truth! Without a foundation in Truth, one is vulnerable to lies and deception, temptation, pride, oppression and accusation.

Belt of Truth

Putting on the Belt of Truth is the first defense of all “Spiritual Warfare.” We study and observe Torah to know the Truth; our Spirits have been fashioned by YHWH so His Torah can fit into our hearts. Mashiyach Y’shua is the door whereby each soul enters into the Malchut (Kingdom) Elohim. Leaving behind the fallen world we become alive in the WORD of YHWH. We are called to enter into a living relationship with YHWH through His Mashiyach, who “has rescued us from the dominion of darkness, to bring us into His Kingdom; by whom we have redemption and remission of sins: who is the likeness of the invisible Elohim, and the first-born of all creatures” (Colossians 1:13-15). The “likeness of the invisible Elohim” is revealed in the attributes and the Word of YHWH revealed in us; these are the attributes of the “spiritual man.” It is obedience to the Torah (Truth) that matures the spiritual attributes within us: “And he knew them, previously; and he sealed them with the likeness of the image of his Son; that He might be the first-born of many brothers” (Romans 8:29).

“But in these latter days, he has conversed with us, by his Son; whom he has constituted heir of all things, and by whom he made the worlds; who is the splendor of his glory, and the exact image of His nature, and upholds all by the power of his Word; and by his Qnoma (Occurrence of the singular Divine Nature) he made a purification of sins, and sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high” (Hebrews 1:2, 3). The adversary tries to corrupt the “image of his Son” through religion and falsehood according to “philosophy, and vain deception, according to the doctrines of men, according to the rudiments of the world...” The Belt of Truth defends against deception.

According to Scripture all Truth comes from YHWH: “And YHWH passed by before him, and proclaimed, YHWH, YHWH Elohim, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and that will by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children’s children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.” (Sh’mot/Exodus) 34:6-7). The Levites, along with all the Children of Israel, declared; “You came down also upon Mount Sinai, and spoke with them from heaven, and gave them right judgments, and laws of truth, good statutes and commandments” (Nehemiah 9:13). Dawid said; “The Fear of YHWH is clean, enduring for ever: the Judgments of YHWH are true and righteous altogether" (Psalm 19:9). "Into your hand I commit my spirit: You have redeemed me, O YHWH Elohim of truth" (Psalm 31:5). "O send out your light and your truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto your set apart hill, and to your tabernacles" (Psalm 43:3). "For your mercy is great above the heavens: and your truth reaches unto the skies" (Psalm 108:4). "Your righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and your torah (instruction in righteousness) is the truth" (Psalm 119:142). "You are near, O YHWH; and all your mitzvot (commandments) are truth" Psalm 119:151

According to Scripture the Torah (instructions in righteousness), Judgments and Commandments of YHWH are Truth and Light. Malachi wrote, "The Torah (instruction in righteousness) of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace and equity, and did turn many away from iniquity. For the priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the Torah at his mouth: for he is the messenger of YHWH Tsvaot (of Hosts). But you are departed out of the way; you have caused many to stumble at the Torah" (Malachi 2:6-8). Many false priests today are causing people to stumble at the Torah, and many Christian and Jewish traditions are violently opposed to Torah. "Y'shua answered and said to them, Why also do you transgress against the commandments of Elohim because of your traditions?" (Matthew 15:3) On behalf of those entering into the Malchut Elohim, Y'shua prayed, "Father sanctify them by your Truth, for Your Word is Truth" (John 17:17).

When we put on the Belt of Truth, (the Torah) YHWH promises to go before us and give us victory. When the Ark of the Covenant moved forward, YHWH went before His people and Moshe would say, "Arise YHWH! May Your enemies be scattered! Let those who hate you flee before you!" And when the Ark stopped Moshe said, "Return, YHWH of the many, many thousands of Israel!" (B'midbar/Numbers 10:35, 36). Those who love YHWH and His Mashiyach live according to Torah. The Eser HaDibrot (Ten Words or Commandments) reveal the Mind of Mashiyach; this is the Truth which YHWH has revealed to His people because "The Torah of YHWH is perfect converting the Soul" (Psalm 19:7).

The first strategy of haSatan is to make void the Torah, which he does by whittling it down with religious traditions. Many are being taught that Torah is irrelevant for today, or that it is spiritualized or modernized in such a manner that it has been made obsolete by man's religion. Putting on the Belt of Truth means to observe the Torah of YHWH each day and becoming a "new creation" in Him; it is the first and foremost defense against the enemy. We must seek YHWH and allow the Ruach haKodesh to write Torah upon our hearts. This is what Jeremiah 31:31-34 refers to as the Brit Chadasha (renewed covenant). We are to put on the Belt of Truth and enter into YHWH's Shabbat and keep all the Commandments that Y'shua Mashiyach himself observed.

The Truth of the "spiritual man" is also revealed within the attributes of YHWH. "The Spirit of YHWH shall rest upon him, the Spirit of Chochmah (Wisdom) and Binah (Understanding), the Spirit of Atzah (Counsel) and Gevurah (Might), the Spirit of Da'at (Knowledge) and of the Yirah (Fear) of YHWH" (Yeshayahu/Isaiah 11:2). These seven spirits depict Mashiyach and we are reminded by the seven branched menorah of the completion or perfection of Mashiyach that is to be an eternal light within the souls of all men and women.

"Yours, O YHWH, is the Gedulah (Greatness), the Gevurah (Power) and the Teferet (Glory) the Natzach (Victory) and the Hod (Majesty) the Kingdom (M'lakah)" (1 Chronicles 29:11). Here we see the government of Mashiyach revealed, which in the Perfection of Beauty also judges every other authority as to whether it is of Mashiyach or not. "I YHWH lay in Zion for a Yesod (foundation), a stone, a tried stone, a sure Yesod (foundation)" (2 Chronicles 20:21). The perfect stone, the tried stone is the foundation of Life itself; it is the Truth of Mashiyach!

"His Chesed (Mercy) endures forever." (Isaiah 28:16). The Attributes of YHWH are all revealed through Mashiyach as the TRUTH of YHWH. Not only are we to recognize and "know Him" by these attributes, but our own natures are to become transformed according to His nature.

As the branches of the Menorah attach to a central pillar, so is each of the unique attributes of YHWH connected and revealed in Mashiyach who is “heir of all things.” Truth provides the correct understanding of YHWH and His Word. It is the foundation of Faith but it also reveals the nature of mankind. “Elohim created man in his own tselem (image), in b’tselem Elohim (the image of Elohim) created he him; male and female created he them” (Genesis 1:27). Truth tells us that every human has an inherent neshama (spirit) that was designed and breathed into him by YHWH.

“And the tsela (rib), which YHWH Elohim had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man” (Bereshheet/Genesis 2:22). Tsela also means side or chamber; even as a “side” of man was used to make woman, a “side” of Elohim was used to make man. As the male and female species are dependent on each other for life, so are all living beings dependent upon YHWH. YHWH placed a “portion” of Himself into each soul, allowing each one the “Elohim-like” potential of living according to Truth. The Torah (Truth) reveals YHWH and His Mashiyach; and Truth reveals the Government of Mashiyach that brings Justice, Righteousness, Equality, Community, Peace, Love, etc. But, all false “Messiahs” are anti-Torah, bringing enslavement to counterfeit religions that deceive souls into the bondage of men rather than freedom in Mashiyach.

Y’shua teaches, “And you will know the truth and that truth will set you free” (John 8:21, 32). Truth and Torah have always been considered as one and the same. Y’shua declares, “And then I will profess to them that from everlasting, I have not known you. Depart from me, you workers of iniquity” (Matthew 7:23). “Workers of iniquity” are they who break Torah and teach others to do the same. “And because of the growth of iniquity, the love of many will grow cold” (Matthew 24:12). “For the mystery of the Evil One already begins to be operative; and only, if that which now hinders shall be taken from the midst; then at length will that Evil One be revealed; whom our Master Y’shua will consume by the breath of his mouth, and will bring to nothing by the visibility of his coming. For the coming of that [Evil One], is the working of Satan, with all power, and signs, and lying wonders, and with all the deceptiveness of iniquity, in them that perish; because they did not receive the love of the truth, by which they might have life” (2 Thessalonians 2:7-10). The love of the truth is demonstrated by the action of truth which is the visible nature of Mashiyach within his followers.

In summary, Torah qualifies and reveals Mashiyach and the Spirit of Mashiyach is the foundational truth of the Malchut Elohim; therefore, we enter into the Renewed Covenant when we allow Torah to be written upon our hearts, by observing and doing the Commandments. Y’shua demonstrated this to his Disciples and to all people; consequently, putting on the Belt of Truth means to live by “every Word that proceeds from the mouth of YHWH” (Deuteronomy 8:3 and Matthew 4:4).

Breastplate of Righteousness

Putting on the Breastplate of Righteousness protects us from tactics of pride and temptation. The adversary is referred to as “the Tempter” in Matthew 4:3, and our defense against his temptations is to invite YHWH to direct our thoughts according to His Righteousness, which is imparted by Grace to those who seek and surrender to Him.

Torah is defined as instruction or erudition in righteousness: “All Scripture that was written by the Spirit, is profitable for instruction, and for confutation, and for correction, and for erudition in righteousness” (2 Timothy 3:16). Putting on the Breastplate of Righteousness is to allow YHWH Tsikenu (our Righteousness) help us to take captive every unclean thought and to stand our ground against the enemy.

Blessed is the man who endures temptations; so that when he is proved he may receive a crown of life, which Elohim has promised to them that love him” (Ya’akov/James 1:12).

“But let us who are children of the day, be wakeful in mind, and put on the breastplate of faith and love, and take the helmet of the hope of life” (1 Thessalonians 5:8).

Shoes of Peace/Shalom

Putting on the Shoes of Peace defends against oppression. The “Shoes of Peace” hint of proactively bringing the Truth of YHWH to those who are being called into the Kingdom of Elohim. Shalom (peace) also means unity, to be whole or complete and therefore “at peace.” Job was at peace with YHWH. When haSatan attacked him with oppression it was to no avail; as a matter of fact it simply strengthened him: “YHWH blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning.”

The Hebrew word na'al (shoe) comes from a root meaning to lock, bolt, enclose or to shut up. As shoes provide protection for our feet so we can go places without injury, so does peace guard our freedom of movement. The enemy would prefer that YHWH's people are oppressed and their movement is restricted, whereas putting on the Shoes of Peace is to enable our freedom in Mashiyach to help bring others into the Kingdom of Elohim, freeing others from the slavery of sin. There are no static elements within the spiritual world; everything is always dynamic. If we don't continually move towards our goal, the forces of evil will slide us backward. “He that follows after righteousness and mercy finds life, righteousness, and honor: A wise man scales the city of the mighty, and casts down the strength of the confidence thereof” (Proverbs 21:21, 22). A wise soul is always proactively taking down the strongholds of the enemy, always helping others reach their potential and always seeking alliances with others to help win victories for Mashiyach.

Mashiyach demonstrated how to put on the Shoes of Peace – which represent life in Mashiyach, bringing the Good News and Blessings of YHWH to others as we serve with humility, righteousness and love.

Helmet of Salvation

The Helmet of Salvation protects us from accusation in our most vulnerable component of thought. “You will keep him in perfect peace, whose yetser (imagination) is stayed on You...” (Isaiah 26:3). The yetsar (imagination) must be cognitively and spiritually protected at all times from all vain, unclean thoughts and fantasies because the enemy cannot bring accusation against a mind that is Set Apart to YHWH. “For minding the things of the flesh is death; but minding the things of the Spirit is life and peace” (Romans 8:6).

“But let us who are children of the day, be wakeful in mind, and put on the breastplate of faith and love, and take the helmet of the hope of life” (1 Thessalonians 5:8). When our thoughts are set on YHWH all components of Spiritual Warfare become activated as a defense and empowerment to advance the Kingdom of Elohim. As it is written: “The eye has not seen, nor has the ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man, that which Elohim has prepared for those who love him. But Elohim has revealed it to us, by his Spirit; for the Spirit explores all things, even the profound things of Elohim” (1 Corinthians 2:9, 10). Mankind is made in the “likeness of Elohim” therefore when our thoughts are trained and focused in Mashiyach our spiritual man experiences the profound things of Elohim. In this way we are “more than conquerors,” because even death is defeated!

When Rav Shaul exhorts us pray without ceasing (1 Thess. 5:17) he refers to the ongoing conversation between us and the Almighty YHWH. This dialogue with the Ruach haKodesh gives guidance and direction every moment of the day. Our thoughts, words and actions will serve to either bring us closer to YHWH or keep us apart from Him. When our thoughts are in YHWH we enter into the “Secret Place of the Most High” (Psalm 91:1) where the shaida (demons) are defeated. “Glory and honor are in his presence; strength and gladness are in his place. Give unto YHWH, you kindreds of the people, give unto YHWH glory and strength. Give unto YHWH the glory due unto His Name: bring an offering, and come before Him: worship YHWH in the beauty of being Set Apart. Fear before Him, all the earth: the world also shall be stable, that it be not moved. Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice: and let men say among the nations, YHWH reigns” (1 Chronicles 16:27-31).

The Ex-Nihilo (Out of Nothing) Theory

Old Syriac

Dr. George M. Lamsa states: "The so-called 'Old Syriac' manuscript of the four Gospels, known as the Siniatic Palimpsest, discovered by Mrs. Agnes Lewis in the Convent of St. Catherine on Mt. Sinai in 1892, unfortunately was forged by the Monks, deliberately so, before it was sold to Mrs. Lewis and her companions. They made a hole in the date of the manuscript, thus apparently increasing its age by 900 years. The work was actually finished in the year 1599 CE. The English scholars who examined it first, placed its date as of 697 CE then, not being sure, they made a second inspection, and assigned to it a later date, at 778 CE. Dr. Burkitt (then a young student), at the time of the discovery, thought that the hole in the date was natural, that is, in the skin when dated. He failed to realize that no responsible scribe would date a manuscript near a hole in such a way as to leave the reader in doubt as to the exact date."

"The above mentioned error in date recently was discovered by the writer, after examining several other Four-Gospel manuscripts which were brought to America from the Near East. All the owners of these manuscripts had used the same malpractice. They had made it appear from the mutilated dates that the manuscripts were one thousand years older than they actually were. One of these manuscripts is at the Union Theological Seminary in New York, another is at Harvard, and another is in Syria."

"'Palimpsest' means double writing, or one writing over the other. The superwriting in Aramaic, on the vellum of the so-called Siniatic, was the story of martyrology. One of the stories is that of Saint Augenia, believed to be a European Saint never heard of in the East. This book evidently was introduced by the Roman Catholic missionaries after the union of the Chaldeans with the Church of Rome in the sixteenth century. The work underlying the super-writing is that of a student who copied the Gospels for penmanship. No laymen or priest would destroy a sacred text of the Four Gospels just to write a history of the Saints. Such an act would be considered sacrilegious. Other Palimpsest texts of this nature, including the so-called Curetonian, are of late origin and are not authentic. They were never used by Christians of the Church of the East."

"Many forged manuscripts, scrolls, and fake tablets have been brought to America and Europe. They generally are produced in Egypt and Iraq. Stone tablets and engraved and buried in the fields, and clay tablets are made similar to those made by the Assyrians. The work is so cleverly done that oftentimes even the experts are confused and deceived. Moreover, genuine tablets may be rejected because the archaeologists doubt their authenticity. Some years ago the writer received about two hundred tablets from a member of Turkish parliament who had purchased them in Constantinople. They were first regarded as a great discovery, but later were rejected as fakes. The writer reported this malpractice to Cambridge University, and received confirmation of such fraud. The writer also took the matter up with Dr. Hatch of the Episcopal Seminary in Cambridge, Massachusetts. We made a study of the ink used in the manuscripts. After the writing ages for several weeks it cannot be washed off. However, it can be removed in a short time after it is written. Therefore, in the East, Palimpsest documents and revisions are rejected as sacred literature. They are never used in the churches."

"If this practice of forging manuscripts had been known earlier, there would not have been any confusion as to the origin of the Peshitta. Western scholars would have realized that neither the Siniatic Palimpsest nor the Curetonian are authentic manuscripts of the Scriptures. These were forged and used by heretical sects which tried to deny the divinity of Y'shua. Some of them are works of the students who copied manuscripts for penmanship practice." (Dr. George M. Lamsa, "New Testament Origin", p. 89-91 1947)<sup>67</sup>

<sup>67</sup> George Lamsa was a native Aramaic speaker reared in the Middle East and steeped in the tradition of the ancient Church of the East that preserved the Peshitta collection. Lamsa was well qualified both liturgically and scholarly to comment on the practices he knew so very well. However, as a theologian, Lamsa had liberal theological notions such as unbelief in demons that affected many areas of his translation. Therefore, this quote is simply an acknowledgment of his ability as a commentary, and not an endorsement of his religious views.

Dr. Lamsa is a controversial figure primarily because of his tendency to allow his liberal theological biases to infect his translation. Others directly question certain details of the role he ascribes to himself in this instance. Nevertheless, the main point Dr. Lamsa makes cannot be refuted: Middle Eastern scribes would never scratch off the original Word of Elohim and substitute the biography of a saintly legend over top of it.

In response to this obvious truth, Siniaticus proponents have tried to suggest that perhaps the original manuscript was defective and, since vellum was kind of scarce, they simply re-used it. However, even this scenario is fraught with problems. In the Middle East, and especially in Israel, sacred manuscripts would never be “recycled” in such a horrific manner. If the texts of a Torah scroll, for instance, were defective, they would have been destroyed. If the text or manuscript materials were degraded, then a new copy would have been made and the old one would again be destroyed. There are records of rabbis “burying the Torah” or giving the old manuscript a kind of funeral, because its degradation had rendered it imperfect for daily use.

As for the Peshitta, it was preserved by the Assyrian people who, in addition to having close ethnic ties with Jews, had adopted Messianic Judaism and still retain much of those sensibilities even to this day. Therefore, if the manuscript of the “original Siniaticus” were defective, it would never have been scratched off and written over.<sup>68</sup>

Finding the Hand of Revision

The biggest evidence against the Siniaticus is, in fact, textual in nature. For example, the Siniaticus version of Matthew 1:16 reads “her betrothed” instead of gowra in Matthew 1:16, which is clearly an effort to bring itself more in line with the majority Greek rendering of “her husband.”

Let’s investigate a few examples from these two traditions and see who really revised from whom. The alleged revision is supposed to have been done to make the Peshitta more in line with the Imperial Byzantine Greek text. Let’s compare both Peshitta and Siniaticus with that Greek family of manuscripts.<sup>69</sup>

(John 1:28 Byzantine Text and Siniaticus).

“These things happened in Beth-Anya on the other side of the Jordan”
(John 1:28 Eastern Peshitta).

Beth-Anya is better known as Bethany, a city two miles outside of Jerusalem, and also known as the hometown of Y’shua’s friend Lazarus (John 11:1). By contrast no city named Beth-Abara (place of the other side) has ever been found. The Peshitta preserves the original name of a real city and the Siniaticus and Byzantine texts do not; the latter traditions misread the original. First, on the Greek side, the redactor of the Byzantine text probably skipped over a couple Aramaic words thusly:

“These things happened in Beth Anya on the Abara (other side) of the Jordan.”

Then, with his work now completed, the Greek redactor would have simply put the Aramaic text

68 While the Monks of Saint Catherine’s were most certainly not Assyrians, but of Greek ethnicity, the theory that Siniaticus-primacists hold to is that the Peshitta was revised from it. Therefore, somehow the Siniaticus, or perhaps another copy of it, would have made its way into the hands of the Church of the East. Once there, the “original” Word of Elohim would have been altered and the vessel it came in either defaced or destroyed. For that reason, the habits of the Middle Eastern scribes that would have done this deed are still very much on point. It is also the case that if another had scratched the text off before the Church of the East officials had a chance to look at it, they would, without a doubt, have immediately dismissed the document as an obvious fraud.

69 The source for the Aramaic texts of the Siniaticus, Harklean (Western Aramaic revision of 616) and Peshitta readings is from George Kiraz’s monumental work “A Comparative Edition of the Syriac Gospels” whereas the translation of those texts was done by Paul Younan.

70 This is also the root of the word “Hebrew”. Jews and Arameans had settled on opposite sides of the Jordan, and so the Arameans called their Semitic brethren “those from across” (Hebrews).

aside and never gave the reading a second thought. Next, when his text passes to the Old Syriac Aramaic scribe, he simply transliterates into his language the phrase preserved in the Greek. Granted though, it is possible to suggest that the Aramaic scribe could have also skipped over “Anyā on the” as well, but this is less likely, since an Aramaic speaker would be less prone to error in his native language. Instead, the error the Old Syriac scribe makes is far subtler:

“These things happened in Beth-Abara (בֵּית עֲבָרָה)” (John 1:28).

“Go down ahead of the Midianites...down to Beth-Bara (בֵּית בָּרָה)” (Judges 7:24).

The two names are nearly identical but for the use of a ܒ. Notice they are both placed in almost the exact location as well. Therefore, with the Greek reflecting a minor transliteration variant and given the fact the geography also seemed accurate, there would have been no reason for the Old Syriac scribe to question the Byzantine reading. Even if he did, though, the scribe still could have attributed the variant spelling to either that of a different Aramaic dialect or else a transliteration scheme in Greek of taking on an “a” at the beginning, which was also commonplace.

Here are a couple pairs from Luke:

“Y’shua himself stood among them and said, ‘Peace be to you’”
(Luke 24:36b Byzantine Text and Siniaticus).

“Y’shua himself stood among them and said, ‘Peace be to you’”
It is I, don’t be afraid” (Luke 24:36b Eastern Peshitta).

“And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached”
(Luke 24:47 Byzantine Text and Siniaticus).

“And that repentance for remission of sins should be preached”
(Luke 24:47 Eastern Peshitta).

Again, who is showing redaction from whom? Did the Peshitta scribe, while doing his best to agree with Byzantine, just decide to get creative and add a phrase? Moving on, we see the same problem in Mark:

“When evening had come, he would go outside the city”
(Mark 11:19 Byzantine Text and Siniaticus).

“When evening had come, they went outside the city.”
(Mark 11:19 Eastern Peshitta).

“And many things had suffered of many physicians...”
(Mark 5:26 Byzantine Text and Siniaticus).

“Whom had suffered many things of many physicians...”
(Mark 5:26 Eastern Peshitta).

This last reading in Mark is quite interesting, since there is no real reason for the “Peshitta revisers” to change the “original” text from a waw proclitic (and) to a dalet proclitic (whom), when the meaning is the same. Other deep differences between the Peshitta and Old Syriac versions of this passage need to be shown with the actual Aramaic text:<sup>71</sup> “The Peshitta could not be a revision of the “Old-Syriac” in favor of the Greek reading of Mark 5:26. I cannot even fathom a direct relationship between the Peshitta and OS, unless the translators of the “Old-Syriac” had referenced the Peshitta. That’s about the only relationship I can even imagine. The supposed revisers of the Peshitta had no reason to include ܐܠܗܝܡ and change the Proclitic ܐ to a Proclitic ܐܠ” (Paul Younan)

Therefore, if the Peshitta had been designed to agree with the Greek, as some posture, it seems to be a very selective agreement indeed. In other places, agreement between the Peshitta and the most ancient Greek readings go against the Old Syriac manuscripts, since the latter obviously came on to the scene rather late, after the most reliable readings had been established.

<sup>71</sup> By these I am referring to the Eastern Peshitta manuscripts, which are the same but for minor spelling variants. The Western Peshitto-Harkalean tradition, which includes adulterated readings such as Acts 20:28 and Hebrews 2:9, is not included in this group.

The reader may then well ask how such a situation can be possible, whereby both agreement and disagreement with the Greek texts are taken as evidence of Peshitta Primacy. The answer is that it solely depends on case-by-case examples. For example, Matthew 1:16-19,<sup>72</sup> is a situation where an obvious mistranslation of the entire Greek record, Old Syriac, and the Hebrew versions of Matthew arose from the only possible place for a correct and original reading, mainly the Peshitta text. Therefore, the consistent and early misreading in the Greek record serves as powerful proof that the only source it could have been mistranslated from must be older than the earliest Greek documents, meaning prior to the Second Century.

On the other hand, if we find a very odd reading in either Old Syriac or the late medieval Hebrew Matthew manuscripts, and that odd variant cannot be explained by a mistranslation, then issues of antiquity, multiple attestation of a reading and numbers of extant manuscripts must come into play (odd readings were either chosen from multiple meaning Aramaic words, or by confusing two Aramaic words that are spelled the same but have different meanings). What we have then to compare with is five manuscripts with no concordance, compared to three hundred and sixty (360) Peshitta manuscripts with complete codices from the fourth to ninth centuries, that are virtually identical!<sup>73</sup> Furthermore, the variances between Peshitta and the Greek are easily explainable within the framework suggested above, as opposed to some very strange baseless readings from Old Syriac. It is because of complexities like these that we must investigate a good number of comparative examples, so that the collective evidence can speak for itself.

True Origins of Old Syriac Revealed

A majority of scholars believe that the Old Syriac was translated from a Greek source known as Codex Bezae, which would have been used as a base text by Rabulla, a Fifth Century bishop in the Syrian Orthodox Church.<sup>74</sup> Here is an example that explains the prevalence of this viewpoint:

In Matthew 9:34, 12:24 and Luke 11:15, the Peshitta contains the phrase: The Pharisees were saying, “By the head of the demons, he casts out demons.”

In so doing, the Peshitta not only agrees with the Byzantine Greek, but also the earlier Western text-type, and even ancient Latin versions. However, the “original” OS manuscripts omit this phrase in all three places for a very simple reason: Their original source, the Greek Codex Bezae, is also the only text to not have this phrase! Also, the Old Syriac manuscripts only contain the exact same completed books that Codex Bezae does, namely the four Gospels, and it follows this Greek version almost exactly, word for word. Finally, even the later medieval Hebrew manuscripts like Dutillet and Shem Tob, which are frequently reconstructed with the OS Group to recover the “original” contain the exact reading that the Peshitta does against the Old Syriac.

Furthermore, in the Greek New Testament tradition, many different kinds of mistakes happened because the Greek redactor did not have the careful textual tradition that his Semite counterparts did. One of these types of mistakes is technically called by the Greek name homoteleuton (“like-ending”). It means that there is a phrase in between two words that is left out inadvertently when a copyist’s eye jumped from the first “like word” to the next “like word.” It is actually a very common error in Greek manuscripts. Now, take look at the Byzantine Greek reading of Mark 6:33 shown below:

καὶ εἶδον αὐτοὺς υπαγοντας και επεγνωσαν πολλοι, καὶ πεζη απο πασων των πολυων αννεδραμιον εκει και προηλθον αυτους. Και.

72 My source for the comparisons between the Old Syriac manuscripts and the Peshitta is the monumental work of Dr. George A. Kiraz, Comparative Edition of the Syriac Gospels. Dr. Kiraz has made sure that there are three readings for any part of the Gospels. Since Cureton and Sinaiticus are each missing large parts of the Gospels, Dr. Kiraz will augment the Peshitta and the Old Syriac existing reading with the Harklean revision of the Peshitta done in 616. By contrast, in places where the both the Cureton and Sinaiticus share a reading, only the Peshitta is added.

73 This evidence is documented extensively in The Path to Life essay, p. 20-24, available at: www.aramaicntruth.org

74 See An Old Syriac Reading of Acts 1:4 and More Light on Y’shua’s Last Meal before His Ascension; Daniel L. McConaughy; Oriens Christianus; Band 72; 1988; pp. 63-67.

Moving on, Mark 12:23 in the Imperial Byzantine Greek adds the gloss “when they shall rise” to the text: “In the resurrection therefore, when they shall rise, whose wife shall she be of them? for the seven had her to wife.” (KJV) Put simply, if the Peshitta is a revision of the Old Syriac to bring it more into line with the Byzantine text, then why would the Peshitta not contain this gloss - but the Old Syriac does - ܡܬܝܢ ܕܡܪܝܬܗܢ ܕܡܪܝܬܗܢ “when they shall rise”?

Peshitta:

Old Syriac (Siniaticus)

In Mark 13:7 we find the phrase “wars and rumors of revolutions” inserted in two places. The interesting thing is that there are two different words in the Aramaic but only one word in the Greek (actually there is a suffix change but basically the same word). The Byzantine/Majority Text has polemos and polemon while the Aramaic has qrawa and qarsa. With regards to qrawa, this is a genuine Aramaic word. However, the word qarsa is a Greek loan word according to the legendary scholar R. Payne Smith. This becomes an important observation here, because the Old Syriac uses the Greek loanword in both places whereas the Peshitta uses two different words! Or, to put it another way, the Old Syriac reads the exact same way as the Greek version from which it’s translated. This is yet another example that proves that the idea of Peshitta being a revision of the Old Syriac to bring it in line with the Byzantine Greek text is preposterous.

Sometimes, however, when the Peshitta does have the same reading as the Byzantine Text, it is because that reading is almost universally attested to in all the Greek textual families, with the Peshitta lending its voice in agreement. The Old Syriac then, is literally left virtually alone with a spurious reading. In Luke 23:48 the Old Syriac curiously includes this interpolation after beating upon their breasts: “and saying: ‘Woe to us! What has befallen us? Woe to us from our sins!’”

- Codex Sangermanensis - a 9th century Latin Vulgate manuscript
- The Apocryphal Greek Gospel of Peter

Sometimes mistranslations produce results that are both funny and ridiculous. For example, in some early Greek manuscripts as well as the Old Syriac Acts 1:4 reads, “and he ate salt.” The Peshitta, however, has “and he ate bread.” Does this mean that the earliest Greek manuscripts may be reflecting a more original Old Syriac reading? Hardly!

the issues that a clearer reading is possible even within the Greek, and the fact that the Peshitta also has a better reading, let's digress to show the error of some scholars when they throw out the obvious to embrace the extremely unlikely.

For example, according to Bruce Metzger the meaning "to eat salt together" is a rare and late meaning of the Greek word, which did not appear until the end of the Second Century CE. Most of the early versions do take the word to refer to eating (The Old Latin, the Latin Vulgate; the Coptic, the Armenian, the Ethiopic and the Armenian for example). About thirty-five late Greek manuscripts read alternately sunaulizomenos "to spend the night with."

On the Aramaic side, Dr. Daniel L. McConaughy has noted that the Ancient Aramaic "Church Father" Ephraim, early Fourth Century, quotes the passage in Aramaic in his Hymns on Virginity, hymn 36. This is very important to the Old Syriac Primacist scholars because they believe that Ephraim's quotations from the Gospels often agree with the Old Syriac against the Peshitta text, and because Ephraim uses the word ܡܠܚܬܐ, which they render "salted" or "ate salt".

As a result, McConaughy suggests that this is the lost Old Syriac reading which would refer to an ancient Semitic custom of eating salt together in ritual meals (Numbers 18:19; 2 Chronicles 13:5).<sup>75</sup> The confusion was also understandable, proponents of this theory point out, due to the similarity between the words for "salt" (melkh--ܡܠܬܐ) and "bread" (lechem--ܠܚܡ).

However, this false premise is easy to disprove, since Dr. McConaughy believes that eating salt is an "ancient Semitic custom," let's review some of his references to see if this makes any sense:

"All these sacred gifts that the Israelites set aside for YHWH I give to you, to your sons, and to the daughters that are with you, as a due for all time. It shall be an everlasting covenant of salt before YHWH for you and your offspring as well" (Numbers 18:19).

"Surely you know that YHWH Elohim of Israel gave David kingship over Israel forever--to him and his sons--by a covenant of salt" (2 Chronicles 13:5).

Decide for yourself, do these passages say Jews ate salt? It is the "salt covenant" that appears in both quotes, a Hebrew metaphor for "everlasting." However, there is one more verse where "salt covenant" appears:

"You shall season your every meal offering with salt; you shall not omit from your meal offering the salt of your covenant with Elohim; with all offerings you must offer salt" (Leviticus 2:13).

Notice here that Jews are not eating salt, but using it for the offering. Parts of the offering were eaten by both priests and petitioner however, people are not sitting down to eat salt! Since "salt" only appears 29 times in the entire Tanakh, it is easy to investigate. The remaining references are all generic and the word "covenant" does not appear:

- The "salt sea", (Genesis 14:3; Numbers 34:3, 12; Deuteronomy 3:17; Joshua 3:16; 12:3; 15:2, 5; 18:19)
- Lot's wife turning into a pillar of salt, (Genesis 19:26)
- "Salt and brimstone" and Sodom and Gomorrah, (Deuteronomy 29:23)
- The "City of Salt" (Joshua 15:62)
- Abimelech sows an enemy city with salt so crops will not grow (Judges 9:45)
- "The Valley of Salt" (2 Samuel 8:13; 2 Kings 14:4; 1 Chronicles 18:12, 25:11; Psalm 60:1)

<sup>75</sup> It is also fair to point out that the term "high priest" is not even applied to the first Levitical priest, Aaron. Rather, the specific office of high priest seems to have been a distinction made about four centuries later. However, even if technically speaking Aaron did act as a high priest, it still does not invalidate the proposition that by David's time the bifurcation of titles had been in place for some time. Furthermore, Aaron also has no bearing on the central point of my argument, which is that the high priest in this instance is not named and that such an omission is hardly uncommon.

- Salt used to bless the waters and heal the land (2 Kings 2:20-21)
- Salt again used to season sacrifices (Ezra 6:9, 7:22, Ezekiel 43:24)
- A general reference to salt being used to season other foods (Job 6:6)
- “salt land” as wilderness (Jeremiah 17:6, Ezekiel 47:11)

Nowhere is there any “Semitic custom” of Jews gathering to eat salt. By contrast, the ritual of all Semites getting together to “break bread” need hardly be mentioned!

However, as bad as the Tanakh is twisted by the pro Old-Syriac theory, the grammar errors are much worse. The fact is, atemelkh (ܐܬܡܠܚ) does not mean “salted” or “ate salt.” The melkh (ܡܠܚ) root, a verb, cannot mean “salted” - an adjective! The same is true of “ate salt” which is an impossible reading grammatically, since to say “he ate salt” in Aramaic would be akhel melkha (ܐܟܠ ܡܠܚܐ). So instead of a plausible explanation for this theory residing in the similarity between the words for salt and bread, it turns out Aramaic grammar exposes the error. The reason is, atemelkh is a verb that is conjugated in a form known as ethpeel, and in that form it clearly means, “it was salted.” That reading, in turn leads us to a scribal error between: 1) atemelkh (they ate salt) and 2) athmelkh (they assembled, they deliberated, they took counsel). In other words, the Old Syriac scribe mistook a khet (ܟܬ) for a kaph (ܟܦ). Clearly, the Old-Syriac was translated from Greek, which has “and they assembled.” By contrast, the Peshitta has “he ate bread” – and unlike both the Old Syriac and the Greek, the Peshitta makes sense, since they always ate bread together.

Finally, not all of what is believed to be from St. Ephraim’s writings are really from his own hand. Most writings survive only in the Armenian and other non-Aramaic languages, and many of these retain a distinctly Western-Byzantine flavor. Mar Ephraim was known to paraphrase Scripture either to make a poetic or spiritual point. Therefore, while some instances may sound somewhat like one version or another, the totality of this evidence had absolutely no bearing on proving which textual tradition preceded the other.

The historical relationship between Peshitta, Old Syriac manuscripts and the Diatessaron

Moving on, one of the most egregious falsehoods about the Peshitta text was that it was the product of an Edessan Bishop named Rabulla, in the early part of the Fifth Century. Basically the lie is outlined in this manner:

- In the middle of the Second Century, a man named Tatian combined the four Gospels into one work, the original of which was probably in Aramaic. He called it “the Diatessaron.”
- Over the next 250 years, this combined work gained great popularity. Paper was scarce and a Lectionary of one unified account was a great boon to poor and struggling assemblies in the Middle East.
- Then, a Bishop named Rabulla came along and suppressed what he thought was the work of a heretic. Rabulla, determined to have a more acceptable version of the New Testament to take its place, is said to have crafted the Peshitta as we know it today.

The scholar who came up with this idea, Dr. F. Crawford Burkitt, admitted that it was only a guess. However, many uninformed people have passed down Burkitt’s guess as a kind of sacred cow of western scholarship. The fact is, it is not, and the history of the matter will certainly bear Burkitt’s speculation out to be a horrible lie.

Here are the facts:

- The Edessan group was separated from the Church of the East, and in fact was part of a rival assembly known as the Syrian Orthodox Church.
- Rabulla, as a Bishop in the Syrian Orthodox Church, was called “the heretic of Edessa” and “the devil” by the Church of the East because he was a Monophysite, which meant he only saw divine aspects to Messiah.

There was no way that the Church of the East would accept any writing from Rabulla and allow it to be called original Scripture! History, in fact, shows the opposite to be the case. The Church of the East resisted all efforts by the West to change their text, even to the point of death, and was ostracized by the Byzantines for their stubborn refusal to give up their ancient Semitic traditions and textual readings. So, when the Syrian Orthodox Church made their first revision to the Peshitta, the Church of the East rejected it. Then a second revision was done, and the same thing happened. So now, we are supposed to believe they just decided to accept the work of a hated enemy and call it straight from the pens of the apostles?

As a result, these two groups purposely began speaking with different accents, and even produced separate Aramaic scripts in order to prevent confusion as to which text came from where. However, the scholars who, in the 19th Century came to places like Urmia, could not tell the difference between Eastern originals and Western revisions because they only saw the latter and, decided to adopt its structure in their scholarship! They then, in their ignorance of history, began spinning wild stories.

Make no mistake about it, there was as much possibility of the Church of the East accepting a Peshitta from Rabulla, as there is of the Orthodox Jewish Beit Din in Jerusalem embracing a Tanakh authored by Adolph Hitler. However, Rabulla was very much involved in the production of another Aramaic work, and this “contribution” has created much confusion in the West ever since. A colleague of Rabulla, who authored an extensive biography of him shortly after his death, wrote:

“By the wisdom of God that was in him he translated the New Testament from Greek into Syriac because of its variations, exactly as it was.” (Rabul episcopi Edesseni, Baleei, aliorumque opera selecta, Oxford 1865, ed. J. J. Overbeck)

From this point, history shows that Rabulla, having made what he viewed as a definitive translation, purged all other variants from his domain, as related here:

“The presbyters and deacons shall see to it that in all the churches a copy of the Evangelion de Mepharreshe shall be available and read.” (Th. Zahn, Forschungen zur Geschichte des neutestamentlichen Kanons, i. (1881), p. 105.)

And so, what Rabulla really did was suppress the work of Tatian, which is why no complete copy of the Damkhalty (Aramaic for Diatessaron) survives. Rabulla gathered up the copies that had been in widespread use for about 250 years, made a huge bonfire, and burned them.<sup>76</sup>

We now shift our focus from history into linguistics. This term, “evangelion de mepharreshe,” combines both Aramaic and Greek words into a single phrase meaning “separated Gospels.” Through this, Rabulla was clearly trying to contrast his translation work of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John with that of the Diatessaron, which has combined the four into one literary work. Consequently, he eliminated as many copies of the Diatessaron as he could, and substituted it with his own translation. Then, all these centuries later, Western scholars enter the equation and claim, without evidence, that the evangelion de mepharreshe must be the Peshitta text.

Although Western scholarship completely rejects the Burkitt Hypothesis, sources like the Encyclopedia Britannica continue to spout his theory as if it were genuine history. For example, with respect to Burkitt, Arthur Voobus wrote:

“This kind of reconstruction of textual history is pure fiction without a shred of evidence to support it.” (Early Versions of the New Testament, Estonian Theological Society, 1954, see pp. 90-97)

Voobus, in fact, goes on to argue that Rabulla never even used the Peshitta at all!<sup>77</sup> Furthermore, <sup>76</sup> See Han J. W. Drijvers, Journal of Early Christian Studies 4.2 (1996) pp. 235-248, Johns Hopkins University Press.

even Dr. Bruce Metzger, who may be the world's foremost Greek New Testament Primacist, agrees with Voobus and rejects Burkitt:

"The question who it was that produced the Peshitta version of the New Testament will perhaps never be answered. That it was not Rabbula has been proved by Voobus' researches...In any case, however, in view of the adoption of the same version of the Scriptures by both the Eastern (Nestorian) and Western (Jacobite) branches of Syrian Christendom, we must conclude that it had attained a considerable degree of status before the division of the Syrian Church in AD 431." (Bruce M. Metzger, The Early Versions of the New Testament, New York: Claredon, 1977, p. 36).

Since the Eastern and Western Aramaic groups hated each other with a passion, once again we see that one faction would never accept the Scripture of the other. On the other hand, we have the writings of Mar Aphrahat, a Fourth Century Syrian saint, who quotes exclusively from the Peshitta against both Old Syriac manuscripts.<sup>78</sup> But perhaps the most damning piece of evidence as to what Rabulla really did is contained in a place that nobody in western scholarship seems to have expected:

"Shlam Evangelion de Mepharreshe" (Here ends the Evangelion de Mepharreshe)

So here, finally, we find an ancient inscription on a document that actually claims to be Rabulla's evangelion de mephareshe. However, as it turns out, this is not the Peshitta text at all but, rather, a title that appears on nearly every page of Old Syriac Siniaticus! That's dozens of references to the unique term Rabulla coined for his work, whereas his title appears absolutely nowhere else on any other manuscript!

Greek Translations

The proliferation of Greek translations have provided us with the ability to both clarify the Greek and explain problematic readings, which ultimately serve to strengthen the claims of the Renewed Covenant writings as a whole. In that sense, the Greek translators deserve our praise and appreciation for making a noble attempt to bring the Galilean Aramaic dialect to the Greek speaking world - the results of which are spectacular in terms of influence and staying power.

Old Syriac however, translated by Greek-Orthodox redactors, was far less successful in this endeavor. The Aramaic is horrible; the grammar is atrocious and the spelling errors are copious. In fact, these very errors translated from the Greek caused a myriad of problems for those who thought it to be original. The reality is, they are simply cases of bad penmanship, with the correct reading being shared by both the Peshitta and the Greek. Also, none of these cases contain any hint that either the Greek or the Peshitta has an untenable or implausible reading. Below is a small sampling:

Matthew 5:29 Old Syriac: ܕܗܝܠ "should go"

Matthew 5:29 Peshitta & Greek: ܕܗܝܠ "should fall"

While the reading "go into Gehenna" and "fall into Gehenna" both seem reasonable, surely "falling" into an abyss or pit makes a lot more sense given the overall context of the passage. The word for "fall" also appears just a few lines later in the exact same form.

Matthew 23:16 Old Syriac: ܕܗܝܠ "hurts not" and ܕܗܝܠ "sins"

Matthew 23:16 Peshitta & Greek: ܕܗܝܠ "nothing" and ܕܗܝܠ "is guilty"

Here we have to see the full readings side by side to appreciate the error:

Zustande in Edessa in den Jahren ca. 326-340, Stockholm, 1951; and Early Versions of the New Testament. Stockholm, 1954.

78 An extensive study on this topic by Paul Younan uses Mar Aphrahat's Demonstrations of Faith as a primary source. The exclusive use of the Peshitta by this saint predates Rabulla's era by more than half a century.

“Woe to you blind guides, for you say that whoever swears by the Temple does not hurt, but he who swears by the gold by which is in the Temple sins.” (Old Syriac)
“Woe to you blind guides, for you say that whoever swears by the Temple is not anything, but he who swears by the gold by which is in the Temple is guilty.” (Peshitta)

Were the Pharisees confident that such a man did not hurt the Temple? The other variant, between “guilty” or “sins”, is largely interchangeable.

Matthew 14:27 *“But Y’shua at once spoke with them and said, “Have courage. It is I. Do not be afraid.””

On the Old Syriac side the Siniaticus has “be assured” while Cureton has “take courage”. But the odd one here is Dutillet and Company with “have trust”. In this case, they are likely targumming and the Aramaic as haymanutha, which can mean “trust” on occasion, but has a vast majority reading of “faith”. However, and as this text proves, their “Peshitta memory” failed since it had another word for “courage” instead.

Matthew 27:34 “And they gave to him to drink vinegar, which was mixed with gall. And he tasted it and he did not desire to drink it.”

In this case, both Old Syriac manuscripts, the three of the late medieval Hebrew versions of Matthew, and the Greek families of texts all have “wine”. Only the Peshitta has “vinegar”, which is consistent with Tanakh: “I am in despair. I hope for consolation but there is none, for comforters, but find none. They give me gall for food and vinegar to quench my thirst” (Psalm 69:21-22).

All three statements in this Psalm relate perfectly to Mashiyach. He was in despair because he said that his own soul was troubled to the point of death (Matthew 26:38). The hope for consolation and comforters was due to the fact that he clearly wanted to get his time on the cross over with (Matthew 27:46). Finally, the key point in this analysis is that the Romans gave him the mixture of gall and vinegar and he did not want it because he believed his Father would soon answer his petition to end his suffering for the sake of the world.

Mark 7:26 “Now that woman was a heathen from Phoenicia in Syria, and was entreating him to cast out the devil from her daughter.”

Here is a reading that was obscured in the Old Syriac, which calls this woman “a widow” due to another scribal error:  (Syrian)  (widow) The word in the Peshitta is more of a place name that she is from as opposed to a conjugation turning that place into personal description. Also note that the only way the Old Syriac could have come up with the “widow” variant is that it read “Syrian” in the Greek and then, when translating mis-wrote  (widow), when it should have been  (an Aramean/Syrian woman).

Mark 8:12 “And he signed in his spirit and said, “Why does this generation seek a sign. Truly, I say to you, that not one sign will be given to this generation.”

The Old Syriac had an almost comical contrast, saying that Y’shua was “excited in his spirit” that people had misunderstood him yet again! How could that happen? The answer is very simple:  (sighed)  (excited) The Peshitta not only agrees with the Greek and in fact all other witnesses against the Old Syriac, it also makes a lot more sense!

Mark 12:38 “And in his teaching he would say to them, “Beware of the scribes who like to walk in long robes and love a greeting in the streets.”

Obviously, this reading in both Peshitta and Greek makes a lot of sense since we know that scribes and Pharisees most certainly walked in long robes through the streets. The Old Syriac though misread  (in robes) and thought it erroneously was  (in porches).

Lest the reader think there may be some inconsistency in places where Greek readings are overturned in favor of Peshitta, I have only shown mistranslations from a Peshitta-exclusive term that crept into the majority texts, and in many cases these clarify readings in the Greek that would otherwise be obscure or unintelligible. In still other cases, the readings between the Peshitta, Old Syriac and the Greek are quite close in meaning and have no probative value in proving an original reading:

Matthew 11:20 Old Syriac: ܐܢܝܢ ܕܢܥܠܡܐ ܕܥܝܠܐ ܕܥܝܠܐ ܕܥܝܠܐ “in which he showed many mighty works”

Matthew 11:20 Peshitta & Greek: ܐܢܝܢ ܕܢܥܠܡܐ ܕܥܝܠܐ ܕܥܝܠܐ ܕܥܝܠܐ “in which his mighty works had been done”

Matthew 21:24 Old Syriac: ܕܠܗ ܗܝܬ ܗܝܬ “this word”

Matthew 21:24 Peshitta & Greek: ܕܠܗ ܗܝܬ ܗܝܬ “one word”

In conclusion even if it could be shown that the Old Syriac Group (Cureton and Sinaiticus) were originals, their fragmentary condition is such that not even both of them put together form the complete record. In that scenario, we have scraps of the Gospel texts against the full Peshitta version that is rendered identically in 360 complete manuscripts! We also have the force of ancient eastern traditions unanimously proclaiming Peshitta as original, even as these same groups denounced and almost destroyed one another. And yet, as volatile and dangerous as the relationship between the Church of the East and its rival Aramaic group the Syrian Orthodox Church has been, both defended the antiquity and originality of the Peshitta<sup>79</sup> and agree that the Sinaiticus is nothing short of a pious fraud.

The Word of YHWH

The key to understanding the role of Mashiyach can be found within the attributes of the “Word” of YHWH. The ancients perceived the Word of YHWH to be none other than the Mashiyach and this is abundantly revealed in the term memra.

“The memra is not merely a linguistic device for overcoming the problem of biblical anthropomorphisms; it has theological significance in its own right. The (memra) is...“a world-permeating force, a reality in the world of matter or mind, the eminent aspect of God, holding all things under its omnipresent sway.” (On the Mystical Shape of the Godhead: Basic Concepts in the Kabbalah” by Gershom Scholem pg 181-182)

The Memra

The Targums (Aramaic paraphrases of the Tanakh), which were commonly studied in synagogues along with the Hebrew Tanakh, provide clear insights into how the Word of YHWH was understood according to the ancients. The Targums substitute “The Word (Memra) of YHWH” for YHWH in places where it might appear as though YHWH is speaking to Himself. For example in Gen. 19:24 reads: “And YHWH rained brimstone and fire upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah, from YHWH, from the heavens.”

While Hebrew grammar indicates that one YHWH rains fire from another YHWH, the Targum Jonathan substitutes “The Word of YHWH” for the first of the two mentions of YHWH as follows: “And the Word (Memra) of YHWH caused to descend upon the peoples of Sodom and Gomorrah, brimstone and fire from YHWH in heaven.”

Another example is in Exodus 24:1: “Now He (YHWH) said to Moshe, “come up to YHWH...” But Targum Jonathan inserts “Memra (the Word) of YHWH” in place of “YHWH.”

<sup>79</sup> This is not to say that the COE and SOC do not have other disagreements about the text. The SOC revised at least two readings (Acts 20:28, Hebrews 2:9) to fit more in line with their different beliefs and also accepted five books that the COE did not. The point, however, is that the SOC and COE accept the Gospel of Matthew, which is our focus, as being IDENTICAL AND ORIGINAL IN BOTH THEIR TRADITIONS. Therefore, if the COE decided to use the Sinaiticus to do a revised work later called “Peshitta”, then there would be no way their enemies at the SOC would have ever accepted it, and vice versa!

It is very clear that the Targumists understood the “Word of YHWH” as the operational power of YHWH. According to Targum Onkelos, it was the Word of YHWH that Abraham trusted in according to Genesis 15:6: “And Abraham trusted in the Word (Memra) of YHWH, and He counted it to him for righteousness.”

According to the Jerusalem Targum Genesis 22:14, Abraham prayed in the name of the Word of YHWH: “And Abraham worshipped and prayed in the name of the Word (Memra) of YHWH, and said, ‘You are YHWH who does see, but You cannot be seen.’” Abraham clearly prayed “in the name of the Word of YHWH” to YHWH who “cannot be seen.” Here it is clear that one “aspect” of YHWH cannot be seen, but another can and, of course, this is Mashiyach.

This same principle is found in the Jerusalem Targum, Genesis 16:3: “And Hagar praised and prayed in the name of the Word (Memra) Of YHWH who had revealed Himself to her.”

Targum Onkelos Gen. 28:20-21 states: “And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, ‘If the Word (Memra) of YHWH will be my support, and will keep me in the way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father’s house in peace; then shall the Word (Memra) of YHWH be my Elohim.’”

The Targum for Psalm 62:9 indicates that David exhorted Israel to trust in the Word of Yah: “Trust in the Word of Yah at all times, O people of the house of Israel! Pour out before Him the sighings of your heart; Say, Elohim is our trust forever.”

Targum Yonathan Gen. 1:27 states that the Word of YHWH is the Creator of mankind: “And the Word (Memra) of YHWH created man in his likeness, in the likeness of YHWH, YHWH created, male and female created He them.”

The Jerusalem Targum for Exodus 3:14 states: “And the Word (Memra) of YHWH said to Moses: ‘I am He who said unto the world ‘Be!’ and it was; and who in the future shall say to it ‘Be!’ and it shall be.” And He said: “Thus you shall say to the children of Israel: ‘I Am’ has sent me to you.”

The Fragmentary Targum for Exodus 12:42 also expresses the Word of YHWH as the Creator: “The first night, when the ‘Word of YHWH’ was revealed to the world in order to create it, the world was desolate and void, and darkness spread over the face of the abyss and the ‘Word of YHWH’ was bright and illuminating and He called it the first night.”

That the Word of YHWH is the Creator is clearly recorded in Psalm 33:6: “By the Word of YHWH were the heavens made, And all the hosts of them by the Spirit of His mouth.”

Targum Onkelos Genesis 9:17 states: “And YHWH said to Noah, ‘This is the token of the covenant which I have established between My Word (Memra) and between all flesh that is upon the earth.’” Clearly this is the Word of YHWH who made covenant in Noah’s day with all flesh, and it is this same Word of YHWH who made covenant with Avraham in Genesis 17:7: “And I will establish my covenant between My Word (Memra) and between you.”

The Word of YHWH also revealed the Torah to Moshe and established the covenant with Moshe and all of Yisrael. The Jerusalem Targum states, “the Word of YHWH” in Exodus 20:1.

Targum Jonathan for Genesis 49:18 states that Ya’akov turned to the Word of YHWH for salvation: “Our father Jacob said: ‘My soul does not wait for salvation such as that wrought by Gideon, the son of Joash, for that was but temporal; neither for a salvation like that of Samson, which was only transitory; but for that salvation which You have promised to come, through Your Word unto Your people, the children of Israel; for your salvation my soul hopes.’”

The Word of YHWH is referred to as the Savior as shown in Targum Jonathan Isaiah 45:17, 25: “But Israel shall be saved by the Word of YHWH with an everlasting salvation by the Word of YHWH shall all the seed of Israel be justified.”

As well as Targum Jonathan for Hosea 1:7: “But I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and I will save them by the Word of YHWH, their Elohim.” Clearly it was very common knowledge within ancient Judaism that the Word of YHWH was and is the Mashiyach; therefore, when Yochanan used the term Miltha as referring to the Word (Memra) of YHWH we can see a connect between Mashiyach revealed as the Word of YHWH and Spirit of Mashiyach within Y’shua who came to this earth.

However, the way that the spirit was manifested contains details and subtleties that the original word of Memra was not intended to bring across. The reason is, while the technical lexical meaning of Memra/devar has always simply been Word, and while Miltha also shares that meaning, the fact is the Rabbinic use of the first few terms turned them into specialized meanings that tended to go away from other intended meanings of Miltha.

In other words, Memra – and to a lesser extent devar – was rabbinic terminology in the Targums and elsewhere was intended to downplay the physical aspects of YHWH with what we would sometimes term as the parsopa or shekinah. One of Miltha’s many other meanings on top of Word is more related to the concept of emanation, manifestation or substance, AND SO it is for this reason that Paul Younan opted not to translate Miltha directly. (Please see the footnote on John 1:1.)

Going from the deeper aspects of Miltha that are not shared with Memra/devar, the trend of those applications is opposite; reason being, Memra/devar was intended to de-anthropomorphize clear descriptions of deity. Miltha, on the other hand, embraced this physicality on both a literal and figurative spiritual level. Whereas the word Memra shows the manifestations going from the real world up, Miltha shows these manifestations from the mystical world toward the physical. This is the key to understanding statements in Proverbs 3 as well as by Y’shua himself who speaks about who has ascended up into heaven or who has descended down; literally breathing, cohabitating on the Earth. That is why Yochanan is the only writer who talks about Y’shua tabernacling with us.

They Repented Not

Multitudes of religious people are under the erroneous impression that they are “saved” in their sins and have been forgiven, simply because they have “repented” according to traditional guidelines. This is because they don’t realize there is an extreme difference between religious status quo repentance and reality. The “religious status quo repentance” theology is famous for making people feel guilty about their sin and then providing religious “comfort food” to put them at ease. Many Catholics, for instance, believe that confession to a man in a booth takes care of their need for repentance – but this is simply a tradition. Most Christians categorically believe repentance means “to change your mind,” to “accept Jesus,” or to “believe upon the shed blood at the cross.” Hardly anyone stops to think that religious tradition interprets Scripture according to tradition and that they might just be “missing the mark” by blindly following their religious leaders. The thing is, there is a vast gulf between religious and true repentance.

There are two Hebrew words that translate into the English word “repent.” In Moshe’s appeal to YHWH both words appear in the same verse: “Turn (shuv) from thy fierce wrath, and repent (nacham) of this evil against thy people” (Exodus 32:12). The Jewish world predominately focuses on the word shuv as in Teshuva, whereas the Christian world functionally adopts nacham – two very different words. “Shuv” appears 1,066 times in Scripture but is almost entirely negated by modern Christian theology. The first mention of shuv is: “*In the sweat of your face shall you eat bread, until you return (shuv) unto the ground...*” (B’resheet/Genesis 3:19). Clearly shuv means to return to where you’ve come from and this is the key to true repentance.

Teshuva (repentance) means return to YHWH. “Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return (shuv) unto YHWH, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our Elohim, for he will abundantly pardon” (Isaiah 55:7).

How can a person return to YHWH if they’ve never known His Ways or experienced the Kingdom of Elohim? It would seem that in order to return to something, you would have to have been there before. In reality, the neshama (spirit) of each individual belongs to YHWH and by surrendering and turning to YHWH every soul is, in fact, returning to their spiritual origin. This is also what it means to be “born from the beginning,” whereas being “born again” is a bit of a misnomer. In reality when a person makes teshuvah and returns to YHWH they come to know the Spirit of Mashiyach (the Ruach haKodesh), but they also experience their own neshama. Not only has the unrepentant person not come to know the Ways of YHWH, but in reality they have not come unto their own spirit until they make teshuvah.

Teshuvah or returning to YHWH is an absolute requirement to obtain pardon; there is no other way to Salvation. Sin first entered into man through Adam and Eve, but whether Jew or Gentile, man’s destiny lies outside of sin. Our Creator created us according to His purpose. By returning to Him our true purpose is revealed, but we must also return to Him on His terms and conditions.

Nacham is translated as; comfort (57), repent (41), comforter (9), ease (1), for a total of only 108 occurrences. Christian theology weighs in very heavily on comforting the sinners by teaching them that “Jesus did it all” or “you don’t have to keep the law” or “you are saved by grace” or “all your sins past, present and future are forgiven” or “say the sinners prayer and get saved” or “it doesn’t make any difference if you keep the law” or “Jesus did away with the law”...on and on; there are literally hundreds of other religious clichés that make sinners feel comfortable in their sin. Religious comforts are also extended by theology like Justification, Grace only, Dispensationalism and Replacement Theologies which gives “the Church” the power to forgive sin and make void the requirement of teshuvah. Christianity has given itself a theological license to transgress Torah; invented, of course, by the post-apostolic founders of the all-Gentile church.

In reality Nacham (repent or comfort) refers to the Spirit of YHWH bringing comfort after a person does Teshuvah and takes back the ground they lost through sin. The comfort aspect occurs when we return to YHWH and He draws us close to Himself. However, most Christians are content with the social gratification of church membership and being comforted by religious traditions. Modern religion *cope*s with sin. Social transgressions such as gossip, backbiting, condemnation, finger pointing, evil imaginations, slander, adultery, lawlessness and covetousness are normative in most Churches because, “Hey, nobody can keep the law perfectly, only Jesus, and he died to forgive us our sins.” There is a massive gulf between false religion that comforts a person in their sins versus turning to YHWH and His Mashiyach and making things right. Unfortunately, when many Christians hear true repentance being preached they are quick to condemn the preacher as a “legalist,” because the truth about repentance feels to them like harassment or embarrassment.

Most of the religious world sees repentance as something you do after you sin. Many sin and “repent” over and over simply because they have never known the true nature of Teshuvah (repentance). Teshuvah is a daily turning to YHWH; every thought is subjugate to obedience to the Mashiyach (2 Cor. 10:5), implying that our words and actions are done in the Spirit of YHWH. Throughout the Renewed Covenant we see Y’shua our Mashiyach, Peter, James, John and Paul ministering “perfection” which is a state of completion in one’s spirit. Mashiyach is the life of Torah that brings perfection. We humans know that we are not “perfect” beings, yet we are called to be tamiym (perfect, complete, clean). Noah and Awraham were perfect long before Torah was given at Sinai and before Y’shua came to Earth as Mashiyach.

To make Teshuvah (repentance) is to empower the spiritual man. “Draw near to Elohim, and He will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners: sanctify your hearts, you divided in mind.” (James 4:8). Teshuvah is the basis of how we draw near to YHWH, and it is only realized through Torah observance. Torah is the Will of YHWH, His Love Letter, His Promise, and His Covenant. Torah contains the Terms and Conditions of YHWH's Love towards His Creation.

The Torah of YHWH is perfect converting the soul, yet many are quick to reject Torah even when they have little or no understanding of how it reveals the Kingdom of Elohim according to Mashiyach. The rabbinical world may have kept Torah from the Gentiles, but Mashiyach who is the "Light unto the Gentiles" (Isaiah 42:6; 49:6; 60:3), did the very opposite. The prophets foretold of the Gentiles being drawn unto YHWH in Mashiyach. Rav Shaul taught the Gentile world about the "inner spiritual man" which is the foundation of Torah that guides us according to the Image of Elohim. This is also one of the reasons why the Pharisaic elite wanted to kill him, they were threatened because he was "stealing their thunder" and bringing Torah to the Gentiles. The more the Gentile world has Torah written upon their hearts the more redundant the various religious traditions become; indeed the religious hierarchies would become irrelevant.

A very common tradition within Gentile Churches is that neither Y'shua nor Paul expected Gentiles to live like Jews; and Acts 15 records the dispute among those "who believed from the teaching of the Pharisees". Here again it was clearly a matter of the traditions of the Pharisees being in conflict with the Way of Mashiyach, not a matter of "living like Jews." However, Shimon Peter set the record straight: "And He differentiates nothing between them and us because He cleansed their hearts by faith" (Acts 15:9). The Renewed Covenant requires that Torah be written upon the heart – this is what it means to have a clean heart, whether a person is Jewish or not in this matter is irrelevant. It was a watershed concept for most Jews and Gentiles that, "He differentiates nothing between them," but in reality authentic Jewish identity has always been defined by Mashiyach; not by various hierarchical religions of Jews.

In other words when you make teshuvah and truly follow in the footsteps of Mashiyach, others will most certainly scorn you for living like a Jew because Christianity has done an extensive makeover to take the Jew out of their version of Y'shua. The resistance against you for making true repentance will come from church people, family, friends, pastors and those who habitually accuse followers of Mashiyach of being "legalists" and "Judaizers" because they prefer their own traditional worldly lifestyles. But Mashiyach says; "Whoever finds his soul will lose it, and whoever loses his soul for my sake will find it" (Matthew 10:39).

Another component of repentance is to enter into the Government of Mashiyach, rather than talk about it. Every dominion, government and authority that has not entered into the perfection of Mashiyach is not of him. Mashiyach is begotten of YHWH which means he is the Firstborn and head of YHWH's Government. "Misrah" (government; Isaiah 9:6, 7; 22:21) comes from the root word "Sarah". It is through the descendant of Awraham and Sarah that the Promise and heavenly Government was established. This Promise was given in Gan Eden; "And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her seed; it shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise his heel" (Genesis 3:15). YHWH ordained that the "Seed of Woman", which is Mashiyach's Government, would bruise the head of the serpent. Therefore the Government of Mashiyach has been a continuum from the Garden of Eden right through to the World to Come, and every generation is called to depart from iniquity, turn away from all false dominions and subscribe to Mashiyach. To do this a person must stop adhering to the teachings of man and turn to YHWH to observe His Torah – His Divine instructions – and begin to learn about Justice, Peace and Righteousness according to Mashiyach.

One of the very first words on the lips of Mashiyach Y'shua was "repent" (Matt. 4:17). It is imperative that we understand how to repent (make Teshuva) and turn to YHWH and keep His Commandments. Rav Shaul gives testimony to King Agrippa of a "heavenly vision" saying: "...I preached from the first to them in Damascus, and to them in Urishlim and in all the villages of Judaea; and I preached also to the Gentiles, that they should repent, and should turn to Elohim, and should do the works suitable to repentance" (Acts 26:20). There is no doubt, whatsoever, that Rav Shaul spoke with the full weight and authority of Mashiyach Y'shua and Torah. Paul taught “repent and turn to Elohim” which is very Hebraic, very commonly understood among Jews, and a very ancient understanding which means to observe Torah! Paul commanded Gentiles (who, like the original Jewish followers of Y’shua, adhere to the Elohim of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob) to: “Do the works suitable to repentance.” Same Heavenly Father, same rules! Y’shua Mashiyach did not come to replace YHWH or to start a new, Torah-less religion. He came to show us in person how to do it right.

Thirteen Principles of Netzari Faith

By Andrew Gabriel Roth & Baruch Ben Daniel

WE of the Netzari faith hold these faith principles to be true, just and complete understandings of the original message of YHWH and His Son, Maran Y’shua Meshikha (the Mashiyach):

1) On יהוה YHWH

We believe YHWH is a singular and indivisible Uncreated Being called YHWH (“Yahweh”) who brought the entire actual and potential universes into being by the force of His Miltha (Manifestation/Word) emanating from His Mind and into spoken force and power. We further believe that the other name for this Emanation / Manifestation of the Divine Miltha – also known in Hebrew as davar and memra – is in fact the Son of YHWH Himself, known to the world as Y’shua of Nazareth (Psalm 33:6, John 1:1-5). We affirm YHWH as all seeing, all-knowing and all-powerful; there is no part of potential or actual creation that escapes His attention or is not under His direct control. YHWH reveals Himself in Exodus 3:14-16 as “Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh”, which affirms His exclusive status as the Eternal One without End, existing simultaneously in all realities that are, ever have been, ever will exist or ever could be.<sup>80</sup>

2) On Mashiyach as a human office

We believe Mashiyach is given power and validity as a human office with divine aspects and ramifications attached. Mashiyach is greater than his ancestor Dawid because, unlike Dawid, Mashiyach is an eternal and global ruler given authority directly from YHWH Himself (Daniel 7:1-14). In talking about the human side of Mashiyach, we affirm that he was literally and completely a human being, not the appearance of flesh only. Mashiyach was fully human in order to suffer, bleed and die for our benefit (Isaiah 53:8-12, Zechariah 12:10), and he did nothing in terms of either miracles or teachings that his Father YHWH had not previously commanded or revealed to the sages of blessed memory that have arisen in Israel (John 6:32; 10:18; 12:49; 14:21, 24, 31; 15:10). Most assuredly, YHWH Himself did not die on an execution stake, for then all the Universe would have ceased. Instead, it was Y’shua’s purely human will and nefesh (soul/life force) that died (Matthew 26:34, Mark 14:34), so that it could be resurrected by his Father YHWH three days later (John 2:19-22; Acts 9:21; Romans 4:24, 7:4, 8:11; 2 Corinthians 5:15; Galatians 1:1; Colossians 2:12; 1 Peter 1:21).

3) On the Divine side, or Qnoma, of Mashiyach

We believe the divine side of Y’shua haMashiyach is a matter of Tanakh prophecy<sup>81</sup> and that his divinity is wholly separate from his human life-force and personality<sup>82</sup> and yet this same divine occurrence is identical as a reflection/image of the exact representation of the one divine nature of YHWH; this image is not a separate nature but a branch / occurrence / qnoma of the One

80 Because this form of YHWH’s Name contains all the possible forms of “to be”: “I am that I am”, “I have been who I have been” and “I will be what I will be”. As a direct result of this etymology, sages have referred to YHWH also as “the Eternal”, a title that is carried over into mystical writings and other famous Jewish commentaries and targums, as well as being referenced in the Tanakh and the New Testament, (Genesis 21:33, Deuteronomy 33:27, Jeremiah 10:10, Matthew 27:63, 1 Timothy 1:17, Hebrews 9:14).

81 Isaiah 11:1-2, Zechariah 12:10 to name two, there are many more such passages throughout the diglot.

82 Another key distinction from pagan “god-man” myths, where heroes like Hercules and Mithras were said to in effect have their “divine DNA” mixed with their humanity as a result of a false deity having sexual intercourse with a mortal woman.

(Aramaic John 5:26, Colossians 1:16-20, Hebrews 1:1-5).<sup>83</sup> The Netzari faith rejects the notion of a Trinity or the term of Tri-unity, that proposes three separate divine “persons” (Aramaic parsopa, Greek prosopon, Latin personna), for to posit separated divine natures - even while suggesting they agree one hundred percent of the time - is idolatry and a direct violation of the First and Second Commandments given at Sinai (Exodus 20:1-6, Deuteronomy 5:6-10).<sup>84</sup> Y’shua is one with His Father YHWH because his sharing of the one divine nature of YHWH keeps his divine side in constant communication with his separated humanity, or “will”.

4) On “Godhead”

We believe the nature of “Godhead” is revealed in Tanakh, specifically Isaiah 53:1 as the “arm of YHWH.” Mashiyach as YHWH’s saving and forgiving arm comes in YHWH’s own Name (Exodus 6:6, 23:20-22; John 17:11) and is directly representative of his relationship to His Father. An arm has no separated will from the body but moves under direct command, as do the rest of the limbs, of the mind. In the same way, it is an error to posit that the divine side of Y’shua is a separate entity from the Divine Mind of His Father YHWH, although Y’shua clearly also had his own human will, as well (Matthew 26:39).

5) On the binding nature of Hebrew Tanakh

We believe that the Hebrew Tanakh, commonly and erroneously referred to as the “Old Testament” is current, binding, authoritative and infallible. There is no conflict whatsoever between Tanakh and the Renewed Covenant, and we believe further that the Renewed Covenant also sheds much light on how Tanakh is best understood (called “fulfilled” in many areas). Therefore, it is extremely important to recognize that the foundation of the Renewed Covenant is the Tanakh and would be easily thrown into confusion without an excellent applied knowledge of the Tanakh (Matthew 26:54, Mark 14:49, Luke 4:21, 24:32, 44; John 2:22, 7:38, 42; 10:35; 13:18; 17:12; 19:24, 28, 36, 37; 20:9).

The Torah therefore has not passed away one yodh, as Y’shua himself said (Matthew 5:17-19, Luke 16:16-17) since the heavens and earth are still here. Details on how to observe Torah in light of Y’shua’s teachings are, of course, given in many other places throughout this diglot.

Furthermore, while there is much to be gained from the scholarship of all ancient variants of Tanakh (Peshitta Tanakh, LXX, Dead Sea Scrolls, Samaritan Pentateuch, etc.), we maintain that the essential message in terms of doctrine and proper practice has been preserved and can be ascertained to a high degree of certainty. It is therefore the Netzari approach to accept the Masoretic Text as base text, but to also include these other ancient sources that contain harmonious mutual readings.

Specifically, the Hebrew canon consists of 39 books<sup>85</sup> certified before the Common Era by Jewish authorities whom neither Y’shua nor his talmidim (disciples) ever countermanded. This principle

<sup>83</sup> A nature, or kyanna in Aramaic, is a theoretical construct. A qnoma, however, is a concretization or physical example from that nature. Any nature can have multiple occurrences of itself and yet remain a singular nature. So there is also one human nature as well, but 6 billion examples of that nature on the planet. On the divine side a shekinah or physical manifestation of YHWH’s will (e.g. the Burning Bush or the glory-smoke that filled the Temple after Solomon’s dedication) is a divine qnoma from the singular divine kyanna, but YHWH remains One. So it is with the qnoma from YHWH that is in His Son.

<sup>84</sup> Because by this same argument a pagan could believe in separate deities controlling for example the sea, the earth and the sky while under the command of the Ruler-god. These deities in myth are all created at the same time and out of the same substance; whereas the Son of YHWH, while eternal as a thought in his Father’s mind, nevertheless was actualized at a later time to do His Father’s work. YHWH, however, in His thought which later became the Miltha-Word of His Son, stands alone as the One Uncreated being, out of Whom everything else descends or unfolds. This puts the true understanding of YHWH as enshrined in Holy Writ in a wholly different category from that of the pagans.

<sup>85</sup> Josephus, in his preface to War Against the Jews, writes that these 39 books were viewed as 22 by the Jewish authorities of his day. There is no discrepancy. Instead, we know from ancient tradition that 12 minor prophets were considered to be one book and other sources record that what appears as “double books” (Samuel, Kings, Chronicles) were originally one (Ezra and Nehemiah was possibly one book as well). A combination of these factors easily reduces the number of books from 39 to 22.

is evidenced by the sources quoted by Y'shua as well the Pharisees<sup>86</sup>. Their corpus of discussion bears powerful witness to the titles comprising the Tanakh canon in the First Century, especially when combined with other primary evidence such as Josephus and the Dead Sea Scrolls record. Scripture affirms in numerous places, there is but One Instruction for Jew and for foreigner. Israel was intended to be the example for all other nations to follow, not the sole user of the Torah.

6) On the binding nature of the Renewed Covenant

We believe that the Aramaic traditions in general, and the Peshitta in particular, is the most valid, if not critical, source to understanding Y'shua's teachings. Netzarim believers are advocates for proving all Renewed Covenant teachings through the prism of Hebrew Tanakh and applying timeworn Hebraic understandings to all the source texts mentioned.

It is also our belief that the Peshitta text, for at least 22 Renewed Covenant books, is the most accurate record of the original autographs that has survived intact from the Apostolic Age through to modern times. We further believe that the only change between the originals in ktav ashurri ("Hebrew") script in Israel and the version that was preserved elsewhere in the Middle East is the preference of "Master Yah" rather than "YHWH" for the proper title of the Father, a trend that is in the minority in the Tanakh, though not unheard of (Exodus 15:1-2, Psalm 68:4). In all other respects, when restoring the archaic readings of the 22, what we have here in this diglot is absolutely the closest possible original NT available in the world; sacred, inviolate and perfect.

7) On the binding nature of "the Western Five"

For the Western Five of the Renewed Covenant (2 Peter, 2 and 3 John, Jude and Revelation), we accept the majority opinion that the most ancient surviving copies of these works at present have been retained in Greek; however, extensive evidence points to earlier Hebrew or Aramaic versions of these works which is currently lost to us, but which may well be restored prior to the end of this age. We fully accept a full 27-book canon, but not because modern authorities certify this. Instead, we accept ancient testimony that early Christendom also took into account that the book list of the original Netzarim in Israel included these texts.<sup>87</sup>

Concurrently, we reject readings added to the Eastern Peshitta and the Western Five that have clear evidence of tampering from later centuries, and we have scrupulously annotated each case of this tampering along with sound scholarly and historical reasons that explain how and why this happened.

It is also important to note that not one single "innovation" of the Roman Catholic church ever made it past the scribes of the Church of the East who were guarding the Eastern Peshitta 22-book canon. This is because many original Netzarim fled to this assembly in the Persian Empire, beyond the reach of both Rome and Byzantium, and although the Church of the East did evolve according to "Constantinian Christianity" in later centuries, its Scripture maintains an unbroken chain. Hundreds of examples of this fact can be found in this diglot and in other Netzari publications.

In conclusion, we affirm the Western Five as free of doctrinal error, inspired by the Ruach haKodesh and being comprised of the sacred and eternal words of YHWH; but we also acknowledge, that there have been challenges in its transmission and custody unlike the other 22 books. Therefore, our belief in the Western Five rests more in a faith-based rather than a historical-textual paradigm,

<sup>86</sup> We should also note that Rav Shaul did not confine his quotations to these same kinds of sources. As we have seen in his writings, Rav Shaul has no qualms quoting from pagan sources such as Menander and Epimenides, along with making references even to Greco-Roman mythology. However, a distinction must be made, as this is merely Rav Shaul's attempt to use the cultural background of his audience to win them over to the truth (1 Corinthians 9:20-22). And, of course, this method does not also prevent Rav Shaul from authoritatively quoting from almost every book in the Tanakh for his audience as well. Furthermore, for Rav Shaul to quote from pagan sources in his letters meant that he most definitely did not consider his letters to be on par with "Set Apart Scripture." No man of Hebraic Jewish faith (especially of Paul's caliber) would even think of writing such things into Scripture that would be considered on par with Tanakh.

but this fact does not reduce our devotion to it as a valid part of the Renewed Covenant, excepting again those readings that can be shown to be later additions of record.

8) On the Literal, or Pshat, Interpretation of Scripture

We believe that Scripture, as Elohim-breathed text, exists at multiple and simultaneous levels of understanding. However, there is no esoteric or mystical analysis that can be valid if the basic plain meaning of the Tanakh or Renewed Covenant texts are overturned. This rule applies to all great historical interpretive works that claim to be scripturally-based, including but not limited to the Talmud, the Sefer Yetzirah, Zohar, Bahir, Book of Yashar, Book of Enoch, the Kabbalah and also the writings of Greek based “Church Founders.”

Netzarim reject all claims that the Ruach haKodesh inspires “spiritual revelations” that contradict or oppose Scripture. Similarly all such “power grabs” that attempt to substitute YHWH’s Word with man made traditions, whether Jewish or Christian, are hereby repudiated. We further believe that there is an objective standard for all human conduct, a clear right and wrong, from which man must scrupulously adhere to at all times or face disaster (Deuteronomy 30:15, 19; 32:39; Judges 2:10-23).

We further believe that all Commands of YHWH, regardless from which Covenant writings they are derived, can be understood and practiced with reasonable effort from sincere seekers of truth without being filtered by institutions or structures not endorsed in Set Apart Writ.

We further believe the literal truth of all historical events enshrined in Scripture, from Eden, to the parting of the waters for Moshe, to the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection of Y’shua haMashiyach, and the judgment and restoration of the world at the End of Days.

9) On the tribal inheritance (spiritual/physical) of Israel, Judah and the nations

We believe that the promises YHWH made to the Twelve Tribes of Israel include Judah, and furthermore, that Judah is blessed of YHWH (Genesis 49:11, Zechariah 8:23, Luke 15:11-32, John 4:22, Romans 11:1-29). We categorically reject all forms of anti-Semitism, both subtle and overt, which would attempt to separate the identity of Judah from members of modern Jewry today.

Conversely, while we can neither confirm nor deny any individual’s belief that they are blood descendants from one of the Ten Northern Tribes taken into Assyrian captivity in 722 BCE, we can and do most certainly affirm that it is incumbent upon every human being, regardless of lineage, to embrace both Torah observance and the identity of Y’shua as YHWH’s Mashiyach.

We further believe that the Renewed Covenant was first directed to Judah and Israel, and then to anyone else who joins with them (Jeremiah 31:31-34, Ephesians 2:11-13, Hebrews 8:8). The tribe of Judah is the root that supports the nations as well as the other Tribes of Israel (Genesis 49:11), not the other way around. If individual members, Jewish or Gentile, natural or wild branches are broken off, it is for violating Set Apart standards with no ethnic considerations given, since YHWH is no respecter of persons for those who violate His covenant (Leviticus 18:28; 20:22-27, Romans 1:16; 2:9-10, 10:12; 1 Corinthians 12:13, Ephesians 6:8, Colossians 3:11).

We believe that tribe of Ephraim (literally and spiritually speaking), though nearly defunct at one time (Isaiah 7:8, Hosea 5:3-14, 9:16), will join with the rest of the nations (Jeremiah 31:9, 18-20; Ezekiel 48:5-6; Hosea 11:8-12) to become part of the One House of Israel according to One Kingdom of Elohim. This process necessarily includes both Gentiles coming into the Judah Gate (Zechariah 8:23) and former Israelites who have lived among the nations and are returning to their tribal inheritance, both physically and spiritually (Ezekiel 36:24-27). Finally, righteous Gentiles who have no Israelite blood whatsoever, will also be counted as priests and Levites (Isaiah 66).

10) On Spiritual Realms and Their Relationship to the Physical Sciences

We believe in the literal existence of both heavenly and demonic spiritual forces, and that these same forces greatly influence good and evil effects in the physical world. Such an admission does not deny physical realities, but considers possible causes of aforesaid effects beyond bodily processes alone, for man does not live by the body and its physical needs alone (Deuteronomy 8:3, Matthew 4:4). While there is also symbolism and metaphor present in the Good News accounts of Y'shua exorcising demons from people, attempts to suggest that a metaphoric exclusivity applies to Aramaic terms such as shaida and dewa to the insane, and divorced from negative spiritual forces completely, are erroneous and fully renounced.

We further believe that the first command from YHWH to humanity includes the disciplined observation of the Earth, which is necessary to righteously “subdue” (steward) it (Genesis 1:28). Rav Shaul’s command in 1 Thessalonians 5:21-22 to “explore everything...hold fast to the good and fly from everything evil” reflects this same method, even as we are taught in Psalm 19:1 that “the heavens declare the glory of Elohim; the skies proclaim the work of His hands.” Therefore as the modern sciences explore YHWH’s handiwork, evidence of YHWH as the Great Designer is being progressively revealed.<sup>88</sup>

The first mention in any ancient literature<sup>89</sup> of a round Earth – a sphere or khoog in the original Hebrew – is contained in Isaiah 40:22.<sup>90</sup> The heavens themselves, or the face of the deep, is also described in Proverbs 8:27 as having a circular character most like an orbit. It is notable that the order of Genesis of simpler life in the seas coming before land animals and culminating with man’s creation is mirrored in what modern day biologists have pieced together from the fossil record. Further, in order for life to be tov meod (very good) it must also have within itself the ability to adapt to its environment that was also created by YHWH; or, if YHWH permits, to go extinct from the planet.<sup>91</sup>

In the end, it is the duty of every person of faith to explore these issues fully and be subject to the rigors of his own conscience. But, neither is there any reason to suppose that true science and true faith are in conflict.

11) On the timing of Shabbat and the Great Feasts

We of the Netzari faith observe the Seventh Day weekly Shabbat and YHWH’s annual feast celebrations, some Netzari communities hold that “the morrow after the Sabbath” (Lev 23:11) for putting the sickle to the grain is 16 Nisan – a premise that is also held by the Pharisees. Other Netzari hold that this Shabbat refers to the weekly Shabbat during Chag haMatzah (Feast of Unleavened Bread); therefore, First Fruits always falls on the first day of the week (Sunday). The Tzadakim (Sadducees) of Y’shua’s time and Karaites today<sup>92</sup> follow the latter reckoning.

88 It is another matter entirely whether the individual scientists who make certain scientific discoveries recognize the relationships that exist between the metaphysical (spiritual) and natural worlds.

89 Prior to this time all ancient scientific authorities said the Earth was flat. The famous experiment of the Greek scientist Erastosthenes that proved both the shape and gave a close estimate of the planet’s actual size would not be done before about 240 BCE, by which time the prophet Isaiah’s description of the Earth as a circle-sphere was almost 500 years old. Furthermore, the common phrase “end of the Earth” throughout Tanakh (Deuteronomy 28:64-65; Psalm 19:4-6, 22:27, 59:13) in no way refers to anything other than boundaries of land to sea, land and sea to sky, or sky to the Universe. The same can be said for the kanaph or “corners” of the Earth mentioned in Isaiah 11:12.

90 And so, ironically, the famous scientist Galileo could have made a scriptural argument against the Roman Church and chided them for using pagan sources over the Scriptures for their beliefs! Furthermore, the mis-reading of lines that talk about “shaking the Earth by its edges” (Job 38:13) could also refer to the arc of a spherical object, like a marble for example. Or, since the word in Hebrew for “earth” can also mean “land”; this possibility means that the wicked are not expelled from a totally flat Earth, either. Such harmonization is necessary given the total picture Scripture provides.

91 And certainly there are species such as the Leviathan which were apparently around in ancient times but which no longer exist today.

92 This is admittedly somewhat of an oversimplification, as some Karaite opinions seem to have wider support than others. Most Netzarim, for example, agree with the Karaites that there are some later additions/excesses to the current Rabbinic calendar and that observation of the Moon is at least important enough as a duty along with consulting fixed cycles. However, that is not the same thing as saying that the Karaite solutions to the issues they raise about the Rabbinics are the only ones

All Netzari believe the Great Feasts of YHWH contain extensive spiritual and prophetic elements that can and will be accessed only by observance of these Kadosh Moedim (Set Apart Appointments).

12) On the nature of Tikkun (Repairing/Restoring) YHWH's Original Knowledge to humankind in the latter days

Isaiah 29:9-16 and Daniel 12:1-4 demonstrate that there is a new hidden knowledge that is coming to humanity towards the End of Days. This is not, though, so much an addition to canonical texts as it is a better understanding of what has been revealed before (Luke 24:44, 1 Corinthians 13:12). Certainly, to a large degree, the “sealed book” mentioned by Isaiah can well be said to be that of the Aramaic Peshitta, which was in a dialect that the prophet could not read. On the other hand, the “sealed book” is also a teaching referenced partially, but not necessarily fully expounded in Set Apart Writ (Matthew 13:11, Luke 8:10, Colossians 2:1-3).

We of the Netzari faith are of one mind that the way to access the hidden knowledge is through living a moral faith-based existence coupled with serious study and reverence for the sacred texts. It is from this solid foundation that deeper insights and clarifications of the plain Word emerge, but these always enrich and never contradict that same Word.

We of the Netzari faith remain steadfast to the decree that we are not to add or take away from the Set Apart Text, as YHWH has clearly warned us (Revelation 22:18-19). So, yes, there are many additional layers to the existing text as well as untold new discoveries to be made that will always make for fruitful exploration, but there is nothing either before or after the collection that we have which can supplant or in any way substitute for the authority of the written Word of YHWH.

13) On the nature of Tikkun the human condition, judgment and the fate of the Cosmos

Daniel 12:1-4 along with a key statement by Y'shua in Luke 14:14, makes it clear that there is a separate resurrection of first the righteous and then the wicked.<sup>93</sup> The plain meaning of these passages then tells us with great force that the judgment of the human nefesh,<sup>94</sup> or soul, is not something that happens immediately after a person's death, but is deferred until the Last Day. Obviously if even an extremely righteous man like Samuel was not taken up to his eternal reward immediately upon his death but “slumbered” in the earth, the same must be said of the rest of us. See 1 Samuel 28:7-15. More details of this principle are also provided in Isaiah 26:12-19.

Finally, as the Living Miltha/Word himself, Y'shua haMashiyach maintains this teaching with full force into our own day. See John 6:39-54; 11:23-27; 12:46-50.

Torah

Torah, commonly known as the Five Books of Moses from Genesis to Deuteronomy, is the Word of YHWH as Covenant, His “instruction in righteousness.” Torah contains the Terms and Conditions of YHWH's Covenant between Himself and mankind. Those who observe Torah make both private and public declaration that YHWH is Just and altogether Righteous, that there is only One Elohim whose Name is YHWH, and that He Reigns in their hearts according to the Perfection and Beauty of His Spirit. Torah is meant for everyone regardless of ethnicity, religion, location or language; but YHWH also calls individuals to serve as Cohanim (priests), Leviim

---

Netzirim embrace.

<sup>93</sup> See Acts 24:15, where Rav Shaul counts this as a key tenet of his Netzari faith, and also Revelation 20:5-6.

<sup>94</sup> The Torah does not enjoin though the Greco-Roman idea of “the soul” per se, as something separately inside a human being. Rather the Hebrew word nefesh really means “life force”, so man does not so much have a soul, but instead he is a soul. So when Y'shua talks about both body and nefesh being destroyed, he means our life-force, consciousness, personality, emotions and memories as well!

(those who assist the Cohanim) and Judges to fulfill specific roles for the benefit of the greater population.

Torah is Spiritual, brought from Heaven by the Word of YHWH. While there are blessings for obedience and curses for disobedience, Torah elicits either a pro or con response to YHWH's Word; there is no middle ground. The Word of YHWH is the preincarnate Mashiyach; therefore, Mashiyach is the Living Torah.

Torah is YHWH's Love Letter to all of His Creation, designed to increase our capacity for Faith. YHWH is a Loving, Compassionate, Merciful and Forgiving Father who seeks to shower His children with blessings, if we will turn to Him and obey His Commandments.

The root word for Torah is "owr" ("aur" in Aramaic) which means "light." "For the commandment is a lamp; and the Torah is light; and reproofs of instruction are the way of life" (Proverbs 6:23).

"To the Torah and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this Word, it is because there is no light in them" (Isaiah 8:20).

"Hearken unto me, my people; and give ear unto me, O my nation: for a Torah shall proceed from me, and I will make my judgment to rest for a light of the people" (Isaiah 54:4).

"Thy Word is a Lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (Psalm 119:105).

Torah is a Faith-conditional Covenant which through observance in Mashiyach brings manifold blessings. Torah observance:

- Reveals the "mystery of the Kingdom of Elohim."
- Provides a spiritual connection with Mashiyach.
- Provides Prophetic discernment of present and future events in the Spirit of Mashiyach.
- Is pleasing unto YHWH and His Mashiyach and brings all manner of true blessings in this life and in the world to come, and much more!

Torah, like every other covenant or contract ever written, demands the element of faith to bring mutual benefits between covenantor and covenantee; however, this particular contract – the Covenant with YHWH – extends beyond our death.

"But Elohim will redeem my soul from the power of the grave" (Psalm 49:15).

Spiritual battles intensify from the moment one begins to observe Torah. As a person walks in Torah, the Ruach haKodesh (Set Apart Spirit) convicts them of sin, making them more sensitive to good and evil. As the person's awareness of good and evil increases they are given more Grace to turn away from sinful thoughts and habits which have become intolerable and unwelcome to their souls.

Torah observance is the action of Faith which can also be thought of as "applied righteousness." This is the work of the Ruach haKodesh that awakens the spiritual man to speak and live according to the Word of YHWH as his ultimate authority. According to Y'shua Mashiyach, "If you love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:15). "He who has my commandments with him and keeps them, he is who loves me and he who loves me will be loved by my Father. And I will love him and reveal myself to him" (John 14:21). "If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept the commandments of my Father, and I abide in His love" (John 15:10).

The "Commandments of my Father" always refers to Torah. Aramaic "khawdata" or Hebrew "chadasha" literally means "renewal" or "to make new"; therefore the New Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34) is a "renewal", or a "making new" of the Covenant YHWH had formerly established between Himself and his people. Y'shua and his Talmidim (disciples) kept his Father's commandments, and did not subscribe to any anti-Torah religious ideas which are the product of anti-Messiah. The rebellion against the Word of YHWH (Mashiyach) on Earth began when haSatan (the Adversary) in Gan Eden deceived Eve into thinking that disobedience was harmless.

The finest definition of Torah in the Ketuvim Netzarim is to look to Mashiyach himself. The second best is: “All Scripture that was written by the Spirit is profitable for instruction and for decisive refutation, and for correction, and for deep extensive learning in righteousness” (2 Timothy 3:16). Mashiyach Y’shua and all the Shlichim were upright and Torah observant. Although often accused of breaking Torah, they never did, and there is absolutely NO scripture that would support that allegation.

The mind that wrote Torah created the Universe; therefore, Torah is universal in every respect. Torah disciplines and protects us from becoming prey to the wiles of the enemy. Through these divine guidelines we are thoroughly protected and provided specific instruction on what to eat, drink, wear, speak and think; we are even shown how to act as ambassadors of Mashiyach. With Torah written upon our hearts, we are never at a loss to enter into and understand that which YHWH desires for us.

The Importance of Torah

YHWH revealed himself according to both male and female attributes and employed the use of both masculine and feminine attributes and titles. His Divine Instruction, among other things, delineates the difference between male and female – including guidelines concerning our dress (clothing) which serves to highlight those differences. This came into play after humankind fell into sin in the Garden of Eden and it became necessary to cover our nakedness – which YHWH Himself accomplished by putting a temporary “covering” on man and woman.

Male and female were created in the image of Elohim; the marriage covenant is a picture of the Covenant between us (the Bride of Mashiyach) and the groom (Mashiyach). The distinctions of male and female are Set Apart unto YHWH according to His Torah and, therefore, clothing plays a significant part in how each of us present ourselves according to gender and modesty. Clothing on the outside speaks of that which is on the inside; but regardless of our levels of Torah Consciousness, each one of us is making a declaration about whether we belong to YHWH and His Mashiyach, or whether we are at war with Him.

Torah as a spiritual “fashion statement” is the thread and fabric of the white garments of righteousness that makes one acceptable for the Wedding Feast. The Spirit of YHWH works in conjunction with Torah to provoke each soul to walk in righteousness and to communicate with Heaven and respond to the offer of the Kingdom of Elohim. The Targumist (Onqelos) wrote that Genesis 2:7 (the living soul of man) is better understood as the “spirit of speech.” In other words, YHWH breathed a part of Himself into each individual.

Our speech, both in the spirit and what comes out of our mouths, shows whether we are separated unto YHWH as a Kedoshim (Set Apart People), or separated from Him. Torah strongly prohibits tale bearing, gossip and slander; we are required to speak Truth one to another in love. Y’shua taught: “I say to you for every vain word that the sons of men speak, they will give an account of it in the day of judgment” (Matthew 12:36).

Every thought has been accessible to YHWH, exposing all our intentions and desires: “Elohim saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually” (Genesis 6:5). Torah guides mankind to know what constitutes Set Apart thoughts unto YHWH: “And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that this song shall testify against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for I know their imagination which they go about, even now, before I have brought them into the land which I swear” (D’varim/Deut. 31:21).

Y’shua taught: “For every tree is known by its fruit. For they do not gather thorns from figs nor do they gather grapes from a thorn bush. From a good man the treasures that are in his good heart brings forth good things, and an evil man the evil treasures that are in his heart brings forth evil things. For the abundance of the heart speak the lips” (Luke 6:44, 45). He also elevated the importance of thought consciousness: “But I say to you that all who that looks at a woman as lustfully at once has committed adultery in his heart” (Matthew 5:28).

Keeping Torah is NOT a suggestion!

Y’shua amplified Torah to the hearts of his followers: “YHWH is well pleased for His righteousness’ sake; he will magnify the Torah, and make it honorable.” (Isaiah 42:21). All who teach that Torah is impossible to observe, are choosing to believe in the lie from haSatan. Those who break Torah demonstrate that they have no Grace (power to stop from sinning). Rav Shaul explains: “For many are stiff necked and their discourses vain; and they mislead the minds of people, especially such as are of the circumcision. The mouth of these should be stopped: they corrupt many families; and they teach what they should not, for the sake of filthy lucre.” (Titus 1:10, 11). The “circumcision” here specifically refers to religious elite who dictate religious lifestyles for others; these are the Rabbis, Priests, Pastors, Evangelists, Spiritual Leaders or whoever makes and practices a tradition that makes void Torah or the teachings of Mashiyach.

Rav Shaul taught that Torah is spiritual, not carnal: “Y’shua the Mashiyach is the same yesterday, today, and forever.” (Hebrews 13:8). The Spirit of Mashiyach is the Word of YHWH Who existed at the beginning of Creation and will continue forever. The Word of YHWH spoke with Adam in Gan Eden and with Noach and Avraham, and it was Mashiyach who gave Torah to Moshe. Mashiyach is the Messenger of YHWH who visited the Prophets and all our Spiritual Forefathers; this is why Torah can only be correctly understood in Mashiyach. To make void Torah is to bring mankind down to the reprobation of the Adversary.

“Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear Elohim, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole of man. For Elohim shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil” (Eccl. 12:13). Notice the “whole of man” which indicates that the righteous element of the human spirit is the only component of man that will endure into eternity; everything else will vaporize. Unfortunately, translators inserted words like “duty of” man, “applies to every person” or “applies to everyone,” or “is the right of every man,” etc.; when, in fact, the Fear of Elohim is the Spirit of Mashiyach.

As we keep the Commandments of YHWH we are transformed into the Image of Elohim, even His Likeness which is Mashiyach. It is this component of the spiritual man that will resurrect unto eternal life and be forever with Mashiyach. The man who violates Torah lacks the eternal component; therefore he will perish: “And he said unto them, Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which you shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this Torah. For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this you shall prolong your days in the land, whither you go over Jordan to possess it.” (Deut. 32:46, 47)

As the Ruach haKodesh writes Torah upon the heart we are being Set Apart unto YHWH to enter into His Perfection. The Word of YHWH requires that we be perfect as our Father in Heaven is perfect (Genesis 6:9; 17:1; Deut. 18:13; 2 Sam. 22:33; 1 Kings 8:61; 1 Chron. 29:18, 19; Job 1:1, 8; 2:3; Psalm 101:2-6; 1 Peter 5:10; Matthew 5:48; Revelation 3:2). This perfection comes about from abiding with Him and having His Torah written upon our hearts.

Torah in the Renewed Covenant

First Commandment

“Then Elohim instructed the people as follows: “I am YHWH your Elohim, who rescued you from slavery in Egypt. Do not worship any other gods besides me.”

Exodus 20:1-3

Gospels and Emissaries <sup>95</sup>	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
Y'shua replied, “The most important commandment is this: ‘Hear, O Israel! YHWH your Elohim is the one and only YHWH. And you must love YHWH your Elohim with all your heart, all your soul, all your mind, and all your strength. The second is equally important: ‘Love your neighbor as yourself.’ No other commandment is greater than these.” The teacher of religious law replied, “Well said, Teacher. You have spoken the truth by saying that there is only one Elohim and no other. And I know it is important to love him with all my heart and all my understanding and all my strength, and to love my neighbors as myself. This is more important than to offer all of the burnt offerings and sacrifices required in the law.” Realizing this man’s understanding, Y’shua said to him, “You are not far from the Kingdom of Elohim.” And after that, no one dared to ask him any more questions. (Mark 12:28-34)	Yet for us there is but one Elohim, the Father, from whom all things came and for whom we live. (1 Corinthians 8:6)  These events happened as a warning to us, so that we would not crave evil things as they did or worship idols as some of them did. For the Scriptures say, “The people celebrated with feasting and drinking, and they indulged themselves in pagan revelry.” (1 Corinthians 10:6-7)  You believe that there is one Elohim. Good! Even the demons believe that--and shudder. (Ya’akov 2:18)	There is only one YHWH <sup>96</sup> , one faith, one baptism, and there is only one Elohim and Father, who is over us all and in us all and living through us all. (Ephesians 4:5-6)	“Give praise to our Elohim, all you his bond-servants, you who fear Him, the small and the great.” And I heard, as it were, the voice of the great multitude and as the sound of many waters and the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying: “HalleluYah! For YHWH our Elohim, the Almighty, reigns...his bride has made herself ready. And it was given to her to clothe herself in the fine linen... for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, “Write, blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.” And he said to me, “These are the true words of Elohim...” (Revelation 19:5-10)  And when I heard and saw, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed me these things. And he said to me, “Don’t do that; I am a fellow servant of yours, and of the brethren the prophets and of those who heed the words of this book. Worship Elohim.” (Revelation 22:8-9)

<sup>95</sup> This chart follows the classification system of the NT described elsewhere in this diglot. The 27 books of the NT are re-organized firstly into 22 books and subsequently into four “scrolls” that contain groupings of these books. The Four Scrolls are: 1) Gospels and Emissaries, containing Matthew through Acts; 2) The Major Testimonies, containing Hebrews, the Testimony of the Two Brothers of our Master [Ya’akov and Yehuda], The Testimony of Keefa [1 and 2 Peter], Romans and 1 and 2 Corinthians; 3) The Ten, containing the remaining Pauline Epistles [Galatians, Ephesians, Colossians, Philippians, 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians, 1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, Titus and Philemon] and 4) The Second Testimony of Yochanan [1-3 John and Revelation]. Tanakh quotes are derived from the New Living Translation of the Scriptures, with the exception that YHWH (and Elohim) have been restored to the text to reflect the original Hebrew. This version was preferred for readability but also checked against the Hebrew.

<sup>96</sup> Often this particular passage in Ephesians is thought to refer to “one Master” as in Y’shua. Once again though, the Aramaic makes it clear with the use of the word MarYah that it is YHWH being referenced.

Second Commandment

“Do not make idols of any kind, whether in the shape of birds or animals or fish. You must never worship or bow down to them, for I, YHWH your Elohim, am a jealous Elohim who will not share your affection with any other gods! I do not leave unpunished the sins of those who hate me, but I punish the children for the sins of their parents to the third and fourth generations. But I lavish my love on those who love me and obey my commands, even for a thousand generations.”

Exodus 20:4-6

Y'shua said to him, “Away from me, Satan! For it is written: Worship YHWH your Elohim, and serve Him only.” (Matthew 4:10) Again you have heard that it was said to the people long ago, ‘do not break your oaths, but keep the oaths you have made to YHWH.’ But I tell you, do not swear at all; either by heaven, for it is Elohim’s throne, or by the earth, for it is His footstool; or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the Great King. And do not swear by your head, for you cannot make even one hair white or black. Simply let your yes be yes and your no be no. Anything beyond this comes from the evil one. (Matthew 5:33-38) Therefore, since we are Elohim’s offspring, we should not think that the Divine Being is like silver or stone—an image made by man’s design and skill. (Acts 17:29)	They exchanged the glory of the immortal Elohim for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles. Therefore Elohim gave them over to their sinful desires of their sexual impurity for the degrading of their bodies with one another. They exchanged the truth of Elohim for a lie, and served created things rather than the Creator, who is forever praised. Amen. (Romans 1:23-25) So, my dear friends, flee from the worship of idols...What am I trying to say? Am I saying that the idols to whom the pagans bring sacrifices are real gods and that these sacrifices are of some value? No, not at all. What I am saying is that these sacrifices are offered to demons, not to Elohim. And I don’t want any of you to be partners with demons. You cannot drink from the cup of our Master (Y’shua) and from the cup of demons, too. You cannot eat at our Master’s (Y’shua’s) Table and at the table of demons, too. What? Do you dare to rouse our Master’s (Y’shua’s) jealousy as Israel did? Do you think we are stronger than he is? (1 Corinthians 10:14, 19-22)	Don’t be fooled by what they say. For that day will not come until there is a great rebellion against Elohim and the man of lawlessness is revealed – the one who brings destruction. He will exalt himself and defy every god that there is and tear down every object of adoration and worship. He will position himself in the temple of Elohim, claiming that he himself is Elohim. (2 Thessalonians 2:3-4) Formerly when you did not know Elohim, you were slaves to those who by their nature are not gods. (Galatians 4:8) The fruits of the sinful nature are obvious... idolatry...I warn you as I did before that those who live like this will not inherit the kingdom of Elohim. (Galatians 5:19-21)	Dear children, keep yourselves free from idols. (1 Yochanan 5:21) The rest of mankind that were not killed by these plagues still did not repent of the work of their hands; they did not stop worshipping demons, and idols of gold, silver, bronze, stone and wood—idols that cannot see or hear or walk. (Revelation 9:20) But the... idolaters their place will be in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death. (Revelation 21:8)
---	---	--	---

Third Commandment

You shall not misuse the name of YHWH your Elohim, for YHWH will not hold anyone guiltless who misuses His name.

Exodus 20:7

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
“This then is how you shall pray: Our Father, who is in heaven, Set Apart is Your name.” (Matthew 6:9) “Now my heart is troubled and what shall I say? Father save me from this hour? No. It was for this very reason that I came to this hour. Father, glorify Your name!” Then a voice came from heaven, “I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again.” (Yochanan 12:27-28) Set Apart Father, protect them by the power of Your name--the name You gave me<sup>97</sup>--so that they may be one even as we are one. (Yochanan 17:11)	So he (Y’shua, with YHWH as part of his name) became as much superior to the angels, as the name he has inherited is superior to theirs (that only have “El” in them). (Hebrews 1:4)	Wherefore, also, Elohim has highly exalted him and given him a name which is more excellent than all names; that at the name of Y’shua every knee should bow, of (beings) in heaven and on earth and under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Master YHWH is Y’shua Mashiyach to the glory of Elohim his Father. (Philippians 2:9-11)	I write to you dear children, because you have been forgiven on account of His name. (1 Yochanan 2:12)

<sup>97</sup> This is the key verse for understanding why praying in Y’shua’s name is not idolatry. When a person says Y’shua, he or she is only referencing an affirmation of faith contained in his name that goes to the glory of YHWH. Y’shua means “YHWH is salvation”, and since YHWH is in the name given to the Mashiyach, all who call on Mashiyach’s name are actually calling on YHWH, and sharing in eternal life through YHWH.

Fourth Commandment

Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

Six days shall you labor and do all your work. But the seventh day is a Sabbath to YHWH your Elohim. On it you shall not do any work, neither you nor your manservant, nor your maidservant nor your animals nor the alien within your gates. For in six days YHWH made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, but He rested on the seventh day. Therefore YHWH blessed the seventh day and made it holy.

Exodus 20:8-11

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten
Pray that your flight will not take place during the winter or on the Sabbath. <sup>98</sup> (Matthew 24:20) He (Y'shua) went to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, and on the Sabbath day went into the synagogue, as was his custom. <sup>99</sup> (Luke 4:14) But Barnabas and Paul traveled inland to Antioch of Pisidia. On the Sabbath they went to the synagogue for the services. (Acts 13:14) On the Sabbath we went a little way outside the city to a riverbank, where we supposed that some people met for prayer, and we sat down to speak with some women who had come together. (Acts 16:13) Each Sabbath found Paul at the synagogue, trying to convince the Jews and Greeks alike. (Acts 18:4)	For there remains a Sabbath day of rest for the people of Elohim. (Hebrews 4:9)	Therefore do not let anyone else judge you by what you eat or what you drink, or with respect to a sacred festival, a New Moon festival or the Sabbath day. <sup>100</sup> (Colossians 2:16)

98 Y'shua teaches that Shabbat is suspended for the sake of saving life. By doing so he assures any disciples who may otherwise have followed a religious tradition. He warns them to get motivated when they see the signs, but this is certainly no indictment against Shabbat observance. Another key element of this passage: Y'shua is clearly saying that Shabbat is valid until the end of time, as these prophecies clearly relate to the End of Days! The prophecies regarding the Acharit HaYamim (latter days) are throughout the Tanakh; the prophetic links are clear and directly pointed to the days leading up to his return as Mashiach Ben David.

99 Notice that Y'shua and his disciples observed Shabbat to a different standard than his opponents. Y'shua exposed the hypocrisy of man-made traditions. Tradition says circumcision is okay on Shabbat, which requires physical work, yet Y'shua was condemned for performing healings on Shabbat. The Dead Sea Scrolls record how the Essenes, contrary to the halakha of both Y'shua and the Pharisees, would not lift an animal from a pit on Shabbat (see also Matthew 12:1). Isaiah 56, 58 and 66 provide plenty of prophetic authority that Shabbat is to be kept by YHWH's people, both Jew and Gentile, right through into the new Heavens and new Earth.

100 Here is a perfect example of one of the most abused verses within NT Scripture which shows how the false Church system has twisted the Word into the opposite of what was originally intended. The Colossians were originally pagans who became believers in Y'shua Mashiach. As a result, these new believers faced severe ridicule from their still-pagan families, friends, neighbors, etc. Rav Shaul is clearly exhorting these new believers to not let others from outside the Faith lay judgment (condemnation) upon them. Rav Shaul refers to Shabbat and New Moon festivals which are 100 percent unique to Israel and are clearly prophesied for both Jew and Gentile through to the new Heavens and new Earth (Isaiah 66:23).

Fifth Commandment

Honor your father and your mother, so that you may live long in the land YHWH your Elohim is giving you.
Exodus 20:12

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
And He answered and said to them, “Why do you yourselves transgress the commandment of Elohim for the sake of your tradition? “For Elohim said, ‘Honor your Father and Mother,’ and, ‘He who speaks evil of Father or Mother is to be put to death.’ “But you say, ‘Whoever says to his father or mother, “Whatever I have that would help you has been given to Elohim,” he is not to honor his father or his mother.’ And by this you invalidated the word of Elohim for the sake of your tradition. (Matthew 15:3-6) And He said to him, “Why are you asking Me about what is good? There is only One who is good; but if you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments.” Then he said to Him, “Which ones?” And Y’shua said, “...Honor your Father and Mother.” (Matthew 19:17, 19)	They have become filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, greed and depravity. They are full of envy, murder, strife, deceit and malice. They are gossips, slanderers, Elohim-haters, insolent, arrogant and boastful; they invent ways of doing evil; they disobey their parents; they are senseless, faithless, heartless, ruthless. Although they know Elohim’s righteous decree that those who do such things deserve death, they not only continue to do these very things but also approve of those who practice them. (Romans 1:29-32)	Children, obey your parents in our Master (Y’shua)<sup>101</sup> for this is right. Honor your Father and Mother (which is the first commandment with a promise), so that it may be well with and that you may live long on the earth. (Ephesians 6:1-3) Children, be obedient to your parents in all things, for this is well-pleasing to our Master (Y’shua). (Colossians 3:20)	Everyone who loves the father loves his child as well.<sup>102</sup> (1 John 5:1)

101 The phrase in the Aramaic is “Maran,” meaning “Our Master,” i.e., Y’shua.
102 The context is both “Father” and “children” (YHWH and fellow believers) as well as one’s family members.

Sixth Commandment

You shall not commit murder.

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
You have heard that the ancients were told, 'You shall not commit murder' and 'Whoever commits murder shall be liable to the court.' (Matthew 5:21) "For out of the heart come evil thoughts... murders. (Matthew 15:19) And He said to him, "Why are you asking Me about what is good? There is only One who is good; but if you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments." Then he said to Him, "Which ones?" And Y'shua said, "You shall not commit murder." (Matthew 19:17-18)	Being filled with all unrighteousness... murder. (Romans 1:29) You shall not murder. (Romans 13:9) For He who said, "Do not commit adultery;" also said, "Do not commit murder." Now if you do not commit adultery, but do commit murder, you have become a transgressor of the Torah. (Ya'akov 2:11) You lust and do not have; so you commit murder. You are envious and cannot obtain; so you fight and quarrel. You do not have because you do not ask. (Ya'akov 4:2)	We know that the Torah is good if one uses it properly. We also know that Torah is made not for the righteous but for those who kill their fathers or mothers, for murderers. (1 Timothy 1:8-9)	Anyone who hates his brother is a murderer, and you know that no murderer has eternal life in him. (1 John 3:15) But the...murderers, their place will be in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death. (Revelation 21:8)

Seventh Commandment

You shall not commit adultery.

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
“You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall not commit adultery’; but I say to you that everyone who looks at a woman with lust for her has already committed adultery with her in his heart... “It was said, ‘whoever sends his wife away, let him give her a certificate of divorce’; but I say to you that everyone who divorces his wife, except for the reason of un-chastity, makes her commit adultery; and whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery.” (Matthew 5:27-28, 31-32) And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for immorality, and marries another woman commits adultery.” (Matthew 19:9) Then he said to him, “Which ones?” And Y’shua said, “You shall not...commit adultery.” (Matthew 19:18)	You who say that one should not commit adultery, do you commit adultery? You who abhor idols, do you rob temples? (Romans 2:22) You shall not commit adultery. (Romans 13:9) For He who said, “Do not commit adultery;” also said, “Do not commit murder.” Now if you do not commit adultery, but do commit murder, you have become a transgressor of the Torah. (Ya’akov 2:11) Having eyes full of adultery that never cease from sin, enticing unstable souls, having a heart trained in greed, accursed children. (2 Peter 2:14)	We know that the Torah is good if one uses it properly. We also know that Torah is made not for the righteous but for lawbreakers... for adulterers. (1 Timothy 1:8-10)	Behold, I will throw her into a coffin,<sup>103</sup> and those who commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they repent of her deeds. (Revelation 2:22) But the... sexually immoral—their place will be in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death.” (Revelation 21:8)

103 The Aramaic word arsa can mean “bed” but is better translated as “coffin” - a very strong indication that Revelation was not originally penned in Greek, since Greek has distinct words for bed and coffin. The Greek reading of punishing a prostitute by throwing her on a bed is wrong. The Greek reading is in fact so egregious that the translators of KJV and other versions add in italics the words of sickness as a way to make the “bed” reading more plausible. However, of sickness is not in the Greek text. The word arsa appears both in the Aramaic translation from the Greek known as Peshitto, as well as the Crawford manuscript of Revelation.

Eighth Commandment

You shall not steal.
Exodus 20:15

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
And He said to him, "Why are you asking Me about what is good? There is only One who is good; but if you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments." Then he said to Him, "Which ones?" And Y'shua said, "You shall not steal." (Matthew 19:17-18) "For out of the heart come evil thoughts... thefts." (Matthew 15:19)	You, therefore, who teach another, do you not teach yourself? You who preach that one shall not steal, do you steal? (Romans 2:21) You shall not steal. (Romans 13:9) (Neither) thieves nor the greedy nor drunkards nor slanderers nor swindlers will inherit the kingdom of Elohim. (1 Corinthians 6:10)	He who steals must steal no longer; but rather he must labor, performing with his own hands what is good, so that he will have something to share with one who has need. (Ephesians 4:8) And not to steal from them, but to show that they can be fully trusted, so that in every way they will make the teaching about Elohim our Savior attractive. (Titus 2:10)	The rest of mankind that were not killed by these plagues still did not repent of the work of their hands...or their thefts. (Revelation 9:20-21)

Ninth Commandment

You shall not give false testimony against your neighbor.
Exodus 20:16

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
And He said to him, "Why are you asking Me about what is good? There is only One who is good; but if you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments." Then he said to Him, "Which ones?" And Y'shua said, "You shall not bear false witness." (Matthew 19:17-18) "For out of the heart come evil thoughts... false witness, slanders." (Matthew 15:19)	As it is written: "There is no one righteous, not even one; there is no one who understands, no one who seeks Elohim. All have turned away, they have together become worthless; there is no one who does good, not even one." "Their throats are open graves; their tongues practice deceit." "The poison of vipers is on their lips." (Romans 3:10-13)	Do not lie to one another, since you laid aside the old self with its evil practices. (Colossians 3:9)	But all liars—their place will be in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death." (Revelation 21:8)

Tenth Commandment

You shall not covet your neighbor's house; you shall not covet your neighbor's wife or his male servant or his female servant or his ox or his donkey or anything that belongs to your neighbor.
Exodus 20:17

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten	Second Testimony of Yochanan
Watch out! Be on your guard against all kinds of greed. A man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions. (Luke 12:15)	What shall we say then? Is the Torah sin? May it never be! On the contrary, I would not have come to know sin except through the Torah; for I would not have known about coveting if the Torah had not said, "You shall not covet." (Romans 7:7)  You shall not covet. (Romans 13:9)	Put to death...greed, which is idolatry. (Colossians 3:5)  The fruits of the sinful flesh are obvious... jealousy and envy...I warn you as I did before that those who live like this will not inherit the kingdom of Elohim. (Galatians 5:19-21)  You lust and do not have; so you commit murder. You are envious and cannot obtain; so you fight and quarrel. You do not have because you do not ask. (Ya'aakov 4:2)	For everything in the world--the cravings of sinful man, the lust of his eyes and the boasting of what he has and does--comes not from the Father but from the world. (1 John 2:16)

Passover

“You must remember this day forever. Each year you will celebrate it as a special festival to YHWH. For seven days, you may eat only bread made without yeast. On the very first day you must remove every trace of yeast from your homes. Anyone who eats bread made with yeast at any time during the seven days of the festival will be cut off from the community of Israel. On the first day of the festival, and again on the seventh day, all the people must gather for a time of special worship. No work of any kind maybe (may be) done on these days except in the preparation of food. “Celebrate this Festival of Unleavened Bread, for it will remind you that I brought your forces out of the land of Egypt on this very day. This festival will be a permanent regulation for you, to be kept from generation to generation...” “Remember, these instructions are permanent and must be observed by you and your descendants forever. When you arrive in the land YHWH has promised to give you, you will continue to celebrate this festival. Then your children will ask, ‘What does all this mean? What is this ceremony about?’ And you will reply, ‘It is the celebration of YHWH’s Passover, for he passed over the homes of the Israelites in Egypt. And though he killed the Egyptians, he spared our families and did not destroy us.’” Then all the people bowed their heads and worshiped. So the people of Israel did just as YHWH had commanded through Moshe and Aaron.

Exodus 12:1-28

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies
On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread (the day the Passover lambs were sacrificed), Y’shua’s disciples asked him, “Where do you want us to go to prepare the Passover supper?” So Y’shua sent two of them into Jerusalem to make the arrangements. “As you go into the city,” he told them, “a man carrying a pitcher of water will meet you. Follow him. At the house he enters, say to the owner, ‘The Teacher asks, Where is the guest room where I can eat the Passover meal with my disciples?’ He will take you upstairs to a large room that is already set up. That is the place; go ahead and prepare our supper there.” So the two disciples went on ahead into the city and found everything just as Y’shua had said, and they prepared the Passover supper there. (Mark 14:12-16) Every year Y’shua’s parents went to Jerusalem for the Passover festival. (Luke 2:41) It was time for the annual Passover celebration, and Y’shua went to Jerusalem. (Yochanan 2:13) As soon as the Passover season ended, we boarded a ship at Philippi in Macedonia and five days later arrived in Troas, where we stayed a week. (Acts 20:6)	It was by faith that Moshe commanded the people of Israel to keep the Passover and to sprinkle blood on the doorposts so that the angel of death would not kill their firstborn sons. (Hebrews 11:28) Get rid of the old leaven that you may be a new batch without yeast—as you really are. For Mashiach, our Passover lamb, has been sacrificed.<sup>104</sup> Therefore let us keep the Festival, not with the old yeast, the yeast of malice and wickedness, but with bread without yeast, the bread of sincerity and truth. (1 Corinthians 5:7-8)

<sup>104</sup> Rav Shaul uses this Passover imagery to his mostly Gentile audience because he expects them to know about and keep the Feast, as the last line most definitely indicates!

Firstfruits

“Celebrate the Feast of Harvest with the Firstfruits of the crops you sow in your field. “Celebrate the Feast of Ingathering at the end of the year, when you gather in your crops from the field. “Three times a year all the men are to appear before the Sovereign YHWH. “Do not offer the blood of a sacrifice to me along with anything containing yeast. “The fat of my festival offerings must not be kept until morning. “Bring the best of the Firstfruits of your soil to the house of YHWH your Elohim.”

Gospels and Emissaries	Second Testimony of Yochanan
If the part of the dough offered as firstfruits is Set Apart, then the whole batch is Set Apart; if the root is Set Apart, so are the branches.<sup>105</sup> (Romans 11:16) But Mashiyach has indeed been raised from the dead, the Firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep. (1 Corinthians 15:20) He chose to give us birth through the word of truth, that we might be a kind of Firstfruits of all he created (Ya’akov 1:18)	These are those who did not defile themselves with women, for they kept themselves pure. They follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They were purchased from among men and offered as Firstfruits to Elohim and the Lamb.<sup>106</sup> (Revelation 14:4)

105 Like Passover, Rav Shaul expects the Roman believers to understand this imagery that can only come through the observance of this Torah based Feast!

106 The context is perfect here. The first martyrs validated their faith in Y’shua and Torah and their sacrifice became symbolic of the eternal life that awaits all others who follow them, even as Y’shua is the Firstfruit among the resurrected dead and actually rose early on the very day of Firstfruits. Also see Ya’akov 1:11.

Feast of Weeks/Shavuot

“From the day after the Sabbath, the day the bundle of grain was lifted up as an offering, count off seven weeks. Keep counting until the day after the seventh Sabbath, fifty days later, and bring an offering of new grain to YHWH. From wherever you live, bring two loaves of bread to be lifted up before YHWH as an offering. These loaves must be baked from three quarts of choice flour that contains yeast. They will be an offering to YHWH from the first of your crops. Along with this bread, present seven one-year-old lambs with no physical defects, one bull, and two rams as burnt offerings to YHWH. These whole burnt offerings, together with the accompanying grain offerings and drink offerings, will be given to YHWH by fire and will be pleasing to him. Then you must offer one male goat as a sin offering and two one-year-old male lambs as a peace offering. “The priest will lift up these offerings before YHWH, together with the loaves representing the first of your later crops. These offerings are holy to YHWH and will belong to the priests. That same day, you must stop all your regular work and gather for a sacred assembly. This is a permanent law for you, and it must be observed wherever you live.”

Leviticus 23:15-21

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies
Some time later Y’shua went up for a Feast of the Jews.<sup>107</sup> (Yochanan 5:1) On the day of The Feast of Weeks, seven weeks after Y’shua’s resurrection, the believers were meeting together in one place. (Acts 2:1) Paul had decided against stopping at Ephesus this time because he didn’t want to spend further time in the province of Asia. He was hurrying to get to Jerusalem, if possible, for the Festival of Weeks. (Acts 20:16)	In the meantime, I will be staying here at Ephesus until the Festival of Weeks. (1 Corinthians 16:8)

<sup>107</sup> The research that identifies this feast as Shavuot is fully detailed in “Signs of the Cross,” p.405-409.

Yom Kippur

“Remember that the Day of Atonement is to be celebrated on the ninth day after the Festival of Trumpets. On that day you must humble yourselves, gather for a sacred assembly, and present offerings to YHWH by fire. Do no work during that entire day because it is the Day of Atonement, when atonement will be made for you before YHWH your Elohim, and payment will be made for your sins. Anyone who does not spend that day in humility will be cut off from the community. And I will destroy anyone among you who does any kind of work on that day. You must do no work at all! This is a permanent law for you, and it must be observed wherever you live. This will be a Sabbath day of total rest for you, and on that day you must humble yourselves. This time of rest and fasting will begin the evening before the Day of Atonement and extend until evening of that day.”

Leviticus 23:27-32

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies
“And when you fast, don’t make it obvious, as the hypocrites do, who try to look pale and disheveled so people will admire them for their fasting. I assure you, that is the only reward they will ever get. But when you fast, comb your hair and wash your face. Then no one will suspect you are fasting, except your Father, who knows what you do in secret. And your Father, who knows all secrets, will reward you.<sup>108</sup> (Matthew 6:16-18) Much of the time had been lost, and sailing had already become dangerous because now it was after the Fast. (Acts 27:9)	Now the first covenant had regulations for worship and also an earthly sanctuary. A tabernacle was set up. In its first room were the menorah, the table and the consecrated bread; this was called the Set Apart Place. Behind the second curtain was a room called the Most Set Apart Place, which had the golden altar of incense and the gold-covered ark of the covenant. This ark contained the gold jar of manna, Aaron’s staff that had budded, and the stone tablets of the covenant. Above the ark were the cherubim of the Glory, overshadowing the atonement cover. But we cannot discuss these things in detail now. When everything had been arranged like this, the priests entered regularly into the outer room to carry on their ministry. But only the high priest entered the inner room, and that only once a year, and never without blood, which he offered for himself and for the sins the people had committed in ignorance.<sup>109</sup> (Hebrews 9:1-7)

<sup>109</sup> Rav Shaul continues and explains that Y’shua is now the High Priest, yet in spite of this fact he still keeps Yom Kippur in the Temple (Acts 27:9)! Y’shua did not command his disciples to stop observing Yom Kippur; neither did Rav Shaul discontinue observing this Feast.

Feast of Tabernacles

“Now, on the first day of the Festival of Shelters, after you have harvested all the produce of the land, you will begin to celebrate this seven-day festival to YHWH. Remember that the first day and closing eighth day of the festival will be days of total rest. On the first day, gather fruit from citrus trees, and collect palm fronds and other leafy branches and willows that grow by the streams. Then rejoice before YHWH your Elohim for seven days. You must observe this seven-day festival to YHWH every year. This is a permanent law for you, and it must be kept by all future generations. During the seven festival days, all of you who are Israelites by birth must live in shelters. This will remind each new generation of Israelites that their ancestors had to live in shelters when I rescued them from the land of Egypt. I, YHWH am your Elohim.”

Leviticus 23:39-43

Gospels and Emissaries
-------------------------------

After this, Y’shua stayed in Galilee, going from village to village. He wanted to stay out of Judea where the Jewish leaders were plotting his death. But soon it was time for the Festival of Shelters, and Y’shua’s brothers urged him to go to Judea for the celebration. “Go where your followers can see your miracles!” they scoffed. “You can’t become a public figure if you hide like this! If you can do such wonderful things, prove it to the world!” For even his brothers didn’t believe in him. Y’shua replied, “Now is not the right time for me to go. But you can go anytime, and it will make no difference.”... But after his brothers had left for the festival, Y’shua also went, though secretly, staying out of public view. (Yochanan 7:1-6, 10)

Nazirite Vow

Then YHWH said to Moshe, “Speak to the people of Israel and give them these instructions: If some of the people, either men or women, take the special vow of a Nazirite, setting themselves apart to YHWH in a special way, they must give up wine and other alcoholic drinks. They must not use vinegar made from wine, they must not drink other fermented drinks or fresh grape juice, and they must not eat grapes or raisins. As long as they are bound by their Nazirite vow, they are not allowed to eat or drink anything that comes from a grapevine, not even the grape seeds or skins. They must never cut their hair throughout the time of their vow, for they are holy and set apart to YHWH.

Numbers 6:1-5

Gospels and Emissaries
-------------------------------

But the angel said, “Don’t be afraid, Zechariah! For Elohim has heard your prayer, and your wife, Elizabeth, will bear you a son! And you are to name him Yochanan. You will have great joy and gladness, and many will rejoice with you at his birth, for he will be great in the eyes of YHWH. He must never touch wine or hard liquor, and he will be filled with the Set Apart Spirit, even before his birth. (Luke 1:13-15)
--

Paul stayed in Corinth for some time after that and then said good-bye to the brothers and sisters and sailed for the coast of Syria, taking Priscilla and Aquila with him. (Earlier, at Cenchrea, Paul had shaved his head according to Jewish custom, for he had taken a vow.)
(Acts 18:18)

The next day Paul went in with us to meet with Ya’akov, and all the elders of the Jerusalem assembly were present. After greetings were exchanged, Paul gave a detailed account of the things Elohim had accomplished among the Gentiles through his ministry. After hearing this, they praised Elohim. But then they said, “You know, dear brother, how many thousands of Jews have also believed, and they all take the law of Moshe very seriously. Our Jewish Messianics here at Jerusalem have been told that you are teaching all the Jews living in the Gentile world to turn their backs on the laws of Moshe. They say that you teach people not to circumcise their children or follow other Jewish customs. Now what can be done? For they will certainly hear that you have come. “Here’s our suggestion. We have four men here who have taken a vow and are preparing to shave their heads. Go with them to the Temple and join them in the purification ceremony, and pay for them to have their heads shaved. Then everyone will know that the rumors are all false and that you yourself observe the Jewish laws. “As for the Gentile Christians, all we ask of them is what we already told them in a letter: They should not eat food offered to idols, nor consume blood, nor eat meat from strangled animals, and they should stay away from all sexual immorality.” So Paul agreed to their request, and the next day he went through the purification ritual with the men and went to the Temple. Then he publicly announced the date when their vows would end and sacrifices would be offered for each of them.

(Acts 21:18-26)

Circumcision

“I will continue this everlasting covenant between us, generation after generation. It will continue between your offspring and me forever. And I will always be your Elohim and the Elohim of your descendants after you...” “Your part of the agreement,” Elohim told Abraham, “is to obey the terms of the covenant. You and all your descendants have this continual responsibility. This is the covenant that you and your descendants must keep: Each male among you must be circumcised; the flesh of his foreskin must be cut off. This will be a sign that you and they have accepted this covenant. Every male child must be circumcised on the eighth day after his birth. This applies not only to members of your family, but also to the servants born in your household and the foreign-born servants whom you have purchased. All must be circumcised. Your bodies will thus bear the mark of my everlasting covenant. Anyone who refuses to be circumcised will be cut off from the covenant family for violating the covenant.”

Genesis 17:7-14

Gospels and Emissaries	The Major Testimonies	The Ten
Eight days later, when the baby was circumcised, he was named Y’shua, the name given him by the angel even before he was conceived. Then it was time for the purification offering, as required by the law of Moshe after the birth of a child; so his parents took him to Jerusalem to present him to YHWH. The law of YHWH says, “If a woman’s first child is a boy, he must be dedicated to YHWH.” So they offered a sacrifice according to what was required in the law of YHWH —“either a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.” (Luke 2:21-24) Paul and Silas went first to Derbe and then on to Lystra. There they met Timothy, a young disciple whose mother was a Jewish believer, but whose father was a Greek. Timothy was well thought of by the believers in Lystra and Iconium, so Paul wanted him to join them on their journey. In deference to the Jews of the area, he arranged for Timothy to be circumcised before they left, for everyone knew that his father was a Greek. Then they went from town to town, explaining the decision regarding the commandments that were to be obeyed, as decided by the apostles and elders in Jerusalem. So the assemblies were strengthened in their faith and grew daily in numbers. (Acts 16:1-5)	A man is not a Jew if he is only one outwardly, nor is circumcision merely outward and physical. No, a man is a Jew if he is one inwardly; and circumcision is circumcision of the heart, by the Spirit, not by the written code.<sup>110</sup> Such a man’s praise is not from men, but from Elohim.<sup>111</sup> (Romans 2:28-29)	Not even those who are circumcised obey the Torah<sup>112</sup>, yet they want you to be circumcised that they may boast about your flesh. (Galatians 6:13)

110 Within “the written code” which is Torah, it is extremely evident that ritual alone cannot bring salvation. Rather we are obedient to the Commandment simply because YHWH gave it and by Faith we learn to love and trust YHWH within our hearts. YHWH promises to write His Word upon our hearts and has made us a Kedoshim (Set Apart People) according to the Image of Elohim, which is Mashiyach. To understand this work of the heart in Torah, see Lev. 26:40-46; Deut. 10:12-11:1; 30:6; 32:46, 47; Jeremiah 4:4.

111 Rav Shaul clearly states that both outward and inward circumcision is required; that obedience to one literally creates the benefits of the other. Many other statements of Rav Shaul join the outward and inward concepts together, but here they are brought together in the same sentence and concluded that it is Elohim who praises the one who keeps the Commandment, not man.

112 In other words, if they keep this part of the Torah, they should be consistent by keeping the others, as well. Ya’akov says the same thing that he who is circumcised is obligated to obey the rest of the Torah; that he also refers to as the law of liberty.

Tradition

The Hebrew word minhag (customs or tradition), appears only twice (and in the same verse) in the Tanakh: “And the watchman told, saying, He came even unto them, and comes not again: and the minhag (driving) is like the minhag (driving) of Jehu the son of Nimshi; for he nahag (drives) with madness” (2 Kings 9:20). Is it not ironic that Jehu’s “driving” reputation is tied in with what is arguably the most important term of rabbinical Jewish identity? Tradition.

The Pharisees (forefathers of Orthodox Judaism) teach that one must drive or “conduct” themselves according to “tradition” – but, of course, that’s simply a “traditional” understanding. When a word such as minhag is used so infrequently it indicates that it is of relatively little importance. However, rare terms are famous for being spun into highly spiritualized and modernized religious ideals. Certainly a person’s driving style has a lot to say about their character; Jehu’s reflected a wild-eyed fellow full of good intentions, although he was way off the mark: “But Jehu took no heed to walk in the Torah of YHWH the Elohim of Israel with all his heart: for he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, which made Israel to sin” (2 Kings 10:31). Tevey (Fiddler on the Roof) wasn’t kidding when he cried, “Tradition, Tradition, Tradition!” For many Jews tradition is bigger than YHWH; it is “Jewish identity.” Sadly, most see Torah as “tradition” instead of the Way to develop a personal relationship with YHWH Elohim Chayim.

Although “tradition” is full of good intentions, it is the “straw man” of rabbinical Judaism. Many “Jewish” traditions have no merit in Torah and, in fact, this is the underlying cause of why most Jews reject Torah and are kept from knowing YHWH and His Mashiyach. Rabbinical tradition is self promoting; it is what validates rabbinical authority. According to the Rabbis, a Jewish person cannot observe Torah without the help of the Rabbis. Torah is made to be very complicated and not easily accessible for the uneducated, untrained Jew. Some of the traditional Jewish prayers have acrostics embedded within them of the name of the sage who wrote the prayer, which is rather self promoting. How did this happen that a man would even think to arrange the words of a prayer so that his own name would be remembered while praying to the Master YHWH? Why would a man ever think to preface prayer “based on the tradition of our wise and discerning teachers” if tradition were not so highly esteemed as the mediator between man and YHWH? The Rabbis stand in place of the Ruach haKodesh, preventing a Jew to enter in without some sort of rabbinical sponsorship. This is tradition; but tradition is simply man doing what is right in his own eyes, usurping YHWH’s authority over the souls of others. Y’shua addressed the matter with these words:

“Why also do you transgress against the Commandments of Elohim because of your traditions? For Elohim said, “Honor your father and mother; and anyone who reviles his father and his mother let him be put to death?” But you say anyone who says to a father or to a mother, “My offering is whatever you have gained by me,” then he does not need to honor his father or mother. And you nullify the Word of Elohim because of your tradition. Hypocrites! Well did Yesha’yahu prophesy concerning you and said, “This people honor me with their lips, but their heart is very far from me.” And they revere me in vain, while they teach the doctrines of the commandments of the sons of men” (Matthew 15:3-9).

Rav Shaul explains that when he was being called into the Malchut Elohim that he sought Mashiyach rather than conferring with flesh and blood (the traditions of others): “And how greatly advanced I was in (Orthodox) Judaism, superior to most of my countrymen who were also my kin. And, in particular, how zealous I was with respect to the teaching of my fathers. But when (Elohim) willed it, He who set me apart from the womb and from my mother, called me to His grace. In order to reveal the manifestation of His son that I preached to the nations, I did not explain this to flesh and blood” (Galatians 1:14-16). Obviously when Rav Shaul tried to explain Mashiyach to traditional Jews, most of what he said would be filtered through their traditional understandings or many would ask their hierarchical authorities to do their thinking for them. The end result for many, would be to make a broad sweeping turn right back into their religious comfort zones.

On the other hand, well-worn Christian perceptions of Judaism are also teeming with ideas about Jewish “tradition.” Awraham, Yitzkhakh and Ya’akov, however, were not men of tradition; they lived their whole lives without ever applying the word tradition to their observance of Torah! Our forefathers observed the Word of YHWH and grew in the Perfection of Mashiyach long before Jewish traditions were invented by the Pharisees and other Jewish sects. Furthermore, Shabbat and the Moedim are not “traditions” either. It is ignorance to think of the Word of YHWH in this manner. The Mitzvot, Eduyot, Chuqqim, Mishpatim, Derek of YHWH are Kadosh (Set Apart) as the Word of YHWH that are the manifestation of Mashiyach’s government. Tradition may be a useful term for an outsider to compare one cultural tradition to that of another, because an outsider is not defined by Mashiyach or Torah in such a way that their being and identity is bound up in Mashiyach and Torah. But rabbinical Judaism asserts the authority of tradition over Jewish souls by holding their own authority on an equal or higher footing with the Word of YHWH, rather than being subject to YHWH.

Rabbinical spin doctors like to use the following verse to give themselves authority to breed traditions “equal to Torah”: “According to the peh (mouth) of the torah which they shall teach you, and according to the mishpat (judgment) which they shall tell you, you shall do: you shall not decline from the davar (word) which they shall show you, to the right hand, nor to the left” (D’varim/Deut. 17:11).

From the context of this verse one can easily see how evil “tradition” of man is: “If there arise a matter too hard for you in judgment, between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy within your gates: then shall you arise, and get thee up into the place which YHWH your Elohim shall choose; And you shall come unto the priests the Levites, and unto the judge that shall be in those days, and enquire; and they shall show you the Word of judgment: And you shall do according to the word of their mouth, which they of that place which YHWH shall choose shall show thee; and you shall observe to do according to all that they inform thee” (D’varim/Deut. 17:8-10).

While YHWH’s authority is revealed through “priests the Levites” who are qualified men accountable to YHWH, Judgment is to be levied by YHWH Himself. But rabbinical tradition often annuls the Word of YHWH, even to the point of changing words and concepts in the Torah and Prophets to suit their tradition. YHWH says: “You shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall you diminish from it, that you may keep the commandments of YHWH your Elohim which I command you” (D’varim/Deut. 4:2). Sages invented a “gezeirah,” a religious “fence” around Torah where they’ve added thousands of minhagim (traditions) which they esteem as equal in authority to the Mitzvot (Commandments) of Torah. This is clearly adding to the Word of YHWH, which is wickedness. Here are some brief examples of how rabbinical tradition puts a spin on Torah:

- 1) The first of the Eser haDibrot (Ten Commandments) says: I AM YHWH. He didn’t say “HaShem” or “Adonai.” Rabbinical tradition makes void the Name of YHWH by refusing to verbally proclaim the Name which was removed from 134 places in the Tanakh, and replaced with the word Adonai. It is no coincidence that many of these 134 places refer to the Word of YHWH, which is Mashiyach – very instrumental verses that reveal the identity of Mashiyach. But obviously, the Pharisees don’t want people to know about the true Mashiyach coming in the Name of YHWH.
- 2) Rabbis worship an idol called “oral torah” which they tout as more authoritative than the written Torah. Rambam’s Introduction to the Mishnah reads: “If there are 1000 prophets, all of them of the stature of Elijah and Elisha, giving a certain interpretation, and 1001 rabbis giving the opposite interpretation, you shall incline after the majority and the instruction according to the 1001 rabbis, not according to the 1000 prophets... Elohim did not permit us to learn from the prophets, only from the rabbis who are men of logic and reason.” Clearly, the Rabbis’ self-made authority is at war with the Prophets of YHWH! YHWH said, “You shall have no other gods before me,” but the Rabbis have made a deity out of their tradition. In rabbinical lore it is taught that if you were to obtain counsel from one of the great Sages it is as though you had heard right from YHWH Himself.

- 3) Noah built the ark in the Name of YHWH. Awraham declared the Name of YHWH to his 318 trained men. Moshe declared the Name of YHWH to Pharaoh. King Dawid and all the Prophets declared the Name of YHWH. Mashiyach Y’shua and his disciples declared the Name of YHWH. The Prophets of YHWH revealed that all the Earth is going to Fear the Name of YHWH. But the lore of Pharisees insists that the Name of YHWH is too Kadosh (Set Apart) to pronounce – philosophy that became the central theme of a big cover-up to hide the Name of YHWH from the world. Rabbinical Judaism uses Elokim, HaShem, Adonai and other substitute titles in violation of the Third Commandment: “You shall not take the Name of YHWH in vain” or distort, or bring it to nothing.
- 4) Shabbat was given to Adam and Eve and all of mankind thousands of years before the Pharisees came on the scene – which effectively renders useless the idea that “Shabbat is only for the Jews.” Isaiah 56:3 and 4 states that the nekar (complete stranger or alien) is to keep Shabbat. Isaiah 66:23 states that “all flesh” will keep Shabbat. The “Children of Israel” who came out of Egypt, who were an erev rav (mixed multitude) from all nations under heaven, kept Shabbat because they had entered into Covenant with YHWH to become part of the “Children of Israel” and the “Seed of Awraham.” The Shabbat of YHWH is not a “Jewish Shabbat” to be kept by Jews only as rabbinical tradition insists.
- 5) Rabbis have a habit of exercising traditional religious authority to overrule non-religious fathers and mothers. If parents do not come under rabbinical authority, Rabbis will direct their children to dishonor them in order to follow their rabbinical traditions, which is extremely anti-Torah.
- 6) Rabbis are guilty of slandering Y’shua because they have dared to refer to him as a mamzer (bastard) and a breaker of Torah. They’ve even gone so far as to hold mock funerals for fellow Jews who chose to follow Y’shua as Mashiyach. Most Jews know that if you slander a person, it is as though you murdered them; if you even think hatred towards another person, it is as though you have murdered them! Still, this hatred against Y’shua and those who follow him has become part of rabbinical “tradition,” contrary to Torah (see Vayikra/Lev. 19:16).
- 7) Torah instructs that if someone commits adultery they are to be stoned to death. The innocent party may re-marry; but in order to do so, a Beit Din must first provide a proper bill of divorcement. However, Rabbis – who like to “sit in the seat of Moses” – have totally ignored the rules and continue officiating over the re-marriage of adulterers.
- 8) To bolster their income, some Rabbis charge exorbitant “handling fees” for marriage ceremonies, bar mitzvahs, etc. Some even conduct palm readings and employ the use of witchcraft to make extra money on the side – all of which is very high-handed rebellion against Torah.
- 9) The Talmud has plenty of anti-Y’shua rhetoric, bearing false witness against Y’shua by charging him to be a breaker of Torah. As Yehudim, Y’shua and his mother were to be afforded the same honor as any other Jew, yet rabbinical tradition stands on the shoulders of the false (paid) witnesses from the mock trial before Pilate. Talmud contains spurious and unqualified testimony regarding Y'shua's trial, yet Rabbis, very contrary to Torah, uphold the lies of their forefathers.

- 10) Covetousness has become embedded within the religious worlds, but it is very anti-Torah. A famous rabbinical tradition is to publicly name benefactors, put names on plaques, write them on the entrances of buildings and on seats in the synagogues, etc. In Matthew 6 Mashiyach taught against public demonstrations of tsedaka (almsgiving) because it spawns covetousness; nevertheless, if covetousness is not actively opposed neither would public demonstrations of tsedaka be opposed.

"YHWH has been sore displeased with your fathers. Therefore say you unto them, Thus says YHWH of hosts; Turn ye unto me, says YHWH of hosts, and I will turn unto you, says YHWH of hosts. Be ye not as your fathers, unto whom the former prophets have cried, saying, Thus says YHWH of hosts; Turn ye now from your evil ways, and from your evil doings: but they did not hear, nor hearken unto me, says YHWH. Your fathers, where are they? And the prophets, do they live for ever? But my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers? and they returned and said, Like as YHWH of hosts thought to do unto us, according to our ways, and according to our doings, so has he dealt with us" (Zechariah 1:2-6).

Rabbis use their self-made "tradition" to usurp authority unto themselves as Levites, Priests or Judges. Pinchas was given the office of Cohen (priest) forever (B'midbar 25:13) because he sanctified the Name of YHWH, when the rest of the Levites were failing miserably. Yehoshua ben Nun was given high recognition by YHWH (B'midbar 27:21) because he believed upon YHWH, listened to the Ruach haKodesh and sanctified the Name of YHWH before the people. Neither Miriam, Aaron, nor Moshe entered into the Promised Land because of YHWH's Judgment, but Caleb who was a "Jewish convert" entered the land with the full blessings of YHWH. The Rabbis clearly show that, while they fear man, they have no fear of YHWH. Much of rabbinical Judaism has followed after Baal, which is also evident by their choice of fashion:

"I will also stretch out mine hand upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and I will cut off the remnant of Baal from this place, and the name of the Chemarims with the priests; And them that worship the host of heaven upon the housetops; and them that worship and that swear by YHWH, and that swear by Malcham; And them that are turned back from YHWH; and those that have not sought YHWH, nor enquired for him" (Zephaniah 1:4-6).

Chemarims are "black robed priests." The black clothes of the religious symbolizes haSatan, as dirty deeds are often done in the dark where there is no accountability. In the Tanakh black clothing (sack cloth) was used in mourning or in death. No priests of YHWH wore black as it represents death; therefore, religious Jews who wear black are clearly showing by their tradition that they are not YHWH's priesthood! Black attire has become common among religious Jews simply because of peer group status quo identity pressure. Rabbinical "tradition" is the Baal of the Rabbis, but no man can serve two masters (Matt. 6:24); we will either serve Baal or YHWH.

True Jewish identity is rooted in Torah and Mashiyach, regardless of what tradition has to say. YHWH's chosen people are called to be a Kedoshim, Set Apart unto YHWH and His Mashiyach rather than succumb to the traditions of men, regardless of how much prestige or esteem one supposes to enjoy for a season.

We must remember that YHWH fights for the Jewish people when they observe Torah, and that He fights against them when they willfully neglect Torah. As such, rabbinical tradition is largely responsible for many of the atrocities against the Jewish people. But the Rabbis prefer to lay blame on the secular (hiloni) Jews for not following their traditions. Jews become prey to genocidal maniacs like those who carried out the Inquisitions and pogroms when they spurn

Torah and Mashiyach. Jewish men, women and children would never have been butchered at the hands of demonic regimes if they had put their trust in YHWH rather than in religious institutions and governments. YHWH is exceedingly clear that His protection is a direct result of our level of respectful obedience towards His instruction (Deuteronomy 11 & 12). The tragic result then is it only takes a few false teachers to deceive multitudes and put them into very great danger.

Rabbinical Judaism is clearly the largest visible priesthood of the Jewish people today. If rabbinical Judaism had been sanctifying the Name of YHWH and upholding Torah, YHWH would respond and do battle against our enemies, but this is far from what is happening today. Israel is being put again under a curse for turning from YHWH and His Mashiyach. Jerusalem is being trodden asunder by Gentiles by foreign anti-Torah One World Governments that know not YHWH nor His Mashiyach. Pagans have taken government control and parades of sodomy are made through the streets of Jerusalem because tradition has been elevated over and above YHWH and His Torah. This is our punishment for not sanctifying the Name of YHWH and upholding Mashiyach ben Yoseph as the Word of YHWH. Every Jew is being punished because of the evils of tradition...tradition. However, it is truth, through an intimate personal relationship with YHWH and His Mashiyach that is the ultimate goal between YHWH and mankind, not tradition.

Twelve Tribes

Ya'akov (James), addressing Israelites/Jews living among and as Gentiles, wrote to the Twelve Tribes scattered "among the peoples" (Ya'akov/James 1:1), which is a key divergence from "nations." In every culture including Jewish, there is a distinction made between the people (Israel) and the peoples (everyone else). In this case the phrase b'ammeh literally means "in/among peoples" with the B proclitic having these prepositional meanings attached to ammeh. When we say "nation" in English, we envision a fixed place with borders and limits set by treaty and legal convention. While there have surely been "peoples" living in these locations for long periods of time, we do not consider the nation dissolved if many were to pack up and leave. By contrast, James is writing to Jews of the dispersion, and his intent is clearly to pull them out from their national ties and have them return to their tribal/ethnic roots.

The reason we can be certain of this has to do with the second term: "For if there come into your assembly a man with rings of gold or splendid garments and there come in a poor man in sordid garments" (Ya'akov 2:2). Here the term eidta (assembly; Greek ekklesia) refers to a body of people, which is generally used by Renewed Covenant writers to address a group of believers. This term is closest to the Hebrew term adat, usually "congregation" in English (Exodus 12:3) and is indicative of a general gathering of believers. Although its Hebrew counterpart is widely used in the Tanakh to describe such groups, adat/eidta or ekklesia is a later concept that emerges in the letters of Paul and others in the Renewed Covenant.

The more primitive and direct word James uses is knooshta, usually translated as "assembly." It is also the word from which the Israeli Cabinet "Knesset," is derived. However, a more fundamental use of the word, and the one most relevant here, is that knooshta is the original word from which the Greek word synagogue was derived. Ya'akov is writing from his Beit Knesset (synagogue), and sending his letter to Jewish believers among the nations regarding matters in their Beit Knessets, which must by virtue of their taking instruction from James, be Netzarim.

So what we are seeing then, is an international network of "synagogues" (meeting places) comprised exclusively of believers in Y'shua Messiah. These "synagogues" also, as evidenced by the letter sent out from Jerusalem in Acts 15, are clearly comprised of both Jews and those who "Fear Elohim" (Gentile proselytes) who worship and study together, just as their conventional Israeli counterparts (Acts 10). These letters also serve as evidence that Ya'akov was the leader of the Rosh Beit Din in Jerusalem who held sway over all halachic or legal matters affecting the worship of Jews and Gentiles alike, regardless of where they were located.

Unity

Unity of the Name of YHWH

“Hear, O Israel: YHWH our Elohim is One YHWH.”
D’varim/Deuteronomy 6:4

YHWH guards and protects His Set Apart Name according to Righteousness. YHWH is “the Name above all names.” He commands that individuals guard the Unity of the Name of YHWH by sanctifying and setting apart His Name from all others. The Name of Yahweh reflects life itself. YHWH is the Self Existent One who “breathes” the Neshama (Breath) of life into each of us. Neshama (nesh-aw-maw) refers to your spirit, the part of you that creates and selects thoughts and makes choices and takes action and makes you radically distinctive from everyone else. Each individual comprehends the Unity of the Name of YHWH according to the personal levels of unity within the soul, and according to manifold impressions and ideas about life, eternity, infinity, the universe, etc.

The Mind of YHWH designed each individual’s neshama (spirit) and through the natural world we are taught about the spiritual world and our relationship to the Almighty. The Name of YHWH was breathed to Adam along with the sound of His Name. His Name is to be breathed and vocalized in a very unique and special way. May our souls forever esteem the awesome Name of Yahweh according to His eternal Justice and Mercy. May His Name forever be with us and precious to us according to His Word. The Name of Yahweh is pronounced as follows:

YAH—WEH

Breathe IN while pronouncing “Yah”	Breathe OUT while pronouncing “Weh”
---	--

YHWH is the life force Who gave us the spirit of speech (Gen. 2:7 targum) along with unique spiritual capabilities to seek and develop a relationship with Him. As important as it is for a newborn baby to inhale their first breath of air, so is the spiritual man sustained by “breathing” the Spirit of YHWH.

Within the Name of YHWH His Unity and Authority is revealed, which is why His Name is mentioned well over 7,000 times from Genesis to Revelation. Our spiritual nature becomes transformed into His Image when we set the Name of YHWH apart, meditate on His Name and His Word, and keep His Commandments.

YHWH is more important than Life itself because He is the Architect of life. Life originated from YHWH; therefore, His Name must have the highest place in our souls. Many have been told that the original pronunciation of the Name of YHWH has been lost, but YHWH preserved His Name through His Word, according to the Ruach haKodesh and Mashiyach! “O YHWH, my strength, and my fortress, and my refuge in the day of affliction, the Gentiles shall come unto you from the ends of the earth, and shall say, Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things where there is no profit. Shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are no gods? Therefore, behold, I will this once cause them to know, I will cause them to know mine hand and my might; and they shall know that my name is YHWH” (Jeremiah 16:19-21).

Unity of Mashiyach

“I and the Father are one.”
Yochanan 10:30

The intimate relationship between Father and Son unfolds in Matthew 6:9-13 with the Slotha d’Maran, or Prayer of our Master, and progressive revelation continuing in Matthew 26:39, 42 and so on. Put simply, if Y’shua is YHWH, then is he talking to himself? The answer, of course, is NO! But, in order to understand we must go deep into the Tanakh to the following milestone passages:

- 1) In Exodus 23:20-22 we find mention of the only Messenger that YHWH sent to Israel who “has My Name in him.” This is key because every other messenger has YHWH’s title – EL (MichaEL, RaphaEL, UriEL, etc.) in their names. But Y’shua’s name means, “YHWH is salvation” which is tied to prophecy about him in places like Jeremiah 23:5-6, and fulfilled in John 17:11. Mashiyach has a superior name to the other messengers (Hebrews 1:1-5) and a Name in him that is above all other names (Colossians 1:16-19, Philippians 2:9-10). This means that Y’shua and this Messenger, who are one and the same, have the Name Yah rather than El/Eloah/Elohim.
- 2) The other aspect of Exodus 23:20-22 is that YHWH warns that this Messenger will not forgive Israel if they sin; implying that he had the independent power to do so, but would not on this occasion. Such ability was not ever afforded any other heavenly messenger. To see how this might manifest with Mashiyach’s power and office, please see Matthew 9:5-8.
- 3) Isaiah 9:6 tells us that one of the names of Mashiyach is “the Everlasting Father,” who is obviously YHWH Himself. Then Isaiah 11:1-2 tells us that Mashiyach as the Root of Jesse will have the Spirit of YHWH rest inside him! Incidentally, the Spirit of YHWH and the Ruach haKodesh are also one and the same, as evidenced by Psalm 51:1-11 and Isaiah 63:1-11.
- 4) Perhaps the most essential passage is in Zechariah 12:10, where the only begotten Son is killed but YHWH is “pierced.” The Hebrew here, in spite of rabbinic argumentation to the contrary, could not be clearer. The phrase in question is et asher dakaru. The et serves as a direct object pointer; it shows what part of a Hebrew sentence is receiving the action. So in Genesis 1:1 we are told et hashamayim v’et ha’aretz, with the et meaning that the heavens and the Earth are receiving the action of being created. On this everyone agrees, but the same rabbis who agree with this usage everywhere else in Tanakh turn a blind eye here. In this passage, it can only read as “to whom pierced they,” and since YHWH is speaking, He is being pierced! And yet the rest of the passage talks of people mourning for the man as “an only begotten son”! How can this be? The Son whose flesh is pierced contains an occurrence (qnoma in Aramaic) of YHWH’s Spirit, so while it is the flesh that is literally pierced and dies, the Spirit of YHWH is pierced too, but of course, cannot die.
- 5) Finally Isaiah 53:1: “to whom has the arm of YHWH been revealed?” This is the only acceptable form of “Godhead” in Scripture. Clearly not a Trinity of three separate beings (or persons), because the arm is not a separate entity from the rest of the body and has no independent will. The “arm” moves only with the power and control from the mind. In the same way YHWH’s nature is manifest as an occurrence within the Son that is separate but side-by-side with his human nature. These two natures then communicate with one another; thus explaining why Y’shua is not talking to himself when he prays to his Father. This fact is also why sometimes Y’shua says things like, “My teaching is not my own” and “I can do nothing without my Father” on the one hand but on the other he says, “If you have seen me, you have seen the Father” and “I and my Father are one of the same.” This indicates a 100 percent divine nature that exists in a 100 percent human soul and flesh, where one or the other talks through Y’shua. But the human is subject to the divine (again, “Not my will...”) which is the only way the Scripture cannot be broken. It is not Trinity but neither does this deny the divine aspects in Y’shua himself. It is also the real meaning behind, “No one comes to the Father but by me.” See also John 5:26.

Unity versus Hierarchy

Mashiyach teaches us how to nurture our relationship with YHWH; he came to bring a relationship. Nevertheless, it's been said that when the "Gospel" went to Rome it became an institution, and when it went west it became a business enterprise. Religion is the biggest business on Earth and practically all modern "priesthoods" have fashioned their enterprises after the model of hierarchical Babylon.

YHWH says, "I will cut off the remnant of Baal from this place, and the name of the Chemarim with the priests; And them that worship the host of heaven upon the housetops; and them that worship and that swear by YHWH, and that swear by Malcham; And them that are turned back from YHWH; and those that have not sought YHWH, nor enquired for him" (Zephaniah 1:4-6). Most religions teach some of the truth but the vast majority also swears by Malcham which is represented by any leadership hierarchy that establishes traditions in opposition to the Word of YHWH. Certainly Christianity and Judaism contain many elements of Truth, but their hierarchies (or denominations) routinely issue credentials and authority to leaders whose qualifications are not valid by Torah and Renewed Covenant standards.

Chemarim, as mentioned before, means "black robed priests" which are the priests of Baal (Lord) who function under the authority of man whose underlying humanism is haSatan (the Adversary) who opposes the Government of Mashiyach. Both Christian and Jewish leaders have adopted black robes (darkness) to reflect their religious authority. Many orthodox Jews and Christians even wear traditional black (or dark) costumes to distinguish their religious sects. Both the autocratic spirit of Roman "superpower" civilization and the hierarchy of Baal play important roles within the modern Greco-Roman church and Judaism.

Y'shua instructs that "where two or three are assembled in my name, there I am also among them" – which is precisely the function of a Beit Din. A Beit Din is a group of men who are qualified according to Scripture, who individually and collectively seek YHWH's counsel. This principle is derived from B'midbar/Numbers 35:30 and D'varim/Deuteronomy 17:6; 19:15 which requires two or more witnesses petition YHWH to obtain His Judgment. This is a legal requirement that ensures YHWH's authority, rather than man's, is established. (See also 1 Cor. 14:27-29; 2 Cor. 13:1; 1 Tim 5:19; Hebrews 10:28.) The individuals YHWH raises up are well qualified to do His bidding; but there is a vast difference between religious hierarchies and the Government of Mashiyach. (See chart on following page for some examples.)

Religion is big business. Religious hierarchies posture that truth is very difficult and complex to understand, but they have credentials and preaching that proves they have entered into "deep spiritual intelligence." In reality, what religious leaders do is "market" themselves; they run internal "polls" to know what people want to talk about; they are masters of "current events" and ride on macro gossip trends which keep them on top of their game. Some of these hierarchical leaders have even written books about how to posture and market and become "successful" and popular. Others are simply enemy-centered using other religions to spar with, while being utterly unable to come up with anything original on their own.

The majority establishes the authority of hierarchy, which is why there are some 33,800 Christian denominations on Earth. Each organization has leaders who seek the majority vote of their followers. When the doors of the church or synagogue close and everyone is inside, the hierarchical leader simply needs to maintain the majority vote of his followers to stay "in power." This seems right in the eyes of man, but this is how Babylon operates and how Baal and haSatan began their ministries. The example that Y'shua set is exactly the opposite; he served and wasn't "lording" authority over people or seeking a majority vote.

YHWH's Leadership	Man's Hierarchies
Qualified by Torah Valiant – Fears YHWH – Truthful – Hates Covetousness Wise – Understanding – Knowledgeable (Sh'mot/Exodus 18:21; D'varim/Deut. 1:13)	Qualified by man's Credentials University or Seminary Approved (gains the respect of men by being qualified and approved by man's traditions)
Qualified by Serving	Qualified by "good" Preaching
Teaches Torah	Teaches denominational or religious traditions
Agreement in the Ruach haKodesh	Exercises veto authority over others
All men participate in leadership responsibilities	Leaders hold meetings for other men to attend
Transparent to all	Private life and "public life"
Accessible to all	"Secretary" screens people
Responsible to YHWH and His people	Responsible to "up-line" hierarchy or no one
Disciples and motivates souls in Mashiyach and Torah	Wields power over the souls of others
Humility and meekness	Great in the eyes of man, "Rab" (great one)
Seeks the Kingdom of YHWH	Seeks support (finances) for big vision
Makes Disciples	Increases size of membership
Makes Disciples	Makes "friends" of the ministry
Elevates Truth	Elevates tradition
Offers freedom from sin	Offers religious solution to cope with sin
Identity is in Y'shua	Identity in the institution or denomination (brand)
Everyone Created for YHWH's purpose	Us good and them bad (or not as good as us)
Glories in the Kingdom of Elohim	Glories in large buildings and congregations
Leads by YHWH's Spirit	Follows majority (the democratic or popular vote)

YHWH's leadership is comprised of His servants who are qualified by His Word. His servants serve Him through each component of life, according to sustained righteous lifestyles. Every human being is fallible; everyone is liable to err and can be deceived at times, but false religious leaders have no shame. Oftentimes, to save face and maintain their pride, they willfully uphold popular false doctrines and the evils of their institutions that are contrary to YHWH and His Mashiyach. These hierarchical leaders are called "fierce wolves" (Acts 20:29).

Hierarchical leaders put authority over men's souls by making them subject to their churches and institutions. Those who elevate men (or women) with flattering titles are also contributing to the loss of their own sovereignty in Mashiyach. Men who ask to be referred to as "father", "holy father" or "reverend" are demanding fear or respect unto themselves that belongs to YHWH and His Mashiyach. By lessening the sovereignty of the "sheep" the hierarchies wield greater control over their congregants who are often unable able to distinguish between the authority of "the church" and responsibilities that are due unto YHWH. This is one reason why the Harlot Church became so contemptuous against Torah, because Torah upholds the sovereignty of each individual in the "fear of Elohim." Torah also promotes a spiritual relationship between each individual and YHWH, which empowers each person to refrain from disobedience towards YHWH and His Mashiyach.

Week after week billions sit under some man's teachings, going to churches, synagogues and mosques. Like children in a school room they learn about life through the opinions of men according to their hierarchy of choice where they feel most comfortable. Precious few people stop to consider why. What makes people think that their hierarchy has all the answers? What makes people think that the hierarchy is going to protect and provide for them? The hierarchies of men are plundering the people they are supposed to love. In reality, the hierarchies and the people go to destruction together hand-in-hand and even now, when haSatan is bringing all his religious hierarchies together under one big umbrella of "one world" perversity, it seems right in the eyes of man; but it is an abomination unto YHWH. The image of Babylon is hierarchy; the really big business of Babylon is government and religion.

Unity is not hierarchy. Unity is equality and servanthood towards each other and each soul in the Community of YHWH is equal. Unity is a product of Righteousness and the thirst for Righteousness is what unites YHWH's people. Y'shua taught: "Let it not be thus among you, but whoever among you desires to be great, let him be a servant to you." (Matt. 21:26) and; "And you should not be called leaders, because one is your leader, the Mashiach. But he who is greatest among you, let him be a servant to you" (Matt. 23:10, 11).

Ushanna

It is very evident in Matthew 21:9 that the tens of thousands of Jews who cheered for Y'shua were making the declaration of Psalm 118:25, 26. They recognized Y'shua to be YHWH's Mashiach. Ushanna (Aramaic), Hoshiana (Hebrew) or Hosanna (English) comes from two words yasha = save and na = now. In the context of Matthew 21:9, the people were declaring Y'shua as their King; their deliverance from Rome was something that only a King could accomplish. Those shouting "Ushanna in the highest" were under Roman occupation. Many of them lived to witness the Roman armies destroy the Temple, slaughter hundreds of thousands of Jews and carry away tens of thousands of their children as slaves. Under the circumstances, it is very understandable that these people expected Mashiach to bring physical deliverance, but his objective as Mashiach ben Yoseph (the suffering servant) was to lead souls into the Malchut (Kingdom of) Elohim. When Spiritual deliverance is accomplished, the physical will follow.

Wheel of Stars

"Can you bind the beautiful Pleiades? Can you loose the cords of Orion? Can you bring forth the Wheel of Stars<sup>113</sup> into its seasons and stand in the path of Ayish/Iyutha (Aldebaran) and her satellites (Hyades). Do you know the laws of the heavens and can you establish their rule over the earth?...Have you given wisdom to the Lance Star (Antares) or intelligence to the Bow Star?" (Hebrew & Aramaic Job 38:31-33, 38, cross referenced to the translation of T.K. Cheyne: Journal of Biblical Literature, Vol. 17, No. 1 (1898), pp. 103-107)

All versions of Scripture agree that YHWH says it is He Who brings the Zodiac/constellations/Wheel of Stars into their seasons, and that He has placed the laws of the heavens above the laws of the Earth, with both heaven and Earth forever submitting to His authority.

The "Wheel" is actually a fixed marker for regions of the sky and has nothing to do with the fact that constellations have shifted from our view because of precession of the Earth's axis.

The current Rabbinic Jewish calendar is a fixed model that came into being long after Hillel the Second in 359 CE. While tradition tells us that it was Hillel's doing, the first full accounting of the Rabbinical calendar in all its details does not occur until the time of Maimonides many centuries later. There is no way to definitively prove that intervening epochs did not add substantially to what Hillel began, and Jewish tradition is replete with examples of ascribing more recent ideas to masters of the distant past, as Moses de Leon did with the Zohar when he claimed it was from a rabbi dead for more than a thousand years before his day.

Nevertheless, let's assume that all the details of the Rabbinic calendar were fixed perfectly in 359 CE and also that it was based on a Babylonian intercalated pattern that was itself based on the work of a Greek named Meton ca 432 BCE.<sup>114</sup>

<sup>113</sup> The original translator writes "Zodiac", but this can be a confusing term. Brown Drivers Briggs defines the Hebrew word mazzaroth, "the 12 signs of the Zodiac and their 36 associated constellations." It is important that a clear distinction be made between the Zodiac/Wheel of Stars as an absolute marker for a region of the sky as opposed to the dwelling places of false deities.

<sup>114</sup> However, the captivity in Babylon is considerably earlier, 586-515 BCE, so it is possible that the intercalary system Babylon adopted did not extend that far back, although there is good reason to believe that it did.

If we were to place the intercalated system about 800 years before Hillel, as far back as it can go<sup>115</sup> we still have a major problem because there is more than a thousand years of Jewish history to connect with the calendar Moses used; and, of course, much more if we intend to go back to Abraham, Noah, and so on.

Part of the Jewish calendar has always been lunar but since Moses' day those lunar calculations have also been tied to agricultural festivals, but on its own a lunar calendar will fall out of season if a 354 day lunar year were to be followed. Furthermore, the instructions of Genesis 1:14-19 clearly mandate the sun, moon and the stars in the role of keeping the time.

If it is true that the Babylonian Captivity had a huge influence on the timekeeping of the Hebrews and this event is relatively brief and quite late in their history, how much more influence could the far more ancient Egyptian Captivity have played, since they kept a 365 day solar calendar and forced the Hebrews – including Moses – to follow it for more than 400 years?

The intercalated system would then been in existence long before Meton, however the Karaites<sup>116</sup> and other Torah Observant groups claim they have an easy answer. Follow the Torah and check the barley for green ears, and you will always know when the first month is. However Torah-based and simple as this approach may appear, there are many questions left unanswered.

Defining Terms and Laying Down the Law

Lest there be concern or contention that external sources outside the Malchut Elohim should or should not be consulted, let's clearly understand the differences between YHWH's astronomy and pagan-corrupted astrology: "And when you look up to the sky and see the sun, the moon and the stars—all the heavenly array—do not be enticed into bowing down to them and worshiping things YHWH your Elohim has apportioned to all the nations under heaven" (Deuteronomy 4:19)

"If a man or woman living among you in one of the towns YHWH gives you is found doing evil in the eyes of YHWH your Elohim in violation of his covenant, and contrary to my command has worshiped other gods, bowing down to them or to the sun or the moon or the stars of the sky, and this has been brought to your attention, then you must investigate it thoroughly. If it is true and it has been proved that this detestable thing has been done in Israel, take the man or woman who has done this evil deed to your city gate and stone that person to death" (Deuteronomy 17:2-5).

Going even further, those who attempt to divine destinies from the stars, as opposed to waiting on YHWH who named the stars and controls their movements (Psalm 147:4, Jeremiah 31:35), they are the "stargazers" who are strictly condemned: "All the counsel you have received has only worn you out! Let your astrologers come forward, those stargazers who make predictions month by month, let them save you from what is coming upon you. Surely they are like stubble; the fire will burn them up. They cannot even save themselves from the power of the flame. There are no coals to warm anyone; there is no fire to sit by. That is all they can do for you—these you have labored with and trafficked with since childhood. Each of them goes on in his error; there is not one that can save you" (Isaiah 47:13-15). (See also Jeremiah 8:1-3.)

115 Meton (5th century BC) is generally credited for discovering the 19-year cycle; however, some suggest the Chaldean astronomer Kidinnu (4th century BC) discovered the 19-year cycle, but the Babylonians may also have learned of it earlier. They measured the Moon's motion against the stars, so the 235:19 relation may originally have referred to sidereal years, instead of tropical years as it has been used in various calendars; however, ancient astronomers did not make a clear distinction between sidereal and tropical years before Hipparchus discovered precession of the equinoxes c. 130 BC. (Quoted from Wikipedia online) The point is that if we fix this calendar to this timeline, we are still far from the time of Moses and Abraham.

116 The Karaites are a group of Jews established in the Middle Ages who broke with nearly all Rabbinic tradition. Their name is likely derived from the Hebrew karet, or "to cut out", as in cutting away the oral traditions that they felt were added to Torah. However while the Karaites may be a relatively modern group, many of their positions are anything but. Many of the positions they currently hold have strident ancient minority voices. Therefore, it is both necessary and important that Karaite views are not dismissed by the misperception that positions they hold are not also ancient.

On the other hand, when the stars witness to their Creator, it is a Set Apart and blessed event (Psalm 19:1-6). Furthermore, when men use them properly in accordance with YHWH's instructions, they are declared righteous (Psalm 8:3-9, 136:9). In many places, Genesis 22:17 being one example, the stars are used as a teaching aid and comfort from YHWH. YHWH-based astronomy has absolutely nothing to do with the precession of constellations that were named after pagan deities. Instead, Torah astronomy examines a section of star lit sky as it appeared at certain times, like during the Patriarchal Age and through to the end of the Late Prophetic period that closes Tanakh. So, it's really about what appeared in Moses' day, not what might have appeared one way then but appears another way now. By "freezing" the canopy of stars as a memorial to a divine event, we eliminate the problems associated with the motions of the earth, precession and the sidereal versus tropical year debate. For these reasons, let's tentatively refer to this system as the "Absolute Zodiac" with a clear proviso again that we are in no way honoring names such as Aquarius, Cancer, and so on, but the One Living Elohim, YHWH, who created the heavenly host to serve both Him and us.

On the Primacy of Source Material

Here is a list of the basic sources used, as well as a brief analysis of why some material should carry more weight than others. The transparency here of categorizing reference materials is for the simple reason that no individual is above correction.

In order of stated importance:

1) Scripture - Hebrew and Aramaic authorities for Tanakh and New Covenant Writings form the most authoritative source material available.

2) Ancient Primary Source Material – The general rule is that the older the source material and/or the nearer to events it describes, the better. One of the major areas where we could use expert testimony is with respect to priestly procedures and service cycles. Ideally, the source we would consult would be:

- Fully established in the Second Temple period, as opposed to harking back to it from centuries later.
- A written manuscript record that is beyond dispute.
- A witness who is in a position to provide comment from direct personal and professional experience on the events described.

As most who have studied the time period know, there are two authorities, that have impeccable Pharisaic and priestly family connections. Both were well respected in their day and have shown great devotion to Torah.

These sources are Josephus Bar Matthias and Philo Judaeus, and they remain our best authorities for just about anything happening from around the Persian period to the destruction of the Second Temple in CE 70. What's more, and in complete contrast to the Rabbis of the Talmud who commented on these times centuries later,<sup>117</sup> Josephus and Philo confirm each other's details, and in one case, the former writes about the latter as a man of high esteem in the Jewish community.

Philo is sometimes accused of being far too eager to combine pagan Greek philosophy with Torah. However, his endorsement by Josephus goes a long way to mitigate this accusation. If Josephus, a devoted Pharisee who spent most of his life in Israel—and who fought against the Romans—can back Philo, it is also very likely that Philo enjoyed normative status by Jews in Israel.<sup>118</sup>

<sup>117</sup> On a few occasions our only source for certain relevant information is the Mishnah, and where needed, these are taken into consideration on a case by case basis.

<sup>118</sup> Rather, to be precise, that Philo's direct interpretations of Torah were not that off the mark from those in Israel or the Diaspora. It should be noted however, that Philo's veneration of the LXX would have been met with sharp resistance in Israel.

Granted, Josephus is not immune to some scorn in Israel, either. Even today many rabbinic authorities have leveled a charge of “switching sides” against him. They note that his own biography admits that he fought against the Romans, then helped the Romans by interpreting surrender terms to the Jews, and finally moved to Rome where he spent the last three decades of his life after the Jewish War. In all fairness, the counterbalancing facts are that even the father of Rabbinic Judaism, Yochanan ben Zakkai, also cooperated with Rome as the price for preserving the faith. However, if support for a plain reading of Scripture is questionable from these sources, it simply will not be quoted. On the other hand, if such a quote is a logical and very short extension from those plain readings and still not contradictory, then this constitutes valid commentary from these two learned men on the Torah as they understood it.

Finally, Philo could easily be equated in like manner to Rav Shaul, who used quotations from Greek playwrights, philosophers and their popular culture to clarify his original Hebraic points.<sup>119</sup> Philo appears to use his surrounding culture to enable his audience to better understand the genuine and final authority of Torah. He neither bowed to Hellenism, nor suggested the merging/ addition of their holidays to those given by YHWH and therefore his attitude speaks volumes towards him being a Pharisaic Jew of the Diaspora.

3) Mishna - the Torah commentary that grew out of Rabbinic Judaism. However, used here with a proverbial grain of salt as we are looking at a body of work that is centuries removed from the primary sources of the period and that frequently has codified information which, while generally correct, is nevertheless emphasizing only certain aspects to advance the religio-political realities of the time. As the reader will see, though, I believe that the key facts in the Mishnah are usually adequate to the task, although certain details and underlying reasons therein may appear suspicious. As another favor, I would ask the reader to wait on the examples I have in mind, when my reasoning for this evaluation will be clearer.

4) The Ephraim Exception – here is one possible source where a more reliable witness may overrule an earlier one. It has to do with the testimony of Mar Ephraim, a Fourth Century Syrian Saint, and one of the foremost authorities the world has ever known on the Peshitta. In this case, even though Ephraim writes 200 or more years after the time of the Mishnah, I believe his commentary in one area supersedes that of the Rabbis.

The issue has to do with the Masoretic reading of Job 38:31, part of the overall quote that we saw at the beginning. The Rabbis have generally favored a reading of the Hebrew Ayish constellation as “the Great Bear”. However, the Masoretic Text (Jewish Publication Society 1999 Hebrew English Tanakh) itself references an ancient Aramaic Tanakh reading that identifies the constellation as Iyutha, believed by almost all scholars to designate the star Aldeberan.

Going a step further, this reading of Ayish as Iyutha/Aldeberan is, in turn, backed up with evidence from centuries before Ephraim’s time, going back to Babylonian Jews who would later compile the Talmud itself. Ephraim’s contribution, then, is simply affirming that very ancient Aramaic understanding.

As a result, it is not just a matter of picking Mar Ephraim over the Mishnah as it is picking the ancestors of the original Mishnah editors and Mar Ephraim over those who came later, because the later authorities clearly have a more subjective agenda than their forebears did.

Finally, the two main sources I use on the Mishnaic side are “The Mishnah” by Jacob Neusner (1992 Yale University Press), and the widely respected works of the 19th Century scholar Alfred Edersheim. Edersheim’s treatises such as The Temple: Its Ministry and Services have been indispensable resources in making much of this difficult material more accessible to the wider world.

Now that we have the ground rules, let’s move on to the case itself.

<sup>119</sup> In fact, both Philo and Paul quoted Menander of Ephesus, a very popular playwright of the time.

Signs

Our first step is a radical one in that I am suggesting we simply take Scripture at its word: “And Elohim said, ‘Let there be lights in the expanse of the sky to separate the day from the night, and let them be for signs, seasons, days and years, and let them be lights in the expanse of the sky to give light on the earth.’ And it was so. Elohim made two great lights - the greater light to govern the day and the lesser light to govern the night. He also made the stars. Elohim set them in the expanse of the sky to give light on the earth, to govern the day and the night, and to separate light from darkness. And Elohim saw that it was good. And there was evening, and there was morning - the fourth day” (Genesis 1:14-19).

Now if we go by a plain reading, what we see clearly is:

- The lights in the sky were made to separate the day from the night, give light to the earth; these lights include the sun, the moon and the stars.<sup>120</sup>
- The lights in the sky have a greater one that rules the day (sun) and a lesser one that rules the night (moon).<sup>121</sup>
- The sun, moon and the stars are also to serve as signs, seasons, days and years—in that order.

This last point is the key to understanding the biblical calendar systems. Without the signs, there can be no seasons, days or years. The other parts of time literally wait for the first marker. Now here is another point to bear in mind: “Do you know the ordinances of the heavens? Can you set their dominion over the earth?” (Job 38:33)

This is a rhetorical question YHWH asks Job. The point is that Job, who is trying to judge his Maker, cannot do what YHWH is asking. And so, by understanding that the Hebrew style of this passage is really a statement masquerading as a question, we clearly get the answer we need. YHWH has set the laws of the heavens to rule over the laws of the earth! As a result, we see the general pattern that the heavens come first, the Earth second, and nowhere is this truer than with sky signs and earth signs.

The first place we see the pattern is, of course, in Genesis 1:1, where the heavens are made first, and then the earth. But what exactly is a “sign” anyway? In Genesis 1:14, the Hebrew word owth (אוֹת) is meant to designate a banner or flag, a graphic symbol of a spectacular nature that is impossible to miss.<sup>122</sup> Let’s examine some other places where this word appears: “And Elohim said, ‘This is the sign (אוֹת) of the covenant I am making between me and you and every living creature with you, a covenant for all generations to come: I have set my rainbow in the clouds, and it will be the sign (אוֹת) of the covenant between me and the earth. Whenever I bring clouds over the earth and the rainbow appears in the clouds, I will remember my covenant between me and you and all living creatures of every kind. Never again will the waters become a flood to destroy all life. Whenever the rainbow appears in the clouds, I will see it and remember the everlasting covenant between Elohim and all living creatures of every kind on the earth.’” So Elohim said to Noah, “This is the sign (אוֹת) of the covenant I have established between me and all life on the earth” (Genesis 9:12-17).

<sup>120</sup> It is fair to point out that the sun and moon are not directly mentioned. However, there is universal agreement that they are meant by the “and it was evening and it was morning” pattern that pervades Genesis 1. Of course, there is also ample evidence that the sun controls the day and the moon the night.

<sup>121</sup> For an easy confirmation of this fact, please also consult Jeremiah 31:35.

<sup>122</sup> It is important to note that there are other sign types throughout Scripture as well. The kinds we are discussing here are what I term “covenantal signs” in that they relate to calendar, covenant or ritual instruction issues. On the other hand, “situational signs” are just what the name implies, relating solely to a person, event, place or message. So, the mark of Cain relates to his complaint that others will seek to kill him, and that is obviously situational. The same can be said for the vision of the pregnant woman in Revelation, as that presages a future event, not a call for obedience/observance. On the other hand, sometimes situational signs can suggest the other kind, such as in Isaiah 7:1-13. In that case, Ahaz is being asked to request a sign for his comfort that can be “as high as heaven” (sky) or “as low as Sheol” (earth), but when the king does not answer YHWH picks one for him, anyway.

So we see here:

- The sky sign (rainbow) comes first and is the reminder to YHWH of His covenant with the Earth and man.
- The earth sign comes after the sky sign, and is simply the continued existence of the Earth.<sup>123</sup>

Here's another example of the same idea: "This is my covenant with you and your descendants after you, the covenant you are to keep: Every male among you shall be circumcised. You are to undergo circumcision, and it will be the sign (אֶרֶב) of the covenant between me and you. For the generations to come every male among you who is eight days old must be circumcised, including those born in your household or bought with money from a foreigner - those who are not your offspring. Whether born in your household or bought with your money, they must be circumcised. My covenant in your flesh is to be an everlasting covenant. Any uncircumcised male, who has not been circumcised in the flesh, will be cut off from his people; he has broken my covenant" (Genesis 17:10-14).

The sky sign in this case is creation itself, because in Hebrew the words for "in the beginning" (bereshit- בְּרֵאשִׁית) and "covenant" (breet- בְּרִית) are related. It therefore can literally be said that the covenant was in creation, and this covenant requires an earth sign of obedience, that of circumcision. Now, let's see another way the sky sign of covenant manifests on Earth: Then YHWH said to Moses, "Say to the Israelites, 'You must observe my Sabbaths. This will be a sign (אֶרֶב) between me and you for the generations to come, so you may know that I am YHWH, who makes you holy. "Observe (shomer- שׁוֹמֵר) the Sabbath, because it is holy to you. Anyone who desecrates it must be put to death; whoever does any work on that day must be cut off from his people. For six days, work is to be done, but the seventh day is a Sabbath of rest, holy to YHWH. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath day must be put to death. The Israelites are to observe the Sabbath, celebrating it for the generations to come as a lasting covenant. It will be a sign (אֶרֶב) between me and the Israelites forever, for in six days YHWH made the heavens and the earth, and on the seventh day he abstained from work and rested." When YHWH finished speaking to Moses on Mount Sinai, he gave him the two tablets of the Testimony, the tablets of stone inscribed by the finger of Elohim" (Exodus 31:12-18).

In another very clear reference, the creation is itself the sky sign. YHWH chose six "days" of creation, and then rested on the seventh, to consider His great work and then to bless it. Without the creation/sky sign, there would be no Sabbath. As for the earth sign, it is the observance of the Sabbath by man.<sup>124</sup> This idea, of course, leads to the reasoning why the Hebrew word shomer is highlighted, which is usually translated as "observe". However, as we will see later, "observe" does not mean so much "to see" as it does "to guard, keep account of." In other words, shomer is really about counting as a way to ensure accuracy, although repeated sighted patterns are the foundation behind the counting patterns. In this case, and later, we will see other examples; we are literally counting towards each seventh day to mimic the creative cycle of YHWH per His instructions.

But returning to signs, we need to look at two additional examples, both from the book of Exodus. First, when YHWH speaks to Moses (in Exodus 3) His very presence from the Burning Bush is <sup>123</sup> We also see elsewhere in this speech, the definitions that YHWH gives to time in Genesis 8:22: "As long as the earth endures, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night will never cease." This also dovetails, of course, with a solar year.

<sup>124</sup> It is also fair to point out that the Sabbath is sometimes described as a moed, or appointed time or season. However, this does not mean that the Sabbath is not an absolute seven day cycle that is above the sun and moon. Rather, in places such as Leviticus 23:2-3, the context is with respect to the Sabbath that happens throughout the year. As such, Sabbaths are bound to occur within the years and months described, even as the lunar appointments count days to sacred festivals. On the other hand, the Sabbath also transcends the year in the sense that the counting does not stop between the last day of year X and the first day of year Y. Instead, we keep counting through the weeks even when the previous year gives way to the next one. So, it is actually both a sign and a season, the latter only being in the sense that Sabbaths occur every seventh day, including the weeks that feasts occur.

the sky sign! “But Moses said to Elohim, “Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh and bring the Israelites out of Egypt?” And Elohim said, “I will be with you. And this will be the sign (אֵימָנָה) to you that it is I who have sent you: When you have brought the people out of Egypt, you will worship Elohim on this mountain.” Moses said to Elohim, “Suppose I go to the Israelites and say to them, ‘The Elohim of your fathers has sent me to you,’ and they ask me, ‘What is his name?’ Then what shall I tell them?” Elohim said to Moses, “~I am who I am. This is what you are to say to the Israelites: ‘~I am has sent me to you.’” Elohim also said to Moses, “Say to the Israelites, ‘YHWH, the Elohim of your fathers - the Elohim of Abraham, the Elohim of Isaac and the Elohim of Jacob - has sent me to you.’ This is my name forever, the name by which I am to be remembered from generation to generation” (Exodus 3:11-15).

So YHWH's name - Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh, I am who I am - as well as the third person version that man uses (He is = YHWH), are the banner for Moses. YHWH's assuring promise “and I will be with you” is also a sky sign and, just like before, these sky signs are followed by earth signs here: “Moses answered, “What if they do not believe me or listen to me and say, ‘YHWH did not appear to you’?” Then YHWH said to him, “What is that in your hand?” “A staff,” he replied. YHWH said, “Throw it on the ground.” Moses threw it on the ground and it became a snake, and he ran from it. Then YHWH said to him, “Reach out your hand and take it by the tail.” So Moses reached out and took hold of the snake and it turned back into a staff in his hand. “This,” said YHWH, “is so that they may believe that YHWH, the Elohim of their fathers - has appeared to you.” Then YHWH said, “Put your hand inside your cloak.” So Moses put his hand into his cloak, and when he took it out, it was leprous, like snow. “Now put it back into your cloak,” he said. So Moses put his hand back into his cloak, and when he took it out, it was restored, like the rest of his flesh. Then YHWH said, “If they do not believe you or pay attention to the first miraculous sign (אֵימָנָה), they may believe the second. But if they do not believe these two signs or listen to you, take some water from the Nile and pour it on the dry ground. The water you take from the river will become blood on the ground” (Exodus 4:1-9).

Finally even the tenth plague, the slaying of the first born, can be said to follow this pattern. The instructions of YHWH are the sky sign, followed by the observance of His command to put lamb's blood on the doorposts. Then the presence of YHWH comes from the sky—passing over—and when He sees the earth sign of the blood which is, the sign of obedience, He spares the household. However, lest the reader feels this trend is confined to just Tanakh, the Renewed Covenant also follows these exact same rules.<sup>125</sup> The most obvious example of course, the Star of Bethlehem, needs little proof to designate as a sky sign!

But the pattern is much deeper than that, as it becomes a key part of Y'shua's own discourses: [Y'shua said,] “Immediately after the distress of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light; the stars will fall from the sky, and the heavenly bodies will be shaken. At that time the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and all the nations of the earth will mourn. They will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky, with power and great glory. And he will send his angels with a loud shofar call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of the heavens to the other” (Matthew 24:29-31).

[Y'shua] said to the crowd: “When you see a cloud rising in the west, immediately you say, ‘It's going to rain,’ and it does. And when the south wind blows, you say, ‘It's going to be hot,’ and it is. Hypocrites! You know how to interpret the appearance of the earth and the sky. How is it that you don't know how to interpret this present time? “Why don't you judge for yourselves what is right?” (Luke 12:54-57)

<sup>125</sup> It is important to also stress that the Aramaic Renewed Covenant in the vast majority of cases simply carries over the exact Hebrew word אָמָן into its dialect fully intact as the cognate אָמָא (ata). This is the case, for example, in Matthew 12:38-40, when Y'shua discusses the Sign of Jonah. However, another interesting variant, meaning closer to the “vision” meaning of sign, is in Luke 1:22. There the Aramaic word is ramaz (Hebrew, remez), which usually means something closer to “hint” or “clue of insight.”

Finally, there is also a pecking order in heaven with respect to sky signs themselves. Put simply, sun signs rule over moon signs. Notice the use of the Hebrew word gadol (גדול) to describe the sun as the “greater” light. This word does not refer exclusively to the level of light that the sun produces when compared to the moon, for a simple reason: YHWH knows the moon does not produce any light on its own to begin with! It simply reflects light from the sun. In that sense, the image we are presented with is the sun entrusting the moon with its light.

Another proof of this is according to how the word gadol is used elsewhere. Reason being, while there are some verses where the extent of something’s light magnitude is meant, very often the sense of authority is also given to the stronger entity over the weaker. For example, the High Priest is called kohen ha gadol, and there is little doubt that the high priest’s power as a master over the other priests and Levites—as opposed to the extent of his “luminosity” - is the intended meaning. In the same way the “greater light” gives permission for the moon to rise and take its light.

In addition, Scripture demonstrates this same idea: “This is what YHWH says: ‘Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool. Where is the house you will build for me? Where will my resting place be?’” (Isaiah 66:1) Which is more likely to have royal power – the throne (heaven) or the Earth (footstool)?

Jeremiah then adds an interesting twist, linking the heavenly covenant with the earthly: “For this is what YHWH says: ‘David will never fail to have a man to sit on the throne of the house of Israel, nor will the priests, who are Levites, ever fail to have a man to stand before me continually to offer burnt offerings, to burn grain offerings and to present sacrifices.’” The word of YHWH came to Jeremiah: “This is what YHWH says: ‘If you can break my covenant with the day and my covenant with the night, so that day and night no longer come at their appointed time, then my covenant with David my servant - and my covenant with the Levites who are priests ministering before me - his throne. I will make the descendants of David my servant and the Levites who minister before me as countless as the stars of the sky and as measureless as the sand on the seashore<sup>126</sup>’” The word of YHWH came to Jeremiah: “Have you not noticed that these people are saying, ‘YHWH has rejected the two kingdoms he chose’? So they despise my people and no longer regard them as a nation. This is what YHWH says: ‘If I have not established my covenant with day and night and the fixed laws of heaven and earth, then I will reject the descendants of Jacob and David my servant and will not choose one of his sons to rule over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. For I will restore their fortunes and have compassion on them’” (Jeremiah 33:17-26).

The final Scriptural validation comes from Ecclesiastes where the power of judgment resides under the sun with YHWH, of course, as the ultimate authority: “And I saw something else under the sun: In the place of judgment - wickedness was there, in the place of justice - wickedness was there. I thought in my heart, ‘Elohim will bring to judgment both the righteous and the wicked, for there will be a time for every activity, a time for every deed’” (Ecclesiastes 3:16-17).<sup>127</sup>

And Philo adds this insight on the same idea: He (YHWH) has assigned to Him a complete number, as the sun is ordained to be the chief of the stars of heaven. (Philo Judaeus, Questions and Answers on Genesis, 84-b (p. 808 CD Yonge Translation) And so, this representative sample should hopefully suffice for the first major definition in our study. Now let’s move on to unlocking the rest of Genesis 1:14-19.

Seasons

While I am deferring the identity of the sky sign that kicks off the calendrical year,<sup>128</sup> the Scripture does tell us the seasons do not begin prior to this phenomenon making its appearance. In Hebrew then, the next word that we need to look at is moed (מועד) which, as indicated earlier, also means “appointed times”.

<sup>126</sup> Notice here that both symbols refer to approximately the same number, but the heavenly image again comes before the earthly one.

<sup>127</sup> Also see Revelation 12:1-6, where the sign of a pregnant woman has the sun at her head and the moon at her feet, indicating the sun in a superior position.

The first season of year is of course, Spring, called Aviv in Scripture. The characteristics of Spring involve the earth returning to a state of greenness, which is why we are told in Exodus to observe that moment of the year as its beginning. The Karaites also believe, quite correctly, that the sign of Spring is the tender and green ears of the barley, the first of the produce to ripen in Israel. However, they are incorrect that Aviv has started when the barley ripens, at the end of the lunar year. Barley is the earth sign, but it needs the sky sign to precede it before the season can officially begin.

It is important to point out that the first two commands to “observe Aviv” don’t take place in Israel. The first Aviv occurred in Egypt and the second was in the Wilderness. Such a pattern begs several questions of the Karaite position. Which barley “counts” since it ripens gradually over several weeks? Is one part of Israel superior to others? What about the places where the command was originally given, that were both outside of Israel? Where is the biblical procedure that tells us where we get the barley? Who does it and who judges?

There are, of course, basic answers to these questions. However, this is assumed by the Karaites who add their own details to Torah, even while criticizing the Rabbis for the very same thing! However, if we know there is a sky sign that will always point to when the barley is ripe, and this is in harmony with the Torah in places like Genesis 1:14-19, then no additional procedures are required. We simply wait for the sky sign, get the barley, and go!

What we can also say about the moedim is that once the time is set, the moon controls the ordering of the sacred festivals: “The moon marks off the seasons, and the sun knows when to go down.” (Psalm 104:19) Philo has a very interesting commentary on this verse: And before now some men have predicted disturbances and commotions from the motions of the earth, from the revolutions of the heavenly bodies, and innumerable other events that have turned out most exactly true; so that it is a most veracious saying that “the stars were created to act as signs and moreover to mark the seasons.” And by the word “seasons” the divisions of the year are intended. And why may not this be reasonably affirmed? For what other idea of opportunity can there be except that it is the time for success? And the seasons bring everything to perfection, and set everything right; giving perfection to the sowing and planting of fruits and to the birth and growth of animals. They were also created to serve as the measure of time; for it is by the appointed periodic revolutions of the sun and moon and other stars that the days, months and years are determined. (Philo Judaeus, On Creation, 59-60 p. 9 CD Yonge Translation)

However, the moon is still subject to the solar year, because without it these same holidays that are keyed to harvest and planting will occur out of season. So as long as those appointed times stay on track, the moon is in charge. When it needs help, however, to keep the festivals at their proper time, the sun takes over. In so doing, both the sun and the moon mark the year, again as Scripture says.

Days

Once the sun hands control of time over to the moon in pointing to when Spring begins, the sacred days are marked from the beginning of the Synodic Cycle,<sup>129</sup> or in biblical terms, from New Moon to New Moon. However, this reckoning is only valid from Moses’ day on, because prior to that time YHWH did not institute festivals that were timed in this manner. We will investigate shortly how days were reckoned in the pre-Mosaic calendar.

---

<sup>129</sup> Synodic is the scientific term for marking the lunar month from one New Moon crescent to another, or 29.53 days. Other methods of marking a lunation can be shorter by as much as two days. Biblical data, though, clearly only recognizes this method of measurement.

Years

And so, by the time we end up actually looking at years, little else need be said. The days, of course, eventually run out, but the Shabbat count is constant even when the next seventh day runs into the following year.

The year also waits for the return of the signs before it officially “dies”. That means that sun, moon and earth signs must all agree that the time is right, but we can also calculate the proper interval, regardless as to the calendar to which we are referring.

Calculation vs. Sighted: Who is right?

The final piece of general evidence has to do with the whole calculated/sighted controversy. The Karaites insist that the New Moon crescent is to be observed by reliable witnesses, or the month cannot begin. To be totally fair, though, this is also the claim of many Rabbinics, as well.

In looking at the Talmud we find multiple references to the Sanhedrin, hearing from reliable witnesses that the crescent had been sighted. In return, the Sanhedrin would then give these men a fine meal and lodging for their troubles. Then they would light the lamps that were to signal Israel that the beginning of the month had happened. However, some of the problems of this story are even mentioned in the same source, in that enemies of Israel would also light fires to confuse the rest of the nation!<sup>130</sup>

Therefore, there had to be a way to silence all controversy in this matter, if for no other reason than national security literally depended on it. And so there are a few ways of approaching this:

- The procedure of hearing from witnesses of the New Moon sighting was a community awareness service that is not necessarily enshrined in Scripture. There are no such Biblical examples of such process. Nor is there a single reference in Tanakh to sighting the New Moon, but only about what to do when the New Moon occurs.
- The purpose of this procedure was to reassure the people that they did not have to worry about enemy deception. If they did not go up to tell the Sanhedrin about the new month, they could have confidence that one of their fellow countrymen would.
- If the witnesses did not agree or if none came forward, however, there had to be a final judge that gave a clear decision in a timely manner and this was the calculated lunar month that we will examine later. For now, though, the main thing to understand is that since the New Moon to New Moon cycle is always and precisely 29.53 days<sup>131</sup>, the lunar months in a given year will always and precisely alternate between 29 and 30 days, without exception.

130 Here is how Alfred Edersheim describes this procedure in The Temple: Its Ministry and Services, Chapter 10, emphases mine: And this brings up yet another difficulty. The Jews calculated the month according to the phases of the moon, each month consisting of either twenty-nine or thirty days, and beginning with the appearance of the new moon. But this opened a fresh field of uncertainty. It is quite true that every one might observe for himself the appearance of a new moon. But this would again partly depend on the state of the weather. Besides, it left an authoritative declaration of the commencement of a month unsupplied. And yet not only was the first of every month to be observed as ‘New Moon’s Day,’ but the feasts took place on the 10th, 15th, or other day of the month, which could not be accurately determined without a certain knowledge of its beginning. To supply this want the Sanhedrim sat in the ‘Hall of Polished Stones’ to receive the testimony of credible witnesses that they had seen the new moon. To encourage as many as possible to come forward on so important a testimony, these witnesses were handsomely entertained at the public expense. If the new moon had appeared at the commencement of the 30th day—which would correspond to our evening of the 29th, as the Jews reckoned the day from evening to evening—the Sanhedrim declared the previous month to have been one of twenty-nine days, or ‘imperfect.’ Immediately thereon men were sent to a signal-station on the Mount of Olives, where beacon-fires were lit and torches waved, till a kindling flame on a hill in the distance indicated that the signal had been perceived. Thus the tidings, that this was the new moon, would be carried from hill to hill, far beyond the boundaries of Palestine, to those of the dispersion, ‘beyond the river.’ Again, if credible witnesses had not appeared to testify to the appearance of the new moon on the evening of the 29th, the next evening, or that of the 30th, according to our reckoning, was taken as the commencement of the new month, in which case the previous month was declared to have been one of thirty days, or ‘full.’ It was ruled that a year should neither have less than four nor more than eight such full months of thirty days. Adding to his last point, the ruling Edersheim mentions with a year never having less than four or more than eight 30-day months also seems to me as part of the same community awareness exercise. Obviously, the median would still be six months at 30 days and six at 29, still adding up to 354 lunar days.

131 Or, to be more precise: 29 days, 12 hours, 44 minutes, 2.8 seconds.

In dovetailing with the last point, it should also be understood that the two ideas of sighting versus calculation are not necessarily mutually exclusive. First of all, the lunar calculation is clearly based on many centuries of careful sightings at every stage of a lunar month. This is, as I mentioned earlier, the essence of the meaning of shomer, referring to taking into account the supply of a given item, whether it be with regards to monetary wealth or days. Here are just a few examples of this meaning of shomer clearly being intended in Scripture<sup>132</sup>:

“You shall not add to the word which I am commanding you, nor take away from it, that you may keep (שָׁמַר) the commandments of YHWH your Elohim which I command you” (Deuteronomy 4:2).

“And as the king passed by, he cried to the king and said, ‘Your servant went out into the midst of the battle; and behold, a man turned aside and brought a man to me and said, ‘Guard (שָׁמַר) this man; if for any reason he is missing, then your life shall be for his life, or else you shall pay a talent of silver’” (1 Kings 20:39).

“And when the priests came forth from the holy place for all the priests who were present had sanctified themselves, without regard (שָׁמַר) to divisions”<sup>133</sup> (2 Chronicles 5:11).

The sighting of the New Moon and the calculated time of it were most always exactly the same. However, Scripture also gives us a backup plan should observing the New Moon fail and the people question the calculation:

“Blow the shofar at the time of the New Moon. At the full moon, on our solemn feast day” (Psalm 81:3).

This verse not only marks the “feast day” as the fourteenth day of the month as other verses do, but also as the time of the full moon. That means that if for some reason the New Moon was not proclaimed on time (which likely never happened) the full moon would re-synchronize the time theoretically. The full moon can only occur on the 14th, 15th and 16th days of the month, and the New Moon only happens on the 1st and 2nd days, giving one day leeway if needed. Therefore, if weather intervened (Job 26:9) against seeing the crescent, the proper observation of the beginning or middle of the month would act as a counterbalancing mechanism, and the counting method would keep everything on time.

But even more fundamentally, we know from proven scientific experimentation that there can also be a gap of up to 24 hours between the actual time of the New Moon and the potential sighting of the crescent as “proof”, even if the weather did not inhibit a potential sighting. That means that observation alone of the crescent is unreliable, and Scripture never says to guess when the New Moon is, but to have 100% certainty.

Finally, Scripture only comments on the matter when the calendar is calculated as opposed to sighted. Here is the first of two examples:

“Jonathan said to David, “Whatever you want me to do, I’ll do for you.” So David said, “Look, tomorrow is the New Moon festival, and I am supposed to dine with the king; but let me go and hide in the field until the evening of the day after tomorrow... Then Jonathan said to David: “Tomorrow is the New Moon festival. You will be missed, because your seat will be empty. The day after tomorrow, toward evening, go to the place where you hid when this trouble began, and wait by the stone Ezel...So David hid in the field, and when the New Moon festival came, the king sat down to eat” (1 Samuel 20:4-5, 18-19, 24).

<sup>132</sup> In fact, in the vast majority of places where שָׁמַר appears, it is with respect to YHWH’s commandments being carried out. That being the case “observing” a mitzvah has nothing to do with visually seeing that commandment itself!

<sup>133</sup> And notice here that since the priests would be dressed the same way, with nothing to visually distinguish one division from another, there is nothing to “observe” in the visual sense.

David and Jonathan knew with absolute certainty that the New Moon is the following day. They were not waiting for it to be sighted by witnesses or to have it validated by a court process. Instead, David and Jonathan knew their calculations were accurate. They also knew that the king's court would rely on the same information they had, which could only have been counting the Synodic cycles of the moon – exactly the sense of shomer that we have been talking about.

Let's examine one more example:

“Make a roof for it and finish the ark to within 18 inches of the top. Put a door in the side of the ark and make lower, middle and upper decks. In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, on the seventeenth day of the second month--on that day all the springs of the great deep burst forth, and the floodgates of the heavens were opened. And rain fell on the earth forty days and forty nights. On that very day Noah and his sons, Shem, Ham and Japheth, together with his wife and the wives of his three sons, entered the ark. They had with them every wild animal according to its kind, all livestock according to their kinds, every creature that moves along the ground according to its kind and every bird according to its kind, everything with wings. Pairs of all creatures that have the breath of life in them came to Noah and entered the ark. The animals going in were male and female of every living thing, as Elohim had commanded Noah. Then YHWH shut him in...The waters flooded the earth for a hundred and fifty days...The water receded steadily from the earth. At the end of the hundred and fifty days the water had gone down, and on the seventeenth day of the seventh month the ark came to rest on the mountains of Ararat” (Genesis 6:16; 7:11-16, 24; 8:3-4).

So we see that Noah's situation is as follows:

- There is one door to the ark, from which place YHWH shuts him in along with his family and the animals<sup>134</sup>
- The rain for a full forty days and forty nights is clearly sufficient to both flood the Earth and block the sun and the moon (Job 26:9)
- And yet, in spite of definite impediments to sighting the sun and the moon, Noah, or possibly his chronicler Moses, are certain that the time from the start of the deluge to the ark resting on the mountains of Ararat is exactly 150 days

So it appears that either Noah or Moses is counting the exact intervals of days independent of what can be sighted in the sky. As mentioned earlier, the Scriptural command of “observing” in no way demands a visual (or at least not a visual only) system for determining the start of time intervals. In fact, the biblical trending is in the opposite direction. As mentioned earlier, the Shabbat is clearly an absolute count independent of months and years. Furthermore, there can be little doubt that all the feasts and the omer count also run by directly counting the days.

With this general background then, we can now proceed to the specifics of the calendars, beginning with the example we just finished discussing.

The First Calendar: Noah's Solar Year

As we investigate Noah's calendar further, we come to a startling fact: There is no way that we can have exactly 5 consecutive months equal 150 days in a lunar system. Therefore, this calendar has to be solar! The lunar calendar has to have months alternating between 29 and 30 days in order to stay accurate, but in this case we have the months as 30 days five times in a row!

<sup>134</sup> In some translations (KJV) the word tzohar is translated as “window”; however, the better rendering is “roof”. Even if there was a window it is very doubtful that the weather conditions would have allowed an accurate sighting of the sun and the moon. Whatever the origin of the word, there is still great uncertainty since everywhere else it appears the meaning is exclusively “noon-day”. However, the explanation least likely to create error seems to be that “roof” avoids the metaphoric use of this word from not being stretched further than necessary. We can certainly see how “roof” more easily relates to the sky than a window does.

Within a lunar system, the second month must be 29 days. That means that only 12 days remain from when Noah was shut in. Then, again because sighting the sun and moon is not possible here, the calculated lunar calendar demands the third month be 30 days, the fourth 29, the fifth 30, the sixth 29, and then 17 days for the seventh month. The total then comes to only 147 days.

If we assume that the New Moon was sighted in the second month, then the 14th day may have revealed the “double check” (full moon) to establish in advance that it was a 30 day month. Then the rains persist, making sighting the sun and moon impossible for at least 40 days, so the third month must be calculated then.

From there, we have to consider whether the ark had a “window” on top. As mentioned in the previous footnote, the word in question appears 24 times in Tanakh, and 23 of those times it means “noon” or “noon-day”. There is absolutely no support for it meaning “window,” and almost all scholars believe it refers to the “roof” since the ark is mimicking the pattern of the sky. Nevertheless, if Noah could see out his window starting as early as month 4, then the lunar cycle from there would still alternate between 29 and 30 days. So, if the second month was then somehow 30 days (13 days remaining after the start of the flood), the 3rd month would be 29, fourth month 30, fifth month 29, sixth month 30, plus 17 days in the final month. However, once again, the total is shy of 150 days, this time only at 148 days. In short, this reckoning does not work within a lunar system, even when part of the time it can be sighted. Instead, the only way it works at all is this way:

17 th day, 2 nd month to the end of that month.....	13
All of the 3 rd month.....	30
All of the 4 th month.....	30
All of the 5 th month.....	30
All of the 6 th month.....	30
To the 17 th day of the 7 th month.....	17
<hr/> Total Days.....	<hr/> 150

However, some will point out that perhaps Noah’s observation of the crescent of the New Moon was off by a day on two in some of the five months, which might bring it to 150 days while staying lunar. To those who would be of this school I would say this: Yes, that would be possible if, and only if, this were the only biblical example of this original solar year. But, as we will see now, this is not true. In Daniel 7, we are given the first vision of the Beast who will make war against the righteous in the Last Days: “The ten horns are ten kings who will come from this kingdom. After them another king will arise, different from the earlier ones; he will subdue three kings. He will speak against the Most High and oppress his saints and try to change the set times and the laws. The saints will be handed over to him for a time, times and half a time. But the court will sit, and his power will be taken away and completely destroyed forever. Then the sovereignty, power and greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be handed over to the saints, the people of the Most High. His kingdom will be an everlasting kingdom, and all rulers will worship and obey him. This is the end of the matter. I, Daniel, was deeply troubled by my thoughts, and my face turned pale, but I kept the matter to myself” (Daniel 7:24-28).

Even in conventional Judaism, this is understood generally to mean a period of 3 ½ years (a time, two times, plus half). However, Revelation also provides more assistance in clearly explaining the matter: “The woman was given the two wings of a great eagle, so that she might fly to the place prepared for her in the desert, where she would be taken care of for a time, times and half a time, out of the serpent’s reach” (Revelation 12:14).

“Then I was given a measuring rod like a staff, and I was told: “Rise and measure the Temple of Elohim and the altar and those who worship there, but do not measure the court outside the Temple; leave that out, for it is given over to the nations, and they will trample over the Set Apart city for forty-two months. And I will grant My two witnesses power to prophesy for one thousand two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth” (Revelation 11:2, 3).

“The beast was given a mouth to utter proud words and blasphemies and to exercise his authority for forty-two months.” (Revelation 13:5) So we see here clearly that “time, times and half a time” equals 1,260 days which, in turn, equals 42 months. Therefore:

$$30 \text{ days per month} \times 42 = 1,260$$

$$360 \text{ (time)} + 720 \text{ (times)} + 180 \text{ (half a time)} = 1,260$$

We even find confirmation from First Century priestly sources that this was the proper understanding: And moreover, it is owing to them (the sun, moon and stars<sup>135</sup>) that the most useful of all things, the nature of number exists, time having displayed it...and from the notion of a month is derived the number thirty, and from a year that number which is equal to the days of the twelve months, and from infinite time comes the notion of infinite number. (Philo Judaeus, On Creation, 60 p. 9 CD Yonge Translation)

And in another key passage, Philo goes even further, linking the solar year directly to the most ancient biblical people: Why would a man [Enoch] who lives a life of repentance be said to have lived 365 years?<sup>136</sup> (Genesis 5:23). In the first place, the year consists of 365 days; therefore, by the symbol of the solar orbit, the sacred historian indicates the life of the repentant man. (Philo Judaeus, Questions and Answers on Genesis, 84-a p. 808 CD Yonge Translation)

And from Daniel: “From the moment that the perpetual sacrifice is abolished and the disastrous abomination erected: 1,290 days. Blessed is he who stands firm and attains 1,335 days”<sup>137</sup> (Daniel 12:11-12).

So here we see the same time period mentioned, but this time the 3 ½ year portion equals 1,290 days. The second set of 3 ½ years equals a total of 7 years, or a prophetic week. But, this is also literally true in terms of the calendar as well. The combined message then is this: Once every seven years, the divine calendar will add a 30-day solar leap month! More specifically, this gets done after the completion of the sixth year, but before the commencement of the seventh, mirroring the Shabbat pattern exactly.

And so, looking at this by the numbers, this is what we have:

$$(360 \times 6) + 30 = 2,190 \text{ days}$$

$$2,190 \text{ days divided by } 6 = \mathbf{365 \text{ days/year}}$$

Even so, it is fair to point out that the real solar year is 6 hours longer, or 365.25 days. How do we account for that?

First of all we must understand how the 40 year compensation mechanism works. First let’s look to Scripture for background: “I hate, I despise your religious feasts; I cannot stand your assemblies. Even though you bring me burnt offerings and grain offerings, I will not accept them. Though you bring choice fellowship offerings, I will have no regard for them. Away with 135 See the previous Philo reference to confirm the context as this is a direct continuation from that passage’s last quoted sentence.

136 This is an extremely important reference, as the only man in the Torah recorded as living 365 years is Enoch, the seventh generation from Adam, and these two numbers tell the tale. The seventh generation, like the seventh day, is a symbol of perfection. Added to this we have 365 years in this perfect man’s life, who was in fact so righteous that YHWH took him up bodily without having him die. This honor is extremely rare, with the only other Scriptural example being Elijah many centuries later. In any case, the other aspect is that if a day can equal a year (Ezekiel 4:4-6) then a year can equal a day, and that means the perfect man is given a perfect life span, which represents a full solar year. If the “fullness” of the year was intended to be lunar, then Enoch would have lived 354 years. The final remez, or hint, is in Enoch’s name, which actually is rendered khanoke (חֲנוֹכֶה) in Hebrew. This word actually means “to dedicate” and it is from this word that we also get Hanukkah, which is in turn also known as the Festival of Lights. That linkage not only attaches to Messiah in John 10:22, but also back to the pattern of Creation itself, “Let there be light!”

137 The meaning of the 1,335 days, however, is rooted in the prophecy of Daniel alone. It seems to be referencing the time between the crucifixion of Messiah (30 CE) and the total end to the Jewish War (74 CE). It is this deadly generation that Y’shua keeps referencing; however, I know this is not the only interpretation that has been suggested by other scholars. For now, though, I will simply point out that I am not ignoring the 1,335 days and that its ultimate solution as to what it represents is not needed for the main parts of this discussion.

the noise of your songs! I will not listen to the music of your harps. But let justice roll on like a river, righteousness like a never-failing stream! “Did you bring me sacrifices and offerings forty years in the desert, O house of Israel? You have lifted up the shrine of your king, the pedestal of your idols, the star of your god - which you made for yourselves. Therefore I will send you into exile beyond Damascus,” says YHWH, whose name is Elohim Almighty” (Amos 5:21-27).

So we begin with a remez of two different events concerning the same problem of idolatry. In both cases, 40 years of isolation is the chosen penalty. However, there is a kosher version where we admired the stars as servants of YHWH, who made them. So now think 40 years and stars, and let's go to the next step: “But Elohim turned away and gave them over to the worship of the heavenly bodies. This agrees with what is written in the book of the prophets: ‘Did you bring me sacrifices and offerings forty years in the desert, O house of Israel? You have lifted up the shrine of Molech and the star of your god Rephan, the idols you made to worship. Therefore, I will send you into exile beyond Babylon.’ Our forefathers had the tabernacle of the Testimony with them in the desert. It had been made as Elohim directed Moses, according to the pattern he had seen. Having received the tabernacle, our fathers under Joshua brought it with them when they took the land from the nations Elohim drove out before them. It remained in the land until the time of David, who enjoyed Elohim's favor and asked that he might provide a dwelling place for the Elohim of Jacob. But it was Solomon who built the house for him. However, the Most High does not live in houses made by men. As the prophet says: ‘Heaven is my throne and earth is my footstool. What kind of house will you build for me? says YHWH. Or where will my resting place be? Has not my hand made all these things?’” (Acts 7:42-50)

Moses saw a pattern in heaven and, of course heaven signs are superior to earth signs but what about the stars then? Here is an interesting mention of one particular star: “I see him, but not now; I behold him, but not near. A star will come out of Jacob; a scepter will rise out of Israel. He will crush the foreheads of Moab, the skulls of all the sons of Seth” (Numbers 24:17). Leaving aside the metaphoric/Messianic imagery, the verse literally does identify a star with Jacob, also known as Israel. However, this verse as well as Genesis 1:14-19, tells us that certain stars are somehow marking time!

Next we add to these facts the time both writers are talking about. This is the second year after the Exodus and, therefore, the time the rebellious Israelites spend wandering in the Wilderness until the generation that worshipped the Golden Calf is consumed. Torah clearly says this period is in fact 40 years. Then, after this time, the generation is considered “cleansed” and they are permitted to enter into Promised Land.

Therefore, if the sun can rest for a Shabbat by having the leap month added after six years, it also seems reasonable that the 40 year cycle of the Israelites on Earth is also first reflected in heaven. In other words, this year points to the time that the 40 year cycle also completed in heaven, when it would then reset for the next 40 years.

What that means as far as the calendar we are discussing is that 2,190 day/6 year cycle itself repeats six times, bringing us to 36 years. Then, instead of waiting for another six years before the next solar leap month, we simply complete the generation and do it after four years, making for a 40 year cycle in all! When we do this, then the math changes accordingly:

$$\begin{aligned} 2,190 \text{ days} \times 6 &= 13,140 \text{ days in 36 years} \\ (360 \text{ days} \times 4) + 30 &= 1,470 \text{ days between years 37 through 40} \\ 13,140 + 1,470 &= 14,610 \text{ days in 40 years} \\ 14,610 \text{ days divided by } 40 &= \mathbf{365.25 \text{ days/year}} \end{aligned}$$

Now at this point, the numbers get more complicated.<sup>138</sup> In order to reach the accuracy of our current Gregorian system, it is necessary to omit the leap month in the 100th occurrence of the 40-year cycle, or once every 4,000 years. That slight change will yield a year equaling 365.2425 days. So, if the sun simply follows Torah on Shabbat and generational time, we arrive at the exact same interval predicted with our current Gregorian calendar!

On the other hand, while there is no direct Scriptural reference for cutting the numbers this fine, the general principles of following the sun and moon signs we have discussed up until now surely imply that we should at least be at this level. Remarkably, though, we can even get more accurate. Let us examine the Scripture first: “You shall not bow down to them or worship them; for I YHWH your Elohim am a jealous Elohim, punishing children for the iniquity of parents, to the third and the fourth generation of those who reject me, but showing steadfast love to the thousandth generation of those who love me and keep my commandments” (Exodus 20:5-6) (See also Deuteronomy 7:9, 1 Chronicles 16:15, Psalm 105:8.) A thousand generations is surely a major piece of time. Further, as Numbers 32:13 and many other Torah passages teach, an individual generation is usually 40 years long.

However, other Torah passages show that a generation can also equal 100 years! Let’s see why: “Never again will there be in it an infant who lives but a few days, or an old man who does not live out his years; he who dies at a hundred will be thought a mere youth; he who fails to reach a hundred will be considered accursed” (Isaiah 65:20). The reason a person who dies at a hundred years is considered “accursed” is because by the standard of the Messianic Age he would have just barely reached a generation when compared with how long others will live!

But let’s also see the earlier reference to this too: “{Elohim} said to Abram, “Know for certain that your descendants will be strangers in a land that is not theirs, where they will be enslaved and oppressed 400 years. But I will punish the nation they serve as slaves, and afterward they will come out with great possessions. You, however, will go to your fathers in peace and be buried at a good old age. In the fourth generation your descendants will come back here, for the sin of the Amorites has not yet reached its full measure” (Genesis 15:13-16).

In Hebrew, we are told that “four meah (מאה) of years” passes, and meah is the Hebrew number for 100. However, the exact same period of time is also referred to here as “four dor (דור), the same word used for 40 year “generations” elsewhere. Therefore a generation can also equal 100 years, and this should be reflected in YHWH’s calendar. As I alluded to just now, that manifests in a 100,000 year cycle (1,000 generations in the Scripture times the 100 year per generation reference).

In crunching the numbers then, we come up with a very simple addition that in the last 40 year cycle of the 100,000 year period the 6th and 7th interval solar leap months are omitted. That will then bring us to an even more accurate calendar than the one we currently use, with a year now equaling 365.2422 days, the exact length of the solar year.

Once more, as mentioned in an earlier footnote, I am indebted to the research of the folks at: www.360calendar.com for some of these finer points. Their research goes into much greater detail, but for our purposes it is sufficient to simply show that biblical numbers reveal the perfect solar year, because it is important that we understand that this has always been tracked in Scripture.<sup>139</sup>

139 Some may object to this system as defined here and with the help of www.360calendar.com. The anticipated objection will likely be that not every bit of detail came directly from Scriptural reference, and I sympathize with this viewpoint. Some may suggest that the maximum we can glean from Scripture would only bring us to Gregorian levels, and that further calculations become speculative. Therefore, I suggest an alternate mechanism. The Gregorian calendar is predicted to lose a day every 3,300 years. While this is a great improvement over the Julian that loses a day every 128 years, it nevertheless is a time frame that is exceeded by the period of years outlined in the Bible, in that Moses lived around 3,500 years ago and Abraham and Noah, of course, go further back than this. To counteract this issue, my suggestion is to take the incidents in Joshua and Isaiah literally with respect to the sun’s progress. In Joshua, the sun and the moon stay frozen for almost a day. In Isaiah, the prophet gives a sign to a king by causing the shadows cast by the sun to roll back. If both of these “tweaks” are added together, it turns out YHWH used these miracles to synchronize our solar system clock to the rest of the galaxy, and thus a “day patch” is added, keeping the biblical and Gregorian calendars in perfect alignment, the degree of which I will explain a little later in the main text. For now, suffice it to say that I believe that both solutions are Scriptural as well as perfect, but I fully understand why some would prefer this version over its more detailed numerically based counterpart.

Later we will see how the detailed relationship between the heavens and the Israelites unfold with clear celestial references from Scripture. Now, however, our more pressing need is to look at the other pattern, where the priests set the sacred festivals by the cycles of the moon. After that, we will investigate the ultimate sky sign that kicks off the year in both systems.

The Gregorian Patch

In the next two sections, we will see if the Jubilee Pattern can give insight into the time of Messiah Y'shua's return. Now, however, we need to take a slight diversion to lay down the necessary foundation to that argument. All solar calendars intercalate in some way, whether it is by leap months or leap days, because the solar year has approximately a six hour remainder after its 365th day that has to be dealt with.

After all the effort put towards the 360 day Prophetic Calendar, we need not now correlate the Priestly Calendar because we eventually come to the same number of days either way at the end of the cycle. There is no reason to convert the Hebrew dates to the 360, and then to Gregorian, when going directly to Gregorian will serve just fine. Besides, without a direct conversion into Gregorian, the dates laid down thus far, will be meaningless.

On the other hand, many calendar experts warn that taking Gregorian too far backwards from its creation in 1582 is a perilous undertaking. If those doing the assessment do not believe in the literal truth of the Bible, then neither are they likely to accept this treatment either.

The fact is, our Gregorian Calendar was meant to correct the long-standing losses of the Julian Calendar, which lost a day every 128 years. Julian was thus corrected going backward by adding 12 days. Then, going forward, Gregorian instituted 97 leap days in a 400 year period, instead of the Julian's 100 leap days in the same time frame. As a result, instead of losing a day every 128 years, the new calendar was accurate to losing a day every 3,300 years!

But immediately we see the problem: Moses' day is more than 3,500 years in the past, so it would seem that Gregorian loses its accuracy when looking at that period in history. Thankfully, however, Scripture does give us an ancient answer to this seemingly scientifically sound obstacle: "On the day YHWH gave the Amorites over to Israel, Joshua said to YHWH in the presence of Israel: "O sun, stand still over Gibeon, O moon, over the Valley of Aijalon." So the sun stood still, and the moon stopped, till the nation avenged itself on its enemies, as it is written in the Book of Jashar. The sun stopped in the middle of the sky and delayed going down about a full day. There has never been a day like it before or since, a day when YHWH listened to a man. Surely YHWH was fighting for Israel!" (Joshua 10:12-14)

"Then the word of YHWH came to Isaiah: "Go and tell Hezekiah, 'This is what YHWH, the Elohim of your father David, says: I have heard your prayer and seen your tears; I will add fifteen years to your life. And I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria. I will defend this city. "This is YHWH's sign to you that YHWH will do what he has promised: I will make the shadow cast by the sun go back the ten steps it has gone down on the stairway of Ahaz." So the sunlight went back the ten steps it had gone down" (Isaiah 38:4-8).

If we take these verses literally, then it is beyond dispute that the sun and moon were held still for a combined day - at the very least! Since the sun and the moon are marking the year then, their pausing for a day while the rest of our galaxy keeps moving would have synchronized our solar system to the galaxy - in effect patching Gregorian, so it did not lose that day from 3,300 years in either direction. In practical terms that means any range of dates from about 1718 BCE to 4882 CE can be accurately charted with the Gregorian system without losing a day.<sup>140</sup>

140 This of course, works just fine for Moses' time, which we are studying. For anything prior to the 1718 BCE chronology, such as Abraham, we would simply have to use the 360 solar year calendar already described and then calculate it into Gregorian, or just subtract a Gregorian day which will keep it accurate for 3,300 more years going backwards from 1718 BCE. This extra step, though, is not needed for this time, because once again Moses was alive in 1500 BCE.

Therefore, as we convert the priestly times into Gregorian, there will be no such concern about losing any time. Also, bear in mind that such a situation means that we can now turn to Lunar/Gregorian tables with great accuracy and even determine when a biblical year would have a leap day on February 29th by our reckoning.

Understanding Prophetic and Practical Sabbatical and Jubilee Years

As we saw in the recent quoting of Leviticus 25:8-13, the counts for the Sabbatical and Jubilee years were tied to the entry into Canaan, not the Exodus that happened 40 years earlier. However, YHWH did not intend for there to be a 40 year delay; the delay was caused by the Israelites worshipping the Golden Calf. And, even as Israel was still wandering, YHWH then gave this warning as a reminder for what will happen after they get to the Promised Land: “Do not defile yourselves in any of these ways, because this is how the nations that I am going to drive out before you became defiled. Even the land was defiled; so I punished it for its sin, and the land vomited out its inhabitants. But you must keep my decrees and my laws. The native-born and the aliens living among you must not do any of these detestable things, for all these things were done by the people who lived in the land before you, and the land became defiled. And if you defile the land, it will vomit you out as it vomited out the nations that were before you” (Leviticus 18:24-28).

However, when almost 90 percent of the nation was taken into captivity by the Assyrians in 722 BCE, it seems a question arose amongst the remaining leadership: Do we keep the Sabbatical and Jubilee years when most of our nation is scattered? As history shows, their answer appeared to be no, and the lack of observance of these times may have extended even further back, dovetailing with the fact that not even Passover was observed until centuries later.

But YHWH had other ideas, and tried to tell them so: “Then the land will enjoy its Sabbath years all the time that it lies desolate and you are in the country of your enemies; then the land will rest and enjoy its Sabbaths” (Leviticus 26:34).

When they still did not listen, the prophecy became true: “Furthermore, all the leaders of the priests and the people became more and more unfaithful, following all the detestable practices of the nations and defiling the temple of YHWH, which he had consecrated in Jerusalem. YHWH, the Elohim of their fathers, sent word to them through his messengers again and again, because he had pity on his people and on his dwelling place. But they mocked Elohim’s messengers, despised his words and scoffed at his prophets until the wrath of YHWH was aroused against his people and there was no remedy. He brought up against them the king of the Babylonians, who killed their young men with the sword in the sanctuary, and spared neither young man nor young woman, old man or aged. Elohim handed all of them over to Nebuchadnezzar. He carried to Babylon all the articles from the temple of Elohim, both large and small, and the treasures of YHWH’s temple and the treasures of the king and his officials. They set fire to Elohim’s temple and broke down the wall of Jerusalem; they burned all the palaces and destroyed everything of value there. He carried into exile to Babylon the remnant, who escaped from the sword, and they became servants to him and his sons until the kingdom of Persia came to power. The land enjoyed its Sabbath rests; all the time of its desolation it rested, until the seventy years were completed in fulfillment of the word of YHWH spoken by Jeremiah” (2 Chronicles 36:14-21).

So we see, then, that YHWH intended Israel to forever vouchsafe her presence in the Land through continuously righteous behavior. But, when after rebellion they were expelled, the Land took its Sabbaths anyway. Since the Jubilee is also based at least partly on the seven-year Sabbaths, it should not be surprising that there is a difference between the idealized Jubilee system YHWH instituted that knew no breaks and the “practical” system that came about when rabbis began counting those same occasions from the time they returned to the Land.

It is for these reasons that the rabbinical Jubilee and Sabbatical year counting became flawed and at odds with the dates given to us by Torah. It seems that whatever the number of Jews that YHWH required to be in the Land to keep the Jubilees going was always much smaller than what the religious elite believed. It can also be shown that there was always a Jewish presence in the Land even during the Diaspora, meaning that from YHWH's perspective that Jubilee Clock, once started in 1406 BCE, should never have stopped in the first place.

By contrast, none of the possible years of the First Temple's destruction fit as years after the Sabbatical. This is even true of the false but popular rabbinic choice of 432 BCE, as well as the 588-586 BCE timeframe.

Why the Jewish leadership, including today's rabbinate and Sanhedrin, always seems to ignore this command is difficult to tell, however, the bad practice still continues. When Israel was re-born in 1948, the leading rabbis chose 1951 as the first Jubilee since the majority of Jewry returned to the Land. However, if we make 1951 a continuous backwards cycle we see that not even the well established 70 CE date for the Second Temple's destruction works with the timing the Mishnah specifies for the Sabbatical and Jubilee cycles! In that event, the nearest Jubilee would have been 40 CE, meaning the year the Mishnah identifies, 69, could not have been Sabbatical. And so, where that leaves us is simply to say that what follows has to do with the Perfect Prophetic Sabbatical/Jubilee Cycle, along with the five year cycle explained earlier. That continuous cycle then cannot and does not resemble the traditional Mishnah speculations, which are based on when they were in and out of the Land.

That idea, then, leads to this final point on this subject: "Therefore wait for me, declares YHWH, for the day I will stand up to testify. I have decided to assemble the nations, to gather the kingdoms and to pour out my wrath on them - all my fierce anger. The whole world will be consumed by the fire of my jealous anger. Then will I purify the lips of the peoples, that all of them may call on the name of YHWH and serve him shoulder to shoulder. From beyond the rivers of Cush my worshipers, my scattered people, will bring me offerings. On that day you will not be put to shame for all the wrongs you have done to me, because I will remove from this city those who rejoice in their pride. Never again will you be haughty on my holy hill. But I will leave within you the meek and humble, who trust in the name of YHWH. The remnant of Israel will do no wrong; they will speak no lies, nor will deceit be found in their mouths. They will eat and lie down and no one will make them afraid" (Zephaniah 3:8-13).

So, in the end times, proper knowledge will be restored to Yisrael so that they may serve YHWH perfectly again.

Jubilee of Jubilees! Can We Name the Time of Mashiach's Return?

Perhaps the most surprising discovery is in seeing how the Jubilee Pattern may point, at least in a general sense, to the Second Coming of Messiah Y'shua. Before explaining further, though, let us remember that Y'shua said that only Father YHWH knows for sure when this will happen,<sup>141</sup> and that we will not know the hour. However, YHWH also gave us clues that clearly point to the overall time, and almost all Jewish and Christian scholars agree the clock started ticking in 1948, when Israel became a state.

There have been numerous Christian prophetic debacles in history when folks like William Miller<sup>142</sup> misinterpreted Scripture and followed their own human reasoning. However, even he recovered from that disaster and went on to other things to benefit people today. If that's the worst that can happen, it is better to risk than to remain silent on the most amazing Scriptural pattern that I have ever seen. The details of this Jubilee clock are complex and fully explained in the publication Wheel of Stars by Andrew Gabriel Roth. However, for now, these are the basics.

<sup>142</sup> William Miller was a Protestant minister who predicted the world would end in 1843 and then 1844. When neither apocalypse happened it led to what is now known as "The Great Disappointment". However, he recovered his reputation somewhat and at least two mainline Protestant offshoots, including the Seventh Day Adventists, trace their origins back to him.

The time clock begins in the year of the Exodus itself, 480 years before the 4th year of Solomon (1 Kings 6:1). In that year the Israelites worshipped the Golden Calf and received 40 years in Wilderness as a penalty. Further adjustment, for the spring to spring reckoning instituted by YHWH in Exodus 12:1-2, will bring us to the spring of 1406 BCE for the start of the year count, and therefore 1356 is Jubilee 1. The full list of the BCE Jubilees is as follows:

BCE 1) 1356, 2) 1306, 3) 1256, 4) 1206, 5) 1156, 6) 1106, 7) 1056, 8) 1006, 9) 956, 10) 906, 11) 856, 12) 806, 13) 756, 14) 706, 15) 656, 16) 606, 17) 556, 18) 506, 19) 456, 20) 406, 21) 356, 22) 306, 23) 256, 24) 206, 25) 156, 26) 106, 27) 56, 28) 06—6 BCE.

Then, adjusting for crossing the BCE-CE timeline, we have these Jubilee years:

CE 29) 45, 30) 95, 31) 145, 32) 195, 33) 245, 34) 295, 35) 345, 36) 395, 37) 445, 38) 495, 39) 545, 40) 595, 41) 645, 42) 695, 43) 745, 44) 795, 45) 845, 46) 895, 47) 945, 48) 995, 49) 1045, 50) 1095, 51) 1145, 52) 1295, 53) 1345, 54) 1395, 55) 1445, 56) 1495, 57) 1545, 58) 1595, 59) 1645, 60) 1695, 61) 1745, 62) 1795, 63) 1845, 64) 1895, 65) 1945, 66) 1995, 67) 2045, 68) 2095, 69) 2145, 70) 2195

As shown above, we would have entered into the 66th Jubilee cycle in 1995, and also by this “straight count” method we would enter into the 70th Jubilee in 2195 and end that cycle in 2245, which would mark the expiry of 70th cycle of Y’shua’s return.

However, if we look at places where the rules of the Jubilee were applied before the Israelites entered Canaan, we find four occasions where people were removed off their land due to disobedience: Adam and Eve’s expulsion from Paradise, the Flood, the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah and the expulsion of the Canaanites whose example was used to warn Israel that they would face the same fate if they disobeyed YHWH. In the book version of Wheel of Stars, we explore much scientific and mathematical evidence to resolve which model is more probable. For now it is important to note that if the early model is correct Y’shua could very well return in our lifetimes.

The Final Sky Sign: What Really Set the Year?

Throughout this study the Vernal Equinox has been referenced as the presumptive time for starting the year. However, while the Vernal and Autumnal Equinoxes are a key clue to help set the general seasonal time, they are not the overall sky sign that kicks the year off. There are two main components to understanding this fact. The first is showing how a kosher version of the Zodiac was used by ancient Israel to track the solar year. The second is explaining what that ultimate “year sign” really is, and what it is not.

As stated earlier, both Josephus and Philo descend from families of priests<sup>143</sup>; they were eyewitnesses to the intricacies of Temple practice<sup>144</sup> and were very well educated men who had access to oral and written traditions that have since been otherwise lost. Again, though, as long as general agreement can be maintained between these men and through Torah teaching and practice, this methodology is most likely the closest we can come back to those original sources.

We just witnessed how Josephus used the Zodiac to explain the precise time of the Ten Plagues and the Exodus. Now let us see how both Josephus and Philo describe how their ancestors regarded the Equinoxes,<sup>145</sup> sun, moon and stars for the timing of festivals:

<sup>143</sup> Josephus also attests to being descended from the Hasmonean royal line, giving him even greater access and understanding of this now lost material. For more information, see his brief autobiography “Life” as recorded in the William Whiston translation, published most recently by Hendrickson Press.

<sup>144</sup> Although we only know of one trip to Jerusalem undertaken by Philo, there has never been any proof that he never went up before or since that particular occasion. At a minimum, Philo has access to priestly documentation that has been lost since the destruction of the Temple, and it is a pretty safe bet that Josephus is reading from those same sources, given how the two men agree so closely on the contents of this extra material.

<sup>145</sup> In addition, of course, to the Aries-Passover connection Josephus provided us in Antiquities 3.10.5.

The last of all the annual festivals is that which is called the Feast of Tabernacles, which is fixed for the season of the autumnal equinox. (Philo Judaeus, Special Laws, II, 204 p. 587 CD Yonge Translation)

On the fourth day he (YHWH) adorned the heaven with the sun, the moon, and the other stars, and appointed them their motions and courses, that the vicissitudes of the seasons might be clearly signified. (Josephus, Preface to Antiquities, 1.1.1)

Upon the fifteenth day of the same month, when the season of the year is changing for winter, the Torah enjoins us to pitch Tabernacles in every one of our houses, so that we preserve ourselves from the cold of that time of the year; as also that when we should arrive at our own country, and come to that city which we should have then for our metropolis, because of the temple therein to be built, and keep a festival for eight days...(Josephus, Antiquities, 3.10.4)

Going a step further then, both Josephus and Philo show us how the priests were tracking the solar year and Zodiac cycle, right down to the memories enshrined in their garments: But in the void place of this garment there was inserted a piece of the bigness of a span, embroidered with gold, and the other colors of the ephod, and was called Essen...On these were engraved the names of the sons of Jacob, in our own country letters, and in our own tongue, six on each of the stones, on either side; and the elder sons' names were on the right shoulder. Twelve stones also there were upon the breast-plate, extraordinary in largeness and beauty...Now the names of all those sons of Jacob were engraved in these stones, whom we esteem the heads of our tribes, each stone having the honor of a name, in the order according to which they were born...And for the twelve stones, whether we understand by them the months, or whether we understand them like number of the signs of that circle which the Greeks call the Zodiac, we shall not be mistaken in their meaning. (Josephus, Antiquities, 3.7.5, 3.7.7)

Then on (the high priest's) chest there are twelve precious stones of different colors, arranged in four rows of three stones in each row, being fashioned so as an emblem of the zodiac. For the zodiac also consists of twelve animals, and so divides the four seasons of the year, allotting three animals to each season. (Philo Judaeus, Special Laws, I, 84-87 (p. 542 CD Yonge Translation)

In both cases, the linkage to the Zodiac specifically designates a solar year. It is in fact the most accurate measure of a solar year that was available to the ancients. Only the measuring of the year from the center of our galaxy, which was not in use prior to the 20th Century, is more accurate. However, we must separate fable from fact with respect to the Zodiac as an astronomical system. Here is some additional background from Wikipedia an online encyclopedia, with the emphases being mine: For any spherical celestial coordinate system one needs to define an equatorial plane and designate an origin for longitude. From these definitions longitudinal meridians perpendicular to the equatorial plane meet at the north and south poles of the celestial sphere and one can precisely specify a unique position on the sphere.

First, the zodiac coordinate system designates the ecliptic as the equatorial plane. One should not confuse the zodiac's equatorial plane with the Earth's equator which is so named because it serves as the equatorial plane for our terrestrial coordinate system. Instead the ecliptic is aligned with the Earth's orbital plane with the Sun. The Earth tilts at an angle of approximately 23° with respect to the orbital plane. This tilt is partly due to the Earth's precession as it gyrates and rotates on its axis. It contributes to the divergence between a tropical year and a sidereal year and thus contributes to the precession of the equinoxes which marks the difference between tropical and sidereal celestial coordinate systems.

Second, a system of coordinates must normally specify an origin (0° point) for longitude. However, the zodiac system names twelve equal regions (called signs) and technically any sign can serve as the beginning or the end of the sphere's precession. The system further divides each sign into thirty degree units. One reason this system of coordinates was particularly useful in antiquity is that writing large numbers was difficult before the introduction of Arabic numbers. The zodiac system of coordinates kept every number below ninety (the highest value for zodiac latitudes). Since the constellations along the ecliptic varied in size, defining 12 equal signs of 30° each did require an arbitrary assignment of boundaries roughly corresponding to the ecliptic constellations.

It is believed many of the classical astronomers specified zodiac signs using two bright stars near the ecliptic and opposite each other to serve as equatorial nodes or poles (not longitudinal poles): Aldebaran and Antares in the constellations Taurus and Scorpius respectively. These stars served rather well because not only were they on opposites sides of the ecliptic, but they also fell very near the center of their constellations and were therefore designated as Taurus 15 and Scorpius 15, meaning the middle 15° points within those signs. From these two stars then the remaining equatorial boundaries of the 12 signs of the zodiac follow).<sup>146</sup>

These ideas, then, bring us back to the reading in Job that was referenced at the beginning: “Can you bind the beautiful Pleiades? Can you loose the cords of Orion? Can you bring forth the Wheel of Stars into its seasons and stand in the path of Ayish/Iyutha (Aldeberan) and her satellites (Hyades). Do you know the laws of the heavens and can you establish their rule over the earth?... Have you given wisdom to the Lance Star (Antares) or intelligence to the Bow Star?” (Hebrew & Aramaic Job 38:31-33, 38, cross referenced to the translation of T.K. Cheyne: Journal of Biblical Literature, Vol. 17, No. 1 (1898), pp. 103-107)

Again, according to Brown Drivers Briggs, the word mazzaroth means “the twelve signs of the Zodiac and their thirty-six associated constellations.” If this is what is being brought into season by YHWH, then it is extremely powerful proof that the Tanakh itself is harking back to the solar and celestial synchronization that keeps the lunar-based holidays in season.

What’s more, the other stars mentioned in this passage of Job according to the Aramaic traditions of both the Tanakh and the 4th Century Syrian Saint Mar Ephraim, are clearly the two points that determine the line that makes the Zodiac itself!

This phenomenon of the sun at zero degrees between Antares and Aldeberan is different from the Vernal Equinox because it is annual, not semi-annual. Also, this event clearly coincides with Josephus’ description of the sign of Aries in the time of Moses! And so, the return of the sun to this region of sky only happens on Vernal Equinox day.

Finally, all of this data again harmonizes with Tanakh in terms of its definition that an annual event is also required to set the year: “Afterward, the prophet came to the king of Israel and said, ‘Strengthen your position and see what must be done, because next spring/turn of the year the king of Aram will attack you again’” (1 Kings 20:22). The literal reading in Hebrew is b’teshuwbah hayah shaneh - or referring to the time after the year was expired, or in the Spring of the year, depending on translation.

We can see this concept more clearly in the Strong’s entry for teshuwbah: 8666. teshuwbah, tesh-oo-baw’; or teshubah, tesh-oo-baw’; from 7725; a recurrence (of time or place); a reply (as returned):-answer, be expired, return. The same word is used four other times in reference to the Spring as the “turn of the year” (2 Samuel 11:1; 1 Kings 20:26; 1 Chronicles 20:1; 2 Chronicles 36:10)

The other Hebrew word used to describe the same idea is tequwphot: “And you shall observe the feast of weeks, of the first fruits of wheat harvest, and the feast of ingathering at the year’s end (tequwphot)” (Exodus 34:22).

“The heavens declare the glory of Elohim; the skies proclaim the work of his hands. Day after day they pour forth speech; night after night they display knowledge. There is no speech or language where their voice is not heard. Their voice goes out into all the earth, their words to the ends of the world. In the heavens he has pitched a tent for the sun, which is like a bridegroom coming forth from his pavilion, like a champion rejoicing to run his course. It rises at one end of the heavens and makes its return circle/circuit (tequwphot) to the other; nothing is hidden from its heat" (Psalm 19:1-6).

"Now it came about at the turn of the year (tequwphot)<sup>147</sup> that the army of the Arameans came up against him; and they came to Judah and Jerusalem, destroyed all the officials of the people from among the people, and sent all their spoil to the king of Damascus" (2 Chronicles 24:23).

Strong's defines the word officially this way: 8622. Tequwfaw. Coming round, circuit of time or space, a turning, circuit. Therefore, Tanakh, Josephus and Philo are all linking Spring to an annual event – the return orbit of the sun to the zero degree marker. While it is true that practical considerations made the Vernal Equinox a far easier mechanism to identify, the technical occasion remained the time when the sun returned to Aries, as viewed by ancient Israel at the time of the Exodus.

Conclusion: Where Do We Go From Here?

An old proverb states that we have to know where we have been in order to know where we are going. Nowhere is this idea truer than with this issue of the biblical calendars. In the quest to understand how the ancients reckoned time, we have been brought through the heart of biblical prophecy, recovered key historical timelines and, perhaps, gained some insight into a range of years that presage the timing of Messiah's return.

We have also seen in general, how the 360 day prophetic calendar gave way to the Pre-Metonic Lunar Regression Calendar, at least in terms of daily usage, so that the harvest festivals could be set by the New Moon. The Pre-Metonic, in its own turn, can also be easily seen giving way to the current Rabbinic Calendar in two respects.

First, the core of Pre-Metonic, that of beginning a cycle with the New Moon, was clearly retained and carried over into the rabbinic system. However, it also seems the rabbis co-opted the solar synchronization idea from the 360 calendar as well, even though its leap months were occurring at different times.

Second, the Pre-Metonic goes a long way to explaining how the general ideas of inter-calculation were present in biblical times, and makes the leap into the Rabbinic more understandable as a smoother transition of ancient ideas well before the understanding of the 19-year cycle arose. The other more enlightening aspect in this regard is that we can see how the rabbis would have viewed their calendrical changes through the prism of being outside of Israel and being able to use that particular area's sky signs and earth signs in combination to synchronize the year. Put simply, it just made more sense to take the lunar year and marry it to a fixed cycle that any Jew could accurately use regardless as to where they lived. This is not to say, however, that all the changes the rabbis subsequently made to their calendar were beneficial or even Scriptural. But, if nothing else, it does make these rulings appear less arbitrary and less divorced from historical process.

What is less clear, however, is how the 360 day calendar relates to our times. Like the Pre-Metonic and Rabbinic systems, the 360 and Gregorian systems seem to resonate and relate to one another historically. But, the fact that the 360 day system is confirmed in the Book of Revelation more than suggests that this timing is not only still being used in heaven by YHWH, but that it will also key mankind into the system that will mark the arrival of the End of Days. How and when the 360 day calendar comes back, though, is not in my power to determine. How the Gregorian may be a kind of witness in this drama also is beyond my understanding.

<sup>147</sup> This time the word refers to Spring. In the first verse, however, it was Fall. This word is tracking the agricultural growing season, driven by the solar cycle.

It is safe to say that as we move closer to the End of Days, more of these insights into the timing of prophecy are inevitable: “At that time Michael, the great prince who protects your people, will arise. There will be a time of distress such as has not happened from the beginning of nations until then. But at that time your people - everyone whose name is found written in the book - will be delivered. Multitudes who sleep in the dust of the earth will awake: some to everlasting life, others to shame and everlasting contempt. Those who are wise will shine like the brightness of the heavens, and those who lead many to righteousness, like the stars for ever and ever. But you, Daniel, close up and seal the words of the scroll until the time of the end. Many will go here and there to increase knowledge” (Daniel 12:1-4).

“Be stunned and amazed, blind yourselves and be sightless; be drunk, but not from wine, stagger, but not from beer. YHWH has brought over you a deep sleep: He has sealed your eyes (the prophets); he has covered your heads (the seers). For you this whole vision is nothing but words sealed in a scroll. And if you give the scroll to someone who can read, and say to him, “Read this, please,” he will answer, “I can’t; it is sealed.” Or if you give the scroll to someone who cannot read, and say, “Read this, please,” he will answer, “I don’t know how to read.” YHWH says: “These people come near to me with their mouth and honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me. Their worship of me is made up only of rules taught by men. Therefore once more I will astound these people with wonder upon wonder; the wisdom of the wise will perish, the intelligence of the intelligent will vanish” (Isaiah 29:9-14).

Y’shua said, all we can do is be vigilant, for we do not know when the day of reckoning comes upon us. If we hold fast though, I pray that YHWH will guide us to all truth and that mankind will see all things in the universe are meant to be for His glory alone.<sup>148</sup>

When was the Crucifixion?

Here is ample Biblical evidence that points to our Savior being crucified on a Thursday, which renders null and void the tradition of “Good Friday” and the Sunday resurrection in Christian lore. Y’shua stated in numerous places (e.g. Matthew 12:38-40) that the Sign of Jonah demanded the Son of Man remain in the earth for three days and three nights. If Y’shua had meant “on the third day,” meaning after two days were completed, he most likely would have called it “the Sign of Joseph” because, while Jonah 1:17 tells us the prophet was released from the big fish after three days and three nights; Joseph, according to Genesis 42:17-18, is said to have freed his brothers from prison “on the third day.”

This is no small distinction, simply because it is impossible to arrive at a time frame of three and days and three nights with an execution on Friday afternoon and a resurrection at Sunday dawn. Christianity as a whole has confused Annual and Weekly Sabbaths, and in general seems to be unaware of multiple “days of preparation” across the timeline in question.

To discern exactly when our Savior rose, it is important to recognize a few things – beginning with the fact that the dawning of a new day according to YHWH and the Hebrew calendar is at twilight as it is getting dark; not at first light in the morning... We also need to note that the time that Y’shua was placed into the grave, which was just before sunset - or approximately 5 p.m. (March-April timeframe).

No matter what the days are called on our modern calendars, there is no way that three days and three nights beginning sometime in Friday evening can end early on Sunday morning – which is what most Christian scholars are trying to insist. The Bible tells us that Y’shua died at 3 p.m. (the ninth hour – John 19:14 – the day had only 12 “hours” in this era); that he was buried later that day (John 19:31); and that he was in the grave “three days and three nights.”

When is the Passover Lamb Eaten?

This may seem an odd question, but in fact there are two different timelines in the Synoptics and John for when the Paschal lamb is eaten:

On the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Y'shua and asked, "Where do you want us to make preparations for you to eat the Passover?" He replied, "Go into the city to a certain man and tell him, 'The Teacher says: My appointed time is near. I am going to celebrate the Passover with my disciples at your house.'" So the disciples did as Y'shua had directed them and prepared the Passover. When evening came, Y'shua was reclining at the table with the Twelve. And while they were eating, he said, "I tell you the truth, one of you will betray me." They were very sad and began to say to him one after the other, "Surely not I, Master?" Y'shua replied, "The one who has dipped his hand into the bowl with me will betray me. The Son of Man will go just as it is written about him. But woe to that man who betrays the Son of Man! It would be better for him if he had not been born." Then Yehuda, the one who would betray him, said, "Surely not I, Rabbi?" Y'shua answered, "Yes, it is you." While they were eating, Y'shua took bread, gave thanks and broke it, and gave it to his disciples, saying, "Take and eat; this is my body." Then he took the cup, gave thanks and offered it to them, saying, "Drink from it, all of you. This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. I tell you, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it anew with you in my Father's kingdom" (Matthew 26:17-29).

This passage, along with parallel citations in Mark 14:12-31 and Luke 22:1-21, clearly indicate the evening of Y'shua's arrest is just after a Passover Seder. But, on the other hand, John seems to mention a different schedule:

"When he had finished praying, Y'shua left with his disciples and crossed the Kidron Valley. On the other side there was an olive grove, and he and his disciples went into it. Now Yehuda, who betrayed him, knew the place, because Y'shua had often met there with his disciples. So Yehuda came to the grove, guiding a detachment of soldiers and some officials from the chief priests and Pharisees...Then the Jews led Y'shua from Caiaphas to the palace of the Roman governor. By now it was early morning, and to avoid ceremonial uncleanness the Jews did not enter the palace; they wanted to be able to eat the Passover" (John 18:1-3, 28).

There seems to be a contradiction between these two accounts. John says the Pharisees have not yet had their Passover even the morning after they arrested Y'shua from his own Seder! Can both accounts be right? As it turns out, the answer is yes, but not for the reasons that most think. Some theologians are split on whether they should keep the first or second night of Pesach (or both) as a Seder. The reason for both this modern tendency and one explanation for why the Pharisees did what they did in Y'shua's day, comes from this a "confusion" of understanding the Tanakh:

"Celebrate the Feast of Unleavened Bread, because it was on this very day that I brought your divisions out of Egypt. Celebrate this day as a lasting ordinance for the generations to come. In the first month you are to eat bread made without yeast, from the evening of the fourteenth day until the evening of the twenty-first day. For seven days no yeast is to be found in your houses. And whoever eats anything with yeast in it must be cut off from the community of Israel, whether he is an alien or native-born. Eat nothing made with yeast. Wherever you live, you must eat unleavened bread" (Exodus 12:17-20).

These instructions seem straightforward at first glance:

- 1) Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread are interchangeable terms for a ceremony that begins on the evening of 14 Nisan. (For confirmation of a 6 day Feast of Unleavened Bread, please see Deuteronomy 16:8)

2) The combined feast lasts seven days, from the 14th to the 21st, during which time yeast is totally prohibited.

However, when we examine other passages in Torah, it's not so easy after all:

“These are YHWH’s appointed feasts, the sacred assemblies you are to proclaim at their appointed times: YHWH’s Passover begins at twilight on the fourteenth day of the first month. On the fifteenth day of that month YHWH’s Feast of Unleavened Bread begins; for seven days you must eat bread made without yeast” (Leviticus 23:4-6).

“On the fourteenth day of the first month YHWH’s Passover is to be held. On the fifteenth day of this month there is to be a festival; for seven days eat bread made without yeast” (Numbers 28:16-17).

Here the scenario is:

- 1) Passover is a separate occasion, beginning late afternoon on 14 Nisan.
- 2) Passover is then followed by the Feast of Unleavened Bread, which lasts an additional seven days.

Additionally: “On the first day hold a sacred assembly and do no regular work. For seven days present an offering made to YHWH by fire. And on the seventh day hold a sacred assembly and do no regular work.” (Leviticus 23:7-8) The “first day” mentioned here in Leviticus 23:7 is the same “first day mentioned in the line before, 15 Nisan. So now, technically speaking, we have three sacred occasions<sup>149</sup> running together:

- 1) Passover, just in the twilight time on the 14th. Begin eating unleavened bread, and also bitter herbs, etc., for the Seder.
- 2) The Feast of Unleavened Bread, from 15-21 Nisan, where unleavened bread is eaten for 6 more days, totaling 7 in all. On the 15th also there is a “sacred assembly” (Annual Shabbat) in which no work is to be done.
- 3) At the end of the six additional days is separate “sacred assembly” (also an Annual Shabbat) where again regular work is prohibited.

It takes several references to piece everything together, and we can easily see why some references would add the 8th day (the second sacred assembly) to the overall holiday, and others might be more precise and say it is a separated occasion that simply happens the very next day. This “overflowing” from Passover on 14 Nisan, directly into the Feast of Unleavened Bread on 15-21 Nisan and the final Annual Shabbat on 22 Nisan is responsible for much of the controversy on the “Passover” timing!

In Y’shua’s time, eating the Paschal lamb sometimes got confused with the burnt offering/meal called a “chagigah” that happened a day later, as Alfred Edersheim explains: We have already explained that according to the Rabbis (Chag. ii, 1; vi, 2), three things were implied in the festive command to ‘appear before YHWH’—‘Presence,’ the ‘Chagigah,’ and ‘Joyousness.’ As specially applied to the Passover, the first of these terms meant, that every one was to come up to Jerusalem and to offer a burnt-offering, if possible on the first, or else on one of the other six days of the feast. This burnt-offering was to be taken only from ‘Cholin’ (or profane substance), that is, from such as did not otherwise belong to YHWH, either as tithes, firstlings, or things devoted, etc. The Chagigah, which was strictly a peace-offering, might be twofold. This first Chagigah was offered on the 14th of Nisan, the day of the Paschal sacrifice, and formed afterwards part of the Paschal Supper. The second Chagigah was offered on the 15th of Nisan, or the first day of the feast of <sup>149</sup> Technically speaking, there are four different occasions within this 8 day timeline. The one not mentioned above is “First Fruits” or bikkurim, which happens on 16 Nisan, the second day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread (Leviticus 23:9-14). We are simply focused here on the main occasions that run together as opposed to parallel occasions on the same days.

unleavened bread. It is this second Chagigah which the Jews were afraid they might be unable to eat, if they contracted defilement in the judgment-hall of Pilate (John 18:28).

In reference to the first Chagigah, the Mishnah lays down the rule, that it was only to be offered if the Paschal day fell on a week-day, not on a Sabbath<sup>150</sup>, and if the Paschal lamb alone would not have been sufficient to give a satisfying supper to the company which gathered around it (Pes. vi. 4).

As in the case of all other peace-offerings, part of this Chagigah might be kept, though not for longer than one night and two days from its sacrifice. Being a voluntary offering, it was lawful to bring it from sacred things (such as tithes of the flock).

But the Chagigah for the 15th of Nisan was obligatory, and had therefore to be brought from “Cholin.” The third duty incumbent on those who appeared at the feast was “joyousness.” This expression, as we have seen, simply referred to the fact that, according to their means, all Israel were, during the course of this festival, with joyous heart to offer peace-offerings, which might be chosen from sacred things (Deut. 27:7).

Thus the sacrifices which every Israelite was to offer at the Passover were, besides his share in the Paschal lamb, a burnt-offering, the Chagigah (one or two), and offerings of joyousness— as Elohim had blessed each household. (The Temple: Its Ministry and Services, Chapter 11, “The Three Things”)

So here is the real reason why John’s account appears to be “running a day behind.” The reality is, as Edersheim asserts, the Pharisees were still on the same schedule as Y’shua and his disciples were in the accounts of Matthew, Mark and Luke. On the other hand, the Pharisees could point to the daylight period from dawn to sunset on 15 Nisan also technically as a “day of preparation”! As a result, the timing of the “day of preparation” terminology can be applied to the daylight periods of 14, 15 or even 16 Nisan, assuming the 16th was a Friday, the “day of preparation” for the regular weekly Shabbat! We will see how this pattern actually manifests in the Good News record a bit later.

Is it Passover or is it the Feast of Unleavened Bread?

As just alluded to above, there is some confusion as to which sacred occasion is intended in the Good News record. The writings themselves, like many documents written by Jews and for Jews, simply assume that their readership knows when and when not to interchange the terms: “On the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Y’shua and asked, “Where do you want us to make preparations for you to eat the Passover?” (Matthew 26:17) As the reader can easily see, the technical beginning of the Feast of Unleavened Bread would have been a day after the Passover Seder, yet there are verses that appear to confuse this point: “Now the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread were only two days away, and the chief priests and the teachers of the law were looking for some sly way to arrest Y’shua and kill him” (Mark 14:1).

So both celebrations, one flowing into the other, are two days away according to Mark. That would harmonize the details of that and the parallel account in Matthew 26 as 12 Nisan. Other citations, however, go the other way, and seem to blur these distinctions: “Now the Feast of Unleavened Bread, called the Passover, was approaching...Then came the day of Unleavened Bread on which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed” (Luke 22:1, 7). And so, technically speaking, the Passover lamb was sacrificed at twilight on the 14th, not the beginning of the 15th after sunset, which is the separate Feast of Unleavened Bread! Luke 22:7 is also, though, one of two extremely <sup>150</sup> If this ruling in the Mishnah applied two centuries before Y’shua’s time, then it provides very important evidence for clarifying the timeline. The reason is, it would explain why the Galileans celebrated a day before the residents of Jerusalem, as Y’shua and his followers would have taken the first chagigah on the 14th. These burnt offerings created strain on the nation of Israel if they all had to be done on one day, and since we know this particular Passover did not fall on a Friday but was a “high day,” it seems clear the Pharisees were taking advantage of the rules since many of them also had to help their fellow Israelites as priests on the day before, leaving no time to do the chagigah themselves until the 15th.

helpful passages with the clarifying phrase “when the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed.”<sup>151</sup>

In addition, Luke using the terms interchangeably doesn’t help the matter, but he is probably simplifying for Gentile readers while simultaneously knowing that Jewish readers will understand what he means.<sup>152</sup>

Will The Real Day of Preparation Please Stand Up?

Technically speaking a “day of preparation” is normally supposed to be the daylight period before a weekly Shabbat. However, when Annual and Weekly Shabbats hit as close together as they do here, this kind of distinction can easily go right out the proverbial window along with any clarity it might have also had!

The fact of the matter is, we are not dealing with one preparation day in a week here, but three! To see why, we have to re-construct that fateful last week from the best and clearest time references the Gospels offer. We begin with this line from John: “Six days before the Passover, Y’shua arrived at Bethany, where Lazarus lived, whom Y’shua had raised from the dead. Here a dinner was given in Y’shua’s honor. Martha served, while Lazarus was among those reclining at the table with him... The next day the great crowd that had come for the Feast heard that Y’shua was on his way to Jerusalem. They took palm branches and went out to meet him, shouting, “Hosanna!” “Blessed is he who comes in the name of Master YHWH!” (John 12:1-2, 12-13) There can be no doubt on the matter. This reference in John begins on 8 Nisan. The very next day then, the 9th, is the Triumphal Entry that all four Gospels record, or five days before the Last Supper.

The next step in fleshing out the Passion Week comes from following Mark’s timeline from the Triumphal Entry until Y’shua’s arrest: “As they approached Jerusalem and came to Bethphage and Bethany at the Mount of Olives, Y’shua sent two of his disciples, saying to them, “Go to the village ahead of you, and just as you enter it, you will find a colt tied there, which no one has ever ridden. Untie it and bring it here. If anyone asks you, ‘Why are you doing this?’ tell him, ‘The Master needs it and will send it back here shortly.’” They went and found a colt outside in the street, tied at a doorway. As they untied it, some people standing there asked, “What are you doing, untying that colt?” They answered as Y’shua had told them to, and the people let them go. When they brought the colt to Y’shua and threw their cloaks over it, he sat on it. Many people spread their cloaks on the road, while others spread branches they had cut in the fields. Those who went ahead and those who followed shouted, “Hosanna!” “Blessed is he who comes in the name of Master YHWH!” “Blessed is the coming kingdom of our father David!” “Hosanna in the highest!” Y’shua entered Jerusalem and went to the temple. He looked around at everything, but since it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the Twelve. The next day as they were leaving Bethany, Y’shua was hungry. Seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to find out if it had any fruit. When he reached it, he found nothing but leaves, because it was not the season for figs. Then he said to the tree, “May no one ever eat fruit from you again.” And his disciples heard him say it” (Mark 11:1-14).

Notice that Mark’s details are almost identical to John’s, and bring us 10 Nisan. Both accounts talk about Y’shua being in Bethany before the Triumphal Entry. Mark, though, gives us added <sup>151</sup> Mark 14:12 is the other reference, and both passages root the time squarely to 14 Nisan at twilight.

<sup>152</sup> Josephus makes the distinction both succinctly and clearly when he says in Antiquities 3.10.5, “In the month of Xanthicus, which is by us called Nisan, and is the beginning of our year, on the fourteenth day of the lunar month, when the sun is in Aries, (for in this month it was that we were delivered from bondage under the Egyptians,) the law ordained that we should every year slay that sacrifice which I before told you we slew when we came out of Egypt, and which was called the Passover; and so we do celebrate this Passover in companies, leaving nothing of what we sacrifice till the day following. The feast of unleavened bread succeeds that of the Passover, and falls on the fifteenth day of the month, and continues seven days, wherein they feed on unleavened bread; on every one of which days two bulls are killed, and one ram, and seven lambs. Now these lambs are entirely burnt, besides the kid of the goats which is added to all the rest, for sins; for it is intended as a feast for the priest on every one of those days. But on the second day of unleavened bread, which is the sixteenth day of the month, they first partake of the fruits of the earth, for before that day they do not touch them.”

information that the famous cursing of the fig tree happened exactly one day later, or 10 Nisan. The same exact moment and surrounding events with only slight variations in details are also recorded in Matthew 21:18-25:46<sup>153</sup> and Luke 19:28-22:1-6<sup>154</sup>. So now, with all three accounts in synchronization, we can look at the three specific days Mark mentions, with some very minor assistance from Luke and John, for 11, 12 and 13 Nisan:<sup>155</sup> “When evening came, they went out of the city. In the morning, as they went along, they saw the fig tree withered from the roots. Peter remembered and said to Y’shua, “Rabbi, look! The fig tree you cursed has withered!” “Have faith in Elohim,” Y’shua answered” (Mark 11:19-22).

“Now the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread were only two days away, and the chief priests and the teachers of the law were looking for some sly way to arrest Y’shua and kill him” (Mark 14:1).

Between these two citations are very long discourses in chapter 12 and 13, but the chronology never wavers. Luke 22:37-38 also confirms the passage of two days and nights from this time until 12 Nisan, two days before the Passover. From there we are told that Yehuda went out and looked for an opportunity to hand over Y’shua. The most likely time for him to have done this would have been sometime after sunset when the disciples had retired from their evening meal, bringing us to the 13th. It is possible that the precise moment Yehuda did this is recorded in John 13:29-30, because the disciples had not obtained supplies for the Passover then but it was still after sunset!

Mark then picks up the chronology effortlessly: “On the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, when it was customary to sacrifice the Passover lamb, Y’shua’s disciples asked him, “Where do you want us to go and make preparations for you to eat the Passover?”” (Mark 14:12).

And so here we are, on the afternoon of 14 Nisan once more! The question is, though, from all these details, where is the day – or rather, days – of preparation? “Then came the day of Unleavened Bread on which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. Y’shua sent Peter and John, saying, “Go and make preparations for us to eat the Passover.” “Where do you want us to prepare for it?” they asked. He replied, “As you enter the city, a man carrying a jar of water will meet you. Follow him to the house that he enters, and say to the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher asks: Where is the guest room, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?’ He will show you a large upper room, all furnished. Make preparations there.” They left and found things just as Y’shua had told them. So they prepared the Passover. When the hour came, Y’shua and his apostles reclined at the table. And he said to them, “I have eagerly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer” (Luke 22:7-14).

So on the day of the 14th, before Y’shua is arrested and before the Paschal lamb is slain, this is technically a day of preparation!<sup>156</sup> But then look at this: “And it was the eve of the Paskha, and it was about the sixth hour, and he said to the Yehudeans, “Behold your King!”” (John 19:14).

This is a day later, another day and that next morning, or 15 Nisan. But then we read: “And on the next day, which was after the sunset, the chief priests and the Pharisees were gathered with Peelatos. And they were saying to him, “Our master, we have remembered that that deceiver would say while he was alive that, “After three days, I will arise.” Command, therefore, that 153 Probably because, while Y’shua does not mention the withered fig tree the following day like Mark does, Matthew 24:32 uses it in parable and the rest of the discourse also seems to have been given at that same time.

154 In Luke’s case we have to make a highly probable assumption that “the Passover and Feast of Unleavened Bread were approaching” is also about two days away, or 12 Nisan. We can do this safely, however, because 22:37-38 mentions at least two days and two nights from the Triumphal Entry that is now fixed at 10 Nisan, and from there we simply run out of time!

155 13 Nisan is also mentioned in John 13:1 (it was just before the Passover feast), continuing to verse 31. This is true for two reasons. First, Yehuda is said to leave clearly at night after the discourse, and that means from there is 14 Nisan. Second, the occasion of washing the disciples’ feet here could not have been Passover because verse 29 says the disciples thought Yehuda was going to buy “supplies for the Feast” when he left that night as well!

156 This is because once the countdown for Passover starts in the afternoon of 14 Nisan, the Jews are continuously occupied until the 15th day that begins in a few hours after sunset. Therefore, they have to “prepare” everything for both days in advance just as they would have begun doing so a few hours before the weekly Shabbat on a Friday afternoon!

they guard the grave until the third day, or else his disciples come steal him in the night and say to the people that he has risen from the dead. And the last deception should become worse than the first. Peelatos said to them, “You have the guards. Go and take precautions as you know.” And they departed and took precautions by the grave and set a seal upon that stone together with the guards.” (Matthew 27:62-66)

Matthew’s timing here is significant, in this passage Y’shua was already in the tomb, and they are setting a guard, it is now after sunset and into 16 Nisan. Notice that John 18:28 records Pharisees going to Pilate, but they don’t want to be defiled by entering the dwelling of a Gentile, which would render them unclean for the chagigah offering happening later that day. However, here in Matthew the context and situation is very different, these same men have no problem going to the tomb to seal it, an even greater defilement, because the sun had set and the “high Sabbath” was now over.

In other words, the Pharisees know that once they eat the chagigah and the Feast of Unleavened Bread (15 Nisan) is past, they will not have to wait another month to do Passover all over again!<sup>157</sup> Numbers 19:11-22 is very specific that even touching a bone or going into a grave or tomb will constitute uncleanness for seven days! But, if the tomb is made secure before the third day, and the Pharisees can make this request “after the sunset” or very early the next morning, then the only time this can happen would be Friday, the day after the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

But, since there is other solid evidence that Y’shua dies the afternoon after his arrest on the High Sabbath of the 15th, that day could only have been a Thursday. It is easy, then to see why “three days and three nights” from here, while not being precisely 72 hours, nevertheless can be reckoned from the first daylight period Thursday afternoon through to sunset to a resurrection right at dawn on the first day of the week:

Thursday 3PM-6 PM (day 1)<sup>158</sup>
Thursday 6 PM-Friday 6 AM (night 1)
Friday 6 AM-6 PM (day 2)
Friday 6 PM-Saturday 6 AM (night 2)
Saturday 6 AM-6 PM (day 3)
Saturday 6 PM-Sunday 6 AM (night 3)

So no, the resurrection timeline does not fit with a Friday execution day, but that doesn’t mean it can’t be Thursday.

Just three days and three nights or after three days towards four?

On the other hand, let’s consider the possibility of a Nisan 15th Wednesday crucifixion. “These are YHWH’s appointed feasts, the sacred assemblies you are to proclaim at their appointed times: YHWH’s Passover begins at twilight on the fourteenth day of the first month. On the fifteenth day of that month the YHWH’s Feast of Unleavened Bread begins; for seven days you must eat bread made without yeast” (Leviticus 23:4-6). And, “...you must sacrifice the Passover in the evening, when the sun goes down, on the anniversary of your departure from Egypt” (Deuteronomy 16:6).

There is an interesting variant to this timeline, a more precise clarifying detail that could change everything we have seen thus far: “‘Sir,’ they said, we remember that while he was still alive that deceiver said, ‘After three days I will rise again’” (Matthew 27:63).

“He then began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders, chief priests and teachers of the law, and that he must be killed and after three days rise again” (Mark 8:31).

<sup>157</sup> See Numbers 9:6-14 for regulations of the Second Passover that was set up to accommodate those who were on a long journey or who had been defiled by contact with a corpse or grave.

<sup>158</sup> Using 6 AM and 6 PM loosely as shorthand for sunrise and sunset, respectively.

“He said to them, ‘The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into the hands of men. They will kill him, and after three days he will rise’” (Mark 9:31).

In other words, in this interpretation the three days and three nights that Y’shua spends in the heart of the earth – also known as the Sign of Jonah – is a minimum requirement. He is not going to rise before that. If that’s the case, then he must be raised when these are completed, which by definition, puts the resurrection sometime into the fourth day but before that same day would complete! Nowhere does it directly say Y’shua has to rise instantly when three days and three nights are done but only at some point after they are done, and to this end the Gospels give us an interesting parallel: “And when Y’shua had cried out again in a loud voice, he gave up his spirit. At that moment the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom. The earth shook and the rocks split” (Matthew 27:50-56).

“After the Sabbath, at dawn on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to look at the tomb. There was a violent earthquake, for a messenger from Master YHWH came down from heaven and, going to the tomb, rolled back the stone and sat on it. His appearance was like lightning, and his clothes were white as snow. The guards were so afraid of him that they shook and became like dead men. The messenger said to the women, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Y’shua, who was crucified. He is not here; he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay. Then go quickly and tell his disciples: ‘He has risen from the dead and is going ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see him.’ Now I have told you” (Matthew 28:1-7).

There was an earthquake then just moments after Y’shua died, so why should we view another earthquake at the moment of his resurrection as mere coincidence? It makes sense, in concert with Mark 16:9, that the earthquake that was marking the moment of the resurrection happened as the women were on their way, starting while still dark (John 20:1) but with the sun rising (Mark 16:2) as they approached the tomb.

Having made this point, however, the Wednesday crucifixion evidence could work here as well. If Wednesday was in fact the 15th of Nisan instead, then two other possibilities present themselves.

The first one is the time frame between burial and sunset counts as a day, but the minimum three day and three night requirement is met on Saturday night but with YHWH choosing to wait a few more hours before the actual resurrection.

Of course the second possibility is that just as they bury Y’shua the sun is setting, and therefore the “day” that begins the three day and three night clock would start after sunset, or “the greater yom, and it was evening and it was morning,” etc. In that case, the first “night” would not count as night but as the first 24 hour day, followed by two other days and nights, before running out at Sunday dawn. This last possibility would make sense because that would explain why the sunrise and the earthquake could act as precise markers for the resurrection moment.

When Was the Resurrection? Part I

The most important event recorded by Renewed Covenant writers is undoubtedly the resurrection of Mashiyach, and there are plenty of perspectives and opinions as to when his actual rising from death happened. My focus has always been on the Peshitta Aramaic traditions as the most authoritative source of information available, and so I am very narrow—some might argue rigid—in the way that I discern chronology and other facts from Scripture. Put simply, to me the process is very cut and dried: If the Peshitta says it and the Aramaic cannot be interpreted in any other manner, that's what I go with.

Furthermore, while I may analyze significant variants between other traditions, they will never have the same weight to me, but I believe it is important that all accessible materials are made available to the reader for each individual to consider. When I do this type of annotation, however, it is always from a standpoint of Peshitta as New Testament Masorah (tradition/base text), with proper explorations of variants confined to the footnotes.

My beloved brother in faith Baruch Ben Daniel, however, has a more expansive model in mind that incorporates other sources like the Greek NT to make a more level synthesis of thought from his perspective. In other words, my showing this Aramaic word only means X would not be the end of his analysis on the matter, and as Editor-in-Chief along with being a solid scholar in his own right, that decision is his privilege to make.

However, as Translator-in-Chief, the ultimate responsibility of delivering the best possible English version from the Peshitta must rest solely on my shoulders. As a result, when we disagreed about some of the elements of the timing, we decided our discussions were most likely a smaller version of an even greater dialogue that was going on in Netzarim, Israelite, Messianic and also Christian quarters. How do we remove two millennia of Gentile cultural accretions and use what we know of Judaism in First Century Israel to shed significant light on these varying schools of thought?

The answer, as it turned out, was both simple and a tad bizarre: We would reflect both views in companion essays and give the reader full access. In the end, neither of us wanted to ignore key facts about our audience. We knew that not everyone viewed the Peshitta traditions with the same authority that we did. We also knew that small debates on these matters could do more harm than good if readers thought their views were not at least considered, if not embraced, by one or both of us. Therefore, because the difference was both minor yet also a very passionate decision for every believer in Y'shua as Mashiyach, this unusual course of point-counterpoint was adopted. Rules were laid down and the compromise was agreed to.

As Translator-in-Chief I get to put my view first, but before getting to that I must say a few words about what Baruch and I do agree on:

1) We agree that the most important thing is that the resurrection happened in accordance with Tanakh law and prophecies from Mashiyach himself. It is the resurrection, not the death on the stake, which is the central redemptive point of all we hold dear. True, one leads to the other, but we would not, for example, look at depicting a bleeding man on a cross as the main element. He is not on the execution stake anymore. He is risen!

2) We agree that our interpretations must, first and foremost, align with Tanakh as we best understand it in its original language of Hebrew. Tanakh is far more than a guide. It is binding and authoritative. It is also a manifestation of the Son, as the divine Miltha, or Word, of his Father YHWH's mouth.

3) We agree that Western Christianity has taken the potential timing of a Sunday dawn resurrection and, independently of whether it happened then or closer to sunset of what is from western reckoning the previous evening, have perverted its occurrence into doctrinal beliefs that find no support in Scripture. So whether this is the post Shabbat timing of a havdilah meal we are talking about in places like Acts 20:7, literally minutes before sunrise, or somewhere in between, the changing of Shabbat to Sun-Day worship will never be accepted by either of us as valid.

4) Finally, we agree that whatever may have happened to further cloud Christian vision through the prism of Constantine and the Roman-Byzantine empires, this is a separate historical issue from what the original Scripture says. Specifically, the Enemy is expert at counterfeiting truth by giving accurate facts joined to a plausible lie.

Inclusive reckoning of the day is scriptural

One of the main strengths of the Wednesday to Saturday argument is that three consecutive 24-hour periods are required before Y'shua can rise. These proponents say, quite rightly, that Western Christianity's emphasis on a Friday crucifixion and a Sunday resurrection is not only unscriptural, but it goes against Y'shua's own words: "For as Yonan was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights, likewise will the Son of man be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights" (Matthew 12:38-40).

Three days and three nights cannot be jammed into a period lasting from late Friday afternoon and out of the tomb door on Sunday morning! As implied above, I agree with this assessment. However, these two possibilities are not the only ones out there. It is my belief that the literal truth of Y'shua's words was followed perfectly, but that doesn't mean it had to take 72 exact hours for him to rise.

The fact is, the ancients did not even have 60-minute hours as we do, but divided the day into twelve equal parts that varied with the time of year<sup>159</sup>. Granted, with the day in question being right after the Spring Equinox, this difference between literal and perceived/marked time would have only been a matter of perhaps forty-five minutes, but at least it begins to show that some flexibility of how time was viewed was inherent in the actual system.

The question is, though: Is it really the case that the last few hours before sunset could actually count as a full daylight period when counting towards the Resurrection itself? To find out, we need to look at Tanakh: "You shall make a window (tsohar) for the ark, and finish it to a cubit from the top; and set the door of the ark in the side of it; you shall make it with lower, second, and third decks" (Genesis 6:16).

The word tsohar is used here to mean "window" or "roof" in its archaic form. However, when applied as metaphor to the time of day, it takes on another meaning: "Prepare war against her; Arise, and let us attack at tsohar (noon). Woe to us, for the day declines, for the shadows of the evening lengthen!" (Jeremiah 6:4)

In every other instance of this word (Genesis 43:16, 25; Deuteronomy 28:29; 2 Samuel 4:5; 1 Kings 18:26, 27, 29, 20:16; 2 Kings 4:20; Job 5:14, 11:17; Psalm 37:6, 55:17, 91:6; Song of Songs 1:7; Isaiah 16:3, 58:10, 59:10; Jeremiah 6:4, 15:8, 20:16, Zephaniah 2:4) it reads as "noon" or "afternoon". The reason is, the sun is said to travel a circuit<sup>160</sup> or in Hebrew tekuwfa/teshuvah. Then, as it journeys towards the half-way marker, that same point is literally directly above us as a "roof" or "window", marking the time of day accordingly. Similarly, as the Jeremiah 6:4 quote shows, the mixing of shadow and light – for this is another meaning of ereb (Exodus 12:38, Nehemiah 13:3, Jeremiah 25:20, 24, 50:37)<sup>161</sup> – is the way to view the day "declining" because the sun's journey is mostly over.

Another word that has the same idea is found here: "On the fifth day he arose to go early in the morning, and the girl's father said, 'Please sustain yourself, and wait until afternoon (natah)'; so both of them ate" (Judges 19:8).

<sup>161</sup> It should be noted that it is the mixing concept that remains the same in these passages. However, instead of the mixing of light and dark the image is instead of racial mixing, or foreigners.

Brown Drivers-Briggs Hebrew English Lexicon notes that natah also means “to stretch out, extend, spread out, pitch, turn, pervert, incline, bend, or bow”, so we have again the sense of the sun’s journey reaching its zenith and then beginning its decline in the afternoon. Either way, though, any portion of the sun’s circuit is surely linked to and counted as a day! Although, for the sake of being complete, I should also show how this applies in Tanakh on a practical basis: “If a man has committed a sin deserving of death, and he is put to death, and you hang him on a tree, his body shall not remain overnight on the tree, but you shall surely bury him that day, so that you do not defile the land which YHWH your Elohim is giving you as an inheritance; for he who is hanged is accursed of Elohim” (Deuteronomy 21:22-23).

By the strict language of this verse, a man who is killed, say, around 4 PM, cannot remain on the execution stake after sunset. Therefore, that time of his execution also counts with the “day”, because the “day” does not extend after night falls with respect to this command. We see idea elsewhere: “Now you shall keep [the Paschal Lamb] until the fourteenth day of the same month. Then the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it at twilight. And they shall take some of the blood and put it on the two doorposts and on the lintel of the houses where they eat it. Then they shall eat the flesh on that night; roasted in fire, with unleavened bread and with bitter herbs they shall eat it” (Exodus 12:6-8).

In this case, then, we can easily see that even “twilight” – that last interval prior to night falling – is counted nevertheless as the same “day”. And, here it is consistent in the Renewed Covenant Writings: “When it was evening on the first day of the week...” (Yochanan 20:19).

Therefore “inclusive reckoning” is simply the way Scripture chooses to count time, meaning that “three days and three nights” can last anywhere from about 61 to 74 hours, depending on when a burial is completed and the time of year it happens. As long as then Y’shua can be shown to be in the tomb sometime before sunset on Thursday afternoon, a Sunday dawn resurrection can easily fit within the three days and three nights required by Mashiyach himself.

Mark 16:9-20 is Scripture!

While I will show that all four Good News accounts are in perfect harmony with respect to the time of the resurrection being just at dawn on the first day of the week, I have noticed that some are not convinced about the variety of endings in Mark 16 that exist on the Western side.

But, as stated in the footnote of Mark 16:9 and in my book Ruach Qadim: Aramaic Origins of the New Testament, pages 96-100, there is much ancient support for the full 20-verse version of Mark’s last chapter. Rather than list that evidence again here, I invite the reader to consider that material before deciding on the general point I am making. I view the diversity of readings on the Western side as a smokescreen having nothing to do with the authority of the Peshitta or the information it relates. What’s more, I will even extend that authority to the Greek traditions as well, since they are predominately in agreement with the Aramaic as I understand it.

Therefore, we shall let Mark’s Gospel speak for itself, rather than to insert our own preferences. By that standard, it can be argued that Mark intended to end with the resurrection happening before the women reached the tomb and saw the stone rolled away. Additionally, we have two places in the portion of Mark 16 that everyone agrees with that firm up the clear but “controversial” ninth verse.

First, 16:2 specifically says that the women came to the tomb when “the sun was rising.” Aramaic and Greek are both extremely clear on this reading. From verse 2, then, we have a linear unfolding of time:

“And at early morning on the first of the week, they came to the cemetery as the sun was rising” (verse 2).

“But he said to them, “Do not have fear; Y’shua the Nasraya whom you seek who was executed on the stake, has risen!” (verse 6)

There can be no denying that even the shortest reading contains 16:6 saying that he had risen after 16:2 says the sun had dawned!

What can seem confusing, though, is that John's account says that Mary of Magdala was the first to see the risen Master, but Mark has put that reference in the next line, as if that happened later, as "then, at early morning on the first of the week, he had risen and appeared first to Maryam of Magdala, she from whom he had cast out seven demons."

Is the "then" meaning he appeared to Mary Magdalene after these women? Not necessarily. All that has happened is that Mark (or perhaps Keepa redacting him) has switched emphasis to another scene. He has backtracked, just as we might do so ourselves when trying to describe the greatest event in history! Granted, seeing this chronology gets much easier when we combine it with John's, but that has been successfully done many times before, including in my first book Signs of the Cross, pages 453-466.

We can also see this pattern of turn-back storytelling in the first few chapters of Genesis, where it happens with respect to the creation of both the Earth and man. The original Good News, penned in Hebrew's sister language in the land of Israel, could hardly escape this same tendency. But careful analysis can reveal the real chronology with just a little extra effort and without doing violence to the plain meaning of the text.

All four Gospels agree on the timing

And finally, Mark 16 is not alone in the details it gives us, although it is acknowledged that the different writing styles in Matthew, Luke and John can present some challenges to understanding the timing, if we are not careful.

For example, in reading John 20:1, we can be left with the impression that there was no light present at all: "On the first (day) of the week, came Mary of Magdala in the morning/dawn, while it was still dark, to the tomb and saw that the stone was removed from the grave."

See, the way it reads says "in the morning/dawn" which means that at most the women could have left home "while dark" but the sun was rising as they were making their way to the tomb. Not only does this agree perfectly with the literal account in Mark 16:1-9, it makes sense in terms of Torah observance as well.

Clearly two Shabbats are mentioned in the Good News accounts, one at the time of the crucifixion and one just before resurrection. John 19:31 tells us that the (Annual) Shabbat was closing. This is one of seven occasions that counts as Shabbat regardless as to the day of the week it falls on. Therefore, this Shabbat had to be set-apart even in comparison with the others that occur once a week, and again the text gives us the reason for that phrase very readily. Furthermore, Luke 23:56 says, "and rested on the Shabbat as was Commanded." Luke seems to be doing the same thing John did by making his own clarification. I mean, of course, we are commanded to rest on the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread which just happened on that previous Thursday, so why point to "the Commandment"?

The answer has to be that Luke was aware of John's emphases<sup>162</sup> and wanted to reference the only Shabbat covered by the Ten Commandments, namely the weekly happening the very next day after John's "high day"!<sup>163</sup>

162 Which seems strongly implied in his own introduction, Luke 1:1-5.

163 These chronological details are documented much more extensively in Ruach Qadim and in the translation portion of this diglot. They detail the fact that Daniel 9:24-27 points to 483 years after the rebuilding of all Jerusalem, and not just her Temple, which is referenced in Ezra 7:11-26 also and tagged to 457 BCE. That calculation agrees with details in Luke and John (15th year of Tiberius, 46 years from Herod starting his expansion of the Temple) and points to the year 27 CE as the time of Y'shua's immersion. From there, the Passovers and other holiday details listed in John point to a 3 ½ year ministry, the half-week of confirming the covenant mentioned also in Daniel 9:24-27, when that prophet said Mashiach would be "cut off", or killed (Isaiah 53:8).

Now let's look at some other information: "Now in the closing (evening)<sup>164</sup> of the Sabbath, as the first of the week was dawning, came Maryam of Magdala and the other Maryam that they might see the grave" (Matthew 28:1).

The accompanying footnote has all the needed information. For the moment, though, my main point is that even the Greek reading of mia ton Sabbaton can be better understood through the Aramaic use of metaphor. The timing here is then after the first among the Shabbats, or after the weekly one had concluded. From there, Matthew gets even more specific as he talks about the first day of the week "in dawning", clearly distinguishing the morning period from the dead of night. Once again, the concepts shown here work lock step with what we have seen before in Mark and John.

This leaves just one more account to look at: "Now on the first day of the week, at dawn while still dark, they came to the tomb and brought the spices, those, which they had prepared. And there were other women with them" (Luke 23:1). Luke's treatment here is just as clear as Mark's with "first day of the week, at dawn, while still dark". If the women are on their way at that time, and the tomb was empty when they got there a few minutes later, the only time Y'shua could have risen was during that same dawning! As a result, all four Gospels clearly point to Y'shua rising at early dawn on that first day of the week.

Conclusion

While I understand the passionate feelings of many Netzarim that we must not tolerate twisting of historical events, this, however, does not mean other Tanakh patterns are not present even if Y'shua did not rise from death on Shabbat. Furthermore, the Wednesday to Saturday night scenario would still, in some cases, have the resurrection occur after sunset which, from Jewish reckoning is still "after the Shabbat" and "on the first day of the week." Either way, he did not rise on Shabbat, but that is fine, since he, like us, are supposed to rest on Shabbat anyway! And so, why don't we focus on other timeworn Hebraic patterns that are clearly entwined with the Passion Drama?

164 Aramaic literally reads "b'ramsha din b'shabata", or "in the evening of the Shabbat". The literal meaning of ramsha is "evening" or erev, but here it is used idiomatically. The dawn and set of the sun is not the only use; there is the "dawn of a new era" or as John 19:31 reads "mitil d'shabata negha", "the Shabbat was dawning." When we compare other verses that record this event, the time of the day being referred to is clearly more than half a day before literal dawn. In John chapter 19, when they put Y'shua into the tomb, they still refer to it as being "day", both in Aramaic and Greek. The "dawn" metaphor "to begin" is confirmed in John 19:42. A more literal form, "mitil d'shabata aiala", would be read as "the Sabbath was beginning/entering/coming about." What is true for "dawning" is also true of "setting" in the sense of "conclusion" as is meant here. This agrees with Greek version, Aramaic information in Matthew, and with other writers in the NT. Murdock and Etheridge also confirm this idiomatic reading in their translations.

When was the resurrection? Part II

By Baruch Ben Daniel

“For as Yonan was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights, likewise will the Son of man be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights.”

Matthew 12:40

Let’s begin by “leveling the playing field” and putting aside any “scholarly” or “theological” musings that “the Jews” have an idiomatic expression that makes “three days and three nights” equivalent to “three days and two evenings” or a day and a half. There’s also plenty of Jewish and Christian religious fables about Y’shua, Paul and the resurrection, so let’s just rely on Scripture for the plain reading. Yonan (Jonah) 1:17 spells it out: “shalowsh yom, shalowsh yayil” three days three nights. It’s, in fact, a universal idiom to say “I’ll see you in three days” and not mean a day and a half. When we read “shalowsh yom, shalowsh yayil” in Hebrew it means exactly the same thing as in English. Additionally, we need not speculate whether Y’shua or his disciples sanctified the calendars of the Essenes, Sadducees, or Samaritans, which is the folly of some.

Let’s also remember, as my beloved Netzari Jewish brother Andrew Gabriel Roth points out, that there were no less than four different levels of “Preparation days” during that week: “Preparation” for the Pesach seder; for the Shabbat of the Feast of Unleavened Bread; for First-fruits (to begin the counting of the omer—sheaf); and, for the weekly Seventh Day Shabbat. There are no Jewish idioms recorded in or outside of Scripture of a “Preparation day” that solely belongs to the weekly Shabbat. In addition, an investigation of the Aramaic and Greek texts that underlie the word “preparation” indicate a cadre of inconsistencies that the reader should be aware of, many of these now footnoted in this edition.

There are two potential days of the week that could qualify Y’shua to be three days and three nights in the tomb, and reappear when he did: Wednesday or Thursday. If we go with a Wednesday scenario, we need not truncate any days or nights into less than three full 24 hour periods, but we also run into another issue which we will discuss shortly. Truncating “light periods” or “dark periods” could potentially invite accusations by naysayers that Y’shua’s followers had faked the resurrection, or, some might argue that maybe he wasn’t really dead after all – or that his disciples paid off the Roman soldiers and whisked him away for a few days....As ridiculous as that sounds, there are people today who believe such things. No, Pilate was no dummy! He wanted a dead corpse and he got one (Mark 15:44); consequently, Y’shua’s tomb was put under strict observation. The chief priests and Pharisees were worried about what was going to happen in three days (Matthew 27:62), which is ironic considering that most Christians believe he was only in the tomb for a day and a half (Friday night to Sunday morning).

The expression “shalowsh yom, shalowsh yayil” can also refer to light and dark periods. It would not be wrong to wish someone a good “day” after departing a luncheon appointment, or suggesting that we make hay “while the sun shines”, because:” when it is night no man can work.” The point being, it’s normal to think of day and night as light and dark portions. Therefore, if we have three light periods and three dark periods we’ve, in fact, satisfied the “three days and three nights” requirement, which is the case with the Thursday scenario.

Scripture tells us that Y’shua and his disciples observed Pesach (Passover) on the 14th of Abib at “beyn ha eruvim” (between the evenings). Both Torah and historical records indicate that this is between the 9th (3pm) and 11th (5pm) hours. To complicate things, Yochanan 18:28 states, “it was morning and they did not enter into the Praetorium, that they not be defiled before they had eaten the Paskha.” Certain Pharisees had not eaten the Passover lamb as yet, because of a massive logistical challenge (see footnote on this verse). YHWH required all males (Deut 16:16) to come up to Jerusalem to observe Pesach. To satisfy this requirement, approximately 100,000 to 200,000 lambs may have been required. Therefore, the Pharisees had extended the slaughtering of lambs into the 15th of Abib so as to meet the rigorous demands.

From the 6th (noon) to the 9th hour (3pm) on the 15th of Abib darkness covered the land (Matt 27:45; Mark 15:33; Luke 23:44), a clear message from YHWH to stop everything and pay attention. That would also put Y'shua's death at the same time that the lambs were being slaughtered in the Temple.

Yochanan 19:41 tells of a garden at the same location Y'shua was executed, with a new tomb, where Y'shua's body was laid. Matt 27:45 tells us Y'shua died at the ninth hour (3 pm) on the annual Shabbat of Chag haMatzah (15th of Abib). On Abib 15th in Jerusalem the sun sets at close to 7 pm, therefore, his disciples had approximately four hours from his last breath until sunset. Deut 21:23 instructs; "His body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but you shall bury him in that day." Because Abib 15th is an annual Sabbath, both Joseph and Nicodemus would be intent on sanctifying the day and putting Y'shua's body in the tomb as rapidly as possible. The urgency to remove the body was twofold, it was on a Shabbat, and, they were commanded to bury the body the same day that he hung upon the tree. Joseph and Nicodemus were men of wealth and influence, that acted in unison and haste, so we start the clock on the day (light period) of Abib 15th when Y'shua was put into the tomb.

As Andrew pointed out in Part 1, counting three days and three nights from Thursday, begins on the light period of Abib 15, so let's add it up: THURSDAY: day and night: (1 day); FRIDAY: day and night: (1 day); SHABBAT: day and night (1 day): EQUALS a total of "three days and three nights". Hebrew days begin at sunset, so in Hebrew we count: Yom Chamishi: ½ day; Yom Shishi: 1 day; Shabbat: 1 day; Yom Rishon: ½ day. On Yom Rishon (Sunday) we count the dark period (Saturday night) according to the Gregorian calendar. Scripture tells us that Y'shua resurrected before sunrise; "On the first of the week, in the morning while it was dark, Maryam of Magdala came to the tomb and saw that the stone was removed from the grave." (Yochanan 20:1) To fulfill "shalowsh yom, shalowsh yayil" Y'shua rose from the tomb before sunrise. Y'shua said, "three days and three nights" which implies that we start our count with a "yom" a daylight period, and end with a dark period.

Firstfruits

Pesach occurs on Abib 14th of the Hebrew calendar. Chag HaMatzah, the Feast of Unleavened Bread, begins on Abib 15th. Sefirat Ha'omer (The Counting of the Omer) begins on Abib 16th. The Feast of Shavuot (Weeks) or Pentecost is counted seven weeks from Abib 16th, which is the day after the annual Shabbat of Chag HaMatzah. The Torah, in Exodus 34:22, refers to Pentecost as "the feast of weeks". Numbers 28:26 says, "Also in the day of the firstfruits (bikkur), when you bring a new meat offering unto YHWH, after your weeks (shavua) be out, you shall have a holy convocation; you shall do no servile work." The feast of Shavuot (weeks) is based on counting "weeks", which is why it is "Shavuot". Deut 16:9-10 says, "Count seven (sheva) weeks (shavua): start to count the seven (sheva) weeks (shavua) from when you begin to put the sickle to the standing grain. And keep the feast (chag) of weeks (shavua) unto YHWH Elohim with a tribute of a freewill offering of your hand, which you shall give as YHWH Elohim has blessed you." This is where Sefirat Ha'omer (counting of the omer) and Shavuot (Feast of Weeks) are derived.

Exodus, Numbers and Deuteronomy tell us to count the "seven weeks", but in most English translations Leviticus reads: "from the "morrow after the Shabbat" (The word Shabbat does not exist in Peshitta Tanakh or LXX). Nevertheless, the Sadducees and Samaritans (who heavily influenced the Karaites) used that verse to depart from the Torah based calendar that Y'shua, the Apostles, and the Pharisees observed. Sadducees, Boethusians (a high ranking family of Sadducees), and Samaritans counted Pentecost from the day after the weekly seventh day Sabbath that fell during Unleavened Bread. Each of these factions were in a vicious power struggle with the Pharisees and each other. The Samaritans claimed to be the true priesthood, built a temple on Mount Gerizim, and become fierce enemies of the Yehudim.

It wasn't only Jewish sects that confused the original reading of Torah. The Greek Septuagint (LXX) in Lev 23:11 states "on the morrow after the first day" so "theologians" of the World Wide Church of God (WWCG - Armstrong) concluded that Sefirat Ha'omer had to fall on a Monday. They saw "the first day" to mean Sunday, so then the "morrow after" was a Monday so they originally kept Pentecost on Mondays. The LXX, which existed a century before the Pharisees and Sadducees came along, clearly means: "the morrow after the first day of Unleavened Bread." Both WWCG and Karaite "theologians" have influenced many within the modern Israelite/Ephraimite (or British/American Israelitish identity) movement who prefer to identify more with Samaritan and Karaite traditions than with Netzarim Jewish values.

When we investigate Aramaic and Greek New Testament texts we clearly find that the Apostle Paul was a Jew and a Pharisee (see Acts 28:17 and footnote). None of the Apostles followed the authority of the Sadducees who denied the resurrection, angels, and the spirit, nor did they incline towards Samaritan traditions. Acts 15:5 states that many Pharisees became followers of Y'shua. Acts 21:20 states that tens of thousands of Jews believed in Y'shua and were zealous for Torah. In the book of Acts, there are about a dozen instances where the Apostles were praying and teaching inside Pharisee synagogues. In Acts 18:8 the chief ruler of the synagogue believed on Y'shua with all this house. Luke 24:52 states that Y'shua's followers were in the Temple at all times, praising and blessing Elohim, so the evidence clearly points to Y'shua and his followers worshipping on a unified calendar with the Pharisees at both synagogue and Temple services.

A closer investigation of Tanakh also reveals that in 2 Chronicles 8:13, the Israelites referred to Pentecost as "the feast of weeks". Not only is it clear that the Apostles celebrated the Feasts on the calendar of the Yehudeans, and the majority of Israelites, but testimony from first century Jewish historian Josephus (Antiquities 3:250-253) also reveals that Abib 16th is the day that Sefirat Ha'omer is celebrated, and Josephus was an eye witness to these celebrations in Y'shua's days.

Joshua 5:10-12 says, "And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal, and kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month (Abib 14th) at even, in the plains of Jericho. And they did eat of the old grain of the land on the morrow after the passover (Abib 15th), unleavened cakes, and parched (or roasted) grain in the selfsame day. And the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the grain of the land (Abib 16th); neither had the children of Israel manna any more; but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year." Notice the progression, the morrow after Abib 14th is Chag HaMatzah (Feast of Unleavened Bread) on Abib 15th and they ate the old grain for Unleavened bread, but then on Abib 16th the manna stopped. Exodus 16:26-27 tells us that the manna ceased on the Seventh day Shabbat. Astronomical charts indicate that on 1405 BCE, Abib 14th fell on a Thursday, therefore Sefirat Ha'omer fell on a weekly Shabbat, the day the manna stopped.

Clearly, the counting of the omer begins on Abib 16th. So it was on the resurrection week, that while Y'shua's body lay in the tomb, his followers were in fact, "bringing in the sheaves". By the time Y'shua was executed, thousands of Yehudim, Galileans and Israelites were singing a song like; "we shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves" which is the ultimate fulfillment of Sefirat Ha'omer. The spiritual rebirth of many thousands of souls had begun, and they were now awaiting the Promise of the "Redeemer" or "Comforter", also known as the "Holy Spirit." While religious men were trying to protect their religious traditions (cash cow) by putting a seal on the stone, and a guard at the tomb (Matt 27:62-66 see footnote on verse 62), the seed Mashiyach planted had already opened the Kingdom of Heaven to multitudes of spiritually hungry souls. In the Parable of the Sower, Matthew 13:18-30, Mashiyach explains his and our roles in this Great Harvest.

“Putting the sickle to the standing grain” also brings to mind verses like; “the harvest is great and the workers few” (Matt 9:37); “let both grow together until the harvest” (Matt 13:18-30 parable of the sower); “lift up your eyes and see the fields that are white and have ripened for the harvest already” (John 4:34); “Thrust his sickle over the earth; and the earth was reaped” (Rev 14:16). All who follow Y’shua, according to the Spiritual Rebirth, are also co-labourers with Him, (1 Cor 3:9) we “labour with Elohim” to help do our part to “bring in the sheaves”.

Y’shua said, “But I speak truth to you that it is better for you that I go, for if I do not go, the Redeemer will not come to you. But if I go, I will send Him to you.” (Yochanan 16:7) The Ruach haKodesh was poured out on Pentecost (Shavuot), also known as Yom haBikkurim (the Day of Firstfruits). The true fulfillment of “Firstfruits” is of the spirit, not the flesh. It is from the natural things that we learn of the spiritual, “we also in whom are the first fruits of the Spirit, we groan within ourselves and look anxiously for the adoption of sons, the redemption of our bodies.” (Romans 8:23)

Conclusion of the Matter

The real power of the resurrection wasn’t that Y’shua came out of the grave; that was already old news according to Lazarus. The Good News was that Mashiyach taught us and demonstrated how we are to become “Spiritual Beings” who will also put on an immortal body. The actual timing of the resurrection points to something far greater than the physical resurrection. The Good News is that Mashiyach showed us how to put on an immortal body, which is why he said, “do not touch me, for I have not ascended to my Father” (Yochanan 20:17); a widely held truth within the Household of Faith. By being in the tomb on Abib 16th, on the sixth day of the week (the number of man), Y’shua put the focus on the need for our newness of spiritual life in him.

Religion likes to put the focus on things like the Cross, Torah scrolls, things like foot washing, the Rapture; on days, seasons, and years, speaking in tongues, on prophecies, etc, but Mashiyach put the emphasis on our spiritual birth. Without the spiritual birth and growing in the righteousness of Elohim “from faith to faith”, we will not see our place in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Y’shua appeared to his disciples on Sunday, the day after the weekly Seventh day Shabbat: The Eighth Day: time, space, matter and everything that we see with our eyes and hear with our ears is going to be transformed on that “Eighth Day.” It refers to what is going to happen at the end of the Seventh Millennium, after the thousand year reign of Mashiyach; it is what the prophets spoke of, and what gets every Jew and Christian excited: The Olam Haba, the World to Come. It is a mystery (hidden thing) that is sown into the spirits of all believers, the destiny of the Ancient Path of Mashiyach.

What Y’shua taught nearly 2,000 years ago is as vital and as fresh as it was the moment he said it: “If you love me, keep my Commandments. And I will ask of my Father and He will give you another Redeemer who will be with you forever. The Spirit of Truth, He who the world is not able to receive because it has not seen Him, nor does know Him. But you know Him for He dwells with you and He is in you.” (Yochanan 14:15-17) Clearly, our part is to demonstrate our love by choosing to obey his Commandments, to observe the Word of YHWH, which is His Torah. The promise Y’shua gives is clear, when we keep his Commandments we will also receive the “Spirit of Truth” that the world is not able to receive.

“And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘You come.’ And let him that hears, say, ‘You come.’ And let him who thirsts, come; and he that is inclined, let him take the living water freely.” (Revelation 22:17)

Woman of John 8

Later Greek manuscripts inserted additional verses into John 7:53 to 8:11 that tell a story of a woman caught in adultery. This story does not appear in either the Peshitta or the four earliest Greek manuscripts. Most Christian scholars are honest enough to acknowledge that John did not write this. Many opine that one of John's "disciples" must have written it and inserted it later.

The KJV records verse 7:53 as: "And every man went unto his own house." The narrative is as follows:

"1. Jesus went unto the mount of Olives. 2. And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him; and he sat down, and he taught them. 3. And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst, 4. They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. 5. Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou? 6. This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with [his] finger wrote on the ground, [as though he heard them not]. 7. So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her. 8. And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground. 9. And they which heard [it], being convicted by [their own] conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, [even] unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst. 10. When Jesus had lifted up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee? 11. She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more" (John 8:1-11 KJV).

Why would someone insert this story into the book of John? Firstly, this narrative is a fundamental proof text for Christians to prove that Jesus forgives adultery with no consequences to the offender. For Christians, Jesus says "go and sin no more." Therefore, the woman was, in fact, guilty as charged but her sin was without consequence. If she had been falsely accused Y'shua would not have said "go and 'sin' no more." Bringing an accused person publicly before Mashiyach for judgment is extremely perverse and shameful. There is no co-accused, no husband, no credible witnesses, and we have no idea whether or not those making the charges were even the ones who caught her in the act! It is written in such a way that the reader automatically feels sorry for the victimized woman. It's impossible that the woman be judged, because the basic criteria are entirely nonexistent. In reality, Torah requires that both parties involved in adultery be brought up on charges together and in the presence of their accusers, as well as with any witnesses and the elders of the community, none of which was done here (Leviticus 20:10-21).

The statement/question that, "Moses commanded us that such should be stoned" is a leading question. It is not supported in Torah or rabbinical halakha under any such circumstances as recorded. Torah is explicit on the matter of casting the first stone: "At the mouth of two witnesses, or three witnesses, shall he that is worthy of death be put to death; but at the mouth of one witness he shall not be put to death. The hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people. So you shall put the evil away from among you" (Deuteronomy 17:6, 7). Most of the civilized world realizes that a person is to be thought of as innocent until proven guilty, and that a hearing of evidence must precede a conviction and penalties. This inserted story is extremely indecent; the author of this lore makes a serious religio-political statement that juxtaposes his Jesus hero against those bad Pharisees....

The story ends with Y'shua ducking out of a stoning by the Pharisees. Christians know that Y'shua is innocent, but the Pharisees are pictured as picking up stones in a fit of rage to kill him for not condemning the poor, adulterous woman. Christians have been taught to view the Pharisees as hard-hearted, legalistic stone throwers; however, a brief look into Christian history shows the Pharisees are a Sunday picnic compared to the pogroms and massacres of Jews at the hands of Christians. Could it be that such an addition to the Christian Bibles contributed to anti-Semitism?

“If a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman: so shall you put away evil from Israel” (Deuteronomy 22:22). The value of both marriage and human life has been greatly reduced by modern Christianity, which has hardly progressed beyond the Greco-Roman legal system that spawned it. Even in matters of adultery and remarriage, most Christians accept the authority of government legislation for divorce. As Scripture says: “...all the earth wondered after the beast” (Revelation 13:3). In reality, Mashiach calls his followers to a much higher standard than what earthly governments have to offer.

The story of the woman caught in adultery is a very sharp contrast to the account of “Ananias and Sapphira” (Acts 5:1-10) who bore false witness regarding a property they sold. In Acts 5, this couple lied publicly in the name of Y’shua and was struck down for making a mockery of the true Faith. The woman caught in adultery suffered no consequences; therefore, Christians theologize that she is saved, which also makes them feel better about the adultery in their own churches. Because of John 8, Christian leaders can now teach that adulterers are forgiven and need not make any restitution. There are no consequences in many Christian circles for adultery, which is why when Pastors, Priests and “Reverends” commit adultery and other evil sex crimes, they can continue right along with their “ministries” as if hardly anything happened.

“He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her” is simply theological trickery of Christianity. Every one of us is fallible and has sinned to one degree or another, but Christian theologians spin this to teach that none of us should ever judge sin. This dependency upon church hierarchy to forgive sin popularized Christianity and made the Catholic Church the wealthiest organization on Earth, because everyone knows that it’s tough to go through life without sinning.

This is why it is so important to have Torah written upon the heart. The Word of YHWH offers a deep and beautiful love relationship that is nurtured between the repentant sinner and YHWH, through Mashiach. The sinner overcomes temptation to sin by recognizing a peer group of equals (Kedoshim) who support righteousness and reject sin. When Torah is written upon the heart the soul becomes servant to Righteousness and recognizes dependency upon the spiritual body rather than the institution.

“But I fear, or else, as the serpent beguiled Eve by his craftiness, so your minds should be corrupted from simplicity towards the Mashiach. For if he that comes to you, had proclaimed to you another Y’shua, whom we have not proclaimed; or if you had received another Spirit, which you have not received; or another gospel, which you have not accepted; you might well have given your permission” (2 Corinthians 11:3-4). Y’shua saves in the Name of YHWH. His name means the SALVATION of YHWH, which means the sinner must turn to YHWH and change from their sinful ways. Unlike the “Jesus” of the false church system who claims to “save” people in their sins, Y’shua taught: “How narrow the door and strait the road that leads to life, and few are they, those that find it” (Matthew 7:14).

Who inserted the story of the woman caught in adultery into the text? Considering the revisions, additions, adulterations and conflicts in the thousands of Greek manuscripts which surfaced since the Fourth Century, we know one thing: The story crept into the text a couple hundred years after Yochanan. Therefore, it’s shameful to suggest that one of “John’s disciples” did it. Many assume that it is reasonable to insert cunningly devised fables into their Bibles that support their religious traditions, yet they continue to refer to their books as “holy.” This simply proves that it is often Christian tradition that has become their “holy” standard, certainly not the love of the Truth.

YHWH is Y'shua the Mashiyach

“and that every tongue should confess that Master YHWH is Y'shua the Mashiyach, to the glory of Elohim his Father.” Philippians 2:11

The Spirit of YHWH, also known as the Ruach haKodesh, is both within Mashiyach and is YHWH; however, the nephesh (soul) of Y'shua is “the person” or vessel of Y'shua where the Spirit of YHWH dwells. The physical body of Y'shua and his soul are not YHWH, but Y'shua made himself subject to YHWH in all aspects. Rabbis have long believed that Mashiyach existed before the material universe and that everything in time and space is subject to Mashiyach. That Mashiyach existed continuously from before creation indicates a very intimate spiritual connection to YHWH, which isn't such a mystery when we consider our own spirit, soul and body.

Within every person is a neshamah (human spirit) which is made in the tselem (image) of Elohim; this is a “portion” of Elohim within each of us. Each one of us has a spirit element that enables us to communicate with the Ruach haKodesh, spirit to spirit. Our mind, will and emotions decode spiritual experiences allowing us to share information about the spiritual worlds within this world system, but we also communicate with others in spiritual dimensions where we “know” or perceive certain things but don't necessarily know why. However, the stronger the spiritual elements within each of us the more resources we have to understand the nature of Mashiyach.

The “mystery” of Mashiyach can only be correctly understood within the Laws of Torah. Mashiyach is synonymous with Torah (instructions in righteousness) and the Word of YHWH is his very nature and being. Before Mashiyach came to earth as Y'shua, the Spirit of Mashiyach dwelt with YHWH as Ruach haKodesh. The Messenger (Angel) of YHWH is Mashiyach who is certainly not a created Angel, but the Arm of YHWH revealed. Mashiyach's dominion is over everything in time and space; when YHWH wills something He does so through Mashiyach. Mashiyach does what the “Mind” of his Father YHWH designs.

When a person enters into the Kingdom and is born from the beginning they desire a sinless nature. The Set Apart spirit within them guides them according to the “Mind of Mashiyach.” But when did your spirit originate? Did it originate at conception? At birth? Or at your spiritual rebirth when you turned from sin and began walking in Mashiyach and being obedient to the Word of YHWH? Did not your spirit exist in the “Mind” of YHWH at the beginning of creation? The answer is: Yes, it most certainly did. When the Word of YHWH began “speaking” time and space into existence, you were part of the grand design way back then; but, in reality there is no such thing as time with YHWH so you are part of I AM. Your existence came about from outside of time, in the mind of YHWH; therefore, in a spiritual or metaphysical way, you “existed” before you were born. Your physical body and soul came along through the course of time according to YHWH's perfect design.

If we consider that we existed, even metaphysically, in the mind of YHWH before we arrived on this Earth before we were given a physical body, then we can better understand how Mashiyach could exist before creation and also appear in various “forms” through time, including his coming to Earth as Y'shua and his return as Mashiyach ben Dawid. Mashiyach appears in hundreds of places in the Tanakh as “the Word of YHWH,” even in a vision to Awraham (Gen. 15:1) as well as Gen. 19:24: “Then YHWH rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from YHWH out of heaven;” here it is clear that YHWH is communicating with YHWH. The Word of YHWH occurs within time and space but the Father YHWH (who is Spirit) is outside of time and space. These passages in Torah are written for our benefit to understand how Mashiyach connects us to the Father. Mashiyach is the Arm of YHWH revealed within time and space; otherwise there would be no “mediator” between us and The Father.

The word Mashiyach (anointed one) is derived from mashach (anointed) and, of course, Dawid was anointed by Samuel to receive the Spirit of YHWH: “Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of YHWH came upon Dawid from that day forward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah. But the Spirit of YHWH departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from YHWH troubled him” (1 Sam. 16:13, 14).

When Y’shua was about 30, he was anointed of the Ruach haKodesh into the office of Mashiyach. Those who put their Faith in YHWH’s Mashiyach and conform their lives to YHWH through love and obedience to His Word (Torah) also become anointed “as” Mashiyach (2 Cor. 1:21, 22) to those who have not yet come to the light (John 3:20, 21). Mashiyach is the first of the firstfruits; therefore, each of us also has a unique anointing that is specific to how YHWH created us.

Within Mashiyach is Ruach haKodesh. Immediately after his anointing, haSatan tried to tempt Mashiyach which would have been completely redundant if his nephesh was not endowed with the power of choice, but the reason he never bit into the forbidden fruit was because his Spirit is powerful and “hardwired” to YHWH. Similarly, followers of Mashiyach don’t follow a multitude to sin because we are of that same “different spirit.”

In order to better understand Mashiyach Y’shua (as well as the writings of Paul), it is vital to have a Hebrew and Aramaic contextual understanding of Mashiyach. With the advent of a Greek “Jesus” throughout the text, the intended depth and clarity was lost because the Greek Iesous has no similarity to, and nothing whatsoever to do with, the Name of YHWH. Some might backtrack and suggest that, the Good News tells us what “Jesus” means; but this is a blind alley because Greek is still only attempting to translate a Hebrew name with all its intrinsic force and insight to begin with, and so we must turn to the original vessel to get the message! That “Jesus” means “God saves” is only a very partial translation of the Name of Y’shua. Y’shua means “YHWH saves” which is an extremely vital key. Every title for Deity in Tanakh is just a title, as in Elohim, El-Shaddai, etc.; but only YHWH is the One true authority and Name, as opposed to the many generic titles conjured up by men. This is paramount to understanding the special messenger mentioned in Shemot (Exodus) 23:20-22 which states, “My Name is in him.”

The first unique aspect to this messenger is that the verse says “he will not pardon.” This implies that the messenger could, given the right circumstances, forgive sin; but for the fact that YHWH is saying he will not, in this instance. It is that potentiality for forgiveness of sin which sets this “messenger” above all others, for in no other case is such a clarification ever mentioned, meaning that no other messenger has this capability. In Isaiah we find many references to the fact that only YHWH can forgive sin, and yet Mashiyach is given this “Elohim-exclusive” ability as well, even as this messenger. Compare Isaiah 43:1-3, 10-13, 24-28; 44:6-7; 45:5-8, 14-17 to Isaiah 53:1-12.

The second aspect is the name of this unique “messenger.” Every other messenger in Tanakh always has part of the same name with the other messengers: EL (e.g. MichaEL, UriEL, RaphaEL, GabriEL, etc.). Everyone that is, except this one, which has “My Name” in him. That being said, of course we know what this Name is: “Moses said to Elohim, ‘When I come to the Israelites and say to them the Elohim of your fathers has sent me to you, they will ask me, What is His Name? what shall I say to them?’ And Elohim said to Moses, ‘Ehyeh Asher Ehyeh [I am that I am].’” He continued, “‘Thus you shall say to the Israelites, Ehyeh [I am] sent me to you.’ And Elohim said further to Moses, ‘Thus shall you speak to the Israelites: YHWH, the Elohim of your fathers, the Elohim of Awraham, the Elohim of Yitzkhakh, and the Elohim of Ya’akov, has sent me to you. This shall be My Name forever. This is My appellation for all eternity’” (Exodus 3:13-15).

Thus we see the linguistic link between YHWH and Ehyeh, both derived from haya (to be). It is also from haya that we get the simplified form of YAH, which is the name of YHWH in the Aramaic Renewed Covenant. So, when YHWH says “My Name is in him” He means that the “messenger” will not have EL as part of his appellation, but will be worthy of the Higher Name of YAH. The significance of this is obvious: “Behold the days come, saith YHWH, that I will raise up unto Dawid a righteous shoot, and he shall reign as king and prosper, and he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely; and this is the name whereby he shall be called: YHWH is our righteousness” (Jeremiah 23:5-6 1955 JPS).

The Name is even more clearly foretold in Zechariah. Here, we are told that a certain man is not the righteous branch but instead has the name of the branch to come. “Hear now, O Joshua the high priest, thou and thy fellows that sit before you are men that are a sign...” (Zechariah 3:8a). The prophecy begins with the idea that Joshua and associates are symbolic of things to come. “...for behold, I will bring forth My servant the Shoot” (Zechariah 3:8b). Notice carefully, the “servant” is also yet to come, so it cannot be the high priest Joshua or his present company. The servant is also called the “Shoot” or “little sprout,” another word for “Branch.” “For behold the stone I have set before Joshua; upon that stone are seven facets; behold I will engrave the graving thereof, saith YHWH of hosts: And I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day. In that day, saith YHWH of hosts, shall ye all every man his neighbor under the vine and under the fig tree” (Zechariah 3:9-10). The key element here is the part about removing all iniquity from Israel in a single day and having the world at peace, neither of which happened during the Second Temple period. Therefore, this prophecy is definitely far removed from the lifetimes of Joshua or his men.

Now we continue on to chapter six, where all is revealed: “Take silver and gold, and make crowns, and set the one on the head of Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest; and speak unto him, saying: “Behold a man whose name is the Shoot, and who shall shoot up out of his place, and build the Temple of YHWH” (Zechariah 6:12). Some strenuously object that this cannot apply to Y’shua because he did not build the Temple. That is true; however, the Hebrew makes it clear there are two Joshuas involved in prophecy. The first Joshua does in fact rebuild the Temple, or at least help with its construction. Again though, after the Temple is built, sin is not removed in a single day, and this is where the second Joshua comes in. When the first Joshua is done, that is when YHWH brings His Namesake, because Joshua ben Jehozadak is not “the Branch” but only has the Branch’s name. Joshua in Hebrew is “Y’hoshua” and it is only here the full glory and sweep of prophecy and fulfillment meets: “...a messenger of YAH/YHWH appeared to him in a dream and said to him, ‘Yosip, the son of Dawid, do not fear to take Maryam as your wife, for he that is begotten from in her is from the Ruach haKodesh, and she will bear a son and she will call his name Eshoa (Y’ SHUA) for he will save (SHUA) His (YAH’s) people from their sins’” (Matthew 1:20-21).

So it is that YHWH’s name is in Mashiyach, just as it was in the messenger in Exodus 23! Notice that, malakh = messenger (angel) or messenger, melekh = king. So when Rav Shaul teaches that Mashiyach is “superior to the messengers” (malakh), it is very easy to understand why. He is superior to them because he is not just a messenger (malakh) and not just a prophet, but is instead King of Kings (melekh d’melakhim). And it is only now, with this full framework established, that we can understand what he has written: “And gave him a name greater than all names (YAH, not El). That by the name of Y’shua (YAH SAVES) every knee should bow, of [beings] in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth; and every tongue will confess that YHWH is Eshoa Meshikha, to the glory of Elohim his Father” (Philippians 2:9-11). Please read Isaiah 45:20-25.

Y'shua in the Talmud

Jerusalem Shabbat 8d--[Dan 3:25] "Like of son of God." Reuben said, In that hour, an angel descended and struck that wicked one [Nebuchadnezzar] upon his mouth, and said to him, Amend your words. Has He a son? He turned and said [verse 28] "Blessed be the God of Sahdrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who--it is not written, 'has sent his son', but--has sent his angel, and has delivered his servants who trusted in him."

Daniel 3:25 reads BAR (Son) of Alaha (G-d), not "angel" – but here is a classic verse that the Jewish Rabbis and Sages twist to support their anti-Mashiyach agendas. Targums (Jewish Aramaic commentary) on the book of Daniel were never circulated among the Jewish people, in part, because they would very clearly point to Y'shua as Mashiyach by foretelling the precise time of his arrival in Jerusalem. It was through the Prophet Daniel that the magi from the East (Babylon) knew when Mashiyach ben Yoseph would arrive at Bethlehem; but rabbinical Judaism prefers to go to war against Mashiyach and the Prophets YHWH sent to His people. For example:

Sanhedrin 106a--R. Yohanan said [concerning Balaam], "In the beginning a prophet, in the end a deceiver." Rab Papa said, "This is that which they say, She was the descendant of princes and rulers, she played the harlot with carpenters." Modern rabbinical tradition employs evil accusation and slander against Y'shua handed down through many generations. Here "Balaam" is a code word for Y'shua. "She played the harlot with carpenters" is referring to Y'shua's mother, Miriam. Here is a prime example of lashon hara (the evil tongue) against Y'shua and his mother that is upheld in every "traditional" synagogue on Earth. Who are the credible witnesses that make such dastardly charges? What are their names? Where are their statements? There are none; but centuries after the fact rabbinical sages continue to plant hatred in the minds of Jews through their Talmud, which bolsters and justifies their hatred toward Y'shua and all who follow him.

When Moshe was a baby, Pharaoh was obsessed over the fact that a Hebrew child would bring him trouble; Pharaoh had heard contemporary prophets announcing the birth of a deliverer, and he wanted him dead. Herod, too, feared that a Jewish deliverer would grow up to challenge his Empire; but, according to the Talmud, it was the Pharisees who were the most threatened.

Jerusalem Taanith 65b--R. Abahu said: If a man says to you, "I am God", he is a liar; if [he says, "I am] the son of man," in the end people will laugh at him; if [he says], "I will go up to heaven," he says, but he shall not perform it.

Although the above was written long after the First Century, this rabbinical sentiment still persists with many souls. The Pharisee elite led people to think that Y'shua was going about haAretz (the Land) Israel telling people he was Elohim, but Y'shua, of course, never did this. Y'shua entered into the world through the "Seed of Woman" (Genesis 3:15) with haMishchah (the Anointing) of the Ruach HaKodesh. Witnesses testify that he was conceived of the Ruach haKodesh and yet born of a woman. His body and soul were like everyone else's, but his Neshama (spirit) was of, and is, the Spirit of YHWH. Y'shua knew that his soul was not Elohim: He taught of doing the will of his Father and he subjected himself to the Father; therefore, at all times Y'shua acknowledged the Spirit of YHWH within him, and not his flesh, as Elohim. This is an extremely important truth that the Pharisees are willfully ignorant of. Evidence of this Pharisaic ignorance and its direct transference into Rabbinical circles is mentioned in Yochanan:

"Y'shua said to them, Many pleasing works from the presence of my Father I have shown you. For which of them do you stone me? The Yehudeans said to him, "It is not because of the pleasing works that we stone you, rather because you do blaspheme and that while you are a Son of man you make yourself Elohim!" Y'shua said to them Is it not written in your Torah that "I have told you that you are Elohim." If those people he called Elohim because the Miltha of Elohim was with them and Scripture is not able to be broken To him whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world you say, “You blaspheme!” concerning that I had told you that “I am the Son of Elohim” (Yochanan 10:32-37).

Notice that Y’shua is pointing out that the Pharisees have ignored their own Scripture and its testimony about what to look for in Mashiyach. He then says that his own miracles prove his halachic view correct. The Aramaic here literally reads for the Pharisaic accusation, aytiq bar anash aibed naphshakh Eloah, or, “you, a son of man, make YOUR HUMAN SOUL Elohim”! This is a remez (hint) that is not well understood, even now. The word naphshakh, can be loosely translated as “yourself,” but its true core meaning is that of “soul/life force.” It is the same word as Hebrew nephesh. In Genesis 2:7 Adam becomes a nephesh chaya (living soul). He does not have a soul; rather, he is a soul. Taken in this context, the original accusation against Y’shua is that “you make your humanity/mortal life as YHWH,” and this is something Y’shua never did! The fact is, Y’shua has clearly proclaimed the human and vulnerable side of himself all along and directly states that his nefesh/naphsha is mortal and will die, but Father YHWH will raise it up again.

On the other hand, because he is Mashiyach and has the Ruach of YHWH, that Ruach of YHWH can never die and gives Y’shua authority over all men, and this is what the Pharisees were really against. Y’shua then simply claims power from YHWH as His designated representative (see Daniel 7:1-13). And now, all these centuries later, neither the majority of Jewry or Christendom has any idea that Y’shua from Nazareth admitted his humanity as mortal but claimed the right of power through his Father YHWH. Instead however, the Talmudic sages echoed a familiar history with their own rabbinical spin-meistering.

Sanhedrin 67a--For it is tradition that in regard to the rest of all who are worthy of death according to the Torah, they do not use concealment except in this case [i.e., of the deceiver]. How do they deal with him? They light a lamp for him in the inner chamber and set witnesses in the outer chamber, so that they may see him and hear his voice, but he does not see them. And one says to him, “Say to me what you said to me in private,” and he says it to him. And another says to him, “How shall we forsake our Elohim, who is in heaven, and practice false worship?” If he repents, it is well. If he says, “Such is our duty and thus it becomes us to do”, the witnesses, who hear from the outside, bring him to the Beth Din and stone him. And thus they did to Ben Stada in Lud, and they hung him on the eve of Pesach (Passover).

“Ben Stada” is another code name for Y’shua. According to rabbinical tradition, the Rabbis made up a “special trial” for Y’shua in private. Because the common Jewish people clearly favored Y’shua as Mashiyach, the Rabbis knew that if they put him to trial before the people, it would have resulted in a riot which potentially could have overthrown their hierarchy. Tens of thousands of Jews were trusting in Y’shua as Mashiyach. In every village where Y’shua walked, he healed the peoples; one can only imagine how his fame spread like wildfire throughout not only HaAretz Israel but the world. Y’shua obviously was considered extremely influential, because the High Priest suggested he be put to death in order to avoid trouble with the Roman occupiers. The only way the religious hierarchy could dispose of Y’shua was to torture him and kill him without a fair trial, before the people knew what was going on.

Sanhedrin 43a--And it is tradition: On the eve of Pesach (Passover) they hung Yeshu [the Nazarene]. And the crier went forth before him forty days, (saying), “[Yeshu the Nazarene] goes forth to be stoned, because he has practised magic and deceived and led astray Israel. Anyone who knows anything in his favor, let him come and declare concerning him.” And they found nothing in his favor. And they hung him on the eve of Pesach. Ulla says, “Would it be supposed that [Yeshu the Nazarene], a revolutionary, had anything in his favor?” He was a deceiver, and the Merciful has said (Deut. 13:8), “You shall not spare, neither shall you conceal him.” But it was different with [Yeshu the Nazarene], for he was near to the kingdom.

Words in the brackets [ ] are from earlier editions set forth by Rabbinowicz. The Pharisees wrote about how they made up a mock trial and executed Y'shua by the authority of their tradition. Healing people in the Name of YHWH was called "magic" by the Pharisees who obviously had no spiritual wherewithal to heal anyone, and deeply resented Y'shua for having such unlimited spiritual authority. Y'shua led many Jews away from the popular Pharisaical authority of his day, teaching the Jewish people that the Pharisee elite were serpents, empty white-washed tombs. Making changes to man's tradition isn't easy, which is why Mashiyach commanded us to "come out of Her." Religious folk consequently slew Mashiyach to retain their pride, save face and bolster their tradition. Today's Christians have followed suit in these Pharisaical traditions in that Christianity has murdered Mashiyach billions of times over by destroying his Word and bringing railing accusations against the preincarnate Mashiyach, which is Torah.

Tosefta Sanhedrin IX.7--Rabbi Meir used to say, What is the meaning of (Deut 21:23), "For a curse of God is he that is hung?" [It is like the case of] two brothers, twins, who resembled each other. One ruled over the whole world, the other took to robbery. After a time the one who took to robbery was caught, and they crucified him on a cross. And everyone who passed to and fro said, "It seems that the king is crucified." Therefore it is said, "A curse of God is he that is hung."

Quoting Deuteronomy 21:23 and totally confusing the story of Barabbas (John 18:40) with Y'shua, Rabbi Meir justifies the actions of the Pharisaic elite putting Y'shua to death. Notice how oral Jewish tradition also puts Y'shua "on a cross," which became a popular carryover tradition. The two brothers here (twins) is a hidden code for Y'shua and his blood brother Ya'akov haTsadiq who were both murdered by the Pharisee ruling class. Note how the Talmud reinforces their own tradition, "A curse of God is he that is hung" that uses "God" to endorse a nasty religious agenda against Y'shua. The vast majority of Christians, too, believe that Y'shua was cursed of God, which is a very regrettable theology that originated in Pharisaism.

The religious elite were and are very intimidated when Jews put their trust in Y'shua as Mashiyach, so they invented the Birkat ha-minim (curse on the followers of Y'shua) in the Amidah (daily Jewish prayers), in an effort to force followers of Y'shua back under rabbinical authority. Ironically, the curse didn't go far. According to the Talmud (Berakoth 28b, 29a) a year after he had composed the prayer, Samuel the Small, the composer of the Birkat ha-minim who was leading the service couldn't recall the curse "shetayim we-shalosh sha'ot." The rest of his Pharisee friends pressed him for two or three hours in an attempt to get him to remember, but all efforts were unsuccessful. Even so, many rabbis over the centuries did remember to drop the final "A" from Mashiyach Y'shua's name, changing the meaning from "YHWH is salvation" to "may his name be blotted out." All those prayers to blot out the name of our Blessed and Wonderful Redeemer came to naught, rather, because of his name the Bible became by far the largest selling book on earth.

Y'shua to Zeus

While it is true that Iesous became the Greek substitute for Yehoshua (Greek Septuagint translation of the Tanakh), it is also true that the Greek language is very capable of reproducing the name of Yehoshua (Y'shua) with exact sonic pronunciation. However, an etymological link evolved between Iesous, Zeus, and Jesus, pronounced: Ie-soos; Zoos; and Jee-zuhs. Regardless as to whether one recognizes sonic similarities or not, there are many other factors that connect the Christian worship of Jesus to Zeus. Notice "Elizeus" in the 1611 King James Version (Luke 4:27), spelled exactly as seen here, is a name that weds the pagan deity Zeus with the Elohim of Israel. While this is clear evidence of a blatant pagan connection to Zeus worship, we've only begun to scratch the surface.

Historians have noted that for many centuries busts of Zeus were prominently displayed in many Christian churches throughout Europe – not only Catholic Churches where idolatry is a normative, but also in "Orthodox" churches. The original busts of Zeus were imported into the most prominent front and center parts of "Christian sanctuaries." Rav Shaul's letters had not been heeded by the Church. In the year 230 C.E. the Christian "Church Founder" Tertullian wrote: "By us [Gentile Christians] who are strangers to (Jewish) Sabbaths, and new moons, and festivals, once acceptable to God, the Saturnalia, the feasts of January, the Brumalia, and Matronalia are now frequented, with gifts being carried to and fro."

Early in Roman church history it was very fashionable to syncretize pagan worship into Christianity. One of the most evident pagan elements is the sun-child of December 25th who became the son-child of "Mary the mother of God." Ishtar, from where the fish symbol originated, was also a carry-over into Christianity, and transubstantiation is another pagan rite that was ripped right out of paganism and dropped into the Easter wafer, in which most Christians indulge.

As mentioned before, the Vatican sports a huge brazen obelisk at the center of St. Peter's square that was brought to the Church from Heliopolis, Egypt, by the Roman emperor Caligula. The obelisk is a phallic symbol (penis) that dedicates the Roman Catholic Church to sun worship in the name of Ishtar (Easter). Caligula considered himself god and demanded worship as a physical god – not unlike the Catholic Pope who postures himself as being infallible and in the place of god. The difference between modern Catholicism and paganism is mere semantics. The Catholic Church demonstrates all manner of demonic spirit that Caligula himself "enjoyed," including an abundance of extremely high level pedophile sex crimes. Those who are not Catholic, however, need not point their fingers, because every Christian who erects a Christmas tree or attends church on Sunday or celebrates Easter or Valentine's Day is blindly following Roman Catholic authority.

Y'shua Mashiyach is the government of YHWH, he is altogether Righteous, Just and Lawful, but most Christians are adamant that "Jesus did away with the Law." There is plenty of evidence that proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that Mashiyach Y'shua has been utterly betrayed by the vast majority of Christianity. But the greatest "slap in the face" to Mashiyach, is that when Christians are Scripturally presented with the truth about Mashiyach Y'shua, rather than repenting and turning to YHWH, most choose to ignore Truth, and continue to follow pagan customs. Most Christians ask, "What difference does it make?" because they see no difference between the absolute Truth of the Perfect Mashiyach versus a false religious system that invented Je-Zeus according to a mixture of truth and paganism.

The distinctions of Mashiyach's government are universal and unchanging regardless of how he is personified by Christians, Jews, Muslims and all other religions. Although Christians may posture a Jesus deity according to Greco-Roman and pagan traditions, and may even give themselves exclusivity to the Kingdom of Elohim, the fact remains that Y'shua gave plenty of warnings against man's traditions when he said: "It will not be that just anyone who says to me 'My master, my master.' Will enter the Kingdom of Heaven, but whoever does the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, 'My master, my master. By your name, have we not prophesied? And by your name have we cast out demons? And by your name have we done many miracles?" And then I will profess to them that from everlasting, I have not known you. Depart from me, you workers of iniquity! Anyone, therefore, who hears my words, these, and does them, will be likened to a wise man who built his house upon a stone" (Matthew 7:21-24).

Y'shua used many parables and metaphors to bring the point across that the carnal nature of man must die so the spiritual man can live within him. There are no religious substitutes that can be given in exchange for living a righteous lifestyle in Mashiach. Everyone who has put forth an effort to live a life pleasing to Master YHWH, regardless of religion, has experienced what it means to bear the infamy of truth and make war against the carnal nature; which is why Y'shua said, "...I say to you, that unless you eat the body of the Son of man and drink his blood, you have no life in Qnoma. And he who eats from my body and drinks from my blood has life that is everlasting, and I will raise him up on the last day. For truly my body is food and truly my blood is drink. He who eats my body and drinks my blood abides in me and I in him. As the Living Father has sent me, and I live because of the Father, and whoever eats of me he also will live because of me. This is the Bread that has descended from Heaven. It is not as manna your forefathers ate and died. He who eats this Bread will live forever!" (Yochanan 6:53-58)

From Publication to Masorah and Liturgy: Where Do We Go From Here?

It's the text

As you've sojourned through these pages you've noticed suggestions and ideas – some gentle, some not – which dealt with a wide variety of historical and spiritual traditions that surround, or have been in opposition to, this text. You have seen critiques against Rabbinic Judaism, ancient Gnosticism, Roman Catholicism, Protestantism and “Greeks in Jewish Clothing,” just to name a few. However, let it not be said that one group hath escaped the sharpened quill, we of the Netzari Faith ourselves!

The fact is, there is no place on Earth, not one solitary kehillath (assembly) in which all the optimum requirements are being met for worship. Yes, obviously some assemblies are quite close, but all are lacking in elements which are just as critical as the ones they have embraced and adopted.

Picture this if you will: It is Shavuot, and the whole Netzarim congregation is rejoicing in the Ruach haKodesh, in Mashiyach and in the giving of Torah. As the Torah is being carried about and rejoiced over there is dancing, singing and aliyahs, blessings upon the opening and closing of the ark that contains the precious word of YHWH inscribed in the Set Apart Hebrew language. It is certainly a great honor for each of us to be part of such a community of worshippers. And then, to climax all of this, many will read from their source of ultimate halakha, the teachings of YHWH's Son, the Living Torah, from a Greek translation? And without a scroll?

What's worse, many can't even agree on which version to learn from! Is it the Greek from Western, Alexandrian or Byzantine text families? Is Matthew to be read from these or from one of three late medieval copies written in Hebrew? Are the rest of the Gospels coming from the Greek, Peshitta or Old Syriac? Or maybe we should targum by the seat of our pants, becoming “Nazarene Pentecostals” speaking in “strange tongues” and cobble together readings from a particular Semitic Buffet Line?

Can we not see the disconnect here dear brethren? Why are Scriptures treated and handled differently because of what part of the Word they come from?

Are we never to do an aliyah reading from the scroll that has the first five books of the Renewed Covenant in Aramaic, as we do from the five books of Torah that were given by the One True Lawgiver?

Why then you may ask, did we not put this diglot into Hebrew rather than English? As mentioned earlier it is vital that we all share in the preservation of the Aramaic language. Now everyone can see the text and analyze it for themselves regardless of their Hebrew or Aramaic language skills.

But for the Netzarim community there must be a wider purpose, even to standardize and reinvigorate the kind of Jewish learning infrastructure that existed in the days of the Shlichim when the Temple stood and in the centuries immediately following with the establishment of the Tiberian style yeshivas. For this, we must read from all Set Apart texts in a unified manner. The rabbis of the period ascertained that standardizing and stabilizing canon lists, liturgy and the readings themselves was critical to keeping their culture alive. Hebrew and Hebrew literature had to have a base which everyone agreed on, at least as a foundational starting point for scholarship and prayer. Should not this same wisdom be applied to the Renewed Covenant writings as well?

The writings of the Renewed Covenant are just as worthy as Tanakh, and should be venerated and preserved in the exact manner as Tanakh, including production by a scribal hand on animal skins and using a counting method of the letter values of each line to ensure one hundred percent accuracy. But we can't make that kind of guarantee if we don't know what the text that we are reproducing actually is!

Netzarim communities must retain their distinctiveness but also agree on the source from where that distinctiveness arises. We have all witnessed the pitfalls of having one man “reconstruct” Holy Writ according to his own whim. Do we really want to come under the scrutiny of the Master YHWH for proffering any man-made versions?

We must thoroughly examine the ancient traditions that have survived and select from them one candidate-text as standard bearer, the base text from which all other ancient variants can play off of and compare themselves to.

Where is the Hebraic Roots text of Mashiyach Y’shua? We know that the Greek language presents immense challenges to recovering original Hebrew and Aramaic thought, so why go through that when a well attested to ancient tradition has survived from the apostolic age in the sister language of the Torah and in the dialect in which Y’shua himself taught?

The bottom line is this, only one Semitic tradition for the Renewed Covenant has survived from the apostolic age, and for at least the 22 books of the Eastern canon, it is preserved and reproduced with an accuracy that rivals or even surpasses that of the Masoretes and their efforts on Tanakh. Otherwise we are left with a pshat in the dark!

And so, it is not so much a matter of trying to convince every Netzari soul to drop whatever text they like and never look at it again in favor of a perfect Peshitta. Rather, it is to embrace Peshitta as a starting point, irrespective of where other differences may later take us.

The whole text

Ourselves and a growing number of YHWH’s people are hereby proposing that Four Renewed Covenant scrolls be added to the ark of every Netzarim synagogue, which has been delineated in this diglot as follows:

Scroll 1: *Gospels and Emissaries

(Matthew through Acts, mirroring the Five Books of Moshe on one Torah scroll).

Scroll 2: *The Major Testimonies

(Hebrews, Ya’akov, Yehuda, 1 Keefa, 2 Keefa, Romans, 1 Corinthians and 2 Corinthians).

Scroll 3: *The Ten

(Galatians, Ephesians, Colossians, Philippians, 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians, 1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, Titus and Philemon, mirroring “the Twelve”, or the listing of that number of minor prophets on a single Torah scroll).

Scroll 4: The Second Testimony of Yochanan (1-3 Yochanan, Revelation).

As for the text itself, I trust that what has been done here would be a fair starting point. We have restored the original Eastern readings and have also rigorously checked and compared the Khabouris manuscript against the standardized 1905 Critical Edition, making suggestions for where the best readings are while preserving their alternatives. In doing so we have been honest and transparent as to what all the variants are, whether they are major or minor, and how to retain all textual readings for future study even if some feel the base text is not as precise as they would prefer for a given reading. The fact is though, we all do this with the Masoretic Text of Tanakh anyway, so why not simply be consistent? We should argue from the base text, not on what the base actually is.

In a perfect world what I would propose that the consonants of this diglot form the un-pointed “Hebrew” of the Masorah of these scrolls. Then the full vowel-pointed Estrangela Midyat text could also be transliterated into pointed Hebrew for use in prayer books, Siddur volumes and so on. All Netzarim rabbinic study, yeshiva training and halachic discussion would thus be centered and stabilized, creating a group of scholars and teachers that would rival anything on Earth, indeed surpass anything and easily refute any anti-Mashiyach propaganda that comes our way. Again I draw parallels from the greater Jewish tradition on Tanakh. Even though portions of Esther and Daniel, along with greater commentary and interpretive bodies such as Talmud and Kabbalah are in Aramaic, they have been “pasteurized” into a unified “Hebrew” script. I put “Hebrew” in quotes because this square script is officially known as ktav ashurri—literally “Assyrian writing”—so it is really an Aramaic script after all.

Nevertheless, it was prudent to have one alaph-beet style to rule them all, to subsume all sacred and liturgical traditions under a singular umbrella construct. And so, it is my hope that there would be a greater and wider understanding of how Hebrew Tanakh and Aramaic Renewed Covenant writings relate and are intimately connected to one another, and this is best achieved through consistency of use and application within a unified scholarly methodology.

And nothing but the text

At the same time, we Netzarim need to stem the tide away from all heretical attempts to widen or diminish our Canon. Many believers seem to be reliving the ancient controversies of not only the Rabbinic processes of determining worthy Tanakh books but on the Christian side with debating books and readings from the Councils of Nicea and Carthage in the Fourth Century. There have been attempts to “restore” to us everything from a 151st Psalm to apocryphal testaments of Enoch and other interesting, but ultimately less certain, religious literature. Certainly the exploration of wider religious literature of the period is meritorious, even through examining interpretive history of a passage of Scripture, but to view those same writings as being canonical is another matter.

On the other side of the scale, there are also minimalists who would throw out the writings of Rav Shaul or who might even consign the entire Renewed Covenant corpus to something less than authoritative. They come into our communities teaching that Y’shua’s words are as midrash or targum, suggesting they are restoring Tanakh foundation; but what they really are doing is emptying the literal force of the Word on issues like the Virgin Birth and even the Resurrection of their full intended power. In doing so they forget: There can be no valid esoteric or mystical interpretation that at its core overturns the basic scriptural message.

At least the minimalist’s inspiration, the Ebyonim (Ebionites) who opposed Rav Shaul in Acts 15 and elsewhere, are honest about their method and reasoning. They believe all that is needed is to add their version of Hebrew Matthew to the Torah and propose that Y’shua was not divine. Nevertheless, while what they believe is very objectionable, one cannot deny that they have formed their community around consistent principles that are based on their own viewpoint.

Having said that it is quite clear that those who come among us under the guise of unity and faux tolerance, to strip away the authority of the Renewed Covenant and take the true nature of Y’shua’s message away, are often reacting to “the false pen of the scribe.” They say “Yes we are Messianics but we don’t follow Paul” or “Of course we love Torah and Y’shua haMashiyach but we think Hebrews is not Scripture,” etc. Regardless of whether this is a reactionary or defensive maneuver it is spawned not by ancient Aramaic texts, but by the overwhelming barrage of revisionist anti-Torah and anti-Mashiyach theologies.

How many more ancient Aramaic manuscripts must be unearthed before we realize that our Master YHWH has preserved the witness of Mashiyach Y’shua abundantly well? Blessed Be His Set Apart Name!

Finally, we know brethren what Mashiyach Y’shua prophesied; “...the earth wondered after the beast of prey” (Revelation 13:3). Rav Shaul warned, “Let no one deceive you in any way because (that day will not come) unless there previously come a defection and that man of sin be revealed; the son of perdition” (2 Thess. 2:3). Keefa warned that ignorant and unstable persons were twisting Paul’s words even during his lifetime (2 Peter 3:16). The burden is upon each of us to defray the onslaught of religious propaganda against the faith which was once delivered and carefully examine and consider the closest-to-original text that we have available, right here and right now.

And as Rav Shaul pointed out: One of you says, "I follow Paul"; another, "I follow Apollos"; another, "I follow Keefa"; still another, "I follow Mashiyach." Is Mashiyach divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Were you baptized into the name of Paul?" (1 Cor. 1:12-15) One individual cannot resolve this need for all our brethren, but everyone who has been called as YHWH's servants are called to unity of purpose. Rav Shaul put it this way, "And, by the grace given to me, I say to you all: Do not carry thoughts beyond what you should think; but think with modesty, as Elohim has distributed to each one his measure of faith" (Romans 12:3).

Baruch haba b'Shem YHWH!

Blessed is he who comes in the Name of Yahweh!

Y'varekh 'kha YHWH v'yishmaerekha,
May Yahweh bless you and keep you.

Ya'er YHWH panav eleikha vichunekka,
May Yahweh make His face shine upon you and be gracious unto you.

Yissa YHWH panav eleikha v'yasem l'kha shalom.
May Yahweh lift up His face toward you and give you peace.

The Weekly Scripture Readings (Parsha) from Tanakh and Renewed Covenant Writings are read each Shabbat. The Scripture Readings for Moedim are read on and according to the Moedim (annual Feasts) of the Torah based Hebrew calendar. The original public reading of Torah began with Ezra after the Jewish people returned from the Babylonian captivity (c. 537 BCE), as described in Nehemiah Chapter 8. Originally, the Torah portions were read over a three year period; however, this was adapted to the annual cycle as seen here. Today some congregations have returned to the ancient Israelite triennial cycle of reading the Torah over a three year period, but the current practice in Orthodox and the majority of Messianic/Netzari congregations is to follow this annual cycle.
